RE: Request Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act – FOIA #13-013

This letter is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) dated January 21, 2013. In your request, you ask for copies of email correspondence from Board Member Victor H. Ashe to Lynne Weill, Letitia M. King, Bruce Sherman, Jeffrey Trimble and Charles Goolsby during calendar year 2012.

The agency has completed its search for and review of documents responsive to your request. The agency located 2,066 pages of responsive documents, and they are included on the enclosed CD-R in PDF format. The documents are organized into eight batches of releasable materials, which is how they were made available in interim releases to other requesters seeking the same documents. As per your request, the agency did not provide you with interim releases of documents as they became available.

Due to the unexpected delay in processing your request, the agency has decided to waive all fees associated with it. Accordingly, the releasable documents contained on are provided to you free of charge.

Certain information relating to individuals has been redacted from the enclosed documents pursuant to FOIA Exemption 6 to protect their personal privacy interests; such redactions have been marked with the code (b)(6). Additionally, certain information protected by the attorney client privilege, the attorney work product privilege, or the deliberative process privilege has been redacted pursuant to FOIA Exemption 5 and marked with the code (b)(5). No other responsive information has been redacted or withheld by the agency.

This completes the agency's response to your request and it is now closed. Because information was redacted from the documents provided, you may appeal those adverse determinations. If you wish to do so, you must send your appeal within thirty (30) calendar days from the date of this letter to the Chairperson, Access Appeal Committee, BBG, Suite 3349, 330 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, DC 20237. For all other inquiries, I can be reached at the address and phone numbers listed above.

Sincerely,

RE: Request Pursuant to the Freedom of Information Act – FOIA #13-013

This letter is in response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request to the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) dated January 21, 2013. In your request, you ask for copies of email correspondence from Board Member Victor H. Ashe to Lynne Weill, Letitia M. King, Bruce Sherman, Jeffrey Trimble and Charles Goolsby during calendar year 2012.

For purposes of assessing fees pursuant to the OMB Fee Guidelines, you have been placed in Category III, the “other requestors” category. In your request, you agreed to pay up to $100 in processing costs. However, the Agency’s initial estimate of chargeable fees is as follows:

Estimated fees for search

Number of employees: 6

GS-9 through GS-13 ($20/hour): .5 hour x $20	$10
GS-14 and above ($36/hour): (8 hours – 2 free) x $36	$216.00

Estimated fees for duplication

Number of pages: 950 ($0.15/page):	$142.50

TOTAL ESTIMATED FEES: $358.50

As this estimated sum exceeds the amount you initially agreed to pay, the agency is suspending further processing of this request until you provide confirmation that you will be willing to agree to pay the full search, reproduction, and review costs associated with it. If we do not receive your response within thirty (30) days from the date of this letter, we will assume that you are no longer interested in pursuing this request and it will be closed.

You may mail your reply at to me at the Office of the General Counsel, Broadcasting Board of Governors, 330 Independence Avenue, S.W., Room 3349, Washington, DC 20237, or fax it to (202) 203-4585. Currently, no inquiries are accepted via E-mail.

We should recognize that the congressman is not going to let this issue slide. I think it is important that Director Lobo make an appointment with the Congressman along with VOA Director Ensor to talk it thru. We should reach out to him. These letter exchanges are going nowhere. We should discuss this at Governors meeting on Friday.

Good morning, Victor --

For the past couple of days your messages have been sent to my personal e-mail account, which I don't use for work-related correspondence, and which I check only in my free time. Yesterday's messages were sent both to that address and to my BBG account. The e-mail below went only to my personal account.

These things can happen inadvertently, especially when using a device where an address comes up automatically when a name is typed in. We've all done it at some point.

Please be conscious of this development, and double-check before sending e-mail my way; I will always see it when it goes to my BBG address.

This is the actual tape from Steve Korn speaking to RFERL on the Moscow personnel firings as it appeared on BBG watch. I urge you to listen to it. Draw your own conclusions. Apparently someone recorded this while Korn spoke.

However, I feel the content is stunning. As a manager myself when I was Mayor for 16 years and as Ambassador for 5 years at Embassy, it shows virtually no empathy for fired persons. He basically says it is my way or the highway. This approach can only incite fear and anger. As an American I cannot be proud of the way he is handling this. It sends the wrong message to working men and women who make up RFERL.

This approach can only leave lingering hostility towards him and his small management team. As a RFERL Board we have not faced up to the management issues we face now. Perhaps we will never face up to it and it may be that I am the only one who worries about Korn's management style which triggers so much unrest. We have not met as a Board on this. Missing is any sense of compassion or concern. They are key ingredients to a sound management approach.

Our chair, Dennis Mulhaupt, under the employment contract with Mr Korn has not done the annual evaluation after the first year of employment which passed several months ago. At least that is what Gov. Mulhaupt told me at the last September RFERL Board meeting. If he has done it since then, he did not seek views of all other Board members and/or share the results of his evaluation with the full Board. If it is done, I use this e mail to ask for a copy of it.

It may be that an RFERL audit committee meeting will occur in December and I hope all Board members will be invited to attend if such occurs. That is what I do as chair of MBN audit which is meeting November 15 and all MBN Board members can listen in if they wish.

If we continue to sidestep this building personnel/morale issue, we will continue the damage which is being done to RFERL, to its image, to freedom loving citizens and to US foreign policy.

Please let us know as soon as possible if you have comments or questions about the proposed agenda or the proposed webcasting of a portion of the meeting to announce the PAR and showcase MBN's programming initiatives. While I appreciate having this, getting it only two hours before the meeting over lunch makes it impossible to read and digest before the meeting. I notice it is dated October 9. Why are we only getting it a month later?

I could have had this with the booklet I got yesterday and had time last night to digest and ask better questions.

I really wish in the future we would get these materials a day or two out before significant meetings like the one today. Susan McCue said today she was unaware of Mr. Korn's views on this.

Governor Ashe -

Just to clarify: I did not say that Undersecretary Sonenshine "can send a rep which counts toward a forum". I said that if the State Department provides a formal delegation of authority from the Secretary to Mr. Cullin or another State Department representative, then Mr. Cullin or such other representative may represent the Secretary and be counted toward a quorum. My understanding is that, at this point in time, the State Department has not issued a formal delegation to anyone other than the Undersecretary.

Paul Kollmer has stated and opined that Sec Sonenshine can send a rep which counts towards a quorum. That does not seem to be noted here. If that happens then we have a quorum when Gov Perino and McCue call in for afternoon so why would this be canceled?

But in either case, the grantee Board meetings plus MBN audit should occur and the briefings for those Governors in attendance should occur plus Gov Meehan has called a Strategy and Budget Committee meeting that day for business. We will have a full gathering of the committee membership. No one will be absent.

I feel staff should still brief Governors for those issues outlined in the proposed agenda sent out a few days ago. Grantees can still meet.

Will there be a December meeting? Or will February, 2013 be the next meeting?

Victor Ashe

Governors,

As of this afternoon, we have definitive word that Governors Lynton, Mulhaupt, and Under Secretary Sonenshine will not be able to attend the November 15 Board meeting.

Governors Meehan and Ashe have confirmed their availability to attend in person.

Governors McCue and Perino have confirmed their availability to participate by phone in the late afternoon.

Therefore, there will be no quorum for a public BBG meeting and no formal votes can be taken. The Government in the Sunshine Act does not require public observation (webcast) if no meeting takes place.

If you wish, Board members can still meet on November 15 to receive briefings by staff and to conduct RFA and MBN corporate Board meetings in the afternoon.

If the Board members who have indicated their availability on November 15 would like to hold briefings and RFA and MBN corporate Board meetings at RFA headquarters, please let us know as soon as possible so that we can prepare an amended, updated agenda.

Thank you.

Why are the legal counsels for the three grantees not invited to hear the IBB Director's report? Seems like the VOA and OCB legal counsel is there in the form of the deputy general counsel Paul Kollmer but not Noble, Burns or Cohen who are interim or regular general counsels for the three grantees. I think this is an error and sets up a "we versus them" scenario which can only cause long term problems. It does not build confidence. Courtesy and collegiality would suggest we include them. At least let them know the governance committee is meeting. I assume it must be announced on BBG web site even if it is by phone so they will learn of it anyway by compliance with federal regs.

I urge they be included and invited to participate. I am sure there will be questions on the IBB Director's report where Governors want the reaction of the three grantees? Why not have them there and send them the same advance copy being sent to the three Governors and already given to Gov. Lynton? This would shorten the process. Otherwise, we will have to do it at a second meeting.

With such a crowd apparently participating in this call, I have trouble believing they will not learn of it anyway.

I am available for the December meetings. Surely we will meet. If we do not meet in December and there is no quorum for November then it means we go from October 11 to mid February with NO Meeting. That is 4 months. Shame on us if we let that happen. That will be awful.

Dear Governors,

At the request of IBB Director Lobo, I am polling the Board to determine its ability to meet in December.

According to the schedule previously approved by the Board, December 13 and 14 (Thursday and Friday) are designated as an optional meeting of the Board.

If for some reason the Board does not achieve a quorum on November 15, the Board could still meet to receive briefings by staff and hold Committee and entity meetings but there could be no formal votes taken.

Therefore, the Board, if it wishes, could consider holding a meeting in December as the next scheduled meeting after December is February 21-22, 2013.

Please let us know if you would be available for a Board meeting on Thursday, December 13 and/or Friday, December 14 in the Cohen Building.

Thank you.

Below is an addendum to the November 5, 2012 BBG Media Highlights:

The Bureaucratic Attack on International Broadcasting - Heritage Foundation, November 2, 2012

By Caitlin Duvall

November 2, 2012

The recent layoff of Voice of America (VOA) employees in Russia comes at a time when U.S. international broadcasting is also losing ground to bureaucratic overkill.

Despite a continually expanding budget, many mission-critical broadcasting services are being cut, personnel are being let go, and broadcasters are being required to do more with less. Low job satisfaction within the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) has become a growing trend in recent years. Many employees attribute their dissatisfaction to accepted behaviors of underperformance from managers. Mere awareness of these and other problems has failed to bring about much-needed changes.

But perhaps the biggest problem facing U.S. international broadcasting is its very own leadership. The BBG's nine-person board, which oversees all government civilian broadcasting, was created to serve as a firewall between policymakers and broadcasters. However, as one VOA employee puts it, broadcasters "need more protection from the firewall than they need the firewall itself."

Many of the BBG members exercise little meaningful guidance to the group (if they even attend the meetings at all). The board has also been criticized for cracking down on the disclosure of “deliberative information” circulating internally. With its core mission being the promotion of America’s policy positions abroad, it seems counterproductive to stifle internal communications, especially when collaboration and exchange are essential for success.

The inefficiencies highlighted above are in need of real solutions. In order for the U.S. to effectively promote its policies abroad, Congress should consider rewriting the legislation that created the BBG in a way that ensures professional management and a transparent structure. It should also include an independent strategic overview of all broadcasting entities of the U.S. government.

A much-needed review of the BBG is underway at the State Department Office of the Inspector General, which will most likely find these solutions necessary to correcting the internal problems of U.S. international broadcasting.

In a time when the promotion of U.S. policies is sorely needed to combat a growing anti-American sentiment around the world, the U.S. should undertake reforms to improve the management practices and structures of the BBG. If not, the organization is in danger of remaining, in the words of Senator Tom Coburn (R-OK), the “most worthless organization in the federal government.”

Attached please find a draft agenda for a telephonic meeting of the Governance Committee to be held on Thursday, November 8, 2012 at 10:00 am EST. This is a draft document and will be subject to change.

Given the short window in which Committee members can meet, the Committee will consider the IBB Director's plan for the creation of a CEO, as dictated by the Board at its September 2010 meeting.

The relevant text of the Board's September 13, 2012, decision is reproduced below for your convenience.

... That the Board instruct the IBB Director, under the guidance of the Governance Committee, to develop a plan to address the following issues:

- a. The authorities that should be delegated from the Board to the CEO;
b. The agency officers who should report directly to the CEO;
c. The relationship of the CEO and the IBB Director.

Lynne Weil

First, I find it unfortunate that no one asked me if this time works for me. I assume Lynton and McCue were surveyed and I was not. This is not a good way Dennis for you to conduct the scheduling. When I was in DC yesterday on Nov 1 it was never mentioned to me by anyone and yet I am sure Dick Lobo, Paul Kollmer, Jeff Trimble knew it was under consideration. No one mentioned it to me. Which Governors have said they will call in?

Is this meeting notice going to be placed on the BBG web site? How can this go forward when Gov Lynton has not named the committee which the Board in September voted to create and directed him to name? Should not that committee meet first as it has recommendations to make? On October 11 he acknowledged he had not named it.

Finally, concurrent with this we learn of the terrible results from the OPM survey of morale which shows things are worst than ever. Gov. Mulhaupt says we should meet on this as governance committee. Why is that not on the agenda for discussion November 8? Which is more important the CEO or the Morale or

Also will entity heads be included along with Ensor and Garcia at governance by phone meeting? I have copied our nominated new chair on this so he is informed.

I think one hour on this topic is inadequate. It weakens the merit of the final product as it shows we did not take time in a thoughtful setting where we were all present to act.

Unhappily yours,

Victor Ashe

PS Dennis did call me a few minutes ago and said he assumed that I had been called and regretted that I had not been contacted. It was not intentional he said which I know is true from his vantage point.

It is beginning to look like December 14 will not be a Board meeting now and nothing is set for January. If this means BBG goes to February without a Board meeting then it is shameful and makes all look bad. There are really pressing issues especially with RFERL in Moscow continuing to implode and bad results from OPM.

Subj: RFE/RL turns into the media spreading Sexism, Xenophobia, Homophobia, Racism and Platitude

Congratulations, ladies and gentlemen, RFE/RL has quickly turned into obscene, vulgar, racial and tabloid media after its president Steve Korn declared his struggle to attract new audience. For almost three months there has been a new video project at RFE/RL, which on the outside looks like as satirical review of clumsy video recordings or unsuccessful professional video clips from Kazakhstan but, in reality, it is derision at readers and morale. Performers of the video project - young Kazakh actors themselves build their original projects based on platitude, racism, homophobia, propagating dirty sex and shoddy tabloid journalism. The group entitled Wi-Fi 25 has an odious image in Kazakhstan. They often not only use obscene language but also demonstrate sex and show genitals using their hands in their video project. Here is the typical video show that is already available in the Internet. I am sorry but I need to provide the link to this dirty product because RFE/RL has been implementing its joint project exactly with this very odious and vulgar group, using money of American taxpayers. Since their vulgar, obscene manners and moderators' smutty faces, grins and swearing words are obvious without any interpretation, it is not necessary to translate them into English.

RFE/RL has invited the group - Wi-Fi 25, which has an odious and dirty image, for cooperation and already produced their joint first three video shows. You still can find the video products on RFE/RL's website. The first video show is called "Shopaq" (which in slang means male genital organ) and was published on 2 August 2012.

Cynicism of the video project starts with the following warning caption: "Warning!!! There are dirty, swearing words in this video product. People with high morale and distinct culture are prohibited to watch it". RFE/RL also issues this kind of warning in other two video shows, probably because it thinks that somehow they adhered the corporation's journalism ethics and laws of the USA and Kazakhstan. There are the website of RFE/RL's Kazakh service www.azattyq.org and RFE/RL logo (the torch that is supposed to represent light to people and serve them by promoting democratic values) on the left side corner of the video show's screen. However, the performers of the video show use obscene language, pouring platitudes, cynicism and sexism. There is also propaganda of child violence. In those videos you can see a fight between children. At the end of video show you can also see how one of the moderators examines his zipper (XYZ). The hosts of the video show tell goodbye to RFE/RL readers with a gesture meaning sex.

RFE/RL and Wi-Fi 25 published the next joint video product entitled "Sol Paskal" on 3 September 2012. It is also full of sexism, filthy language and swearing words.

<http://www.azattyq.org/media/video/24696177.html>

In its third video show entitled "Agent" on 18 October, RFE/RL promotes sexism even further by showing, focusing on intimate parts of beautiful girls' seminude body and hinting that one of the hosts masturbating at the same time during moderation of the program. On the fourth minute of the show there is obvious and direct swearing words: "Fuck! you stepped on my foot...". On the seventh minute of the show you hear racism when the hosts of the video show call a representative of allegedly Latino-American race "Cacao".

These are the certain examples of reforms at RFE/RL, the new president of which, Steve Korn, declared to the whole world that he will make breakthrough by introducing new digital technology. Under the external "dog and pony show" of pseudo-reforms, and (as Russians say) under Potemkin Villages, there is just a hidden cheap literary production issued at the expense of American taxpayers.

This really requires a BBG briefing and meeting...not simply an e mail that we all acquiesce to ...I would like to hear the arguments on both sides. I am surprised my friends and colleagues on this Board are not seeking more information on this. If BBG loses this appeal, the price tag just escalated by millions. Only a few weeks ago, I asked what the current cost to settle is and what the potential cost would be. There has not been an answer to this.

I really worry that we are not meeting our fiduciary duties here with absolutely no discussion of this latest development. Has Mr Lobo conferred with the White House or Labor Dept. on this? I want this placed on the agenda for November 15 BBG meeting for a full review.

Does Carlos Garcia agree with this? was he part of the decision making process? Who did Mr Lobo consult besides Mr Kollmer?

Please record me as not agreeing to this recommendation pending the receipt of further information and dialogue. Morale at VOA/OCB is at a low and this action will not help improve the situation.

The broadcaster, Voice of America, has been the U.S. government's method of communication with populations abroad since 1942, when the institution broadcast anti-Nazi radio addresses to the German people in their native language.

Of Interest

Twitter Gives Saudi Arabia a Revolution of Its Own - New York Times, October 20, 2012

Saudi Arabia did not have an Arab Spring. But it has had a revolution of sorts. Open criticism of this country's royal family, once unheard-of, has become commonplace in recent months. Prominent judges and lawyers issue fierce public broadsides about large-scale government corruption and social neglect. Women deride the clerics who limit their freedoms. Even the king has come under attack. All this dissent is taking place on the same forum: Twitter.

Demonstrators stormed the offices of a private Libyan television station in Benghazi Sunday, protesting coverage of the clashes in Bani Walid, one of the last bastions of Moamer Kadhafi's regime. The demonstrators broke into the offices of Libya Al-Hurra station, wrecking the site and setting fire to an office, an AFP journalist witnessed.

Turkey's Press Freedom Crisis - CPJ, October 2012

Turkish authorities are engaging in widespread criminal prosecution and jailing of journalists, and are applying other forms of severe pressure to promote self-censorship in the press, a CPJ analysis shows. CPJ has found highly repressive laws, particularly in the penal code and anti-terror law; a criminal procedure code that greatly favors the state; and a harsh anti-press tone set at the highest levels of government. Turkey's press freedom situation has reached a crisis point.

Appease, Surrender, Abandon, and Get Nothing: Obama's NaivePolitik [op-ed]- Forbes, October 21, 2012

Putin used the USA as geopolitical enemy number one (to borrow a phrase from Romney) in his own presidential campaign, vetoed all meaningful United Nations resolutions against Iran, resupplied Syria, annexed Georgian territory by force, and expelled American organizations, including Radio Liberty and USAID, as "foreign agents." He tightened the screws on domestic opposition and free press, threw ordinary protesters in jail, while accusing Hillary Clinton, of all people, of fomenting "mass disorder." Putin will not renew a twenty-year-old agreement on securing weapons of mass destruction.

I am not sure how you wish to handle item about a Governor, who according to the article, was on a blackberry while presiding. I will leave it to you as to whether you feel that was accurate or not.

Hope you have a pleasant weekend otherwise. I am headed in an hour to a UT Alabama football game where Alabama is favored I regret to say.

Because Presiding Governor Lynton cannot attend the November Board meeting, Alternate Presiding Governor Mulhaupt has suggested that all BBG-related meetings to take place on Thursday, November 15, at RFA headquarters. No meetings will be scheduled on Friday, November 16.

In the event that the Board cannot achieve a quorum for a meeting on November 15, even by phone or videoconference, the Board will need to decide whether to meet in December as it is currently scheduled as an optional meeting on December 13 and 14. RFE/RL, Czech Republic Announce Vaclav Havel Journalism Fellowship

(WASHINGTON -- March 15, 2012) In a tribute to the life and work of Vaclav Havel, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the

Czech Republic and RFE/RL announce the launch of the Vaclav Havel Journalism Fellowship. The inaugural Vaclav Havel fellow, Franak Viachorka, will be in Washington for a week of training beginning on March 19, and will also be recognized at a reception hosted by the Czech Embassy.

Petr Gandalovic, Ambassador of the Czech Republic to the U.S., described the goals of the program by invoking the legacy of his country's former president. "Havel was a playwright, dissident and political leader. He had an uncompromising belief in the power of words and the power of truth to unite people and overcome tyranny. This Fellowship carries the spirit of his convictions to places struggling against censorship where -- even in 2012 -- people are still denied the fundamental human right of free speech."

Fellowships will afford independent journalists from countries lacking a free media six months of professional, on-the-job training and development at RFE/RL's Prague headquarters. The program initially targets EU Eastern Partnership countries including Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Georgia, Moldova, and Ukraine, and may expand to include fellows from other countries, including Afghanistan and Pakistan.

"RFE/RL has a special relationship with the Czech people," says RFE/RL president Steven Korn. "This partnership will give promising young journalists an opportunity to work for impact in their own countries without fear."

During his fellowship, Viachorka, a journalist and documentary filmmaker from Belarus, will train with RFE/RL's Belarus service, Radio Svaboda. His visit to Washington will also include high-level meetings with journalists, diplomats, congressional staff members, and think tanks.

Viachorka has worked as a journalist and editor for several independent publications in Belarus, including as a freelancer for the BelaPAN news agency and the independent Polish satellite TV station, Belsat. He first came to the attention of Radio Svaboda at the age of 13 when he appeared from 2001-2002 on the program "Young Voices." In 2006 he starred in the award-winning documentary, "A Lesson of Belarusian," which chronicles his teenage years in Aleksandr Lukashenka's Belarus. Viachorka is also the author of the European travel book "Wanderer's Guide" and director of the Citizen Journalist blog.

Good morning, Victor --

I asked our office assistant to put me in touch with the right person on the BBG technical team to address the question of why e-mails from your account kept turning up in mine as being sent by "Kee." While doing this, she discovered that Oanh had also received messages from a regular e-mail correspondent that suddenly were showing a different sender's name attached to that person's account. But it was a mere coincidence; our techhies here believe the issue is not with the BBG's system.

Best regards,

Dear Ambassador Ashe,

Thanks for the update on your trip and the great pictures.

Here's a draft item for the BBG website on your stop in Thailand. We are happy to work with you and RFA to provide highlights on Cambodia and Laos as the trip proceeds.

Please let us know if you have any changes or additions.

Many thanks,

Tish

BBG Governor Victor Ashe is in Southeast Asia, visiting BBG facilities, meeting with agency staff and holding talks with U.S. embassy officials and local authorities in Thailand, Cambodia, and Laos.

In the Udon Thani province of northeast Thailand, Ashe toured a BBG transmission facility and presented 30-year and 20-year service awards to staff members.

He spoke about the BBG's mission and praised staff for its work in support of U.S. international broadcasting.

Ashe, a former U.S. ambassador to Poland, took particular interest in the activities undertaken by BBG officials to build and maintain relationships with local communities.

His next stop is Cambodia and then Laos for further consultations on Radio Free Asia and Voice of America operations.

No problems! The Governor met the assembled staff in our multi-purpose room shortly after arriving at the station and was kind enough to present 30 year and 20 year service awards to staff members. He spoke briefly about our mission and how much the Board appreciated the quality work they do in support of US international broadcasting and was quite sincere and personable with the staff.

He invited questions and was asked about the future of the station to which the Governor assured everyone that the Board had no intention or plan to close and he expected that the station would continue operating for quite some time.

We re-assembled on the front steps and took several pictures so the Governor has at least one image that he can place on the BBG web page when he returns. Several personal photos were taken individually with nearly every staff member lining up to get a photo with the Governor.

Then we toured the entire station. he wanted to see everything he could... He was shown the interior of one of the off-line Marconi transmitters, cooling room and power supply, the antenna switchbay and then toured the facilities maintenance building. By the end of the tour I think he managed to meet and greet each member of the staff before we went into Ban Dung for lunch.

The signage was not an issue for us as it was in Greenville, though he spoke at some length with me about the name of the Greenville station and wondered if the Thailand station had ever had a namesake. A couple months ago, I had the front wall repainted and letters on the signs regilded so our signage looked like new.

The Ambassador part of Governor Ashe took particular interest in the activities that we undertake to maintain a relationship with our local community and asked me to develop a brief narrative that he can take back to the next BBG meeting to share with the Board since none of the other members has ever been to the Thai station. I'll draft that and give it to him next week when we tour the MW station.

He pointed out that visiting the Stations was not his primary purpose in coming to SE Asia, but that he felt that it was important to meet the staff and present the flag to the troops in the field and to assure them that he and the Board value the work they do in support of our mission.

He will meet with the acting-PAO at the Embassy in the morning.

Thanks...I think given the nature of the work we are in...that full discussion and rebuttal, agreement, modification, self examination of all comments, criticism etc are worthwhile..even when painful.

I comment Lynne Weil for reaching out to respond to some groups/individuals who previously were not responded to in an adequate manner. We should remember that responses will not always convince but an unanswered charge often becomes true if not answered. Certainly in politics that is the case. We must be players and not spectators.

Russia is difficult. We should discuss it at RFE and BBG for VOA. Putin is no friend of democracy. Journalists have been murdered during his tenure with little apparent effort on the government's part to track down the guilty parties. What is the best way to get into Russia? How successful are we?

I am genuinely worried that the proposed budget cuts especially for Tibetan and Laos are setting our ourselves up for another congressional slap in the face. Personally, I certainly did not know about them when I voted for the budget last fall at Walter's personal urging. Not being on Strategy and Budget, I was not privy to any lengthy analysis of the budget. After the fact I learn about specific cuts which I find unfortunate and unacceptable. My view is we should proactively save these cuts before Congress makes us do it.

Strategy and Budget Committee is now down to two members only while governance has 4 members. There seems to be imbalance here in terms of numbers.

Mr. Kollmer, My request was to have a bylaw change drafted and presented March 8. That request was sent to you in ample time to comply with the bylaws.. I am a Board member. Whether you agree or disagree with my approach, I am entitled to have my request implemented when I asked for it. If there was a problem with doing that then I am entitled to have you as deputy legal counsel tell me why you are not doing it. You failed to honor my request and are only telling me your reason for not doing it since I have raised the issue after it is too late to do much about it as the 21 day notice requirement has passed.

As an attorney myself, I differ with your legal analysis that this can be done without a bylaw chnage. What is the basis for your rationale? On your theory the Board can do anything and ignore the bylaws. You give me the impression of making legal opinions based on your hope for certain outcomes and not on the law.

I find this whole process most disappointing.

Victor – Thanks for your follow-up. A by-law change is not required in order to create the presiding Governor's authorities. This can be done by Board decision. So, if we follow the Board's precedent, the Board would consider and adopt the recommendation of the Governance Committee about the authorities and roles of the Presiding Governor -- including the text of a proposed bylaw change -- at the March 8 meeting. The Board decision would go into effect immediately and could then be reflected subsequently in a formal bylaw change as a housekeeping matter. Thanks. PKD

How do you propose that the Board vote on a bylaw change for which it has not received a copy of 21 days in advance? I still have not seen the by law change proposal and I had asked you for it. I had not seen the agenda until this evening when it was emailed out. The text of the by law change is simply not available even now. Current bylaws say 21 day notice...this means the full text...not just notice that the subject matter will be considered. Of course amendments are always in order both at the committee level and by the full Board. In other words the full Board cannot vote on this until April without violating the current bylaw requirement of 21 days notice.

To be honest, while I think research is important and needed, I think the current proposed layoffs and reduction in services force difficult choices upon us with which reasonable people can differ. This is where we may part company on this issue as I am troubled by spending 10 million a year ($8.8 million one year) while 200 fine employees are discharged and services like Tibetan language are reduced. I wonder if we should not cut even more in the Gallup contract for a few years to produce the savings needed to keep more of these lost jobs and Tibetan language. I feel sure Congress will take steps to halt the reduction in Tibetan language and based on what I know I would agree with Congress on that. Our priorities need further thought in my view.

I believe the intent of that item is for the committee to discuss how to provide the information which Walter asked the staff to set out in writing following the recent presentation by Paul Virtue of Baker & McKenzie on formal employee complaints (e.g. the first step is to contact the IBB director, how to contact the IG, etc.) so that the information is readily available to everyone in one place and format. I do not believe there is any further motive or purpose than that.

On topic 4, third item on March 7..what is this all about? Obviously I receive the most contacts from employees which I am happy to receive. I enjoy hearing from them. Susan McCue has received many too as she takes the time to meet, talk and have coffee with many. Does not mean I always agree but I feel I am a better Governor hearing directly. Are we now dreaming up rules of the road on how to talk and listen to employees? Surely not. We all have different approaches. We are individually appointed Governors with unique backgrounds. We have actually made some progress on employee communication but morale is still at the bottom. We are working on late payments issue but we have a ways to go. We should be encouraging employees to speak to us.

I hope to get to Cohen Bldg Thursday but I will not see it until that at mid day...in other words maybe an hour to review it...not satisfactory. Frankly this should be put off a week to allow reasonable time for Governor's reflections.

We can talk on Thurs.

Dear Victor,

As the person who last held the pen on the draft report – for several days, I confess – I particularly appreciate your flexibility.

With the rush of preparations for the budget rollout, and then its aftermath, I was unable to take a proper look at the draft report until the end of last week. Knowing that it had already been through layers of review, and that there was a publication schedule to be met, I sent my edits to Tish on the weekend.

Your more seasoned eye is likely to turn up additional needed edits. We do appreciate your taking the opportunity to take this on while on the road.

And we will look forward to seeing you on Thursday afternoon if you do come to the Cohen building.

All the best,

Lynne

Perhaps you can have it this Thursday at the Park Hyatt in Washington at 24th and M Streets for me to review and give my thoughts. I hope to get over to the Cohen Bldg on Thursday afternoon. I do feel that the issue of modernizing the equipment there is a significant one which the Board should know about. Some of the equipment is over 50 years old which I saw.

I understand some persons may ask to attend our BBG meeting in March as they did for January. Walter, then chair, said Yes.

I fully agree and as long as the numbers are manageable I think BBG gains more by saying Yes than NO. Put me down as one Governor who favors attendance if possible. At some point we should move to fully open meetings so that is not an issue.

Thank you, Victor, for your candor -- and I promise not to share your e-mail.
Would you mind keeping mine confidential, as well?

Greek is the one language service planned for elimination that will be of concern to Congress, which has restored it each time the BBG has tried to end it.

RFE/RL plans to discontinue its services in Avar, Chechen, and Circassian, and Steve Korn is addressing this with his employees tomorrow. RFE/RL has struggled to attract significant audiences for these SW broadcasts. The three languages are among dozens spoken in the region, where Russian remains the lingua franca. RFE/RL will continue to serve audiences there with Russian-language programming, including web and mobile content focused on regional news. The budget justification, which will be public tomorrow, makes this clear, and it's addressed in the in-house talking points sent to the Board on Friday.

There are changes expected in other language services, as you know, but none others eliminated altogether.

I agree that the release of a reduced budget request is bound to be upsetting and then some. And that the timing on the Hill for an actual budget bill is very much in question. But what alternative is there: Not releasing a budget?

And I understand your point about where cuts should be made. One week in, and I'm in no position to address that one.

If you feel that the tone of the draft message from the Board to employees could use some work, please share that with all on this afternoon's e-mail chain. You may not be the only one. And we're doing our best to get it right.

Best regards,

Lynne

I am sure that this statement reflects a majority of the Board views. However, you should know that as one member for whom this statement does not reflect the full scope of his views, I feel strongly that we have lots to do to reduce waste within the agency which have not occurred in a satisfactory way in my view. I refer to sending too many people to conferences such as Delhi, Prague and walk thru in Tampa for upcoming GOP convention, handing out bonus for top level personnel at IBB/BBG while facing layoffs (the optics are terrible)...I do not feel we are making tough decisions everywhere but in selected areas. $50 million contract for 5 years with Gallup (I feel that one should be reduced in size).

This statement references language services being eliminated. If Greek is it and the only one, that is one thing but if there are more we need to be honest about it.

Of course this budget plan probably will not become law which means the exercise creates anxiety among rank and file. Remember we look foolish when Maryjean says the computers cannot distinguish between vendors and contract employees (contractors) on late payments. For an agency which already the lowest morale around, this statement does not ease it or go far enough in "we feel your pain" in my view.

I prefer you not share this with anyone as I am simply sharing my personal views with you and offering my sympathy for the really tough job you face. I am happy to discuss this personally. Of course, I have voiced these sentiments with staff and my colleagues previously...although without winning converts..except for setting a Thanksgiving deadline to end late payments for contractors. I think some of the pain has to be shared by the top level as well.

I have no idea who this is and generally do not pay attention to persons not named in their e mails. However, the accuracy or inaccuracy of this can be checked. If true, Immediate action is needed as it raises valid concerns. If not true, we need to know that as well. Maryjean surely you can find out about this. As we face a difficult week with budget cuts, we should at the top level be seen as rooting out errors, mistakes and incompetence which cost. Again, if untrue we should know that too.

Gov. Ashe, thank you for the swift reply.

Please see the chart at the bottom of #11 for entity-by-entity position reductions.

Listing the many service-by-service reductions in either the news release or the Governors' statement would more than cloud the message. I believe this information will be available, though, when the Congressional Budget Justification is released; we'll post that on-line, so maybe a good solution would be to put a link to it at the end of the release and the statement.

As for the difficult, in person discussions, from our conversations this week I learned that each entity head has a self-directed schedule for briefing employees on the specifics affecting their entities. I've no involvement in that process; perhaps someone else on this list can address it.

It's worth repeating -- and we will, at every opportunity -- that everything possible will be done to limit impact on individuals through agency buyouts, early-out authority and reducing positions via attrition.

Best,

Lynne

Gov. Ashe, thank you for the swift reply.

Please see the chart at the bottom of #11 for entity-by-entity position reductions.

Listing the many service-by-service reductions in either the news release or the Governors' statement would more than cloud the message. I believe this information will be available, though, when the Congressional Budget Justification is released; we'll post that on-line, so maybe a good solution would be to put a link to it at the end of the release and the statement.

As for the difficult, in person discussions, from our conversations this week I learned that each entity head has a self-directed schedule for briefing employees on the specifics affecting their entities. I've no involvement in that process; perhaps someone else on this list can address it.

It's worth repeating -- and we will, at every opportunity -- that everything possible will be done to limit impact on individuals through agency buyouts, early-out authority and reducing positions via attrition.

Best,

Lynne

Dear Governors,

Attached for your review are the draft messaging materials prepared by agency staff in collaboration with the network heads and communications teams across all entities. They are:

- A message from the Board to agency employees
- A news release
- Talking points on the top nine most anticipated questions, in rank order of likelihood
- Examples of ways that we are ending duplication and streamlining services
- A budget overview, strategic principles guiding BBG budgeting decisions, and a comparison across broadcast entities at the request of some of the entity heads.

Much of what is in the talking points has been pulled from existing and in some cases published agency documents for consistency. Similarities between the board statement and the news release are intentional, as are the differences. Apart from those two items, which will be distributed, please forgive any typos or formatting errors arising from the production process this week.

Your feedback will help strengthen these items so that we can most effectively convey the reasoning and goals underlying this budget request. It would be most useful if comments could be made within the next 24 hours to ensure timely incorporation into these materials.

In a separate message, Maryjean Buhler has sent you the actual budget documents.

Best regards,

Lynne W.

Leader Pelosi's office did send out a notice of a hearing tomorrow...not an official one but one where people could attend. The hearing was on the proposed CEO for BBG. The word I hear is that the Leader's office canceled it at the request of BBG as someone (I do not know who) could not attend. That it has been postponed to Late October or more likely after the election. Lynne Weil may tell us BBG did not request its cancelation.

I am only passing on second hand information. However, there was a meeting scheduled as I saw the actual notice sent out from Leader Polisi's office.

Dear Lynne

I am writing to find out more about the briefing tomorrow on Sept 26 by BBG led by Susan McCue on the CEO legislation. Where will it be held? Was it requested by Congress and who? or an initiative of BBG?

Is it solely limited to CEO? although I assume persons can ask whatever they want. Who from BBG besides you, Suzie and Susan McCue will be going? I know Gov McCue will do an excellent job.

Do you anticipate consolidation will come up? For the record, you should note if asked that one Governor, Victor Ashe, is not favor of consolidation of the three entities. Depending on how the CEO selection process is formulated I may or may not support the creation of a new CEO as I stated Sept 13 at the Board meeting when I voted for it. That is separate in my view from consolidation (streamlining) of the three entities.

I also assume it will be primarily staffers in attendance due to the current national election campaign.

I look forward to your response and also receiving a report along with the Board as to what transpires tomorrow. When meetings like this are held, I would like to know about them instead of learning about it from the Hill.

Best wishes

Victor Ashe

We were up against tough competition in the category, including CNN, the New York Times and the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Middle East Voices website

Washington, D.C., September 24, 2012 -- Middle East Voices, a collaborative Voice of America social journalism project that combines traditional reporting, commentary, and the stories of people living through the Arab Spring, has been honored with a 2012 Online Journalism Award for "Topical Reporting."

The awards, which were announced Saturday at the 2012 Online News Association Conference in San Francisco, recognize excellence in digital journalism.

"The competition was very stiff, and we are so proud of what the small but dedicated team at Middle East Voices has been able to accomplish," VOA Director David Ensor said. "It is an excellent example of how VOA journalists are working with social media and online tools to tell stories in a meaningful way, and to help others share stories about the events that are shaping their lives," Ensor said.

Middle East Voices emphasizes audience input and engagement. The site features essays from leading thinkers and average citizens. During the final phase of the Egyptian presidential runoff election in June, radio and TV reports from Egypt were supplemented by live-tweeting from events and daily streams of stories and photos using Storify and Facebook to showcase events in real time.

"Middle East Voices has sought to tell the stories of the Arab Spring not simply through our own individual voices, but collaboratively, via those who are on the ground living the events," says web reporter Cecily Hilleary. "Flickr, Facebook, and Twitter are simply a means for us to mine those voices."

The other finalists in the "Topical Reporting, Large" site category were CNN, The New York Times and the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The finalists were selected by industry-leading journalists and digital media professionals. The winners were selected by a panel of judges at the University of Miami under the auspices of the School of Communication in Coral Gables, Florida.

Thanks for sending me and I assume the whole Board the proposed summary of the decisions made on Sept 13.

The record is less than normal due to inability of Board to complete the agenda outlined in 75 to 90 minutes. This is not meant to point fingers but to state the obvious. Hopefully this will not happen on October 11. We have now not had a serious report at the Board meeting level from entities or VOA, OCB and IBB since June 7. This is most unfortunate in my view. It makes us all look bad when we fail to complete the agenda.

However in this record of decisions, the final motion made at the meeting by me and adopted is missing. It was to postpone the unfinished agenda for Sept 13 to the October 11 meeting and to adjourn.

I request this motion duly adopted be added to the agenda published on the BBG web site. A review of the tape will reflect this.

Thanks

UN Says Austerity Measures Will Not Fix World Economy

<http://www.voanews.com/content/un-world-growth-austerity/1506692.html>

September 12, 2012

GENEVA — A new United Nations report warns fiscal austerity measures have not - and will not - lead to global economic growth.

For Heiner Flassbeck, Director of UNCTAD's Division on Globalization and Development Strategies, the debate over austerity versus stimulus is over.

"Stop austerity," he said.

Flassbeck says austerity is clearly the wrong way to go. He notes private companies in Europe, Japan and the United States are saving their money and not spending because they fear the future economic outlook will continue to be bad.

"They have no expectation that their income will rise. So, if everybody saves and the government says we are doing austerity so we are going to be savers also. So, what is going to happen? The result is very simple, the economy will collapse. The only way out of the slump and to avoid a recession is more stimulus. If we do not get incentives for investment, if we do not get stimulus for investment and if we do not get better conditions for consumption, and if governments are going on with austerity, the situation can only deteriorate," Flassbeck said.

An UNCTAD report warns growth is slowing in all regions of the world. Global growth fell from more than 4 percent in 2010 to 2.7 percent last year. And UNCTAD expects a further decline to below 2.5 percent in 2012.

The report says economic expansion in developing and transition economies is expected to grow by 5 and 4 percent respectively in 2012. Although this is stronger than in the advanced economies, it notes those growth rates are also slower than previous years.

UNCTAD economists explain developing countries are doing better because they are less dependent on the large economies than they used to be, and they have more resilient domestic demand.

The report criticizes governments for following wage-compression policies. Flassbeck says the data show lowering people's wages has done nothing to bring down the rates of unemployment. He says governments must reverse these policies.

"Only the government can overcome this situation where the market gives the wrong signal. Markets give the wrong signal that wages should fall further. But, if wages should fall further, you can be sure that consumption will be falling. When consumption falls, investment falls and then growth falls," Flassbeck said.

UNCTAD economists predict there will be no significant recovery from the recession until low-and middle-income groups earn enough money to spend on consumption. They argue that reducing the widening gap in wealth and income is not only fair, it also has social benefits and will lead to higher economic growth.

If we do not get incentives for investment, if we do not get stimulus for investment and if we do not get better conditions for consumption, and if governments are going on with austerity, the situation can only deteriorate," Flassbeck said.

An UNCTAD report warns growth is slowing in all regions of the world. Global growth fell from more than 4 percent in 2010 to 2.7 percent last year. And UNCTAD expects a further decline to below 2.5 percent in 2012.

The report says economic expansion in developing and transition economies is expected to grow by 5 and 4 percent respectively in 2012. Although this is stronger than in the advanced economies, it notes those growth rates are also slower than previous years.

UNCTAD economists explain developing countries are doing better because they are less dependent on the large economies than they used to be, and they have more resilient domestic demand.

The report criticizes governments for following wage-compression policies. Flassbeck says the data show lowering people's wages has done nothing to bring down the rates of unemployment. He says governments must reverse these policies.

"Only the government can overcome this situation where the market gives the wrong signal. Markets give the wrong signal that wages should fall further. But, if wages should fall further, you can be sure that consumption will be falling. When consumption falls, investment falls and then growth falls," Flassbeck said.

UNCTAD economists predict there will be no significant recovery from the recession until low-and middle-income groups earn enough money to spend on consumption. They argue that reducing the widening gap in wealth and income is not only fair, it also has social benefits and will lead to higher economic growth.

I wonder who writes the remarks that the chair or presiding Governor gives at each BBG Board meeting. Lynne, is it done by your office or another office?

The phrase relate to the tragic murder of Ambassador Chris Stevens where it was termed a 'passing' seems more like a phrase one would use for one's grandparent as opposed to this situation where the diplomat was murdered in the line of duty.

Does anyone read these things over in advance to do a quality check? I thought it was embarrassing for Gov Mulhaupt but also embarrassing for the whole Board which was the reason I spoke up immediately following that statement. I assume since the switch of Governors presiding occurred at the last minute between Lynton and Mulhaupt that Gov Mulhaupt had not had an opportunity to read the prepared script in advance.

I would like to know which offices prepares these remarks. Please advise. What can be done in the future to prevent an unfortunate repeat like this so our communications effort is not compromised.

Subject: Congressional update: Vietnam programming and conference travel bills

Governors,

Below please find a message on two House-passed pieces of legislation from (b) (6), the agency's new congressional coordinator. We will follow the same system established with (b) (6)'s predecessor, (b) (6). You'll hear about key developments on the Hill from both of us, and can safely assume that if a message comes from (b) (6), I've seen or heard about it from her first.

Please note that both of these bills were adopted by voice vote, and that the reference to BBG action on programming to Vietnam is phrased as the "sense of the Congress." Should H.R. 1410 become law, we will work with the State Department on the required report.

(b) (6) thanks for tracking these two pieces of legislation, and for your quick analytical work. We can all look forward to your more-than-virtual introduction to the Board tomorrow.

Lynne

Last night, by a voice vote, the House passed an amended measure (HR 1410) to cap most future U.S. aid to Vietnam at fiscal 2011 levels until the government in Hanoi has made "substantial progress" in respecting religious freedom, property rights and human rights. The proposal includes exceptions for humanitarian assistance and aid designed to promote the rule of law, human rights and certain exchange programs.

HR 1410 includes a reference to the BBG and a few references to Radio Free Asia. It also requires an annual report from State that should include "efforts by the United States Government to promote access by the Vietnamese people to Radio Free Asia transmissions."

FROM HR 1410:

SEC. 4. UNITED STATES PUBLIC DIPLOMACY.

(a) Radio Free Asia Transmissions to Vietnam.—It is the sense of Congress that the United States should take measures to overcome the jamming of Radio Free Asia by the Government of Vietnam and that the Broadcasting Board of Governors should not cut staffing, funding, or broadcast hours for the Vietnamese language services of the Voice of America and Radio Free Asia, which shall be done without reducing any other broadcast language services.

SEC. 5. ANNUAL REPORT.

(a) In General.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act and every 12 months thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the Congress a report on the following:

(1) The determination and certification of the President that the requirements of subparagraphs (A) through (G) of section 3(a)(2) have been met, if applicable.

(2) Steps taken to carry out section 3(a)(1)(A), if applicable.

(3) Efforts by the United States Government to promote access by the Vietnamese people to Radio Free Asia transmissions.

Also yesterday, the House passed HR 463 by voice vote. The bill limits federal agency spending on conference travel each year through fiscal 2017 to 70 percent of the amount an agency spent in fiscal 2010 and prohibits agencies from spending more than $500,000 to support a single conference without a "compelling purpose."

Agencies would be barred from paying the travel expenses to international conferences for more than 50 U.S.-based agency employees unless the State Department determines that attendance is in the national interest. Furthermore, agencies would be required to publish quarterly reports online detailing conferences attended by employees and their costs.

HR 4631 and Senator Coburn's amendment (SA 2060) both limit per conference spending to $500K and cap the total number of employees traveling to international conferences at 50. However, HR 4631 would limit agency conference spending to 70 percent of 2010 levels, whereas Senator Coburn's amendment would reduce agency conference spending to 80 percent of 2010 levels.

A PDF of the bill text is attached.

Thank you to all who have RSVPed for our panel discussion next week on new Russian media laws. We look forward to seeing you there as we discuss the new laws and their implications. For those who have not yet RSVPed, we hope to see you at the event as well:

The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) invites you to a roundtable discussion, New Russian Laws – Tightening the Noose on Free Speech?

During the summer of 2012, the Russian parliament passed and President Putin signed a series of laws that will raise fines on protesters, impose limits on the Internet, make slander a criminal offense, and require nongovernmental organizations that get funding from abroad to register as foreign agents.

How repressive are these new Russian laws? What will be the rules of engagement for minority voices, human rights and civil rights activists? To what extent do these laws put at risk the work of international organizations including USAID, WHO, Amnesty International and Transparency International? What are the implications of these new political realities on U.S. relations with Russia?

Join the discussion.

As we see with the VOA article copied below, VOA (again) is passing along press releases as "news" without any real journalistic analysis or pushback or perspective on UNCTAD cheerleading for fiscal cliff-diving, centralizing control of economies, and other attacks on economic liberty. ☺

<http://www.voanews.com/content/un-world-growth-austerity/1506692.html>

September 12, 2012

GENEVA — A new United Nations report warns fiscal austerity measures have not - and will not - lead to global economic growth.

For Heiner Flassbeck, Director of UNCTAD's Division on Globalization and Development Strategies, the debate over austerity versus stimulus is over.

"Stop austerity," he said.

Flassbeck says austerity is clearly the wrong way to go. He notes private companies in Europe, Japan and the United States are saving their money and not spending because they fear the future economic outlook will continue to be bad.

"They have no expectation that their income will rise. So, if everybody saves and the government says we are doing austerity so we are going to be savers also. So, what is going to happen? The result is very simple, the economy will collapse. The only way out of the slump and to avoid a recession is more stimulus. If we do not get incentives for investment, if we do not get stimulus for investment and if we do not get better conditions for consumption, and if governments are going on with austerity, the situation can only deteriorate," Flassbeck said.

An UNCTAD report warns growth is slowing in all regions of the world. Global growth fell from more than 4 percent in 2010 to 2.7 percent last year. And UNCTAD expects a further decline to below 2.5 percent in 2012.

The report says economic expansion in developing and transition economies is expected to grow by 5 and 4 percent respectively in 2012. Although this is stronger than in the advanced economies, it notes those growth rates are also slower than previous years.

UNCTAD economists explain developing countries are doing better because they are less dependent on the large economies than they used to be, and they have more resilient domestic demand.

The report criticizes governments for following wage-compression policies. Flassbeck says the data show lowering people's wages has done nothing to bring down the rates of unemployment. He says governments must reverse these policies.

"Only the government can overcome this situation where the market gives the wrong signal. Markets give the wrong signal that wages should fall further. But, if wages should fall further, you can be sure that consumption will be falling. When consumption falls, investment falls and then growth falls," Flassbeck said.

UNCTAD economists predict there will be no significant recovery from the recession until low-and middle-income groups earn enough money to spend on consumption. They argue that reducing the widening gap in wealth and income is not only fair, it also has social benefits and will lead to higher economic growth.

this notice is very misleading. I really feel it merits revision. For example, the agenda I have for the public meeting states that the Board may vote on consolidation of the entities which you call streamlining. That is a whole lot different from simply receiving a report. As for the resolutions on anniveraries why are no specific names and years mentioned? This is usually given to me and I have heard not one word on this. I do not have a clue what I am being asked to do on this subject. Perhaps someone else is now doing it,

I urge a revised news release

I respectfully ask for an explanation of what happened to cause the recent item in the Loop about urging VOA employees to use their personal accounts to pass on VOA information.

This seems most unusual at first glance. I am sure the Board will be interested. Also it should be included in the news items which BBG sends out regularly even though it is not positive for VOA or BBG.

Good morning, Victor –

FOX Business has requested an interview with you concerning the Gallup contract; the producer has read the item that Helle Dale had on her Heritage blog yesterday. The program host wants to do a live, in-studio interview with you for up to five minutes sometime between 5:15 and 5:40, with a pre-interview sometime between noon and 3.

Would you like to accept this request – and if so, would you like assistance with logistics from this office?

Best regards,

Good evening, Victor --

Thanks for your interest in this matter.

We'd be glad to prepare a resolution honoring (b) (6) for the Board's consideration.

(b) (6) applied through an open, competitive process via a public advertisement. Several finalists were interviewed; I interviewed the top three along with Dick Lobo and Jeff Trimble, who approved my choice of (b) (6). The Communications Committee was kept apprised each step of the way, and said they trusted my pick.

(b) (6) is a GS-15; (b) (6) is being hired as a GS-14.

I am unaware of any arrangements involving (b) (6) after this week.

I think it is relevant to see the actual lawsuit or a summary of it. What does DOJ recommend to BBG? Also what steps are being taken to assure that the BBG contract does not suffer from the charges filed in federal court? Should we be doing business with this entity which has a major lawsuit against it for fraud by another federal agency? What is proper procedure here? What steps should the Board take to meet its fiduciary responsibility? If we continue with Gallup but Gallup is later held liable in the current charges against it, are we as Board members liable for not having suspended or canceled the contract? I am deeply concerned about this and feel we should disengage and seek research elsewhere.

We need to be briefed on what Gallup says about this, perhaps they will have someone at the meeting...what does DOJ say as well as State which may be being ripped off according to the lawsuit. We all need to know fully what is happening here. What safeguards exist in the current BBG contract with Gallup to protect BBG if wrongdoing is proven? The problem here is that the lawsuit may take 3 years to be resolved by which time the current contract has ended but BBG may not have received an honest accounting of what the taxpayers are paying for in this.

This lawsuit clearly places a cloud over it all.

When Justice joins a whistleblower suit, there must be a lot going on there and is this issue company wide at Gallup?

BBG Bringing Political Conventions to the World

The road to the White House gets a little steeper over the next several weeks as the political parties gather for their quadrennial conventions, and journalists from U.S. international broadcasting stations will be there to cover the proceedings for audiences in dozens of languages and across multiple platforms.

The Republicans gather in Tampa, Fla., Aug. 27-30, to nominate former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney as their standard-bearer. The Democrats follow Sept. 4-6 in Charlotte, N.C., where President Barack Obama is to be nominated to run for a second term.

Voice of America, Alhurra TV and Radio Sawa, and Radio and TV Martí will share workspace and live positions at both conventions, bringing comprehensive coverage of political America's showcase gatherings to millions worldwide. In addition to broadcasts, journalists will be posting to Facebook, Twitter and blogs.

Voice of America is sending a team of writers, producers, correspondents, VJs, editors, and technicians to both cities. Twenty VOA language services will be represented: The Horn of Africa, French to Africa, Swahili, Central Africa; Indonesian, Khmer, Mandarin; Russian, Ukrainian, Serbian, Albanian; Turkish, Armenian; Spanish, Creole; Persian; Dari, Pashto, Deewa and Urdu.

At the same time, VOA will be providing live remote feeds from the conventions to affiliate stations, including the acceptance speeches of both candidates and other proceedings.

Alhurra TV will broadcast a nightly program, "Road to the White House," from 7-11 p.m. each night of both conventions. The show will feature key speeches live with simultaneous translations along with expert analysis and packages on a range of topics, including the impact of Arab-Americans on the upcoming election. Radio Sawa will broadcast the keynote speeches and the addresses by Obama and Romney live with simultaneous translations.

The Office of Cuba Broadcasting is sending a team of reporters, two anchors, producers, technicians and others to cover the conventions. Antena Live, a TV Martí half-hour magazine style show, will broadcast live for four consecutive nights at 6:30 p.m. during both conventions. On the last two nights of each convention there will be programming from 9 to 11 p.m., including live speeches from Obama, Romney and others with translation, interviews with Hispanic political leaders, community representatives and expert analysis.

What is the cost for 75 persons to each convention? $3000 per person for $225,000 per convention for $450.000 for both or a different amount? I do not need or seek an exact amount but a ball park figure which I assume you considered when you decided on 75 instead of 90 or 98 as in 2008.

I am not asking you to defend as I assume you would naturally defend what you directed to happen. However, it is fair and legitimate for me as a Governor to ask what the cost is especially when BBG issues a news release on it without numbers of personnel or cost involved. Once one knows the cost then one is in a better position to assess and evaluate.

I am only asking the questions you would have asked when you were a distinguished working journalist. I still believe you are distinguished.

No one should be surprised I am asking. I am asking Carlos Garcia the same. And the entity heads.

Victor,

In 2008, VOA sent 90 to Minneapolis and 98 to Denver. (The Denver number was higher because of the late add of the outdoor venue on the final night which required more technical people). This year we cut the numbers back to 75 per convention. As the item below notes this is one of the best opportunities VOA gets—every four years--to provide civics lessons, if you will, on American democracy. Twenty language services will be represented on location. All services will use material from Central News journalists at the conventions. I am pleased to defend this appropriate use of funds—the kind of coverage that is in effect called for by the VOA Charter.

In addition to broadcasts, journalists will be posting to Facebook, Twitter and blogs.

Voice of America is sending a team of writers, producers, correspondents, VJs, editors, and technicians to both cities. Twenty VOA language services will be represented: The Horn of Africa, French to Africa, Swahili, Central Africa; Indonesian, Khmer, Mandarin; Russian, Ukrainian, Serbian, Albanian; Turkish, Armenian; Spanish, Creole; Persian; Dari, Pashto, Deewa and Urdu.

At the same time, VOA will be providing live remote feeds from the conventions to affiliate stations, including the acceptance speeches of both candidates and other proceedings.

Alhurra TV will broadcast a nightly program, "Road to the White House," from 7-11 p.m. each night of both conventions. The show will feature key speeches live with simultaneous translations along with expert analysis and packages on a range of topics, including the impact of Arab-Americans on the upcoming election. Radio Sawa will broadcast the keynote speeches and the addresses by Obama and Romney live with simultaneous translations.

The Office of Cuba Broadcasting is sending a team of reporters, two anchors, producers, technicians and others to cover the conventions. Antena Live, a TV Martí half-hour magazine style show, will broadcast live for four consecutive nights at 6:30 p.m. during both conventions. On the last two nights of each convention there will be programming from 9 to 11 p.m., including live speeches from Obama, Romney and others with translation, interviews with Hispanic political leaders, community representatives and expert analysis.

My question is how many persons from OCB are covering each convention...not how important it is to be there or not be there. I do feel it is significant to be present. Please tell me how many from OCB are going to Tampa and Charlotte and approximate cost. That is what I want to know. I assume naturally you would defend whatever it is you decided to send.

Good afternoon to all of you. As with VOA this is a great opportunity to provide as David stated " civic lessons...on American democracy." It is part of our mission and a tremendous opportunity to report on the democratic process in this country. Whether the Cuban people decide to adopt a similar process will ultimately be up to their free will, when it is free, but at the very least we provide information that will be useful to their future. I am also ready to defend the use of these funds. Thank you for your time and consideration. Carlos

Victor,

In 2008, VOA sent 90 to Minneapolis and 98 to Denver. (The Denver number was higher because of the late add of the outdoor venue on the final night which required more technical people). This year we cut the numbers back to 75 per convention. As the item below notes this is one of the best opportunities VOA gets—every four years—to provide civics lessons, if you will, on American democracy. Twenty language services will be represented on location. All services will use material from Central News journalists at the conventions. I am pleased to defend this appropriate use of funds—the kind of coverage that is in effect called for by the VOA Charter.

The road to the White House gets a little steeper over the next several weeks as the political parties gather for their quadrennial conventions, and journalists from U.S. international broadcasting stations will be there to cover the proceedings for audiences in dozens of languages and across multiple platforms.

This morning I looked at the BBG website and noticed the description of the upcoming strategy and budget committee meeting for August 28. It seems to fall short of listing all the topics we are in fact discussing.

For example, there will be discussion of PNN as directed by motion in the August 17 BBG board meeting and Parazit. There will be discussion of the Gallup contract and the DOJ lawsuit against Gallup. There will be discussion of further budget items. I think this should be added to the public description of this committee meeting. What is there now is inadequate in my view in terms of transparency and giving the public an idea of what the committee will actually discuss for 2.5 hours. I see no valid reason for omitting these topics.

I look forward to hearing from you on whether any changes will be made.

This makes sense and seems like a prudent approach. Ultimately, I believe we should just disengage from Gallup as there seems to be risk and potential exposure here. Another firm ought to do the research which is not distracted by litigation and whistleblower issues.

Dear Governors,

We have added discussion of the Gallup situation to the agenda for next Tuesday's Strategy and Budget Committee meeting, and we're gathering information as quickly as possible ahead of that session in order to be able to answer your questions and recommend possible actions.

We were in contact today with DoJ and will remain so as the investigation and case develop. We also have spoken with Gallup and are arranging a meeting with them to discuss the situation and our contract.

Jeff

This is most troubling and I have asked that the Board consider the matter and be briefed on it. Mr. Ensor did call and talk with me.

This email conflicts with several statements mr. Ensor made. I am not saying who is right or wrong. The problem is that BBG does not have a time set aside for a board meeting until sep 13/14 which is a long ways off. I hope there might be a briefing on it at least by phone before then but my views on this may be in the minority. I strongly believe we should place as much as possible in the open even when it is inconvenient unless precluded by law.

I have added dick lobo to this response as I have been told he will make a report to the board but I do not know when that will occur.

So on Tuesday we'll summarize group's deliberations on this topic to date, including areas where we have not yet reached consensus. Subject: RE: IBIA working group

Dear Victor -- I greatly appreciate your emails.

The purpose of Tuesday's call is follow through on the Board's instruction from its January 2012 decision on the IBIA. That decision instructs the IBB Director to consult with you and Governor Lynton "in developing a model to define the appropriate roles for the Board and the CEO". The full text of that part of January decision is set forth below. The entire IBIA decision is reproduced in the briefing package that we have produced for Tuesday's telecon and which will be delivered to you shortly.

TEXT OF THE IBIA BOARD DECISION FROM JANUARY 2012: The position of Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the "CEO"), reporting to the Board of Governors, shall be created.

The CEO will be empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and non-federal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight. The IBB Director is instructed to consult with Governors Ashe and Lynton in developing a model to define the appropriate roles for the Board and CEO.

Victor,

Per our e-mail exchange yesterday, the team here is pulling together materials in order to get them to you and the other Governors copied on this e-mail before the week is done. These will include the most up-to-date info on the IBIA working group's efforts and recommendations on the topic at hand.

Separately, the team is preparing a complete package of IBIA working group papers for the entire Board.

Looking back on the correspondence that transpired while I was away in mid-June, I found that a lot of the discussion concerned how the Board's non-disclosure policy applies to IBIA working group materials.
I saw nothing there about an issue with sharing the materials with any Board member.

Thank you for your efforts to straighten these matters out.

Wishing you a speedy recovery,

Lynne

I have specifically asked for copies of working materials sent to the ITIA committee since its creation...those could be sent to me today and allow me time to review them here at hospital as I recover from hip surgery. If there is an issue here about sharing them with me and I only raise this as Mr Kollmer and Ms Weil have not been responsive to my requests for these materials which requests I first raised 6 weeks ago then I should be advised and told why.

I need to get these by fed ex on sat....otherwise it will be Monday and my review time is reduced to an inadequate period.

I do not wish to be difficult and wish all the best but I do wish to be a well informed BBG member.

That way I have time to read and digest the matters and better prepared to ask questions....surely as a Governor I am entitled to see these documents. I am happy to have other materials on the topic as well but as a minimum I want to see what the study materials at staff level have been as this Act has been conceived.

If the decision is made not to share this with me, please advise why.

Governors, thanks for your initial feedback on BBG meeting dates.

To be clear: we won't be in a position for the full Board to vote on the budget proposal on August 2. We'll have preliminary discussions with the Strategy and Budget Committee on that day (and as Gov. Meehan indicated, all Governors are welcome to join).

Given that Governors Ashe and McCue already have indicated that August 9 or 10 aren't good, would early the following week -- Monday, August 13 or Tuesday, August 14 -- be better for all?

Please let (b) know about your availability on August 13 and 14. Upon receipt of information on your availability, (b) will send a follow-up email to confirm the meeting date and time.

Rgds

Jeff

I am concerned this has not been resolved by now one way or the other.

I have also requested this whole issue be placed on next BBG board meeting agenda for discussion but our deputy general counsel , paul kollmer, feels that discussion should be in private as he argues it is a personnel matter. I do not agree with him on that so i do not know how this aspect of the matter will play out.. To me this is already a public matter and congressional persons are interested in what is happening...again, I do not know how this will ultimately play out...personally, I think BBG and VOA need to get answers quickly and resolve the matter....sorry it has taken so long.

We do not have a firm date for next BBG Board meeting other than mid sept....there might be a phone or teleconferencing meeting in August..but nothing definite has been set.

Subject: Re: Revised draft response to Rep. Rohrabacher

Dear Jeff

Thanks for the revised letter. I decline to sign it and disagree with much stated in the letters. I feel BBG has taken a step backwards and it sends the wrong signal. BBG has taken a serious public relations hit and our standing with the Congress has been diminished in my view. It seems to me that BBG is now saying to the world do as we say not as we do.

The letter should reflect that one Governor disagrees with the new protocol. Since apparently there is not going to be a July 24 Board meeting, discussion and further questions will appear on the next Board agenda whenever that meeting is held at my request. Furthermore the governance committee is scheduled to consider the new policy but again that meeting has been postponed to an unknown date.

The fact that this did not go to governance may be legal but it is hardly exemplary or a model to follow. In fact, I was the one Board member omitted to much of the prior discussion of the item before the Board meeting. Deputy legal counsel Kollmer failed to answer several of my inquiries on it prior to the Board meeting in Prague. It appeared to me that he was avoiding discussion with me. In fact, the item was not even listed on the agenda for the Board meeting which was sent out 6 days prior to the meeting. Then the whole agenda of the meeting was re-arranged without Board input just hours prior to the meeting in Prague.

On other issues dealing with openness, BBG Board has failed to have a serious in depth discussion on the CEO legislation which is being pushed on the House side of the Congress at the present time. The actual legislation has not been shared with all Board members.

There are meeting on the Innovation Act but Ms. Weil has failed to provide me a copy of what is being discussed despite requests by me for it.

I deeply regret having to say all of this and be the one Governor raising issues but I must in terms of meeting my fiduciary responsibility. However, we fooling ourselves if some think the issue will fold and vanish. I continue my highest respect and affection for all.

I trust all will have a wonderful weekend.

Several weeks ago a letter from Congresswoman Lofgren and Congresswoman Sanchez on entity consolidation was sent to BBG which was then distributed to the Board. We were told a letter would be drafted and circulated prior to being sent back to the two members.

I have not seen a draft and am writing to secure a copy so I can comment on it. I believe the letter is several weeks old so a reply is certainly due to both members.

I look forward to seeing it. can someone tell me where the draft stands??

Lynne

I have seen the statement you have drafted. While I appreciate your efforts, I have several thoughts.

1-it is too long. Also he resigns to RFERL Board not to BBG as he works for RFERL. We do not ned his bio.

2-There are not two people in the world who would think we are happy with his service. I think a simple direct acceptance of his resignation is best.

While the statement should not criticize him, it is useless and deceptive to praise him when we have differed so strongly with his performance...need I go over the old white guys e mail, the cute high school intern statement, the 41 firings in Moscow, ignoring the Fly American Law, the criticism from David Kramer at the Russia panel Dec 13...best to move on with a short statement simply stating when his last day is and wishing him well. No one will believe that we were pleased with his record..

3-Obviously a Board majority can do as it wishes but in all fairness to you Lynne, I will tell the media if asked that his departure was necessary for the well being of Radio Free Europe. I will not be part of a statement praising Mashe Gessen at this point nor do I plan to attack her. I am neutral on her until I know the final outcome on the 41 fired persons. My criticism of Korn has been public for months now. I am not now praising him.

I do not want to blindsight you or dennis....rather be direct on where I stand.

RFE/RL Azerbaijani Service correspondent Khadija Ismayilova was honored by the International Women's Media Foundation.

Washington, DC - Journalists all around the world who work under the direction of the Broadcasting Board of Governors were recognized for their skill, talent and courage with dozens of awards from groups involved with media and the public interest in 2012.

BBG journalists received accolades from the New York Festivals, the Association for International Broadcasting (AIB), the Society of Environmental Journalists, the South East Europe Media Organization and many other organizations.

Michael Lynton, presiding governor of the board overseeing the agency, said, "The Board is proud of all the men and women who work for the BBG, sometimes at great personal risk, to bring the light of truth to the darkest corners of the world. But we take special pride in those whose efforts are noted by recognized centers of excellence in the areas of journalism, media freedom and human rights. They alone deserve the honors, but we are delighted to share in celebrating their achievements."

Voice of America

Innovative uses of online media garnered recognition for several Voice of America journalists. VOA's Jessica Beinecke, host and creator of the online English-Chinese teaching program, OMG! Meiyu received the 2012 AIB Founders Award. Arash Sigarchi of VOA's Persian Service received the Deutsche Welle International Blog Award, which highlights online writing that champions the open exchange of ideas and freedom of expression, for his personal blog, Window of Anguish. Hello, Victor --

I hope you had a great holiday weekend and a peaceful Christmas.

If you see a couple of "missed call" messages on your phone from today, that was me. I wanted to update you on the matter you raised last week about awards reportedly given to former RFE/RL staff; it took a while to verify the info given time differences between DC and Moscow, but in the end, the process has lent itself to a very productive outcome benefiting the whole agency.

I was hoping to discuss it with you before we issue the news release, and it was my understanding from colleagues that you took part in a group phone call this morning. Sorry to have missed you.

Since you are vacationing at the moment -- as am I -- I'll look forward to catching up with you at a convenient time, perhaps next week.

if they can do one for this person which seems merited then surely they should do one for the two RFERL Moscow journalists who were fired but won awards prior to being fired while employed at RFERL.

Defiant Turkmen Reporter Wins Free Speech Award

(WASHINGTON -- December 24, 2012) Dovletmyrat Yazkuliiev, a correspondent for RFE/RL's Turkmen language service, received a 2012 Hellman/Hammett grant for his fearless reporting in Turkmenistan, one of the world's most closed societies.

Yazkuliiev was recognized for his reporting, in defiance of an official information blackout, on an explosion in Abadan, near the capital of Ashgabat in July 2011 and its aftermath, including the government's failure to provide assistance to victims. In retaliation, security officials threatened him with criminal charges for "disseminating defamatory information" and "causing domestic unrest." He was later imprisoned on fabricated charges that he and other observers believe were further intended to impugn his character and silence him.

In a statement to RFE/RL this past weekend, Yazkuliiev said, "This award is the highest moral support. I also regard it as evidence that international institutions recognize those who fight for truth".

RFE/RL president Steven Korn commended Yazkuliiev, calling the prize "a tribute to Dovlet's courage and his contribution to the public interest in Turkmenistan." He added, "It is also a summons to rights advocates everywhere to redouble our efforts to promote and protect media freedom."

Turkmenistan has the second-worst ranking in Freedom House's 2012 Freedom of the Press report and has numbered among the "Worst of the Worst" countries for freedom overall in the monitoring group's surveys of the last several years.

Yazkuliiev's imprisonment in September 2011 drew public expressions of outrage from human rights advocates, international organizations, foreign governments and members of the U.S. House and Senate.

He was released by presidential pardon in October 2011, although charges against him have not been dropped.

The Hellman/Hammett grants are awarded by Human Rights Watch to journalists, bloggers, essayists, poets, playwrights and other writers for their commitment to free expression and their courage in the face of persecution.

About RFE/RL's Turkmen Service

RFE/RL's Turkmen Service reports regularly on social issues and trends unreported by other Turkmen media. Radio Azatlyk's coverage of issues such as homelessness, poor housing construction, and travel bans for Turkmen citizens have sparked government action to improve facilities and social services, while its reporting on human rights issues has helped bring about the release from prison of activists and journalists.

About RFE/RL

RFE/RL is a private, independent international news organization whose programs -- radio, Internet, and television -- reach influential audiences in 21 countries, including Russia, Iran, Iraq, Afghanistan, Pakistan, and the republics of Central Asia. It is funded by the U.S. Congress through the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG).

Good morning, Victor --

Thank you for the heads-up that you intend to issue a statement if the agency does not.

A bit of insight into how agency news releases regarding the grantees have been done until now: We do not control the grantees' websites. And if a grantee has not issued a release about a matter concerning its programming or personnel -- or worked in tandem with the agency on a release -- then the BBG has not issued one, either.

So if, for instance, the former head of an RFA language service were to receive an award, we would either elevate RFA's news release though BBG Public Affairs or work with RFA on a release.

This doesn't have to remain the case. I appreciate your reasoning, and am interested in hearing more views. Since not everyone who is relevant to this conversation is in the office yet or copied on this e-mail, let me come back to you with more thoughts a little later.

I have seen the e mails with you from [REDACTED] (b) (6) on the awards given in Moscow to two former journalists at RFERL in Moscow for their work when they were employed at RFERL. They received the significant Sakharov awards. The people in question are [REDACTED] (b) (6) and [REDACTED] (b) (6).

Apparently there has not been recognition by RFERL or BBG on this. Despite these two persons no longer working for RFERL, when they did work there they had an excellent record and obviously with these awards it was recognized by others.

Does BBG plan to issue a statement or recognize their achievements on our web site or RFERL web site? If Dan Austin for example received an award for his VOA work we would recognize it despite him no longer working at VOA.

If not, I am inclined to make a statement alone congratulating them and wishing them well but it would be more significant if it came from the whole BBG. I cannot think of a reason not to do it and it might be a giant step towards healing and reconciliation which is needed in Moscow at this time. Also coming at this season of the year it seems even more appropriate. As you recall I asked Ms Gessen what her strategy to win back the disaffected was last week. This seems to me to be a small step in that direction.

Michael Lynton recently has asked me to share my possible public statements with you before I do them and in this case I am willing to forgo one if BBG or RFERL does something. However, in the absence of a BBG or RFERL statement I feel something positive about them ought to be said by at least one individual Board member unless someone can give me a good reason not to do so. I welcome feedback on this from my colleagues and management.

Happy Holidays

Good morning, Victor --

Thank you for the heads-up that you intend to issue a statement if the agency does not.

A bit of insight into how agency news releases regarding the grantees have been done until now: We do not control the grantees' websites. And if a grantee has not issued a release about a matter concerning its programming or personnel -- or worked in tandem with the agency on a release -- then the BBG has not issued one, either.

So if, for instance, the former head of an RFA language service were to receive an award, we would either elevate RFA's news release though BBG Public Affairs or work with RFA on a release.

This doesn't have to remain the case. I appreciate your reasoning, and am interested in hearing more views. Since not everyone who is relevant to this conversation is in the office yet or copied on this e-mail, let me come back to you with more thoughts a little later.

Lynne

I have seen the e mails with you from (b) (6) on the awards given in Moscow to two former journalists at RFERL in Moscow for their work when they were employed at RFERL. They received the significant Sakharov awards. The people in question are (b) (6) and (b) (6).

Apparently there has not been recognition by RFERL or BBG on this. Despite these two persons no longer working for RFERL, when they did work there they had an excellent record and obviously with these awards it was recognized by others.

Does BBG plan to issue a statement or recognize their achievements on our web site or RFERL web site? If Dan Austin for example received an award for his VOA work we would recognize it despite him no longer working at VOA.

If not, I am inclined to make a statement alone congratulating them and wishing them well but it would be more significant if it came from the whole BBG. I cannot think of a reason not to do it and it might be a giant step towards healing and reconciliation which is needed in Moscow at this time. Also coming at this season of the year it seems even more appropriate. As you recall I asked Ms Gessen what her strategy to win back the disaffected was last week. This seems to me to be a small step in that direction.

Michael Lynton recently has asked me to share my possible public statements with you before I do them and in this case I am willing to forgo one if BBG or RFERL does something. However, in the absence of a BBG or RFERL statement I feel something positive about them ought to be said by at least one individual Board member unless someone can give me a good reason not to do so. I welcome feedback on this from my colleagues and management.

Dear Governors,

Last Friday, we received a copy of the GAO draft report, "Broadcasting Board of Governors – Additional Steps Needed to Address Overlap in International Broadcasting."

As you will recall, the GAO began this engagement at the request of the Chair and Ranking Member and joined by other members of the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and the Federal Workforce. GAO's brief from its Congressional sponsors was to "examine the extent to which (1) BBG language services overlap with one another and (2) BBG broadcasts in the same languages as other international broadcasters."

While the draft report references efforts pursuant to the agency's strategic plan and budget requests to reduce overlap, its rather simplistic mandate and its methodology in quantifying the extent of overlap, as presented in GAO's summary findings, are misleading. GAO finds that "nearly two-thirds of the BBG's language services – offices that produce content for particular languages and regions – overlap with another BBG service by offering programs to the same countries in the same languages." GAO cites the cost of supporting these programs at about $149 million – nearly 20 percent of the agency's total budget. Over the next few weeks, staff will be working with GAO to refine portions of its draft report and ask for modifications in its methodology to avoid "headlines" that will be misleading outside the context of the full report.

GAO's draft report also contains two recommendations for the BBG:

• [REDACTED] (b) (5) [REDACTED]

• [REDACTED] (b) (5) [REDACTED]

We will review and provide comments to the GAO by January 11. The final report will be a public document, and will include the BBG's formal comments in an appendix to the report.

Because the current report status is "restricted to official use only," we must safeguard it to prevent its improper disclosure. Please let us know if you are interested in receiving a copy of this draft report and we will send it to you.

The draft report includes this direction from GAO: "This draft report is being provided to obtain advance review and comment. It has not been fully reviewed within GAO and is subject to revision. Recipients of this draft must not, under any circumstances, show or release its contents for other than official review and comment. It must be safeguarded to prevent improper disclosure. I do not concur with support for Masha Gessen at this stage. My hope is that the Board directed review by Jeff Trimble will include an assessment of Gessen and whether she is the right person to lead RFERL in Moscow or outside Russia if Putin removes RFERL from Russia which I think is more likely than not over the next year or so.

However, I find it disappointing and offensive that the current RFERL leadership has not provided the materials which the Strategy and Budget Committee requested on Gessen. That includes a copy of her contract and salary information. Information on the search process which produced her. To date the information has been withheld. This was the subject of a strong conversation between Korn and Gov. Meehan in November before a large number of persons at RFA headquarters on M Street.

Jeff Trimble needs to look at the current programming under Gessen, how the fired employees are treated and strategy to win back dissidents to like RFERL again. We need to give a statement to Jeff as to what he needs to do. He also needs to complete it by April (not 6 months from now).

If a majority of the Board insists on backing Gessen then it seems to me that the Board has tacitly condoned the 41 firings in Moscow as I have been told that Gessen played a significant role in these firings. Trimble needs to review how her role as a paid consultant to RFERL prior to her becoming Moscow director may have impacted the decision to terminate these people and then quickly hire 11 to 13 of her people to fill some of those positions. I will not in good conscience sign off on a statement in support of Gessen. Her future at RFERL is still to be determined in my opinion. Endorsing her at this stage is putting the cart before the horse. If a majority of the Board issues such a statement, I will issue an opposing view respectfully differing.

Hawaii Sen. Daniel Inouye dies at age 88

By Chris Cillizza , Updated: December 17, 2012

Hawaii Democratic Sen. Daniel Inouye has died at age 88, his office confirmed Monday night.

His last word, according to a statement released by his staff, was "Aloha".

Inouye has been hospitalized since early December due to respiratory problems. His cause of death was "respiratory complications".

Inouye had served in the Senate since 1962 and represented Hawaii since 1954. He served as the Senate pro tempore — the designation for the chamber's longest serving Senator — and the person third in line to the presidency. He also chaired the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee at the time of his death.

As the Post's Jason Horowitz wrote in a 2010 profile of Inouye:

"More than any other statesman in the history of these volcanic islands — more than Kamehameha the Great, who united them into a kingdom in 1810, or Gov. John Burns, who led the political revolution that established Democratic Party rule here in 1954 — Inouye, 86, has ruled over Hawaii."

Immediately following Inouye's death, his colleagues took to the Senate floor to remember him. "His service to the Senate will be with the greats of this body," said Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid (Nev.).

Inouye's seat will be filled by an appointment by Gov. Neil Abercrombie (D). He will pick from three finalists provided by the state Democratic Party. State law requires that Inouye must be replaced by a senator from the same political party. Inouye's seat is up for a full term in 2016.

Dear Lynn:

What a shame. If the BBG invites the public, why not allow for comment? Are there any specific rules within the BBG that prevent public comments at meetings?

Here are some links to show that the public's verbal comments are welcome at other federal agency meetings.

This is a link to the meeting regulations for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission:

<http://www.nrc.gov/reading-rm/doc-collections/nuregs/brochures/br0297/br0297.pdf>

This is a link to a meeting announcement for Department of Health and Human Services Meeting of the Presidential Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS:

<http://aids.gov/federal-resources/pacha/meetings/2010/june-2010-meeting-notice.pdf>

It's my understanding that one benefit of the Sunshine Act was so that government wouldn't hold "closed door, we're not doing anything good and we don't want anyone to know that" type meetings.

I'd like to request the proper channels through which I can appeal your decision to deny a 3-minute comment at the BBG's December 14, 2012 Full Board Meeting.

Thank you.

Dear (b) (6)

Thanks again for your ongoing interest in US international broadcasting.

Sorry it took a little while to get back to you, but since the request from a member of the public to make remarks at the open meeting has no precedent that anyone here is aware of, I needed to check with several people, including Board leadership.

Unfortunately, the press of regular business at open Board meetings does not leave time for speaking requests from the public. There is an opportunity at periodic "town hall" type meetings. This board has held one such meeting and is working to identify the next available date.

When the notice is posted for the Board's December 14 open meeting in keeping with the Government in the Sunshine Act, there will be the usual opportunity for members of the public to attend as observers on a first-come, first-served basis. As a courtesy, I will flag the notice for your attention when BBG Public Affairs posts it. As you know, members of the public are invited to observe at these meetings.

If you have input you'd like to offer, I'm happy to facilitate that with the Board.

All the best,

Lynne

Lynne (and team) can you give thoughts over the holidays about how to structure public comments in the future? With some ideas in hand, we'll convene the Governance Cmt to recommend a policy for the full board. We should have one in place for the next meeting. Thanks all, and if I do not see you before the New Year, have a safe, peaceful and inspiring holiday break. Susan

Hello. (b) (6).

I am unaware of any further discussion among the Governors on this topic since your November 30 exchange about it with the recipients of this e-mail chain. Should there be a decision, I will be happy to let you know.

Looking forward to seeing you tomorrow.

Thank you for the additional information, which will further inform the discussion.

As indicated below, the choice was not mine alone and involved consultation with Board leadership. Now that all of the Governors have been engaged on the matter, I'll be back in touch with you on their decision when it is made.

Subject: Request to comment at BBG Dec 14 Meeting

Dear Lynn:

What a shame. If the BBG invites the public, why not allow for comment? Are there any specific rules within the BBG that prevent public comments at meetings?

Here are some links to show that the public's verbal comments are welcome at other federal agency meetings.

This is a link to the meeting regulations for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission:

<http://www.nrc.gov/reading-rm/doc-collections/nuregs/brochures/br0297/br0297.pdf>

This is a link to a meeting announcement for Department of Health and Human Services Meeting of the Presidential Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS:

<http://aids.gov/federal-resources/pacha/meetings/2010/june-2010-meeting-notice.pdf>

It's my understanding that one benefit of the Sunshine Act was so that government wouldn't hold "closed door, we're not doing anything good and we don't want anyone to know that" type meetings.

I'd like to request the proper channels through which I can appeal your decision to deny a 3-minute comment at the BBG's December 14, 2012 Full Board Meeting.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dear (b) (6)

Thanks again for your ongoing interest in US international broadcasting.

Sorry it took a little while to get back to you, but since the request from a member of the public to make remarks at the open meeting has no precedent that anyone here is aware of, I needed to check with several people, including Board leadership.

Unfortunately, the press of regular business at open Board meetings does not leave time for speaking requests from the public. There is an opportunity at periodic "town hall" type meetings. This board has held one such meeting and is working to identify the next available date.

When the notice is posted for the Board's December 14 open meeting in keeping with the Government in the Sunshine Act, there will be the usual opportunity for members of the public to attend as observers on a first-come, first-served basis. As a courtesy, I will flag the notice for your attention when BBG Public Affairs posts it. As you know, members of the public are invited to observe at these meetings.

If you have input you'd like to offer, I'm happy to facilitate that with the Board.

All the best,

Lynne

Governors,

We have learned that The Gallup Organization (GALLUP) was suspended from doing business with the Federal Government on December 6, 2012 by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security/FEMA ("the Suspending Official"). GALLUP was notified by certified mail, but has not yet indicated that it knows about the suspension. Nevertheless, we anticipate that there could be press reports concerning the suspension soon.

We will provide additional information about this matter during Governors' Briefing this Friday morning.

The Suspending Official's action indicates there is evidence that immediate action is necessary to protect the Government's interest. GALLUP's suspension is effective throughout the Executive Branch, including BBG. Under the law, contractors suspended are excluded from receiving contracts and Executive Branch agencies are precluded from soliciting offers from or awarding contracts to, or consenting to subcontracts with these contractors, unless the Agency determines that there is a compelling reason to do so.

A contractor suspension endures for a temporary period, pending the completion of investigations and any ensuing legal proceedings, unless sooner terminated by the Suspending Official. If legal proceedings are not initiated within 12 months after the date of the suspension notice, the suspension shall be terminated unless the Assistant Attorney General requests its extension, in which case it may be extended for an additional 6 months.

What this means for BBG?

BBG may continue its existing contract with GALLUP, but may not issue task orders under the contract unless the Agency finds that there is a compelling reason to do so.

Based on input from the Director of Strategy and Development, the Office of General Counsel and the Agency's Procurement Executive, I believe that there is a compelling reason to continue to issue task orders for research to Gallup on an interim basis. The International Broadcasting Act mandates BBG to conduct audience research, which is used to evaluate and assess the impact of BBG-sponsored broadcasting activities, which is also required by law. To replace GALLUP as a source of research, BBG will have to initiate a new procurement activity, a competitive process which is governed by the Federal Acquisition Regulations (the FAR), and could take 3 – 5 months (but may take up to a year) to conclude.

Because of the statutory mandate for research and the important programmatic role of audience research in BBG's activities, I have determined, as IBB Director, that there is a compelling reason to continue to award task orders for research to GALLUP under its existing contract until an alternate source of research can be responsibly procured. The Agency will begin work forthwith on a new procurement to replace GALLUP.

If GALLUP's suspension is terminated during the pendency of the new procurement activity, BBG would have adequate justification to cancel the new procurement if it were in the Agency's interest to do so.

This is what makes it hard to understand why BBG gives them a waiver...because it would require extra work for us...and delay research....not sure I understand the logic here. Victor Ashe the story on the meeting with the President of Myanmar (Burma) is also misleading in describing it as a courtesy meeting...perhaps this has been changed. However, the three of us met for an hour and 15 minutes...that was a serious discussion of numerous issues...a courtesy visit suggests a photo opt and 15 mins which this was not at all. Urge it be corrected.

While I appreciate the article on BBG on the meeting I had along with Libby Liu with the President of Myanmar (Burma) it is probably not appropriate to refer to us by our first name on a news item like that which was done in the second sentence of the article.. Better to refer to Ms. Liu and Mr. Ashe. Also David Ensor, Director of VOA attended that meeting as well which should be noted.

Also would be good to have item on our meeting with Daw Aung San Suu Kyi on Monday Dec 3 in Naypjihaw (sp) at her home there which also included Gov Meehan and Gov McCue. Since these two persons represent the different political views within the country, it is important to show we saw both of them. If you need a photo I am sure Ms. Liu or John Estrella or dan Meredith can get it to you. Even without photo, you can run an item on it.

Dear Victor,

I was happy to know you had a successful visit to Burma, and I'll look forward to hearing more about the trip upon your return.

In the meantime, I wanted you to know that we were able to resolve the matter I mentioned in an earlier e-mail (see below) involving thorough fact-checking of the information for the letter to Congress regarding the Murrow facility, and that letter went to the Hill. It will be included in the briefing books that Oanh and her team are sending to Board members tomorrow, but in the meantime I've attached a copy for you.

Wishing you a safe trip home,

Hope your trip is going well and you have enjoyed Burma. It looks from the pictures VOA sent along like there was quite a signing ceremony. Glad you could make it.
On your question, we have the Board meeting and Governance Committee meetings on the BBG website. We have not publicized internal panels in the past such as China and Indonesia in recent months. Individual entity board meetings are up to the entities themselves to handle.

Thanks so much and look forward to seeing you next week.

"The leadership of BBG, RFA and VOA are committed to helping the people of Burma open up a free media during this historic time of democratic transition," said the BBG delegation. "On the heels of last month's historic visit by President Obama and Secretary of State Clinton, BBB board members and staff have been on the ground in discussions with the government officials, leaders such as Aung San Suu Kyi, media companies and citizens look to expand the free flow of information within Burma. Today's signing is another step to reach even more of the Burmese people through satellite television."

Governors,

Wanted you to be aware that Rep. Nita Lowey (D-NY) has been selected as the top Democrat on the House Appropriations Committee for the 113th Congress. The current ranking member, Norm Dicks (D-WA), is retiring at the end of this session.

For the past several years, Mrs. Lowey has served as the ranking member or chair of the Appropriations Subcommittee on State, Foreign Operations which has oversight of the BBG's annual appropriation.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Lowey Wins Race for Top House Democratic Appropriator

By Kerry Young, CQ Roll Call

Rep. Nita M. Lowey of New York will become the top Democrat on the Appropriations Committee in the 113th Congress, beating out a colleague with more seniority in a vote Tuesday before the House Democratic Steering Committee.

Lowey, who will be the first women to hold the post, won the initial round of the contest over Rep. Marcy Kaptur of Ohio. An aide said the vote was 36-10. Kaptur earlier on Tuesday told reporters that she and Lowey had a "gentleladies' agreement" to abide by the decision of the steering committee and not contest the vote before the whole caucus.

She succeeds veteran appropriator Rep. Norm Dicks, D-Wash., who is retiring at the end of the current Congress.

Going by seniority, Kaptur would have ascended to the top spot on the panel, which she has served on for 22 years. But she had a couple of limiting factors: She is a consistent opponent of expanding abortion rights and in the past has had a rocky relationship with Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif.

Lowey is third in seniority on the panel and fits more neatly into leadership, with her past tenure leading the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. She was also expected have the support of Pelosi.

Lowey also argued she has more leadership experience on Appropriations, having served as the chairwoman of the State-Foreign Operations panel in the 110th and 111th Congresses. While Kaptur had been a senior Democrat on the Agriculture Appropriations panel, she gave up her seniority there several years ago to switch to a more junior post on the Defense panel. In doing so, she gave up a chance at being a subcommittee chairwoman, or cardinal, when the Democrats held the House.

On the Republican side, Rep. Harold Rogers of Kentucky will return as chairman.

I think we should develop a method by which this can be accommodated. If the BBG meetings are public then it should not be hard to let interested citizens who pay for BBG speak. There should be a time limit. Five minutes seems reasonable per person with a requirement to sign up on a first come basis. Other federal agencies do this. I do not think it would be difficult and would send positive signals as to our interest in hearing from not just employees but citizens in general. My experience with this over the years has been positive.

What a shame. If the BBG invites the public, why not allow for comment? Are there any specific rules within the BBG that prevent comments from being posted? Or is it just a lack of interest?

Here are some links to show that the public's verbal arguments – no evidence at all for evolution – often

Dear (b) (6)

Thanks again for your ongoing interest in US international broadcasting.

Sorry it took a little while to get back to you, but since the request from a member of the public to make remarks at the open meeting has no precedent that anyone here is aware of, I needed to check with several people, including Board leadership.

Unfortunately, the press of regular business at open Board meetings does not leave time for speaking requests from the public. There is an opportunity at periodic "town hall" type meetings. This board has held one such meeting and is working to identify the next available date.

When the notice is posted for the Board's December 14 open meeting in keeping with the Government in the Sunshine Act, there will be the usual opportunity for members of the public to attend as observers on a first-come, first-served basis. As a courtesy, I will flag the notice for your attention when BBG Public Affairs posts it. As you know, members of the public are invited to observe at these meetings.

If you have input you'd like to offer, I'm happy to facilitate that with the Board.

All the best,

Lynne

Subject: Rep. Royce Wins Foreign Affairs Chairmanship

Governors,

As you are aware, Rep. Ed Royce (R-CA) had expressed interest in serving as the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in the 113th Congress. This afternoon, it became official. Please see the article below for more information.

We will work on drafting a congratulatory letter from the Board to Mr. Royce.

Best,
Suzie

Royce Wins Foreign Affairs Chairmanship
By Emily Cadei, CQ Roll Call

California Republican Ed Royce will be the new chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in the next Congress, according to a GOP leadership aide.

As anticipated, the 10-term congressman from Orange County defeated Rep. Christopher H. Smith, R-N.J., for the post in a Republican caucus vote on Tuesday. The current chairwoman, Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, R-Fla., is stepping down due to House GOP term limits.

Royce currently chairs the Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Terrorism, Nonproliferation and Trade and plans to continue to emphasize oversight of U.S. counterterrorism programs. He is also a member of the House Financial Services Committee and hopes to tap that expertise to help shape U.S. trade and export control policies from the helm of Foreign Affairs.

Though a conservative, Royce is not considered to be as polarizing as Ros-Lehtinen, who has been a harsh critic of the Obama administration's foreign policies, particularly related to the Middle East, Cuba and the United Nations.

Democrats will also have a new face leading the committee's minority, after Rep. Howard L. Berman, D-Calif., lost reelection in November. Rep. Eliot L. Engel, D-N.Y., is the favorite to win the ranking member post.

Rep Rohrabacher believes "abrupt dismissal" of Radio Free Asia Tibetan director was "for political reasons."

Tibet Sun, 20 Nov 2012, Lobsang Wangyal: "Radio Free Asia

(RFA) has dismissed Ngapo Jigme, its director of Tibetan Language Service, without revealing the reasons for his sacking. Npo has been director of the Radio Free Asia Tibetan Service since its inception 16 years ago. Jamyang Norbu, author, intellectual, and prominent supporter of Tibetan independence, also had his contract terminated by RFA, a few months ago. It is speculated that pressure from the Central Tibetan Administration in Dharamshala is responsible for the recent removal of the long-time Director. On being asked by Tibet Sun about the reasons for Ngapo's dismissal, RFA's Media Relations Manager Rohit Mahajan replied in an email: '... Speculation that Mr Ngapo's employment was terminated for political reasons is categorically untrue,' and that reports of Ngapo was escorted from the building by security personnel are false. ... In a letter to Radio Free Asia President Libby Liu on 15 November inquiring about Ngapo's dismissal, US Congressman Dana Rohrabacher expressed concerns about censorship in the radio service. Rohrabacher wrote, 'I have reason to believe that he was terminated for political reasons.'"

We previewed the annual audience numbers -- one performance measure in the PAR -- in a press event and release, and at this past week's Strategy and Budget Committee meeting. The full report is an integrated presentation of the Agency's program performance, financial accountability, and managerial effectiveness and is intended to assist Congress, the President, and the public in assessing the BBG's performance during FY 2012.

Victor,

Good seeing you today, and thanks again for our short discussion.

FYI, Oanh awaits final confirmation from Presiding Governor Lynton regarding December 14; as soon as she has that, we'll post the customary notice about the meeting date.

Once the Board has agreed to an agenda, we'll update the notice on the website to reflect that.

All the best,

Subject: BBG Annual Global Audience Estimate

Governors,

Attached and below, please find a news release about the BBG's annual global audience estimate that is about to go out; it will be familiar already to the members of the Communications Committee.

The news release and supporting documents, also attached, were prepared to coincide with a just-completed conference call that Dick Lobo and Bruce Sherman held with key Hill staffers, public diplomacy bloggers and other interested stakeholders. The conference call on the BBG's global audience estimate is done annually as a precursor to release of the Performance Accountability Report (PAR).

As you may recall, the PAR goes to the White House and Congress and is made available to the public each November 15; this year's PAR will be delayed by a day due to complications involving Superstorm Sandy. It will be released this Friday, Nov. 16.

Should you have any questions regarding the PAR or the global audience estimate released today, Bruce Sherman is standing by. The PAR is to be discussed during tomorrow's open meeting of the Strategy and Budget Committee.

BBG Measures Audience Growth in Key Markets

Washington, D.C. – U.S. government-funded, civilian international broadcasters reached an estimated 175 million people per week on a variety of media platforms in 2012, including large audiences in countries that are key priorities for U.S. foreign policy, the Broadcasting Board of Governors announced today.

The figure, which reflects the combined viewership and listenership of Voice of America, Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty, Radio and TV Marti, Radio Free Asia and the Middle East Broadcasting Networks (Alhurra TV and Radio Sawa), is a net decrease of 12 million from last year's record total as detailed in the BBG's annual Performance Accountability Report. While this drop likely reflects actual loss in overall audience, some of it may also be attributable to a change in research providers and resulting changes in the survey questionnaire, both of which occurred during FY 2012.

"Reliable and high-quality research informs our strategies, which in turn helps us fulfill our critical mission of reaching marketplaces around the globe, such as Afghanistan, Iraq, and Pakistan," said BBG Presiding Governor Michael Lynton. "This agency is committed to evaluating and assessing performance through a rigorous research program as required by law. And as audience preferences change, we will continue to innovate on all platforms -- radio, TV, the Internet and social media."

Audiences grew substantially in Iran, where more than 10 million people watch or hear BBG programs, and in other key countries including Libya, and Ethiopia. The largest change was in Indonesia, where audience numbers dropped by 17.4 million, from 38 million to 21 million people, in part due to a potential overestimate in 2011. Among other countries that saw audience declines were Egypt, Nigeria, and Burma, as these markets became more competitive and open; in Haiti, where surge broadcasts instituted after the 2010 earthquake diminished; and in Russia, where government media regulations have curtailed distribution.

BBG broadcasts reached significant audiences in other important markets, including 75 percent of the adult population in Afghanistan, 75 percent in the Somaliland and Puntland regions of Somalia, 67 percent in Iraq, 30 percent in Libya, and 27 percent in the FATA region of Pakistan. In FY 2012, the BBG enhanced its distribution network, adding new FM transmitters in key cities in Libya and Afghanistan.

Consistent with the practice of other international broadcasters, the BBG measures and reports unduplicated audience; each individual, regardless of how many programs watched or listened to, or media platforms used, is counted only once. This is a conservative approach to quantifying the audience and in keeping with the mission of BBG to inform and engage people, rather than count individual interactions with them.

Other indices of impact -- such how trustworthy audiences find BBG programming and how much the broadcasts increase their understanding, the scope or quality of an individual's consumption of BBG programming, the level of social media engagement, website page views, file downloads or media citations of BBG news coverage -- are important factors considered for program and strategic planning purposes.

Radio and TV are increasingly close in terms of reach by platform, with radio reaching more than 95 million people per week and television measures in at 92 million people. The Internet audience was between 12 and 13 million, with the largest online audiences measured in Iraq, at 2.7 million.

The audience estimate includes research conducted within the past five years in over 70 countries and territories and surveys representing 2.8 billion people in markets around the globe. The 2012 Performance and Accountability Report will be available to download on Nov. 16.

I should point out that the Board as a Board has voted to meet November 15. Only a Board vote can cancel what the Board has voted to do. If it appears a quorum is not present and some wish to cancel the November 15-16 meeting, then a called Board meeting or a notational vote is needed to cancel the meeting. This decision cannot be arrived at informally or by the IBB Director with one or two Governors concurring with him. I urge Governors to consider an alternative date if the 15th and 16th do not work. I could attend earlier in the week or come Nov 19 or 20 if that worked. That too requires a Board vote.

I am available. If the full BBG board cannot meet due to 5 persons not being present (I assume Lynton cannot even attend by phone?)

However, the RFA Board can meet with 4 members present which is a quorum for RFA and Governance can meet if Ashe, McCue and Mulhaupt are present. I hope these groups will meet even if BBG lacks 5 persons for its quorum. Governance has failed to meet now since May..almost five months. RFE audit has not met for months either. MBN may need to meet as well.

About the BBG

Past Press Releases

Michael Lynton

The Broadcasting Board of Governors today expressed its enduring outrage over persistent attempts to stifle the free flow of news and information through satellite jamming, intimidation and the detention of journalists in Iran, Syria, Cambodia, Ethiopia and elsewhere.

During the BBG's Oct. 11 meeting, Presiding Governor Michael Lynton condemned the jamming of BBG satellite signals in Iran and said BBG journalists are encountering new impediments to free reporting almost daily.

"Just yesterday, Radio Free Asia and Voice of America reporters were summoned to a meeting with officials in a blatant attempt to discourage objective reporting on the Cambodian government," Lynton said. As reported by Reuters, AFP and others, RFA and VOA...are among the few radio stations in Cambodia considered free of government influence."

The Board also expressed concern about the cases of Marthe van der Wolf, a VOA reporter in Ethiopia who was forced by local police to erase recordings of a protest rally, and Gulnur Raqifqizi Kazimova, a Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) freelancer who was prohibited from taking pictures in Azerbaijan.

Members of the Board renewed their condemnation of recent illegal jamming of BBG Persian broadcasts to Iran that also affected many other BBG radio and TV programs around the globe, including broadcasts in Arabic, Georgian, Armenian, Bosnian, and Korean.

"The Board calls on Iran to cease disrupting broadcast signals, and to respect the well-established international agreements that prohibit jamming," Lynton said.

The Board also noted that Monday marked 50 days since the capture of Alhurra TV journalist Bashar Fahmi and his cameraman Cüneyt Ünal in Syria, and renewed its demand that the pair be released.

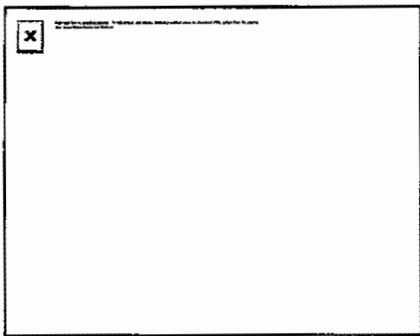

Fahmi and Ünal were last heard from on August 20, when they were reporting from Aleppo, Syria. On August 26th, Ünal appeared on Syrian television, but the Syrian government said it has no information on Fahmi.

Lynton spoke at length of recent Russian legislative steps that have imposed restrictions on freedom of expression, including a law that is forcing RFE/RL programs off of the organization's last AM affiliate in Moscow. He noted, "This board strongly objects to the tightening stranglehold on the free flow of information taking place today in Russia." Lynton reiterated Governors' support for Steve Korn's leadership of RFE/RL in its efforts throughout the region.

The BBG recognized the David Burke Distinguished Journalism Awards winners. This year's winners are: Mukarram Khan Aatif of the VOA's Deewa Radio; Karen Caballero of Radio and TV Martí; Sailab Mahsud of RFE/RL's Radio Mashaal; RFA's Korean Service; and Mohamed Moawad and Lamia Rezgui Bourogaa of the Middle East Broadcasting Networks' Radio Sawa.

Several events at the meeting honored the legacy and ongoing work of the Voice of America.

BBG in the Media

Gov. Susan McCue honors Leo Sarkisian, standing him to every country in Africa.

Board members enjoyed a presentation honoring VOA Ethnomusicologist Leo Sarkisian, the creator of Music Time in Africa, VOA's oldest English-language music program. They presented a resolution expressing the agency's appreciation to Sarkisian, who retired recently after a career that spanned more than half a century and took

The Board also recognized the 20th anniversary of VOA's Kurdish Service and the 50th anniversary of its Swahili Service.

Discussion at the meeting included the BBG's expanded broadcasting reach in China via the Telstar satellite and other developments intended to modernize and extend the reach of the agency and its media worldwide.

Public documents related to this meeting will be posted here, and video of this meeting will be available on-demand shortly.

Governors,

It appears a few Governors have new scheduling conflicts this Thursday, October 11, and will require moving the meetings to the morning.

After consulting with Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt, they suggest that the Board meet this Thursday from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. in Governors' Briefing which would include an OIG briefing with the Governors only, and hold the BBG open meeting from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. There will be no meetings after 11:30 a.m. Also, the strategy and budget briefing is being postponed and will be rescheduled at a later date at Governor Meehan's request.

In order to ensure a quorum for the BBG open meeting, please advise us of your availability from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. by COB today.

With your input, we will amend the Federal Register notice for the BBG open meeting in order to maximize notice to the public.

Good evening, Victor --

As Tara and Brian can attest, and Andre can fill in the details when appropriate, the BBG is, indeed, speaking with State about the matter.

One can imagine that with your background in foreign policy, all the bases would be covered in any subsequent Board briefing. Meantime, we'll get to work on a resolution -- in each sense of the word.

All the best,

we need to more than a statement although a resolution should be added to Board agenda this October 11 updated to reflect more recent developments if they occur.

BBG should meet with relevant folks at State on this too. We need a report on this October 11.

Governors,

As of today, we've seen a spike in the jamming of a number of our satellite signals to Iran. TSI, VOA and RFE/RL are working very closely to track the interference and respond accordingly in order to continue to reach audiences. VOA's Persian Service and RFE/RL's Radio Farda are the principal victims, though other languages on those satellite carriers are affected.

We believe raising public awareness of the jamming is important. Pasted below is the news release we are distributing to provide news of the situation.

We will continue to work aggressively to respond to the signal interference and will keep you informed.

BBG Condemns Jamming of Broadcasts to Iran

Washington, DC – October 3, 2012 – U.S. international broadcasting signals to Iran are once again being jammed, possibly in connection with street demonstrations and arrests there, and the Broadcasting Board of Governors has condemned the resumption of interference in its programming for Iranians.

“The jamming of news delivered by satellite into Iran is an outrage, a deplorable violation of well-established international agreements,” said International Broadcasting Bureau Director Richard M. Lobo. “Freedom of information is a universal human right as well as an essential component for the health of any nation.”

The practice of deliberate interference with broadcast signals, known as “jamming,” is prohibited under rules of the International Telecommunications Union (ITU).

The most recent interference began on Wednesday, October 3, and affected both video and audio signals of the Voice of America’s Persian Service and Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty’s Radio Farda.

The jamming coincided with reports of street demonstrations and mass arrests of Iranians protesting falling currency exchange rates. Both VOA and RFE/RL report that, in some instances, interference starts just before newscasts, and ends just afterwards.

The jamming affected three satellite transponders operated by Eutelsat and those most popular among Iranian viewers: HotBird 13B, Eutelsat 25A and Eutelsat 7A. Viewers said the signals reappear intermittently, and that less-popular satellites are not impacted.

The interference has affected other U.S. international broadcasting programs on the Eutelsat satellites, including Georgian, Armenian and Balkan-language broadcasts.

VOA and RFE/RL programs continue to be broadcast on diverse media platforms, including digital audio and video streams on other satellite paths and on the Internet.

In February 2012, the ITU called upon the world's nations to take "necessary actions" to stop intentional interference with satellite transmissions. -- <http://www.bbg.gov/press-release/new-pressure-on-jammers-of-international-broadcasts/>

I cannot tell if you plan to bring the final decision to the BBG Board for a vote or whether you plan to act on your own? Which is it?

I believe this is serious enough to come to the full Board for a vote on whether to proceed with an appeal or halt the process. I am eager to have your recommendation as well as the deputy general counsel and Carlos Garcia.

We should be sensitive to those persons who were terminated and it is now three years later. We should be sensitive to how this impacts the agency too. We should consult with DOJ on this. We should consult with plaintiffs to determine their interest in a settlement and what it would be. We should be advised what the current financial exposure is today, October 3 and what it could be two years from now if the appeals proceed and fail. In other words the plaintiffs win.

While this is not our personal money it is the public's money and we must be sensitive to this.

Subject: OCB / FLRA RIF Litigation

Governors,

Some of you have inquired about recent coverage concerning last week's decision of the Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) to uphold an arbitrator's decision against the Agency in connection with the Agency's 2009 reduction-in-force at OCB.

Our staff has not yet finished reviewing and digesting the case, nor have we formulated any formal response. It should be noted that the fact that the FLRA affirmed the arbitrator's decision does not necessarily mean that either the arbitrator or the FLRA decided the case correctly on the merits. There are more than a few cases where agencies have successfully challenged FLRA decisions.

The BBG has sixty days in which to respond and it is extremely important for the Agency to analyze the case carefully before deciding how to proceed. There are a number of issues at play in the OCB RIF case that go beyond the issue of possible financial exposure or reinstatement of employees, including substantive issues that may affect other RIFs that may be contemplated in the budgetary decisions that the Board has made. I plan to make a decision on how to proceed based on a sober analysis of the merits of the case. Like you, I of course share the desire to do what is in the best interest of the Agency and its employees. I will certainly take your concerns into account and will consult closely with the OCB Director as well as our Labor and Employee Relations team.. At the appropriate time, I will brief the Board on how best to proceed.

In the meantime, it would be advisable for individual Governors to refrain from discussing the case with BBG Union members or officials. If you are contacted by the media, please consult with our communications team before commenting. Such outreach can be affirmatively harmful to the Agency's interests because it can unnecessarily embolden the stance taken by other stakeholders in this important litigation and may complicate or undermine the Agency's litigation and settlement posture. I appreciate your understanding of and compliance with this point.

Dick Lobo

In your October 1 email regarding these matters, you cite a saying by the late Tennessee Governor McWherter. Allow me to cite a couple of quotes regarding teamwork as it should apply to any organization, including the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

"Individual commitment to a group effort - that is what makes a team work, a company work, a society work, a civilization work." – Vince Lombardi

"Coming together is a beginning. Keeping together is progress. Working together is success." – Henry Ford

"No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent." – John Donne

Thank you,
Dick Lobo

Pursuant to the BBG bylaws I want to add several topics to the October 11 agenda and should there not be an October 11 meeting then whenever the next BBG Board meeting does occur.

The topics I wish to add are as follows:

1-consideration of the non disclosure policy and how potential violations are handled..what process exists and what rights the accused have?

2-setting meeting dates for January, February, March, and April 2013 as well as meeting at RFA which has not happened in 2012..also setting date for Meeting at OCB in Miami

3-discussion of morale and contract employees

4-statement on union membership by employees that membership and activities in an union for all employees shall not be basis for discrimination by management in the workplace.

I believe I am meeting the notice requirement set out in BBG bylaws.

On another subject, I do not know when governance committee is set to meet on October 11 or what its agenda may be. I do not know if RFE audit committee will meet October 11 or not and what its agenda may be.

BBG BY-LAWS 2.11

Where practicable, agendas for regular meetings shall be developed beginning thirty (30) days prior to each meeting and distributed electronically to each Governor at least fourteen (14) days prior to each meeting. The Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau (IBB Director) shall propose agenda items for plenary Board meetings to the Chair based on discussions with individual Governors. Individual Governors may designate specific agenda topics and/or resolutions.

Subject: Re: Draft October BBG Meetings Agenda

To my fellow Governors and staff,

Thanks for sending this schedule. I am very disappointed that my requests listed as item VII in the Governor's briefing are not listed for the public meeting as I had requested them be discussed at the full BBG Board meeting and my request was filed with the deputy general counsel in a timely manner as provided by the bylaws. No one has the right to move a Governor's request from the Board meeting to the private session. This is directly contrary to my request and I ask that this be adjusted to be included at the BBG meeting. Surely we will abide by our bylaws.

Second, it is virtually unheard of in a setting such as ours to place approval of the minutes from the prior meeting at the end of the agenda. Such action always comes at the first of the meeting and that has been our BBG practice since we all joined the Board on June 30, 2010. Item F on the agenda should be Item A and each renumbered accordingly.

To be honest, this does not appear to be the result of checking with all the Governors. Certainly I was not consulted and I had asked for several items on the discussion list including (b) (6) from the prior meeting which is now missing. While it is good for Gov Lynton to review the proposed agenda, why not consult with all of us first before it is made up and sent out? This would produce a more collegial approach.

Third, given that the day ends at 315 PM in the afternoon, it is now abundantly and sadly clear that the governance committee could have met but for reasons Chairman Mulhaupert has not shared with me, he has decided not to hold the meeting which he said at the Sept 13 full BBG meeting he would hold to deal with issues referred Sept 13 to governance such as unions. Why? The same holds for his decision for the RFE audit committee not to meet that same day due to lack of time. Well, this schedule shows there is time. What is missing is the will to meet and honor the pledge made in mid September in a public setting. There is time from 0730 to 0830 and with planned adjournment at 315 there would be time to meet from 315 to 6 PM if people are willing to work.

In Tennessee, our late Gov Ned McWhertter when he was Speaker of the Tenn House and I was a minority party member under his leadership, he often told the 99 members when some wanted to adjourn early without finishing the day's business the following: "You should not hire out, if you are not willing to work." Enough said.

BBG faces serious issues which are not receiving attention. RFE faces serious programming issues and management style questions not to mention issues involving fiduciary responsibility and the best answer is to dodge discussion of them. Transparency is jettisoned here.

This is not good. It reflects poorly on all. I urge reconsideration and a response. I am back in USA on Wednesday evening and happy to talk to any Governor or anyone else about this.

Dear Victor,

It was very good to have your participation in this event last year and your support of employee recognition is always appreciated. I will be glad to share with the Board the information on the winners once everything is finalized. While we will have a final list of names in a few days, the citations describing their work take a bit longer given that there are about 85 winners.

In terms of the time/day of the awards, unfortunately the auditorium is in use by another group on Thursday Oct 11 until noon.

The event requires several hours of set up and involves many of the same staff that support the Board open meeting and webcast, so a midday ceremony is regrettably problematic.

We will go forward with this event on October 10, 2012 at noon in the Cohen Auditorium.

The nice photo of Govs. Meehan, McCue and me on the BBG web site speaks of Aung San Suu Kyi's visit to BBG. It is true she visited the Cohen Bldg and Gov Meehan and I were present.

However, the photo which is on the BBG web site was actually taken at Radio Free Asia as the background poster clearly identifies. Gov McCue was present at RFA but was not able to be at the Cohen Bldg that day. It seems to me that the caption of this specific photo should state that it was taken at RFA and not at BBG. There is no reference to RFA being the site of this precise photo.

Dear Dennis

I have had thought further about this since my last e mail and prefer a Board meeting over a briefing but feel either is better than nothing. However, the occasion should be more than RFE management giving us their view. We should have private time for Governors to discuss this among ourselves (obviously OIG would be there if they wish). We also need to have contact with one or more the dissidents signing the letter which has become so public. There needs to be outreach here.

We are faced with a serious morale and public perception issue at the very least. However, there could be more and duty is to ascertain in an objective way all sides so a factual determination can be made. A briefing by staff is only a start not an ending to this crisis for RFE in Moscow. If this turns out to be staff only and that ends it, then we have failed.

Your email suggests that it is all "misinformation and misconceptions." I am not sure we have enough knowledge to reach that conclusion any more than we have enough information to state that RFE management erred in full or in part. I urge you to be more neutral and even handed as chair until we hear all the facts.

I believe it would be worthwhile to have a briefing on where things stand with respect to the reorganization of RFE/RL's Russian Service that is being forced on us by the changes in Russian law. This will be a followup to the report given by Steve and his colleagues at the RFE board meeting a few weeks ago. There is a significant amount of misinformation and misconceptions about what we are actually doing and our plans going forward.

Within the next several days, we will organize a call-in briefing for those who are interested in participating. RFE management will update us on the current state of affairs and answer any questions you may have. As soon as this can be organized, we will be back to you.

Best,

Dennis

I would love to come but unfortunately do not appear able at this time to change my schedule. Too bad this is not being done on October 11 when many Board members would be there and could attend. It appears that the Board is not using the full day on October 11 for BBG meetings.

Governors,

We will hold our Medal Awards Ceremony on Wednesday, October 10, at 12 noon here in the Cohen Building auditorium.

It would be an honor to have you join this special occasion honoring our federal employees for outstanding service. The winners are selected through a process that encourages peer-to-peer nomination.

You would be welcome to make brief remarks congratulating the winners and join me, David and Carlos to present the certificates to the winners. We aim to keep the ceremony to an hour and will have a light reception following.

Please let me know if you can join us for this happy occasion.

Regards,
Dick

Dear Dennis

I am glad you are doing this but I feel it should be a RFE meeting. It is very important. I think it is important the dissidents' letter from Moscow be addressed as well as the manner in which people were dismissed. How much money is involved? It appears we have a significant public relations issue on our hand. It is important to address how management in hindsight would have done anything differently and if they feel there were any errors.

What is the backup plan when/if Putin shuts down RFE? Has there been any contact with US Embassy in Moscow? If not, why not?

I trust you will consult with all 7 Board members on their availability for a call so all can participate or if someone cannot participate but still wants a briefing that an alternative time be provided to him/her. Your email does not state if Board members will be contacted on availability. I also think it should be an actual Board meeting in case the Board wished to take action as formal action in a briefing is not legally possible.

Who will preside at the briefing or meeting?

Those persons from RFE who went to Moscow should also be on the line such as Dale Cohen. I do not know who else was there but we shold be told in advance of the call.

I look forward to participating, I am not available on October 1 thru 3, but available afterwards.

Colleagues:

I believe it would be worthwhile to have a briefing on where things stand with respect to the reorganization of RFERL's Russian Service that is being forced on us by the changes in Russian law. This will be a followup to the report given by Steve and his colleagues at the RFE board meeting a few weeks ago. There is a significant amount of misinformation and misconceptions about what we are actually doing and our plans going forward.

Within the next several days, we will organize a call-in briefing for those who are interested in participating. RFE management will update us on the current state of affairs and answer any questions you may have. As soon as this can be organized, we will be back to you.

Best,

all dates work for me although surely there will be new Governors at some point. I must ask the inconvenient question as to whether my colleagues plan on two day meetings in 2013 as there have not been any in 2012 and this October 11 all grantee board meetings have disappeared as have BBG committee meetings. I wonder if the OIG doing its review is the reason this has happened so they would not see any more deliberations. Or some do not want to face the important issues the committees have. Also which Governors were consulted on the October 11 reduced schedule...certainly not me. Victor Ashe

I think it should say that the Board is still deciding what its final recommendations on reform may be as a final vote has not been taken and there was discussion on this at Miami BBG meeting on April 20 where opinions were divided. Gov. Meehan announced his NO vote on consolidation without it impacting the total BBG packager as opposed to three entities.

Dear Congressman Rohrabacher:

I greatly appreciate your letter regarding the Board's recent discussions about effectively reaching the people of China and Tibet. We agree that U.S. public diplomacy efforts involving these key audiences should be a high priority, and the Broadcasting Board of Governors will remain in touch with you and your staff as we explore all of our options within the current budget environment.

Your interest in, and support for, the Board's proposals for structural and strategic reforms at the BBG is also appreciated. I understand from my fellow board member, Enders Wimbush, that you discussed some of these proposals during your meeting earlier this month. Some may require heavy lifting. The Board will need the assistance of interested, seasoned Members of Congress such as yourself to help establish the optimal structures and guidelines to strengthen the agency and its programs, and to make the most of its modest resources.

Let me assure you of the Board's commitment to assist the free flow of accurate information to people around the world – especially those who live in environments of censorship and repression. We look forward to working with you in the months ahead.

Most sincerely,

My hope is that BBG sets a high standard without waiting on Congress to tell us what that standard should be when we know thru common sense in most cases what it should and should not be. I am pleased you are working on this. Money saved here can help save some language services. Also we need to make sure we do not send too many persons to the same conference such as NAB in Las Vegas and the 2011 Delhi conference where 12 attended and total costs exceeded $85,000 in travel. Far fewer persons could have sufficed I suspect. It will take someone of your status to enforce it. The important thing is that you in your leadership position are pursuing this. I look forward to your report to the Board at our Prague meeting.

We should be able to report to Congress on what BBG did on our own before Congress made it the law.

Thanks for your efforts.

As you know, we've been working hard to review and improve our travel policies and practices, and were doing so well in advance of the GSA scandal. Agency travel costs dropped more than 4 percent from FY 2010 to FY 2011, and in FY 2012 we estimate travel spending will be down more than 7 percent from 2010. In FY 2013, the agency's proposed budget reduces travel spending 20 percent from FY 2010 levels.

As I've assured you already, we'll continue to work to control travel and conference costs.

This said, we are an international agency with assets around the globe. Travel is necessary to oversee and improve management of our operations.

I'm confident that our agency can comply with the letter and spirit of Senator Coburn's amendment – which (b) (6) (b) (6) detailed earlier today in an email – should Congress pass it into law.

Senator Coburn of Oklahoma succeeded today in a report published on Roll Call found at www.rollcall.com in major changes for all federal agencies on travel and attendance at conferences including posting items on their web sites.

This occurred in the wake of the GSA scandal. I personally believe Susan Andross should secure a copy of the proposed changes and BBG should move on its own to implement these changes which may be legislated into law. We should not wait on Congress telling us what to do. BBG should be proactive on this.

We have our own BBG experience of 12 persons going to Delhi, India last year. In some past years as many as 17 persons have attended the NAB (National Association of Broadcasters) annual meeting in Las Vegas. One person has racked up over $100,000 in costs for international flights in little over one year. Perhaps there are wonderful explanations for all of this but I doubt it. BBG needs to set an example and the Coburn amendment which the Senate adopted can point the way.

Thank you for your concurrence with our proposal to treat the motions that preceded the grantee consolidation decision as part of the minutes of the last meeting and not as part of the Record of Decisions.

I understand your feeling about Governor Mulhaupt's decision not to include, as part of the decision element before the Board, a recommendation that Congressional notification should be prepared.

But, we have never treated the decision of an individual Governor to withdraw (or rather not to put forward) a proposed decision element as a "Board decision". I am not sure how we can construe one Governor's forbearance of an action as a decision of the Board. So, our plan is to include that also in the meeting minutes (if at all) and not in the Record of Decisions.

I would also note for your consideration that this point is probably moot because the Board has already directed the IBB Director to prepare Congressional notification about the prospective consolidation. The language of the January 2012 decision (available on the BBG website) is as follows:

The Board also directs the IBB Director, as soon as practicable, to prepare and transmit any Congressional notification that may be required to implement the Board's intentions as stated in this decision.

part of the substance of the decision was that the third portion of the divided question was withdrawn by the sponsor. That should go in the substance of the Board's decision. I concur in the other part of what you say as long as the total procedural process is reflected in the full minutes. However, the record of decisions should reflect that part of the recommendation on consolidation as it relates to congressional notification was not adopted by the Board but actually withdrawn on motion of the sponsor. I feel that should be included in the record of decisions which will go immediately on the web site while the other full minutes will wait until June.

in terms of the grantee consolidation issue, the record of decisions should reflect that a division of the question into three separate parts was called for by Gov. Ashe. That the first question voted on was adopted unanimously, on the second matter in terms of advisers, Gov Ashe offered an amendment requiring consultation and concurrence with governance committee. Said amendment was adopted unanimously and the original motion as amended was adopted by a vote of 5 to 1 with Gov Ashe voting No. The third portion of the divided question was then withdrawn by the sponsor, Gov Mulhaupt.

That is my memory of what actually happened and this record of decisions should be modified to reflect the entirety of the procedure before it goes on the BBG web site.

Dear Victor,

I look forward to spending as much time as you like tomorrow afternoon on progress toward the tentatively-titled International Broadcasting Innovation Act. You mentioned there are other topics to discuss; I'll budget my time accordingly.

In anticipation of one part of that meeting, here's the budget authorization for the transmitter re-dedication next week. The authorization request was made only after the combined team in DC and NC established what was possible to achieve at a reasonable cost among the ideas you sent our way during the previous two weeks, and it was subsequently approved by IBB/BBG senior leadership even as further follow-up on those ideas was done. As I mentioned in that e-mail this past Saturday a.m., estimates of various items went down in some cases and up in others amid that follow-up -- but the overall cost is as discussed, and it remains within the authorized amount.

The second page includes the notional program, which closely hues to what we talked about by phone with Tish and [REDACTED] (b) (6)

This event budget doesn't include the sunk costs of the signage -- which, as we discussed on a couple of occasions, exceeded $6000. The back-and-forth on the extent of the signage took place before I arrived at this agency; in keeping with policy, those costs are coming out of a separate fund. If you wish, I'll obtain a list of those costs before we meet.

See you tomorrow at 2:30.

Best regards,

Lynne

I am not sure how we can construe one Governor's forbearance of an action as a decision of the Board. So, our plan is to include that also in the meeting minutes (if at all) and not in the Record of Decisions.

I would also note for your consideration that this point is probably moot because the Board has already directed the IBB Director to prepare Congressional notification about the prospective consolidation. The language of the January 2012 decision (available on the BBG website) is as follows:

The Board also directs the IBB Director, as soon as practicable, to prepare and transmit any Congressional notification that may be required to implement the Board's intentions as stated in this decision.

part of the substance of the decision was that the third portion of the divided question was withdrawn by the sponsor. That should go in the substance of the Board's decision. I concur in the other part of what you say as long as the total procedural process is reflected in the full minutes. However, the record of decisions should reflect that part of the recommendation on consolidation as it relates to congressional notification was not adopted by the Board but actually withdrawn on motion of the sponsor. I feel that should be included in the record of decisions which will go immediately on the web site while the other full minutes will wait until June.

in terms of the grantee consolidation issue, the record of decisions should reflect that a division of the question into three separate parts was called for by Gov. Ashe. That the first question voted on was adopted unanimously, on the second matter in terms of advisers, Gov Ashe offered an amendment requiring consultation and concurrence with governance committee. Said amendment was adopted unanimously and the original motion as amended was adopted by a vote of 5 to 1 with Gov Ashe voting No. The third portion of the divided question was then withdrawn by the sponsor, Gov Mulhaupt.

That is my memory of what actually happened and this record of decisions should be modified to reflect the entirety of the procedure before it goes on the BBG web site.

Senator Coburn of Oklahoma succeeded today in a report published on Roll Call found at www.rollcall.com in major changes for all federal agencies on travel and attendance at conferences including posting items on their web sites.

This occurred in the wake of the GSA scandal. I personally believe (b) (6) should secure a copy of the proposed changes and BBG should move on its own to implement these changes which may be legislated into law. We should not wait on Congress telling us what to do. BBG should be proactive on this.

We have our own BBG experience of 12 persons going to Delhi, India last year. In some past years as many as 17 persons have attended the NAB (National Association of Broadcasters) annual meeting in Las Vegas. One person has racked up over $100,000 in costs for international flights in little over one year. Perhaps there are wonderful explanations for all of this but I doubt it. BBG needs to set an example and the Coburn amendment which the Senate adopted can point the way.

Dennis, Victor, Enders --

Per the memo for the Miami Herald editorial board meeting, we had been asked to provide the paper with the names of all who will attend tomorrow's post-prandial meeting by COB today. Their security people need this info in advance, and normally the logs for the next day are completed in the evening.

Today I bought us some time by telling them that members of the group were arriving on different flights. But it would be helpful if you could let me know this evening whether you plan to make the trek across town tomorrow; we can then not only provide the final names to the Herald (other participants have already confirmed), but also ensure that there will be enough seats in the van for all.

Many thanks, and welcome to Miami!

Honestly, I had never heard of Ayutthaya before receiving your email. So I looked it up on Wikipedia. It was indeed that ancient capital of Thailand and is currently a UNESCO heritage site. But I also read that some bad things happened there as well. (I've reproduced the entry from Wikipedia below.) The resolution says the name change would be well-received in Thailand but I just wanted you to know about this other negative historical information in case anyone might ask about it.

Ayutthaya (full name Phra Nakhon Si Ayutthaya, Thai: ພະນາຄົມອາຍຸຖາຍາ, pronounced [pʰrá? ná?kʰɔ:n sí: ?ajútthājā:]; also spelled "Ayudhya") city is the capital of Ayutthaya province in Thailand. Located in the valley of the Chao Phraya River. The city was founded in 1350 by King U Thong, who went there to escape a smallpox outbreak in Lop Buri and proclaimed it the capital of his kingdom, often referred to as the Ayutthaya kingdom or Siam. Ayutthaya became the second Siamese capital after Sukhothai. Its remains, characterized by the prang (reliquary towers) and gigantic monasteries, give an idea of its past splendour.^[1] It is estimated that Ayutthaya by the year 1600 CE had a population of about 300,000, with the population perhaps reaching 1,000,000 around 1700 CE, making it one of the world's largest cities at that time.^[2] In 1767, the city was destroyed by the Burmese army, resulting in the collapse of the kingdom. The Ayutthaya historical park is the ruins of the former capital of the Kingdom of Siam.^[3] It is the site of mass murder, rape and enslavement of Siamese people and destruction of the Ayutthaya city,^[3] its art and buildings by the Burmese in 1767, which is recognized internationally as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Mr. Kollmer

Here is a resolution I plan to add to the Board agenda on April 20 as a follow up to my visit to Thailand which I have discussed and cleared with Andre Mendes. It would establish the name of the current BBG transmission station known as the Bangkok station as Ayutthaya Transmission Station as that more clearly reflects its actual location. Ayutthaya is the ancient capital of Thailand. I request you have it reprinted and distributed to Governors at the meeting.

The resolution goes as follows

Whereas the Broadcasting Board of Governors has a transmission station in the Kingdom of Thailand previously known as the Bangkok transmission station

Whereas this station which has been in existence over 40 years is actually located close to the ancient capital of Thailand known as Ayutthaya, the name of the station should be officially changed to reflect its location which name change would be well received in Thailand

Therefore be it resolved by the Broadcasting Board of Governors that the Bangkok transmission station shall be named the Ayutthaya transmission station effective immediately and so described in future descriptions of it by BBG

Call me if there are questions. I am copying Dennis Mulhaupt on this as he will be presiding.

Thank you for your attention to this matter, and for your confidence in me. I've wanted to see the mystery of this mis-delivery solved since Friday, when it first arose.

We also provided two phone numbers for them to call in case of any issues.

That afternoon, when the item still had not arrived, we phoned Fed-Ex's headquarters. Customer Service had no record of a package for me.

I suggested to (b) (6) that she use the tracking number to find out where her package had gone. I trust that when she and I are back in touch tomorrow, the question will be resolved.

And together with colleagues, I'll look into how the agency's FOIA procedures are made public.

Not your fault but obviously something which needs to be checked out and find out why Fed Ex cannot deliver a package addressed to you at 330 Independence Ave. The same would apply to anyone else who has an office at BBG such as (b) (6) to name a few people.

Subject: Fed ex delivery

Lynne

(b) (6) has been e mailing me too about her letter on a FOIA request which was sent FEd Ex on April 12 but which apparently is not being delivered to the BBG offices at Cohen Bldg. This seems most strange and makes us look bad in terms of receiving mail (this would not involve security measures)...does BBG not have a process to receive mail sent by Fed Ex? We certainly should. Frankly, we should place on our web site for information on FOIA how one sends a Fed EX letter should that be the preferred method of delivery for the requester.

We should set a standard for delivery. To your knowledge, do we have a place on the BBG web site to explain how to file FOIA requests...if not we should. if so, is it well placed and easy to navigate?

Good morning!

Glad to hear the report reached you. I suspect by now you will have seen Lynne's note to all the governors about the annual report. She explains the idea of giving governors a small supply for you to pass along to contacts you make along your way. We are pleased to handle any mail delivery you might like. Just send along the addresses and we will make sure they are sent out!

Enjoy the rest of the weekend!

perhaps there was a misunderstanding as I recently got 20 copies of the BBG annual report. I had only wanted 2 or 3. It is true I had inquired about sending 10 to 15 copies out to interested observers but I had thought and hoped BBG would do that. I do not have the resources here as I do not have an office but operate out of my house.

I will bring the extra copies back to DC on April 25-26 as I do not need them. Can your office mail out copies to a list of 10 to 15 if I give you the names and addresses? Please advise sorry for confusion.

In a post published on April 12, 2012 on the Heritage Foundation's Foundry blog site, Helle Dale criticizes the distribution of cuts in the FY2013 budget proposal for the BBG. We are working to address several misstatements in this piece.

BBG Budget: Voice of America Slashed, Fewer Broadcasters, More Bureaucrats

Helle Dale

April 12, 2012 at 1:30 pm

The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) recently released its 2013 budget request, which slashes Voice of America (VOA) funding by more than $17 million while increasing funding for major bureaucratic offices inside the International Broadcasting Bureau. A reprioritization is clearly necessary. (article continued below chart)

INCREASING MANAGEMENT FUNDING WHILE SERVICES CUT

BBG proposes to cut VOA's funding by more than 9 percent ($17.096 million) while increasing funding for IBB's major bureaucratic offices.

Funding for IBB management	FY 2011/FY 2012	FY 2012 PROPOSED INCREASE	RESULT
Director's Office	$5.91 million	$0.113 million ($6.023 million in total)	+2 percent
Office of General Counsel	$2.224 million	$0.032 million ($2.256 million in total)	+1.4 percent
Office of Chief Financial Officer	$14.432 million	$0.36 million ($14.792 million in total)	+2.5 percent
Office of Contracting and Procurement	$2.869 million	$0.18 million ($3.049 million in total)	+6.3 percent

TOO LITTLE ON CHINA

BBG's strategic vision and planning is seriously unbalanced.

Country/Language	China Mandarin, Cantonese, Tibetan, Uyghur (VOA and RFA)	Afghanistan Pashto and Dari (VOA and RFE/RL)	Arabic (MBN and RFE/RL)	Iran Persian (VOA and RFE/RL)	Tajikistan (RFE/RL)	Ethiopia (VOA)
Budget	$34.59 million	$29.6 million	$129.25 million	$34.42 million	$1.57 million	$2.18 million
Target Population	1,338 million	28.4 million	174 million (15 Arabic nations)	73.2 million	7.5 million	82.8 million
Average $ per Capita	$0.026	$1.02 (39 times)	$0.74 (29 times)	$0.47 (18 times)	$0.21 (8 times)	$0.026 (same as China)

RFE/RL= Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty

MBN= Middle East Broadcasting Networks

This disturbing trend focuses on making U.S. international broadcasting a global media service, with digital media distribution at the hub, much like the Internet-focused CNN model. At the same time, actual broadcasting services are being cut, resulting in lost viewers and listeners who, since they often have no Internet access, are deprived of trustworthy and important news sources.

Additionally, the BBG budget request reveals a continuing problem with strategic priorities. In China, the U.S. target audience is over 1.33 billion people. For this huge number of people, we spent around $34.6 million in broadcasting efforts in 2010. This works out to less than $0.03 per person per year. In Tajikistan, we spent $1.57 million to reach 7.5 million people, or $0.21 per person. We should not be spending more than eight times as much per capita on public diplomacy broadcasting in Tajikistan than in China. China's public diplomacy efforts are rapidly growing, yet in 2010 we spent 18 times as much per capita in Iran, 29 times as much per capita in outreach to Arab speakers, and 39 times as much per capita in Afghanistan.

Of course, the Middle East and other Muslim countries are important strategic targets for U.S. broadcasting. Perhaps instead of cutting over $17 million from VOA in 2013, that money and more could be wisely spent on broadcasting to China. An added emphasis on broadcasting in China will let the U.S. respond to China's messaging blitz.

Instead of increasing funding to bureaucratic offices and cutting back on VOA, the opposite should be done. Cutting back on bureaucracy and increasing funding to successful broadcasts will allow the U.S.'s message to reach more people at lower cost, which is always a win-win.

Dear Lynne and Mr [(b) (6)]

I am forwarding to you an e mail I received from [(b) (6)] on what she considers to be weaknesses in the FOIA requests procedure by BBG. I feel she raises valid points.

I do not take sides on why she seeks the information she seeks but I do firmly support BBG having a process in place which expedites FOIA requests consistent with President OBama's 2009 executive order for openness. The President was on point when he issued this order early in his administration. What worries me is that not all agencies are adhering to the spirit as well as the letter of it.

We have discussed this previously. You have turned it over to [(b) (6)]. He is professional young man but I wonder if you have indicated to him the importance of securing quick responses. Have you had the system checked on packages Fed ex'd to BBG. Does he realize he has backing at the highest levels to act quickly?

I formally request the deputy general consul office to respond directly to the e mail [(b) (6)] sent me and copy me on it. Do we need to have a discussion on this at the April 20 BBG Board meeting?

Subj: FW: FOIA Request re: Travel Expenses

Dear Ambassador Ashe:

I'd like to share with you some recent emails detailing the difficulty I've experienced filing a FOIA request at the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

On Thursday, I sent an email Freedom of Information letter to the Broadcasting Board of Governors. In order to comply with the BBG's rules, I sent a hard copy to them via Fed-Ex.

Among my surprise that somehow the Fed-Ex letter did not arrive, I am concerned that my FOIA request was questioned as to why it was even made, and why the [(b) (6)] did not request a FOIA on the BBG Governors' travels.

On this end, I'll follow up with Fed Ex to see what happened to the letter. It's bewildering that an organization funded to provide global communication doesn't have a simple streamline method of receiving or transmitting written communications ... this month they have no procedure in place to receive a package from Fed Ex, and last month their legal department had no procedure in place to attach a document to an email.

Thank you for any help you may be able to provide.

Sincerely,

(b) (6)

Perhaps my email wasn't clear. I know that my email yesterday said that I have reason to believe that the situation in most, if not all, of our other bureaus is equally bad. That did not mean that "the situation is bad, but I don't intend to do anything about it". The list of needs and priorities to which I referred included ALL of our bureaus, not just the ones I have visited thus far. Indeed, as I explained, we are moving to replace all of our computers in Bishkek, although I have not yet visited there (I am planning a visit there and to some other Central Asian bureaus during the summer). Again, if you had the impression that I am only concerned about the bureaus I have visited, then that is a failure of explication, not intent.

As to your point about Iran, we do not have a bureau there and we never have. I have, however, made it clear internally, ad nauseum, that Iran, together with Af/Pak and Russia are our three most important priorities. We do not intend to give Af/Pak and Iran (or any other of our broadcast territories) to VOA, or to anyone else.

As to why I chose to visit these particular bureaus first, the rationale for that was set forth in my email to the Board of January 16 to which I referred at least twice in yesterday's email. In that regard, I point out that I received no comments about that earlier email from you or any other Board member at any time since January 16.

As I am sure you recall, the January email set forth in some detail my plans about where I wanted to take the company based upon my obsevations over the first six months of my tenure. Yesterday's email was a bit of an update of the earlier email, but focused on bureaus.

As to your concern about which countries are the farthest east, let me assure you that I actually am pretty good at geography. I know well the relative locations of Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Georgia and Armenia. The concept of looking East was set forth in my January 16 email and was a reference to the fact that my predecessor put more emphasis and resources into our image in Washington than I intend. I said that, given our limited resources, I believe we must put as much of our resources into our broadcast region as we can. In this regard I would note that all of the countries in question are east of Washington (as well as Prague).

I trust you will find this note responsive to the points raised in your email.

Where is the emphasis on Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan?. Armenia and Georgia are not nearly as important as these three nations? Is RFE simply giving these three nations to VOA and walking away under this plan? If so, tell us.

You talk of going East but Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan are further east than Armenia and Georgia. Just what is(b) (6) definition of east and west here?

The truth is that RFE took a huge cut in 1996 and has never recovered. It would appear that RFE tries to do too much in too many places with too little. Russia is important but the new Putin may well figure out a way to block RFE from growth in Russia.

I worry that (b) (6) has decided not to visit other nations where RFE operates and has limited his visits to what he has seen. What other trips to areas served by RFE are planned by (b) (6) if any? His concern for the plight of employees in Moscow and safety at the Baku office are well taken. However, what has moved Georgia and Armenia to the forefront when other nations in the same 'east' neighborhood are far more critical to US interests.

I look forward to a response and discussion on this. Choices must be made and they need to add up in terms of American interests.

Governors,

We have an offer from the State Department for a briefing on U.S.-Cuba policy and related communications matters ahead of the meeting in Miami. Given the quick turn-around and the briefers involved, there wasn't a lot of flexibility in terms of timing. The meeting takes place next Monday, April 16, at 3.

Senior BBG staff will be on hand; those Governors who are unable to attend – particularly due to travel issues/costs-- can receive a recap afterward at your convenience, either by phone or in person in Miami.

There will also likely be participation from the office of U/S Sonenshine.

Please let me know if you can attend. I'd like to give my former colleagues at State a head-count by tomorrow COB.

And kindly keep this information confidential; involve schedulers or any others only as needed.

Many thanks,

However, speaking only for myself, I want to see copies of all letters sent to BBG only which relates to policy or Governors unless you tell me this is too heavy a volume to be practical. Governors, there are well-established and standard practices, consistent with those at other Federal agencies, for handling mail at BBG. Governor Meehan is correct that delivery of hard copy mail correspondence is delayed due to security screening procedures that are conducted at another facility.

We will be happy to provide a report to the Governors about procedures for handling mail.

And though i am having to do this from nyc and with a different working situation than i had before, i don't see why there would need to be anything directed toward Lynne when there could be a perfectly reasonable explanation for where the letter went or an unintentional oversight...it has only been 7 days, 1 of which was an observed holiday for many, 2 of which were weekend days. To Whom It May Concern:

I write in support of Voice of America radio and television broadcasting, particularly to China, Tibet and Russia. In addition, I write in support of the efforts of the Committee for U.S. International Broadcasting. The CUSIB works to ensure that U.S. government-funded broadcasts promote respect for human rights and freedom of the press, especially in nations where these basic freedoms are under attack.

I write to you on a personal basis to express dismay that Voice of America radio and television broadcasts to Russia ceased in 2008. I am deeply concerned that although last year's proposed cuts of VOA Mandarin and Cantonese radio and television programs were halted, this year's proposal includes the elimination of VOA Cantonese services and VOA Tibetan Radio Services, at a time when there is significant unrest in Tibet. I urge you to continue the Cantonese and Tibetan broadcasts, and to restore them to Russia.

I well remember as a girl in Nazi-occupied Hungary, how every Sunday afternoon my family would draw the shades, close the curtains, and gather around the shortwave radio, pressing our ears close so that we could catch each precious word of freedom and hope that poured out of that radio receiver like manna from heaven. We had to strain to hear over the static caused by Nazi attempts to block the signal, but we were grateful to do so, because these words of truth were pure gold in the ubiquitous mire of Nazi propaganda. The VOA and BBC broadcasts were our one connection to freedom, our one connection to hope, and our lifeline that gave the resistance the courage to endure to the end. The VOA broadcasts fanned the fires of resistance in the brave underground fighters who sought to destroy the brutal Nazi totalitarianism from within. To cut off the VOA broadcasts would have been to cut off the very legs of the resistance. The same is true today in nations ruled by totalitarian regimes.

Now, the people of China and Tibet are suffering at the hands of a brutal, heartless regime. They also cannot speak openly without fear of punishment. The Chinese Communist Party seeks to maintain complete control over the information available to the people of China and Tibet. The CCP blocks the Internet and controls the flow of information, distorting the truth and promoting distrust of America. VOA has been the voice of freedom and democracy in China for 70 years. It is highly respected, even venerated, in China. Human rights activists like Chinese Nobel Peace Prize laureate Liu Xiaobo and Chinese campaigner for women's rights Chen Guangcheng

I have been told that (b) (6), widow of the late Congressman (b) (6), has written a letter to BBG on the Tibetan and Mandarian language cutbacks.

I have not seen it. Does anyone know about this and who has it? When will it be distributed to Board members?

as a general procedure, when a letter comes in to BBG, are they then sent to BBG Board members if address to BBG in general? At what point do they get forwarded?

As one Member only, I want to see them all as quickly as they arrive.

This she will do next Tuesday, April 10, from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The program agreed upon with the State Department will be:

11 a.m. to noon – reception with light refreshments, VOA Briefing Room.

Among the invitees will be the language service heads and senior congressional staff who handle public diplomacy issues.

Noon to 12:30 – Tailored tour taking in historic aspects of the building as well as state-of-the-art studios. Possible TV interview, to be worked out with VOA; tape would be shared across entities.

12:30 to 1:30 - Informal lunch, pre-ordered individually for those who choose to participate. Details to follow.

The program will end in time for a brief break before the 2 p.m. Strategy and Budget Committee meeting.

With apologies for the rather short notice, please let us know whether you plan to attend part or all of this event.

Dear Colleagues,

Budget update. I have been able to secure a meeting at OMB on Tuesday, July 17th at 11 am in Washington. If any of you are in town and interested in attending please let me know. Our goal is to make a case about 5-10 percent cuts and what it does to our agency.

I am hopeful to schedule a meeting of the Strategy and Budget Committee in the next couple of weeks. We can make it a committee of the whole and have any board member, who wishes for a deeper dive into the 2014 budget and an update on the 2013 budget status participate by phone or in person. I know the staff has been sending us update materials.

China. On Friday July 27th, we have assembled several outside experts to convene in Washington that morning. It's part of an effort to bring outside voices into our internal discussions about a comprehensive approach to USIB in China. Board members are encouraged to join by phone or in person on the 27th. It's with this input that I am hopeful we can advance a more comprehensive strategy that leverages all of USIB assets in Asia.

Iran. The staff is still working on recruiting panelist. I am hope for us to have conducted a similar effort before the September board meeting and our 2014 budget submission. Stay tuned.

If you are interested in participating directly in the Budget committee meeting, please let me know and we will work to accommodate your schedule. The staff needs our guidance and as Dick points out, September is too late to start.

Best,

Michael

It is important that materials which were going to be assembled for July 24 be sent to all Governors anyway so we can have time to review them in adequate time but that does not replace the need for a meeting of the relevant committees to discuss and look into issues. Budget must be considered in depth.

Dear Governors,

In April, the Board voted to change the previously selected date for the July 2012 meeting and asked Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt to choose a new date. Having canvassed the Board, they selected July 24 as the best available option.

As that date approaches, it has become apparent that many Governors' attendance cannot be assured. Some of you are available only at limited times -- or perhaps not at all -- on July 24. Guaranteeing a quorum under these conditions would not be possible.

For this reason, Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt have agreed to postpone the July meetings of the Board and Governance Committee. They will suggest an alternate date.

While most of the work on the July agenda may be safely deferred until the scheduled September meeting, it is critical for the Board to discuss the proposed FY 2014 budget sometime in early August by telephone or videoconference. We will be back in touch as soon as possible with a proposed date.

Finally, a number of Governors have pointed out the importance and complexity of the key issues requiring detailed discussion before any votes could take place. The postponement will provide time for you to review any materials sent in advance.

If it goes to August then is consolidaiton being voted on by phone or conference? and no goverance committee prior to that?

Just reading papers without persons there to respond and have a dialogue back and forth among Governors is a poor way to run a $700 million plus budget. I am available all of August to august 27. I am not available sept 1 to 9 due to previously planned business.

It is stunning to me that we would vote on the budget or consolidation without a face to face meeting preceded by committee meetings such as governance and strategy and budget. Gov Mulhaupt and I have a perfect attendance record. Others have different schedules but we should try to co-ordinate our agendas to meet as a group. otherwise we look less than diligent in my view.

I plan on being in Washington July 24-25 and will visit more areas of the Cohen Bldg where I have not previously been or it was over a year ago.

Subject: Re: Draft July BBG Meetings Agenda

In looking over the agenda, I have several more questions and concerns.

First, can someone let at least the Governors know what the classified session on July 24 between 1045 and 1 PM will cover in terms of topics so we can be thinking about it. Simply saying it is classified does not give a clue as to what might be discussed. If the powers that be do not want this whole list to know, then perhaps send it to Governors only. I do not feel we should have a classified session unless there is some heads up to Governors as to what it is about.

Second, I do not understand how we can vote on the budget when strategy and budget committee has not met to go over the budget. No one has briefed me on its contents. When will we receive information on the budget? However, I thought it was and is the role of the Strategy and budget committee to go over the budget before the full Board considers it. Am I mistaken? It seems Strategy and Budget does not have a meeting planned. Going over the budget should take more than the 30 minutes allotted on July 24. Only having 30 minutes for this without a strategy and budget committee meeting makes the Board appear less than diligent in its discharge of its duties. As one Governor, I have not been briefed on the budget and feel allocating 30 minutes only is totally inadequate for a budget of over $700 million.

Third, I wish to register a protest that my request for discussion of the non disclosure protocol is placed virtually last on the agenda of the full Board behind congratulatory resolutions. I requested this in a timely manner. It seems to me that items requested by Governors should have a higher priority than what is being given to this issue which has triggered much public discussion and questions. The reality is that the Board has failed to conclude its full agenda at the last two meetings. Placing this item last if that happens at this meeting almost guarantees that the Board does not reach it and a thoughtful discussion does not occur on this significant issue.

Fourth, I feel entity heads and network heads should be allowed to attend all of the Governor's briefing not simply as directed.

Hopefully, someone can answer these concerns. Mr. Kollmer, Mr. Lobo, Gov, Lynton or others.

Dear Governors,

Attached please find a draft agenda for all BBG-related meetings to be held on Tuesday, July 24, in the BBG-IBB Conference Room of the Cohen Building. This draft agenda has been reviewed and approved by Presiding Governor Lynton.

A Governance Committee meeting is scheduled from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. EDT. Committee members (Chair Mulhaupt, Ashe, McCue and Lynton) are confirmed for attendance, but we urge other Governors to participate as the Committee will, among other issues, examine the grantee consolidation plan and make a recommendation to the plenary Board.

As Jeff mentioned to you on June 28, the Board needs to decide on grantee consolidation – a decision with significant implications for the FY 2014 budget process. In addition, the Board must consider, provide guidance, and adopt the key elements of the Agency's FY 2014 budget proposal in a closed meeting because of the need to preserve the confidentiality of pre-decisional budget information per OMB guidelines. That said, in a separate email per usual procedures, we will circulate a notice to the Board with a request to close a portion of the Board meeting.

Given the importance of these issues, it is anticipated that the Governors' Briefing morning session (starting at 10:45 a.m. EDT) would be attended by Governors, key staff and network heads.

Please note that a BBG open meeting is planned in the afternoon from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. EDT. Following the open meeting, Governors' Briefing would continue, including a substantial discussion about the Agency's digital/on-line programs per Governor McCue's request.

We welcome your comments and requests for additional topics and/or other changes in the closed session (Governors' Briefing) or in the BBG open meeting.

Thank you.

Several weeks ago a letter from Congresswoman Lofgren and Congresswoman Sanchez on entity consolidation was sent to BBG which was then distributed to the Board. We were told a letter would be drafted and circulated prior to being sent back to the two members.

I have not seen a draft and am writing to secure a copy so I can comment on it. I believe the letter is several weeks old so a reply is certainly due to both members.

I look forward to seeing it. can someone tell me where the draft stands??

I trust the draft will be circulated among the Board prior to sending to Congressman Rohrabacher as there are clear differences among Governors on this. I feel the Congressman has raised several valid points which are hard to defend, explain or justify. Even today my good friend Dick Lobo is engaged in non disclosure with me by declining to respond to my repeated e mails asking for a copy of the memo prepared for him with my name on it relative to labor issues and the memo which I sent a few weeks ago to all Governors. This memo prepared for Mr. Lobo was in his stack of materials at the June 7 Prague meeting where he sat next to me and it was at the top of the pile. When I asked to see it that day in order to better understand BBG management's position on labor negotiations he declined to share it and has ignored several e mails from me since then on this issue. My name is in the headline on the memo but he withholds it from me. Hard to understand this one and certainly something Congressman Rohrabacher would find less than transparent. As a Governor I along with all other interested Governors are entitled to see it. Mr. Lobo in my view has no legal basis to withhold it especially since it was prepared to assist him in responding to anticipated questions I might ask but which the press of other business prevented us from reaching.

Sincerely yours,

Time for the U.S. to Take a Stand for Press Freedom at the U.N.

By Brett D. Schaefer

June 25, 2012 3:22 P.M.

There is a disturbing new wrinkle in the troubling effort to oust Matthew Russell Lee of Inner City Press from the United Nations Correspondents Association. Voice of America, whose reporter Margaret Basheer was one of the original journalists lodging the complaint about Lee to UNCA, has intensified the confrontation, officially requesting that Stephane Dujarric, head of the U.N.'s News & Media Division, review Lee's press accreditation.

Worse, this taxpayer-supported operation is urging the U.N. to rescind Lee's accreditation. The U.S. mission should intervene to block this press-chilling maneuver.

The effort to drop Lee from UNCA's membership is disappointing, but that membership is not a prerequisite for being a credentialed member of the U.N. press corps. U.N. press credentials are granted by the UN Media Accreditation and Liaison Unit (MALU). By asking that Lee's U.N. press credentials be reviewed, VOA is seeking to deny him entirely the ability to access the U.N. as a member of the media. Since Inner City Press focuses almost exclusively on the U.N., it is no exaggeration to say that this would cripple Lee's ability to do his job.

Ostensibly, VOA is making the request because it considers Lee "disruptive and unprofessional." Furthermore, the letter states, "his behavior is impeding the freedom VOA's correspondent and others need in order to report what they see and know from the United Nations." VOA does not accuse Lee of physically threatening anyone, but of sending numerous "borderline harassing" e-mails that make reporters "uncomfortable." Apparently, all the hard-bitten reporters are off covering other beats.

Richard Grenell, who served as the United States Spokesman at the U.S. Mission to the United Nations for eight years, sees different motivations behind the complaint: fear of competition and a desire to protect the U.N. from Lee's inquiries.

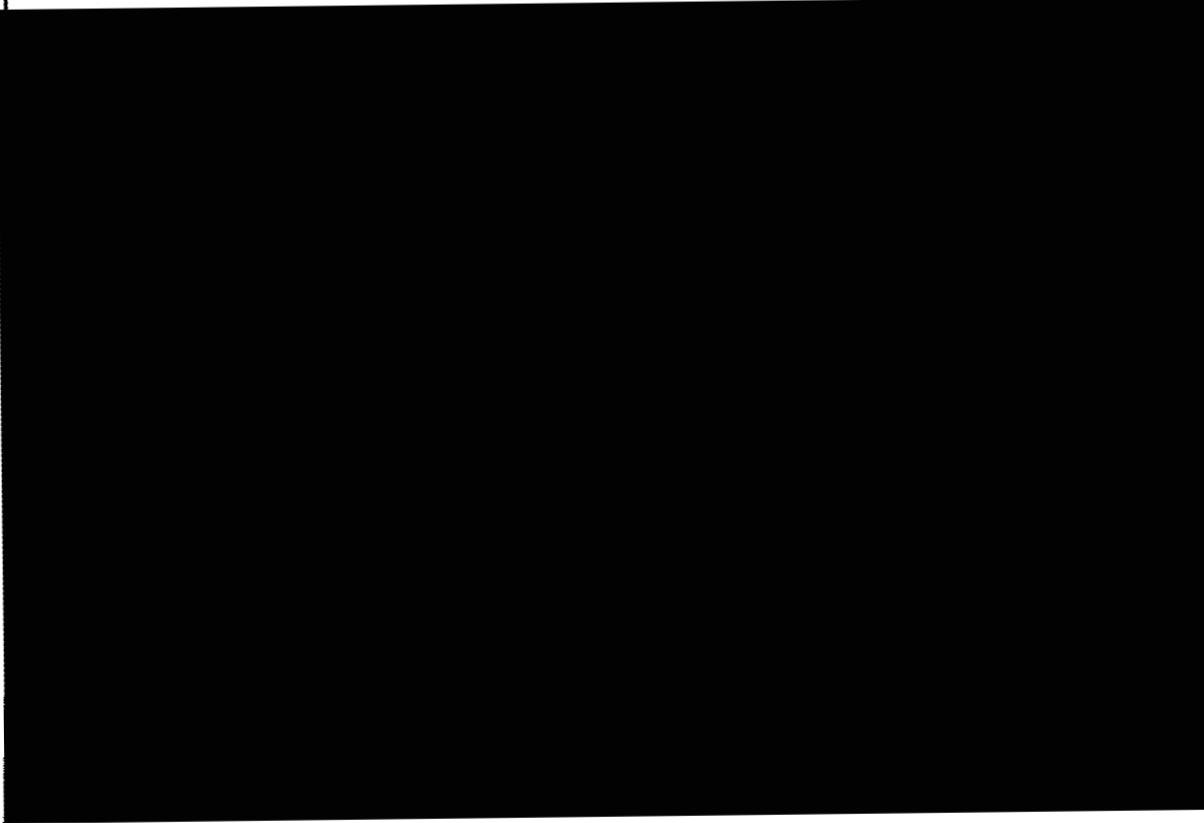

The UN press corps functions as the 194th member of the United Nations. There are some amazingly dedicated and tough reporters at the UN, but they are overshadowed by the majority who have their own priorities when covering the UN. These types protect the UN system and those that support it.

Matt Lee from InnerCityPress wrote constantly about issues that nobody else covered. He forced me to work harder and keep up with arcane issues or new angles. He isn't playing the UN reporters' game and so they will use their institutional power to oust him. His small but constant operation is taking on the diplomatic hierarchy, and those that fear being exposed as non-journalists are going to fight hard against him. I hope the leadership of Bloomberg News, Reuters and the taxpayer funded Voice of America take notice of their reporters' actions at the UN to muscle out a tenacious and aggressive reporter who keeps scooping them.

(On the U.N.'s World Press Freedom Day this past May, Secretary Hillary Clinton stated, "When a free media is under attack anywhere, all human rights are under attack everywhere." It is very hard to square that firm support for freedom of the press with a U.S.-government-funded broadcaster like VOA seeking to bust an American journalist from the U.N. because he makes a reporter uncomfortable and doesn't act as they would like him to act.)

Unlike journalists in many other countries, Lee's life isn't under threat. But his livelihood is. The U.S. Mission should remind the U.N. that Article 19 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights defends freedom of expression and the media. It is just as relevant in the corridors of Turtle Bay as it is elsewhere.

Good Journalism at the U.N.?

By Brett D. Schaefer

June 18, 2012 12:00 P.M.

With all the corruption at the United Nations, you might think that the United Nations Correspondents Association (UNCA) would have better things to do than pick a fight with a single reporter. But you would be wrong.

Matthew Lee is the only reporter for Inner City Press, a Bronx-based nonprofit group known mainly for investigations of financial institutions and advocacy for the poor. Lee has broken a number of stories about the U.N., but now he himself is the story. In fact, he could become the first journalist ever expelled from UNCA.

Last week, UNCA announced that it would investigate Lee for unethical and unprofessional behavior. Few reporters with knowledge of the situation wish to comment on the record, but journalists both inside and outside the UNCA say the situation is one in which personal animosity has overridden professional judgment.

Regarded as abrasive by some of his colleagues, Lee has had volatile arguments with other UNCA reporters, and has frequently complained about other journalists' failing to credit him for breaking news. He has also written stories accusing the UNCA president, Giampaolo Pioli, of a conflict of interest involving Sri Lanka. These personal disputes lie at the heart of the UNCA investigation.

UNCA is a self-governing body. Thus, whether Lee remains a member is entirely up to the organization. UNCA membership is not a prerequisite for obtaining U.N. press credentials, which are granted by the U.N. Media Accreditation and Liaison Unit (MALU) — so Lee's expulsion would not automatically deprive him of U.N. access. According to the Guidelines on Media Access at United Nations Headquarters:

The United Nations Department of Public Information as well as the Safety & Security Service reserve the right to deny or withdraw accreditation of journalists from media organizations whose activities run counter to the principles of the Charter of the United Nations or who abuse the privileges so extended or put the accreditation to improper use or act in a way not consistent with the principles of the Organization or established journalism ethics and standards.

A MALU spokesperson acknowledged that the U.N. has rescinded press credentials in the past, but she added that UNCA's investigation of Lee would not directly influence MALU.

Lee's grammar and style are often unusual, and he sometimes fails to observe journalistic niceties. Although these traits are not uncommon among small media outlets, some journalists have expressed concern that they — along with an unfavorable UNCA decision — could allow the U.N. to deny Lee's reapplication for press credentials on the basis that his actions are inconsistent with "established journalism ethics and standards." His current credentials expire in August.

It would not be first time that Lee has been targeted. Inner City Press was scrubbed from Google News in 2008, allegedly at the behest of the U.N. At the time, UNCA came to Lee's defense. But that was before his recent clashes with that organization and its members.

And Turtle Bay officialdom could be receptive to their new opinion of him. Lee is probably the U.N.

Department of Public Information's least-favorite journalist because he is persistent, is willing to ask uncomfortable questions, and has cultivated an impressive network of sources within the U.N. In short, he's a pain in their neck at every press briefing.

Lee is also unusual in that he focuses on the inner workings of the U.N. — stories that are off the radar of larger news outlets. For instance, Lee broke the story about the discovery of 40 pounds of cocaine in a diplomatic pouch in the U.N. mailroom. He reported that Ibrahim Gambari, a special representative for Darfur of the African Union and the U.N., had greeted Sudanese president Omar al-Bashir at a wedding even as Bashir stood indicted on charges of genocide, and he wrote of the opulent home Gambari built in Darfur at U.N. expense. He has exposed irregularities with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in North Korea, and his coverage of a UNDP-funded program of forced disarmament in Uganda led to that program's suspension.

Other reporters readily admit that Lee's reporting is valuable. "He may not always get it right, but Matthew covers the U.N. like no one else, often scooping much larger news organizations," the New York Post's Benny Avni says. "Matthew digs into how it works — and often into how it doesn't."

Claudia Rosett, journalist-in-residence at the Foundation for Defense of Democracies, notes: "Matthew Russell Lee has broken a series of important stories over the years — stories that without his efforts might have gone unnoticed." Off the record, other reporters shared similar views with me.

Inner City Press has been a member of UNCA for five years, and all that time Lee's U.N. press credentials have routinely been renewed. Thus, both UNCA and MALU have repeatedly affirmed Inner City Press's status as a legitimate member of the media. I spoke with UNCA journalists who expressed the view that, regardless of what UNCA decides, Lee should retain his press credentials.

The U.S. mission to the U.N. has a role to play in this imbroglio. It should not intervene in internal UNCA deliberations, but it absolutely should stand firm in protecting the principle of freedom of the press. Media coverage of the U.N. is too shallow as it is. It would suffer more if reporters like Matthew Lee were denied access. The U.S. government should make clear to the U.N. that it supports Lee and other controversial journalists trying to retain their press credentials.

This is somewhat surprising development that the Whistle blower item was omitted given that Mr Kollmer attended the BBG meeting and was asked by me to read back the amendment so the whole Board would know what they were voting on.

I am sure it was not intentional by Mr. Kollmer and I was pleased to bring this to his attention and have it corrected. It reminds us all of the need to be careful, cautious and inclusive.

However, what this correction process indicates clearly is that the unseemly haste and secrecy in which this was considered without going to governance committee, changing texts up to the last few hours before the meeting, not being listed on the first BBG agenda sent out, absence of any serious discussion among impacted parties prior to the meeting has resulted in errors occurring. I suspect we will find more issues as time goes along which will require remedies. While I will participate in solving these problems, I find it all so unnecessary had settled procedures been followed and we could be devoting our time to other matters.

Hope all have a good weekend coming up.

Victor Ashe

Dear Governors:

Having reviewed the video of last week's Board meeting, I wish to confirm Governor Ashe's observation that reference to the Whistleblower Protection Act was erroneously left out. We will, therefore, replace the last paragraph of the version of the policy which I sent out to you last night with the text below (changes underlined) and republish the corrected resolution on the BBG website.

Again, please accept my apologies for this oversight.

Thanks, PKD

This policy does not affect (i) the Agency's requirements to comply with the Government in the Sunshine Act and shall be implemented in a manner consistent with its provisions; or (ii) the rights of any individual under the Whistleblower Protection Act of 1989.

In reading this so called protocol, I do not see the amendment relating to Whistleblowers included here. This was the amendment which states this protocol would not compromise or diminish the federal Whistleblower Act. That was the first amendment adopted in June 7 in Prague. Can Mr Kollmer send the document as amended twice to everyone on this list? We should be sent the entire policy out not just what is stated in part.

As I stated at the meeting, I will be guided by my conscience in complying with this. I feel the protocol was hurriedly and poorly drafted with many items not clear.

I see where Ms Weil is copied on this but I understand she is away on a 3 to 4 week vacation and not due back until July 7. Can someone make sure she sees this?

Dear Governors:

As you know, at its last meeting, the Board adopted a Policy Regarding Non-disclosure of Deliberative Information. The text of the policy, which is set forth below, was adopted unanimously by the Board.

The policy states, in part, that "information pertaining to . . . legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board's further review" constitutes "deliberative information" which Board members have agreed they are obligated not to disclose, in accordance with the terms of the policy.

Please note that Governor Lynton, in his capacity as Presiding Governor, has clarified that materials related to the International Broadcasting Innovation Act (IBIA), the legislative initiative which the Board voted to pursue in January 2012, are subject to the non-disclosure policy. A copy of the Governor Lynton's email is set forth below.

Thanks. PKD

Paul Kollmer-Dorsey
Deputy General Counsel and Board Secretary

POLICY REGARDING NON-DISCLOSURE OF DELIBERATIVE INFORMATION

For the purposes of this policy:

"The Board" refers to the Members of the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

"Deliberative information" means any non-public information, either tangible records or otherwise, exchanged between two or more Board members, or between Agency staff members and Board members. Deliberative information is information pertaining to (1) budgetary matters that are determined to be pre-decisional under Office of Management and Budget guidelines; (2) legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board's further review; and (3) such other matters as the plenary Board may determine, based on the recommendation of the Governance Committee. Purely factual information that is otherwise publicly available or an individual Board member's own opinion that does not reflect the Board's deliberative processes is not deliberative information.

Each member of the Board has a duty to keep deliberative information privileged and confidential. More specifically, each member of the Board is obligated not to disclose:

1. The substance of deliberative information or the status of discussions about it;
2. Positions of other Board members regarding deliberative information or their individual comments about it;
3. Documents prepared to provide the Board with deliberative information or to memorialize any aspect of such deliberative information, or any subsection of documents that contain such deliberative information; or
4. The identity of Board members or staff members who provide deliberative information to and/or prepare deliberative information for the Board.

The obligation not to disclose deliberative information continues even after a final decision is publicly announced, and such information remains protected until authorized for release by the Board. Deliberative information should only be released after consultation with the Agency's Office of General Counsel regarding the implications of waiving the deliberative process privilege for release and upon an official Board resolution providing the authority to do so.

Disclosure of deliberative information is a serious matter and constitutes both mismanagement and misconduct. The unauthorized disclosure of official non-public information is prohibited by 5 CFR 2635.703, and employees engaging in the unauthorized disclosure of deliberative information may be subject to punishment or discipline.

This policy does not affect the Agency's requirements to comply with the Government in the Sunshine Act and shall be implemented in a manner consistent with its provisions.

I am sorry you feel that way. We certainly handled it well in Tennessee which has strong open meetings and open records laws. We made progress and got the public's business done. I think this is an over reaction on your part to my views but again, I respect your point of view while disagreeing with it.

Dear Mr Kollmer and Ms Weil

I am writing to ask to be placed on the mailing list for all items sent to the various members of the Innovation Act on Broadcasting Committee which last met May 31 in DC.

As you know I am a BBG Board member but also delegated along with Governor Lynton to review the duties of the proposed CEO and new Board created by such an Act and I would be better informed and able to carry out my assignment if I am fully informed by receiving this information. There might also be times where I could attend the periodic meetings as well.

Re: POLITICO Breaking News

Dick,

BBG seldom deals with national security and you know it. That is a real stretch based on your wish. The email you sent relates to a clear political battle at the presidential level which does not involve BBG unless you insist on injecting it into our deliberations.

The manner in which this was considered on June 7 by deliberating bypassing the governance committee and insuring that I received as little notice as possible was a text book study on how to reduce adequate consideration of the issue. Fairness would have dictated that adequate notice be given and committee hear the matter so all 7 Governors would have had equal consideration.

I assume the governance committee did not meet as I am a member of it and certain BBG members wanted to make sure I did not see the proposal a few days out and would have zero time to respond. In fact mention of consideration of it was omitted from the first agenda sent out.

As it was the Board adopted two obvious amendments to correct the hasty and ill considered manner in which it was drafted. You would be mistaken to take my vote for the amended resolution as an endorsement of it. The whole process was unfortunate in my view and did not reflect well on best practices to adopt policy.

I will continue to speak out on issues which I feel merit discussion.

Have a wonderful weekend.

Victor Ashe

POLITICO Breaking News

Responding to criticism over a series of national security leaks, President Barack Obama told reporters at the White House Friday he has "zero tolerance for these kinds of leaks and speculation."

"We have mechanisms in place where if we can root out people who've leaked, they will suffer consequences," Obama said.

He rejected the accusation from some Republican members of Congress that the leaks were being done in service of his re-election campaign.

"The notion that my White House would purposefully release classified national security information is offensive. It's wrong," Obama said.

Governors --

We're about to launch a project involving public presentation of new audience research results from several countries.

Spearheaded by the BBG's Strategy and Development Office, together with BBG Public Affairs and the team at Gallup, this roll-out of audience data and information about the media environment is envisioned as a series starting in June. Research from Iran would be first in the line-up, on June 12, to be followed by other key countries monthly through September. The location will be at Gallup headquarters.

We expect only modest media interest, but stakeholders such as think tanks, NGOs and academia would likely take note. Through this proposed series, we expect to broaden awareness and understanding of our work in priority global media markets. News releases and any coverage by media would add up to a winning narrative about our programs' reach and impact that we could re-package in the fall for other purposes, including briefings on the Hill.

The Communications and Outreach Committee has been briefed on this proposed series. The public notice for the first event will be issued shortly.

The legislation was introduced in the House last Friday, deemed in order by the Rules Committee yesterday, and approved on the House floor today. The Communications Committee has been kept apprised each step of the way.

Governors,

We have news about the measure introduced last Friday by Rep. Mac Thornberry to ease the legal restrictions on domestic dissemination of materials produced with public diplomacy funding – which, taken together, are commonly known as Smith-Mundt.

Mr. Thornberry's Smith-Mundt measure has just been adopted as an amendment to this year's National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA). The NDAA is one of the authorization bills that almost always passes both houses of Congress and becomes law. A member of the Armed Services Committee, Mr. Thornberry offered his legislation as an amendment to that bill.

The House is scheduled to vote on the NDAA later today.

For the past year and a half, in keeping with the consistent directives of the Board in support of legislation easing Smith-Mundt restrictions, the IBB/BBG executive team has been working on this measure with Mr. Thornberry's staff and colleagues at State. This work intensified during the last two months as the Congressman began finalizing the bill and seeking support from fellow House members. We are pleased to bring you this update.

As mentioned in previous e-mails to you, Tish and I have been talking about how the Media Highlights and Addenda are done; these discussions include internal process and personnel matters -- who handles what, and how -- that don't bear detailing here. To answer your questions about the differences between these two communications tools and who receives them:

The Media Highlights are available through the BBG website for public subscription and are sent to journalists, analysts, academics and other stakeholders with their permission.

The Highlights include coverage of U.S. international media as operated by and through the BBG; select press pickups of news coverage by VOA, OCB and the grantees; and other items of interest. This roundup is intended to showcase the effectiveness and positive impact of U.S. international media. In recent months, we've integrated more foreign press coverage as translations have become available.

These items are posted daily on BBG.gov as well as via links through an internal employee blog that's accessible to all in the agency. Lately the BBG Public Affairs team has considered adding the Highlights to the in-house announcements for all agency employees; this could serve as a means of demonstrating impact and reinforcing good work. When other media cite one of our services as a source, or make reference to what we do, it proves that our reach goes beyond our own readers, listeners and viewers. However, the in-house announcements can be voluminous and more frequent at some times than others, and that's a disincentive to reading them amid the many competing demands on the time of our colleagues. But we plan to explore and to test possible alternative approaches.

The Addenda go to an internal audience of senior managers and those who are the subject of any particular coverage, including Governors. They are used variously to provide background, provoke discussion and, as needed, to flag an item that may require a response, though we have done the latter less in recent weeks since an item from the Addenda was leaked to a blog and distorted to create an unfortunate and patently untrue story.

Over the years, the press clips/Media Highlights have evolved from manually intensive labor that involved cutting and pasting and photocopying to a form that takes full advantage of current electronic media's features. After the Media Highlights migrated from the page to electronic format, available for subscription by anyone who chooses to do so, they began to reach a much broader audience. The agency and its grantees have the opportunity through this means to put our best foot forward.

Best regards,

Lynne

Dear Mr. Lobo,

Before responding to follow up on this, I am writing to ask re-consideration of your statement that this response is not intended for distribution as I have several members of Congress and key staff who are interested in knowing the answers to the questions I posed to you. Why would you suggest to me not to share these replies to the members of Congress who would vote on the proposed CEO legislation? What benefit does that secure? Who is on the bbggroup? is it Governors only? You have included one Board member's staff at State on this as well as two of your staffers? Lynne Weil and Jeff Trimble also?

It seems you are setting a wider list of those entitled to this for yourself but then trying to restrict what I can share with relevant stakeholders? Are you saying there is simply no one I could share and discuss this with and honor your statement of non distribution? It is a little clearer to me now why Congressman Rohrabacher states only yesterday on May 15 that BBG is opaque in its decision making. That is not a criticism that BBG should be proud of. Rather we should work to be more open.

While I appreciate your honesty in saying you made the decision to omit entity heads and VOA/OCB heads from the distribution list of the prior memo, I think it was an unfortunate decision. It creates division and stove piping within BBG. You are not a BBG Board member. It seems to me that the Board should make that decision or at least the presiding Governor in the absence of the full Board not you as IBB Director. You work for the Board. The Board and each member does not work for you (and I do not intend any personal criticism of you here but simply stating the obvious). I trust you will decide that I am free to share this with at least congressional members and their staff if not others. I await a response with reasons.

While you are correct that there was an unanimous vote on the CEO matter in January, I think you would also agree that it is no longer unanimous view due my opposition at the present time pending further review and information. Your correspondence should reflect (as does the Lynton-Mulhaupt memo) that one Governor does oppose the legislation being discussed and promoted at this time. It would be misleading to suggest that the unanimous vote in January today reflects the total Board view as it does not.

I trust you have a productive trip to Germany.

Governors,

The IBB/BBG executive staff appreciates the guidance and views that you have provided during the last 11 days on the potential new opportunity to help you create an empowered CEO position, one of the key reform goals among those that the Board had frequently discussed since it was seated in July 2010, and ratified with a unanimous vote in January.

As Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt indicated Monday (see below), a number of legitimate questions and issues have been raised about how the CEO position will be implemented and how it will work in practice, and the Board will have ample opportunities to discuss and decide these issues in due course.

Several such questions arose in e-mails sent by Governor Ashe last week. On Friday late afternoon we were optimistic about being able to get to all of them on Monday. But upon review, it emerged that some of the questions needed to be answered by Board members themselves, some had been addressed in our e-mails to the Board, and some seemed to be apparent from the legislative proposal and section-by-section analysis that were sent to the Board. It took some time to sort all of that out, which we were not able to do on Monday, the executive team's busiest day of the week due to the strategy, budgetary and planning meetings that are required to run this agency on a daily basis. Thank you for your patience.

Here, verbatim, are questions raised by Governor Ashe that were not addressed in any of the e-mails from Board members or from the IBB/BBG executive team, and the replies to those questions:

Q. Should this proposal be enacted what happens to Dick Lobo? Does he simply depart the Cohen Bldg? What is the effective date planned for the abolition of his position? Is it planned that Mr. Lobo simply moves over to become this new CEO? How long would he be in such a position? The proposed legislation converts the role of the IBB Director into that of a CEO, to be fired or hired by the Board. It goes into effect 30 days after the legislation is signed into law; from then on, the Board would be empowered to make its own choices. On more than one occasion during the Board's discussions about the creation of a CEO, and particularly since the Board unanimously ratified this as a key priority for agency reform in January, I have indicated that I do not wish to be considered a candidate for the CEO position.

Q. What selection process is planned for the BBG Board to implement for choosing the new CEO? What are the listed qualifications for this person? Who will lead this effort on the Board? The legislative proposal empowers the Board to decide these matters in due course.

Q. Will not this CEO have less accountability to Congress than at present? The position of CEO does not currently exist. When it does, the person in this position will have to answer to Congress to the same extent that the IBB Director currently does.

Q. What happens to the unions now representing public employees? The union for RFA? Nothing. No change in either case.

Q. Does this not make the BBG Board somewhat impotent by placing such huge power in the hands of a CEO and Board members in the minority can have information withheld from them by the CEO saying the full Board has to direct it. . not one or two members? The proposed legislation frees the Board to determine which of its authorities it wishes to delegate to the CEO.

Q. Which non delegable powers are transferred to this CEO? The legislation as proposed frees the Board to delegate its authorities to the CEO as it sees fit.

Q. I do not see any standards for the occupant of the CEO position to meet as a condition of employment? No requirement for annual evaluation or statement on who and how it would be done. These are matters that are left to the Board to decide; the legislative proposal is silent on them so that the Board can set the standards and conditions of employment.

Q. Who made the decision to exclude the VOA/OCB heads as well as the three grantees heads from this e mail chain? Why will no one own up to that decision? Why are rank and file employees not asked their views? Is OMB getting a copy of this? I made the decision based on OMB guidance dating to late 2009. Formal approval of the creation of an empowered CEO position in January came after extensive consultations and discussions with a number of relevant stakeholders, both inside and outside the agency, including Members of Congress and congressional staff – and, it should be noted on several occasions with the executives heading VOA, OCB, and the grantees. The President's 2009 directive on transparency and open government, together with the Office of Management and Budget memorandum on its implementation, make clear that pre-decisional matters that are either before OMB or about to come before OMB, and in particular those “relating to legislative, budgetary, administrative, and regulatory materials,” should remain confidential – and that the directive should not be “construed to suggest that the presumption of openness precludes the legitimate protection of information whose release would... breach confidentiality, or damage other genuinely compelling interests.” The White House continues to support the proposed agency reforms that the Board approved unanimously in January; OMB’s review of the legislative proposal to create a CEO should help the Board identify any issues.

In the meantime, I and members of the Board alike remain very concerned that Governor Ashe violated the confidentiality of discussions among Governors by e-mailing to the entity heads the May 8 note about this legislative opportunity that was addressed to the Board and topped with a message asking all recipients not to share it further. That this message and others to the Board were subsequently leaked so that they would appear online is a further violation.

As with the previous messages on this topic, this e-mail is being sent to you only and is not intended for further distribution.

From: Michael Lynton and Dennis Mulhaupt

You have asked for the Board's comments and guidance on offering the proposed CEO draft legislation to the House Foreign Affairs Committee for review and possible inclusion in a bill now under consideration. We are responding to this request in our roles as the Presiding Governor and Chair of the Governance Committee.

Based on the facts as outlined below and a number of conversations with Board colleagues, and absent specific contrary instructions expressed by a majority of Governors (as outlined below), please move forward with this initiative.

The entire Board has more than once approved the concept of an empowered CEO, to be achieved through legislation as appropriate. We discussed the need for and the means to create a BBG CEO position for almost a year and a half before unanimously and formally approving it in January 2012. In fact, it was one of the first issues and priorities that we discussed after being seated in July 2010. Formal approval this January came after extensive consultations and discussions with a number of relevant stakeholders, both inside and outside the agency, including Members of Congress and Congressional staff and on several occasions with the executives heading VOA, OCB, and the grantees. We also note that most of these five executives have repeatedly expressed support for this initiative. To our knowledge, not one of them has spoken out in opposition to it (unlike the case of the potential grantee merger, where one of three people heading the grantees has expressed opposition to that separate plan).

It is therefore clear that the Board has already approved the creation of a CEO. When your team identified a potential opportunity to implement this decision through draft legislation being prepared in Congress now, quite appropriately the Board was informed of this opportunity, starting with the Communications Committee 10 days ago. When asked, a majority of Board members then indicated they were comfortable with this specific approach, and they directed staff to proceed. Only one Governor expressed a negative opinion on proceeding and has raised questions and concerns; you have affirmed that you will provide answers and information to address them. In the interval, the legislative proposal was provided to the Board several days ago. A number of legitimate questions and issues have been raised about how the CEO position will be implemented and how it will work in practice, some of them by Governor Ashe. The Board will discuss and decide these issues in due course. Again, it is clear that a majority favors moving ahead without delay on the basic issue of creating the position, whether through legislation or otherwise. If individual Governors have a contrary view, please let us and the entire Board know as soon as possible. If a majority expresses a definitive contrary view at this time, the entire Board will revisit this matter. Of course, Congress will consider this provision carefully and it will be fully vetted through the legislative process.

We wish to thank you and your senior colleagues, particularly Lynne Weil, for your excellent and useful work in bringing this important opportunity to the Board's attention.

Subject: Re: Message from Lynne Weil Regarding Rohrabacher Letter

Dear Colleagues,

Having read the May 15 letter from Congressman Rohrabacher carefully, I commend it to all to read equally carefully as it is direct and pointed. It should be a serious cause for concern on a broader scale than just the issue at hand which is broadcasting in Cantonese, Mandarin and Tibetan. It concludes by saying "BBG has shown itself to be opaque in its decision making and incredibly tone deaf to Congressional priorities." Those words go to the actual conduct of BBG business and its congressional relations.

This letter comes after the meeting a few weeks ago which our esteemed colleague, Enders Wimbush, had with the Congressman which Gov Wimbush later described as positive to our Board. Obviously, something has happened. I do not feel that simply sending a return letter to the Congressman saying what Ms. Weil said in her cover letter to us is adequate. We as a Board need to discuss this and see where we can do better or run the risk of facing more troubled waters in our relations with key members of Congress. Even when members of Congress disagree, they should not feel our process is opaque or that we are tone deaf to their priorities. We need more than a letter going to the Congressman. We need some Governors actually visiting and letting him know that we "get it." and really mean it.

We need to be more transparent than we have been. I would urge that we open our committee meetings to the public along with the full Board meetings to the extent permitted by law. I would urge as I stated earlier that if the majority of the Board is pushing a CEO thru legislation that the reasons and efforts be posted on our web site starting with the Lynton-Mulhaupt memo to Dick Lobo. we should not be opaque. When Congress two or three years in a row adds almost the same language to legislation giving direction on Mandarin, Cantonese and Tibetan language broadcasts, staff should accept it and we as a Board must honor it.

I invite a discussion on this.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Subject: Message from Lynne Weil Regarding Rohrabacher Letter

Governors,

Rep. Rohrabacher sent the attached letter to the Chair and Ranking Member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for Foreign Operations indicating his concern about restructuring of VOA broadcasting in Mandarin, as well as other issues. His office copied the letter to us.

IBB/BBG and VOA executive staff are working together on a draft reply. It will address the implication that VOA contravened the FY '12 Appropriations report language by pursuing its new Mandarin television strategy, and will demonstrate why that implication is inaccurate. It will also speak to the Congressman's preference for a five-minute news update during repeat broadcast hours, given current budget realities, as well as his concern about VOA's expectation of a small reduction in the East Asian and Pacific Division in FY '13, on which no final decision has been made. And it will lay out how the Office of Performance Review stepped up its "spot checks" of several key language services, now on a biweekly basis, after Rep. Rohrabacher expressed doubts about quality control and program review; this matter arose just after Gov. Wimbush's meeting with the Congressman, and we are working to keep his staff apprised.

We'll ensure that all Governors see the final version.

What is the schedule to responding to the letter sent in April from (b) (6)? If my memory is correct, it is now 4 weeks old? We should make it a point to be more punctual in responding even if told there is no rush.

In this case, the letter reached the wire services and was publicized. The BBG response could receive similar coverage. Since it was addressed to the Board will it be signed by Gov. Lynton or who?

I am also waiting on a response to my inquiry to you and Tish King on Media Highlights and Addendums as well as the e mailing list.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Colleagues

I am responding to the joint memo sent to Dick Lobo by Governor Mulhaupt and Lynton. While I respect the difference of opinion which exists here, I also profoundly differ. There is an absence of discussion on the points I have raised. I feel the public process is enhanced when there is debate in a public setting on these issues. Tax dollars are involved. The memo references that I would receive answers from Mr. Lobo on the questions I raised. His email to me and copied to the full Board said I would receive them Monday (today). Unless they arrive in the next two and half hours, I have not received them on Monday. I do not know when or if I will receive them. All Governors should have responses to their questions. I look forward to the Lobo response.

Since the Lynton-Mulhaupt memo refers to the legislative process as being one in which this proposal will be fully vetted, I assume this is an assertion that the legislative process should work its way and hear from all interested citizens on all sides of this issue. I believe the legislative process should include public hearings on this which, in my view, did not happen in an adequate way on our Board. I do not feel there should be a rush to judgment.

I trust that prior e mails on this subject including the Lynton-Mulhaupt e mail should be posted on the BBG web site and it should be public that BBG is pursuing this. This is no longer pre-decisional given this memo. The decision has been now been made by memo and without a Board meeting/discussion. It seems to me that this is now in the public arena and the discussion on the topic should be fully public even if it is not in a Board setting. I welcome the thoughts of others.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

CC: BBG Governors

From: Michael Lynton and Dennis Mulhaupt

You have asked for the Board's comments and guidance on offering the proposed CEO draft legislation to the House Foreign Affairs Committee for review and possible inclusion in a bill now under consideration. We are responding to this request in our roles as the Presiding Governor and Chair of the Governance Committee.

Based on the facts as outlined below and a number of conversations with Board colleagues, and absent specific contrary instructions expressed by a majority of Governors (as outlined below), please move forward with this initiative.

The entire Board has more than once approved the concept of an empowered CEO, to be achieved through legislation as appropriate. We discussed the need for and the means to create a BBG CEO position for almost a year and a half before unanimously and formally approving it in January 2012. In fact, it was one of the first issues and priorities that we discussed after being seated in July 2010. Formal approval this January came after extensive consultations and discussions with a number of relevant stakeholders, both inside and outside the agency, including Members of Congress and Congressional staff and on several occasions with the executives heading VOA, OCB, and the grantees. We also note that most of these five executives have repeatedly expressed support for this initiative. To our knowledge, not one of them has spoken out in opposition to it (unlike the case of the potential grantee merger, where one of three people heading the grantees has expressed opposition to that separate plan).

It is therefore clear that the Board has already approved the creation of a CEO. When your team identified a potential opportunity to implement this decision through draft legislation being prepared in Congress now, quite appropriately the Board was informed of this opportunity, starting with the Communications Committee 10 days ago. When asked, a majority of Board members then indicated they were comfortable with this specific approach, and they directed staff to proceed. Only one Governor expressed a negative opinion on proceeding and has raised questions and concerns; you have affirmed that you will provide answers and information to address them. In the interval, the legislative proposal was provided to the Board several days ago. A number of legitimate questions and issues have been raised about how the CEO position will be implemented and how it will work in practice, some of them by Governor Ashe. The Board will discuss and decide these issues in due course. Again, it is clear that a majority favors moving ahead without delay on the basic issue of creating the position, whether through legislation or otherwise. If individual Governors have a contrary view, please let us and the entire Board know as soon as possible. If a majority expresses a definitive contrary view at this time, the entire Board will revisit this matter. Of course, Congress will consider this provision carefully and it will be fully vetted through the legislative process.

We wish to thank you and your senior colleagues, particularly Lynne Weil, for your excellent and useful work in bringing this important opportunity to the Board's attention.

Dear Mr. Lobo,

Having comments and guidance from the Board without a Board meeting and discussion back and forth is fundamentally wrong and contrary to a common sense approach to restructuring. Basically, the Board is being led into an approach which can only breed suspicion and opposition because starting with you and other staff, we have been consigned to secrecy under the guise of confidentiality and pre-decisional discussion without the Board itself voting to do this. I am sad and disappointed that people cannot see the foolishness of this approach.

Now you are asking other Governors to make comments so I will not be the only one to comment. Perhaps over the weekend, my colleagues will respond in the depth that I have responded as opposed to "I am for it" or "It has my support." It merits serious discussion but at this point is not getting it.

Early in its tenure, the current Board identified as a key shortcoming in the agency's structure the lack of an empowered chief executive. For many months thereafter, the Board considered the means by which to address this shortcoming. At its January 2012 meeting, the Board voted to pursue legislation to create a CEO of United States international broadcasting in the context of a proposed International Broadcasting Innovation Act.

As explained to you over the past few days, we've identified an opportunity to implement this front-end goal of the IBIA in the current Congress, rather than the 113th as originally envisioned: adding a provision to a foreign affairs authorization bill now being prepared in the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Conversations with key HFAC majority staff indicate that this initial window of opportunity is open only for a brief time. Opportunities to refine the proposed provision will arise throughout the legislative process.

We appreciate the guidance that you have given since Tuesday afternoon, as well as earlier feedback from the Communications Committee, and we have accordingly redrafted the proposed provision creating the position of a CEO. Most importantly, this revised draft no longer includes language regarding the relationship between the CEO and the grantees, to be settled later upon further consideration by the Board. Please note that this proposed provision enables the Board to decide the CEO's responsibilities, authorities and compensation, as well as to hire or fire the incumbent, who would answer directly to the Board.

We now seek your further comments before sending this proposal to the Hill.

As currently drafted, the legislation:

- Authorizes the Board to hire, fire, and fix the compensation of a CEO answering directly to the Board.
- Authorizes the Board to delegate certain of its authorities to the CEO, which the CEO would exercise subject to the supervision of the Board.
- Converts the IBB Director position into the CEO position, preserving the journalistic firewall by eliminating the requirement that the position be Presentially-appointed and Senate-confirmed.
- Clarifies that the VOA and OCB Directors report to the CEO.

The provision and a section-by-section analysis are attached.

Dear Colleagues,

Last night late I responded to the process part of this e mail chain. Now I wish to respond to the content part itself and point out that much of the information as a Board member which I have requested from Lynne Weil and Dick Lobo has not been provided to me. Furthermore, legal and procedural questions I raised in my e mail two days ago have not been answered. This process ignores President Obama's executive order of 2009 on transparency and openness in government. Why are we doing this? Ultimately what is going on now will become public thru FOIA's or congressional inquiry. All of us will be embarrassed by this secretive process which is so unnecessary and counterproductive.

Failure of Lynne Weil (at whose direction I do not know but assume it is Mr. Lobo) to even say who she is talking to on the Hill by name and why the minority on the same committee has not been contacted since we are a bipartisan Board is most strange. Failure to state precisely who made the decision on staff (or from a Board member if that happened) to classify these proposals as confidential is also a mistake? How did this come about?

1-Should this proposal be enacted what happens to Dick Lobo? Does he simply depart the Cohen Bldg? What is the effective date planned for the abolition of his position? Is it planned that Mr. Lobo simply moves over to become this new CEO? How long would he be in such a position?

2-What selection process is planned for the BBG Board to implement for choosing the new CEO? What are the listed qualifications for this person? Who will lead this effort on this Board?

3-Will not this CEO have less accountability to Congress than at present?

4-What happens to the unions now representing public employees? The union for RFA?

5-Does this not make the BBG Board somewhat impotent by placing such huge power in the hands of the CEO and Board members in the minority can have information withheld from them by the CEO saying the full Board has to direct it..not one or two members?

6-Which non delegable powers are transferred to this CEO? When a vacancy occurs in the office of CEO, who fills the position and how is it done on an interim basis? We need to be told precisely which authorities are being delegated?

7- I do not see any standards for the occupant of the CEO position to meet as a condition of employment? No requirement for annual evaluation or statement on who and how it would be done.

8-Why is the Board not meeting to discuss these questions? Simply because it is inconvenient?

These are serious times and serious issues. We are in the midst of a presidential election. Decisions like this should await the outcome of the election.

I hope to hear an active and robust discussion by Governors and staff on these proposals...not just a "Yes, I agree" or "NO I do not agree."

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

The last time I answered an e mail from Lynne Weil (2 days ago) which was critical of the process I got an e mail back from Dick Lobo stating she was acting as his direction so perhaps I should address this e mail back to Dick Lobo as well as Lynne Weil.

First, let the record reflect my views that this whole discussion should be out in the public and at an open BBG Board meeting...not here online where we are told by a non Board member that this is predecisional and not for distribution. This inhibits my ability (and all other Governors) to reach out to friends, attorneys and others who are qualified and knowledgeable in the international media field as well as Senators and Members of the House whose views I respect. Who made this decision? It certainly was not done by a Board vote. Am I precluded from talking to congressional staffers about this? Who is making decisions which impacts my right to discuss this without consulting with me first?

Second, who made the decision to exclude the VOA/OCB heads as well as the three grantees heads from this e mail chain? Why will no one own up to that decision? Why are rank and file employees not asked their views? Is OMB getting a copy of this? I see that Paul Kollmer is now added when he was not on the first round of e mails last Tuesday?

Third, I find it contrary to the spirit if not the letter of the President's 2009 executive order on transparency that this is hidden and we are being asked to be party to a major congressional action by stealth since this is window of opportunity is only open a brief time according to this e mail. Who said that? Who is Lynne Weil dealing with at House Foreign Affairs Committee (majority or minority or both) or is it a Board member or someone else doing the discussions? This process is opaque and under the radar screen. Frankly Congress should hold hearings on a proposal this significant. BBG should be posting this proposal on our web site like the consolidation proposal has been posted and seek public comment? Why is there this rush to judgment without any public seeking of the public's views?

I suppose we will not have a BBG discussion on this..certainly not at a public meeting as most BBG meetings are. I formally request that when this proposal goes to the Hill that you indicate it is not unanimous and that I oppose the process by which this has been created.

I will send additional comments on the content after sleeping over this tonight.

It would be more constructive if you could share your thinking on the CEO position and this stealth approach to legislation as opposed to saying "thank you." Enders, you have a history with international broadcasting. While we may differ, your views should be aired and discussed. We should be able to respond.

Dick Lobo has frankly missed the point on much of this. There is no assault on Lynne Weil but there has been disagreement with what she has been directed to do. She has been around a long time and knows the process.

This assault on Lynne is both needless and baseless. The staff clears major initiatives involving the Board through me, and in this case is not asking Governors to undertake a notational vote by some other name. Lynne and her team, together with colleagues in the General Counsel's office and IBB/BBC top management, are trying to facilitate implementation of a key decision that the Board made in January 2012: to pursue legislation to create a CEO of United States international broadcasting.

At the end of this email are the relevant portions of the Record of Decisions and the adopted Minutes from the January meeting. In two distinct decisions the Board voted both to move ahead on grantee consolidation and to pursue legislation to restructure U.S. International Broadcasting, including through the creation of a CEO.

Spotting a good opportunity to implement this Board decision in the coming months -- rather than a year or more from now as anticipated given the realities of congressional action this year -- Lynne was simply trying to inform Governors of this new legislative vehicle and to develop a sense of whether they feel comfortable with hitching a ride. She was brought on three months ago in part because she has the experience and skills to identify and act on such opportunities.

E-mail responses that we have received so far suggest that most Board members feel the staff should move forward as suggested yesterday.

Lynne and the team she has assembled have been working flat out since Friday to offer you and your fellow Governors timely and complete information, the chance to weigh in at the well in time to take the next step, and then -- based on Board feedback -- to lay out clearly a legislative proposal for the Board to review.

I am concerned as well that you have yet again violated the confidentiality of discussions among Governors -- this time by e-mailing to the entity heads yesterday's note addressed to the Board, which was topped with a message asking all recipients that it not be shared further,

There has been no objection among the Governors -- or, for that matter, the staff -- to having a pre-decisional discussion about the legislative opportunity that has presented itself. We are happy to facilitate that discussion and will be in a position to show the Governors what the legislation would look like.

Dick Lobo

Director, International Broadcasting Bureau

Excerpts from January 2012 Record of Decisions and Meeting Minutes

From the Records of Decisions: "The position of Chief Executive Officer of United States International

Broadcasting (the "CEO"), reporting to the Board of Governors, shall be created. The CEO will be empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and non-federal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight."

From the approved Minutes of the January meeting: "The Board directed the IBB Director to work with IBB staff and outside experts, and with Governor McCue, in order to develop a draft IBIA for the Board's further consideration. The draft legislation should have the following attributes: An organization reflecting the optimal mix of federal and non-federal assets; a creation of a Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the "CEO"), reporting to the Board of Governors, empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and nonfederal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight."

Also from the January Board meeting Minutes:

"Governor McCue remarked that this proposal presents an exciting, historical time for U.S. international broadcasting, and that the drafting of legislation will be done in a partnership and team effort going forward. Governor Ashe expressed his support for the proposal and noted that, in his view, efforts should be made to achieve savings, regardless of the amount, and that it makes sense to consolidate in an effort to improve the quality of service and delivery of service to places where the governments censor or deny access to accurate and objective information. Governor Ashe said consolidation, if done properly, is a good step forward for the Agency in light of the new era, especially in communications and technology. Governor Ashe also said if the consolidation is not done properly, it would cause him to change his position and strongly oppose it. The devil is in the details. Governor Ashe said he reserved the right to change his views if the implementation is not well executed. Acting

Under Secretary Ann Stock commented that the Board had a very constructive, long, thoughtful, deliberative process and that the off-site briefing helped the Board come up with a plan to move forward.

The Board then voted to restructure of United States international broadcasting, including consolidating the three BBG-sponsored grantees and seeking legislation that would include establishing a Chief Executive Officer to manage the enterprise."

Dear Ms Weil,

The more I have thought about this series of e mails the more troubled I am about it because this is really a notational vote being carried out under another name by you as a staffer and not at the request of a Board member or IBB Director so the requirements of a notational vote do not have to be met. I refer to one member voting no and asking for a Board meeting to consider the matter as happened with RFE when Governor Meehan declined to vote Yes for some staff changes. We held a RFE Board meeting and had a discussion on it.

In Miami on April 20 we openly did not vote on consolidation of the three entities. The CEO position was mentioned in open session as it related to the entities and we voted to place that plan on the BBG web site and seek public comments which is now underway.

Yesterday, May 8 we are asked in an e mail from you to vote on you moving this forward to secure CEO legislation by the form of a straw poll online. The Board has not discussed this as a Board with all participating. We have not voted on it. Governor Lynton said there would not be a vote on consolidation on April 20. Now we are asked to move forward on a key component of the proposed US Innovation Act without discussion among Board members. This is not transparent. It is contrary to the spirit if not the letter of President Obama's executive order of 2009 on transparency. It is also a bad way to operate. Open discussion among Board members with all or most present produces a better product than short one sentence answers that say "I support it" without acknowledgment of the many issues surrounding such a move...some which I raised in the open session in Miami.

I feel this current process violates BBG bylaws on a notational vote which is what this straw poll really is. Is the BBG Board simply not going to discuss what the CEO position and selection process is all about in a Board setting?

I am perplexed that the entity heads and VOA/OCB heads have been omitted from this e mail chain when it directly impacts many of them. Again, not a good way to operate. Why are they left out?

I wonder why Paul Kollmer, deputy general counsel, was not included on the e mail chain given the policy matter that the Board is being asked to consider. I think the BBG Board should be told precisely what the White House and HFRC were told as referenced in earlier e mail by you, Ms. Weil.

I formally request the Board meet to discuss and vote on this and exercise my right as a Board member to request such when a notational vote fails to receive unanimous consent.

And a big thanks to all for so readily contributing views, especially to the Communications Committee members for your guidance in written and oral comments prior to the launch of this chain yesterday.

We've been reviewing the draft provision as all of these views have come in over the past few days. When the revisions are completed, we'll send it your way for further discussion -- at the start, by e-mail for your convenience (especially those currently not in DC, or even in this time zone) and to help the team here to capture all comments and keep our records straight. But of course, in addition to that, we can also work out a time for a phone call as some have indicated, and as your schedules allow.

Subject: Re: New opportunity to create a CEO position

Dear Colleagues,

This is a very short time frame to consider (received less than 2 hours ago) for something which in my view merits substantive Board discussion. We should not just exchange e mails saying we 'fully support' or 'oppose' but rather discuss in a Board setting (at least by phone) the pros and cons of this.

Why are the three entity heads not included on this e mail as well as Carlos Garcia and David Ensor? I urge they be added to the e mail chain and this discussion not occur without them.

While we have discussed the CEO matter conceptually, what Lynn describes here seems to go far beyond what we discussed previously in Board settings. I have previously voiced concerns about what the process is for picking a new CEO, term of office, salary, job qualifications as well as placing this unknown person in charge of the three non federal private corporate entities.

I personally feel the President should be able to appoint the BBG CEO and he/she should serve at the pleasure of the President with Senate confirmation. Presidential appointment and Senate confirmation gives the CEO status a Board appointment could not do.

I urge a Board meeting or conference call. Lynn, you state you want to be sure that the points you outline are consistent with a majority of the Board. I assume that means 5 Governors saying Yes. To date two have said Yes, I am saying No for now pending discussion.

I am also surprised that the House and Senate would consider moving something this significant without public hearings and input. I feel it is wrong to endorse this while at the same time we are now seeking public input on the BBG web site on consolidation. That is why BBG posted the consolidation report on our web site. Why are we seeking public input if at the same time BBG staff is moving to implement a major part of the consolidation before the public input comment period concludes? It means public input really does not matter when some of us feel public input really does matter.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Governors,

This confidential message is being sent to you only, with the knowledge of the White House; it is pre-decisional in nature and not intended for further distribution.

Please take the time today if you can to read and react to the info below, which concerns the establishment of a CEO for U.S. international broadcasting -- a key agency reform priority that the Board approved in January and deliberated for a year before that. This is a fast-moving opportunity to implement a front-end goal of the International Broadcasting Innovation Act in the current Congress, rather than the 113th as originally envisioned.

In recent days, we've been in touch with majority staff of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which is close to completing work on a draft foreign affairs authorization bill that could include a provision to create the empowered CEO position to be filled by a candidate chosen by the Board rather than a political appointee.

We're looking at a very narrow window of opportunity here. We have the next few days, to get a provision into the draft bill before it's shared with the minority, and then maybe a few days afterward for any adjustments before the next legislative step. Further adjustments are possible after that.

We're polishing some draft language for your consideration. The language would:

- Eliminate the requirement that the IBB Director be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.
- Convert the IBB Director position into that of Chief Executive Officer of USIB, reporting to the Board.
- Enable the Board to hire, fire, fix the compensation of, and evaluate the CEO.
- Provide the board the flexibility to delegate some of its own authorities to reflect and support a new CEO's operational role.
- Clarify that the VOA and OCB directors report to the CEO of USIB.

- Require each grantee to report to and follow the directives of the CEO as necessary to implement the Board's strategic plan. The CEO would not act as the direct leader of the grantees, but would have authority to make sure that the grants provided by the Board are expended in accordance with the Board's formal decisions.

This language will have to be minimalist for several reasons -- not least, to better the chances of passage into law. With strong bipartisan support, the House already passed a bill creating a CEO position in 2002 and again in a different form in 2004. But the current CEO provision won't be done until we're sure that the points above are consistent with your aims and those of a majority of the Board. So please let us know your views soon.

Fyi, committee staff on both sides of the aisle say they want to craft a foreign affairs package that is bipartisan and free of new budgetary implications, as this provision would be. The bill will also include several administrative provisions requested by the BBG, such as clarifying agency authority to hire non-citizens, which the agency has sought in the past.

Work continues on the IBIA independent of this new effort, should you decide to proceed with it.

We received confirmation from the White House today that there continues to be support for both the idea of a board-appointed CEO and for the kind of agency streamlining measures that you have been discussing.

Many thanks for your attention. We look forward to your comments.

I respect your right to disagree. That is part of our system. However, why were the entity heads and VOA/OCB heads excluded from this e mail chain? You have not answered that. This can only create distrust. Frankly, Dick, by what right do you have the authority to declare an e mail is not to be shared with the colleagues you work with? This new CEO would have impact over them and you do not want this discussed? Have you failed to read and implement the President's 2009 executive order on transparency?

If this was a directive from you then you should have sent it out not Lynn Weil.

Your e-mail does not respond to the basic question which I raised which is why this is not a notational vote? You do not respond to the basic and fundamental issue of whether the BBG Board should discuss this specific issue. I am formally requesting it and no one has responded.

Can I as a Board member inquire of Senators and members of Congress as to what they think about this? Saying this is only for the Board members and we cannot ask others including my own Senator his views is appalling?

Dick, BBG has the worst morale of all federal agencies. We need to see real progress turning this around. We need to see a more inclusive style and more transparent.

This CEO proposal being pushed by stealth is not the right way to achieve success.

This assault on Lynne is both needless and baseless. The staff clears major initiatives involving the Board through me, and in this case is not asking Governors to undertake a notational vote by some other name. Lynne and her team, together with colleagues in the General Counsel's office and IBB/BBG top management, are trying to facilitate implementation of a key decision that the Board made in January 2012: to pursue legislation to create a CEO of United States international broadcasting.

At the end of this email are the relevant portions of the Record of Decisions and the adopted Minutes from the January meeting. In two distinct decisions the Board voted both to move ahead on grantee consolidation and to pursue legislation to restructure U.S. International Broadcasting, including through the creation of a CEO.

Spotting a good opportunity to implement this Board decision in the coming months -- rather than a year or more from now as anticipated given the realities of congressional action this year -- Lynne was simply trying to inform Governors of this new legislative vehicle and to develop a sense of whether they feel comfortable with hitching a ride. She was brought on three months ago in part because she has the experience and skills to identify and act on such opportunities.

E-mail responses that we have received so far suggest that most Board members feel the staff should move forward as suggested yesterday.

Lynne and the team she has assembled have been working flat out since Friday to offer you and your fellow Governors timely and complete information, the chance to weigh in at the well in time to take the next step, and then -- based on Board feedback -- to lay out clearly a legislative proposal for the Board to review.

I am concerned as well that you have yet again violated the confidentiality of discussions among Governors -- this time by e-mailing to the entity heads yesterday's note addressed to the Board, which was topped with a message asking all recipients that it not be shared further,

There has been no objection among the Governors -- or, for that matter, the staff -- to having a pre-decisional discussion about the legislative opportunity that has presented itself. We are happy to facilitate that discussion and will be in a position to show the Governors what the legislation would look like.

Director, International Broadcasting Bureau

Excerpts from January 2012 Record of Decisions and Meeting Minutes

From the Records of Decisions: "The position of Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the "CEO"), reporting to the Board of Governors, shall be created. The CEO will be empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and non-federal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight.”

From the approved Minutes of the January meeting: “The Board directed the IBB Director to work with IBB staff and outside experts, and with Governor McCue, in order to develop a draft IBIA for the Board’s further consideration. The draft legislation should have the following attributes: An organization reflecting the optimal mix of federal and non-federal assets; a creation of a Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the “CEO”), reporting to the Board of Governors, empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and nonfederal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight.”

Also from the January Board meeting Minutes:

“Governor McCue remarked that this proposal presents an exciting, historical time for U.S. international broadcasting, and that the drafting of legislation will be done in a partnership and team effort going forward. Governor Ashe expressed his support for the proposal and noted that, in his view, efforts should be made to achieve savings, regardless of the amount, and that it makes sense to consolidate in an effort to improve the quality of service and delivery of service to places where the governments censor or deny access to accurate and objective information. Governor Ashe said consolidation, if done properly, is a good step forward for the Agency in light of the new era, especially in communications and technology. Governor Ashe also said if the consolidation is not done properly, it would cause him to change his position and strongly oppose it. The devil is in the details. Governor Ashe said he reserved the right to change his views if the implementation is not well executed. Acting Under Secretary Ann Stock commented that the Board had a very constructive, long, thoughtful, deliberative process and that the off-site briefing helped the Board come up with a plan to move forward.

The Board then voted to restructure of United States international broadcasting, including consolidating the three BBG-sponsored grantees and seeking legislation that would include establishing a Chief Executive Officer to manage the enterprise."

I refer to one member voting no and asking for a Board meeting to consider the matter as happened with RFE when Governor Meehan declined to vote Yes for some staff changes. We held a RFE Board meeting and had a discussion on it.

In Miami on April 20 we openly did not vote on consolidation of the three entities. The CEO position was mentioned in open session as it related to the entities and we voted to place that plan on the BBG web site and seek public comments which is now underway.

Yesterday, May 8 we are asked in an e mail from you to vote on you moving this forward to secure CEO legislation by the form of a straw poll online. The Board has not discussed this as a Board with all participating. We have not voted on it. Governor Lynton said there would not be a vote on consolidation on April 20. Now we are asked to move forward on a key component of the proposed US Innovation Act without discussion among Board members. This is not transparent. It is contrary to the spirit if not the letter of President Obama's executive order of 2009 on transparency. It is also a bad way to operate. Open discussion among Board members with all or most present produces a better product than short one sentence answers that say "I support it" without acknowledgment of the many issues surrounding such a move...some which I raised in the open session in Miami.

I feel this current process violates BBG bylaws on a notational vote which is what this straw poll really is. Is the BBG Board simply not going to discuss what the CEO position and selection process is all about in a Board setting?

I am perplexed that the entity heads and VOA/OCB heads have been omitted from this e mail chain when it directly impacts many of them. Again, not a good way to operate. Why are they left out?

I wonder why Paul Kollmer, deputy general counsel, was not included on the e mail chain given the policy matter that the Board is being asked to consider. I think the BBG Board should be told precisely what the White House and HFRC were told as referenced in earlier e mail by you, Ms. Weil.

I formally request the Board meet to discuss and vote on this and exercise my right as a Board member to request such when a notational vote fails to receive unanimous consent.

Governors,

This confidential message is being sent to you only, with the knowledge of the White House; it is pre-decisional in nature and not intended for further distribution.

Please take the time today if you can to read and react to the info below, which concerns the establishment of a CEO for U.S. international broadcasting -- a key agency reform priority that the Board approved in January and deliberated for a year before that. This is a fast-moving opportunity to implement a front-end goal of the International Broadcasting Innovation Act in the current Congress, rather than the 113th as originally envisioned.

In recent days, we've been in touch with majority staff of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which is close to completing work on a draft foreign affairs authorization bill that could include a provision to create the empowered CEO position to be filled by a candidate chosen by the Board rather than a political appointee.

We're looking at a very narrow window of opportunity here. We have the next few days, to get a provision into the draft bill before it's shared with the minority, and then maybe a few days afterward for any adjustments before the next legislative step. Further adjustments are possible after that.

We're polishing some draft language for your consideration. The language would:

- Eliminate the requirement that the IBB Director be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.
- Convert the IBB Director position into that of Chief Executive Officer of USIB, reporting to the Board.
- Enable the Board to hire, fire, fix the compensation of, and evaluate the CEO.
- Provide the board the flexibility to delegate some of its own authorities to reflect and support a new CEO's operational role.
- Clarify that the VOA and OCB directors report to the CEO of USIB.
- Require each grantee to report to and follow the directives of the CEO as necessary to implement the Board's strategic plan. The CEO would not act as the direct leader of the grantees, but would have authority to make sure that the grants provided by the Board are expended in accordance with the Board's formal decisions.

This language will have to be minimalist for several reasons -- not least, to better the chances of passage into law. With strong bipartisan support, the House already passed a bill creating a CEO position in 2002 and again in a different form in 2004. But the current CEO provision won't be done until we're sure that the points above are consistent with your aims and those of a majority of the Board. So please let us know your views soon.

Fyi, committee staff on both sides of the aisle say they want to craft a foreign affairs package that is bipartisan and free of new budgetary implications, as this provision would be. The bill will also include several administrative provisions requested by the BBG, such as clarifying agency authority to hire non-citizens, which the agency has sought in the past.

Work continues on the IBIA independent of this new effort, should you decide to proceed with it.

We received confirmation from the White House today that there continues to be support for both the idea of a board-appointed CEO and for the kind of agency streamlining measures that you have been discussing.

Many thanks for your attention. We look forward to your comments.

I am requesting that the June 7 or 8 BBG meeting contain a resolution from me directing that BBG implement the travel policies on conferences which Senator Coburn recently proposed to the US Senate and which the Senate adopted unanimously. (b) (6) has a copy of it.

I would like for the BBG to be proactive here and move doing the right thing now in an area where there haven't been problems in other agencies. The Coburn amendment would apply to all agencies.

If you have questions about this please advise. I believe I am giving this to you in adequate time to prepare it and submit it to the full Board.

Dear Colleagues,

Not sure if the recent e mail I sent on this subject went thru to all. So I am e mailing again. If this is a second copy for you I apologize. However, this is a very short time frame (I have only had Lynn's email for less than 3 hours) to consider such a significant proposal which merits substantive Board discussion.

This proposal which Lynn outlines goes beyond the CEO concept which we have previously discussed and I think the full BBG Board should discuss this prior to making a recommendation to Congress. I am troubled about extending this to the non federal private corporate entities which Congress created.

I am surprised and disappointed that the three entity heads are not included on this e mail nor are Carlos Garcia or David Ensor and all are impacted. I hope future e mails bring them into it.

I have previously voiced concerns about the CEO position and how he/she will be chosen, qualifications to be set, salary to be paid, term of office and authority. In my view they should be fleshed out prior to making a recommendation.

In Miami we decided to post the consolidation report on the BBG web site and seek public input. That is going on now. To then move to push this CEO concept into law before we have completed receiving public input calls into question our sincerity in asking for public input on this part of the consolidation report if we are going to act without it.

I also feel the CEO should be a Presidential appointee with Senate confirmation as that process gives the person who holds the position more status than a Board choice would give.

If Lynn is seeking to know where all stand, it seems almost immediately two Governors have said they 'fully support.' I vote No pending further discussion. It is important that the full Board talk this over and include the entity heads as well as VOA and OCB.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Dear Colleagues,

This is a very short time frame to consider (received less than 2 hours ago) for something which in my view merits substantive Board discussion. We should not just exchange e mails saying we 'fully support' or 'oppose' but rather discuss in a Board setting (at least by phone) the pros and cons of this.

Why are the three entity heads not included on this e mail as well as Carlos Garcia and David Ensor? I urge they be added to the e mail chain and this discussion not occur without them.

While we have discussed the CEO matter conceptually, what Lynn describes here seems to go far beyond what we discussed previously in Board settings. I have previously voiced concerns about what the process is for picking a new CEO, term of office, salary, job qualifications as well as placing this unknown person in charge of the three non federal private corporate entities.

I personally feel the President should be able to appoint the BBG CEO and he/she should serve at the pleasure of the President with Senate confirmation. Presidential appointment and Senate confirmation gives the CEO status a Board appointment could not do.

I urge a Board meeting or conference call. Lynn, you state you want to be sure that the points you outline are consistent with a majority of the Board. I assume that means 5 Governors saying Yes. To date two have said Yes, I am saying No for now pending discussion.

I am also surprised that the House and Senate would consider moving something this significant without public hearings and input. I feel it is wrong to endorse this while at the same time we are now seeking public input on the BBG web site on consolidation. That is why BBG posted the consolidation report on our web site. Why are we seeking public input if at the same time BBG staff if moving to implement a major part of the consolidation before the public input comment period concludes? It means public input really does not matter when some of us feel public input really does matter.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Very good answer...and all understandable. The idea of a photo is a good one. The other photos in the carousel are really quite good. It is easy to not notice that the current photo is not from the real Miami meeting and while no one else may notice it is still not the real meeting, updating it to include a real photo of the actual Miami meeting makes sense. I think the carousel idea is sound and ought to continue.

Thanks for checking it all out. I thought you could easily handle this and it looks like you have done so.

A good thought, Victor, thank you. Hadn't noticed that until you pointed it out. And I wanted to get the complete story from the BBG PA team before replying to you.

The photo was posted when advance notice of the April 20 meeting went on-line -- posting a photo alongside text is one way to draw attention to the latter.

BBG PA's long-standing practice has been to convert the web page with the advance notice for a given meeting into the location for storing relevant documents and archived video after that meeting. Without having easy access to a photo of the Board in action in Miami, the team simply added the documents and video, ands left the old photo up.

Through Tish, I've asked that the team create a screen grab from the video of the April 20 meeting and post that one instead. I'm also asking colleagues at OCB whether any stills were taken; if so, we'll use one of those. In either case, the swap normally would happen on Monday.

In the meantime, the "carousel" where this item appears at the top of the homepage includes several other, compelling pieces about the agency's work, each of which is on-screen briefly as it cycles through. Hopefully folks will pay attention to those.

Lynne and Tish

I am sorry to point out that the current photo on the BBG web site page of the April 20 Board meeting is not the April 20 Board meeting in Miami but another one as it shows Michael Lynton and Dana Perino at the meeting along with me. I wish, of course, that they could have attended the meeting.

While it does not state precisely that this photo was of that Miami meeting, the implication is that they were there. It seems to me that if BBG is going to run a photo of a Board meeting next to the language which points the way to hear and see the tape of a specific meeting (namely, the April 20 meeting) then the photo should be from the meeting being promoted and not a different one as two of the three people in the photo were not at the meeting and did not appear on the tape/video.

I know this was not intentional but in the interest of truth in advertising either there should be a photo from the actual meeting or a disclaimer that the photo is from a different meeting than April 20. Just a thought.

Thanks for your call today and your explanation of what is going on which like many things provides new light to the point that there is some grey here.

You indicated that Maryjean said there had been congressional oversight approval but it was oral. If correct, you should get the approval in writing as I assume the request was in writing. This whole issue is very volatile and when it involves Congress, oral approvals are just that and a written approval is much stronger. My personal advice would always be to rely on a written approval for a change in this area of activity.

Thanks for your prompt and frank response.

In this case, the rumor has been pronounced false by you. I am glad it is false and it has been resolved within hours. The Cohen Bldg is often the source of rumors just as it was on the content of the private meeting you convened in Miami on April 19 to discuss a topic we were not to discuss outside that room and I heard about it 4 hours later at the Doral. I shared this discovery with you and others the next day.

Lynne and Tish

I am sorry to point out that the current photo on the BBG web site page of the April 20 Board meeting is not the April 20 Board meeting in Miami but another one as it shows Michael Lynton and Dana Perino at the meeting along with me. I wish, of course, that they could have attended the meeting.

While it does not state precisely that this photo was of that Miami meeting, the implication is that they were there. It seems to me that if BBG is going to run a photo of a Board meeting next to the language which points the way to hear and see the tape of a specific meeting (namely, the April 20 meeting) then the photo should be from the meeting being promoted and not a different one as two of the three people in the photo were not at the meeting and did not appear on the tape/video.

I know this was not intentional but in the interest of truth in advertising either there should be a photo from the actual meeting or a disclaimer that the photo is from a different meeting than April 20. Just a thought.

Dear Governors,

As we're into planning for the June Board meeting at RFE/RL headquarters in Prague, kindly let us know at your earliest convenience whether we should plan for any corporate meetings of the grantees.

Currently, a meeting of the RFE/RL Board of Directors is tentatively scheduled for June 8 (mid-morning in Prague).

Should there be other corporate meetings, staff will schedule these meetings in the afternoon in Prague so that participants from Washington can participate by video conference at RFE/RL's Washington office (morning hours in DC).

Thank you.

Many thanks to staff both on site and in Washington for making it go. Dick, your remarks were well researched and your comments on your Cuban heritage well taken. Andre, your comments on listening to short wave in Communist Portugal (for the few years that occurred) were well taken and you presided well.

Good television coverage from local area too.

Governors, colleagues – as Dick wrote last evening, the GAO has begun a study in cooperation with this agency that looks at the proposals and strategy for streamlining U.S. international media.

In its notification to the agency of the engagement (attached here, and pls not for further distribution), the GAO referenced the multiple international broadcast entities that BBG oversees and noted challenges and opportunities identified by both the Board and others for streamlining U.S. international media.

The study is in its very early days. (b) (6), working with (b) (6), is the agency lead contact. The agency met with the GAO staff in late March for an initial "entrance" discussion. At that time, the GAO stressed that they were in the "design phase" of the study, and would be working on their methodology and the scope of the report. As yet the GAO has not fully defined the scope of the project or its methodology, and these could change with time. They are in a "data collection" stage in the project, after which they will confer with interested parties on the Hill to agree on the overall approach of the study. We'll learn more as they enter more deeply into discussions with us. The GAO does not expect to finish its report until this autumn.

So far, the GAO has expressed an interest in the new strategic plan and agency implementation of it, stating that they do not take issue with what we have done, but are interested in how we derived the plan. They have asked for extensive background information related to the development of the strategic plan, such as the convening of expert panels, SWOT analysis, and other research. Going forward, the GAO's researchers will want to speak with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity.

The lead staff member of the GAO group, (b) (6), will attend the rededication event at Greenville. Her purpose is to see a BBG transmitting station.

We view this study as an opportunity to make the GAO - and its ultimate audience and client, Congress - aware of the agency's robust efforts to operate more efficiently and effectively amid the current budget environment.

Enders, my friend, this can happen right now if the person who leads the organization in question simply picks up the phone and calls the other head such as Ensor, Conniff, Garcia, and Liu or the other way around. There is no barrier to this. I think all wish to assist and cooperate. Regular meetings between all heads should be resumed.

Consolidation of the three grantees still has many unanswered questions such as documenting the costs and savings. Savings of $10 million seem modest in a budget of $730 million...less than 2 percent savings.

To date the selection process for a new CEO for the three grantees has NOT been revealed. It is unclear what qualifications he/she must have. Congressional review of this selection such as Senate Confirmation has been omitted.

These are all worthy subjects for BBG debate and should precede a decision to consolidate when there are many unknowns.

Happy weekend. I am off to church here in Knoxville.

But knowing cannot always translate to doing when so many barriers to full cooperation exist, or when different networks have other or more immediate priorities.

Steve's larger point is that had we had a single CEO at the center of this activity, the chances of this opportunity being lost would have diminished. Someone has to be empowered to direct the various USIB assets into focus and cooperation operationally on pressing national interests, and this has to happen immediately when a pressing issue arises, not just when the board meets to when the network heads gather. This leader cannot be a part time board like the BBG, which has no operational responsibility in any case. Every good business, and virtually all other international broadcasters, grasp this, including, I will wager, the Chinese, the Russians, and those other competitors who increasingly will best us on the basis of sheer spending power if we do not get our act together.

Steve has done us a service by highlighting a problem that goes straight to the heart of USIB's weakness. It was not meant as criticism of anyone, but of the dysfunction in our organizational model, which wastes vast amounts of taxpayer assets while failing to meet the strategic objectives for which USIB is intended.

It is food for thought and I think a good place to start is for the grantee heads along with VOA and OCB heads to start regular meetings over breakfast or lunch when BBG meets or by teleconference. This used to happen and has dropped off in the past year for whatever reason I understand.

In specific instances like this, then using the phone to call MBN or VOA or them calling RFE if it is the other way around makes sense. This can happen now. We do not have to wait on the consolidation issues being resolved.

Have a good weekend and we all look forward to May and the wonderful weather. The Murrow Transmission facility dedication is this Wednesday and should be a great event thanks to efforts of Tish King, Lynne Weil, local staff, Congressman Jones and local officials in Pitt County.

Regarding my failure to copy David and Brian, mea culpa. It was inadvertent. I didn't even realize it until Dick pointed it out to me late last night (my time). I had planned to send them a copy this morning (my time). So thank you for forwarding a copy to them.

Nothing in my email was intended as a criticism of MBN or VOA. I am confident that there are plenty of instances where RFE/RL has failed to provide our sister organizations with material that they needed. The point here is that organizations (and people) respond to the incentives which are provided to them. Unless and until the incentives are changed, one cannot expect the behavior to change. This was, is, and always will be a feature of human nature.

As I said, this was only intended as food for thought in your ongoing deliberations on the future structure of USIB.

I don't think Steve was trying to be critical here. I believe he was just trying to point out some of the institutional barriers to cooperation and to our ability to deliver as effectively as possible on USIM's over-arching global mission. Clearly, and understandably given the current structure, all the networks have their individual priorities which do not always fit with their sister institutions' priorities. Even with the best will the world, which I believe all our business leaders have, absent some new approaches these problems will continue to arise and the cooperation and mission success we all seek in different parts of the world, and on different platforms, will continue to present a challenge.

I sure Steve has, or will, discuss this individual case with Brian, but again I don't see it as criticism of MBN or its leadership, but rather an effort to bring to the board's attention some of the "on the ground" challenges all our networks face.

Tish, you might have already had something in the works to elevate the profile of this release. But could you first please get with Martins on securing a quote? And since it would be a BBG repurposing of the release, let's think about a quote from Dick L.

BBG should consider doing something on this too for our web site. The only criticism I have of this news release which is one i often have is that not a single human being is quoted here. SSteve Korn or Dennis Mulhaupt or someone should have been the person announcing this...not RFE/RL which is not a human being to my knowledge. Only the Czech Amb is quoted but no one from RFE.

RFE/RL, Czech Republic Announce Vaclav Havel Journalism Fellowship

(WASHINGTON -- March 15, 2012) In a tribute to the life and work of Vaclav Havel, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the

Czech Republic and RFE/RL announce the launch of the Vaclav Havel Journalism Fellowship. The inaugural Vaclav Havel fellow, Franak Viachorka, will be in Washington for a week of training beginning on March 19, and will also be recognized at a reception hosted by the Czech Embassy.

Petr Gandalovic, Ambassador of the Czech Republic to the U.S., described the goals of the program by invoking the legacy of his country's former president. "Havel was a playwright, dissident and political leader. He had an uncompromising belief in the power of words and the power of truth to unite people and overcome tyranny. This Fellowship carries the spirit of his convictions to places struggling against censorship where -- even in 2012 -- people are still denied the fundamental human right of free speech."

Fellowships will afford independent journalists from countries lacking a free media six months of professional, on-the-job training and development at RFE/RL's Prague headquarters. The program initially targets EU Eastern Partnership countries including Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Georgia, Moldova, and Ukraine, and may expand to include fellows from other countries, including Afghanistan and Pakistan.

"RFE/RL has a special relationship with the Czech people," says RFE/RL president Steven Korn. "This partnership will give promising young journalists an opportunity to work for impact in their own countries without fear."

During his fellowship, Viachorka, a journalist and documentary filmmaker from Belarus, will train with RFE/RL's Belarus service, Radio Svaboda. His visit to Washington will also include high-level meetings with journalists, diplomats, congressional staff members, and think tanks.

Viachorka has worked as a journalist and editor for several independent publications in Belarus, including as a freelancer for the BelaPAN news agency and the independent Polish satellite TV station, Belsat. He first came to the attention of Radio Svaboda at the age of 13 when he appeared from 2001-2002 on the program "Young Voices." In 2006 he starred in the award-winning documentary, "A Lesson of Belarusian," which chronicles his teenage years in Aleksandr Lukashenka's Belarus. Viachorka is also the author of the European travel book "Wanderer's Guide" and director of the Citizen Journalist blog.

Good morning, Victor --

I asked our office assistant to put me in touch with the right person on the BBG technical team to address the question of why e-mails from your account kept turning up in mine as being sent by [REDACTED] (b) (6). While doing this, she discovered that [REDACTED] (b) (6) had also received messages from a regular e-mail correspondent that suddenly were showing a different sender's name attached to that person's account. But it was a mere coincidence; our techhies here believe the issue is not with the BBG's system.

Dear Ambassador Ashe,

Thanks for the update on your trip and the great pictures.

Here's a draft item for the BBG website on your stop in Thailand. We are happy to work with you and RFA to provide highlights on Cambodia and Laos as the trip proceeds.

Please let us know if you have any changes or additions.

Many thanks,

Tish

BBG Governor Victor Ashe is in Southeast Asia, visiting BBG facilities, meeting with agency staff and holding talks with U.S. embassy officials and local authorities in Thailand, Cambodia, and Laos.

In the Udon Thani province of northeast Thailand, Ashe toured a BBG transmission facility and presented 30-year and 20-year service awards to staff members.

He spoke about the BBG's mission and praised staff for its work in support of U.S. international broadcasting.

Ashe, a former U.S. ambassador to Poland, took particular interest in the activities undertaken by BBG officials to build and maintain relationships with local communities.

His next stop is Cambodia and then Laos for further consultations on Radio Free Asia and Voice of America operations.

No problems! The Governor met the assembled staff in our multi-purpose room shortly after arriving at the station and was kind enough to present 30 year and 20 year service awards to staff members. He spoke briefly about our mission and how much the Board appreciated the quality work they do in support of US international broadcasting and was quite sincere and personable with the staff.

He invited questions and was asked about the future of the station to which the Governor assured everyone that the Board had no intention or plan to close and he expected that the station would continue operating for quite some time.

We re-assembled on the front steps and took several pictures so the Governor has at least one image that he can place on the BBG web page when he returns. Several personal photos were taken individually with nearly every staff member lining up to get a photo with the Governor.

Then we toured the entire station. he wanted to see everything he could... He was shown the interior of one of the off-line Marconi transmitters, cooling room and power supply, the antenna switchbay and then toured the facilities maintenance building. By the end of the tour I think he managed to meet and greet each member of the staff before we went into Ban Dung for lunch.

The signage was not an issue for us as it was in Greenville, though he spoke at some length with me about the name of the Greenville station and wondered if the Thailand station had ever had a namesake. A couple months ago, I had the front wall repainted and letters on the signs regilded so our signage looked like new.

The Ambassador part of Governor Ashe took particular interest in the activities that we undertake to maintain a relationship with our local community and asked me to develop a brief narrative that he can take back to the next BBG meeting to share with the Board since none of the other members has ever been to the Thai station. I'll draft that and give it to him next week when we tour the MW station.

He pointed out that visiting the Stations was not his primary purpose in coming to SE Asia, but that he felt that it was important to meet the staff and present the flag to the troops in the field and to assure them that he and the Board value the work they do in support of our mission.

He will meet with the acting-PAO at the Embassy in the morning.

Thanks...I think given the nature of the work we are in...that full discussion and rebuttal, agreement, modification, self examination of all comments, criticism etc are worthwhile..even when painful.

I comment Lynne Weil for reaching out to respond to some groups/individuals who previously were not responded to in an adequate manner. We should remember that responses will not always convince but an unanswered charge often becomes true if not answered. Certainly in politics that is the case. We must be players and not spectators.

Russia is difficult. We should discuss it at RFE and BBG for VOA. Putin is no friend of democracy. Journalists have been murdered during his tenure with little apparent effort on the government's part to track down the guilty parties. What is the best way to get into Russia? How successful are we?

I am genuinely worried that the proposed budget cuts especially for Tibetan and Laos are setting our ourselves up for another congressional slap in the face. Personally, I certainly did not know about them when I voted for the budget last fall at Walter's personal urging. Not being on Strategy and Budget, I was not privy to any lengthy analysis of the budget. After the fact I learn about specific cuts which I find unfortunate and unacceptable. My view is we should proactively save these cuts before Congress makes us do it.

Strategy and Budget Committee is now down to two members only while governance has 4 members. There seems to be imbalance here in terms of numbers.

Thanks for your response. I understand your views. When I have had time to digest it, I will get back with further questions and comments. I appreciate your time to respond to this.

To be honest, while I think research is important and needed, I think the current proposed layoffs and reduction in services force difficult choices upon us with which reasonable people can differ. This is where we may part company on this issue as I am troubled by spending 10 million a year ($8.8 million one year) while 200 fine employees are discharged and services like Tibetan language are reduced. I wonder if we should not cut even more in the Gallup contract for a few years to produce the savings needed to keep more of these lost jobs and Tibetan language. I feel sure Congress will take steps to halt the reduction in Tibetan language and based on what I know I would agree with Congress on that. Our priorities need further thought in my view.

I believe the intent of that item is for the committee to discuss how to provide the information which Walter asked the staff to set out in writing following the recent presentation by [REDACTED] (b) Virtue of Baker & McKenzie on formal employee complaints (e.g. the first step is to contact the IBB director, how to contact the IG, etc.) so that the information is readily available to everyone in one place and format. I do not believe there is any further motive or purpose than that.

On topic 4, third item on March 7..what is this all about? Obviously I receive the most contacts from employees which I am happy to receive. I enjoy hearing from them. Susan McCue has received many too as she takes the time to meet, talk and have coffee with many. Does not mean I always agree but I feel I am a better Governor hearing directly. Are we now dreaming up rules of the road on how to talk and listen to employees? Surely not. We all have different approaches. We are individually appointed Governors with unique backgrounds. We have actually made some progress on employee communication but morale is still at the bottom. We are working on late payments issue but we have a ways to go. We should be encouraging employees to speak to us.

Dear Victor,

As the person who last held the pen on the draft report – for several days, I confess – I particularly appreciate your flexibility.

With the rush of preparations for the budget rollout, and then its aftermath, I was unable to take a proper look at the draft report until the end of last week. Knowing that it had already been through layers of review, and that there was a publication schedule to be met, I sent my edits to Tish on the weekend.

Your more seasoned eye is likely to turn up additional needed edits. We do appreciate your taking the opportunity to take this on while on the road.

And we will look forward to seeing you on Thursday afternoon if you do come to the Cohen building.

All the best,

I fully agree and as long as the numbers are manageable I think BBG gains more by saying Yes than NO. Put me down as one Governor who favors attendance if possible. At some point we should move to fully open meetings so that is not an issue.

Thank you, Victor, for your candor -- and I promise not to share your e-mail.
Would you mind keeping mine confidential, as well?

Greek is the one language service planned for elimination that will be of concern to Congress, which has restored it each time the BBG has tried to end it.

RFE/RL plans to discontinue its services in Avar, Chechen, and Circassian, and Steve Korn is addressing this with his employees tomorrow. RFE/RL has struggled to attract significant audiences for these SW broadcasts. The three languages are among dozens spoken in the region, where Russian remains the lingua franca. RFE/RL will continue to serve audiences there with Russian-language programming, including web and mobile content focused on regional news. The budget justification, which will be public tomorrow, makes this clear, and it's addressed in the in-house talking points sent to the Board on Friday.

There are changes expected in other language services, as you know, but none others eliminated altogether.

I agree that the release of a reduced budget request is bound to be upsetting and then some. And that the timing on the Hill for an actual budget bill is very much in question. But what alternative is there: Not releasing a budget?

And I understand your point about where cuts should be made. One week in, and I'm in no position to address that one.

If you feel that the tone of the draft message from the Board to employees could use some work, please share that with all on this afternoon's e-mail chain. You may not be the only one. And we're doing our best to get it right.

I am sure that this statement reflects a majority of the Board views. However, you should know that as one member for whom this statement does not reflect the full scope of his views, I feel strongly that we have lots to do to reduce waste within the agency which have not occurred in a satisfactory way in my view. I refer to sending too many people to conferences such as Delhi, Prague and walk thru in Tampa for upcoming GOP convention, handing out bonus for top level personnel at IBB/BBG while facing layoffs (the optics are terrible)...I do not feel we are making tough decisions everywhere but in selected areas. $50 million contract for 5 years with Gallup (I feel that one should be reduced in size).

This statement references language services being eliminated. If Greek is it and the only one, that is one thing but if there are more we need to be honest about it.

Of course this budget plan probably will not become law which means the exercise creates anxiety among rank and file. Remember we look foolish when [REDACTED] (b) (6) says the computers cannot distinguish between vendors and contract employees (contractors) on late payments. For an agency which already has the lowest morale around, this statement does not ease it or go far enough in "we feel your pain" in my view.

I prefer you not share this with anyone as I am simply sharing my personal views with you and offering my sympathy for the really tough job you face. I am happy to discuss this personally. Of course, I have voiced these sentiments with staff and my colleagues previously...although without winning converts..except for setting a Thanksgiving deadline to end late payments for contractors. I think some of the pain has to be shared by the top level as well.

Dear Governors,

Attached are the latest versions of the two essential messaging documents in connection with tomorrow's budget roll-out. They are the draft news release and the draft notice from you to the employees, which is not intended for public distribution but will likely be publicized by some.

These drafts incorporate e-mailed suggestions from Governors Ashe, Perino and McCue, along with the conversation yesterday and some follow-up.

We'd like to get these items, particularly your message to employees, just right.

If you have further comments, please try to weigh in by 5 p.m. Eastern. The release will need subsequent OMB review. Last-minute edits tomorrow a.m. are possible, but preferably would be minimal.

Many thanks,

This might be of interest ...

A former employee of the CFO says the following about [REDACTED] (b) (6) who is in charge of the contractor mess. Does a warrant of debt affect her federal standing? her security clearance? her bonus? She has fired numerous people but should she be fired?

" [REDACTED] (b) (6) probably sabotaged [REDACTED] (b) (6) the travel manager who was fired last week. It's funny how he is in charge of the financial system that pays vendors, he is still employed, yet the contractor/vendors are still not getting paid. That is the biggest problem in that office, not the travel (although still a problem). [REDACTED] (b) (6) takes two hour lunch breaks but still has a job. [REDACTED] (b) (6) barely ate lunch. Why does [REDACTED] (b) (6) still have a job? I don't understand how [REDACTED] (b) (6) is getting away with this...its funny how EVERYONE else seems to be the problem. Does [REDACTED] (b) (6) even have a college degree?"

[REDACTED] (b) (6) came to BBG because he was about to get fired from DHS. . At DHS, he played around in the Travel Production system and booked a ticket to Rome. His manager was angry. It was escalated to the CFO and (b) (6) had to pay out of pocket. He also got in trouble because when he traveled, he stayed in Vegas an extra night and was not supposed to. Before that, he was working at CGI. He was also fired from his first job with the FDIC or Federal Reserve (one of those agencies) because he would take two hour lunch breaks and just wouldn't work. He comes to BBG and (b) (6) promotes him.

(b) (6) cannot even pay her own bills. She had a Warrant in Debt in Fairfax County Court. . Why is she managing the office when she cannot even pay her own bills?.

I have no idea who this is and generally do not pay attention to persons not named in their e mails. However, the accuracy or inaccuracy of this can be checked. If true, Immediate action is needed as it raises valid concerns. If not true, we need to know that as well. [REDACTED] (b) (6) surely you can find out about this. As we face a difficult week with budget cuts, we should at the top level be seen as rooting out errors, mistakes and incompetence which cost. Again, if untrue we should know that too.

This might be of interest ...

A former employee of the CFO says the following about [REDACTED] (b) (6) who in charge of the contractor mess. Does a warrant of debt affect her federal standing? her security clearance? her bonus? She has fired numerous people but should she be fired?

" [REDACTED] (b) (6) probably sabotaged [REDACTED] (b) (6) the travel manager who was fired last week. It's funny how he is in charge of the financial system that pays vendors, he is still employed, yet the contractor/vendors are still not getting paid. That is the biggest problem in that office, not the travel (although still a problem). [REDACTED] (b) (6) takes two hour lunch breaks but still has a job [REDACTED] (b) (6) barely ate lunch. Why does [REDACTED] (b) (6) still have a job? I don't understand how [REDACTED] (b) (6) is getting away with this...its funny how EVERYONE else seems to be the problem. Does [REDACTED] (b) (6) even have a college degree?"

[REDACTED] (b) (6) came to BBG because he was about to get fired from DHS.. At DHS, he played around in the Travel Production system and booked a ticket to Rome. His manager was angry. It was escalated to the CFO and [REDACTED] (b) (6) had to pay out of pocket. He also got in trouble because when he traveled, he stayed in Vegas an extra night and was not supposed to. Before that, he was working at CGI. He was also fired from his first job with the FDIC or Federal Reserve (one of those agencies) because he would take two hour lunch breaks and just wouldn't work. He comes to BBG and [REDACTED] (b) (6) promotes him.

[REDACTED] (b) (6) cannot even pay her own bills. She had a Warrant in Debt in Fairfax County Court.. Why is she managing the office when she cannot even pay her own bills?.

I am sure that this statement reflects a majority of the Board views. However, you should know that as one member for whom this statement does not reflect the full scope of his views, I feel strongly that we have lots to do to reduce waste within the agency which have not occurred in a satisfactory way in my view. I refer to sending too many people to conferences such as Delhi, Prague and walk thru in Tampa for upcoming GOP convention, handing out bonus for top level personnel at IBB/BBG while facing layoffs (the optics are terrible)...I do not feel we are making tough decisions everywhere but in selected areas. $50 million contract for 5 years with Gallup (I feel that one should be reduced in size).

This statement references language services being eliminated. If Greek is it and the only one, that is one thing but if there are more we need to be honest about it.

Of course this budget plan probably will not become law which means the exercise creates anxiety among rank and file. Remember we look foolish when (b) (6) says the computers cannot distinguish between vendors and contract employees (contractors) on late payments. For an agency which already the lowest morale around, this statement does not ease it or go far enough in "we feel your pain" in my view.

I prefer you not share this with anyone as I am simply sharing my personal views with you and offering my sympathy for the really tough job you face. I am happy to discuss this personally. Of course, I have voiced these sentiments with staff and my colleagues previously...although without winning converts..except for setting a Thanksgiving deadline to end late payments for contractors. I think some of the pain has to be shared by the top level as well.

Dear Governors,

Attached are the latest versions of the two essential messaging documents in connection with tomorrow's budget roll-out. They are the draft news release and the draft notice from you to the employees, which is not intended for public distribution but will likely be publicized by some.

These drafts incorporate e-mailed suggestions from Governors Ashe, Perino and McCue, along with the conversation yesterday and some follow-up.

We'd like to get these items, particularly your message to employees, just right.

If you have further comments, please try to weigh in by 5 p.m. Eastern. The release will need subsequent OMB review. Last-minute edits tomorrow a.m. are possible, but preferably would be minimal.

Many thanks,

Lynne

Gov. Ashe, thank you for the swift reply.

Please see the chart at the bottom of #11 for entity-by-entity position reductions.

Listing the many service-by-service reductions in either the news release or the Governors' statement would more than cloud the message. I believe this information will be available, though, when the Congressional Budget Justification is released; we'll post that on-line, so maybe a good solution would be to put a link to it at the end of the release and the statement.

As for the difficult, in person discussions, from our conversations this week I learned that each entity head has a self-directed schedule for briefing employees on the specifics affecting their entities. I've no involvement in that process; perhaps someone else on this list can address it.

It's worth repeating -- and we will, at every opportunity -- that everything possible will be done to limit impact on individuals through agency buyouts, early-out authority and reducing positions via attrition.

Best,

Lynne

Dear Governors,

Attached for your review are the draft messaging materials prepared by agency staff in collaboration with the network heads and communications teams across all entities. They are:

- A message from the Board to agency employees
- A news release
- Talking points on the top nine most anticipated questions, in rank order of likelihood
- Examples of ways that we are ending duplication and streamlining services
- A budget overview, strategic principles guiding BBG budgeting decisions, and a comparison across broadcast entities at the request of some of the entity heads.

Much of what is in the talking points has been pulled from existing and in some cases published agency documents for consistency. Similarities between the board statement and the news release are intentional, as are the differences. Apart from those two items, which will be distributed, please forgive any typos or formatting errors arising from the production process this week.

Your feedback will help strengthen these items so that we can most effectively convey the reasoning and goals underlying this budget request. It would be most useful if comments could be made within the next 24 hours to ensure timely incorporation into these materials.

In a separate message, [REDACTED] (b) (6) has sent you the actual budget documents.

Best regards,

Lynne W.

Thank you for thinking of that, Victor.

I'm unaware of a direct relationship between my family and Jiri Weil -- and in fact, until today was unaware of this author. Both books sound intriguing, so thanks, as well, for this opportunity to learn something new.

The name Weil derives from a Middle German word meaning small valley. Found throughout Europe, people named Weil or Weill (as in Kurt -- sadly, also not a direct relative) can in many cases trace their ancestry to the Alsace and nearby southern Germany, where several geographic features and population centers bear names featuring the word, including Weilthal and Weil-am-Rhein, two towns in Swabia that I've noted while driving by.

The name is unusual but not unheard-of in the United States -- there's the Swiss watch-maker that advertises in glossy magazines, as well as a locally well-known and now retired judge named Weil in San Francisco. And of course there's also Sanford Weill of Citibank; I sure wish I were related to him!

News

Last year, we uncovered and published Jiri Weil's neglected classic, Mendelssohn is on the Roof, a biting satire of the bureaucratic machinery of tyranny. At the end of this month, we will be publishing a second of Weil's novels; one which can almost be read as a companion novel to the first.

In Life With A Star we are exposed to the mind-numbing tedium of terror. Josef Roubicek, a former bank clerk, struggles against the daily impossibilities of life under a regime which has rendered him unemployed and undesirable. Like the resistance mounted in Hans Fallada's Alone in Berlin, the steps taken to undermine the stranglehold of the system are tiny but not insignificant, and heroism is distilled to the capacity to hope when all hope is lost.

This is a quiet, haunting novel, with the power to transfix and astonish. We hope you will be as moved by this intriguing author as we have been.

Thanks. It's about your e-mail to me and my supervisor, Dick Lobo, on Friday early a.m. DC time concerning the Gallup contract that reflected poorly on the public affairs response to the (b) (6) inquiry. Among other things, the e-mail indicated that the only answer (b) (6) had received to her inquiry was from (b) (6) (b) in the GC's office.

It also contains a misperception that we're hoping to discuss with you.

We'll call after 4.

Dear Victor,

[REDACTED] (b) (6) drafted the response that was just shared with the Board. We reviewed it before it went to Rep. Rohrabacher.

Basically, it thanks him for his interest/support, indicates that his proposal will be studied by a committee of Governors engaged in strategy (i.e. the one you've just joined), and, as an important point of reference, VOA and RFE/RL have programming to the region.

Re: a meeting, Enders is familiar with Mr. R, and we have a request in to the latter's office for the two of them to get together again soon (aiming for April).

It would be best from the agency's p.o.v. to make the most of Governors' time by strategic planning of meetings with selected members of Congress, according to our goals and their positions, coordinated through the Communications Committee. I hope you don't mind my copying them on this reply.

Best regards,

FYI Ann Noonan and her group are asking for a copy of the Gallup contract. (b) (6) sent one of the usual it will cost you and it takes time to answer responses which I think is the wrong answer for a $50 million contract. That is not pocket change.

Regardless of the reason for wanting it, it ought to be public and even posted on our web site...unless I am missing something here.

Instead of taking a beating on being slow to respond and there is a media event with Gallup soon, why not be forthcoming and let them have it as well as anyone else? Slow walking this creates more issues than releasing it.

Thanks for the clarifications. Here is the revised draft.

[REDACTED] (b)

BBG Gov. Victor Ashe wraps up his tour of Southeast Asian broadcast facilities this week with a series of meetings in Thailand, including stops at the offices of Radio Free Asia and Voice of America in Bangkok. Earlier, Ashe visited the Bangkok transmitter plant where he met with staff and delved into the plant's history. Ashe, a former U.S. ambassador to Poland, expressed a keen interest in the facility's history, which dates to the Vietnam conflict. He suggested renaming the facility, which is not located in Bangkok, but near Ayutthaya north of the capital city.

During the 10-day trip, Ashe's itinerary has included stops at BBG facilities, meetings with agency staff and talks with U.S. embassy officials and local authorities in Thailand, Cambodia, and Laos.

In the Udon Thani province of northeast Thailand, Ashe toured a BBG transmission facility and presented 30-year and 20-year service awards to staff members.

At Voice of America offices in Phnom Penh, Ashe toured the facilities and met with staff, including [REDACTED] (b) (6), director of the RFA's Cambodian Service.

The first BBG member to visit Laos, Ashe met there Laotian officials about the possibility of allowing RFA correspondents in Laos. He also met with U.S. embassy officials and Laotian journalists.

During our visit, we took a group photo in front of the station. Governor Ashe asked me to forward this image to you so that it could be posted on the BBG web page. Hello, Victor –

We're in touch with Congressman Jones about his schedule, and his office tells us that we should have an answer by Wednesday COB. As soon as the date is set, you'll be the first to know.

Best,

Thank you for thinking of that, Victor.

I'm unaware of a direct relationship between my family and Jiri Weil -- and in fact, until today was unaware of this author. Both books sound intriguing, so thanks, as well, for this opportunity to learn something new.

The name Weil derives from a Middle German word meaning small valley. Found throughout Europe, people named Weil or Weill (as in Kurt -- sadly, also not a direct relative) can in many cases trace their ancestry to the Alsace and nearby southern Germany, where several geographic features and population centers bear names featuring the word, including Weilthal and Weil-am-Rhein, two towns in Swabia that I've noted while driving by.

The name is unusual but not unheard-of in the United States -- there's the Swiss watch-maker that advertises in glossy magazines, as well as a locally well-known and now retired judge named Weil in San Francisco. And of course there's also Sanford Weill of Citibank; I sure wish I were related to him!

Lynne. I wonder if the Jiri Weil who wrote this book, Life with a Star is related to you or your husband's family? I just noticed the book which is for sale at Daunt's which is a well known Bookstore in London.

News

Last year, we uncovered and published Jiri Weil's neglected classic, Mendelssohn is on the Roof, a biting satire of the bureaucratic machinery of tyranny. At the end of this month, we will be publishing a second of Weil's novels; one which can almost be read as a companion novel to the first.

In Life With A Star we are exposed to the mind-numbing tedium of terror. Josef Roubicek, a former bank clerk, struggles against the daily impossibilities of life under a regime which has rendered him unemployed and undesirable. Like the resistance mounted in Hans Fallada's Alone in Berlin, the steps taken to undermine the stranglehold of the system are tiny but not insignificant, and heroism is distilled to the capacity to hope when all hope is lost.

This is a quiet, haunting novel, with the power to transfix and astonish. We hope you will be as moved by this intriguing author as we have been.

Dear Victor,

[REDACTED] (b) (6) drafted the response that was just shared with the Board. We reviewed it before it went to Rep. Rohrabacher.

Basically, it thanks him for his interest/support, indicates that his proposal will be studied by a committee of Governors engaged in strategy (i.e. the one you've just joined), and, as an important point of reference, VOA and RFE/RL have programming to the region.

Re: a meeting, Enders is familiar with Mr. R, and we have a request in to the latter's office for the two of them to get together again soon (aiming for April).

It would be best from the agency's p.o.v. to make the most of Governors' time by strategic planning of meetings with selected members of Congress, according to our goals and their positions, coordinated through the Communications Committee. I hope you don't mind my copying them on this reply.

Best regards,

Lynne

Dear Victor,

[REDACTED] (b) (6) drafted the response that was just shared with the Board. We reviewed it before it went to Rep. Rohrabacher.

Basically, it thanks him for his interest/support, indicates that his proposal will be studied by a committee of Governors engaged in strategy (i.e. the one you've just joined), and, as an important point of reference, VOA and RFE/RL have programming to the region.

Re: a meeting, Enders is familiar with Mr. R, and we have a request in to the latter's office for the two of them to get together again soon (aiming for April).

It would be best from the agency's p.o.v. to make the most of Governors' time by strategic planning of meetings with selected members of Congress, according to our goals and their positions, coordinated through the Communications Committee. I hope you don't mind my copying them on this reply.

Best regards,

Lynne

Of course I want to see the response to the congressman..who will sign it? I think we should place it on the agenda at next Board meeting so we can show we are taking it seriously.

Second, I would like to meet with him sometime just to get to know him...not sure when last Governor ever saw him. April 10 works well for me in AM...can your office set it up?

Then your office should explain all of this to [REDACTED] (b) (6) [REDACTED] who is seeking this information. The [REDACTED] (b) (6) [REDACTED] does NOT offer this explanation. This explanation gives BBG a somewhat more credible explanation but in the end I feel we have an obligation to let the public see how $50 million is being spent. I urge a second letter from [REDACTED] (b) (6) [REDACTED] to M [REDACTED] (b) (6) [REDACTED] which contains basically the material you have sent me in two e-mails. This would make it appear BBG actually cares and is taking the matter seriously. The first response strikes me as typical government jargon with no end in sight.

I also believe that I as a Governor am entitled to see the contract subject to the limitations of the law.

Victor – Here is an update on the particular FOIA request that you described.

The FOIA for the Gallup contract (12-020, [REDACTED] (b) (6) [REDACTED]) is currently being processed. Our latest action was to send a copy of the contract to Gallup for its review and comment regarding potential confidential information. We expect to receive that information from Gallup back by the end of this month.

We will then be in a position to determine the applicability of FOIA Exemption 4 which protects "trade secrets and commercial or financial information obtained from a person [that is] privileged or confidential." This exemption affords protection to entities (such as Gallup in this case) that are required to furnish commercial or financial information to the government by safeguarding them from the competitive disadvantages that could result from unauthorized disclosure.

As I pointed out in my earlier email, agencies are required by Executive Order 12600 to provide material subject to withholding under Exemption 4 to such to obtain their objections, and the bases therefor, prior to releasing any covered information under FOIA. If we disagree with the owner of the proprietary information and decide to release it over their objection, EO 12600 also requires us to provide the entity with sufficient notice of that decision to allow adequate time before a scheduled release date to permit them the opportunity to seek judicial relief.

Thanks. [REDACTED] (b) [REDACTED]

I want to go on record as one BBG member saying that the Gallup contract for almost $50 million should be released to inquiring persons asking under FOIA without delay or cost. In fact, it ought to be placed on the BBG web site. I should remind you that the President in his first year in office urged more openness. We should honor his executive order. When BBG thru your office responds to such a request outlining potential costs and seems less than anxious to comply, it places BBG in a bad light. I urge prompt release of this significant contract to those who wish to review it. BBG should not receive negative publicity over this issue which delay to release will cause. Why not just place it online and let people download it?

Dear (b)

It was good to talk with you, albeit briefly, on Tuesday. I'm glad that you were able to find the basic information about the research contract on-line.

As promised, I've checked with all the right people here, some of whom were away from the office last week, to see what more is available. Thanks for your patience regarding this request.

I'd like first to ensure that you're aware that the BBG currently spends roughly $10 million per year on research, and that this is only 1.3% of the agency's $750 million budget. The proposed FY 2013 budget includes $8.8 million for research, or 1.1% of the total -- a fraction of what commercial media spend.

For FY2013, the BBG research budget is being reduced more than 10% while overall reductions are 4.2%.

To ensure value for taxpayer dollar, we need solid information about audiences.

And as you may know, BBG's enabling legislation mandates a "reliable research capacity." Research is a broad and serious statutory requirement, not a frill.

The BBG plans to release results from the Gallup research when available. In the meantime, we cannot make the full Gallup contract available since it may include proprietary information. To ensure fair, equitable, and transparent treatment for this contractor and all others, as well as any who may request information about the contract, it will need to be reviewed under a FOIA process before release.

I've forwarded your request to the BBG's FOIA office. You can expect to receive an acknowledgment letter from them in the coming days.

Please let me know if there is more that I can do to assist you with this matter.

Best regards,

Lynne

FYI [REDACTED] (b) (6) and her group are asking for a copy of the Gallup contract. [REDACTED] (b) (6); sent one of the usual it will cost you and it takes time to answer responses which I think is the wrong answer for a $50 million contract. That is not pocket change.

Regardless of the reason for wanting it, it ought to be public and even posted on our web site...unless I am missing something here.

Instead of taking a beating on being slow to respond and there is a media event with Gallup soon, why not be forthcoming and let them have it as well as anyone else? Slow walking this creates more issues than releasing it.

BBG Gov. Victor Ashe wraps up his tour of Southeast Asian broadcast facilities this week with a series of meetings in Thailand, including stops at the offices of Radio Free Asia and Voice of America in Bangkok. Earlier, Ashe visited the Bangkok transmitter plant where he met with staff and delved into the plant's history. Ashe, a former U.S. ambassador to Poland, expressed a keen interest in the facility's history, which dates to the Vietnam conflict. He suggested renaming the facility, which is not located in Bangkok, but near Ayutthaya north of the capital city.

During the 10-day trip, Ashe's itinerary has included stops at BBG facilities, meetings with agency staff and talks with U.S. embassy officials and local authorities in Thailand, Cambodia, and Laos.

In the Udon Thani province of northeast Thailand, Ashe toured a BBG transmission facility and presented 30-year and 20-year service awards to staff members.

At Voice of America offices in Phnom Penh, Ashe toured the facilities and met with staff, including (b) (6), director of the RFA's Cambodian Service.

The first BBG member to visit Laos, Ashe met there Laotian officials about the possibility of allowing RFA correspondents in Laos. He also met with U.S. embassy officials and Laotian journalists.

Thank you for thinking of that, Victor.

I'm unaware of a direct relationship between my family and Jiri Weil -- and in fact, until today was unaware of this author. Both books sound intriguing, so thanks, as well, for this opportunity to learn something new.

The name Weil derives from a Middle German word meaning small valley. Found throughout Europe, people named Weil or Weill (as in Kurt -- sadly, also not a direct relative) can in many cases trace their ancestry to the Alsace and nearby southern Germany, where several geographic features and population centers bear names featuring the word, including Weilthal and Weil-am-Rhein, two towns in Swabia that I've noted while driving by.

The name is unusual but not unheard-of in the United States -- there's the Swiss watch-maker that advertises in glossy magazines, as well as a locally well-known and now retired judge named Weil in San Francisco. And of course there's also Sanford Weill of Citibank; I sure wish I were related to him!

Lynne. I wonder if the Jiri Weil who wrote this book, Life with a Star is related to you or your husband's family? I just noticed the book which is for sale at Daunt's which is a well known Bookstore in London.

News

Last year, we uncovered and published Jiri Weil's neglected classic, Mendelssohn is on the Roof, a biting satire of the bureaucratic machinery of tyranny. At the end of this month, we will be publishing a second of Weil's novels; one which can almost be read as a companion novel to the first.

In Life With A Star we are exposed to the mind-numbing tedium of terror. Josef Roubicek, a former bank clerk, struggles against the daily impossibilities of life under a regime which has rendered him unemployed and undesirable. Like the resistance mounted in Hans Fallada's Alone in Berlin, the steps taken to undermine the stranglehold of the system are tiny but not insignificant, and heroism is distilled to the capacity to hope when all hope is lost.

This is a quiet, haunting novel, with the power to transfix and astonish. We hope you will be as moved by this intriguing author as we have been.

Basically, it thanks him for his interest/support, indicates that his proposal will be studied by a committee of Governors engaged in strategy (i.e. the one you've just joined), and, as an important point of reference, VOA and RFE/RL have programming to the region.

Re: a meeting, Enders is familiar with Mr. R, and we have a request in to the latter's office for the two of them to get together again soon (aiming for April).

It would be best from the agency's p.o.v. to make the most of Governors' time by strategic planning of meetings with selected members of Congress, according to our goals and their positions, coordinated through the Communications Committee. I hope you don't mind my copying them on this reply.

well in this case we will get to read about it. As you know I am a huge supporter of disclosure. I think FOIA is very weak in terms of disclosure and what I lived with as Mayor of Knoxville. Unless it is national security, I usually fall on disclosure side of issue. Given the size of this contract, openness is even more relevant. Victor

Surely some parts of the contract can be released.

FYI Ann Noonan and her group are asking for a copy of the Gallup contract. (b) (6) sent one of the usual it will cost you and it takes time to answer responses which I think is the wrong answer for a $50 million contract. That is not pocket change.

Regardless of the reason for wanting it, it ought to be public and even posted on our web site...unless I am missing something here.

Instead of taking a beating on being slow to respond and there is a media event with Gallup soon, why not be forthcoming and let them have it as well as anyone else? Slow walking this creates more issues than releasing it.

You should state that I met with the Vice Minister of Information of the Laotian government..not just an official. The Bangkok facility is actually 80 miles outside Bangkok.

In Phnom Penh, I visited both RFA and VOA offices..not just VOA. I also met with Human Rights NGOs and independent journalists in Cambodia. [REDACTED] (b) (6) was not just someone I met with in Phnom Penh but rather he accompanied me to all meetings and was with me the whole time there.

Gov. Ashe,

Thanks for the clarifications. Here is the revised draft.

[REDACTED] (b)

BBG Gov. Victor Ashe wraps up his tour of Southeast Asian broadcast facilities this week with a series of meetings in Thailand, including stops at the offices of Radio Free Asia and Voice of America in Bangkok. Earlier, Ashe visited the Bangkok transmitter plant where he met with staff and delved into the plant's history. Ashe, a former U.S. ambassador to Poland, expressed a keen interest in the facility's history, which dates to the Vietnam conflict. He suggested renaming the facility, which is not located in Bangkok, but near Ayutthaya north of the capital city.

During the 10-day trip, Ashe's itinerary has included stops at BBG facilities, meetings with agency staff and talks with U.S. embassy officials and local authorities in Thailand, Cambodia, and Laos.

In the Udon Thani province of northeast Thailand, Ashe toured a BBG transmission facility and presented 30-year and 20-year service awards to staff members.

At Voice of America offices in Phnom Penh, Ashe toured the facilities and met with staff, including [REDACTED] (b) (6), director of the RFA's Cambodian Service.

The first BBG member to visit Laos, Ashe met there Laotian officials about the possibility of allowing RFA correspondents in Laos. He also met with U.S. embassy officials and Laotian journalists.

In Vientiane I did not meet with RFA staff as there is NOT any RFA staff in Laos. We are not allowed. I did meet with Vice Minister of Information and raised the issue of RFA having correspondents in Laos as RFA does in Cambodia. I was told the government was willing to discuss it. I felt that was a positive start. I did meet with the Deputy Chief of Mission in Vientiane, [REDACTED] (b) (6) and several Laotian journalists.

Trish,

Greetings from Bangkok. Earlier today Governor Ashe visited the IBB Bangkok Transmitter plant north of Bangkok near Ayuttaya to tour the site and meet with staff. During our visit, we took a group photo in front of the station. Governor Ashe asked me to forward this image to you so that it could be posted on the BBG web page. The Station email server is off line so I am sending this photo to you from my hotmail account. Since our email service is off line, I am also unable to verify your email address. Hopefully, I have addressed this to you correctly.

Prior to Christmas when I asked to see what portions of the deloitte study and the McKenzie Baker legal analysis was being held back from the BBG web site you said staff could not get to it during the Christmas holidays which I found to be a satisfactory reason.

However the first week of January is almost over and I have not heard back from anyone on where this request stood. I want to re register my request to find out what was not shared with the public and who actually made the decisions as to what was posted online and what was not. Was it the deputy legal counsel or someone else or a committee?

I do want to see what the public was not permitted to see. Can you advise me as to when this will be possible. As you know I come from a background of full transparency as President Obama pledged in one of his first executive orders in January, 2009.

I raised this issue at the last BBG board meeting and was assured it would be posted with a few exceptions. Chairman Isaacson voiced comments which favored disclosure. I would like to know more about this process.

I trust the holidays went well for you and your wife as well the whole staff.

Warm regards for a productive 2012.

Also the agenda says that the official BBG meeting starts at 2 PM at Cohen Bldg. However, when one goes the website of BBG, it says the meeting starts at 230PM..which is correct? The web site should reflect the real time the meeting will begin for those persons who wish to watch it live. The web site needs to be changed to reflect the actual start time if it is actually 2PM and not 230 PM.

Dear Governors,

Attached please find an agenda for next week's BBG meetings on Thursday and Friday.

Thursday, January 12 is an off-site Governors' Briefing at the Aspen Institute (One Dupont Circle, NW, Suite 700) from 9 am to 3:30 pm. Because the briefing materials for the off-site briefing are voluminous and contain sensitive information, we have sent a printed copy of the off-site briefing book to your home or office. These materials also will be available on your Governors' restricted website, (b) (2).

A Board dinner (Governors Only - Self Paid) is scheduled that evening at 6:30 pm. We are looking for a private dining place (it's DC Restaurant Week, so bookings are heavy) and we will let you know the venue as soon as possible.

Friday, January 13 will be devoted to BBG-related meetings at the Cohen Building from 9 am to 3:00 pm. Details are in the attached agenda. Briefing materials, minutes and network monthly reports are attached. Printed versions of these materials will be provided at the Friday meeting. All materials also will be available on your Governors' restricted website.

I will send materials for the MBN corporate meeting in a separate email.

Governor Perino will not be able to attend this month's meetings. Governor Meehan will attend only the off-site briefing on Thursday.

Regards,

We will adjust the website reference to the BBG meeting time; the time was changed to 2 p.m. after we got the late word that RFA would not have a corporate board meeting.

I did not see the resolution honoring the 70th anniversary of Mandarin Language service on the BBG open meeting agenda although it is listed on your list of attachments. It is requested by me. I asked for it several weeks ago and trust it will be on the agenda.

Also the agenda says that the official BBG meeting starts at 2 PM at Cohen Bldg. However, when one goes the website of BBG, it says the meeting starts at 230PM..which is correct? The web site should reflect the real time the meeting will begin for those persons who wish to watch it live. The web site needs to be changed to reflect the actual start time if it is actually 2PM and not 230 PM.

Hope the weekend goes well.

Subject: BBG January Meeting Materials

Dear Governors,

Attached please find an agenda for next week's BBG meetings on Thursday and Friday.

Thursday, January 12 is an off-site Governors' Briefing at the Aspen Institute (One Dupont Circle, NW, Suite 700) from 9 am to 3:30 pm. Because the briefing materials for the off-site briefing are voluminous and contain sensitive information, we have sent a printed copy of the off-site briefing book to your home or office. These materials also will be available on your Governors' restricted website, (b) (2).

A Board dinner (Governors Only - Self Paid) is scheduled that evening at 6:30 pm. We are looking for a private dining place (it's DC Restaurant Week, so bookings are heavy) and we will let you know the venue as soon as possible.

Friday, January 13 will be devoted to BBG-related meetings at the Cohen Building from 9 am to 3:00 pm. Details are in the attached agenda. Briefing materials, minutes and network monthly reports are attached. Printed versions of these materials will be provided at the Friday meeting. All materials also will be available on your Governors' restricted website.

I will send materials for the MBN corporate meeting in a separate email.

Governor Perino will not be able to attend this month's meetings. Governor Meehan will attend only the off-site briefing on Thursday.

Regards,
Oanh

Thanks. Are you looking at Feb 10? or the day before? I assume the day before on Feb 9 due to innovation taking most of the day. The list we need to review are frankly extensive and I doubt one meeting will do it.

You still have my earlier e mail. Nothing has changed there from my point of view. I have more items but doubt if a one day meeting can handle them all. Report on my visit to Greenville transmission facility and its future, contract employees and their future (we need to hear from them too)...how BBG conducts oversight...if there is a change in White House who replaces Dick Lobo as CEO...it could become vacant on Jan 20, 2013.

I can and will add more when we are together this week. I have strong and deep concerns on several other issues.

Happy New Year. We are trying to schedule the next Governance Comm meeting around the time of the innovation meetings in DC next month. We are working to lock down Michael Lynton's participation which, as you might expect, is somewhat challenging but I am hopeful we can get it done.

Could you send me any agenda items you would wish to see included? You had previously mentioned a few, but I want to ensure that your interests and views as to what should be discussed are fully represented.

Many thanks and best,

No offense but if you are waiting on Lynton, it will need to be by phone, or without him or simply not meet. This is not meant to be critical of Lynton but it is the life he leads. Perhaps Walter could come on Feb 9. that gives three members. Victor

I am getting many comments from contract employees on late payments for the bills they submit...which apparently is the way it works for this category of persons. Sometimes it has been as high as 4 months and often 3 to 4 weeks. For persons living from pay check to pay check this is tough.

Please work the system and get a process in place where these delays do not occur if the payment request is submitted in a timely manner. In a reasonable time frame, I would be interested in hearing from you on what is being done and how this situation is being ironed out. It is a current, credible and pressing concern among lots of employees.

Distribution decisions need to follow strategy, and all BBG media properties need to be in the mix. We'll now coordinate an overall strategy and sort out the TV, radio, etc. pieces. We will likely need your support to avoid, once again, unnecessary duplication of effort. This is the practical, hands-on stuff of BBG integration.

Hi (b) (6) I'll see you tomorrow but wanted to say in advance that I want to talk to you about Burma. VOA reached an agreement in principle, as you know, with Burma to distribute selected VOA "soft" programming over domestic outlets. Now there's a return trip in the offing to follow up and discuss terms. But we also have to factor in RFA. We need an integrated BBG strategy. So I'd like to propose that you and I and our placement folks headed by (b) (6) and our VOA colleagues all sit together to talk through how we see the Burmese market/situation now and opportunities and how we best to seize them. I know you've had ideas and plans for Burma. So with the proposed VOA/IBB return trip, it's time we looked at our overall interests and strategies. Just wanted to lay this out here since it's on my mind. We'll talk tomorrow. Bruce

Dear (b) (6)

I have learned that the Board has a request from (b) (6), executive director of the US Committee for International Broadcasting, to attend our Jan 13 Board meeting in person.

I feel our webcam meetings have been a great success and consistent with President Obama's executive order of January 2009 on transparency. I feel we should also allow guests to attend our meetings in person while the Board assesses having meetings regularly where the public may attend.

I also feel that your office should advise the full Board whenever a request is made to attend our meetings. This has not been done with (b) (6). I learned of it from a third party. This email should be taken as strong support for her being allowed to attend. She is an interested citizen. She would not be disruptive. I am not certain you have the right to refuse her entry without clearing it with the Board. By what authority does your office have the right to decide who can attend or not attend our meetings?

Can individual Board members can have guests? The State Dept member, Ms. Stock, brings an assistant. There is no objection to this. Can other Board members invite guests to the meeting? What is the process for this?

If I wish to invite a guest, what process must I follow to include that person?

I urge that (b) (6) request be honored. We have far more to gain by admitting her than by denying her entry if it is legal to do so. It is foolish and self defeating to bar her from the January 13 meeting in my view.

Subject: Message from the IBB Director

Colleagues:

The merger of the IBB and BBG staffs will become effective on January 15, 2012.

This action reflects the Board's commitment to streamline and increase the efficiency of agency operations, as called for in the newly adopted 2012-2016 Strategic Plan. The merger will facilitate the development of BBG-wide strategies and objectives, strengthen oversight of program and organizational performance, and enhance collaboration among our Federal and non-Federal entities.

An organizational chart showing the restructured, merged IBB/BBG operation is attached. Here are the key changes: A new Office of Strategy and Development will lead development and implementation of strategy through coordinated planning, agency-level audience research and impact assessment, program placement, development, and international media training. The Office will work with the broadcast services to align strategy at the Agency and language service levels as well as across entities to enhance performance and meet the goals set by the Strategic Plan. It will incorporate the former BBG Office of Strategic Planning and Performance Measurement, the IBB Office of Marketing and Program Placement, and VOA Business Development. Bruce Sherman will serve as director.

The Office of Performance Review takes on enhanced responsibilities under the continued leadership of Kelu Chao. The Office will continue to conduct VOA and OCB language service research and programming reviews. It will now also be responsible for conducting management analyses of the operational effectiveness of all BBG elements and for coordinating inspections and reviews by the Office of Inspector General and the Government Accountability Office. The Office, together with the performance review elements of the non-Federal entities, will also provide feedback to help shape strategy.

The Office of Communications and External Relations is responsible for communications and outreach activities for the Board and will serve as the Board's chief advisor for Congressional and external relations. The Office also coordinates communications operations of the BBG's media networks -- VOA, RFE, RFA, MBN, and OCB. The Graphics Unit, under the continued supervision of Tuleda Johnson, will move from the Marketing and Program Placement office to the Communications office. The position of Director of the Office of Communications and External Relations was recently advertised, and I hope shortly to be able to announce the selection of the Director of this office.

The Office of New Media has been renamed the Office of Digital and Design Innovation to better reflect its role in the development and implementation of innovative projects, programs, and services across U.S. international media. The Office will continue to play a key role in expanding the use of the best core technology platforms, as well as assisting entities in executing global digital and brand strategies, but also build out the next generation of digital products that present our content in an increasingly complex media landscape. Rob Bole continues as the Director of this Office. A Board Operations Staff will be formalized under the direction of the Board Secretary and General Counsel, Paul Kollmer-Dorsey, and will continue to support the Board in its meetings and other operations.

The Secretariat staff and the Analysis and Administration Division will be combined as the Administrative and Secretariat Operations Unit. The Unit will coordinate the development, approval and codification of Agency administrative policies in the form of the Broadcasting Administrative Manual and provide Secretariat services to the BBG, along with the Division's current functions. Doris Garay-Nellius will head this Unit.

I have designated Jeff Trimble as IBB Deputy Director. Jeff will assist me in overseeing IBB operations, and will carry out special projects at my direction, including the ongoing work to create a BBG global news network, a core element of the new Strategic Plan.

While this merger is a significant step, it is only a part of an ongoing, longer-term restructuring process. In coming months we will continue to study and evaluate this new organization, with an eye toward making further changes to achieve greater efficiencies and otherwise improve our performance. I look forward to your continued cooperation and assistance as we move forward.

Jeffrey

The specific by law change is that full Board agenda must be sent out 6 days in advance. To make a change at the Board meeting it requires a majority vote of full Board. Right now it says "where practicable" and we are now voting on items where we have had three hours to look at the actual document. This happened January 13 when Walter and I were reviewing the consolidation resolution literally minutes prior to the meeting as it had been drafted from the discussion at Aspen the day before.

Dennis, I feel any committee member or another member of the full BBG Board has the right to ask the governance committee to place any item before the committee. That was your view in the past. If it now requires majority approval of each Board member to even have the committee consider an item then one Board member can be denied his/her day for even a committee to consider an item. While a majority may vote against an item going to the full Board, it should not be blocking even discussion or consideration of a matter. If this is the new procedure, then I would point out that it has NOT been voted on. It is your decision alone to implement such a policy. Please do not go down this path.

To be specific, I want a resolution considered which expresses the sense of the Board that all contractors (POVs) should be paid monies owed them within one week of their expenses being submitted if properly prepared. Right now some contract employees are going several months being paid in a less than timely manner. If you tell me a majority of the committee does not want to consider it, then you force me to take it to the full Board without benefit of committee discussion. I thought the purpose of the committee system was to air these matters at the committee level prior to Board consideration. Am I wrong?

I also feel we should discuss when we will have town hall meetings for employees and move to fully open Board meetings.

I should point out that I sent several items to you over a week ago and you misplaced my e mail requiring you to e mail me back again for my list.

Also, Dennis if you are going to ask agreement from Susan and Michael along with yourself on the topics I want discussed, then I believe I am entitled to be asked about my views on the other topics being considered February 9 and how I vote on whether they should be considered. In other words, I get to vote on all items being considered if they and you vote on my requests. If the other three members have already decided on the agenda then I have been left out of the process. I do not believe you would intentionally do this.

Sorry to start your day off this way, but I believe in fairness and all Board members being treated equally.

Thanks. Subject to agreement from the other members of the committee, we'll add these items to the agenda. With respect to some of them, they are discussion items, but I don't anticipate there will action items (i. e. formal recommendations to the full Board) that arise from this meeting. If you have specific thoughts or recommendations for by-law revision, that would be very helpful.

I think we should address low morale and what causes it (this means hearing from employees, union and management as well as HR). We need to address more rigorous requirements for notice to Board of actual resolutions and items at least a week out which does not happen now.

We need to address the new entity to be created to replace the three entities if they cease to exist. How is Lobo replaced when he departs? Bylaws need revision. I may have more.

Thanks. Are you looking at Feb 10? or the day before? I assume the day before on Feb 9 due to innovation taking most of the day. The list we need to review are frankly extensive and I doubt one meeting will do it.

You still have my earlier e mail. Nothing has changed there from my point of view. I have more items but doubt if a one day meeting can handle them all. Report on my visit to Greenville transmission facility and its future, contract employees and their future (we need to hear from them too)....how BBG conducts oversight...if there is a change in White House who replaces Dick Lobo as CEO...it could become vacant on Jan 20, 2013.

I can and will add more when we are together this week. I have strong and deep concerns on several other issues. Victor

Happy New Year. We are trying to schedule the next Governance Comm meeting around the time of the innovation meetings in DC next month. We are working to lock down Michael Lynton's participation which, as you might expect, is somewhat challenging but I am hopeful we can get it done.

Could you send me any agenda items you would wish to see included? You had previously mentioned a few, but I want to ensure that your interests and views as to what should be discussed are fully represented.

Many thanks and best,

The specific by law change is that full Board agenda must be sent out 6 days in advance. To make a change at the Board meeting it requires a majority vote of full Board. Right now it says "where practicable" and we are now voting on items where we have had three hours to look at the actual document. This happened January 13 when Walter and I were reviewing the consolidation resolution literally minutes prior to the meeting as it had been drafted from the discussion at Aspen the day before.

Dennis, I feel any committee member or another member of the full BBG Board has the right to ask the governance committee to place any item before the committee. That was your view in the past. If it now requires majority approval of each Board member to even have the committee consider an item then one Board member can be denied his/her day for even a committee to consider an item. While a majority may vote against an item going to the full Board, it should not be blocking even discussion or consideration of a matter. If this is the new procedure, then I would point out that it has NOT been voted on. It is your decision alone to implement such a policy. Please do not go down this path.

To be specific, I want a resolution considered which expresses the sense of the Board that all contractors (POVs) should be paid monies owed them within one week of their expenses being submitted if properly prepared. Right now some contract employees are going several months being paid in a less than timely manner. If you tell me a majority of the committee does not want to consider it, then you force me to take it to the full Board without benefit of committee discussion. I thought the purpose of the committee system was to air these matters at the committee level prior to Board consideration. Am I wrong?

I also feel we should discuss when we will have town hall meetings for employees and move to fully open Board meetings.

I should point out that I sent several items to you over a week ago and you misplaced my e mail requiring you to e mail me back again for my list.

Also, Dennis if you are going to ask agreement from Susan and Michael along with yourself on the topics I want discussed, then I believe I am entitled to be asked about my views on the other topics being considered February 9 and how I vote on whether they should be considered. In other words, I get to vote on all items being considered if they and you vote on my requests. If the other three members have already decided on the agenda then I have been left out of the process. I do not believe you would intentionally do this.

Sorry to start your day off this way, but I believe in fairness and all Board members being treated equally.

We need to address the new entity to be created to replace the three entities if they cease to exist. How is Lobo replaced when he departs? Bylaws need revision. I may have more.

Is the town hall meeting for MBN employees only or all BBG/IBB employees as well. This town hall open meeting should not replace the one we have held annually in Cohen Bldg. Seems late in the day to start BBG at 4 and end it at 5 in time to hit rush hour traffic (although much of it will be leaving Washington). Our last January 13 BBG meeting went almost two hours.

I think the March BBG meeting should start earlier around 3 or 330 as I can see the March meeting going over one hour. Limiting the BBG meeting to one hour limits serious discussion of current and future issues. We also have a governance committee meeting February 9 which may produce recommendations for the March meeting.

Thanks. Are you looking at Feb 10? or the day before? I assume the day before on Feb 9 due to innovation taking most of the day. The list we need to review are frankly extensive and I doubt one meeting will do it.

You still have my earlier e mail. Nothing has changed there from my point of view. I have more items but doubt if a one day meeting can handle them all. Report on my visit to Greenville transmission facility and its future, contract employees and their future (we need to hear from them too)...how BBG conducts oversight...if there is a change in White House who replaces Dick Lobo as CEO...it could become vacant on Jan 20, 2013.

I can and will add more when we are together this week. I have strong and deep concerns on several other issues. Victor

Happy New Year. We are trying to schedule the next Governance Comm meeting around the time of the innovation meetings in DC next month. We are working to lock down Michael Lynton's participation which, as you might expect, is somewhat challenging but I am hopeful we can get it done.

Could you send me any agenda items you would wish to see included? You had previously mentioned a few, but I want to ensure that your interests and views as to what should be discussed are fully represented.

Many thanks and best,

I think it is helpful to look at what President Obama has said about the Freedom of Information Act which can be found on the White House web site.

As a federal agency we should strive to turn his well written words on this issue into reality.

I am getting many comments from contract employees on late payments for the bills they submit...which apparently is the way it works for this category of persons. Sometimes it has been as high as 4 months and often 3 to 4 weeks. For persons living from pay check to pay check this is tough.

Please work the system and get a process in place where these delays do not occur if the payment request is submitted in a timely manner. In a reasonable time frame, I would be interested in hearing from you on what is being done and how this situation is being ironed out. It is a current, credible and pressing concern among lots of employees.

Colleagues,

Dick Lobo

Dear Colleagues,

Today I told the White House that I'm stepping down from the BBG.

As I discussed with some of you, I'm taking on another big writing project, so I won't be able to give the BBG the time it needs and deserves.

Our terms have all either expired or are about to, and I think the board can be proud of its work. We developed over two years a strategic plan to streamline and consolidate the agency, and we adopted unanimously at our last meeting the two resolutions that would implement it. We've also hired great new entity heads -- David Ensor at Voice of America, Steve Korn at Radio Free Europe, and Carlos Garcia-Perez at Radio and TV Marti -- to join the strong leaders at the other entities.

It's been exciting to serve on the BBG. And I'm available when you need me to help or cheer from the sidelines. Thanks for all your help and friendship.

All the best, Walter

AFGE 1812 does not represent contract employees. They simply might know some of the issues. This is what makes it difficult to ask a few persons to speak for the contractors as they do not currently have an association which speaks for them. However, if our governance committee is to have credibility, we must hear from a real live contract employee(s)..not just management.

Certainly we should hear from the IBB Director as well as others. This is the first time in Board history that Board members have listened directly as a committee to contract employees and management and tried to learn in a logical way what the issues are. While I think it is important to invite AFGE 1812 and their president, (b) (6) we should hear from several individual employees..I am not certain an hour will be sufficient but it is a good start. I suggest setting aside 90 minutes and perhaps it will turn out to be less. The problem is that the contract employees are not directly organized and as such do not have a designated spokesman such as a union although AFGE 1812 is well versed in many of the issues.

The current situation is such in my view that contract employees might form an association to represent them as there is deep unrest. This meeting will offer hope that some progress is possible. You might look at the list of those who attended the brown bag lunch (assuming a list was taken or someone wrote down the name of some who spoke).

I am delighted to see the proposed new sign for the Edward R. Murrow facility in Greenville. I urge BBG/IBB to hold a dedication ceremony for its installation, invite Congressman Jones and his staff along with local leaders to attend, have an open house at facility to show off what is there. Dick, perhaps you could attend. I would try to go. This is a great opportunity to showcase an important facility to the community and to honor the employees who work there.

Let's not let this opportunity pass us by. I look forward to hearing from you on this.

Subject: Walter resignation story missing from BBG web site news

As I told Tish this morning (who is simply following 'guidance' from someone) it is really strange and ironic that BBG which prides itself on the current news has NOT a word on Walter's resignation which is in all media elsewhere. Only when one goes to current Board membership is there a note that he resigned January 27.

We should place an item on the front page of web site stating he has resigned. The chair resigning is big news. It is a fact. Lynn Weil being named is an item there so is Lobo going on a committee in Germany. But nothing on the chair resigning? Why? It makes no sense.

of course I am only one Board member voicing a view. Until Tish gets 'guidance' from whoever I guess BBG will continue to ignore our own internal big news. Admittedly Walter did not want a story so it could be a short item. But the BBG chair is a public position. It is news when the chair resigns and it is NOT a secret from our own web site.

Dick or Jeff, can you get this corrected? I am happy to join in a statement praising Walter for his service as I hope the while Board does but the news on his resignation is now 5 days old. Whoever gave Tish guidance should tell Board members why this is so.

I think a postponement would be tragic as such high hopes already exist for this discussion and it is well known it is being considered. As poor as the proposal is I think going forward is preferable to moving it off 5 months to July when the issue is years old. As for postponing to March 7 there will not be time given the 70th anniversary event for VOA and all day on March 8 unless we convene on March 6 or morning of March 7. I could agree to a March 7 AM meeting but these folks need to be heard sooner not later.

I appreciate your kind words about my efforts but this has raised expectations...anything beyond a modest delay (weeks) will be badly received. Victor

Victor:

Thank you for your email. Given the complexity and seriousness of the two human capital matters to be presented and discussed at next week's Governance Committee meeting, and because you have expressed concerns about the proposed framework for that portion of the meeting, I propose the following alternatives so that we can attempt to achieve consensus on how best to proceed in bringing these two important matters to the Board's attention.

First, we postpone these discussions until the next meeting of the Governance Committee, which could be held in advance of the March Board meeting.

Second, we postpone the discussions and place them on the agenda of the next public meeting of the full Board, which is scheduled to be held in the Cohen Auditorium in July. The full plenary Board could then participate in the dialogue and hear directly from employees, union representatives and contractors. As you know, these public meetings are webcast and, given the size of the auditorium, could be open to in-person attendance by employees and the public.

Since your email also raised questions and concerns about the process or mechanism involving how participants for these discussions would be selected, I would welcome your specific suggestions as to how best to structure both the selection of participants and the presentations themselves.

Again, I believe you raise important points and concerns, but making determinations about how to proceed involves considering a number of complex and inter-related issues, some of which may have implications for how the Board conducts its business in the future on a variety of matters beyond the present human capital discussions. For this reason, I believe it is important to ensure serious discussions and buy-in about how to proceed, taking into account your thoughts and suggestions, on the part of all the members of the Governance Committee and potentially other governors who are not members of the Governance Committee.

Having said all that, I want to reiterate that all of us are absolutely committed to an open, frank, respectful and responsive hearing of the concerns of employees and contractors on an ongoing basis and to making whatever improvements in these areas we can. Victor, as I said in my email to you below, these are matters we all care about very much; I want to reiterate our appreciation for your advocacy of them and your important efforts in keeping the Board focused on making improvements.

Again, I believe postponing this matter will allow for your concerns and suggestions to be considered and addressed in a thoughtful way and will help facilitate us proceeding on the basis of consensus among committee and other Board members. Most importantly, though, I believe it will improve the results of our deliberations and lead to better results for the important topics related to employees and contractors which we are committed to address. I look forward to hearing your views.

Best,

Dennis

This legal distinction in asking unions to leave when contractors talk and contractors not to be present when union talks is unfair and sends the wrong message. We should be open and let all hear.

What really bothers me here is that Director Lobo and BBG/IBB staff are not asking the employees themselves how they want to be heard. It is being imposed upon them based on high level management with deputy legal counsel input. Low morale will continue if we do not bring them into the planning process. Furthermore, contract employees never receive the same survey which OPM sends to federal employees.

We should ask the unions and the contractor whether they like the Lobo suggestions.

While I appreciate Dennis' nice comment on my advocacy for these folks, I should point out that the Lobo memo did not seek out my thoughts on this should be structured and I have spent more time with employees in the Cohen Bldg in the past 19 months than any other Board member visiting almost all language services.

I respectfully disagree with Dick Lobo's plan and ask for changes.

Subject: Recommendation for Human Capital Discussion

Dennis,

After some consideration, I would like to make a recommendation about how to handle the human capital agenda item for the upcoming governance committee meeting. The two major facets of this discussion will focus on low employee morale and contractor issues.

With regard to employee morale, I propose that I begin by making a brief statement about the factors in our agency that contribute to low morale, as well as offer some actions we are taking to address the issue. After my initial statement, I recommend that we invite representatives from the three Unions to be present to submit oral or written statements about their views on employee morale issues. At this time, the Governors can ask questions and discuss what was presented. I will be prepared to address the questions or concerns raised by the unions and will have staff available to provide more details on steps each office is taking to address problems in that unit.

Once we wrap up on employee morale, we can have the union representatives leave and invite three contractors in for discussion of contractor-specific issues. We will ask for volunteers among agency contractors who would like to speak to the governance committee about their experiences with BBG, particularly with delayed payments, lengthy service, and problems communicating with the various people involved in executing their contract. Again, I?ll begin this section of the meeting with a brief opening statement summarizing what we know about contractor concerns and what we are doing to address those concerns. At this time, we will welcome the contractors to speak about their experiences. The Governors can ask questions and discuss the contracting issues raised. I, along with my staff, can offer additional information about how we plan to address the problems raised.

I would like to stress a couple of points about this agenda item. The union and contractor representative should only be present for their respective discussions. None of the three unions represents agency contractors; therefore the unions have no role to play in addressing contractor issues. Conversely, in order to ensure the distinction between contractors and employees, the contractor representatives should not be present for discussion of employee morale.

Furthermore, it is important to keep the discussion on human capital at the strategic level. Discussions about employee morale and contractor relations can easily devolve into unique circumstances specific to a particular office or individual. But the value for this committee is to hear agency-wide issues and opportunities for improvement.

Please let me know if, after you consider and discuss this plan with the other committee members, we need to make alternate arrangements for our presentation on human capital.

While I do not object to a 4 week postponement on this, I would like an interim report from staff on the two contractor meetings held so far including the one today. I assume someone took notes and I would like to see them. Since we have the Lobo memo on his thoughts on the meeting we should discuss fully next Thurs how to structure the March 7 meeting. I feel strongly there should NOT be any more postponements and March 7 is a real date we will live with. We need also to discuss who presides at full BBG meeting and committee recommendations on how to have an interim replacement for Walter.

Victor:

Thanks for your note. In order to adequately address your concerns and objections to the previously proposed format, I believe it is worth waiting a few weeks. This short postponement will allow us to achieve the most consensus-driven process and result. In addition, I had been informed that Michael Lynton was now unable be present in Washington for the meeting and Susan McCue was unavailable. So, for all these reasons, I suggest we postpone this agenda item until a meeting to be scheduled for Thurs March 7 in the morning (exact timing TBD), before the VOA anniversary events.

The committee will meet next Thursday as planned to consider all the other important matters on its agenda.

Also, FYI, this morning I received an email from [REDACTED] (b) (6) who as you know represents one of our unions, asking if he would be invited to attend and address an upcoming Governance Committee meeting. He also made certain points about format and process. Another advantage of a short postponement is that it will allow [REDACTED] (b) (6) and others to have time to prepare while at the same time allowing us to consider the format and participant questions. I will respond to [REDACTED] (b) (6) ASAP and will copy you and the other members of the committee on our correspondence.

Thanks again for your leadership on these matters. I look forward to hearing your specific thoughts and recommendations as to the appropriate format and method of choosing participants and will look forward to our meeting in March on these vitally important topics.

Dear Governor Ashe,

Thanks for your note, we look forward to having you here at the RFE/RL DC office to recognize Radio Azadi on its 10th anniversary.

We're all set for 9:30; in order to avoid conflicting with the 10:00AM start of the Commission on Innovation meetings, we should close the ceremony no later than 9:50AM.

For your use I enclose a set of possible talking points about Radio Azadi; if there is any way that I can be of further assistance, please let me know.

Sincerely, [REDACTED] (b) (6)

Thanks, Victor. Happy to discuss the 3/7 meeting next week. Some of the determinations about format have wider implications, so I think any decisions about them should necessarily eventually require input from all committee members.

Likewise, I think a discussion about board leadership going forward is also worth having, but I'm sure we all agree that that matter is important to all board members and will require input from everyone.

I think we should discuss the format of the March 7 governance meeting dealing with contractors at the Feb 9 meeting. While I do not object to a 4 week postponement on this, I would like an interim report from staff on the two contractor meetings held so far including the one today. I assume someone took notes and I would like to see them. Since we have the Lobo memo on his thoughts on the meeting we should discuss fully next Thurs how to structure the March 7 meeting. I feel strongly there should NOT be any more postponements and March 7 is a real date we will live with. We need also to discuss who presides at full BBG meeting and committee recommendations on how to have an interim replacement for Walter.

Thanks for your note. In order to adequately address your concerns and objections to the previously proposed format, I believe it is worth waiting a few weeks. This short postponement will allow us to achieve the most consensus-driven process and result. In addition, I had been informed that Michael Lynton was now unable be present in Washington for the meeting and Susan McCue was unavailable. So, for all these reasons, I suggest we postpone this agenda item until a meeting to be scheduled for Thurs March 7 in the morning (exact timing TBD), before the VOA anniversary events.

The committee will meet next Thursday as planned to consider all the other important matters on its agenda.

Also, FYI, this morning I received an email from Tim Shamble, who as you know represents one of our unions, asking if he would be invited to attend and address an upcoming Governance Committee meeting. He also made certain points about format and process. Another advantage of a short postponement is that it will allow Tim and others to have time to prepare while at the same time allowing us to consider the format and participant questions. I will respond to Tim ASAP and will copy you and the other members of the committee on our correspondence.

Thanks again for your leadership on these matters. I look forward to hearing your specific thoughts and recommendations as to the appropriate format and method of choosing participants and will look forward to our meeting in March on these vitally important topics.

Best,

Dennis

BBG Governors should be advised immediately when allegations like this arise. Even if the allegations reflect poorly on us we need to know. We nned to know if the allegations are untrue.. If the truth is hard to ascertain we should know that too. There should be a report at the March 8 meeting but also an interim report to all Governors as soon as VOA can put the facts together.

Victor,

As I wrote to you, our Russian Service immediately responded to the person's statement that he had not given the interview with an on the record apology to Russian readers, and a commitment to improve their efforts to assure that their interviewees are who they say they are. That said, as I mentioned, we are virtually sure that the person in question did indeed give VOA the interview, but then had a change of heart about whether it was wise to have done so, and put out this denial. He is a blogger--veracity is not always their strong suit.

We did not put the story into English immediately, frankly thinking it was not important enough for wider audiences. Now that this pickup has occurred, I am working on a possible blog about it for next week.

Dear Governors,

I am sending this message to you at the request of the IBB Director.

The Governors may wish to consider requesting a special telephonic meeting of the Board in order to discuss the issue of Board leadership. The agenda could include the conduct of Board operations in the absence of a Chair and the selection of an interim Presiding Governor.

Under BBG By-Laws, a special telephonic meeting of the Board can be called on 48-hours notice. At least four (4) Governors must request such a meeting in order for the meeting to be called.

If such a meeting is of interest, we suggest that it be held this Saturday, February 11, at 11 a.m. EDT.

Staff will make necessary arrangements to prepare for and conduct the meeting, including setting up a dial-in number. For your information, such a meeting would be subject to Government in the Sunshine Act requirements. If the meeting is called, it will be recorded and made available to the public as soon as possible to fulfill the public observation requirement.

Please let us know by return email if you wish to request this meeting, and if you can participate at the suggested time.

Thank you.

Jeff, how will I be reimbursed for this call as I will be calling in from London? It will have to be from the hotel which will not be cheap..like $4 a minute which I deeply regret.I will have it on my hotel bill which I can submit for re-imbursement. I prefer due to cost to have the call on Monday or any day afterwards when I am in the USA and there is not a cost which could reach $120 if 30 minutes long. Therefore I should not be counted as asking for the meeting on Saturday. I would agree to asking for the meeting any day next week after 2:30 PM on Monday February 13. Obviously if this goes forward on Sat I will participate with the new time of 2:30 PM assuming I can reach the designated number from UK.

That is not a criticism of Dick for whom I have the highest fondness but rather a desire from me to hear in some depth what the issues are here and how much we have to pay out interest for lateness, how forms filled out may be incorrect and then rejected. Numerous issues here.

in the absence of any other proposal, everyone can take a turn at it starting in reverse alphabetical order a month at a time. This would make a full cycle in 7 or 8 months depending on the State rep acting. By that time perhaps a new chair would have been named and confirmed. Sec Stock is no longer on our Board and has been replaced by former Amb Kathleen Stephens effective immediately. Obviously there are other options such as one person doing it, or splitting it between two persons. In the meantime, someone needs to preside at the March 8 meeting and go over agenda with Lobo and Trimble. Victor Ashe

Dear Governors:

I am writing to request your participation in two important telephone conferences this Thursday, February 9.

At 1:30 pm at the request of Gov. Meehan, Chair of RFA, we would like to have a call with Governors, selected senior staff and VOA/RFA representatives in order to brief the Board and solicit input or guidance on shaping our response to recent developments in Myanmar. As we speak, IBB representatives are in Myanmar negotiating with the government on certain issues, including the broadcast of VOA and RFA Burmese programming. Several Governors have expressed interest in scheduling a trip to Myanmar in order to represent BBG's interests and possibly to sign a broadcasting agreement. While this matter has a major operational component, the visibility and importance of this opportunity throughout the USG may warrant the attention and the direct participation by one or more Governors and entity heads. Your views on this strategic matter would be appreciated.

At 2:00 pm, at the beginning of the scheduled Governance Committee meeting being convened here in Washington, Committee Chair Mulhaupt suggested other Governors be invited to participate in a discussion regarding the managing of Board activities and meetings in the absence of a Board Chairman. He welcomes as many Board members as are able to participate telephonically in this discussion. The Governance Committee would then attempt to develop recommendations on this important topic at its meeting, but would greatly appreciate the views of as many colleagues as possible.

We will send a call-in number for these telephone conferences. Please let me know if you will be able to join one or both calls on Thursday.

Thanks.

It has always been my understanding that an individual Governor may place any topic or resolution he/she wants on the full Board agenda by right. Whether the Board actually hears it or decides on it would be up to the full Board when it meets. This notice complies with all advance time requirements. Since we no longer have a chair I am not sure how "procedurally" you plan on reminding the Governors of my proposals. My view is that only the Board in meeting can remove a topic asked for by a Governor..not by a poll without Board discussion. What is your understanding on this? I believe I and any other Governor am entitled to have my requests placed on the agenda for March 8.

As one Board member I formally request that the issue of contractor employees be placed on the March 8 BBG Board meeting and that (b) (6) AFGE 1812 union president be invited to attend and respond to any questions if any Governor has any. I also want a discussion of late payments from the appropriate person.

It has always been my understanding that an individual Governor may place any topic or resolution he/she wants on the full Board agenda by right. Whether the Board actually hears it or decides on it would be up to the full Board when it meets. This notice complies with all advance time requirements. Since we no longer have a chair I am not sure how "procedurally" you plan on reminding the Governors of my proposals. My view is that only the Board in meeting can remove a topic asked for by a Governor..not by a poll without Board discussion. What is your understanding on this?

I believe I and any other Governor am entitled to have my requests placed on the agenda for March 8.

I am willing to request such a meeting on or after 3PM EST on Monday February 13. We should all we can to include all Governors. There is time to do this next week and still be several weeks prior to the March 8 BBG meeting.

Jeff, how will I be reimbursed for this call as I will be calling in from London? It will have to be from the hotel which will not be cheap..like $4 a minute which I deeply regret.I will have it on my hotel bill which I can submit for re-imbursement. I prefer due to cost to have the call on Monday or any day afterwards when I am in the USA and there is not a cost which could reach $120 if 30 minutes long. Therefore I should not be counted as asking for the meeting on Saturday. I would agree to asking for the meeting any day next week after 2:30 PM on Monday February 13. All good points. I have talked to our current Ambassador to Hungary which conversation I do not choose to place on e mail. I have also spoken to former Ambassador (b) (6) who has genuine concerns.

I think just discussing the matter at BBG in an open session on March 8 sends a signal this is being watched closely and the new Hungarian media law triggers real worries. It is listed on RFE agenda also for March 8 but since that meeting is NOT open it does not send a signal of concern.

I think it is important that the Orban government know new laws which might restrict media access are being noticed elsewhere. Your points Enders are all valid ones and I do not seek a resolution of the matter at the March 8 meeting but rather a discussion.

Dear Victor,

You raise an important issue that deserves BBG attention. At the German Marshall Fund, where I work, we have been watching the deterioration of liberal society generally in Hungary with concern. A few thoughts that might be useful in framing any discussion the Board undertakes:

1. Re-starting broadcasting to Hungary must be paid for by cuts elsewhere in USIB, assuming that Congress does not allocate a new source of funding.
2. Hungary is a member of the European Union, and any move to initiate broadcasts from any American government station to Hungary because it is backsliding is a political statement that is likely to be met with strong resistance in both Brussels and Foggy Bottom. Regardless of the merits of the case, it is hard for me to imagine that these twin political hurdle can be negotiated. But I may be wrong.
3. Hungarian media is under pressure, but Hungarians generally have access to all the media available to most Europeans. It will be hard to make the case that, like China, Hungary lacks access to a broad diversity of media sources.

My guess is that [REDACTED] (b) (6) letter to the WP will be read in Budapest and Brussels with great attention. Let's hope it is enough of a wakeup call to reverse some of the more ominous trends emerging in Hungary.

Thanks for raising this issue.

I am not informed as to what your criteria are for establishing broadcasts into a country. But I would be more than happy to brief you on how we see the state of media freedom in Hungary. There are opposition news papers that continue to be published, and local (as well as foreign) websites that continue to post freely. The Burke Award is named after former BBG Chairman David Burke and is presented to U.S. international broadcasters who demonstrate exceptional performance, including bravery and reporting under extreme hardship. The broadcasters' stories must enlighten and inform listeners and exhibit a commitment to the free exchange of ideas. Each network is eligible for one Burke Award each calendar year. Each award carries a prize of up to $2500, plus a certificate from the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

Thank you very much for reaching out to us. Of course, I have seen the Op-Ed you refer to in the Washington Post. I am not informed as to what your criteria are for establishing broadcasts into a country. But I would be more than happy to brief you on how we see the state of media freedom in Hungary. There are opposition news papers that continue to be published, and local (as well as foreign) websites that continue to post freely. You might also look at the websites of the Hungarian television news stations. Enders

All good points. I have talked to our current Ambassador to Hungary which conversation I do not choose to place on e mail. I have also spoken to former Ambassador (b) (6) who has genuine concerns.

I think just discussing the matter at BBG in an open session on March 8 sends a signal this is being watched closely and the new Hungarian media law triggers real worries. It is listed on RFE agenda also for March 8 but since that meeting is NOT open it does not send a signal of concern.

I think it is important that the Orban government know new laws which might restrict media access are being noticed elsewhere. Your points Enders are all valid ones and I do not seek a resolution of the matter at the March 8 meeting but rather a discussion.

Dear Victor,

You raise an important issue that deserves BBG attention. At the German Marshall Fund, where I work, we have been watching the deterioration of liberal society generally in Hungary with concern. A few thoughts that might be useful in framing any discussion the Board undertakes:

1. Re-starting broadcasting to Hungary must be paid for by cuts elsewhere in USIB, assuming that Congress does not allocate a new source of funding.

2. Hungary is a member of the European Union, and any move to initiate broadcasts from any American government station to Hungary because it is backsliding is a political statement that is likely to be met with strong resistance in both Brussels and Foggy Bottom. Regardless of the merits of the case, it is hard for me to imagine that these twin political hurdle can be negotiated. But I may be wrong.

3. Hungarian media is under pressure, but Hungarians generally have access to all the media available to most Europeans. It will be hard to make the case that, like China, Hungary lacks access to a broad diversity of media sources.

My guess is that [REDACTED] (b) (6) letter to the WP will be read in Budapest and Brussels with great attention. Let's hope it is enough of a wakeup call to reverse some of the more ominous trends emerging in Hungary.

Thanks for raising this issue.

Best. Enders

To be honest, while I think research is important and needed, I think the current proposed layoffs and reduction in services force difficult choices upon us with which reasonable people can differ.

This is where we may part company on this issue as I am troubled by spending 10 million a year ($8.8 million one year) while 200 fine employees are discharged and services like Tibetan language are reduced. I wonder if we should not cut even more in the Gallup contact for a few years to produce the savings needed to keep more of these lost jobs and Tibetan language. I feel sure Congress will take steps to halt the reduction in Tibetan language and based on what I know I would agree with Congress on that. Our priorities need further thought in my view.

Victor – Thanks for your follow-up. A by-law change is not required in order to create the presiding Governor's authorities. This can be done by Board decision. So, if we follow the Board's precedent, the Board would consider and adopt the recommendation of the Governance Committee about the authorities and roles of the Presiding Governor -- including the text of a proposed bylaw change -- at the March 8 meeting. The Board decision would go into effect immediately and could then be reflected subsequently in a formal bylaw change as a housekeeping matter. Thanks.

How do you propose that the Board vote on a bylaw change for which it has not received a copy of 21 days in advance? I still have not seen the by law change proposal and I had asked you for it.
I had not seen the agenda until this evening when it was emailed out. The text of the by law change is simply not available even now. Current bylaws say 21 day notice...this means the full text...not just notice that the subject matter will be considered. Of course amendments are always in order both at the committee level and by the full Board. In other words the full Board cannot vote on this until April without violating the current bylaw requirement of 21 days notice.

As you point out, the issue will be dealt with in the Governance Committee at its March 7 meeting. It is on the agenda which was sent you yesterday. We are planning to propose a bylaw amendment to meet your request, as I explained to you by email last week.

A report of the Governance Committee is scheduled during both the Governors' briefing and the open meeting on March 8. The intention is for the Committee to report out on this issue and others considered the day before.

I am not clear why it would have made sense for me to propose a bylaw change to the plenary Board 21 days before it would have been considered by the Governance Committee when the change itself is on the Committee meeting agenda only 1 day before the plenary Board meeting. It is certainly possible that the Committee members will propose amendments to the draft.

In any case, my intention all along has been to comply with your requests, Victor. So, I really don't understand the nature of your objection or why you are raising it in this email. (I would have been happy to speak with you about it today when you were in the BBG offices. I was readily available to meet with you if you had requested.)

In any case, I will be available all day tomorrow to meet with you in person or by phone at [REDACTED] (b) (6). I would be delighted to speak with you about this or any other topic. Is there a time that would be convenient for you to talk?

Thanks, Victor. Have a nice evening. [REDACTED] (b) (6)

I had requested to you several weeks ago by law changes to be voted on at the March 8 meeting to deal with the presiding Governor issue. I do not see it on the proposed agenda. I have not received in a timely manner the proposed change either. The current bylaws clearly state in section 1.02 that a proposed by law change must go to full Board 21 days in advance of the meeting. While it is true the governance committee will consider this on March 7 at my request, you do not appear to have carried out my request sent to you over 10 days ago asking that this bylaw change appear on the March 8 BBG Board agenda and that the text of it be sent to all Governors in compliance with the time frame spelled out in the bylaws which is 21 days. This now means that the Board cannot consider any by law change until its April meeting. Even if the March 7 governance committee approves and recommends by law changes failure to comply with the 21 notice means this now goes to the April meeting.

Perhaps you can explain why this is as we had by e mail discussed this more than 21 days in advance of the March meeting and I had asked this proposed change be sent to all Governors in compliance with the bylaws.

Dear Governors,

Attached is a draft agenda for the March 2012 meetings. This draft agenda has been reviewed and approved by presiding Governor Lynton.

There will be two sessions of the Governance Committee meeting, March 7 and March 9, to be held at the Cohen Building.

All BBG-related meetings will be held on Thursday, March 8, at MBN Headquarters in Springfield, VA, from 9 am to 4:30 pm.

We welcome your comments and requests for additional topics and/or other changes in the closed session (Governors' Briefing) or in the open BBG meeting.

While some Governors might prefer to handle their own transportation, we would be happy to make arrangements for a group transfer from the Cohen Building to MBN as well as a return transfer. Please indicate your preference at your earliest convenience.

Thank you.

But we want to show our gratitude to the VOA establishment and all the people who have worked with us and supported us throughout the years, so we decided to go ahead with the party.

How do you propose that the Board vote on a bylaw change for which it has not received a copy of 21 days in advance? I still have not seen the by law change proposal and I had asked you for it. I had not seen the agenda until this evening when it was emailed out. The text of the by law change is simply not available even now. Current bylaws say 21 day notice...this means the full text...not just notice that the subject matter will be considered. Of course amendments are always in order both at the committee level and by the full Board. In other words the full Board cannot vote on this until April without violating the current bylaw requirement of 21 days notice.

Naturally I am sorry that the fuller trip you and others had envisioned for Burma/Myanmar has met headwinds from State. However, my original purpose for the trip had little to do with the expansion which you and others such [REDACTED] (b) (6) planned. Rather it was purely for Michael Meehan as chair of RFA and me as vice chair to accompany Libby Liu, president of RFA to Myanmar as she explores potential for RFA activities in Myanmar so we could learn more about the opening in Myanmar.

I think it is most unfortunate and unfair that this limited purpose also be negated because State is reluctant to move ahead with BBG/VOA and others on the more expanded purpose of the trip you had hoped for in March.

Therefore, I shall continue to seek approval for the limited purpose of the original trip and I trust you will support this in your talks with State. There is no reason this need be an either or choice but both can work out.

I am simply unable to go in April and most of May as planning for this trip has been in the works for over 4 weeks now and other plans in my life for April and May moved ahead.

On topic 4, third item on March 7..what is this all about? Obviously I receive the most contacts from employees which I am happy to receive. I enjoy hearing from them. Susan McCue has received many too as she takes the time to meet, talk and have coffee with many. Does not mean I always agree but I feel I am a better Governor hearing directly. Are we now dreaming up rules of the road on how to talk and listen to employees? Surely not. We all have different approaches. We are individually appointed Governors with unique backgrounds. We have actually made some progress on employee communication but morale is still at the bottom. We are working on late payments issue but we have a ways to go. We should be encouraging employees to speak to us. Unfortunately some employees feel management does not listen as closely as they should. Some fear management.

Current union negotiations on a new contract are going poorly I am told. Management is seeking to reduce their rights under prior contracts I am told. The Board needs to be briefed on the current state of labor negotiations which is done in our name but without our knowledge. Our focus should be laser like to improve morale. Late payments must end. Thirty days to pay is too long. We should reduce it to 20 days. Flu shots has been resolved but its existence symbolized foolish policies which created differences between federal employees and contractors. Let's work together to make positive changes and not seem afraid of dialogue between employees and Board members.

I question what this topic is really aimed at. (b) (6) please enlighten me.

We should look at the question of when BBG appeals those lawsuits which may cost millions such as the OCB one we lost recently and could still lose (if so at a cost of several millions). We should look at how certain sections are closed or reduced which frankly we were not briefed on...such as the Tibetan Service which I am hearing lots about. These moves impact morale. We are in the midst of a most difficult time for BBG due to budget cuts and potential layoffs. We must review the optics as well as the reality. We should ask ourselves how certain actions will be viewed in our work force, by the Hill, by those people across the US who have interest in certain aspects of our broadcasts.

thanks for letting me know...another approach is to have a meeting of contractors where they choose their own at the meeting. The main thing is to produce a solid cross section which is diverse...not all the same age or language service which a lottery (drawing) might do. It will be helpful to have a bio on whoever they are and for contractors I suggest at least 5 persons to assure diversity. This is different from the unions as their memberships are different too.

I appreciate your prompt call back and hope the ticket can be issued today so United can start its upgrade process. It is a long series of flights (20 hours) so an upgrade at my cost is something I need if possible.

Yes I need it there...not possible to get it to me here in Knoxville by tomorrow (Wed) which would be best. In the future there should be a week turn around time...3 days just is not adequate for serious review.

this is only three days turnaround..which really is not much. I do not have the ability to print this out at my house. It is too late today to fed ex it to me in Knoxville...a printed copy. Perhaps you can have it this Thursday at the Park Hyatt in Washington at 24th and M Streets for me to review and give my thoughts. I hope to get over to the Cohen Bldg on Thursday afternoon. Must the deadline be at 4PM this Friday?

It does not change my plans at all as I had planned on going to Laos where no BBG Governor has ever visited anyway. I will still seek country clearance from the charge (we do not have an Ambassador) in Yangon to enter Burma and go if granted. If denied country clearance for Burma by our embassy there, then I will visit the two transmission stations of IBB in Thailand (one in the north) as well as go to Phnom Penh during the 4 days I would have been in Burma. In other words, there is still work to do...just in different areas.

here is what I suggest...in terms of the ticket. the United ticket from DC to Bangkok and back on March 23 as well as the Laos portion part should still be issued. Make the ticket on Thai air into Burma on March 13 and out on March 16 a separate ticket so it can be cancelled if needed without jeopardizing the remainder of the ticket. I will keep the schedule I have for Laos. We will not know if Burma is a go or no go for a week or so. In the meantime, secure information from (b) (6) on what is involved on seeing the IBB transmission stations in Thailand...time needed to get there and how to get there....

Country clearance cables should go out tomorrow to our embassies in Laos, Thailand,Burma and Cambodia...Make sure that cable says I do NOT need any support from embassy....would pay a call only on chief of mission or DCM or charge.

I just learned from Bruce about Burma post's suggestion for an April visit instead of March.

That said, what would you like us to do with your current travel itinerary?

Apologies that your ticket was not issued today. I understand that the Travel Office will call you in the morning to make any changes, confirm your itinerary and issue your ticket.

I will follow-up with you in the morning as well.

Governors,

Pls see forwarded here a long string of emails, ending with State's recommendation that the BBG Burma trip be postponed until April, after the Burmese elections. If you read down, you will see the communication in full context. I have noted to our State colleagues multiple times (b) (6) intentions to travel in March and your interest in accompanying her. I have also petitioned to execute an agreement on the English learning programs soonest to allow a signing ceremony during the trip. Despite this, for the various reasons you will see explained below, State suggests we postpone by a month. Would that meet with your approval? If I might weigh in and say if we can use the delay as leverage to get our agreement fully vetted by State Legal, then it might be to our advantage to agree to the short delay. Also, there is the counsel State is providing on most opportune timing and our long-term interest in keeping State and the local diplomatic corps on our side.

Via another email string I will forward to you, you will see one of the Burmese contacts has asked to see our affiliate agreement, indicating interest on their part. As we must clear the agreement through State, and State has not yet provided clearance and might not do so before the trip, we are momentarily hung up, awaiting the approval. Pls. know BBG GC, at my request, continues to bird-dog the process and just moments ago contacted State Legal again to move matters along.

All this to update and advise you of where we stand, and to get your guidance. I'm happy to discuss this with you on the phone in greater detail. Thx, Bruce

Bruce;

Post certainly welcomes the support of BBG and a potential visit by David and some of the governors. I would not assume that L will clear the agreement before a planned trip in March. They are working on multiple requests for rulings on sanctions law and the decisions are turning out to be far more complicated than anyone anticipated.

But I really feel there is a much bigger and more compelling reason to consider delaying this trip until after the elections. The Burmese government and in fact the entire nation are going to be seized during the March time frame with the elections. This will be a huge challenge for the government and the population on several levels. While it would be a darn exciting time to be there, it would not be an opportune time to have anyone focused on the BBG and its intentions. It will be difficult for you to have any substantive conversations about the future of this collaboration with Burmese at any level.

Also, it will be an extremely difficult time for the post to support your visit adequately. With so many other demands anticipated on both our staff and our resources, they will simply not have the person power to support such a high ranking delegation.

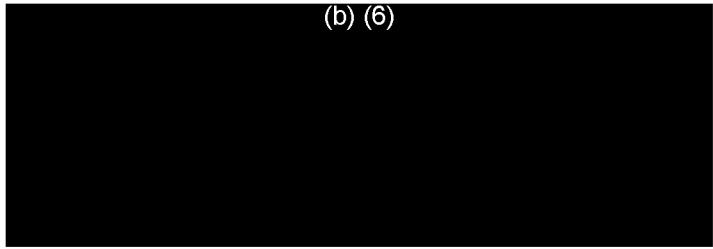

Finally, if you want to show signs of progress, signing an agreement along with a high level delegation visit in April will have much higher impact. The Burmese will be able to focus on other things and this will appear as a natural next step after a successful election. A signing would receive much more attention in the April time frame. On the other hand, if we sign an agreement in March and the elections turn out to be not as free and fair as we hoped, that will put BBG in an awkward position. We all hope this will turn out well, but if it doesn't, we will be once again reassessing our engagement after April 1 and a BBG agreement might be viewed differently.

I hope this helps you understand our thinking on your intended travel. The post, our office and Amb. Mitchell's all agree that a postponement is the wise way to go. I'm happy to discuss this further with by phone if you'd like.

We're aiming to get clearance from L; don't understand why clearance would not be forthcoming given agreement on policy (no one has posed an objection to our providing the Burmese with English learning programs; to the contrary, all seem who have weighed in thus far believe it's a good idea) and given the relative simplicity of the actual document (as our BBG GC has made clear, we're proposing to use a standard affiliate agreement and can strengthen it, as needed, to insert an explicit non-censorship clause). We execute these across the world every day (BBG has an affiliate network of some 1400 stations). As to meeting with the Information Minister, all we are saying is that such a meeting might not be necessary to sign an agreement; someone else on the Burmese end can sign. That said, the governors would welcome such a meeting. But even if is not possible, the travel is worthwhile to signal further BBG commitment to working collaboratively with Burmese media to expand free flows of information to Burmese citizens and to look at concrete possibilities for long-term BBG audience growth. (b) (6)

Here is, hopefully helpful, additional background on the proposed next BBG trip in March, and a heads-up on a small group of Radio Free Asia journalists in Burma now on a reporting trip.

(b) (6) has a visa, as do some of her editorial staff. They applied, I understand, back in the fall. (b) (6) is coordinating her travel when [REDACTED] (b) (6) is also due to be in Burma; in fact, he mentioned her trip to me when I spoke to him a week ago Friday, saying he would see her there.

With this in play, (b) (6) reached out to members of the BBG governing board and encouraged them to go as well. Two, in particular, Michael Meehan and Victor Ashe, are disposed to doing so, and BBG has now applied to the Burmese embassy here for their visas. Also, [REDACTED] (b) (6) has said he, too, would travel if the things fall into place for the trip, and he is also applying for a visa.

Because of the relative success of (b) (6) and (b) (6) trip (thanks to your help), specifically that reaching an agreement for local placement of VOA English learning programs seemed within reach, I have thought to make the most of the (b) -Meehan-Ashe-(b) (6) delegation to try to close the loop on the first small piece of business with the Burmese. It would seem logical in the development of BBG efforts in Burma to get this done before discussing other plans and possibilities with them.

So that's the context for the proposed next trip -- or I should say for the proposed BBG board members' involvement; (b) (6) set to go, in any event.

The other Radio Free Asia staff who have visas were to be, I was told late last week, en route to Burma over the weekend. They intend to do reporting locally. [REDACTED] (b) (6) RFA executive producer, is with them, and I have asked that she contact you. No assistance is required. I just thought it would be good for her to check in and introduce herself. (RFA, as a non-federal grantee of the BBG, operates within our agency and under supervision of the BBG board but with far more autonomy than does VOA.)

From the seat I occupy as head of BBG strategy and development, working closely with the BBG board, I am trying to steer a course for us that advances the many equities of our enterprise while staying closely in touch with State and with you locally and within the strict parameters of sanctions policy, etc. I am also trying to make something happen for an eager group of BBG broadcasters, VOA and RFA, who want to engage the Burmese now that the country is opening up -- and they want to do so before the BBC or Deutsche Welle or Radio France International beats them to the punch. That's why getting the English learning deal done soonest is a goal. If the visit of BBG board members can facilitate that by signaling to the Burmese heightened interest on our part, then it will be helpful.

All of which is to say that a meeting with the Burmese Information Minister would be important, and we would certainly welcome it, but is not essential to the principal purpose at hand -- taking this first step toward local placement of BBG content inside Burma. If there is an agreement ready, directors of MRTV and BBG board members perhaps could be the ones to sign it. At least that is how it seems from here -- please provide your guidance. Many thanks, Bruce

Hi Bruce,

Since I just sent that email, I've been thinking about the timing of the visit. It sounds like you don't have any visas yet, right? Even though you said that [REDACTED] (b) (6) applied some time ago.

I have to wonder whether you will be able to get a meeting with the Info Minister the second week of March. I believe I've heard that some high level officials (including Ministers?) may be spending time supporting election campaigns in March and it may be hard to get appointments in NPT. Also, I expect that the MOI will be dealing with a lot of visa and perhaps interview requests from outside journalists. The bureaucracy has a hard time keeping up with requests when it is inundated.

I don't mean to be pessimistic, but I'm not sure you'll get any quicker/better response on visas or meetings for a follow-up visit in March given the timing right before the by-elections. Just thought I'd share this concern.

Best,

Hi Bruce,

No worries from my end, I'm just trying to figure out the staff issues for March since I've got training the week of March 5, and then several other PAS staff members have training in Bangkok the following weeks. March is a travel month for PAS.

I knew BBG would want to return as soon as you can. And for what it's worth, I just sent my two cents to [REDACTED] (b) (6) and pointed out that we really need to push L to give an answer on the proposed BBG agreement. From my view, I see no point in waiting to follow up with the GOB on what BBG has proposed as initial steps.

Hi. I didn't want the forwarded note to catch you by surprise or pass without my immediate, separate communication to you. We're indebted to you for your support of (b) (6) and (b) (6) trip. The follow-on visit I reference in my note to (b) (6) was already in train as (b) (6) had applied for a visa some time ago. Amb. Mitchell is aware of it as well and told me when we spoke last week that he would be in Burma at the same time as (b) (6) (they know each other). Several BBG board members are also interested now. So that's the genesis of the second proposed foray into your territory in relatively short order. I'm available to discuss plans and proposed itineraries at your convenience. Overall, the aim is to nudge our budding relationship with the Burmese along, with the specific deliverable being, hopefully, the signing of the agreement for English learning programs. Also, as always, I'm all ears for any concerns, opportunities, guidance etc. that you wish to share re BBG's outreach to the Burmese. Many thanks again and best, Bruce

Greetings. I write at Amb. Mitchell's suggestion and to follow up the BBG visit to Burma February 2-7. I want to thank you and everyone at State for your assistance, especially PAO (b) (6) and her team in Burma. BBG hopes to play a constructive role in the evolving U.S.-Burmese relationship. Towards that end, there are several action items we would like to move forward as expeditiously as possible.

First, as you know, during the trip our BBG reps proposed, and their Burmese counterparts expressed interest in, placing Voice of America English leaning programs on Burmese domestic media outlets, notably those controlled by Myanmar Radio and TV. In email correspondence between BBG and State during the trip, State seemed to concur with this proposal on a policy level. Amb. Mitchell and I have discussed it separately. BBG is very mindful of U.S. sanctions and the need to operate strictly within those. State Legal raised the need for non-censorship provisions in any agreement with the Burmese. We have concurred with that. Indeed, BBG's standard affiliate agreement already proscribes altering BBG broadcast content. We have said we would add any necessary language to reinforce the non-censorship requirement. BBG GC provided our agreement to State Legal week before last for L's review and has been in touch subsequently to get clearance. Barring a new policy objection to placing the English learning programs, the only remaining hurdle, as far as BBG is aware, is L's approval.

Let me add that BBG sees placing English learning programs as a first, modest step in developing trust and cooperation on the media front with the Burmese authorities. Other program content as well as training, always of course within sanctions law and policy, could follow down the road. But just English learning content for now yields important benefits for the Burmese and the U.S. As Amb. Mitchell explained to me, two key U.S. policy objectives are reaching Burmese citizens beyond the major urban areas and building capacity. The English learning proposal fits the bill on both counts: learning English will help equip Burmese citizens to take part in the country's modernization and economic growth (while establishing an affinity for U.S. culture), and the national MRTV network, as well as VOA's existing shortwave and satellite TV distribution, will ensure the programs reach deep into rural areas (as well as the cities). BBG (VOA and Radio Free Asia) already have a weekly audience of more than 10,000,000 people across the country -- 29% of all adults (15+) on a weekly basis (attached is the 2010-2011 Burma research study, done by BBG's previous research contractor, Intermedia). VOA and RFA brands are well known. We thus expect ready receptivity to BBG content over local channels. Through BBG research (now managed by Gallup), we can readily measure program success. This means we can help State to show concrete metrics for a priority public diplomacy initiative.

Second, BBG is looking at another trip to Burma, this time for the second week of March (exact dates TBD; we are mindful of the embassy's exclusive focus on the April elections from mid-March on). Radio Free Asia president (b) (6) (b) has secured a visa for travel from the Burmese government, and several BBG board members as well as the VOA director (b) (6) have expressed interest in traveling as well. The purpose of this visit would be two-fold: (1) to sign the agreement for MRTV to take VOA English learning programs, provided the agreement can be cleared in time; and (2) to meet with senior Burmese government officials, such as the Minister of Information, who was unavailable during the just-completed trip, to continue the dialogue about BBG programs and the BBG-MRTV relationship going forward. Amb. Mitchell mentioned he would be traveling to Burma in the same time frame. A signing ceremony could be a shared deliverable.

Third, as I also discussed with Amb. Mitchell, BBG would welcome joining with EAP PD to look at the role our broadcasting can further play in support of U.S. policy and interests in Burma. In addition to advancing outreach beyond Burma's center and supporting capacity-building, BBG is ready to further existing and develop new programs that aid in the third plank of current U.S. policy for Burma: national reconciliation. RFA now airs programs in seven ethnic languages in addition to Burmese. BBG receives millions of dollars annually now from State and USAID to support national reconciliation and public discussion by VOA in countries such as Angola, Somalia, and Nigeria. Elsewhere, including in some of the world's most dangerous and conflict-ridden areas (e.g., FATA), BBG call-in programs and citizen journalism initiatives allow people of all responsible views a place for conversation. BBG can easily do the same for Burma – possibly, at some point, even with the Burmese locally, when circumstances and policy allow. Right now, VOA and RFA can do this through current programs broadcast on shortwave and over satellite TV. BBG is prepared to sit with EAP PD and discuss a strategic plan for media and citizen engagement in Burma.

In sum, BBG sees positive long-term engagement prospects in Burma and broad partnership potential with State. We wish to move now to take the first, small but significant, step of placing English learning programs on domestic Burmese outlets, and then to continue the dialogue that State is expertly facilitating with the Burmese to anticipate future steps – again, always within sanctions law and U.S. policy. We ask State's support now to clear soonest the affiliate agreement for the English learning programs, to assist us in the March follow-on trip, and to advise of interest in exploring a broader BBG-State media/development plan to advance our shared objectives. Many thanks, Bruce

I would like to see a copy of the letter....not sure whether it was copied to whole Board or not. If so, it should be sent out to all. If not, I still would like to see it as it concerns an interest of mine.

I had no problem with you not attending the special Board meeting. But your absence was not explained to the Board or anyone told you were on stand by. Bottom line is that if you are unable to attend, it should be announced openly to the Board and we should be told you are on standby or another attorney was present. It is that simple in my view. One cannot assume because issues are narrow that a need for counsel is removed. The bylaws do not speak to exceptions for being absent.

Victor -- Thanks for your email.

Although I was not able to attend the telephonic meeting, as Dick and Jeff knew, I was on stand by with my hand on my blackberry throughout the wedding and would have participated in the call if requested.

As part of the meeting preparation, I had written the decision element, prepared detailed notes on the conduct of the meeting and let Jeff know that I would have been happy to call in.

Because of these preparations, the narrowness of the issues to be discussed at the meeting and the comfort level of the BBG staff on the call, I did not think that it was necessary to try to bring another attorney up to speed on Board proceedings for this Saturday meeting.

With respect to the proposed bylaw changes that you have suggested, we are planning to suggest the topic, among others, to the Governance Committee Chairman when he begins to formulate the meeting agenda -- probably next week.

Victor, please rest assured that I am always available to consult with you or other Governors. Please feel free to call me at any time if you wish to discuss these or any matters at (b) (6)

Subject: attorney at BBG Meetings

Dear (b) (6)

As one Board member, I was surprised that no one was at our special called BBG meeting last Saturday as our by laws call for legal attendance.

In talking yesterday to Jeff Trimble, he advised me that you had a wedding to attend and this week you have off for vacation. Certainly, I am not critical of either. However, on those occasions (rare) when you (b) (6) cannot attend BBG meetings, I think an attorney from your office should be present in case there are legal issues which arise or questions a Governor might have involving the law. I hope in the future this is the case.

(b) (6) does a nice job taking minutes but that is separate from being present to respond to legal issues.

I also look forward to your response on suggested changes to the bylaws which I e mailed you about in adequate time to meet by law notification requirements. Hopefully you will be able to check e mails while on holiday or shortly on return.

I had no problem with you not attending the special Board meeting. But your absence was not explained to the Board or anyone told you were on stand by. Bottom line is that if you are unable to attend, it should be announced openly to the Board and we should be told you are on standby or another attorney was present. It is that simple in my view. One cannot assume because issues are narrow that a need for counsel is removed. The bylaws do not speak to exceptions for being absent.

Victor -- Thanks for your email.

Although I was not able to attend the telephonic meeting, as Dick and Jeff knew, I was on stand by with my hand on my blackberry throughout the wedding and would have participated in the call if requested.

As part of the meeting preparation, I had written the decision element, prepared detailed notes on the conduct of the meeting and let Jeff know that I would have been happy to call in.

Because of these preparations, the narrowness of the issues to be discussed at the meeting and the comfort level of the BBG staff on the call, I did not think that it was necessary to try to bring another attorney up to speed on Board proceedings for this Saturday meeting.

With respect to the proposed bylaw changes that you have suggested, we are planning to suggest the topic, among others, to the Governance Committee Chairman when he begins to formulate the meeting agenda -- probably next week.

Victor, please rest assured that I am always available to consult with you or other Governors. Please feel free to call me at any time if you wish to discuss these or any matters at [REDACTED] (b) (6).

I have no problem moving it to morning of March 9 as long as it is concluded by noon. However, discussion of by laws would need to be on March 7 sometime...could be in late afternoon around 430...If longer meeting goes to Friday then I prefer the shorter meeting March 7 start after 12 noon as my flight currently arrives at 1100 on March 7...if governance stays on AM of March 7 then I will change my previously brought flight.

Webcast is a suggestion which may not work given 70th anniversary event on March 7.

Sorry for the delay in getting back to you on this. I have today heard there has been some discussion of moving the Governance Committee meeting to Friday. I am open to that, if it fits in with the overall schedule and works for other committee members.

With respect to webcasting the meeting, I think it would be useful to hear the views of others on that topic.

With respect to the authorities of the chair (which you referenced in a separate email), I agree with you that we should make clear that these are formally delegated to Michael Lynton in his capacity as presiding governor. That should be added to the Governance Committee agenda and be included in the committee's report for approval of the full board. Thanks,

Dennis

Our bylaws do not speak to what duties the presiding Governor (now Michael Lynton) have. It refers fully to the chair who now does not exist.

While there may be some thought that the word chair can be implied to extend to the presiding Governor, that is not what the bylaws state. Therefore, It is my request that we amend the by laws to add the words "or presiding Governor if there is not a chair" wherever the word chair appears thru out the bylaws to make it totally clear.

(b) (6) please consider this e mail a request from one Governor asking your office to do this and present it to the full BBG Board meeting on March 8 with notice to the full BBG 14 days out as required by the current bylaws. I also request that this matter be added the March 7 governance committee agenda. If a copy of current has not been sent to Gov. Lynton then that should be done. We need to make sure that the bylaws give the presiding Governor this authority. I do not believe the resolution adopted Feb 11 can amend the by laws. Only an actual amendment can amend the bylaws. Furthermore, amendments to the bylaws require more than 48 hour notice as our special called meeting had.

(b) (6) the minutes written for the special called meeting should reflect which 4 or more Governors called the meeting as well as who made the motions and how the vote went.

If there are comments from the deputy legal counsel, I welcome them as well as from Jeff Trimble and Dick Lobo.

This might be of interest ...

A former employee of the CFO says the following about [REDACTED] (b) (6), who in charge of the contractor mess. Does a warrant of debt affect her federal standing? her security clearance? her bonus? She has fired numerous people but should she be fired?

"[REDACTED] (b) probably sabotaged [REDACTED] (b) (6) the travel manager who was fired last week. It's funny how he is in charge of the financial system that pays vendors, he is still employed, yet the contractor/vendors are still not getting paid. That is the biggest problem in that office, not the travel (although still a problem). [REDACTED] (b) (6) takes two hour lunch breaks but still has a job. [REDACTED] (b) (6) barely ate lunch. Why does [REDACTED] (b) (6) still have a job? I don't understand how [REDACTED] (b) (6) is getting away with this...its funny how EVERYONE else seems to be the problem. Does [REDACTED] (b) (6) even have a college degree?"

[REDACTED] (b) (6) came to BBG because he was about to get fired from DHS. . At DHS, he played around in the Travel Production system and booked a ticket to Rome. His manager was angry. It was escalated to the CFO and [REDACTED] (b) (6) had to pay out of pocket. He also got in trouble because when he traveled, he stayed in Vegas an extra night and was not supposed to. Before that, he was working at CGI. He was also fired from his first job with the FDIC or Federal Reserve (one of those agencies) because he would take two hour lunch breaks and just wouldn't work. He comes to BBG and [REDACTED] (b) (6) promotes him.

[REDACTED] (b) (6) cannot even pay her own bills. She had a Warrant in Debt in Fairfax County Court. . Why is she managing the office when she cannot even pay her own bills?

Dear Governors,

Attached for your review are the draft messaging materials prepared by agency staff in collaboration with the network heads and communications teams across all entities. They are:

- A message from the Board to agency employees
- A news release
- Talking points on the top nine most anticipated questions, in rank order of likelihood
- Examples of ways that we are ending duplication and streamlining services
- A budget overview, strategic principles guiding BBG budgeting decisions, and a comparison across broadcast entities at the request of some of the entity heads.

Much of what is in the talking points has been pulled from existing and in some cases published agency documents for consistency. Similarities between the board statement and the news release are intentional, as are the differences. Apart from those two items, which will be distributed, please forgive any typos or formatting errors arising from the production process this week.

Your feedback will help strengthen these items so that we can most effectively convey the reasoning and goals underlying this budget request. It would be most useful if comments could be made within the next 24 hours to ensure timely incorporation into these materials.

In a separate message, (b) (6) has sent you the actual budget documents.

Best regards,

Lynne W.

I am happy (honored) to be one of first customers in a new system. Since I do not have a home fax machine, I have to go to my accountant biweekly to fax in my time sheet...why could I not do it online? This week I hand delivered it.

30 days to pay contractors to be on time seems long to me. We should strive to do it in 14 or 20 days. Travel vouchers (my own experience) are never less than 4 weeks and usually 5 weeks. At the city of Knoxville (smaller I admit) it was 7 days. Even State Dept when I was Ambassador was 8 days. Give the government 30 days to do something and they will take 28 to 30 days//not less. That is human nature.

Surely there must be some way to establish a system within a valid computer system where we could distinguish between contractors (individual people) and vendors (also people but a different category). Of the 850 late payments (over 30 days) how many were contractors? Also a 30 day period means there is no incentive to get it done in 14 days.

I do not pass these thoughts on to be critical but to give you my thoughts based on 40 years of experience and to let you know where I am coming from. My public comments and questions will spring from this background.

We should get the word out what governance committee did yesterday as it will give hope to employees. It was unanimous and broadly supported.

Victor, Unfortunately we cannot parse the payments in the way you request. The definition of a vendor and the definition of a contractor are interchangeable in the federal government. There is no difference in definition or requirements for individual contractors versus other contractors. As such, our system does not make the distinction.

On the time sheet, we are currently working on an automated time and attendance system with the National Finance Center, which we will be transitioning to in the near future. I like you am anxious to get it implemented at the BBG, as the system we have is quite antiquated and cumbersome. We will let you know when it is up and running and you can be one of our first automated customers.

Let me know if you have further questions, and I will do my best to respond.

Due to my hearing, I did not hear or understand that of the 30,000 payments this included not just contractors but also vendors. Vendors is a different issue than the men and women who are contractors. Both should be paid in a timely manner. But of the 850 late payments, how many are contractors as opposed to vendors. This is a significant difference.

How can Governors fill out their time sheets on line and avoid these biweekly faxes?

I am happy (honored) to be one of first customers in a new system. Since I do not have a home fax machine, I have to go to my accountant biweekly to fax in my time sheet...why could I not do it online? This week I hand delivered it.

30 days to pay contractors to be on time seems long to me. We should strive to do it in 14 or 20 days. Travel vouchers (my own experience) are never less than 4 weeks and usually 5 weeks. At the city of Knoxville (smaller I admit) it was 7 days. Even State Dept when I was Ambassador was 8 days. Give the government 30 days to do something and they will take 28 to 30 days//not less. That is human nature.

Surely there must be some way to establish a system within a valid computer system where we could distinguish between contractors (individual people) and vendors (also people but a different category). Of the 850 late payments (over 30 days) how many were contractors? Also a 30 day period means there is no incentive to get it done in 14 days.

I do not pass these thoughts on to be critical but to give you my thoughts based on 40 years of experience and to let you know where I am coming from. My public comments and questions will spring from this background.

We should get the word out what governance committee did yesterday as it will give hope to employees. It was unanimous and broadly supported.

Victor

Victor, Unfortunately we cannot parse the payments in the way you request. The definition of a vendor and the definition of a contractor are interchangeable in the federal government. There is no difference in definition or requirements for individual contractors versus other contractors. As such, our system does not make the distinction.

On the time sheet, we are currently working on an automated time and attendance system with the National Finance Center, which we will be transitioning to in the near future. I like you am anxious to get it implemented at the BBG, as the system we have is quite antiquated and cumbersome. We will let you know when it is up and running and you can be one of our first automated customers.

Due to my hearing, I did not hear or understand that of the 30,000 payments this included not just contractors but also vendors. Vendors is a different issue than the men and women who are contractors. Both should be paid in a timely manner. But of the 850 late payments, how many are contractors as opposed to vendors. Jeff, how will I be reimbursed for this call as I will be calling in from London? It will have to be from the hotel which will not be cheap..like $4 a minute which I deeply regret.I will have it on my hotel bill which I can submit for re-imbursement. I prefer due to cost to have the call on Monday or any day afterwards when I am in the USA and there is not a cost which could reach $120 if 30 minutes long. Therefore I should not be counted as asking for the meeting on Saturday. I would agree to asking for the meeting any day next week after 230 PM on Monday February 13. Obviously if this goes forward on Sat I will participate with the new time of 230 PM assuming I can reach the designated number from UK.

Before we can confirm we must first hear from at least four of you that you wish to have the meeting – so please do let us know, this evening if at all possible or early Thursday, whether you wish to have a meeting and, if so, that you can participate at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday.

The Governors may wish to consider requesting a special telephonic meeting of the Board in order to discuss the issue of Board leadership. The agenda could include the conduct of Board operations in the absence of a Chair and the selection of an interim Presiding Governor.

Under BBG By-Laws, a special telephonic meeting of the Board can be called on 48-hours notice. At least four (4) Governors must request such a meeting in order for the meeting to be called.

If such a meeting is of interest, we suggest that it be held this Saturday, February 11, at 11 a.m. EDT.

Staff will make necessary arrangements to prepare for and conduct the meeting, including setting up a dial-in number. For your information, such a meeting would be subject to Government in the Sunshine Act requirements. If the meeting is called, it will be recorded and made available to the public as soon as possible to fulfill the public observation requirement.

Please let us know by return email if you wish to request this meeting, and if you can participate at the suggested time.

Thank you.

Thanks...I think given the nature of the work we are in...that full discussion and rebuttal, agreement, modification, self examination of all comments, criticism etc are worthwhile..even when painful. I comment Lynne Weil for reaching out to respond to some groups/individuals who previously were not responded to in an adequate manner. We should remember that responses will not always convince but an unanswered charge often becomes true if not answered. Certainly in politics that is the case. We must be players and not spectators.

Russia is difficult. We should discuss it at RFE and BBG for VOA. Putin is no friend of democracy. Journalists have been murdered during his tenure with little apparent effort on the government's part to track down the guilty parties. What is the best way to get into Russia? How successful are we?

I am genuinely worried that the proposed budget cuts especially for Tibetan and Laos are setting our ourselves up for another congressional slap in the face. Personally, I certainly did not know about them when I voted for the budget last fall at Walter's personal urging. Not being on Strategy and Budget, I was not privy to any lengthy analysis of the budget. After the fact I learn about specific cuts which I find unfortunate and unacceptable. My view is we should proactively save these cuts before Congress makes us do it.

Strategy and Budget Committee is now down to two members only while governance has 4 members. There seems to be imbalance here in terms of numbers.

Over the years I have done a lot of these and they are handled somewhat differently in the south. I suggest the following...invite a high school area band to play the national anthem, and consider having a local person sing the national anthem, have a minister give an invocation, choose the right MC...probably the head of the local facility...find and invite a member of the Edward Murrow family..a child or grand child...and let him/her speak on behalf of family. I believe Edward Murrow's son was [REDACTED] (b) (6)...not sure where he lives now or if he is alive. He would be in mid 60s age wise.

Make Sure Senator Hagen (think that is her name) and Senator Burr are invited as well as Gov. Beverly Perdue are invited and speak if they attend...invite them to send a rep if they cannot attend but representative would be recognized but not speak.
Local officials of this county should be asked.

The event should be outdoors unless it rains...make sure there is parking...have a reception with light refreshments after the event. Make sure the picture of Murrow inside the bldg has a bio under it which was missing when I was last there.

Invite immediate neighbors on the road near facility ..would not be many as it is a rural area but effort is underway to change name of road to edward Murrow Rd...Invite county commission and head of county...not sure what the office might be called. Invite leaders of chamber of Commerce....

Print up nice invitations...mail them out at least 20 days out if possible...invite former employees of facility who are still alive....also former BBG Board members.

Someone needs to call local media and TV and invite them. not just a news release.
I may have other ideas and will pass them on. This is exciting and can be a big deal.

In a message dated 3/28/2012 4:33:13 P.M. Eastern Daylight Time, (b) (6) writes:

Governors,

In response to questions raised by your colleagues, please note the following:

1. The increased purchase price is something over which we have no control, as it is an issue between L88 and Orco. As stated in the memo, Orco's incentive was to delay a sale, continue to receive our rent, while neglecting the building. L88 has informed us that to overcome this incentive, they had to increase the sale price.
2. L88 has asked for concessions in order for this transaction to remain economically viable for them. We can agree to the concessions in order to help ensure the transaction occurs, or the alternative is to continue to operate under the current lease with its related difficulties.
3. The terms are only slightly revised. (For example, $3 million is a great deal of money in current dollars, but when spread over 30 years, and accounting for discounting/inflation, it is much less valuable, relative to cash received today.) $500,000 in additional funds provided to us at closing, with the new additional right to receive certain remaining escrowed funds in the future is a concession of real value.
4. The NPV analysis (used by both the private and public sector to determine whether a transaction is beneficial) remains favorable to RFE/RL.
5. The non-financial advantages of shifting from Orco (a financially distressed foreign entity) to L88 (a US-based entity funded by reputable investors) remain as relevant as ever. The due diligence that L88 has conducted on the building has already been invaluable to RFE/RL. L88's American-style of ownership of an asset like this building and responsiveness to its tenant will yield great advantages to RFE/RL that are impossible to quantify.
6. This sort of change is commonplace in transactions such as this one (in fact, many transactions could not occur without some flexibility to make minor revisions as closing approaches). The resolution adopted by the Board in March is typical of resolutions relating to transactions in that it allowed management to agree to minor revisions such as these.
7. We have endeavored to keep the Board informed of all actions as soon as possible. As is typical for a transaction such as this one, there are many moving pieces (L88, L88's investors, and Orco), and the revised changes have only occurred over the past few days.

I hope I have addressed all of your questions. Please contact (b) (6) or me with any questions.

The agency has used buyouts successfully for many years to address skills and budget challenges. Approximately 110 employees have separated from the agency since 2010 after accepting a buyout.

Management has the discretion to not approve buyouts for individuals in key positions. When a buyout is approved for an individual who no longer meets the needed skills for a particular position, management has the ability to fill that position with someone with more contemporary experience, and often at a lower grade/salary. We have also been successful in the past in using buyouts to provide opportunities for individuals who may be displaced by targeted reductions in other areas.

The current buyout opportunity is designed to allow interested employees to separate from the agency prior to the beginning of FY 2013, when potential staff reductions may be necessary.

Do we lose needed folks and not get the reductions where more desired?

Dear (b) (6)

I want to go on record as one BBG member saying that the Gallup contract for almost $50 million should be released to inquiring persons asking under FOIA without delay or cost. In fact, it ought to be placed on the BBG web site. I should remind you that the President in his first year in office urged more openness. We should honor his executive order. When BBG thru your office responds to such a request outlining potential costs and seems less than anxious to comply, it places BBG in a bad light. I urge prompt release of this significant contract to those who wish to review it. BBG should not receive negative publicity over this issue which delay to release will cause. Why not just place it online and let people download it?

I urge a second letter from [REDACTED] (b) (6) to [REDACTED] (b) (6) which contains basically the material you have sent me in two e mails. Dear (b) (6)

It was good to talk with you, albeit briefly, on Tuesday. I'm glad that you were able to find the basic information about the research contract on-line.

As promised, I've checked with all the right people here, some of whom were away from the office last week, to see what more is available. Thanks for your patience regarding this request.

I'd like first to ensure that you're aware that the BBG currently spends roughly $10 million per year on research, and that this is only 1.3% of the agency's $750 million budget. The proposed FY 2013 budget includes $8.8 million for research, or 1.1% of the total -- a fraction of what commercial media spend.

For FY2013, the BBG research budget is being reduced more than 10% while overall reductions are 4.2%.

To ensure value for taxpayer dollar, we need solid information about audiences.

And as you may know, BBG's enabling legislation mandates a "reliable research capacity." Research is a broad and serious statutory requirement, not a frill.

The BBG plans to release results from the Gallup research when available. In the meantime, we cannot make the full Gallup contract available since it may include proprietary information. To ensure fair, equitable, and transparent treatment for this contractor and all others, as well as any who may request information about the contract, it will need to be reviewed under a FOIA process before release.

I've forwarded your request to the BBG's FOIA office. You can expect to receive an acknowledgment letter from them in the coming days.

Please let me know if there is more that I can do to assist you with this matter.

Best regards,

Lynne

Governors,

I spoke Thursday with the reporter who handed me this below message, and asked him who had addressed it to me. He declined to say. I told him to pass on word to the sender that frankly, I do not see much that is constructive in anonymous notes full of overblown rhetoric. If the sender wants to say something to me about VOA, I would suggest he--or they--do so directly and openly.

I thanked him for some other materials he handed to me, written and signed by quite a few of our central news reporters, in which they complained that they can't get enough of their reporting on the VOA website. That material--unlike the attached note--will be closely and seriously read. It is an issue we are working on. We spoke for about half an hour, and talked about some of the problems that he sees. I described to him some of the proposals I have for improving VOA and helping our Central News reporters to reach more of our audience with their journalism.

I spent most of five hours in VOA Central News last week and will be back there in a few weeks to listen to more employees and discuss ongoing changes. The goal is to learn more about what Central News needs to be successful in the coming period, in spite of proposed reductions. As members of the Governance Committee know, (b) (6) of the News Division speaks more eloquently and constructively than this letter about the challenges facing management as we move forward. They are considerable but we can do this.

Statement for [REDACTED] (b) (6)

Central News Morning Meeting

March 15, 2012

More than at any time in the last four decades, this newsroom has become a tinderbox. Discontent is profound and widespread. It exists at extreme levels in Central News, in DC bureaus, and among VOA's hard-working domestic correspondents.

It currently has the following characteristics:

-- Employees feel they have been run into the ground by a counter-productive, bullying, my way or the highway approach that appears to be condoned at the highest level of newsroom management.

-- By tactics that question individual commitment, insult the experience of some current and former employees, pit person against person, pay grade against pay grade, age group against age group and maintain a system of management through humiliation.

-- By a structure AT AND NEAR THE VERY TOP that has made clear its negative preconception of federal employees.

-- By the absence of genuine and sufficient efforts to help all cope with tremendous changes, and ensure that all employees have the necessary training to perform what is asked of them and are given the time to receive that training.

-- By the frequent failure of top Central News managers to do a simple thing -- LISTEN...and to UNDERSTAND... real barriers that stand in the way of objectives set by BBG members whose presence in this newsroom has been largely non-existent.

Recently, one of our most respected newsmen provided BBG members, and others in management, with a visceral description of the devastation of morale in Central News. We assume that is why you are here. About 12 years ago, a former VOA director was faced with making a major decision when faced with a similar crisis involving Central News leadership. He made that decision and said: "I do give a shit about morale"

Do you give a damn about morale? Or will you continue to simply listen to certain advisers who greeted you on your arrival here.

In whatever additional time you intend to spend at VOA, please try to learn directly from employees about these issues.

Provide a guarantee that people speaking freely to you will not face retaliation, which unfortunately has been and continues to be a sad characteristic of this agency.

Instead of simply assuming that things are A-OK in this newsroom, with its long history, use a decent powered microscope. Don't micromanage, one of the major mistakes current Central News management makes. Do LISTEN, and LEARN.

Ask for input directly to your email address. Guarantee confidentiality. Do not have this input filtered through any other management official, including and in particular one who is conspicuously not present at this meeting.

(b) (6) My apologies for the delay in responding to your note. I'm writing on behalf of both (b) (6) and myself in this response.

You bring up very good and valid points. Management positions are included in any potential and proposed reductions. We are mindful of this and will be identifying management level positions to be reduced as well as rank and file, if the reductions are approved.

Note however that only a percentage of the 75 GS-15 positions you identified are within the Voice of America. We are not in a position to eliminate positions elsewhere in the Agency. Nor do we agree that VOA, or the Agency for that matter, would be better off by wholesale elimination of one grade of employee—whether it be GS-15 or GS-9. Considering the very challenging and important jobs that many folks have at those grades, it's not the solution.

That all being said, I say again that you bring up valid points and we appreciate getting your email. VOA management remains committed to reducing management ranks where needed and where possible during these difficult times.

Subject: the challenge of the budget

Dear (b) (6) and (b) (6)

I have been thinking about the challenges you face with the 2013 budget and the need to restructure the agency. I hope you (and the board) will seriously consider unsolicited alternative plans to cut $27 million from the budget.

I'm sending this because I agree with the stated goals of the Broadcasting Board of Governors and top agency managers:

- * Significantly cut the agency's 2013 budget
- * Increase target audiences, and improve engagement with those audiences
- * Meet the challenges and embrace the opportunities of a changing media market and technology
- * Increase and improve original content, and use creative ways to communicate with the audience

I disagree with the board's proposal because I think it will make it impossible to achieve its goals. My alternative first step: eliminate the jobs of most of the agency's current managers. Rather than starting with 71 positions in Central News and English programming and dozens more in language services, start with 75 GS-15 positions.

I was shocked to find that the 2010 public database of US government employees lists more than 75 people working for the BBG with the top civil service grade. After nine years as a middle manager in the agency, I'm not sure what most of them do, or who they manage. Collectively, they represent $15.53 million a year of agency spending on salary and benefits. (Calculated using a salary of $150,000 and 38 percent benefits. The figure does not include employees with FS-1 grades or in SES).

We could get by with fewer middle managers as well (I say this knowing I have less time in government service than other GS-14s and am therefore vulnerable in a RIF). When I started at VOA in 2002 we had three positions in the newsroom I would consider management, meaning they were not directly writing, editing or producing material. Today we have six, plus another four 'coordinators' overseas and in Washington. Those 10 positions are in addition to the duty editors, regional editors, assignments editors and others who have always been directly in charge of producing news content.

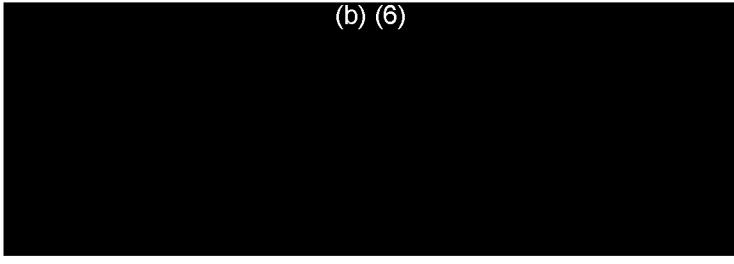

There are good arguments for protecting the jobs of managers – they have experience, loyalty and commitment to the agency, and some of them perform important functions. But the same arguments can be made – and in my mind resonate louder -- for most of those at lower levels. The writers, correspondents, editors, producers and technicians are the people whose skills and experience we need to build on our existing audiences and move the agency forward. I have heard people say we could do more or produce better content if only we weren't short of writers or stringer money. I have never heard anyone claim that more managers would increase or improve content. Eliminating management positions also gives you more 'bang for the buck' – it seems you would save twice the money with each GS-15 rather than a GS-9.

After examining the OPM rules for RIFs and talking with HR professionals in other government agencies, I realize it would be difficult to identify a "competitive area" that would include only managers. But I also know there must be suggested ratios of managers to rank-and-file employees, and to my reporter's eye it seems we have too many at the top. Besides, evidence that existing managers are ineffective is contained not just in the annual employee survey, but in the agency's failure to reach previous boards' goals for restructuring and improvement.

Thank you for your consideration,

Governors,

Following on one topic raised during your very useful session today on union and contracting issues, I met with managers in VOA's operations division to find out more about the incident where video editors were given envelopes.

The person who made the decision to handle things that way has since left government service. The team says he decided to give out envelopes based on word from the IBB Office of Contracting that all contractors needed to be told simultaneously, and that discussion in public on the issue should be avoided, due to the likelihood of lawsuits.

What happened is not quite as it was described in your session today, in the sense that the 'losers' in the process were not handed out blank sheets, but were instead handed out notes saying they would in the future be employed on an "ad hoc" basis, without any set hours. I am told that some of those who received the "ad hoc" only notices have in fact made good money doing considerable hours of video editing since October 12, when the notices were handed out.

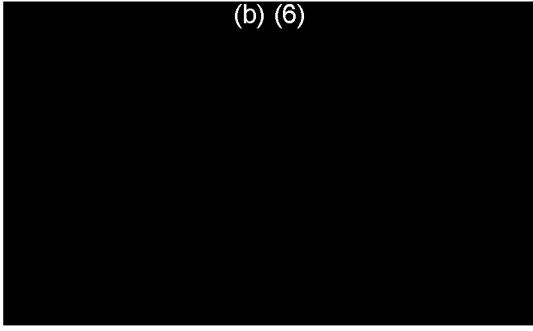

I told the managers' team that this was badly handled, in my view, without consideration for human feelings, and that individual meetings with those going on "ad hoc" status would have been a better course of action.

This is just one of a number of action items that emerged. Dick and I had a useful conversation about the way forward after your meeting.

Thank you again for holding today's session.

Best,

The important point now is to show over the next several weeks and months that we heard and acted. I look forward to working on this with you in the days ahead. With improved morale, productivity improves concurrently.

Dick, If [REDACTED] (b) (6) wanted to do this assuming we have the equipment at Cohen Bldg, that would be satisfactory from my standpoint from time to time as in his case it saves transatlantic airfare.

For example, he may wish to do it for the April OCB meeting as opposed to flying from Prague to Miami...Obvioulsy that it for Dick Lobo and Michael Lynton to sign off on but for me only it makes sense on a selected basis when the view is as good as it is.

Dear [REDACTED] (b) (6)

I feel the delegation of authority to the IBB Director is far too broad as you outlined and certainly this far reaching extend of the delegation was not discussed when the Board voted to do this last year. I feel this delegation should be modified when BBG signs as a co-obligor and potential exposure exceeds a certain amount. However, this is a separate issue from the immediate one at hand.

What is the financial exposure which BBG takes on in a worst case scenario if this is approved on March 8? The RFE Board and BBG Board both should be told. What is the dollar amount involved?

While the topic is similar, RFE and BBG are acting separately and I feel the minutes of both should reflect consideration of this matter. It does not matter that the Board membership is identical. The duties vary depending on which Board we are sitting on when we vote.

Furthermore if BBG is to be a co obligor then the march 8 BBG minutes should reflect BBG did this and it was discussed. It should not be silent. I do not find your argument that we have a full day and leaving out BBG Board consideration is a time saving mechanism to be persuasive. While I would not expect a lengthy discussion of this at BBG, I expect it to be mentioned and reflected in the minutes.

What additionally bothers me is that in October when I voted NO on this transaction due to lack of time for adequate consideration (At the RFE Board meeting, I pointed out that I had only received the documents at 0800 that morning on my computer and has less than three hours to read/consider it). We were told time was urgent. Delay would be costly. Now we learn that deal did not materialize and the past 4 months have been devoted to creating another package which we are now asked to vote on. However, when the October deal fell apart, the Board members of RFE were not informed of that (or at least I was not) and did not know it would have to come back a second time and BBG would be a co-obligor. I feel this is a serious oversight on the part of RFE management.

What are the legal consequences of being a co-obligor for BBG? Surely this has some potential financial exposure? You indicate that you and [REDACTED] (b) (6) have worked extensively with RFE management as well as outside real estate counsel and advisors.

I would request you advise me and the Board who those outside advisors were and how much was paid to secure their advice. I would like to see the documents (legal writings) which outside legal counsel presented to you. I assume [REDACTED] (b) (6) [REDACTED] (b) (6) who is RFE legal counsel was included too. You can e mail them to me or give them to me at the governance committee meeting Wednesday afternoon, March 7.

Finally, you say you have concluded that it is lawful for BBG to enter into this transaction. I would like to see the legal research or memo which leads you to this conclusion. You can e mail this to me or give it to me tomorrow afternoon.

Victor –

In fact, my recommendation to Dick was to seek the Board members' input to ascertain whether any Governors had objections to his signing onto this arrangement for the BBG to act as a co-obligor under the proposed RFE-RL lease.

Deciding whether to sign onto this lease as a co-obligor is well within the scope of the delegation of authority that the Board gave to the IBB Director on April 14, 2011 (which is available on our website, but I would be happy to send you a copy). This is why the Board's approval of the transaction is not required; but I nevertheless recommended that the Board members should be briefed.

The reason we have suggested covering this matter as part of the RFE/RL meeting is one of efficiency: This arrangement is already going to be discussed at the RFE/RL meeting and is principally for RFE/RL's benefit. Since we will all be sitting in the same room and no formal Board of Governors decision is required, we thought it would be sufficient to be on the agenda of the RFE/RL meeting. This makes sense given that the Board is only meeting for one day and some significant part of the day will be devoted to MBN-related activities.

As always, Victor, I would be pleased to brief you personally on this transaction. I am available at [REDACTED] (b) (6) or on my blackberry at [REDACTED] (b) (6). Dear Dick, (b) (6) Dennis, and (b) (6)

In further reviewing the line of credit being sought from BBG for property in Prague, I feel this needs to be discussed in a BBG Board meeting as well as RFE as it involves both. I also need to know what the financial exposure is to BBG should the transaction falter, fail or not meet expectations. What amount are we on the line for?

I compliment Dick Lobo for saying he wanted Board input even if he as IBB Director could make the decision on his own according to the opinion of (b) (6). I would like to see a more thoughtful analysis of Mr (b) (6) opinion. It is most unusual if BBG can sign onto lines of credit for entity Building purchases without Board approval or even knowledge (in theory). Mr. Lobo is to be applauded for insisting on the Board being comfortable with this.

I feel the Board should take steps to clarify this and provide clearly all lines of credit over a certain amount must be approved by BBG Board. This is a current loophole which could be grossly misused by a different IBB Director.

What does our CFO say about this? (b) (6) Has out Budget Committee reviewed this?

Victor -

In the RFE/RL briefing materials, there is a memorandum from me addressed to the "Members of the Board of Governors" entitled "Legal Authority for BBG to Become Co-Obligor of the Prague Headquarters Lease." The memorandum has two parts.

(b) (5)

These materials were mailed to you in hard copy and a copy was provided by email. They address most the questions that you have raised in your email below.

As always, I would be delighted to walk you through this information, Victor. In fact, we were preparing to do so at Thursday's meetings when we brief you and the other Board members. Please let me know if you have time tomorrow afternoon either before or after the Governance Committee meeting.

Thanks. (b) (6)

Dear (b) (6)

I feel the delegation of authority to the IBB Director is far too broad as you outlined and certainly this far reaching extend of the delegation was not discussed when the Board voted to do this last year. I feel this delegation should be modified when BBG signs as a co-obligor and potential exposure exceeds a certain amount. However, this is a separate issue from the immediate one at hand.

What is the financial exposure which BBG takes on in a worst case scenario if this is approved on March 8? The RFE Board and BBG Board both should be told. What is the dollar amount involved?

While the topic is similar, RFE and BBG are acting separately and I feel the minutes of both should reflect consideration of this matter. It does not matter that the Board membership is identical. The duties vary depending on which Board we are sitting on when we vote.

Furthermore if BBG is to be a co obligor then the march 8 BBG minutes should reflect BBG did this and it was discussed. It should not be silent. I do not find your argument that we have a full day and leaving out BBG Board consideration is a time saving mechanism to be persuasive. While I would not expect a lengthy discussion of this at BBG, I expect it to be mentioned and reflected in the minutes.

What additionally bothers me is that in October when I voted NO on this transaction due to lack of time for adequate consideration (At the RFE Board meeting, I pointed out that I had only received the documents at 0800 that morning on my computer and has less than three hours to read/consider it). We were told time was urgent. Delay would be costly. Now we learn that deal did not materialize and the past 4 months have been devoted to creating another package which we are now asked to vote on. However, when the October deal fell apart, the Board members of RFE were not informed of that (or at least I was not) and did not know it would have to come back a second time and BBG would be a co-obligor. I feel this is a serious oversight on the part of RFE management.

What are the legal consequences of being a co-obligor for BBG? Surely this has some potential financial exposure? You indicate that (b) (5)

I would request you advise me and the Board who those outside advisors were and how much was paid to secure their advice. I would like to see the documents (legal writings) which outside legal counsel presented to you. I assume (b) [REDACTED] who is RFE legal counsel was included too. You can e mail them to me or give them to me at the governance committee meeting Wednesday afternoon, March 7.

Finally, you say [REDACTED] (b) (5) I would like to see the legal research or memo which leads you to this conclusion. You can e mail this to me or give it to me tomorrow afternoon.

Dear Dick, (b) (6) Dennis, and (b) (6)

In further reviewing the line of credit being sought from BBG for property in Prague, I feel this needs to be discussed in a BBG Board meeting as well as RFE as it involves both. I also need to know what the financial exposure is to BBG should the transaction falter, fail or not meet expectations. What amount are we on the line for?

I compliment Dick Lobo for saying he wanted Board input even if he as IBB Director could make the decision on his own according to the opinion of (b) (6). I would like to see a more thoughtful analysis of Mr (b) (6) opinion. It is most unusual if BBG can sign onto lines of credit for entity Building purchases without Board approval or even knowledge (in theory). Mr. Lobo is to be applauded for insisting on the Board being comfortable with this.

I feel the Board should take steps to clarify this and provide clearly all lines of credit over a certain amount must be approved by BBG Board. This is a current loophole which could be grossly misused by a different IBB Director.

What does our CFO say about this? (b) (6)? Has out Budget Committee reviewed this?

I also feel the Board and our employees benefit if they see that the BBG Board does not routinely adopt these resolutions as a pro forma or notational matter but actually discuss it. Normally these issues are considered at committee level first. I will leave it to you and Dick Lobo on what you want to do in terms of committee consideration but bypassing the committee represents an exception to practice. However, I do formally request that persons who deal with these matters be in attendance at BBG full Board meeting to answer any questions which I or any other Board member may have as well as to consider any changes which might be recommended. I refer to (b) (6).

Last year, however, the policy statements were adopted by notation vote. You voted for the resolution, but stated that the policies should be brought up before the whole Board, which is what we have done this year. If you request that the policies be brought up for discussion before the Governance Committee, I suppose that they could be added to the agenda if the Committee Chairman does not object.

Subject: ADDENDUM: Digital Journal op-ed

FYI: This opinion piece appeared overnight in the online content-aggregator Digital Journal. Facts are still being verified.

Digital Journal Op-Ed: America's radios dancing to Putin's tune in Moscow

Moscow - Voice of America and Radio Liberty, funded by US taxpayers to promote media freedom abroad, self-censor news on two stations in Moscow to comply with Russian media law prior to Russia's presidential elections on March 4.

US government-funded media freedom broadcasters, Voice of America (VOA) and Radio Liberty (Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, RFE RL), have resorted to self-censorship of their news to keep broadcasting on two leased radio stations in Moscow in the days leading up to Russian presidential elections. Self-censorship affects only their radio newscasts on two AM Moscow transmitters, which are leased and paid for by the US government to rebroadcast VOA and RL programs. It does not extend to their other program delivery options, such as their websites. The newscasts on these stations were changed in response to a request from Russian operators of the transmitters who had warned that broadcasting political programming or poll results several days before the elections would violate Russian media law.

Because uncensored VOA and RL newscasts are still available online and, in the case of Radio Liberty, also through shortwave radio transmissions, a spokeswoman for the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG), which manages and funds these two broadcasters, said that the restrictions "do not interfere with the ability of the Voice of America or Radio Liberty to cover the elections or to carry on with their other duties." In the case of the Voice of America, however, removing news even from some broadcasts may violate Public Law 94-350 which mandates that

"VOA will serve as a consistently reliable and authoritative source of news." Furthermore, the law, also known as the VOA Charter, stipulates that "VOA news will be accurate, objective, and comprehensive."

The BBG's newly-hired director of communications Lynne Weil said in a response to an inquiry from Free Media Online, a US-based media freedom NGO, that "the BBG and its content providers, including the many individuals who risk their lives to shine the light of truth on some of the world's darkest corners, are fiercely protective of their journalistic independence and integrity, and vigilant about any obstacles - real or potential - to getting their work done."

Free Media Online said that any kind self-censorship of news, especially by stations established by US law and funded by American taxpayers to promote free press and democracy, sets a dangerous precedent and reveals a serious problem, particularly in the case of Russia where most of the media is controlled by the government and supporters of Prime Minister and presidential candidate Vladimir Putin.

"At the very least, the Broadcasting Board of Governors should have made a strong public announcement that its mission in Russia is being obstructed instead of keeping nearly silent about this problem and hoping that no one would notice," a spokesman for Free Media Online said.

Free Media Online has been critical of the Broadcasting Board of Governors for lacking transparency, over-dependence on authoritarian regimes for local program placement, and BBG's most recent decision to terminate Voice of America shortwave radio broadcasts to Tibet and all VOA news programs in Cantonese to China.

The letter sent to the Broadcasting Board of Governors by the operator of the Radio Liberty station in Moscow warned of a five-day ban on opinion polls, forecasts and use of research related to the campaigns or elections. The ban applies to the period from February 28 to March 4, 2012. Additionally, the letter states that on the day before and day of the election, there are what Russian authorities call "silence days" during which it is prohibited to broadcast (or print) positive or negative information about any of the candidates and/or political parties. This means no analysis or opinions pertaining to the candidates or elections and no information that can in any way "influence" voters. While a few Western democracies have laws that place less severe restrictions on media reporting, usually only on the election day, in Russia Prime Minister Putin has established effective control over most media to guarantee his reelection to the presidency. Numerous independent journalists who were outspoken in their criticism of the Kremlin and other Russian government bodies have been assassinated during the last decade.

BBG spokeswoman suggested that other Western media organizations whose news programs are available directly through local media outlets in Russia received similar letters and are also complying with requests for altering their news coverage. It is one thing, however, to comply with laws in democratic nations and another to accept restrictions on media freedom in a country ruled by an authoritarian regime, especially for an American institution created to set an example for local independent media and to promote media freedom abroad. The BBG pays hundreds of thousands of dollars a year for these two weak AM transmitters in Moscow. Since the BBG claims that its newscasts also can be easily accessed online, that money might be better spent on US-operated shortwave transmitters to reach those without Internet access in Russia rather than making Putin supporters richer and allowing them to dictate VOA and RL news coverage. Some of the money could be used to advertise shortwave frequencies in Russian media, for as long as that is allowed, and the remainder on improving radio, TV and new media coverage of human rights issues.

BBG spokeswoman insisted that that the Russian media law has virtually no impact on the Voice of America Russian Service because nearly all of its audience accesses its programming online. The BBG terminated all VOA shortwave radio and satellite television broadcasts to Russia in 2008, losing all of its Russian radio and TV audience.

The VOA Russian Service intends to report on the elections and update its website and blogs throughout the election cycle, without any restriction on its activities, BBG spokeswoman said. The VOA Russian Service prepares, however, a 30 minute radio program that gets broadcast Monday through Friday on another AM station in Moscow. The rest of VOA's programming on the Moscow medium-wave station is in English. Because the frequency is on a local lease, it is subject to the Russian law. To comply, in the five days before the election the VOA English Service is making a change to the 24/7 stream sent to Moscow -- replacing its five-minute hourly newscast with a pre-recorded segment that invites audiences to go online to VOANews.com for news and information about Russia and the world, Lynne Weil said. The remainder of English stream to Moscow is unchanged.

Prior to 2008, the Russian secret police put pressure on private radio and television stations in Russia to stop rebroadcasting VOA and RL programs. Experts speculate that the two AM stations in Moscow were allowed to carry these programs because they are directly controlled by the Russian authorities. This highly-controlled arrangement allows them to claim that there is media freedom in Russia and that Russian programs such as Russia Today and Voice of Russia should have unlimited access to US cable networks and private US radio stations, which they do.

Critics charge that the BBG's overeagerness to place programs on local networks in countries like Russia and China has resulted in many examples of removal of VOA brand name and downplaying the media freedom mission to achieve program placement and higher audience ratings even at the price of self-censorship. An influential independent Russian journalist and new media scholar Dr. Nikolay Rudenskiy has accused the VOA Russian Service staff of having a pro-Putin bias and downplaying human rights reporting. After the BBG terminated VOA Russian broadcasts in 2008, many seasoned VOA Russian Service reporters and editors were replaced with poorly-paid contractors hired from Russia. They had recently placed on the VOA website an interview with a leading Russian opposition figure Alexei Navalny that turned out to be fake. Navalny suggested that they should all be replaced.

Human rights organizations in Russia have also criticized Radio Liberty's Russian Service of a similar pro-Kremlin bias and for providing a forum for nationalist extremists. One expert pointed out that with the large Radio Liberty news bureau in Moscow, it would be inconceivable that the Russian security services which take their orders from a former KGB officer Vladimir Putin are not actively engaged in a campaign of behind the scenes intimidation and infiltration against the US supported broadcaster.

The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) also has its critics in the United States, including its employees who anonymously access and report for an independent website BBG Watch (www.bbgwatch.com). Many question why programs for Tibet, China, Chechnya in the Russian Federation, Georgia as well as VOA English and many other programs were chosen for severe cuts and layoffs while BBG executives, rated as the worst managers in the federal government, give themselves bonuses, create new bureaucratic positions and promote a programming philosophy that encourages self-censorship.

It appears that not even all BBG members have confidence in the executive staff. Senior Republican Victor Ashe -- the Board has four Democrats and four Republicans with the Secretary of State serving as an ex officio ninth member -- has been highly critical of poor employee morale and foreign control of BBG program delivery channels. Other part-time BBG members, however, still seem more inclined to rely on the executive staff which can claim no support of its journalists and other rank-and-file employees. These executives have developed a strategic restructuring plan, which critics argue would give them even more power and limit accountability, transparency and public scrutiny over US international broadcasting. Employees also suspect that there may be also political reasons for focusing the BBG's cuts on countries with the most severe restrictions on media and the greatest human rights violations. Removing the Voice of America brand-name, which implies prestige and support of the American people, may be the Obama Administration's attempt to soothe the Chinese communist dragon, one BBG employee said. Employees do not believe that the BBG's claim of trying to save money in the environment of tight federal budgets is credible in light of the lavish spending on BBG executives and contractors such as the Gallup Organization which received a $50 million five-year contract just before program cuts and layoffs were announced. The BBG claims that Radio Free Asia (RFA), which it also manages, can fill the gap left by VOA in Tibet and China. Human rights groups argue, however, that while RFA broadcasts are both excellent and needed, Voice of America broadcasting offers a special measure of credibility and moral support from the American people that a private radio cannot provide. One anonymous BBG journalist wrote a desperate commentary:

"The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) budget submission requests cutting seven employees out of 22 in the Voice of America (VOA) Tibetan Service, ending all six hours of daily VOA Tibetan radio broadcasts.

This is happening on the day China's Vice President Xi Jinping, heir apparent of the communist regime, arrives in Washington on a get-to-know-you visit.

This is happening while Tibet is burning. A day after the 23rd Tibetan monk self-immolated to protest unprecedented Chinese crackdown on their religion.

This is happening one week after CCTV, China's state TV, launched its first live daily broadcast from its brand new 36000 sq ft studio in Washington DC, the first step of China's $7 billion media offensive in America.

What is the BBG thinking? Has the Broadcasting Board of Governors gone mad?"

The independent, nongovernmental Committee for U.S. International Broadcasting (CUSIB - www.cusib.org), whose members include many human rights activists, joined forces with BBG employees to convince members of Congress of both parties to stop last year the BBG's plan to end all VOA broadcasts to China. This year CUSIB again issued an open letter to Congress adamantly objecting to the BBG's latest plan to end or reduce broadcasts to Tibet, China and other countries without free media.

Governors, colleagues, a message from Dick Lobo:

I wanted to make sure you know that the GAO has begun a study in cooperation with this agency that looks at the proposals and strategy for streamlining U.S. international media. To begin, they are talking with us about the challenges related to overlap and coordination.

As they start the project, the GAO's researchers will be speaking with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity. At this time, the GAO has not fully defined the scope of the project or its methodology. We'll learn more as they enter more deeply into discussions with us.

The GAO study was requested by Senators Akaka (D-Hawaii) and Johnson (R-Wisconsin), who serve as Chair and Ranking Member, respectively, on the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and the Federal Workforce. The GAO is also looking at other Federal programs, including democracy assistance, assistance to Afghanistan, and food aid.

We view this study as an opportunity to make the GAO - and its ultimate audience and client, Congress - aware of the agency's robust efforts to operate more efficiently and effectively amid the current budget environment. We will keep you informed as this study progresses.

all good points which Dennis makes. I think this calls for the three grantee heads plus VOA and OCB to meet regularly and communicate often...especially when troops below them are not working as well together as they might. This can be done now and does not have to wait on consolidation. When issues like this arise, picking up the phone to call the respective head might solve the problem.

Have a good weekend.

I don't think (b) (6) was trying to be critical here. I believe he was just trying to point out some of the institutional barriers to cooperation and to our ability to deliver as effectively as possible on USIM's over-arching global mission. Clearly, and understandably given the current structure, all the networks have their individual priorities which do not always fit with their sister institutions' priorities. Even with the best will the world, which I believe all our business leaders have, absent some new approaches these problems will continue to arise and the cooperation and mission success we all seek in different parts of the world, and on different platforms, will continue to present a challenge.

I sure (b) (6) has, or will, discuss this individual case with (b) (6) but again I don't see it as criticism of MBN or its leadership, but rather an effort to bring to the board's attention some of the "on the ground" challenges all our networks face.

this should be shared with (b) (6) and others too as it involves MBN and criticism of MBN. This type of issue could be resolved easily right now by you (b) (6) letting the Board know and/or Lobo and asking for his involvement. You could have told the 6 Board members present in Miami only 8 days ago about this and we could have discussed it with (b) (6) present. I assume you knew about it then as the story broke on April 5 according to the e mail.

Frankly I am disappointed that this was not bumped up to you (b) (6) much earlier and then you should have picked up the phone and called (b) (6) as well relative Governors if you thought it merited action.

Consolidation has many unanswered questions and missing documentation on cost and savings which I raised on April 20 at the BBG Board meeting. Even a so called streamlined organization which you favor will have these issues too. As Gov Meehan pointed out, this consolidation does not impact VOA so the VOA issue mentioned here would not be solved by merger of grantees.

Cooperation and/or sharing may be an issue today but the current structure can solve if the relevant people raise it to the right people like the April 20 BBG Board meeting or you calling (b) (6) direct when those below you were unable to make the progress they desired. Is this trial still going on and is there still time for VOA/MBN to participate? Do (b) (6) agree with (b) (6) assessment of the merit of the story? That is why I have copied them on this e mail. Cooperation and sharing would suggest that you let MBN and VOA know of your unhappiness when you are e mailing the entire BBG Board and IBB Director Lobo so they can respond.

Sincerely yours and thanks for letting us know,

(b) (6)

For several weeks we are trying to get help from our BBG bros in covering an important trial in Tripoli. More than 20 Russian, Ukrainian and Belarusian citizens are charged with assisting Quadaffi regime and may face death sentence. Officials in our broadcast countries used to deny any knowledge of the trial but later had to acknowledge it. It stirred significant public interest.

We don't have correspondents in Libya. We asked several times our colleagues in Washington to help us. We acted through the Central newsroom. Our Washington Bureau Chief.t, (b) (6) raised the issue with Al Hurrah, Sawa, MBN. The answer was – "they're "aware of the story but not covering it at this time." (b) (6) also reached out to VOA and was told they have no plans to cover.

I discussed the issue with the BBG staffers while on a visit in Washington in mid-April. They explained that they do not have executive powers.

We broke the story on April 5; since that time we have received no assistance in any form. The story would have been unique for our audiences and would have directly benefitted Rus, Bel, Ukr services in RFE/RL and Rus, Ukr services in VOA.

The trial is still going on.

It is food for thought and I think a good place to start is for the grantee heads along with VOA and OCB heads to start regular meetings over breakfast or lunch when BBG meets or by teleconference. This used to happen and has dropped off in the past year for whatever reason I understand.

In specific instances like this, then using the phone to call MBN or VOA or them calling RFE if it is the other way around makes sense. This can happen now. We do not have to wait on the consolidation issues being resolved.

Have a good weekend and we all look forward to May and the wonderful weather. The Murrow Transmission facility dedication is this Wednesday and should be a great event thanks to efforts of Tish King, Lynne Weil, local staff, Congressman Jones and local officials in Pitt County.

Dennis' response is spot on. I could not have said it better myself.

As to raising this in Miami, that would have been tough to do, since I was only told about it this past week during a meeting I held with language service directors to prepare for a series of meetings Dick is chairing on the 2014 budget.

Regarding my failure to copy [REDACTED] (b) (6) mea culpa. It was inadvertent. I didn't even realize it until Dick pointed it out to me late last night (my time). I had planned to send them a copy this morning (my time). So thank you for forwarding a copy to them.

Nothing in my email was intended as a criticism of MBN or VOA. I am confident that there are plenty of instances where RFE/RL has failed to provide our sister organizations with material that they needed. The point here is that organizations (and people) respond to the incentives which are provided to them. Unless and until the incentives are changed, one cannot expect the behavior to change. This was, is, and always will be a feature of human nature.

As I said, this was only intended as food for thought in your ongoing deliberations on the future structure of

USIB.

Enders, my friend, this can happen right now if the person who leads the organization in question simply picks up the phone and calls the other head such as (b) (6) or the other way around. There is no barrier to this. I think all wish to assist and cooperate. Regular meetings between all heads should be resumed.

Consolidation of the three grantees still has many unanswered questions such as documenting the costs and savings. Savings of $10 million seem modest in a budget of $730 million...less than 2 percent savings.

To date the selection process for a new CEO for the three grantees has NOT been revealed. It is unclear what qualifications he/she must have. Congressional review of this selection such as Senate Confirmation has been omitted.

These are all worthy subjects for BBG debate and should precede a decision to consolidate when there are many unknowns.

Happy weekend. I am off to church here in Knoxville.

And it is clear from the unprecedeted amount of cooperation already taking place, unknown in the days when I ran one of the radios, that everyone understands why cooperation across networks is essential. But knowing cannot always translate to doing when so many barriers to full cooperation exist, or when different networks have other or more immediate priorities.

(b) (6) larger point is that had we had a single CEO at the center of this activity, the chances of this opportunity being lost would have diminished. Someone has to be empowered to direct the various USIB assets into focus and cooperation operationally on pressing national interests, and this has to happen immediately when a pressing issue arises, not just when the board meets to when the network heads gather. This leader cannot be a part time board like the BBG, which has no operational responsibility in any case. Every good business, and virtually all other international broadcasters, grasp this, including, I will wager, the Chinese, the Russians, and those other competitors who increasingly will best us on the basis of sheer spending power if we do not get our act together.

(b) (6) has done us a service by highlighting a problem that goes straight to the heart of USIB's weakness. It was not meant as criticism of anyone, but of the dysfunction in our organizational model, which wastes vast amounts of taxpayer assets while failing to meet the strategic objectives for which USIB is intended.

Subject: Tripoli problem

(b) (6)

For several weeks we are trying to get help from our BBG bros in covering an important trial in Tripoli. More than 20 Russian, Ukrainian and Belarusian citizens are charged with assisting Quadaffi regime and may face death sentence. Officials in our broadcast countries used to deny any knowledge of the trial but later had to acknowledge it. It stirred significant public interest.

We don't have correspondents in Libya. We asked several times our colleagues in Washington to help us. We acted through the Central newsroom. Our Washington Bureau Chief.t, [REDACTED] (b) (6), raised the issue with Al Hurrah, Sawa, MBN. The answer was – "they're "aware of the story but not covering it at this time." [REDACTED] (b) (6) also reached out to VOA and was told they have no plans to cover.

I discussed the issue with the BBG staffers while on a visit in Washington in mid-April. They explained that they do not have executive powers.

We broke the story on April 5; since that time we have received no assistance in any form. The story would have been unique for our audiences and would have directly benefitted Rus, Bel, Ukr services in RFE/RL and Rus, Ukr services in VOA.

The trial is still going on.

this is all the more reason to actually do some proactive cutting...like the (b) (6) proposal to eliminate GS 15 positions which are unfilled. Dick Lobo, this actually needs to happen. The Gallup contract needs to be capped at $6 million a year...group travel to international conferences needs to be limited...GSA scandal is generating legislation which may force this...why not do it ourselves? How many people attended recent National Association of Broadcasters in Las Vegas? in prior years it has been as high as 18 persons. Delhi last year was 12 persons. This should be discussed in depth at Strategy and Budget.

FYI – the House allocations for the FY 2013 budget have come out and, as expected, are in line with the Ryan Budget proposal. The Allocation for the State and Foreign Ops Bill is $40B as compared to the Senate allocation which is $50B (excluding $3B in off-budget allocations). Both allocations are below FY 2012. To put the House number in perspective, the FY 2012 enacted number for the State and Foreign Ops Bill was $53B.

While we do not yet have specific numbers for our portions of the Bill, we can expect the House numbers will be close to the numbers we submitted in our official budget request for FY 2013. What we also have not seen are the off-budget allocations for the House, which may also factor in. Of course, there will be negotiations between the House and Senate to reconcile the numbers in the final appropriation act, but I expect that we will not be unscathed in the FY 2013 process.

I will keep you posted. Thanks. [REDACTED] (b) (6)

House FY 13 allocation for State-Foreign Ops significantly lower than Senate number

The House Appropriations committee today approved by a 28-21 vote its FY 13 allocations for the 12 appropriations bills, CQ.com reports <<http://www.cq.com/doc/news-4069408>>. State-Foreign Operations, which includes Department of State exchange programs, would be funded at $48.3 billion, consisting of $40.1 billion in base funding and $8.2 billion for Overseas Contingency Operations (OCO). This is $5 billion less than the Senate State-

Foreign Operations authorization, approved <<http://alliance-exchange.org/policy-monitor/04/20/2012/senate-appropriations-committee-marks-fy-13-allocations-53-billion-state-f>> last week.

The U.S. Global Leadership Coalition (USGLC) notes that the cuts to State Foreign Operations of 9.4 per cent in the House allocation are “disproportionately deep … relative to other security accounts” and that only one other discretionary account (Transportation-HUD) received a cut larger than that suffered by State-Foreign Operations.

Concerning the FY 13 House markup, House Appropriations Chairman Hal Rogers (R-KY) explained <<http://appropriations.house.gov/News/DocumentSingle.aspx?DocumentID=292277>> :

“The levels provided for each of the 12 Appropriations bills will continue to demonstrate how seriously this House takes its charge to rein in extraneous and unnecessary spending, encourage economic competitiveness and job growth, help strengthen the nation’s infrastructure, and ensure a strong national security for the protection of all Americans.”

The $1.028 trillion allocated overall for the 12 appropriations bills aligns with the discretionary spending cap set by the House’s FY 13 budget resolution, CQ.com explains, adding that in total the House allocates $19 billion less for the 12 bills than the Senate.

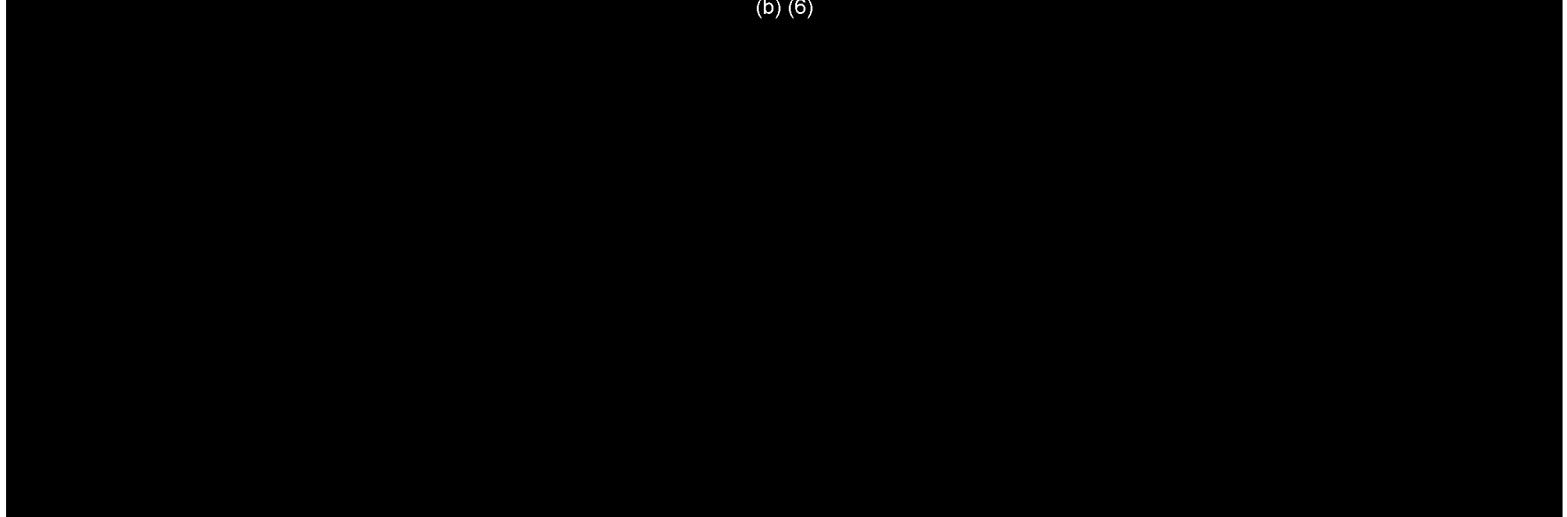

Alliance conversations with the Hill indicate that House State-Foreign Operations subcommittee action is likely to begin in mid-May, but could be delayed until later that month.

USGLC notes that the State-Foreign Operations bill could possibly come to the floor in mid-June “where non-war related programs would be very susceptible to further deep cuts.”

Senate subcommittee action on the appropriations bills is yet to be scheduled.

Dear Governors,

For planning purposes, please confirm your availability for the June Board meeting in Prague. The June Board meeting (as previously approved in December 2011) is scheduled for June 7 and 8. Governors are encouraged to arrive in Prague on June 6.

If you cannot attend the meeting in person, please let us know if you would be available to participate by teleconference or video conference. With your input, staff will work with RFE/RL to arrange your participation from RFE/RL conference room in Washington (1201 Connecticut Ave., NW) for the audio/video connection as it has a strong, reliable, high-quality connection to Prague and might be able to conference participants from other remote locations.

Please let us know about your availability at your earliest convenience.

My hope is that BBG sets a high standard without waiting on Congress to tell us what that standard should be when we know thru common sense in most cases what it should and should not be. I am pleased you are working on this. Money saved here can help save some language services. Also we need to make sure we do not send too many persons to the same conference such as NAB in Las Vegas and the 2011 Delhi conference where 12 attended and total costs exceeded $85,000 in travel. Far fewer persons could have sufficed I suspect. It will take someone of your status to enforce it. The important thing is that you in your leadership position are pursuing this. I look forward to your report to the Board at our Prague meeting.

We should be able to report to Congress on what BBG did on our own before Congress made it the law.

Thanks for your efforts.

Victor, thank you for your email of April 24.

As you know, we've been working hard to review and improve our travel policies and practices, and were doing so well in advance of the GSA scandal. Agency travel costs dropped more than 4 percent from FY 2010 to FY 2011, and in FY 2012 we estimate travel spending will be down more than 7 percent from 2010. In FY 2013, the agency's proposed budget reduces travel spending 20 percent from FY 2010 levels.

As I've assured you already, we'll continue to work to control travel and conference costs.

This said, we are an international agency with assets around the globe. Travel is necessary to oversee and improve management of our operations.

I'm confident that our agency can comply with the letter and spirit of Senator Coburn's amendment – which (b) (6) (b) (6) detailed earlier today in an email – should Congress pass it into law.

Senator Coburn of Oklahoma succeeded today in a report published on Roll Call found at www.rollcall.com <<http://www.rollcall.com/>> in major changes for all federal agencies on travel and attendance at conferences including posting items on their web sites.

This occurred in the wake of the GSA scandal. I personally believe (b) (6) should secure a copy of the proposed changes and BBG should move on its own to implement these changes which may be legislated into law. We should not wait on Congress telling us what to do. BBG should be proactive on this.

We have our own BBG experience of 12 persons going to Delhi, India last year. In some past years as many as 17 persons have attended the NAB (National Association of Broadcasters) annual meeting in Las Vegas. One person has racked up over $100,000 in costs for international flights in little over one year. Perhaps there are wonderful explanations for all of this but I doubt it. BBG needs to set an example and the Coburn amendment which the Senate adopted can point the way.

in terms of the grantee consolidation issue, the record of decisions should reflect that a division of the question into three separate parts was called for by Gov. Ashe. That the first question voted on was adopted unanimously, on the second matter in terms of advisers, Gov Ashe offered an amendment requiring consultation and concurrence with governance committee. Said amendment was adopted unanimously and the original motion as amended was adopted by a vote of 5 to 1 with Gov Ashe voting No. The third portion of the divided question was then withdrawn by the sponsor, Gov Mulhaupt.

Victor –

Thank you for your concurrence with our proposal to treat the motions that preceded the grantee consolidation decision as part of the minutes of the last meeting and not as part of the Record of Decisions.

I understand your feeling about Governor Mulhaupt's decision not to include, as part of the decision element before the Board, a recommendation that Congressional notification should be prepared.

But, we have never treated the decision of an individual Governor to withdraw (or rather not to put forward) a proposed decision element as a "Board decision". I am not sure how we can construe one Governor's forbearance of an action as a decision of the Board. So, our plan is to include that also in the meeting minutes (if at all) and not in the Record of Decisions.

I would also note for your consideration that this point is probably moot because the Board has already directed the IBB Director to prepare Congressional notification about the prospective consolidation. The language of the January 2012 decision (available on the BBG website) is as follows:

The Board also directs the IBB Director, as soon as practicable, to prepare and transmit any Congressional notification that may be required to implement the Board's intentions as stated in this decision.

It is hard to believe congressional notification would occur when the Board has not voted on the consolidation plan. That is called putting the cart in front of the horse.

I disagree with your decision on what is included in the Record of Minutes and believe you do not have the right to do this on your own authority without Board approval. I request this matter go before the governance committee on May 24 and not appear on the BBG web site as you propose. If you proceed anyway, then I request that the record of minutes reflect that on this single issue one Board member, Victor Ashe, disagrees.

Victor –

Thank you for your concurrence with our proposal to treat the motions that preceded the grantee consolidation decision as part of the minutes of the last meeting and not as part of the Record of Decisions.

I understand your feeling about Governor Mulhaupt's decision not to include, as part of the decision element before the Board, a recommendation that Congressional notification should be prepared.

But, we have never treated the decision of an individual Governor to withdraw (or rather not to put forward) a proposed decision element as a "Board decision". I am not sure how we can construe one Governor's forbearance of an action as a decision of the Board. So, our plan is to include that also in the meeting minutes (if at all) and not in the Record of Decisions.

I would also note for your consideration that this point is probably moot because the Board has already directed the IBB Director to prepare Congressional notification about the prospective consolidation. The language of the January 2012 decision (available on the BBG website) is as follows:

The Board also directs the IBB Director, as soon as practicable, to prepare and transmit any Congressional notification that may be required to implement the Board's intentions as stated in this decision.

Thanks. [REDACTED] (b) (6)

part of the substance of the decision was that the third portion of the divided question was withdrawn by the sponsor. That should go in the substance of the Board's decision. I concur in the other part of what you say as long as the total procedural process is reflected in the full minutes. However, the record of decisions should reflect that part of the recommendation on consolidation as it relates to congressional notification was not adopted by the Board but actually withdrawn on motion of the sponsor. I feel that should be included in the record of decisions which will go immediately on the web site while the other full minutes will wait until June.

in terms of the grantee consolidation issue, the record of decisions should reflect that a division of the question into three separate parts was called for by Gov. Ashe. That the first question voted on was adopted unanimously, on the second matter in terms of advisers, Gov Ashe offered an amendment requiring consultation and concurrence with governance committee. Said amendment was adopted unanimously and the original motion as amended was adopted by a vote of 5 to 1 with Gov Ashe voting No. The third portion of the divided question was then withdrawn by the sponsor, Gov Mulhaupt.

Travel Notice – Necessary and Reasonableness of Travel Expense

The chief of the General Services Administration, Martha Johnson, and two of her top executives resigned in early April 2012 after release of a GSA Inspector General report on 2010 travel spending by GSA. The report documented excessive and wasteful travel expenditures including non-compliance with federal procurement laws and

Federal Travel Regulations. Link to GSA OIG report: http://oversight.house.gov/wp-content/uploads/2012/04/4-2-12-Final-Management-Deficiency-Report_WRC.pdf

BBG may only pay those expenses essential to the transaction of official business (Source: FTR 301-2.2, 301-2.4, 301.2.3, 301-73.102, 301-50.3, 301-50.5).

- * BBG may not pay for excess costs resulting from circuitous routes, delays, or luxury.
- * Accommodations or services unnecessary or unjustified in the performance of official business.
- * Travelers must exercise the same care in incurring expenses that a prudent person would exercise if traveling on personal business.

BBG employees are reminded that all official travel must be booked through the E2 Travel System or the CW on-site travel agent.

- * Employees may not book travel services (e.g., airline tickets, hotels, or rental cars) for official business through a third-party, such as Orbitz, Priceline, or Expedia. Using sources other than E2/CW is a violation of the TMC contract with the Federal Government and subjects the government to a potential law suit for damages for breach of contract.

Senator Coburn of Oklahoma succeeded today in a report published on Roll Call found at www.rollcall.com in major changes for all federal agencies on travel and attendance at conferences including posting items on their web sites.

This occurred in the wake of the GSA scandal. I personally believe (b) (6) should secure a copy of the proposed changes and BBG should move on its own to implement these changes which may be legislated into law. We should not wait on Congress telling us what to do. BBG should be proactive on this.

We have our own BBG experience of 12 persons going to Delhi, India last year. In some past years as many as 17 persons have attended the NAB (National Association of Broadcasters) annual meeting in Las Vegas. One person has racked up over $100,000 in costs for international flights in little over one year. Perhaps there are wonderful explanations for all of this but I doubt it. BBG needs to set an example and the Coburn amendment which the Senate adopted can point the way.

Please be advised due to my current security clearance status, my Executive Leadership Program (ELP) Developmental Work Assignment with U.S. State Department has been cancelled. Thus, I will return back to my regular work schedule until I secure another assignment to fulfill requirements to successfully complete the ELP program. In addition, I am weighing other developmental assignments options and hopefully I can begin a new assignment as early as next week.

Unfortunately, prior to my detail assignment the State Department had never shared with me that a Secret Clearance was required. Over the past week, I have been working closely with both IBB as well as the State Department Security updating my clearance status by filling out the SF 86 - Questionnaire for National Security Position with hopes that I would be issued an interim temporary security clearance. Sadly, due to the fact that the ELP Developmental Work Assignment is only eight weeks, the U.S. State Department was not willing to go through the long drawn out process of obtaining a clearance for a short assignment for an employee of another agency. As for Broadcast Board of Governors, the agency will not move forward in updating my security clearance to a higher level to secret because my position description of Senior TV Production Specialist does not require it. All of this comes as a great surprise to me because former ELP participant, [REDACTED] (b) (6) did not require a secret clearance to do her detail at the State Department. Also, my mentor [REDACTED] (b) (6) had also shared with me his hopes of my doing a detail at the State Department because of agreements set in place with the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

These recent series of events have derailed my progress and completion of the Executive Leadership Program. I would need to start the detail this week to fulfill the Developmental Assignment by June 8th. Therefore, I have spoken to BBG Training Coordinator, [REDACTED] (b) (6) on formally writing the Graduate School USA's ELP Coordinator, [REDACTED] (b) (6) on giving me an extension in the program because I have not secured my developmental assignment in time to fulfill the ELP program requirements. With that said, I will not graduate on time by June 15th, but I am still required to do the developmental assignment to successfully complete the program.

Despite these challenges, I am optimistic that I will be able to complete all that is required of me for the ELP with the support of the leadership in the English to Africa Division.

Thanks for your time and consideration in this matter.

Regards!

Jeff and Dick

I wanted to share with you both how hard (b) (6) work. Only last night at 830 (b) (6) called me on a matter coming before the BBG meeting in Miami and she was still at the Cohen Bldg. Today she flies to Miami.

She put in a 13 hour day on April 16. This is impressive. I told her she needed to go home and get some rest.

(b) (6) is equally dedicated and hard working.

I suggest we use a word other than' holistic". This is an inside the beltway term. We need to use words which average Americans who pay for BBG understand immediately and do not have to find a dictionary to look up. I say this as a Yale graduate. We will be discussing this in open webcam session and we want to make sure our listening audience knows what we are talking about. This is not Dick's term but was used at Strategy and Budget Committee on April 10.

Ah, so that explains why Fed-Ex phoned this morning to ask for a room number. We provided explicit instructions for ease of delivery -- by what route to enter the Cohen Building, in addition to which room, along with two phone contacts -- but the package didn't reach this office.

We called Fed-Ex HQ to try to work out what happened, but Customer Service had no record of a delivery for me.

Weird. Chalk it up to Friday the 13th?

Anyway, if you have the tracking number we can work on this matter once more on Monday.

In the meantime, have a good weekend. I hope the weather there is as gorgeous as it's going to be here!

Dear [REDACTED] (b) (6)

Apologies for the slightly delayed reply; I needed to check on a couple of things on Thursday and today – which then, like most Fridays, went by in a whoosh of trying to wrap up projects before the weekend.

Thanks for getting in touch with me on this matter and for cc-ing the BBG's FOIA point man, [REDACTED] (b) (6) who will await the arrival of the letter by mail before taking action, in keeping with agency procedures.

Meantime, from the standpoint of a former journalist and a perpetually curious individual, I hope you won't mind if I pose a couple of questions of my own:

What prompted [REDACTED] (b) (6) to seek info on the travel costs for these individuals, and nobody else? For example, our Governors, whose overseas and domestic travel often is paid for through the BBG? They are, after all, the heads of this agency.

Best regards,

Where does this matter stand in terms of April 20 BBG consideration. Governance looked at length at it on March 7. I would like to see the revised draft. Why is it not on for April 20 or is it and I missed it. Since I took the lead in making most of the proposed changes, I feel I should be kept current on progress on this.

Victor – Thanks for your email and good to speak with you on the phone just now. The numbers below correspond to the numbering in your email:

1. With my apologies, neither (b) (6) nor I received your handwritten changes to the minutes that you gave to (b) (6) before today. We will incorporate the changes as they relate solely to statements that you made at the March 8 Board meeting and provide an amended set of minutes at the meeting.
2. The agenda of the Governors briefing on Thursday April 19 reflects that the By-law amendments are part of the Governance Committee report. The intention is that you would cover these in the open meeting as part of the Governance Committee report, as per the past practice of the Board. We would be happy to prepare an updated agenda clearly indicating that the Governance Committee report to be given at the open meeting will cover the proposed amendments.
3. I did not know about the existence of a letter re Carlson Travel. The issue is on the agenda during the Governors briefing so, perhaps, you could discuss the letter then.
4. As we discussed, the Governance Committee recommendation was to defer further consideration of the sexual harassment and EEO statements until the next Committee meeting. The Committee report from the March 7 meeting states “The Committee discussed policy statements on equal employment opportunity and sexual harassment and decided to defer further consideration for the next meeting of the Governance Committee.” We will put this item on the agenda of the next Committee meeting and, with luck, it should be on the agenda of the June Board meeting.
5. I must defer to Dick Lobo regarding the status of the union negotiations and believe that he intends to brief the Board on this. The key take-away from my perspective is that the current Negotiated Labor-Management Agreement, which has been in effect since September 22, 2005, continues to be in effect until the parties complete renegotiation. The agreement had an original term of three years, which is automatically renewed for additional one year periods unless either party serves notice of the intent to renegotiate all or part of the agreement. Even when the parties renegotiate, the original agreement is in effect until a new agreement is in place.

Dear (b) (6)

I have the package for the upcoming BBG meeting.

1-the minutes insofar as they relate to me on the Gallup contract are not fully accurate and I had given the changes to (b) (6) this past week on April 10 for changes as requested. Those changes were not made to the proposed minutes which I received today. I request they be made.

2- The agenda does not show precisely where the proposed by law changes will be voted on..perhaps under governance but the agenda is not precise in listing them. Are the actual changes listed? You will want to bring several copies of the minutes as well as Roberts Rules of Order with you to the official meeting.

3-Where is the draft letter on Carlson Travel? It is hard to have the discussion if (b) (6) draft is not there to consider.

4-why are we not voting on the revised sexual harassment statement which the governance committee on March 7 considered at length for this meeting? Is it there and I did not see it? I would like to see the revised copy from the Governance Committee meeting. I also feel the full Board should vote on it at the April 20 meeting.

5-where is the discussion on the negotiations with the unions especially AFGE and the reasons a new contract has not been agreed to? What are the reasons for the impasse? When are the next meetings planned? when was the last meeting between management and (b) (6) of AFGE? Who participated in that meeting?

On this end, I'll follow up with Fed Ex to see what happened to the letter. It's bewildering that an organization funded to provide global communication doesn't have a simple streamline method of receiving or transmitting written communications ... this month they have no procedure in place to receive a package from Fed Ex, and last month their legal department had no procedure in place to attach a document to an email.

Thank you for any help you may be able to provide.

Sincerely,

Ah, so that explains why Fed-Ex phoned this morning to ask for a room number. We provided explicit instructions for ease of delivery -- by what route to enter the Cohen Building, in addition to which room, along with two phone contacts -- but the package didn't reach this office.

We called Fed-Ex HQ to try to work out what happened, but Customer Service had no record of a delivery for me.

Weird. Chalk it up to Friday the 13th?

Anyway, if you have the tracking number we can work on this matter once more on Monday.

In the meantime, have a good weekend. I hope the weather there is as gorgeous as it's going to be here!

Best,

Lynne

Dear Lynne:

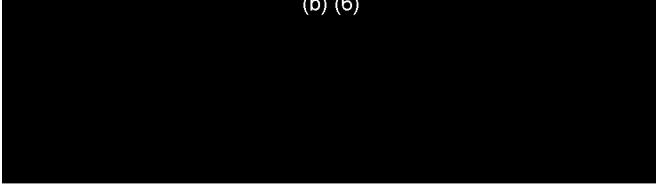

Thanks for your note. Seems like you're working late!

My Fed-Ex letter to you should have arrived at the BBG today ... will hunt around for the receipt to be sure it was delivered.

There may come a time when we will be interested in requesting travel cost information about the BBG Governors, but for the time being, this current FOIA request is sufficient.

Dear (b) (6)

Apologies for the slightly delayed reply; I needed to check on a couple of things on Thursday and today – which then, like most Fridays, went by in a whoosh of trying to wrap up projects before the weekend.

Thanks for getting in touch with me on this matter and for cc-ing the BBG's FOIA point man, Andrew, who will await the arrival of the letter by mail before taking action, in keeping with agency procedures.

Meantime, from the standpoint of a former journalist and a perpetually curious individual, I hope you won't mind if I pose a couple of questions of my own:

What prompted (b) (6) to seek info on the travel costs for these individuals, and nobody else? For example, our Governors, whose overseas and domestic travel often is paid for through the BBG? They are, after all, the heads of this agency.

Best regards,

Perhaps my email wasn't clear. I know that my email yesterday said that I have reason to believe that the situation in most, if not all, of our other bureaus is equally bad. That did not mean that "the situation is bad, but I don't intend to do anything about it". The list of needs and priorities to which I referred included ALL of our bureaus, not just the ones I have visited thus far. Indeed, as I explained, we are moving to replace all of our computers in Bishkek, although I have not yet visited there (I am planning a visit there and to some other Central Asian bureaus during the summer). Again, if you had the impression that I am only concerned about the bureaus I have visited, then that is a failure of explication, not intent.

As to your point about Iran, we do not have a bureau there and we never have. I have, however, made it clear internally, ad nauseum, that Iran, together with Af/Pak and Russia are our three most important priorities. We do not intend to give Af/Pak and Iran (or any other of our broadcast territories) to VOA, or to anyone else.

As to why I chose to visit these particular bureaus first, the rationale for that was set forth in my email to the Board of January 16 to which I referred at least twice in yesterday's email. In that regard, I point out that I received no comments about that earlier email from you or any other Board member at any time since January 16.

As I am sure you recall, the January email set forth in some detail my plans about where I wanted to take the company based upon my obsevations over the first six months of my tenure. Yesterday's email was a bit of an update of the earlier email, but focused on bureaus.

As to your concern about which countries are the farthest east, let me assure you that I actually am pretty good at geography. I know well the relative locations of Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Georgia and Armenia. The concept of looking East was set forth in my January 16 email and was a reference to the fact that my predecessor put more emphasis and resources into our image in Washington than I intend. I said that, given our limited resources, I believe we must put as much of our resources into our broadcast region as we can. In this regard I would note that all of the countries in question are east of Washington (as well as Prague).

I trust you will find this note responsive to the points raised in your email.

Where is the emphasis on Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan?. Armenia and Georgia are not nearly as important as these three nations? Is RFE simply giving these three nations to VOA and walking away under this plan? If so, tell us.

You talk of going East but Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan are further east than Armenia and Georgia. Just what is (b) (6) definition of east and west here?

The truth is that RFE took a huge cut in 1996 and has never recovered. It would appear that RFE tries to do too much in too many places with too little. Russia is important but the new Putin may well figure out a way to block RFE from growth in Russia.

I worry that (b) (6) has decided not to visit other nations where RFE operates and has limited his visits to what he has seen. What other trips to areas served by RFE are planned by (b) (6) if any? His concern for the plight of employees in Moscow and safety at the Baku office are well taken. However, what has moved Georgia and Armenia to the forefront when other nations in the same 'east' neighborhood are far more critical to US interests.

I look forward to a response and discussion on this. Choices must be made and they need to add up in terms of American interests.

I feel there should be a discussion of the failure to have a contract with AFGE at the Miami Board meeting.

We need to know what the issues are which separate the two sides. Who handles this for management now? When was the last negotiation and when is the next one scheduled.

I plan to ask these questions and did not want to surprise you with them. It relates to bad morale.

Dick, let me commend you again for your meetings contractors. The point you told me about a contractor who was given a termination notice and then it was rescinded needs to be shared with the Board. We also need to know how such a thing could happen. It creates terrible rumors and talk of retaliation. I know it worries you or you would not have told me of it.

I then prepared the draft based on the concurrence of the Governors and circulated it for comment to the other IBB staff members who attended the meeting.

With respect to China, the agreement was to create a working group to develop a "holistic plan" for broadcasting to China (including Tibet and Cantonese), which is reflected in the draft report.

This does not foreclose any outcome, including the possibility of restoring funding, once the requested plan is reviewed by the Committee and the Board. If you wish, we can note your view that China funding should be fully restored.

failure to restore Tibetan language and the China cuts will only result in Congress doing it for us. I prefer we do it but in either case it will happen as congress will override any failure of the Board to restore.

Dick,

I have given lots of thought to your response. First, it would have been helpful to have had the original letter being answered attached as well. Second, the response to the March 1 letter is 42 days later which seems too long a delay. Third, since the letter was addressed to Governor Lynton, it might have been a good idea to state in the response that he asked you as IBB Director to respond (which I assume is what occurred).

Fourth, the Board was not consulted on the response. Fifth, as a former Mayor, I have experience over 16 years working city employees, unions and professional associations.

Sixth, I concur the Union should have provided actual examples in the letter. Seventh, the letter should have included steps you personally have taken to address contractor issues including several meetings as well as the governance committee on March 9. Eighth, contractor employees have often worked over 20 years each at BBG. They receive no or few benefits. They feel vulnerable. The case you cited to me of a contractor within the past few weeks being sent a termination notice which was subsequently rescinded was most distressing. In fact you shared it with me because you yourself were upset over it.

Ninth, your statement on Greenville can only trigger further concerns that there is an effort to close the Murrow facility. True the 2011 budget suggested doing this but Congress blocked it. It was not because BBG asked for money to halt the closing. BBG has since figured out this is a non starter and Murrow will stay open for some years to come. Tenth, your statement on short wave is not shared by all and certainly not by me. I feel shortwave has a longer future than conveyed in your letter. Eleventh, I think replacing retirees at Murrow in Greenville with contract employees is part of a game plan to close down the facility which this Board has NOT voted to do. These words in this letter sends the wrong signal to Congress which can see between the lines.

Twelfth, if AFGE is asking for information, we should give it to them and not be legalistic about it. There should be compelling reasons not to do it if that is what is done.

Dick, BBG continues to get low marks on poor morale. The governance committee is working to change that. I personally feel that whoever drafted this letter for you to sign should have consulted with the governance committee. Obviously, BBG had it for 42 days so there was time. I think we could have improved it and avoided some the mistakes this letter contains in my view. Dick, I wish parts of this letter had been changed before it went out.

I had a personal meeting with [REDACTED] (b) (6) to discuss this case, and, yes, he disagreed with the outcome – that is to be expected given the fact that he is a union representative. The meeting was pleasant, or as pleasant as any meeting with [REDACTED] (b) (6) can be.

Given these facts, I cannot understand why you would send a message to my entire supervisory chain implying that the Office of Human Resources does not work well with the Department of State. In fact, this office has an excellent professional and collaborative relationship with State and has had for many years. This case involved immigration laws over which this agency has no jurisdiction, and I have no intention of using my federal position to influence State to ignore immigration laws.

Here is an employee issue from this week where (b) (6) president of the AFGE union voices really strong views on how (b) (6) and HR handled this issue. I am not taking sides on the issue but I do feel it raises significant questions in light of our March 9 governance committee meeting and the good will created there from just listening. (b) (6) are clearly at odds here. It is not a good situation. BBG does not seem to work well with State here either.

As mayor of Knoxville, I tried to work with employees. I maintained strong communications with unions and individual employees. Dick Lobo has reached out to contractors. However, he learned in one meeting a contractor who had appeared before us was sent a termination notice shortly thereafter followed shortly thereafter by a new notice saying it was all a mistake. While he has NOT been fired there are those who wonder if this was just an error or intended to have a chilling impact by seeming to terminate but then not doing it. Someone seems to not have gotten the Board message that we want to work to solve these issues. These 'mistakes' cause us lasting damage. Under Dennis Mulhaupt's leadership the governance committee is listening. Lobo is holding more contractor meetings even at 0700. We must not allow other incidents to undercut top level actions.

It also bothers me that BBG does not have a new contract with AFGE. Why is this? What are the hurdles to overcome? If morale is to improve we must do better. I am told more meetings are not even scheduled. I worry that the second level folks in a few cases are not getting the message from Lobo and the Board as evidenced by this e mail and the contractor firing followed by rescinding the termination. There is suspicion that this is designed to create an impasse and send it arbitration.

We have lots to discuss in Miami.

I have discussed it with (b) (6) because I didn't want to do it without her knowledge and permission. She has given her permission so we will do it.

(b) (6) description of our meeting with (b) (6) is accurate. One thing that shocked me (although I should be used to this by now) was her complete lack of concern or empathy for (b) (6)'s plight. I told her that the problem I had with this whole process was that this individual was told that her Visa had expired and she would have to leave the country by March 14th or face deportation and the possibility of never being able to enter the U.S. again. (b) (6) asked her what would have happened if she had left the country by March 14th - what if the Agency decided that she should not have been fired. (b) (6) said that if she left there would be no reconsideration of her removal because the Agency would not agree to bring her back.

I told her that the process put her in a catch 22 then. She responded that she knew the conditions when she was hired - she knew what she was getting into. She then said that she was not a good employee anyway because they had Program Review go through her reports and she was mediocre at best. I then told her that Program Review directly contradicted what her two former Service Chiefs and her direct supervisor stated - in writing no less. She dismissed what they said claiming that the first Service Chief (the one who hired her) was only there for a short time so her statement didn't count. The other one was acting only for a few months and she just completely discredited her direct supervisor. Keep in mind the Service Chief who wanted her out had only been in the position since this past November and had only just returned after leaving the Agency to work for some firm in Pakistan.

The whole thing stinks.

Where is the emphasis on Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan?. Armenia and Georgia are not nearly as important as these three nations? Is RFE simply giving these three nations to VOA and walking away under this plan? If so, tell us.

You talk of going East but Iran, Afghanistan and Pakistan are further east than Armenia and Georgia. Just what is (b) (6) definition of east and west here?

The truth is that RFE took a huge cut in 1996 and has never recovered. It would appear that RFE tries to do too much in too many places with too little. Russia is important but the new Putin may well figure out a way to block RFE from growth in Russia.

I worry that (b) (6) has decided not to visit other nations where RFE operates and has limited his visits to what he has seen. What other trips to areas served by RFE are planned by (b) (6) if any? His concern for the plight of employees in Moscow and safety at the Baku office are well taken. However, what has moved Georgia and Armenia to the forefront when other nations in the same 'east' neighborhood are far more critical to US interests.

I look forward to a response and discussion on this. Choices must be made and they need to add up in terms of American interests.

Subject: View from the East

All: In my email to you of January 16, 2012 I told you that I believe that when our limited resources force us to choose between looking east or looking west, we must look east toward our region. To fulfill our mission of providing first class independent news and information to our audiences we must have a strong on the ground presence in our target countries wherever possible. This means we must have fundamentally sound bureaus. Our personnel in the bureaus must be smart, energetic, fearless and creative. Our people must be treated fairly in terms of compensation, benefits and working conditions. Our facilities must be safe, efficient and well located. Our equipment must be up to current industry standards, well maintained and in sufficient quantities to provide our editorial and production staff with the tools they need to do their jobs well and fast. I have recently returned to Prague from visits to our Moscow, Baku, Tbilisi and Yerevan bureaus and I regret to inform you that, with the exception of the personal qualities of our staff, we fail to meet any of these requirements.

I would welcome the opportunity to talk with you about this situation in-depth in a face to face meeting at some point during our time in Miami next week, but here are a few things you should know before hand:

1.) It's not a close case, but it is an urgent one; The situation is critical in one way or another in all four of these bureaus (and I have reason to believe that I will find similarly dire conditions in most, if not all, of our other bureaus); 2.) I am concerned about labor law issues; 3.) I am concerned about the health and safety of our people; 4.) I am concerned about losing our best people to competitors and other non-competitive job opportunities; 5.) I am concerned about our ability to compete; and 6.) I am concerned about our image, reputation and brand.

We are already well into the process of correcting this problem. As I noted in my January 16 email, I made a series of decisions with respect to the current year budget to cut funds from certain areas so that we could redeploy those funds to more important or urgent needs. I have set aside about $1 million through this process. This is one year money, so, for the most part, it has to be spent on capital. We have sent a team to the bureaus in most urgent need and are prioritizing our equipment and facilities needs in those locations. We have begun to spend a little of the money on discrete, small projects, but we intend to start spending the balance as soon as we are comfortable that we have the right priorities.

We will need new, or additional, bureau space in Moscow, Tbilisi and Yerevan. The moves in Tbilisi and Yerevan are due to safety concerns and in Moscow because we are likely moving more resources there, and, more importantly, because we may already be in violation of the local code with respect to the number of square meters required for each employee. In Moscow and Yerevan space has been identified and we are beginning to engage with the landlords.

There are many issues that are best discussed offline and the cost of this is not yet pinned down, but I can explain this in Miami.

Below please find a link to a slide show of pictures that we assembled that graphically illustrates the points in this memo. It is only 2 minutes and 15 seconds and I urge you to look at it.

Last week, Roza Otunbaeva, the former President of Kyrgyzstan, was in our Bishkek bureau to answer questions from our web site readers. She wanted to read questions first herself in our office. After trying several of our computers, including that of our bureau chief, she said: "Please tell your managers that we don't use such old computers even in our poor Kyrgyzstan. We use better, newer computers." As I said, I am concerned about our image, brand and reputation, as well as our ability to do our work. Today, I authorized the expenditure of $36,300 for 33 new computers in our Bishkek bureau.

There has been much work done in USIB since you assumed your seats on the Board on building a strategic plan. I applaud you for that. From what I can tell, it was long overdue. A solid strategy, however, cannot be built upon a crumbling foundation; and the RFE/RL bureau system and infrastructure is a crumbling foundation. My colleagues at RFE/Rl can continue to make a positive impact on the world, but they can only do that if we give them the resources and support that their mission requires. The situation is not hopeless. It is fixable, but to fix it I need your support. I feel comfortable in assuming that I have it.

I have been told that (b) (6), has written a letter to BBG on the Tibetan and Mandarian language cutbacks.

I have not seen it. Does anyone know about this and who has it? When will it be distributed to Board members? as a general procedure, when a letter comes in to BBG, are they then sent to BBG Board members if address to BBG in general? At what point do they get forwarded?

As one Member only, I want to see them all as quickly as they arrive.

Looping in Bruce and (b) (6) here, along with the chiefs of staff at VOA and the IBB.

From what I can tell, everyone's doing more with less and doing it pretty darn well.

Here is an employee issue from this week where (b) (6) president of the AFGE union voices really strong views on how (b) (6) and HR handled this issue. I am not taking sides on the issue but I do feel it raises significant questions in light of our March 9 governance committee meeting and the good will created there from just listening. (b) (6) are clearly at odds here. It is not a good situation. BBG does not seem to work well with State here either.

As mayor of Knoxville, I tried to work with employees. I maintained strong communications with unions and individual employees. Dick Lobo has reached out to contractors. However, he learned in one meeting a contractor who had appeared before us was sent a termination notice shortly thereafter followed shortly thereafter by a new notice saying it was all a mistake. While he has NOT been fired there are those who wonder if this was just an error or intended to have a chilling impact by seeming to terminate but then not doing it. Someone seems to not have gotten the Board message that we want to work to solve these issues. These 'mistakes' cause us lasting damage. Under Dennis Mulhaupt's leadership the governance committee is listening. Lobo is holding more contractor meetings even at 0700. We must not allow other incidents to undercut top level actions.

It also bothers me that BBG does not have a new contract with AFGE. Why is this? What are the hurdles to overcome? If morale is to improve we must do better. I am told more meetings are not even scheduled. I worry that the second level folks in a few cases are not getting the message from Lobo and the Board as evidenced by this e mail and the contractor firing followed by rescinding the termination. There is suspicion that this is designed to create an impasse and send it arbitration.

We have lots to discuss in Miami.

(b) (6) contacted me and wanted to respond regarding putting the issue on our website. He didn't know that we had already discussed this but yes we will address this on our website. I have discussed it with (b) (6) because I didn't want to do it without her knowledge and permission. She has given her permission so we will do it.

(b) (6) description of our meeting with (b) (6) is accurate. One thing that shocked me (although I should be used to this by now) was her complete lack of concern or empathy for (b) (6)'s plight. I told her that the problem I had with this whole process was that this individual was told that her Visa had expired and she would have to leave the country by March 14th or face deportation and the possibility of never being able to enter the U.S. again. (b) (6) asked her what would have happened if she had left the country by March 14th - what if the Agency decided that she should not have been fired. (b) (6) said that if she left there would be no reconsideration of her removal because the Agency would not agree to bring her back.

I told her that the process put her in a catch 22 then. She responded that she knew the conditions when she was hired - she knew what she was getting into. She then said that she was not a good employee anyway because they had Program Review go through her reports and she was mediocre at best. I then told her that Program Review directly contradicted what her two former Service Chiefs and her direct supervisor stated - in writing no less. She dismissed what they said claiming that the first Service Chief (the one who hired her) was only there for a short time so her statement didn't count. The other one was acting only for a few months and she just completely discredited her direct supervisor. Keep in mind the Service Chief who wanted her out had only been in the position since this past November and had only just returned after leaving the Agency to work for some firm in Pakistan.

The whole thing stinks.

Jeff and Dick

for our strategy and budget committee meeting on Tuesday, April 10 (tomorrow), to have a substantive discussion tomorrow, I would like to see a break out of the proposed fY 2013 transmission savings by country and by language service and by SW, MW, etc...same information should go to Enders Wimbush and Michael Meehan.

I assume this is readily available.

Thank you

Subject: travel costs

As one BBG member, I want to encourage the use of the tele conference which (b) (6) used so well at our recent Board meetings so we can keep BBG staff travel to Prague to a minimum. It occurs to me that several staff could link up thru RFE over on Connecticut Ave to our Prague meeting such as (b) (6). By laws state the (b) (6) need to be present at Board meetings but teleconferencing should satisfy that requirement.

This suggestion is not meant to be negative to them but to save at least $4000 per person. This is not my call but I think we should be conscious of these issues and not have any more Washington staff there than absolutely necessary and which could be done on tele conferencing.

Given the terrible costs at GSA and resulting publicity, we need to show we have walked the extra step to keep costs reasonable. It also removes travel time and lost time at the office.

Dick, you and Jeff will want to keep staff attendance in Prague to what is truly necessary.

Subject: Strategy and Budget

Being new to the Strategy and Budget Committee, I opened the book on the April 10 meeting with great anticipation. However, I was struck by the absence of names (authors) on each tab as that is important should I wish to ask questions in advance of the meeting. Is it Bruce or who?

Also I was disappointed not to see a serious discussion of alternatives on the proposed Tibetan language services cuts. The Board voted to ask the Committee to review this. Staff should prepare options for us to consider including full restoration. There was not a single proposal presented to us. Waiting until the committee actually meets does not provide adequate time for discussion and thinking it all over.

We are charged with important tasks which include interested observers on the Hill who are fully prepared to weigh in on these issues. Our mission statement must be a work in progress as we adjust to reality. It is not etched in stone and can never be altered.

We must be prepared to address all the issues raised to date and consider options. We need to discuss whether spending up to $10 million a year with Gallup is wise or would a lesser sum achieve our desired goals. We need to discuss areas of savings such as a travel contract with Carlson which costs us 50 to 80 percent more every time a ticket is booked. For example, I was prepared to buy direct from United a $1800 ticket to Prague and I am advised by (b) (6) [REDACTED] that the contract forces me to use the $3600 ticket...all economy class. Why must I spend taxpayers money in such a foolish fashion? This never would have happened on my watch as Mayor of Knoxville. We must insist on fewer people attending international conferences like the one in Delhi last year where 12 persons went and 4 or 6 could have sufficed in my view.

These savings could help prevent language cuts which are triggering anger towards BBG.

I am sorry to raise these issues over Easter and Passover but I only got the material Friday for a Tuesday afternoon meeting.

Governors and Colleagues, here are additional background materials for next week's Strategy and Budget Committee meeting.

These are coming to you separately from the briefing book -- which you should have by now -- because we were taking every available extra moment to further discuss issues with the broadcast managers and to reflect their inputs in these documents. In some instances there may be additional comments from the entity heads, who can express them to you during the meeting.

Victor, per your note this morning, one of these attachments concerns broadcasting to China. If the committee agrees on a course of direction for Tibet, we will work with the broadcasters to come up with specific suggestions and recommendations for consideration at the Board meeting.

The attachments:

1) China issues. This paper was drafted by IBB staff and includes edits from VOA. RFA received the draft and may wish to comment as well.

2) Latin America. This paper was drafted by IBB staff, includes edits from VOA, and reflects discussions among IBB staff, VOA, and OCB. (b) (6) is not able to attend the Committee meeting, so the Committee may wish to defer detailed discussion until the Miami Board meeting.

Speakers at a recent event at Freedom House event (with Senators Rubio and Menendez present; see link below) stressed that press freedom is deteriorating in LatAm at a faster rate than in any other area of the world.

<http://www.freedomhouse.org/article/sen-menendez-governments-restricting-free-information-do-not-deserve-publics-trust>

3) Global News Network. Two attachments: the first is from IBB staff, the second a dissenting view from VOA. RFE/RL also has expressed concern about the GNN concept.

4) Duplication. Briefing materials already sent to you reflect the extensive work done on this issue during the strategic review process, which informed the final language of the strategic plan. The attached document is from VOA and (b) (6) can speak to it during the meeting.

5) Iran. Governor Mulhaupt asked for a report on Iran broadcasting at the Miami Board meeting. Attached is background material on current VOA and RFE/RL broadcasting to Iran, to inform discussion at the Committee meeting and preparation of the requested report for Miami.

Victor, these attachments are brief, a couple of pages each in most instances, so I hope it will be convenient for you to print them. For the most part these reports were drafted by multiple authors. Per your note this morning, if you have specific questions, feel free to direct them to me and I will put you in touch with the right people at IBB and the broadcast entities.

Jeff

I think it should be discussed on Tuesday as I understand it may be rolled out on April 22. I do not recall what is actually happening here. Has Board been briefed? This is different from the International Broadcasting Innovation Act and grantee consolidation. They are not the same? Is there a IBB re organization which also impacts VOA?

I wanted to make sure you know that the GAO has begun a study in cooperation with this agency that looks at the proposals and strategy for streamlining U.S. international media. To begin, they are talking with us about the challenges related to overlap and coordination.

As they start the project, the GAO's researchers will be speaking with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity. At this time, the GAO has not fully defined the scope of the project or its methodology. We'll learn more as they enter more deeply into discussions with us.

The GAO study was requested by Senators Akaka (D-Hawaii) and Johnson (R-Wisconsin), who serve as Chair and Ranking Member, respectively, on the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and the Federal Workforce. The GAO is also looking at other Federal programs, including democracy assistance, assistance to Afghanistan, and food aid.

We view this study as an opportunity to make the GAO - and its ultimate audience and client, Congress - aware of the agency's robust efforts to operate more efficiently and effectively amid the current budget environment. We will keep you informed as this study progresses.

Victor – Thanks for your email over the weekend. The subject of BBG travel policy was scheduled to be considered at the recently-postponed Governance Committee meeting. Our plan was then develop a resolution based on the guidance provided by the Committee dealing with Agency travel.

After I received your email, I re-read the exchange between you and Dennis on this subject.

I would like to suggest the following as a way forward, if it works for you. We will put the Coburn travel principles on the agenda as you have suggested. We can also prepare a resolution relating to those principles. As for Dennis' suggestion, however, in the absence of guidance from the Committee, it is difficult to go beyond what you have initially suggested.

So, I would propose that the resolution note the adoption by the Senate of the Coburn principles, express the Board's approval of those principles, and ask the Governance Committee to develop a broader and more transparent policy applicable to everyone in the Agency for consideration by the Board at its July 2012 meeting.

Please let me know if this approach would be acceptable to you. Thanks. (b) (6)

Subject: Buyouts

Victor,

In response to your email received Sunday, May 27 regarding BBG buyouts, here is the information you requested.

The buyout opportunity was announced on March 21 with an initial end date of April 27. That date was extended to May 4th. We are currently processing 35 buyout requests. The breakdown by organization follows:

TSI 5

Three applications from the numbers above require supplemental approval from OPM. This is due simply to the fact that we try to predict the potential numbers of employees in different job series, e.g., international broadcasters, telecommunications specialists, etc, that will apply for a buyout and get that list approved by OPM in advance. Occasionally, we have more individuals apply in a given category than were preapproved, thus the need to go back to OPM.

Six employees originally submitted applications which they later rescinded; 4 from OCB and 2 from VOA.

Subject: Labor talks

On May 14 I met with the BBG management team which handles the current labor negotiations with AFGE 1812. At the meeting were six BBG employees plus myself. They were (b) (6) his seemed more persons than necessary but not unusual when a Governor of the BBG seeks information. I did not ask for so many to attend. All were polite and professional in their remarks.

This e mail is a report on the meeting and my thoughts at its conclusion. The meeting lasted about one hour.

I had requested a meeting on the talks without naming persons who needed to be in attendance. I had previously heard from the union about the status of talks which seem eternal. We all know morale at VOA/OCB and IBB is poor based on the OPM surveys of federal employees. Contract employees are not surveyed by OPM but one can reasonably conclude their views would be equally dismal towards the employee-employer situation as they receive no benefits and seldom see their contract pay increased while experiencing late payments occasionally.

I learned the current contract between BBG/IBB and AFGE is the one from 2005 which expired some years ago but continues in place because a new contract has not been negotiated. I also learned that one entire week a month, there are negotiations and have been going on since March, 2011. We are now in the 14th month of talks. When I asked when this seemingly career set of talks might end, (b) (6) cited December, 2012 as a possible date for conclusion but it seems likely to go then to an impasse panel with more months of consideration there. Almost two years will have been spent on these talks without conclusion.

Management, which is primarily (b) (6) who lead the labor talks, seem to want to revise the total contract on many different points. I really never got a firm fix on the exact issues separating the two sides other than some discussion on a FLRA opinion overturning the views of BBG/IBB on non citizen employment, the question of discipline articles, the question of merit promotions and staffing and arbitration on leave. The FLRA matter seems to be over whether the legal office wants to acknowledge it or not. Only congressional rewrite of current laws would change it. However, (b) (6) did not seem willing to throw in the towel on this without direction from those above her.

My concern is the Board is being represented on these talks by these individuals without being briefed on what the issues are and whether we would agree with them. While the Board would not want to actually negotiate, we should be informed periodically what is happening in our name especially as it impacts employee morale which is in the cellar.

I found it stunning that BBG/IBB management would allow these talks to go on for two years. My suggestion would be to pick out the 3 or 4 major issues of difference and try to resolve them. Forget the rest and save them for a later day. It is fantasy to think you can change 25 to 28 issues in one series of talks even ones which go on for two years. It is also wrong to allow these to drag on a week a month. If these had been done one week after the next, it would have been concluded one way or the other by now. Instead, by stretching them out for 2 years, they are part of the career of several person.

My own feeling is that Dick Lobo as IBB director and (b) (6) as VOA head need to fast track these talks to an earlier conclusion than Christmas especially since most AFGE members will not regard the current talks ending at Christmas as much of a Christmas gift since they are headed to an impasse panel as surely as Tuesday follows Monday. For the Obama Administration which has stressed better relations with organized labor, this presents a most unusual situation. For the BBG Board which says it wishes to improve morale, this is a morale stopper. I urge that this be discussed at our Prague Board meeting. We should jump start this to an ending.

These comments are not confidential. I do not ask that you to treat them as such. Feel free to share them with whoever you feel would benefit by having them. My goal is to secure progress on a situation which has lasted much too long and to the detriment of BBG.

I regret being the bearer of less than positive news but BBG needs to know about this.

Subject: RFA: Record number of pick-ups

Dear RFA Board, Dick, Bruce and Jeff

As surprising as it seems, RFA has beat our own pick-up record with the latest tragic Tibetan self-immolations reported this weekend.

This latest news has caused immediate and mass reaction from the government both in terms of physical military intimidation and internet/press censorship.

On Monday, Radio Free Asia's Tibetan service broke the news that two Tibetans in Lhasa had self-immolated in protest of China's rule of the Tibetan regions. The report was translated into English and sent out as a news release. The incident, being the first reported case of self-immolations occurring in the Tibetan capital city, quickly spread around the world when the Associated Press and numerous other global newswires picked up RFA's exclusive report. Global news networks such as BBC, CNN, and Al Jazeera, as well as sources like the New York Times, The Guardian, Daily Telegraph, among many others, reported on the incident citing RFA's original coverage.

RFA has broken the news on roughly half of the 37 Tibetan self-immolations and followed with in-depth stories surrounding the final desperate acts.

Here's the summary from this morning:

ASSOCIATED PRESS (Also in CNN, BBC, REUTERS, NEW YORK TIMES, AGENCE FRANCE PRESSE, AL JAZEERA, DEUTSCHE WELLE, UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL, BANGKOK POST, TELEGRAPH, HINDUSTAN TIMES, GLOBAL POST)

May 28 ""

Two men engulfed themselves in a burst of flames outside a Buddhist temple popular with tourists and pilgrims in Lhasa, marking the first time a recent wave of self-immolations to protest Chinese rule has reached the tightly guarded Tibetan capital.

... Radio Free Asia reported Monday that Lhasa was under heavy police and paramilitary guard following the immolations and that the situation was very tense.

Victor – Thanks for your email over the weekend. The subject of BBG travel policy was scheduled to be considered at the recently-postponed Governance Committee meeting. Our plan was then develop a resolution based on the guidance provided by the Committee dealing with Agency travel.

After I received your email, I re-read the exchange between you and Dennis on this subject.

I would like to suggest the following as a way forward, if it works for you. We will put the Coburn travel principles on the agenda as you have suggested. We can also prepare a resolution relating to those principles. As for Dennis' suggestion, however, in the absence of guidance from the Committee, it is difficult to go beyond what you have initially suggested.

So, I would propose that the resolution note the adoption by the Senate of the Coburn principles, express the Board's approval of those principles, and ask the Governance Committee to develop a broader and more transparent policy applicable to everyone in the Agency for consideration by the Board at its July 2012 meeting.

Please let me know if this approach would be acceptable to you. Thanks. (b) (6)

I would like for the BBG to be proactive here and move doing the right thing now in an area where there haven been problems in other agencies. The Coburn amendment would apply to all agencies.

Thank you for your recent inquiries about the articles selected for daily distribution by the BBG Public Affairs staff in cooperation with our colleagues at VOA, OCB and the grantees. Since the members of the Communications Committee may take interest in this discussion, I'm cc-ing them on this note along with Dick L., who was copied on your message to me this morning, and adding Jeff T.

As mentioned in previous e-mails to you, Tish and I have been talking about how the Media Highlights and Addenda are done; these discussions include internal process and personnel matters -- who handles what, and how -- that don't bear detailing here. To answer your questions about the differences between these two communications tools and who receives them:

The Media Highlights are available through the BBG website for public subscription and are sent to journalists, analysts, academics and other stakeholders with their permission.

The Highlights include coverage of U.S. international media as operated by and through the BBG; select press pickups of news coverage by VOA, OCB and the grantees; and other items of interest. This roundup is intended to showcase the effectiveness and positive impact of U.S. international media. In recent months, we've integrated more foreign press coverage as translations have become available.

These items are posted daily on BBG.gov as well as via links through an internal employee blog that's accessible to all in the agency. Lately the BBG Public Affairs team has considered adding the Highlights to the in-house announcements for all agency employees; this could serve as a means of demonstrating impact and reinforcing good work. When other media cite one of our services as a source, or make reference to what we do, it proves that our reach goes beyond our own readers, listeners and viewers. However, the in-house announcements can be voluminous and more frequent at some times than others, and that's a disincentive to reading them amid the many competing demands on the time of our colleagues. But we plan to explore and to test possible alternative approaches.

The Addenda go to an internal audience of senior managers and those who are the subject of any particular coverage, including Governors. They are used variously to provide background, provoke discussion and, as needed, to flag an item that may require a response, though we have done the latter less in recent weeks since an item from the Addenda was leaked to a blog and distorted to create an unfortunate and patently untrue story.

Over the years, the press clips/Media Highlights have evolved from manually intensive labor that involved cutting and pasting and photocopying to a form that takes full advantage of current electronic media's features. After the Media Highlights migrated from the page to electronic format, available for subscription by anyone who chooses to do so, they began to reach a much broader audience. The agency and its grantees have the opportunity through this means to put our best foot forward.

Best regards,

Lynne

Dear Mr. Lobo,

Before responding to follow up on this, I am writing to ask re-consideration of your statement that this response is not intended for distribution as I have several members of Congress and key staff who are interested in knowing the answers to the questions I posed to you. Why would you suggest to me not to share these replies to the members of Congress who would vote on the proposed CEO legislation? What benefit does that secure? Who is on the bbggroup? is it Governors only? You have included one Board member's staff at State on this as well as two of your staffers? Lynne Weil and Jeff Trimble also?

It seems you are setting a wider list of those entitled to this for yourself but then trying to restrict what I can share with relevant stakeholders? Are you saying there is simply no one I could share and discuss this with and honor your statement of non distribution? It is a little clearer to me now why Congressman Rohrabacher states only yesterday on May 15 that BBG is opaque in its decision making. That is not a criticism that BBG should be proud of. Rather we should work to be more open.

While I appreciate your honesty in saying you made the decision to omit entity heads and VOA/OCB heads from the distribution list of the prior memo, I think it was an unfortunate decision. It creates division and stove piping within BBG. You are not a BBG Board member. It seems to me that the Board should make that decision or at least the presiding Governor in the absence of the full Board not you as IBB Director. You work for the Board. The Board and each member does not work for you (and I do not intend any personal criticism of you here but simply stating the obvious). I trust you will decide that I am free to share this with at least congressional members and their staff if not others. I await a response with reasons.

While you are correct that there was an unanimous vote on the CEO matter in January, I think you would also agree that it is no longer unanimous view due my opposition at the present time pending further review and information. Your correspondence should reflect (as does the Lynton-Mulhaupt memo) that one Governor does oppose the legislation being discussed and promoted at this time. It would be misleading to suggest that the unanimous vote in January today reflects the total Board view as it does not.

I trust you have a productive trip to Germany.

Victor Ashe

In a message dated 5/16/2012 5:46:44 P.M. Eastern Daylight Time, (b) (6) writes:

Governors,

The IBB/BBG executive staff appreciates the guidance and views that you have provided during the last 11 days on the potential new opportunity to help you create an empowered CEO position, one of the key reform goals among those that the Board had frequently discussed since it was seated in July 2010, and ratified with a unanimous vote in January.

As Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt indicated Monday (see below), a number of legitimate questions and issues have been raised about how the CEO position will be implemented and how it will work in practice, and the Board will have ample opportunities to discuss and decide these issues in due course.

Several such questions arose in e-mails sent by Governor Ashe last week. On Friday late afternoon we were optimistic about being able to get to all of them on Monday. But upon review, it emerged that some of the questions needed to be answered by Board members themselves, some had been addressed in our e-mails to the Board, and some seemed to be apparent from the legislative proposal and section-by-section analysis that were sent to the Board. It took some time to sort all of that out, which we were not able to do on Monday, the executive team's busiest day of the week due to the strategy, budgetary and planning meetings that are required to run this agency on a daily basis. Thank you for your patience.

Here, verbatim, are questions raised by Governor Ashe that were not addressed in any of the e-mails from Board members or from the IBB/BBG executive team, and the replies to those questions:

Q. Should this proposal be enacted what happens to Dick Lobo? Does he simply depart the Cohen Bldg? What is the effective date planned for the abolition of his position? Is it planned that Mr. Lobo simply moves over to become this new CEO? How long would he be in such a position? The proposed legislation converts the role of the IBB Director into that of a CEO, to be fired or hired by the Board. It goes into effect 30 days after the legislation is signed into law; from then on, the Board would be empowered to make its own choices. On more than one occasion during the Board's discussions about the creation of a CEO, and particularly since the Board unanimously ratified this as a key priority for agency reform in January, I have indicated that I do not wish to be considered a candidate for the CEO position.

Q. What selection process is planned for the BBG Board to implement for choosing the new CEO? What are the listed qualifications for this person? Who will lead this effort on the Board? The legislative proposal empowers the Board to decide these matters in due course.

Q. Will not this CEO have less accountability to Congress than at present? The position of CEO does not currently exist. When it does, the person in this position will have to answer to Congress to the same extent that the IBB Director currently does.

Q. What happens to the unions now representing public employees? The union for RFA? Nothing. No change in either case.

Q. Does this not make the BBG Board somewhat impotent by placing such huge power in the hands of a CEO and Board members in the minority can have information withheld from them by the CEO saying the full Board has to direct it. . not one or two members? The proposed legislation frees the Board to determine which of its authorities it wishes to delegate to the CEO.

Q. Which non delegable powers are transferred to this CEO? The legislation as proposed frees the Board to delegate its authorities to the CEO as it sees fit.

Q. I do not see any standards for the occupant of the CEO position to meet as a condition of employment? No requirement for annual evaluation or statement on who and how it would be done. These are matters that are left to the Board to decide; the legislative proposal is silent on them so that the Board can set the standards and conditions of employment.

Q. Who made the decision to exclude the VOA/OCB heads as well as the three grantees heads from this e mail chain? Why will no one own up to that decision? Why are rank and file employees not asked their views? Is OMB getting a copy of this? I made the decision based on OMB guidance dating to late 2009. Formal approval of the creation of an empowered CEO position in January came after extensive consultations and discussions with a number of relevant stakeholders, both inside and outside the agency, including Members of Congress and congressional staff – and, it should be noted on several occasions with the executives heading VOA, OCB, and the grantees. The President's 2009 directive on transparency and open government, together with the Office of Management and Budget memorandum on its implementation, make clear that pre-decisional matters that are either before OMB or about to come before OMB, and in particular those “relating to legislative, budgetary, administrative, and regulatory materials,” should remain confidential – and that the directive should not be “construed to suggest that the presumption of openness precludes the legitimate protection of information whose release would... breach confidentiality, or damage other genuinely compelling interests.” The White House continues to support the proposed agency reforms that the Board approved unanimously in January; OMB’s review of the legislative proposal to create a CEO should help the Board identify any issues.

In the meantime, I and members of the Board alike remain very concerned that Governor Ashe violated the confidentiality of discussions among Governors by e-mailing to the entity heads the May 8 note about this legislative opportunity that was addressed to the Board and topped with a message asking all recipients not to share it further. That this message and others to the Board were subsequently leaked so that they would appear online is a further violation.

As with the previous messages on this topic, this e-mail is being sent to you only and is not intended for further distribution.

You have asked for the Board's comments and guidance on offering the proposed CEO draft legislation to the House Foreign Affairs Committee for review and possible inclusion in a bill now under consideration. We are responding to this request in our roles as the Presiding Governor and Chair of the Governance Committee.

Based on the facts as outlined below and a number of conversations with Board colleagues, and absent specific contrary instructions expressed by a majority of Governors (as outlined below), please move forward with this initiative.

The entire Board has more than once approved the concept of an empowered CEO, to be achieved through legislation as appropriate. We discussed the need for and the means to create a BBG CEO position for almost a year and a half before unanimously and formally approving it in January 2012. In fact, it was one of the first issues and priorities that we discussed after being seated in July 2010. Formal approval this January came after extensive consultations and discussions with a number of relevant stakeholders, both inside and outside the agency, including Members of Congress and Congressional staff and on several occasions with the executives heading VOA, OCB, and the grantees. We also note that most of these five executives have repeatedly expressed support for this initiative. To our knowledge, not one of them has spoken out in opposition to it (unlike the case of the potential grantee merger, where one of three people heading the grantees has expressed opposition to that separate plan).

It is therefore clear that the Board has already approved the creation of a CEO. When your team identified a potential opportunity to implement this decision through draft legislation being prepared in Congress now, quite appropriately the Board was informed of this opportunity, starting with the Communications Committee 10 days ago. When asked, a majority of Board members then indicated they were comfortable with this specific approach, and they directed staff to proceed. Only one Governor expressed a negative opinion on proceeding and has raised questions and concerns; you have affirmed that you will provide answers and information to address them. In the interval, the legislative proposal was provided to the Board several days ago. A number of legitimate questions and issues have been raised about how the CEO position will be implemented and how it will work in practice, some of them by Governor Ashe. The Board will discuss and decide these issues in due course. Again, it is clear that a majority favors moving ahead without delay on the basic issue of creating the position, whether through legislation or otherwise. If individual Governors have a contrary view, please let us and the entire Board know as soon as possible. If a majority expresses a definitive contrary view at this time, the entire Board will revisit this matter. Of course, Congress will consider this provision carefully and it will be fully vetted through the legislative process.

We wish to thank you and your senior colleagues, particularly Lynne Weil, for your excellent and useful work in bringing this important opportunity to the Board's attention.

Subject: Re: Message from Lynne Weil Regarding Rohrabacher Letter

Dear Colleagues,

Having read the May 15 letter from Congressman Rohrabacher carefully, I commend it to all to read equally carefully as it is direct and pointed. It should be a serious cause for concern on a broader scale than just the issue at hand which is broadcasting in Cantonese, Mandarin and Tibetan. It concludes by saying "BBG has shown itself to be opaque in its decision making and incredibly tone deaf to Congressional priorities." Those words go to the actual conduct of BBG business and its congressional relations.

This letter comes after the meeting a few weeks ago which our esteemed colleague, Enders Wimbush, had with the Congressman which Gov Wimbush later described as positive to our Board. Obviously, something has happened. I do not feel that simply sending a return letter to the Congressman saying what Ms. Weil said in her cover letter to us is adequate. We as a Board need to discuss this and see where we can do better or run the risk of facing more troubled waters in our relations with key members of Congress. Even when members of Congress disagree, they should not feel our process is opaque or that we are tone deaf to their priorities. We need more than a letter going to the Congressman. We need some Governors actually visiting and letting him know that we "get it." and really mean it.

We need to be more transparent than we have been. I would urge that we open our committee meetings to the public along with the full Board meetings to the extent permitted by law. I would urge as I stated earlier that if the majority of the Board is pushing a CEO thru legislation that the reasons and efforts be posted on our web site starting with the Lynton-Mulhaupt memo to Dick Lobo. we should not be opaque. When Congress two or three years in a row adds almost the same language to legislation giving direction on Mandarin, Cantonese and Tibetan language broadcasts, staff should accept it and we as a Board must honor it.

I invite a discussion on this.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Governors,

Rep. Rohrabacher sent the attached letter to the Chair and Ranking Member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for Foreign Operations indicating his concern about restructuring of VOA broadcasting in Mandarin, as well as other issues. His office copied the letter to us.

IBB/BBG and VOA executive staff are working together on a draft reply. It will address the implication that VOA contravened the FY '12 Appropriations report language by pursuing its new Mandarin television strategy, and will demonstrate why that implication is inaccurate. It will also speak to the Congressman's preference for a five-minute news update during repeat broadcast hours, given current budget realities, as well as his concern about VOA's expectation of a small reduction in the East Asian and Pacific Division in FY '13, on which no final decision has been made. And it will lay out how the Office of Performance Review stepped up its "spot checks" of several key language services, now on a biweekly basis, after Rep. Rohrabacher expressed doubts about quality control and program review; this matter arose just after Gov. Wimbush's meeting with the Congressman, and we are working to keep his staff apprised.

We'll ensure that all Governors see the final version.

Lynne

MEMORANDUM

To: Members of the Board of Governors
From: (b) (6) Deputy General Counsel and DAEQ
Date: May 15, 2012

Re: Implementation of the Stop Trading on Congressional Knowledge (STOCK) Act

As you have likely heard, Congress recently passed the Stop Trading on Congressional Knowledge (STOCK) Act, which the President signed the Act into law on April 4, 2012. Despite its name, the Act imposes several new disclosure obligations on executive branch employees as well. Some of the new requirements only apply to Special Government Employees that perform more than 60 days of service in a calendar year, and we have combed through the legislation to bring you the most relevant provisions. Although the executive branch is still waiting for additional guidance from the Office of Government Ethics (OGE) regarding the final implementation of the Act, please review our summary of the following STOCK Act provisions and consider how they will apply to your individual situation.

SECTION 6: PROMPT REPORTING OF FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS.

One of the most sweeping changes in the Act is a new requirement for public filers to disclose all reportable transactions within 45 days of their completion. Reportable transactions are purchases, sales, or exchanges of any stock, bond, commodity future or other securities (but NOT "widely held investment funds", which we believe will be defined by OGE as mutual funds) in excess of $1,000 (this number is the raw value of the transaction, not the gain or loss from it). This Section will only apply if you serve more than 60 days in a calendar year and are thus required to file an OGE 278 public financial disclosure form. The reporting requirements of this Section become effective on July 3, 2012.

SECTION 11: EXECUTIVE BRANCH REPORTING.

This Section will require all OGE 278 public financial disclosure forms filed in 2012 to be posted to the agency's public website within 30 days of filing. Requests for extensions to file public forms will have to be posted as well. This Section will only apply if you serve more than 60 days in a calendar year and are thus required to file an OGE 278 public financial disclosure form. The public posting requirements of this Section become effective on August 31, 2012.

SECTION 12: PARTICIPATION IN INITIAL PUBLIC OFFERINGS.

All executive branch employees in grades above (or receiving rates of pay higher than) GS-15 are prohibited from purchasing securities that are the subject of an initial public offering in any manner other than is available to members of the general public. This restriction is effective immediately and applies to all Governors regardless of their number of days served.

SECTION 17: POST-EMPLOYMENT NEGOTIATION RESTRICTIONS.

This section is likely the most significant burden imposed on senior executive branch employees. Employees that are required to file a public financial disclosure form may not negotiate for, or have any agreement of, future employment or compensation unless they file a signed notification and statement of recusal with their supervising ethics officer within 3 business days after the start of said negotiations or agreements. OGE has clarified that a negotiation begins "when an employee enters into a discussion or communication with another person, or such person's agent or intermediary, that is mutually conducted with a view toward reaching an agreement regarding possible employment or compensation with that person." Thus, actions that do not include mutual conduct, such as sending an unsolicited resume to a potential employer or receiving an unsolicited offer of employment, do not trigger the 3-day period, but receiving a call in response to a submitted resume or responding to an unsolicited offer of employment would.

A copy of OGE's proposed notification form is attached to this memo for your review and use if necessary. This Section's requirement is effective immediately and applies only to employees required to file public financial disclosure forms. Therefore, it does not apply to Governors that work fewer than 60 days in a calendar year. OGE's guidance regarding this Section, Legal Advisory LA-12-01, is included with this memo for your convenience.

I understand that these provisions are both burdensome and confusing, and we will continue to look to OGE to provide additional guidance and reference aids to help make complying with them easier. In the meantime, if you have any questions or concerns please feel free to call me or my STOCK Act POC, (b) (6), at 2 (b) (6)

Dear Colleagues

I am responding to the joint memo sent to Dick Lobo by Governor Mulhaupt and Lynton. While I respect the difference of opinion which exists here, I also profoundly differ. There is an absence of discussion on the points I have raised. I feel the public process is enhanced when there is debate in a public setting on these issues. Tax dollars are involved. The memo references that I would receive answers from Mr. Lobo on the questions I raised. His email to me and copied to the full Board said I would receive them Monday (today). Unless they arrive in the next two and half hours, I have not received them on Monday. I do not know when or if I will receive them. All Governors should have responses to their questions. I look forward to the Lobo response.

Since the Lynton-Mulhaupt memo refers to the legislative process as being one in which this proposal will be fully vetted, I assume this is an assertion that the legislative process should work its way and hear from all interested citizens on all sides of this issue. I believe the legislative process should include public hearings on this which, in my view, did not happen in an adequate way on our Board. I do not feel there should be a rush to judgment.

I trust that prior e mails on this subject including the Lynton-Mulhaupt e mail should be posted on the BBG web site and it should be public that BBG is pursuing this. This is no longer pre-decisional given this memo. The decision has been now been made by memo and without a Board meeting/discussion. It seems to me that this is now in the public arena and the discussion on the topic should be fully public even if it is not in a Board setting. I welcome the thoughts of others.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Dear Mr. Lobo,

Having comments and guidance from the Board without a Board meeting and discussion back and forth is fundamentally wrong and contrary to a common sense approach to restructuring. Basically, the Board is being led into an approach which can only breed suspicion and opposition because starting with you and other staff, we have been consigned to secrecy under the guise of confidentiality and pre-decisional discussion without the Board itself voting to do this. I am sad and disappointed that people cannot see the foolishness of this approach.

Now you are asking other Governors to make comments so I will not be the only one to comment. Perhaps over the weekend, my colleagues will respond in the depth that I have responded as opposed to "I am for it" or "It has my support." It merits serious discussion but at this point is not getting it.

Early in its tenure, the current Board identified as a key shortcoming in the agency's structure the lack of an empowered chief executive. For many months thereafter, the Board considered the means by which to address this shortcoming. At its January 2012 meeting, the Board voted to pursue legislation to create a CEO of United States international broadcasting in the context of a proposed International Broadcasting Innovation Act.

As explained to you over the past few days, we've identified an opportunity to implement this front-end goal of the IBIA in the current Congress, rather than the 113th as originally envisioned: adding a provision to a foreign affairs authorization bill now being prepared in the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Conversations with key HFAC majority staff indicate that this initial window of opportunity is open only for a brief time. Opportunities to refine the proposed provision will arise throughout the legislative process.

We appreciate the guidance that you have given since Tuesday afternoon, as well as earlier feedback from the Communications Committee, and we have accordingly redrafted the proposed provision creating the position of a CEO. Most importantly, this revised draft no longer includes language regarding the relationship between the CEO and the grantees, to be settled later upon further consideration by the Board. Please note that this proposed provision enables the Board to decide the CEO's responsibilities, authorities and compensation, as well as to hire or fire the incumbent, who would answer directly to the Board.

We now seek your further comments before sending this proposal to the Hill.

As currently drafted, the legislation:

- Authorizes the Board to hire, fire, and fix the compensation of a CEO answering directly to the Board.
- Authorizes the Board to delegate certain of its authorities to the CEO, which the CEO would exercise subject to the supervision of the Board.
- Converts the IBB Director position into the CEO position, preserving the journalistic firewall by eliminating the requirement that the position be Presentially-appointed and Senate-confirmed.
- Clarifies that the VOA and OCB Directors report to the CEO.

The provision and a section-by-section analysis are attached.

Dear Colleagues,

Last night late I responded to the process part of this e mail chain. Now I wish to respond to the content part itself and point out that much of the information as a Board member which I have requested from Lynne Weil and Dick Lobo has not been provided to me. Furthermore, legal and procedural questions I raised in my e mail two days ago have not been answered. This process ignores President Obama's executive order of 2009 on transparency and openness in government. Why are we doing this? Ultimately what is going on now will become public thru FOIA's or congressional inquiry. All of us will be embarrassed by this secretive process which is so unnecessary and counterproductive.

Failure of Lynne Weil (at whose direction I do not know but assume it is Mr. Lobo) to even say who she is talking to on the Hill by name and why the minority on the same committee has not been contacted since we are a bipartisan Board is most strange. Failure to state precisely who made the decision on staff (or from a Board member if that happened) to classify these proposals as confidential is also a mistake? How did this come about?

1-Should this proposal be enacted what happens to Dick Lobo? Does he simply depart the Cohen Bldg? What is the effective date planned for the abolition of his position? Is it planned that Mr. Lobo simply moves over to become this new CEO? How long would he be in such a position?

2-What selection process is planned for the BBG Board to implement for choosing the new CEO? What are the listed qualifications for this person? Who will lead this effort on this Board?

3-Will not this CEO have less accountability to Congress than at present?

4-What happens to the unions now representing public employees? The union for RFA?

5-Does this not make the BBG Board somewhat impotent by placing such huge power in the hands of the CEO and Board members in the minority can have information withheld from them by the CEO saying the full Board has to direct it..not one or two members?

6-Which non delegable powers are transferred to this CEO? When a vacancy occurs in the office of CEO, who fills the position and how is it done on an interim basis? We need to be told precisely which authorities are being delegated?

7- I do not see any standards for the occupant of the CEO position to meet as a condition of employment? No requirement for annual evaluation or statement on who and how it would be done.

8-Why is the Board not meeting to discuss these questions? Simply because it is inconvenient?

These are serious times and serious issues. We are in the midst of a presidential election. Decisions like this should await the outcome of the election.

I hope to hear an active and robust discussion by Governors and staff on these proposals...not just a "Yes, I agree" or "NO I do not agree."

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Subject: Re: Draft CEO legislation, with analysis

The last time I answered an e mail from Lynne Weil (2 days ago) which was critical of the process I got an e mail back from Dick Lobo stating she was acting as his direction so perhaps I should address this e mail back to Dick Lobo as well as Lynne Weil.

First, let the record reflect my views that this whole discussion should be out in the public and at an open BBG Board meeting...not here online where we are told by a non Board member that this is predecisional and not for distribution. This inhibits my ability (and all other Governors) to reach out to friends, attorneys and others who are qualified and knowledgeable in the international media field as well as Senators and Members of the House whose views I respect. Who made this decision? It certainly was not done by a Board vote. Am I precluded from talking to congressional staffers about this? Who is making decisions which impacts my right to discuss this without consulting with me first?

Second, who made the decision to exclude the VOA/OCB heads as well as the three grantees heads from this e mail chain? Why will no one own up to that decision? Why are rank and file employees not asked their views? Is OMB getting a copy of this? I see that (b) (6) is now added when he was not on the first round of e mails last Tuesday?

Third, I find it contrary to the spirit if not the letter of the President's 2009 executive order on transparency that this is hidden and we are being asked to be party to a major congressional action by stealth since this is window of opportunity is only open a brief time according to this e mail. Who said that? Who is Lynne Weil dealing with at House Foreign Affairs Committee (majority or minority or both) or is it a Board member or someone else doing the discussions? This process is opaque and under the radar screen. Frankly Congress should hold hearings on a proposal this significant. BBG should be posting this proposal on our web site like the consolidation proposal has been posted and seek public comment? Why is there this rush to judgment without any public seeking of the public's views?

I suppose we will not have a BBG discussion on this..certainly not at a public meeting as most BBG meetings are. I formally request that when this proposal goes to the Hill that you indicate it is not unanimous and that I oppose the process by which this has been created.

I will send additional comments on the content after sleeping over this tonight.

Governors,

Early in its tenure, the current Board identified as a key shortcoming in the agency's structure the lack of an empowered chief executive. For many months thereafter, the Board considered the means by which to address this shortcoming. At its January 2012 meeting, the Board voted to pursue legislation to create a CEO of United States international broadcasting in the context of a proposed International Broadcasting

Innovation Act.

As explained to you over the past few days, we've identified an opportunity to implement this front-end goal of the IBIA in the current Congress, rather than the 113th as originally envisioned: adding a provision to a foreign affairs authorization bill now being prepared in the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Conversations with key HFAC majority staff indicate that this initial window of opportunity is open only for a brief time. Opportunities to refine the proposed provision will arise throughout the legislative process.

We appreciate the guidance that you have given since Tuesday afternoon, as well as earlier feedback from the Communications Committee, and we have accordingly redrafted the proposed provision creating the position of a CEO. Most importantly, this revised draft no longer includes language regarding the relationship between the CEO and the grantees, to be settled later upon further consideration by the Board. Please note that this proposed provision enables the Board to decide the CEO's responsibilities, authorities and compensation, as well as to hire or fire the incumbent, who would answer directly to the Board.

We now seek your further comments before sending this proposal to the Hill.

As currently drafted, the legislation:

- Authorizes the Board to hire, fire, and fix the compensation of a CEO answering directly to the Board.
- Authorizes the Board to delegate certain of its authorities to the CEO, which the CEO would exercise subject to the supervision of the Board.
- Converts the IBB Director position into the CEO position, preserving the journalistic firewall by eliminating the requirement that the position be Presentially-appointed and Senate-confirmed.
- Clarifies that the VOA and OCB Directors report to the CEO.

The provision and a section-by-section analysis are attached.

Please note: We're sending this message, which contains confidential and pre-decisional information, only to the recipients visible in the To: and Cc: lines. This message, as was the case with the IBB/BBG staff's previous e-mails during the past two days regarding the opportunity to create the CEO position, is not intended for further distribution.

We look forward to your comments.

Dear Enders,

It would be more constructive if you could share your thinking on the CEO position and this stealth approach to legislation as opposed to saying "thank you." Enders, you have a history with international broadcasting. While we may differ, your views should be aired and discussed. We should be able to respond.

Dick Lobo has frankly missed the point on much of this. There is no assault on Lynne Weil but there has been disagreement with what she has been directed to do. She has been around a long time and knows the process.

I have no plans to retreat from my advocacy of openness. I urge you to engage in full discussion. Read the President's executive order on openness.

Lynne and her team, together with colleagues in the General Counsel's office and IBB/BBG top management, are trying to facilitate implementation of a key decision that the Board made in January 2012: to pursue legislation to create a CEO of United States international broadcasting.

At the end of this email are the relevant portions of the Record of Decisions and the adopted Minutes from the January meeting. In two distinct decisions the Board voted both to move ahead on grantee consolidation and to pursue legislation to restructure U.S. International Broadcasting, including through the creation of a CEO.

Spotting a good opportunity to implement this Board decision in the coming months -- rather than a year or more from now as anticipated given the realities of congressional action this year -- Lynne was simply trying to inform Governors of this new legislative vehicle and to develop a sense of whether they feel comfortable with hitching a ride. She was brought on three months ago in part because she has the experience and skills to identify and act on such opportunities.

E-mail responses that we have received so far suggest that most Board members feel the staff should move forward as suggested yesterday.

Lynne and the team she has assembled have been working flat out since Friday to offer you and your fellow Governors timely and complete information, the chance to weigh in at the well in time to take the next step, and then – based on Board feedback -- to lay out clearly a legislative proposal for the Board to review.

I am concerned as well that you have yet again violated the confidentiality of discussions among Governors – this time by e-mailing to the entity heads yesterday's note addressed to the Board, which was topped with a message asking all recipients that it not be shared further,

There has been no objection among the Governors – or, for that matter, the staff -- to having a pre-decisional discussion about the legislative opportunity that has presented itself. We are happy to facilitate that discussion and will be in a position to show the Governors what the legislation would look like.

Dick Lobo

Director, International Broadcasting Bureau

Excerpts from January 2012 Record of Decisions and Meeting Minutes

From the Records of Decisions: “The position of Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the “CEO”), reporting to the Board of Governors, shall be created. The CEO will be empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and non-federal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight.”

From the approved Minutes of the January meeting: “The Board directed the IBB Director to work with IBB staff and outside experts, and with Governor McCue, in order to develop a draft IBIA for the Board’s further consideration. The draft legislation should have the following attributes: An organization reflecting the optimal mix of federal and non-federal assets; a creation of a Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the “CEO”), reporting to the Board of Governors, empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and nonfederal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight.”

Also from the January Board meeting Minutes:

“Governor McCue remarked that this proposal presents an exciting, historical time for U.S. international broadcasting, and that the drafting of legislation will be done in a partnership and team effort going forward. Governor Ashe expressed his support for the proposal and noted that, in his view, efforts should be made to achieve savings, regardless of the amount, and that it makes sense to consolidate in an effort to improve the quality of service and delivery of service to places where the governments censor or deny access to accurate and objective information. Governor Ashe said consolidation, if done properly, is a good step forward for the Agency in light of the new era, especially in communications and technology. Governor Ashe also said if the consolidation is not done properly, it would cause him to change his position and strongly oppose it. The devil is in the details. Governor Ashe said he reserved the right to change his views if the implementation is not well executed. Acting Under Secretary Ann Stock commented that the Board had a very constructive, long, thoughtful, deliberative process and that the off-site briefing helped the Board come up with a plan to move forward.

The Board then voted to restructure of United States international broadcasting, including consolidating the three BBG-sponsored grantees and seeking legislation that would include establishing a Chief Executive Officer to manage the enterprise."

I refer to one member voting no and asking for a Board meeting to consider the matter as happened with RFE when Governor Meehan declined to vote Yes for some staff changes. We held a RFE Board meeting and had a discussion on it.

In Miami on April 20 we openly did not vote on consolidation of the three entities. The CEO position was mentioned in open session as it related to the entities and we voted to place that plan on the BBG web site and seek public comments which is now underway.

Yesterday, May 8 we are asked in an e mail from you to vote on you moving this forward to secure CEO legislation by the form of a straw poll online. The Board has not discussed this as a Board with all participating. We have not voted on it. Governor Lynton said there would not be a vote on consolidation on April 20. Now we are asked to move forward on a key component of the proposed US Innovation Act without discussion among Board members. This is not transparent. It is contrary to the spirit if not the letter of President Obama's executive order of 2009 on transparency. It is also a bad way to operate. Open discussion among Board members with all or most present produces a better product than short one sentence answers that say "I support it" without acknowledgment of the many issues surrounding such a move...some which I raised in the open session in Miami.

I feel this current process violates BBG bylaws on a notational vote which is what this straw poll really is. Is the BBG Board simply not going to discuss what the CEO position and selection process is all about in a Board setting?

I am perplexed that the entity heads and VOA/OCB heads have been omitted from this e mail chain when it directly impacts many of them. Again, not a good way to operate. Why are they left out?

Dear Colleagues,

This is a very short time frame to consider (received less than 2 hours ago) for something which in my view merits substantive Board discussion. We should not just exchange e mails saying we 'fully support' or 'oppose' but rather discuss in a Board setting (at least by phone) the pros and cons of this.

Why are the three entity heads not included on this e mail as well as (b) (6)
I urge they be added to the e mail chain and this discussion not occur without them.

While we have discussed the CEO matter conceptually, what Lynn describes here seems to go far beyond what we discussed previously in Board settings. I have previously voiced concerns about what the process is for picking a new CEO, term of office, salary, job qualifications as well as placing this unknown person in charge of the three non federal private corporate entities.

I personally feel the President should be able to appoint the BBG CEO and he/she should serve at the pleasure of the President with Senate confirmation. Presidential appointment and Senate confirmation gives the CEO status a Board appointment could not do.

I urge a Board meeting or conference call. Lynn, you state you want to be sure that the points you outline are consistent with a majority of the Board. I assume that means 5 Governors saying Yes. To date two have said Yes, I am saying No for now pending discussion.

I am also surprised that the House and Senate would consider moving something this significant without public hearings and input. I feel it is wrong to endorse this while at the same time we are now seeking public input on the BBG web site on consolidation. That is why BBG posted the consolidation report on our web site. Why are we seeking public input if at the same time BBG staff if moving to implement a major part of the consolidation before the public input comment period concludes? It means public input really does not matter when some of us feel public input really does matter.

Sincerely yours,

Please take the time today if you can to read and react to the info below, which concerns the establishment of a CEO for U.S. international broadcasting -- a key agency reform priority that the Board approved in January and deliberated for a year before that. This is a fast-moving opportunity to implement a front-end goal of the International Broadcasting Innovation Act in the current Congress, rather than the 113th as originally envisioned.

In recent days, we've been in touch with majority staff of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which is close to completing work on a draft foreign affairs authorization bill that could include a provision to create the empowered CEO position to be filled by a candidate chosen by the Board rather than a political appointee.

We're looking at a very narrow window of opportunity here. We have the next few days, to get a provision into the draft bill before it's shared with the minority, and then maybe a few days afterward for any adjustments before the next legislative step. Further adjustments are possible after that.

We're polishing some draft language for your consideration. The language would:

- Eliminate the requirement that the IBB Director be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.
- Convert the IBB Director position into that of Chief Executive Officer of USIB, reporting to the Board.
 - Enable the Board to hire, fire, fix the compensation of, and evaluate the CEO.
 - Provide the board the flexibility to delegate some of its own authorities to reflect and support a new CEO's operational role.
 - Clarify that the VOA and OCB directors report to the CEO of USIB.
 - Require each grantee to report to and follow the directives of the CEO as necessary to implement the Board's strategic plan. The CEO would not act as the direct leader of the grantees, but would have authority to make sure that the grants provided by the Board are expended in accordance with the Board's formal decisions.

This language will have to be minimalist for several reasons -- not least, to better the chances of passage into law. With strong bipartisan support, the House already passed a bill creating a CEO position in 2002 and again in a different form in 2004. But the current CEO provision won't be done until we're sure that the points above are consistent with your aims and those of a majority of the Board. So please let us know your views soon.

Fyi, committee staff on both sides of the aisle say they want to craft a foreign affairs package that is bipartisan and free of new budgetary implications, as this provision would be. The bill will also include several administrative provisions requested by the BBG, such as clarifying agency authority to hire non-citizens, which the agency has sought in the past.

Work continues on the IBIA independent of this new effort, should you decide to proceed with it.

We received confirmation from the White House today that there continues to be support for both the idea of a board-appointed CEO and for the kind of agency streamlining measures that you have been discussing.

Many thanks for your attention. We look forward to your comments.

I respect your right to disagree. That is part of our system. However, why were the entity heads and VOA/OCB heads excluded from this e mail chain? You have not answered that. This can only create distrust. Frankly, Dick, by what right do you have the authority to declare an e mail is not to be shared with the colleagues you work with? This new CEO would have impact over them and you do not want this discussed? Have you failed to read and implement the President's 2009 executive order on transparency?

If this was a directive from you then you should have sent it out not Lynn Weil.

Your e mail does not respond to the basic question which I raised which is why this is not a notational vote? You do not respond to the basic and fundamental issue of whether the BBG Board should discuss this specific issue. I am formally requesting it and no one has responded.

Can I as a Board member inquire of Senators and members of Congress as to what they think about this? Saying this is only for the Board members and we cannot ask others including my own Senator his views is appalling?

Dick, BBG has the worst morale of all federal agencies. We need to see real progress turning this around. We need to see a more inclusive style and more transparent.

This CEO proposal being pushed by stealth is not the right way to achieve success.

In recent days, we've been in touch with majority staff of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which is close to completing work on a draft foreign affairs authorization bill that could include a provision to create the empowered CEO position to be filled by a candidate chosen by the Board rather than a political appointee.

We're looking at a very narrow window of opportunity here. We have the next few days, to get a provision into the draft bill before it's shared with the minority, and then maybe a few days afterward for any adjustments before the next legislative step. Further adjustments are possible after that.

We're polishing some draft language for your consideration. The language would:

- Eliminate the requirement that the IBB Director be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.
- Convert the IBB Director position into that of Chief Executive Officer of USIB, reporting to the Board.
- Enable the Board to hire, fire, fix the compensation of, and evaluate the CEO.
- Provide the board the flexibility to delegate some of its own authorities to reflect and support a new CEO's operational role.
- Clarify that the VOA and OCB directors report to the CEO of USIB.
- Require each grantee to report to and follow the directives of the CEO as necessary to implement the Board's strategic plan. The CEO would not act as the direct leader of the grantees, but would have authority to make sure that the grants provided by the Board are expended in accordance with the Board's formal decisions.

This language will have to be minimalist for several reasons -- not least, to better the chances of passage into law. With strong bipartisan support, the House already passed a bill creating a CEO position in 2002 and again in a different form in 2004. But the current CEO provision won't be done until we're sure that the points above are consistent with your aims and those of a majority of the Board. So please let us know your views soon.

Fyi, committee staff on both sides of the aisle say they want to craft a foreign affairs package that is bipartisan and free of new budgetary implications, as this provision would be. The bill will also include several administrative provisions requested by the BBG, such as clarifying agency authority to hire non-citizens, which the agency has sought in the past.

Work continues on the IBIA independent of this new effort, should you decide to proceed with it.

We received confirmation from the White House today that there continues to be support for both the idea of a board-appointed CEO and for the kind of agency streamlining measures that you have been discussing.

Many thanks for your attention. We look forward to your comments.

It would be helpful Enders given your extensive background in international broadcasting if you would explain why you feel as you do. Just saying thank you or I concur really adds little to the discussion.

You have opinions which should be shared. The absence of a BBG meeting on this issue is appalling. It is so non inclusive. This is being steam rolled.

Enders, do you agree that the entity heads and VOA/OCB heads should be omitted from the e mail chain?

I deeply regret that you do not want a full and candid discussion on this.

Victor,

This assault on Lynne is both needless and baseless. The staff clears major initiatives involving the Board through me, and in this case is not asking Governors to undertake a notational vote by some other name. Lynne and her team, together with colleagues in the General Counsel's office and IBB/BBG top management, are trying to facilitate implementation of a key decision that the Board made in January 2012: to pursue legislation to create a CEO of United States international broadcasting.

At the end of this email are the relevant portions of the Record of Decisions and the adopted Minutes from the January meeting. In two distinct decisions the Board voted both to move ahead on grantee consolidation and to pursue legislation to restructure U.S. International Broadcasting, including through the creation of a CEO.

Spotting a good opportunity to implement this Board decision in the coming months -- rather than a year or more from now as anticipated given the realities of congressional action this year -- Lynne was simply trying to inform Governors of this new legislative vehicle and to develop a sense of whether they feel comfortable with hitching a ride. She was brought on three months ago in part because she has the experience and skills to identify and act on such opportunities.

E-mail responses that we have received so far suggest that most Board members feel the staff should move forward as suggested yesterday.

Lynne and the team she has assembled have been working flat out since Friday to offer you and your fellow Governors timely and complete information, the chance to weigh in at the well in time to take the next step, and then -- based on Board feedback -- to lay out clearly a legislative proposal for the Board to review.

I am concerned as well that you have yet again violated the confidentiality of discussions among Governors -- this time by e-mailing to the entity heads yesterday's note addressed to the Board, which was topped with a message asking all recipients that it not be shared further,

There has been no objection among the Governors -- or, for that matter, the staff -- to having a pre-decisional discussion about the legislative opportunity that has presented itself. We are happy to facilitate that discussion and will be in a position to show the Governors what the legislation would look like.

Dick Lobo
Director, International Broadcasting Bureau

Excerpts from January 2012 Record of Decisions and Meeting Minutes

From the Records of Decisions: "The position of Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the "CEO"), reporting to the Board of Governors, shall be created. The CEO will be empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and non-federal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight.”

From the approved Minutes of the January meeting: “The Board directed the IBB Director to work with IBB staff and outside experts, and with Governor McCue, in order to develop a draft IBIA for the Board’s further consideration. The draft legislation should have the following attributes: An organization reflecting the optimal mix of federal and non-federal assets; a creation of a Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the “CEO”), reporting to the Board of Governors, empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and nonfederal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight.”

Also from the January Board meeting Minutes:

“Governor McCue remarked that this proposal presents an exciting, historical time for U.S. international broadcasting, and that the drafting of legislation will be done in a partnership and team effort going forward. Governor Ashe expressed his support for the proposal and noted that, in his view, efforts should be made to achieve savings, regardless of the amount, and that it makes sense to consolidate in an effort to improve the quality of service and delivery of service to places where the governments censor or deny access to accurate and objective information. Governor Ashe said consolidation, if done properly, is a good step forward for the Agency in light of the new era, especially in communications and technology. Governor Ashe also said if the consolidation is not done properly, it would cause him to change his position and strongly oppose it. The devil is in the details. Governor Ashe said he reserved the right to change his views if the implementation is not well executed. Acting Under Secretary Ann Stock commented that the Board had a very constructive, long, thoughtful, deliberative process and that the off-site briefing helped the Board come up with a plan to move forward.

The Board then voted to restructure of United States international broadcasting, including consolidating the three BBG-sponsored grantees and seeking legislation that would include establishing a Chief Executive Officer to manage the enterprise.”

Dear Ms Weil,

The more I have thought about this series of e mails the more troubled I am about it because this is really a notational vote being carried out under another name by you as a staffer and not at the request of a Board member or IBB Director so the requirements of a notational vote do not have to be met. I refer to one member voting no and asking for a Board meeting to consider the matter as happened with RFE when Governor Meehan declined to vote Yes for some staff changes. We held a RFE Board meeting and had a discussion on it.

In Miami on April 20 we openly did not vote on consolidation of the three entities. The CEO position was mentioned in open session as it related to the entities and we voted to place that plan on the BBG web site and seek public comments which is now underway.

Yesterday, May 8 we are asked in an e mail from you to vote on you moving this forward to secure CEO legislation by the form of a straw poll online. The Board has not discussed this as a Board with all participating. We have not voted on it. Governor Lynton said there would not be a vote on consolidation on April 20. Now we are asked to move forward on a key component of the proposed US Innovation Act without discussion among Board members. This is not transparent. It is contrary to the spirit if not the letter of President Obama's executive order of 2009 on transparency. It is also a bad way to operate. Open discussion among Board members with all or most present produces a better product than short one sentence answers that say "I support it" without acknowledgment of the many issues surrounding such a move...some which I raised in the open session in Miami.

I feel this current process violates BBG bylaws on a notational vote which is what this straw poll really is. Is the BBG Board simply not going to discuss what the CEO position and selection process is all about in a Board setting?

I am perplexed that the entity heads and VOA/OCB heads have been omitted from this e mail chain when it directly impacts many of them. Again, not a good way to operate. Why are they left out?

I wonder why (b) (6) [REDACTED], deputy general counsel, was not included on the e mail chain given the policy matter that the Board is being asked to consider. I think the BBG Board should be told precisely what the White House and HFRC were told as referenced in earlier e mail by you, Ms. Weil.

I formally request the Board meet to discuss and vote on this and exercise my right as a Board member to request such when a notational vote fails to receive unanimous consent.

Dear Colleagues,

This is a very short time frame to consider (received less than 2 hours ago) for something which in my view merits substantive Board discussion. We should not just exchange e mails saying we 'fully support' or 'oppose' but rather discuss in a Board setting (at least by phone) the pros and cons of this.

Why are the three entity heads not included on this e mail as well as (b) (6)

? I urge they be added to the e mail chain and this discussion not occur without them.

While we have discussed the CEO matter conceptually, what Lynn describes here seems to go far beyond what we discussed previously in Board settings. I have previously voiced concerns about what the process is for picking a new CEO, term of office, salary, job qualifications as well as placing this unknown person in charge of the three non federal private corporate entities.

I personally feel the President should be able to appoint the BBG CEO and he/she should serve at the pleasure of the President with Senate confirmation. Presidential appointment and Senate confirmation gives the CEO status a Board appointment could not do.

I urge a Board meeting or conference call. Lynn, you state you want to be sure that the points you outline are consistent with a majority of the Board. I assume that means 5 Governors saying Yes. To date two have said Yes, I am saying No for now pending discussion.

I am also surprised that the House and Senate would consider moving something this significant without public hearings and input. I feel it is wrong to endorse this while at the same time we are now seeking public input on the BBG web site on consolidation. That is why BBG posted the consolidation report on our web site. Why are we seeking public input if at the same time BBG staff if moving to implement a major part of the consolidation before the public input comment period concludes? It means public input really does not matter when some of us feel public input really does matter.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Dear Colleagues,

Not sure if the recent e mail I sent on this subject went thru to all. So I am e mailing again. If this is a second copy for you I apologize. However, this is a very short time frame (I have only had Lynn's email for less than 3 hours) to consider such a significant proposal which merits substantive Board discussion.

This proposal which Lynn outlines goes beyond the CEO concept which we have previously discussed and I think the full BBG Board should discuss this prior to making a recommendation to Congress. I am troubled about extending this to the non federal private corporate entities which Congress created.

I am surprised and disappointed that the three entity heads are not included on this e mail nor are (b) (6) [REDACTED] and all are impacted. I hope future e mails bring them into it.

I have previously voiced concerns about the CEO position and how he/she will be chosen, qualifications to be set, salary to be paid, term of office and authority. In my view they should be fleshed out prior to making a recommendation.

In Miami we decided to post the consolidation report on the BBG web site and seek public input. That is going on now. To then move to push this CEO concept into law before we have completed receiving public input calls into question our sincerity in asking for public input on this part of the consolidation report if we are going to act without it.

I also feel the CEO should be a Presidential appointee with Senate confirmation as that process gives the person who holds the position more status than a Board choice would give.

If Lynn is seeking to know where all stand, it seems almost immediately two Governors have said they 'fully support.' I vote No pending further discussion. It is important that the full Board talk this over and include the entity heads as well as VOA and OCB.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Subject: Re: New opportunity to create a CEO position

Dear Colleagues,

This is a very short time frame to consider (received less than 2 hours ago) for something which in my view merits substantive Board discussion. We should not just exchange e mails saying we 'fully support' or 'oppose' but rather discuss in a Board setting (at least by phone) the pros and cons of this.

Why are the three entity heads not included on this e mail as well as (b) (6) [REDACTED] ? I urge they be added to the e mail chain and this discussion not occur without them.

While we have discussed the CEO matter conceptually, what Lynn describes here seems to go far beyond what we discussed previously in Board settings. I have previously voiced concerns about what the process is for picking a new CEO, term of office, salary, job qualifications as well as placing this unknown person in charge of the three non federal private corporate entities.

I personally feel the President should be able to appoint the BBG CEO and he/she should serve at the pleasure of the President with Senate confirmation. Presidential appointment and Senate confirmation gives the CEO status a Board appointment could not do.

I urge a Board meeting or conference call. Lynn, you state you want to be sure that the points you outline are consistent with a majority of the Board. I assume that means 5 Governors saying Yes. To date two have said Yes, I am saying No for now pending discussion.

I am also surprised that the House and Senate would consider moving something this significant without public hearings and input. I feel it is wrong to endorse this while at the same time we are now seeking public input on the BBG web site on consolidation. That is why BBG posted the consolidation report on our web site. Why are we seeking public input if at the same time BBG staff if moving to implement a major part of the consolidation before the public input comment period concludes? It means public input really does not matter when some of us feel public input really does matter.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

Governors,

This confidential message is being sent to you only, with the knowledge of the White House; it is pre-decisional in nature and not intended for further distribution.

Please take the time today if you can to read and react to the info below, which concerns the establishment of a CEO for U.S. international broadcasting -- a key agency reform priority that the Board approved in January and deliberated for a year before that. This is a fast-moving opportunity to implement a front-end goal of the International Broadcasting Innovation Act in the current Congress, rather than the 113th as originally envisioned.

In recent days, we've been in touch with majority staff of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which is close to completing work on a draft foreign affairs authorization bill that could include a provision to create the empowered CEO position to be filled by a candidate chosen by the Board rather than a political appointee.

We're looking at a very narrow window of opportunity here. We have the next few days, to get a provision into the draft bill before it's shared with the minority, and then maybe a few days afterward for any adjustments before the next legislative step. Further adjustments are possible after that.

We're polishing some draft language for your consideration. The language would:

- Eliminate the requirement that the IBB Director be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.
- Convert the IBB Director position into that of Chief Executive Officer of USIB, reporting to the Board.
- Enable the Board to hire, fire, fix the compensation of, and evaluate the CEO.
- Provide the board the flexibility to delegate some of its own authorities to reflect and support a new CEO's operational role.
- Clarify that the VOA and OCB directors report to the CEO of USIB.
- Require each grantee to report to and follow the directives of the CEO as necessary to implement the Board's strategic plan. The CEO would not act as the direct leader of the grantees, but would have authority to make sure that the grants provided by the Board are expended in accordance with the Board's formal decisions.

This language will have to be minimalist for several reasons -- not least, to better the chances of passage into law. With strong bipartisan support, the House already passed a bill creating a CEO position in 2002 and again in a different form in 2004. But the current CEO provision won't be done until we're sure that the points above are consistent with your aims and those of a majority of the Board. So please let us know your views soon.

Fyi, committee staff on both sides of the aisle say they want to craft a foreign affairs package that is bipartisan and free of new budgetary implications, as this provision would be. The bill will also include several administrative provisions requested by the BBG, such as clarifying agency authority to hire non-citizens, which the agency has sought in the past.

Work continues on the IBIA independent of this new effort, should you decide to proceed with it.

We received confirmation from the White House today that there continues to be support for both the idea of a board-appointed CEO and for the kind of agency streamlining measures that you have been discussing.

Many thanks for your attention. We look forward to your comments.

Thanks for your call today and your explanation of what is going on which like many things provides new light to the point that there is some grey here.

You indicated that (b) (6) said there had been congressional oversight approval but it was oral. If correct, you should get the approval in writing as I assume the request was in writing. This whole issue is very volatile and when it involves Congress, oral approvals are just that and a written approval is much stronger. My personal advice would always be to rely on a written approval for a change in this area of activity.

Thanks for your prompt and frank response.

Victor,

Good morning. BBG broadcasts to more than 100 countries, but we have never had the resources to survey all of those annually, or even biannually. Typically we do survey research in 50 or so countries a year.

For example, for the 22 countries of the Middle East served by Alhurra TV and Rado Sawa, we have surveyed 9-11 countries per year. For the 31 countries of Francophone Africa served by VOA French to Africa, we do just a few annually, again due to limited resources. The same holds true for our research in the many Spanish-speaking countries of Latin America.

On the other hand, for top-priority countries or territories such as China, Tibet, Russia, Pakistan, Iran, Afghanistan, et al, we have always tried to do annual work.

(b) (6), BBG's research manager who works for me, can send you the list of countries we surveyed last year and those we have identified to survey thus far this year under the new Gallup contract. Among the first Gallup projects were Tibet and Iran, and we should have the final results from both studies very soon. (Looking at these two specifically will also allow us to discuss with you and the Board how we approach difficult-to-research areas to procure nonetheless actionable data.)

The cost range for a nationally representative media survey across our universe of countries is $125,000-250,000. This is for a random sample of 2000 respondents (or much higher in larger countries like China, where national samples go as high as 8500 respondents) with a questionnaire that can run 45 minutes in length to obtain the diversity of data our language services require in terms of ownership of/access to and actual use of TV, radio, Internet, mobile phones, and social media as well as preferences for media outlets and subject areas.

From the surveys, we derive most of our key performance data on audience reach, news reliability, audience understanding, etc., which we are required to report to OMB and Congress. The data also inform our strategy and budget formulation, drive the annual language service review, and help determine distribution/transmission decisions, etc.

This said, audience and media surveys are only part of the BBG's research program. Qualitative and evaluative research are the other, equally important, parts.

Qualitative research includes focus groups and in-depth interviews to probe specific issues of interest to the language services regarding their programs, to test program concepts and pilots, to explore audience perceptions of competing media outlets, etc.

Evaluative research involves listener and viewer panels, which have been done for every service for many years to gauge program quality on both substance and style, and custom-commissioned reviews of program content such as the evaluations the Board (Enders was the lead) asked be done of PNN.

All BBG research is archived in our offices and at the broadcast entities. You can see any of it whenever you wish. In fact, we'll also send you a complete set of studies for a single country so you can see the specific work products.

For years we routinely distributed all BBG research in summary form to the Board. But the sheer volume of the work proved overwhelming -- tallying up all quantitative (surveys), qualitative, and evaluative studies annually, the number of discrete projects with corresponding reports runs between 200-300.

I hope this answers your immediate questions. I appreciate your interest. The research program is an open book. We'll follow up as noted and will gladly walk you through any of the studies or reports, or any aspects of actual research methodologies or program administration that you'd care to explore.

Best, Bruce

Governors, colleagues – as Dick wrote last evening, the GAO has begun a study in cooperation with this agency that looks at the proposals and strategy for streamlining U.S. international media.

In its notification to the agency of the engagement (attached here, and pls not for further distribution), the GAO referenced the multiple international broadcast entities that BBG oversees and noted challenges and opportunities identified by both the Board and others for streamlining U.S. international media.

The study is in its very early days. (b) (6) , working with (b) (6) , is the agency lead contact. The agency met with the GAO staff in late March for an initial “entrance” discussion. At that time, the GAO stressed that they were in the “design phase” of the study, and would be working on their methodology and the scope of the report. As yet the GAO has not fully defined the scope of the project or its methodology, and these could change with time. They are in a “data collection” stage in the project, after which they will confer with interested parties on the Hill to agree on the overall approach of the study. We'll learn more as they enter more deeply into discussions with us. The GAO does not expect to finish its report until this autumn.

So far, the GAO has expressed an interest in the new strategic plan and agency implementation of it, stating that they do not take issue with what we have done, but are interested in how we derived the plan. They have asked for extensive background information related to the development of the strategic plan, such as the convening of expert panels, SWOT analysis, and other research. Going forward, the GAO's researchers will want to speak with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity.

The lead staff member of the GAO group, (b) (6) , will attend the rededication event at Greenville. Her purpose is to see a BBG transmitting station.

We view this study as an opportunity to make the GAO - and its ultimate audience and client, Congress - aware of the agency's robust efforts to operate more efficiently and effectively amid the current budget environment. We have asked the GAO about the appropriateness of posting information about the GAO engagement on our website. Consulting with the GAO's public affairs and congressional relations offices, we were told that they are not aware of any instance where an agency posted this information. It is GAO's policy not to confirm or deny any engagement until the scope and methodology of the job are settled. These issues have not been settled with respect to the current BBG engagement, and are not likely to be settled for several more months. Thus, if the GAO were to get an inquiry pursuant to our posting, the GAO would offer no information.

In addition, the GAO cautioned that reports are "owned" by the requesters from the Congress, rather than the GAO. Therefore it is possible that the requesters in Congress would not find the web posting appropriate and it could in fact anger them.

Jeff

The GAO study was requested by Senators Akaka (D-Hawaii) and Johnson (R-Wisconsin), who serve as Chair and Ranking Member, respectively, on the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and the Federal Workforce. Subject: Re: GAO study

Thanks for sending the information. I noticed it was dated March 2 but the full BBG Board was not told about the GAO study until this week..the week of May 1...almost two months after the original notice of March 2. Even in our Miami meeting this was not discussed in open or private session. What was the reason for the delay in providing such important information? GAO doing a study is not an everyday event but significant especially in terms of our congressional relations and oversight. I feel this two month delay in notice to the full BBG Board needs some explanation.

Jeff, is there any additional information in writing from GAO since March 2 on this study and review?

Subject: RE: GAO study

Governors, colleagues – as Dick wrote last evening, the GAO has begun a study in cooperation with this agency that looks at the proposals and strategy for streamlining U.S. international media.

In its notification to the agency of the engagement (attached here, and pls not for further distribution), the GAO referenced the multiple international broadcast entities that BBG oversees and noted challenges and opportunities identified by both the Board and others for streamlining U.S. international media.

The study is in its very early days. (b) (6) [REDACTED], working with (b) (6) [REDACTED], is the agency lead contact. The agency met with the GAO staff in late March for an initial “entrance” discussion. At that time, the GAO stressed that they were in the “design phase” of the study, and would be working on their methodology and the scope of the report. As yet the GAO has not fully defined the scope of the project or its methodology, and these could change with time. They are in a “data collection” stage in the project, after which they will confer with interested parties on the Hill to agree on the overall approach of the study. We'll learn more as they enter more deeply into discussions with us. The GAO does not expect to finish its report until this autumn.

So far, the GAO has expressed an interest in the new strategic plan and agency implementation of it, stating that they do not take issue with what we have done, but are interested in how we derived the plan. They have asked for extensive background information related to the development of the strategic plan, such as the convening of expert panels, SWOT analysis, and other research. Going forward, the GAO's researchers will want to speak with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity.

The lead staff member of the GAO group, (b) (6), will attend the rededication event at Greenville. Her purpose is to see a BBG transmitting station.

We view this study as an opportunity to make the GAO - and its ultimate audience and client, Congress - aware of the agency's robust efforts to operate more efficiently and effectively amid the current budget environment.

We have asked the GAO about the appropriateness of posting information about the GAO engagement on our website. Consulting with the GAO's public affairs and congressional relations offices, we were told that they are not aware of any instance where an agency posted this information. It is GAO's policy not to confirm or deny any engagement until the scope and methodology of the job are settled. These issues have not been settled with respect to the current BBG engagement, and are not likely to be settled for several more months. Thus, if the GAO were to get an inquiry pursuant to our posting, the GAO would offer no information.

In addition, the GAO cautioned that reports are “owned” by the requesters from the Congress, rather than the GAO. Therefore it is possible that the requesters in Congress would not find the web posting appropriate and it could in fact anger them.

Rgds
Jeff

From my years on the hill GAO investigations are requested often by members of Congress. Can we learn when the request was written and what did they ask for GAO to look at? What did they ask and when did the GAO begin the investigation?

Who is the lead for the BBG?

Governors, colleagues, a message from Dick Lobo:

I wanted to make sure you know that the GAO has begun a study in cooperation with this agency that looks at the proposals and strategy for streamlining U.S. international media. To begin, they are talking with us about the challenges related to overlap and coordination.

As they start the project, the GAO's researchers will be speaking with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity. At this time, the GAO has not fully defined the scope of the project or its methodology. We'll learn more as they enter more deeply into discussions with us.

The GAO study was requested by Senators Akaka (D-Hawaii) and Johnson (R-Wisconsin), who serve as Chair and Ranking Member, respectively, on the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and the Federal Workforce. The GAO is also looking at other Federal programs, including democracy assistance, assistance to Afghanistan, and food aid.

We view this study as an opportunity to make the GAO - and its ultimate audience and client, Congress - aware of the agency's robust efforts to operate more efficiently and effectively amid the current budget environment. We will keep you informed as this study progresses.

The letter to Congressman Rohrabacher was a start but I regret that the letter prepared for Gov. Lynton failed to address head on his statement that BBG proceedings are opaque and are tone deaf to congressional intent. The letter never mentions it in the Lynton response which is most unfortunate.

Attached is a reply from Presiding Governor Lynton to Rep. Rohrabacher after the latter sent a letter to the Chair and Ranking Member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for Foreign Operations indicating concerns about VOA broadcasting in Mandarin, as well as other issues.
IBB/BBG and VOA executive staff worked together and with the Communications and Outreach Committee, as well as Governor Lynton, on the reply.

For your reference, the letter from Rep. Rohrabacher is also attached.

Having been a Mayor for 16 years I am knowledgeable about some of these issues. THanks for this information. I do feel it is important given the issue being discussed that we share all with the IBIA group and secure a common view, if possible, on these matters. Certainly whatever comes out of the July 31 phone call should be shared with the IBIA group and their reaction sought.

(b) (6) has been on the road to where his father lives; we just spoke. We'd like to emphasize that the IBIA working group has discussed the role of Board and the CEO, and new recommendations have not been developed since the group's last meeting.

Per (b) (6) note below, this briefing follows the Board's directive in January to "consult with Governors Ashe and Lynton in developing a model to define the appropriate roles for the Board and CEO." So on Tuesday we'll summarize group's deliberations on this topic to date, including areas where we have not yet reached consensus. Once we have completed the briefing and received your input, we'll follow up with the IBIA working group to refine the restructuring model further.

Please let me know if you have other questions that you'd like to discuss by phone. I hesitate to call out of the blue, given that you are still recovering from surgery.

Best regards,

Lynne

Dear Victor -- I greatly appreciate your emails.

The purpose of Tuesday's call is follow through on the Board's instruction from its January 2012 decision on the IBIA. That decision instructs the IBB Director to consult with you and Governor Lynton "in developing a model to define the appropriate roles for the Board and the CEO". The full text of that part of January decision is set forth below. The entire IBIA decision is reproduced in the briefing package that we have produced for Tuesday's telecon and which will be delivered to you shortly.

TEXT OF THE IBIA BOARD DECISION FROM JANUARY 2012: The position of Chief Executive Officer of United States International Broadcasting (the "CEO"), reporting to the Board of Governors, shall be created.

The CEO will be empowered to provide day-to-day executive leadership for United States international broadcasting and should have management authority over the federal and non-federal elements of United States international broadcasting, subject to Board oversight. The IBB Director is instructed to consult with Governors Ashe and Lynton in developing a model to define the appropriate roles for the Board and CEO.

In the briefing materials that are being sent to you, we will provide to you and the other Governors a summary of the IBIA working group's deliberations to date, as well as a summary of those elements of the IBIA with respect to which the group has developed a consensus. As required by the Board decision, we have worked under Governor McCue's guidance in developing a proposed overall structure for US international broadcasting (the enhanced grantee model, which we discussed with the Board at the June meeting).

That said, we have not developed a consensus in the working group about the appropriate roles of the Board and CEO within the proposed model. One of the purposes of Tuesday's briefing is provide information to you and Governor Lynton on the discussions that the working group has had to date, the areas of consensus that we have reached and to solicit your advice and guidance on the roles of the Board and the CEO as instructed by the Board decision.

Once we have completed the briefing and received your input, our plan is to follow up with the IBIA working group to further discuss and develop a restructuring model, under the guidance of Dick Lobo and in consultation with Governor McCue. Your views and the views of Governor Lynton on the appropriate roles of the Board and the CEO will greatly aid the discussions of the working group.

So, Tuesday's telecon is very much of a briefing and consultation. My understanding is that there will be further meaningful opportunities to consider and debate the entire IBIA package, as well as the element of it dealing with the CEO and the Board.

I will be out of the office tomorrow. I have to go to Philadelphia because my father has fallen ill and my time and attention is needed there. The briefing papers are on their way to you. I'll be back in the office on Monday. I very much look forward to Tuesday's conversation.

Thank you. (b) (6)

I truly believe it would be a shame not to adopt this resolution in a full board setting where his dedication, integrity and intelligence can be discussed and he can be invited to attend. Hopefully, a plague can be given to him at that time. Doing this resolution this way cheapens its significance. Remember, this was the person who was asked to relinquish his title of vice president only last year and the RFERL Board voted to restore it to him. I was saddened and embarrassed that he was treated this way. Surely, we can honor him in a more open way than a notational vothich hides it and removes an opportunity to extoll him. Had this been proposed prior to his farewell party last Mnday, July 23, so it could have been given to him then in front of his many friends, i might have agreed but to pass this in this less than open way causes me to vote NO and ask that it go before the full board. Surely there will be an RFE board meeting in september or October.

Governors, thanks for your initial feedback on BBG meeting dates.

To be clear: we won't be in a position for the full Board to vote on the budget proposal on August 2. We'll have preliminary discussions with the Strategy and Budget Committee on that day (and as Gov. Meehan indicated, all Governors are welcome to join).

Given that Governors Ashe and McCue already have indicated that August 9 or 10 aren't good, would early the following week -- Monday, August 13 or Tuesday, August 14 -- be better for all?

Please let (b) (6) know about your availability on August 13 and 14. Upon receipt of information on your availability, (b) (6) will send a follow-up email to confirm the meeting date and time.

Rgds

Jeff

We suggest a meeting of the full Board on Thursday, August 9, at 1 p.m. or 2 p.m. EDT. For those of you who could meet in Washington, we'd welcome having you here in person; others could join by video or phone. Friday, August 10, at 1 p.m. or 2 p.m. EDT, is an alternate possibility.

Given the importance of this topic, the meeting could last as long as three hours. We would appreciate your efforts to arrange your schedule accordingly.

At your earliest convenience, please let (b) (6) know whether you can be available on either of these two dates, and at what time. Upon receipt of information on the Governors' availability, (b) (6) will send a follow-up email to confirm the meeting date and time.

We will distribute budget materials in advance of this meeting and will be happy to discuss them and otherwise brief you as needed.

We recommend waiting until the September Board meeting (Sept 13-14) to further consider merger of the grantees. This would allow time for a Governance Committee meeting in advance in order to prepare a recommendation for the Board on this issue. If the Board would decide to proceed with grantee merger, we would work with OMB to factor this into the budget proposal later in the preparation process.

Governors, thanks for your initial feedback on BBG meeting dates. To be clear: we won't be in a position for the full Board to vote on the budget proposal on August 2. We'll have preliminary discussions with the Strategy and Budget Committee on that day (and as Gov. Meehan indicated, all Governors are welcome to join).

Given that Governors Ashe and McCue already have indicated that August 9 or 10 aren't good, would early the following week -- Monday, August 13 or Tuesday, August 14 -- be better for all?

Please let (b) (6) know about your availability on August 13 and 14. Upon receipt of information on your availability, (b) (6) will send a follow-up email to confirm the meeting date and time.

I have also requested this whole issue be placed on next BBG board meeting agenda for discussion but our deputy general counsel , (b) (6) (b) (6) feels that discussion should be in private as he argues it is a personnel matter. I do not agree with him on that so i do not know how this aspect of the matter will play out.. We do not have a firm date for next BBG Board meeting other than mid sept....there might be a phone or teleconferencing meeting in August..but nothing definite has been set.

Good Journalism at the U.N.? By Brett D. Schaefer June 18, 2012 12:00 P.M. With all the corruption at the United Nations, you might think that the United Nations Correspondents Association (UNCA) would have better things to do than pick a fight with a single reporter. But you would be wrong. Matthew Lee is the only reporter for Inner City Press, a Bronx-based nonprofit group known mainly for investigations of financial institutions and advocacy for the poor. Lee has broken a number of stories about the U.N., but now he himself is the story. In fact, he could become the first journalist ever expelled from UNCA. Last week, UNCA announced that it would investigate Lee for unethical and unprofessional behavior. Few reporters with knowledge of the situation wish to comment on the record, but journalists both inside and outside the UNCA say the situation is one in which personal animosity has overridden professional judgment. Regarded as abrasive by some of his colleagues, Lee has had volatile arguments with other UNCA reporters, and has frequently complained about other journalists' failing to credit him for breaking news. He has also written stories accusing the UNCA president, Giampaolo Pioli, of a conflict of interest involving Sri Lanka. These personal disputes lie at the heart of the UNCA investigation. UNCA is a self-governing body. Thus, whether Lee remains a member is entirely up to the organization. UNCA membership is not a prerequisite for obtaining U.N. press credentials, which are granted by the U.N. Media Accreditation and Liaison Unit (MALU) — so Lee's expulsion would not automatically deprive him of U.N. access. According to the Guidelines on Media Access at United Nations Headquarters: The United Nations Department of Public Information as well as the Safety & Security Service reserve the right to deny or withdraw accreditation of journalists from media organizations whose activities run counter to the principles of the Charter of the United Nations or who abuse the privileges so extended or put the accreditation to improper use or act in a way not consistent with the principles of the Organization or established journalism ethics and standards. A MALU spokesperson acknowledged that the U.N. has rescinded press credentials in the past, but she added that UNCA's investigation of Lee would not directly influence MALU. Lee's grammar and style are often unusual, and he sometimes fails to observe journalistic niceties. Although these traits are not uncommon among small media outlets, some journalists have expressed concern that they — along with an unfavorable UNCA decision — could allow the U.N. to deny Lee's reapplication for press credentials on the basis that his actions are inconsistent with "established journalism ethics and standards." His current credentials expire in August. It would not be first time that Lee has been targeted. Inner City Press was scrubbed from Google News in 2008, allegedly at the behest of the U.N. At the time, UNCA came to Lee's defense. But that was before his recent clashes with that organization and its members. And Turtle Bay officialdom could be receptive to their new opinion of him. Lee is probably the U.N. Department of Public Information's least-favorite journalist because he is persistent, is willing to ask uncomfortable questions, and has cultivated an impressive network of sources within the U.N. In short, he's a pain in their neck at every press briefing. Lee is also unusual in that he focuses on the inner workings of the U.N. — stories that are off the radar of larger news outlets. For instance, Lee broke the story about the discovery of 40 pounds of cocaine in a diplomatic pouch in the U.N. mailroom. He reported that Ibrahim Gambari, a special representative for Darfur of the African Union and the U.N., had greeted Sudanese president Omar al-Bashir at a wedding even as Bashir stood indicted on charges of genocide, and he wrote of the opulent home Gambari built in Darfur at U.N. expense. He has exposed irregularities with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in North Korea, and his coverage of a UNDP-funded program of forced disarmament in Uganda led to that program's suspension. Other reporters readily admit that Lee's reporting is valuable. "He may not always get it right, but Matthew covers the U.N. like no one else, often scooping much larger news organizations," the New York Post's Benny Avni says. "Matthew digs into how it works — and often into how it doesn't." Claudia Rosett, journalist-in-residence at the Foundation for Defense of Democracies, notes: "Matthew Russell Lee has broken a series of important stories over the years — stories that without his efforts might have gone unnoticed." Off the record, other reporters shared similar views with me. Inner City Press has been a member of UNCA for five years, and all that time Lee's U.N. press credentials have routinely been renewed. Thus, both UNCA and MALU have repeatedly affirmed Inner City Press's status as a legitimate member of the media. I spoke with UNCA journalists who expressed the view that, regardless of what UNCA decides, Lee should retain his press credentials. The U.S. mission to the U.N. has a role to play in this imbroglio. It should not intervene in internal UNCA deliberations, but it absolutely should stand firm in protecting the principle of freedom of the press. Media coverage of the U.N. is too shallow as it is. It would suffer more if reporters like Matthew Lee were denied access. The U.S. government should make clear to the U.N. that it supports Lee and other controversial journalists trying to retain their press credentials. — Brett D. Dear Jeff

Thanks for the revised letter. I decline to sign it and disagree with much stated in the letters. I feel BBG has taken a step backwards and it sends the wrong signal. BBG has taken a serious public relations hit and our standing with the Congress has been diminished in my view. It seems to me that BBG is now saying to the world do as we say not as we do.

The letter should reflect that one Governor disagrees with the new protocol. Since apparently there is not going to be a July 24 Board meeting, discussion and further questions will appear on the next Board agenda whenever that meeting is held at my request. Furthermore the governance committee is scheduled to consider the new policy but again that meeting has been postponed to an unknown date.

The fact that this did not go to governance may be legal but it is hardly exemplary or a model to follow. In fact, I was the one Board member omitted to much of the prior discussion of the item before the Board meeting. Deputy legal counsel (b) (6) failed to answer several of my inquiries on it prior to the Board meeting in Prague. It appeared to me that he was avoiding discussion with me. In fact, the item was not even listed on the agenda for the Board meeting which was sent out 6 days prior to the meeting. Then the whole agenda of the meeting was re-arranged without Board input just hours prior to the meeting in Prague.

On other issues dealing with openness, BBG Board has failed to have a serious in depth discussion on the CEO legislation which is being pushed on the House side of the Congress at the present time. The actual legislation has not been shared with all Board members.

There are meeting on the Innovation Act but Ms. Weil has failed to provide me a copy of what is being discussed despite requests by me for it.

I deeply regret having to say all of this and be the one Governor raising issues but I must in terms of meeting my fiduciary responsibility. However, we fooling ourselves if some think the issue will fold and vanish. I continue my highest respect and affection for all.

I trust all will have a wonderful weekend.

Governors,

Attached and pasted in below is an updated draft response to Congressman Rohrabacher's June 26 letter questioning the intent of the Agency's policy on deliberative information, which you approved during your June 7 meeting.

This updated draft – changes from the earlier version are highlighted in italics in the text below, and in red in the attachment – reflects suggestions from Governor Ashe.

The response will go to the Congressman's office on Monday.

Regards,

Jeff

The Honorable Dana Rohrabacher
U.S. House of Representatives

Dear Congressman Rohrabacher:

Thank you for your letter dated June 26, 2012.

We share your view regarding the importance of transparency in the Executive Branch generally and at the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG). The current BBG Board has greatly increased agency transparency, including holding open meetings streamed via the web, posting decisions on the agency's website, and inviting outside comments on strategic planning and other deliberations. The Board's regular, open meetings are in full compliance with the Government in the Sunshine Act. In addition to the transparency achieved through public board meetings, the agency posts resolutions, records of decisions, and other highlights from Board meetings on the web. More documents are posted on the BBG website for public review than at any time in the past. The Agency has invited outside comments on strategic planning through a public website (bbgstrategy.com) to encourage broad discussion on the agency's multi-year plan. In addition, the Board posted a draft grantee merger assessment, as prepared by Middle East Broadcasting Networks President Brian Conniff, on its website in order to obtain public comment.

The measure adopted unanimously by the Board of Governors at its June 7, 2012 meeting was designed to clarify agency – and indeed federal – policy with respect to the deliberative process. During a robust and frank debate that lasted nearly 90 minutes, the Board adopted several amendments to the resolution and made it clear that the measure would not reverse the important steps that we have taken to be as open and transparent as law, federal guidelines and prudent policy allow. The resolution itself grew out of a previous, detailed discussion at our April meeting regarding the chilling effect of unauthorized disclosures on Board discussion of important issues. Neither the International Broadcasting Act nor the Board's by-laws and practice require that a measure must go through a particular committee before being submitted to the plenary Board. The BBG by-laws expressly reserve the right of individual Governors to propose agenda items for consideration by the plenary Board.

Policymakers in every part of government must have avenues to brainstorm on challenges and opportunities, prior to opening further discussion to the public. The Board also must be allowed to consider and discuss proposals freely and frankly without misgivings that these deliberative and pre-decisional discussions may be made public, or perhaps be misrepresented to the public. The resolution reflects our shared concern that disclosures of information from discussions for which the Board had an expectation of confidentiality among their peers had begun to undermine the decision-making processes of the Board.

The Board's resolution tracks current U.S. government policy, including OMB regulations which preclude federal agencies from releasing pre-decisional budget and legislative proposal information. In keeping with these regulations and policies, the Board's policy does not prohibit the release of all "deliberative information." Rather, it prohibits the release of certain categories of deliberative information without the prior authorization of the agency. The policy, which is enclosed for your consideration and is posted on the BBG website, prohibits the unauthorized disclosure of deliberative information

"pertaining to (1) budgetary matters that are determined to be pre-decisional under Office of Management and Budget guidelines; (2) legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board's further review; and (3) such other matters as the plenary Board may determine, based on the recommendation of the Governance Committee."

The policy also contains a number of important carve-outs which further narrow its application, including exceptions for publicly available factual information and the individual opinion of Governors that do not disclose the deliberative information. The policy also expressly states that it is to be interpreted consistent with the Government in the Sunshine Act and that individual rights under the 1998 Whistleblower Protection Act are not affected.

We are not aware that any employees, in learning of the Board's action "were led to believe that they would face punishment if they spoke out about legitimate problems within their services." The Board's nondisclosure policy applies only to the Governors. As mentioned above, the policy also expressly states that rights under the Whistleblower Protection Act are not affected. There should be no confusion in this regard, and the Board could rectify any misunderstanding through further outreach.

The Board's action does not, in any way, threaten the ability of Congress to conduct effective oversight of the BBG. The BBG works closely with Congressional Committees with oversight jurisdiction over United States international broadcasting, as well as other Congressional offices, and will continue to do so. It does not create any new mechanism to deter the agency from providing information to the Congress.

The Broadcasting Board of Governors shares your deep and ongoing commitment to improving United States international broadcasting. The Board believes, however, that the adoption of these ground rules regarding the disclosure of certain types of deliberative information will help safeguard the Board's ability to fulfill its statutory mandates.

The Board expects to engage in further discussion on the need to preserve confidentiality and trust during its deliberations, and will continue to comply with the rules and expectations concerning pre-decisional activities within the Executive Branch. We will retain our commitment to transparency in government.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. Given the seriousness of this issue, and the extent to which we believe the Board's intent has been misinterpreted by others, we would appreciate the opportunity to meet with you to discuss this further.

Sincerely,

From: Vhashe@aol.com

Please send me the documents where the Board 'clearly established that personnel matters would be discussed in closed meetings.' I would like to review them and determine whether I agree with your conclusion or not. I believe I am entitled to see them. Given the issue raised for which BBG and VOA are taking major criticism on, I feel it is not a personnel issue but a policy issue. I think BBG needs to be open and direct in responding to this. I feel it can be discussed without dealing with one individual's personnel record.

I renew my request that this be on the next BBG agenda and it will up to the Board members present to determine whether to proceed with an open or closed discussion of it.

I look forward to getting the documents asked for here. I also note that your e mail did not respond to my request of July 10 on why my earlier request for a discussion of the new non disclosure protocol was placed near the end of the upcoming Board agenda for July 24 a meeting which has now been postponed. I would like to know what policy is in place for placement of items on the Board agenda and how they are positioned where they are positioned.

Have a great weekend.

Dear Victor – Thanks for your email.

You are correct that the Bye-laws state that any Governor can place a topic on the Board's meeting agenda. That said, the Board has adopted protocols regarding the types of topics that should be discussed in an open Board meeting versus a closed Board meeting. As you know, the Board under Chairman Isaacson clearly established that personnel matters would be discussed in closed meetings of the Board. This can be done under the exemptions in the Government in the Sunshine Act (both under exemption 3 (statutory exemptions disclosure such as the Privacy Act) and exemption 6 (personal privacy)). You are correct that the Board would have to vote to close the meeting, but that has been the Board's practice to date.

(b) (5)

Agendas are developed in accordance with the Bylaws. I am not certain about the reasons for placement of the discussion of the nondisclosure protocol in the order to the agenda. Perhaps it has something to do with the importance of considering the FY 2014 budget, the grantee consolidation and other topics. The Board discussed the nondisclosure policy for over 90 minutes at the last Board meeting. In any case, as you requested, the topic was placed on both the agenda of the full Board and the Governance Committee.

My very best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Thanks. (b) (6)

Dear Colleagues,

Budget update. I have been able to secure a meeting at OMB on Tuesday, July 17th at 11 am in Washington. If any of you are in town and interested in attending please let me know. Our goal is to make a case about 5-10 percent cuts and what it does to our agency.

I am hopeful to schedule a meeting of the Strategy and Budget Committee in the next couple of weeks. We can make it a committee of the whole and have any board member, who wishes for a deeper dive into the 2014 budget and an update on the 2013 budget status participate by phone or in person. I know the staff has been sending us update materials.

China. On Friday July 27th, we have assembled several outside experts to convene in Washington that morning. It's part of an effort to bring outside voices into our internal discussions about a comprehensive approach to USIB in China. Board members are encouraged to join by phone or in person on the 27th. It's with this input that I am hopeful we can advance a more comprehensive strategy that leverages all of USIB assets in Asia.

Iran. The staff is still working on recruiting panelist. I am hope for us to have conducted a similar effort before the September board meeting and our 2014 budget submission. Stay tuned.

If you are interested in participating directly in the Budget committee meeting, please let me know and we will work to accommodate your schedule. The staff needs our guidance and as Dick points out, September is too late to start.

Best,

Michael

Dear Governors,

In April, the Board voted to change the previously selected date for the July 2012 meeting and asked Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt to choose a new date. Having canvassed the Board, they selected July 24 as the best available option.

As that date approaches, it has become apparent that many Governors' attendance cannot be assured. Some of you are available only at limited times -- or perhaps not at all -- on July 24. Guaranteeing a quorum under these conditions would not be possible.

For this reason, Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt have agreed to postpone the July meetings of the Board and Governance Committee. They will suggest an alternate date.

While most of the work on the July agenda may be safely deferred until the scheduled September meeting, it is critical for the Board to discuss the proposed FY 2014 budget sometime in early August by telephone or videoconference. We will be back in touch as soon as possible with a proposed date.

Finally, a number of Governors have pointed out the importance and complexity of the key issues requiring detailed discussion before any votes could take place. The postponement will provide time for you to review any materials sent in advance.

It is important that materials which were going to be assembled for July 24 be sent to all Governors anyway so we can have time to review them in adequate time but that does not replace the need for a meeting of the relevant committees to discuss and look into issues. Budget must be considered in depth.

Subject: Re: Draft July BBG Meetings Agenda

In looking over the agenda, I have several more questions and concerns.

First, can someone let at least the Governors know what the classified session on July 24 between 1045 and 1 PM will cover in terms of topics so we can be thinking about it. Simply saying it is classified does not give a clue as to what might be discussed. If the powers that be do not want this whole list to know, then perhaps send it to Governors only. I do not feel we should have a classified session unless there is some heads up to Governors as to what it is about.

Second, I do not understand how we can vote on the budget when strategy and budget committee has not met to go over the budget. No one has briefed me on its contents. When will we receive information on the budget? However, I thought it was and is the role of the Strategy and budget committee to go over the budget before the full Board considers it. Am I mistaken? It seems Strategy and Budget does not have a meeting planned. Going over the budget should take more than the 30 minutes allotted on July 24. Only having 30 minutes for this without a strategy and budget committee meeting makes the Board appear less than diligent in its discharge of its duties. As one Governor, I have not been briefed on the budget and feel allocating 30 minutes only is totally inadequate for a budget of over $700 million.

Third, I wish to register a protest that my request for discussion of the non disclosure protocol is placed virtually last on the agenda of the full Board behind congratulatory resolutions. I requested this in a timely manner. It seems to me that items requested by Governors should have a higher priority than what is being given to this issue which has triggered much public discussion and questions. The reality is that the Board has failed to conclude its full agenda at the last two meetings. Placing this item last if that happens at this meeting almost guarantees that the Board does not reach it and a thoughtful discussion does not occur on this significant issue.

Fourth, I feel entity heads and network heads should be allowed to attend all of the Governor's briefing not simply as directed.

Hopefully, someone can answer these concerns. Mr. (b) (6) Mr. Lobo, Gov, Lynton or others.

Dear Governors,

Attached please find a draft agenda for all BBG-related meetings to be held on Tuesday, July 24, in the BBG-IBB Conference Room of the Cohen Building. This draft agenda has been reviewed and approved by Presiding Governor Lynton.

A Governance Committee meeting is scheduled from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. EDT. Committee members (Chair Mulhaupt, Ashe, McCue and Lynton) are confirmed for attendance, but we urge other Governors to participate as the Committee will, among other issues, examine the grantee consolidation plan and make a recommendation to the plenary Board.

As Jeff mentioned to you on June 28, the Board needs to decide on grantee consolidation – a decision with significant implications for the FY 2014 budget process. In addition, the Board must consider, provide guidance, and adopt the key elements of the Agency's FY 2014 budget proposal in a closed meeting because of the need to preserve the confidentiality of pre-decisional budget information per OMB guidelines. That said, in a separate email per usual procedures, we will circulate a notice to the Board with a request to close a portion of the Board meeting.

Given the importance of these issues, it is anticipated that the Governors' Briefing morning session (starting at 10:45 a.m. EDT) would be attended by Governors, key staff and network heads.

Please note that a BBG open meeting is planned in the afternoon from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. EDT. Following the open meeting, Governors' Briefing would continue, including a substantial discussion about the Agency's digital/on-line programs per Governor McCue's request.

We welcome your comments and requests for additional topics and/or other changes in the closed session (Governors' Briefing) or in the BBG open meeting.

Thank you.

Not sure what the plan is on getting the agenda and documents to BBG board prior to July 24 meeting which is on a Tuesday that week as opposed to the normal Thursday when documents arrive on Saturday for me (fed Ex) and e mail on Friday but I am limited in my ability to print them out.

However, I want to express the hope we can have the documents a full week out which means July 17 (Tuesday) prior to the July 24 meeting. even this schedule cuts in half the bylaw requirement that we receive them 14 days out which would be July 10.

Unfortunately I never received the non disclosure protocol 7 days out nor was it even listed on the agenda for webcam meeting sent out prior to the Prague meeting. I hope and trust this will not happen again. It does not reflect well on BBG when we do not follow our own rules and what we promote in other nations.

Can someone tell me when to expect the real agenda (not the notational one which Jeff sent out a few days ago) and accompanying documents will arrive?

Governors,

Attached and pasted in below is a draft response to Congressman Rohrabacher's June 26 letter questioning the intent of the Agency's policy on deliberative information, which you approved during your June 7 meeting. A copy of the Congressman's letter to Presiding Governor Lynton also is attached for your background.

The proposed response clarifies that the Board's resolution adheres to broader Executive Branch policy with respect to the protection of the deliberative process, and that the BBG has not proposed protections beyond what the USG already either mandates or recommends.

This proposed response has been provided to Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt, who have given preliminary approval to the draft.

We would greatly appreciate receiving your comments and edits by July 6, in order to reply to the Congressman in a timely manner. The response will go to the Congressman over the signatures of Governors who approve the letter.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. We look forward to hearing from you.

U.S. House of Representatives

Dear Congressman Rohrabacher:

Thank you for your letter dated June 26, 2012.

We share your view regarding the importance of transparency in the Executive Branch generally and at the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG). The current BBG Board has greatly increased agency transparency, including holding open meetings streamed via the web, posting decisions on the agency's website, and inviting outside comments on strategic planning and other deliberations. The Board's regular, open meetings are in full compliance with the Government in the Sunshine Act. In addition to the transparency achieved through public board meetings, the agency posts resolutions, records of decisions, and other highlights from Board meetings on the web. More documents are posted on the BBG website for public review than at any time in the past. The Agency has invited outside comments on strategic planning through a public website (bbgstrategy.com) to encourage broad discussion on the agency's multi-year plan. In addition, the Board posted a draft grantee merger assessment, as prepared by Middle East Broadcasting Networks President Brian Conniff, on its website in order to obtain public comment.

The measure adopted unanimously by the Board of Governors at its June 7, 2012 meeting was designed to clarify agency – and indeed federal – policy with respect to the deliberative process. During a robust and frank debate that lasted nearly 90 minutes, the Board adopted several amendments to the resolution and made it clear that the measure would not reverse the important steps that we have taken to be as open and transparent as law, federal guidelines and prudent policy allow. The resolution itself grew out of a previous, detailed discussion at our April meeting regarding the chilling effect of unauthorized disclosures on Board discussion of important issues. Neither the International Broadcasting Act nor the Board's by-laws and practice require that a measure must go through a particular committee before being submitted to the plenary Board. The BBG by-laws expressly reserve the right of individual Governors to propose agenda items for consideration by the plenary Board.

Policymakers in every part of government must have avenues to brainstorm on challenges and opportunities, prior to opening further discussion to the public. The Board also must be allowed to consider and discuss proposals freely and frankly without misgivings that these deliberative and pre-decisional discussions may be made public, or perhaps be misrepresented to the public. The resolution reflects our shared concern that disclosures of information from discussions for which the Board had an expectation of confidentiality among their peers had begun to undermine the decision-making processes of the Board.

The Board's resolution tracks current U.S. government policy, including OMB regulations which preclude federal agencies from releasing pre-decisional budget and legislative proposal information. In keeping with these regulations and policies, the Board's policy does not prohibit the release of all "deliberative information." Rather, it prohibits the release of certain categories of deliberative information without the prior authorization of the agency. The policy, which is enclosed for your consideration and is posted on the BBG website, prohibits the unauthorized disclosure of deliberative information

"pertaining to (1) budgetary matters that are determined to be pre-decisional under Office of Management and Budget guidelines; (2) legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board's further review; and (3) such other matters as the plenary Board may determine, based on the recommendation of the Governance Committee."

The policy also contains a number of important carve-outs which further narrow its application, including exceptions for publicly available factual information and the individual opinion of Governors that do not disclose the deliberative information. The policy also expressly states that it is to be interpreted consistent with the Government in the Sunshine Act and that individual rights under the 1998 Whistleblower Protection Act are not affected.

We are not aware that any employees, in learning of the Board's action "were led to believe that they would face punishment if they spoke out about legitimate problems within their services." The Board's nondisclosure policy applies only to the Governors. As mentioned above, the policy also expressly states that rights under the Whistleblower Protection Act are not affected. There should be no confusion in this regard, and the Board could rectify any misunderstanding through further outreach.

The Board's action does not, in any way, threaten the ability of Congress to conduct effective oversight of the BBG. The BBG works closely with Congressional Committees with oversight jurisdiction over United States international broadcasting, as well as other Congressional offices, and will continue to do so. It does not create any new mechanism to deter the agency from providing information to the Congress.

The Broadcasting Board of Governors shares your deep and ongoing commitment to improving United States international broadcasting. The Board believes, however, that the adoption of these ground rules regarding the disclosure of certain types of deliberative information will help safeguard the Board's ability to fulfill its statutory mandates.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. Given the seriousness of this issue, and the extent to which we believe the Board's intent has been misinterpreted by others, we would appreciate the opportunity to meet with you to discuss this further.

Sincerely,

Michael Lynton

Governors,

Attached and pasted in below is a draft response to Congressman Rohrabacher's June 26 letter questioning the intent of the Agency's policy on deliberative information, which you approved during your June 7 meeting. A copy of the Congressman's letter to Presiding Governor Lynton also is attached for your background.

The proposed response clarifies that the Board's resolution adheres to broader Executive Branch policy with respect to the protection of the deliberative process, and that the BBG has not proposed protections beyond what the USG already either mandates or recommends.

This proposed response has been provided to Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt, who have given preliminary approval to the draft.

We would greatly appreciate receiving your comments and edits by July 6, in order to reply to the Congressman in a timely manner. The response will go to the Congressman over the signatures of Governors who approve the letter.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. We look forward to hearing from you.

Please let us know if you are interested in receiving a copy of this discussion draft and we will send it. Because the current report status is "Sensitive But Unclassified," we cannot forward it to non-Agency email addresses.

Even today my good friend Dick Lobo is engaged in non disclosure with me by declining to respond to my repeated e mails asking for a copy of the memo prepared for him with my name on it relative to labor issues and the memo which I sent a few weeks ago to all Governors. This memo prepared for Mr. Lobo was in his stack of materials at the June 7 Prague meeting where he sat next to me and it was at the top of the pile. When I asked to see it that day in order to better understand BBG management's position on labor negotiations he declined to share it and has ignored several e mails from me since then on this issue. My name is in the headline on the memo but he withholds it from me. Hard to understand this one and certainly something Congressman Rohrabacher would find less than transparent. As a Governor I along with all other interested Governors are entitled to see it. Mr. Lobo in my view has no legal basis to withhold it especially since it was prepared to assist him in responding to anticipated questions I might ask but which the press of other business prevented us from reaching.

As a Board member of BBG, I am requesting that the issue of the non disclosure protocol including its possible repeal and/or modification be placed on the July 25-26 BBG agenda or whenever the next BBG meeting is held if the July 25-26 meeting does not occur. I am outside the 30 day notice required by BBG by laws.

While the governance committee was bypassed when this considered at the June 7 BBG meeting, I am glad for the governance committee to consider this should there be a governance committee meeting prior to the next BBG Board meeting. I would hope and request that this governance committee meeting would be open to the public. If there is not a governance committee meeting prior to the next BBG meeting, then I want the matter placed on the full BBG agenda for full Board consideration.

There are many matters which were not adequately discussed which merit discussion and further explanation as to what is meant and intended. I hope this is fully aired.

This request is not intended to be confidential and can be forwarded to anyone as far as I am concerned.

Even today my good friend Dick Lobo is engaged in non disclosure with me by declining to respond to my repeated e mails asking for a copy of the memo prepared for him with my name on it relative to labor issues and the memo which I sent a few weeks ago to all Governors. This memo prepared for Mr. Lobo was in his stack of materials at the June 7 Prague meeting where he sat next to me and it was at the top of the pile. When I asked to see it that day in order to better understand BBG management's position on labor negotiations he declined to share it and has ignored several e mails from me since then on this issue. My name is in the headline on the memo but he withholds it from me. Hard to understand this one and certainly something Congressman Rohrabacher would find less than transparent. As a Governor I along with all other interested Governors are entitled to see it. Mr. Lobo in my view has no legal basis to withhold it especially since it was prepared to assist him in responding to anticipated questions I might ask but which the press of other business prevented us from reaching.

Sincerely yours,
Victor Ashe

As I've said, I'm happy for the Governance Committee to review the non-disclosure policy and to recommend changes and/or improvements if they are warranted. Obviously to do that, we would need a quorum. I'm not sure if, given governors' schedules and availability and other pressing matters in July, we will be able to achieve that, but as soon as we can, it can be scheduled.

Subject: non disclosure protocol

As a Board member of BBG, I am requesting that the issue of the non disclosure protocol including its possible repeal and/or modification be placed on the July 25-26 BBG agenda or whenever the next BBG meeting is held if the July 25-26 meeting does not occur. I am outside the 30 day notice required by BBG by laws.

While the governance committee was bypassed when this considered at the June 7 BBG meeting, I am glad for the governance committee to consider this should there be a governance committee meeting prior to the next BBG Board meeting. I would hope and request that this governance committee meeting would be open to the public. If there is not a governance committee meeting prior to the next BBG meeting, then I want the matter placed on the full BBG agenda for full Board consideration.

There are many matters which were not adequately discussed which merit discussion and further explanation as to what is meant and intended. I hope this is fully aired.

This request is not intended to be confidential and can be forwarded to anyone as far as I am concerned.

Dear (b) (6)

Due to the May meeting of the governance committee being canceled we were not able to consider the sexual harassment statement which BBG Board needs to vote on at some time. Our committee had considered this earlier in the year and made several changes to the original suggested statement which seem to improve it.

Dennis, hopefully, governance committee can have even a quick meeting prior to July 24-25 to consider this. I assume it will not take very long and there would be appear to be strong support on the Board for acting on it.

I just want to make sure this issue is taken up as soon as we can and it is not lost as other issues are considered. (b) (6) please advise me as to plans on consideration of this.

The Workplace Morale Group (WMG) was formed at the request of the Labor/Management Forum in January 2012, chartered to recommend actions responsive to concerns expressed in the 2011 Human Capital/Viewpoint surveys. The Charter for the Workplace Morale Group is attached.

Since February, the group has met every week with plans to continue weekly meetings until the membership agrees there is no further need.

* On March 22 the group, along with IBB/VOA senior management, met with the Partnership for Public Service (<http://www.ourpublicservice.org>) to discuss employee survey results and follow-up actions.

* On March 29 the group, along with IBB/VOA management briefed Governor Ashe on activities to date

* On April 27 the group met with Messrs. Lobo and Ensor regarding WMG recommendations, with emphasis on leadership and performance management, patterns and techniques of communication between management and the workforce, the need to address AFGE's absence from the Labor/Management Forum, and the need for an increased commitment to employee services.

* In May the WMG visited four Federal agencies cited by the Partnership for Public Service as having achieved substantial gains regarding labor-management issues as reflected in employee surveys.

Governors,

Your July Board meetings (July 24-25) are extremely important. You must consider, provide guidance, and adopt the key elements of the Agency's FY 2014 budget proposal. You also are scheduled to discuss and decide in July whether to move forward with consolidation of the grantees – a decision with significant implications for the FY 2014 budget process.

The budget submission is due to OMB on September 10. Between Board approval of the proposed budget and submission in September, there is an enormous amount of further work to do, including preparing narratives and other materials for what ends up being a document of nearly 200 pages.

Please do all you can to be available in person or by phone or videoconference on July 24 and 25. Here is what we have from you or your offices about your availability; please let us know any updates and please confirm your participation in person, by phone or videoconference:

- Governor Lynton: available in person July 24; not available July 25
- Governor Mulhaupt: available in person July 24-25
- Governor McCue: in NYC July 24-25 but possibly available by phone/Videocon
- Governor Meehan: traveling on July 24 and at a client conference on July 25; possibly available by phone
- Governor Ashe: available in person July 24-25
- Governor Perino: not available
- U/S Sonenshine: available in person July 24 starting at 10 am and in person July 25 as needed.

Because some of you cannot be in Washington, and because we need your limited time to focus on the key issues of budget and grantee consolidation, I suggest that we postpone the public "Town Hall" meeting until your September Board meeting. To be clear: you still would have a public BBG meeting in July via webcast, but not in the Town Hall setting.

In the event that we cannot achieve a quorum on July 24-25 even by phone or videoconference, we will need to find another day or days in July when you can meet by teleconference to vote on the FY 2014 budget and consider grantee consolidation.

I look forward to hearing from you as to your availability.

Per your request, attached is a master calendar for all BBG-related meetings and events. When we have information about other meetings and events, we will update the master calendar and send it to you.

This is somewhat surprising development that the Whistleblower item was omitted given that (b) (6) attended the BBG meeting and was asked by me to read back the amendment so the whole Board would know what they were voting on.

I am sure it was not intentional by (b) (6) and I was pleased to bring this to his attention and have it corrected. It reminds us all of the need to be careful, cautious and inclusive.

However, what this correction process indicates clearly is that the unseemly haste and secrecy in which this was considered without going to governance committee, changing texts up to the last few hours before the meeting, not being listed on the first BBG agenda sent out, absence of any serious discussion among impacted parties prior to the meeting has resulted in errors occurring. I suspect we will find more issues as time goes along which will require remedies. While I will participate in solving these problems, I find it all so unnecessary had settled procedures been followed and we could be devoting our time to other matters.

Hope all have a good weekend coming up.

The Board clearly adopted amendment one which I made a point of identifying as amendment one and the second amendment was the one Michael Meehan and I discussed along with you. That became the second amendment identified as amendment two. I do not understand why the Whistleblower amendment is missing. I believe that Gov Meehan made the motion and I may have seconded it. However, I am not sure. What I am sure about is that a Whistleblower amendment was adopted. I believe I asked you to repeat the actual language which you did.

Dear Governors:

As you know, at its last meeting, the Board adopted a Policy Regarding Non-disclosure of Deliberative Information. The text of the policy, which is set forth below, was adopted unanimously by the Board.

The policy states, in part, that “information pertaining to . . . legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board’s further review” constitutes “deliberative information” which Board members have agreed they are obligated not to disclose, in accordance with the terms of the policy.

Please note that Governor Lynton, in his capacity as Presiding Governor, has clarified that materials related to the International Broadcasting Innovation Act (IBIA), the legislative initiative which the Board voted to pursue in January 2012, are subject to the non-disclosure policy. A copy of the Governor Lynton’s email is set forth below.

Thanks. (b) (6)

(b) (6)

POLICY REGARDING NON-DISCLOSURE OF DELIBERATIVE INFORMATION

For the purposes of this policy:

“The Board” refers to the Members of the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

“Deliberative information” means any non-public information, either tangible records or otherwise, exchanged between two or more Board members, or between Agency staff members and Board members. Deliberative information is information pertaining to (1) budgetary matters that are determined to be pre-decisional under Office of Management and Budget guidelines; (2) legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board’s further review; and (3) such other matters as the plenary Board may determine, based on the recommendation of the Governance Committee. Purely factual information that is otherwise publicly available or an individual Board member’s own opinion that does not reflect the Board’s deliberative processes is not deliberative information.

Each member of the Board has a duty to keep deliberative information privileged and confidential. More specifically, each member of the Board is obligated not to disclose:

1. The substance of deliberative information or the status of discussions about it;
2. Positions of other Board members regarding deliberative information or their individual comments about it;

3. Documents prepared to provide the Board with deliberative information or to memorialize any aspect of such deliberative information, or any subsection of documents that contain such deliberative information; or

4. The identity of Board members or staff members who provide deliberative information to and/or prepare deliberative information for the Board.

The obligation not to disclose deliberative information continues even after a final decision is publicly announced, and such information remains protected until authorized for release by the Board. Deliberative information should only be released after consultation with the Agency's Office of General Counsel regarding the implications of waiving the deliberative process privilege for release and upon an official Board resolution providing the authority to do so.

Disclosure of deliberative information is a serious matter and constitutes both mismanagement and misconduct. The unauthorized disclosure of official non-public information is prohibited by 5 CFR 2635.703, and employees engaging in the unauthorized disclosure of deliberative information may be subject to punishment or discipline.

This policy does not affect the Agency's requirements to comply with the Government in the Sunshine Act and shall be implemented in a manner consistent with its provisions.

Dana,

I respect your views and admire you greatly. However, I differ with you as this is a public body and this does not involve national security. That is why I feel the full Board at its next meeting should discuss this in great depth than we have to date.

I have spent 16 years as Mayor operating under the open records and open meetings laws of Tennessee. At times it was inconvenient but always important for the taxpayers to understand how and why we as public officials arrived at decisions. Government works best when the public has a front row seat. The public should be able to see how we arrive at our decisions in my view.

Sorry we differ.

POLICY REGARDING NON-DISCLOSURE

OF DELIBERATIVE INFORMATION

For the purposes of this policy:

“The Board” refers to the Members of the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

“Deliberative information” means any non-public information, either tangible records or otherwise, exchanged between two or more Board members, or between Agency staff members and Board members. Deliberative information is information pertaining to (1) budgetary matters that are determined to be pre-decisional under Office of Management and Budget guidelines; (2) legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board’s further review; and (3) such other matters as the plenary Board may determine, based on the recommendation of the Governance Committee. Purely factual information that is otherwise publicly available or an individual Board member’s own opinion that does not reflect the Board’s deliberative processes is not deliberative information.

Each member of the Board has a duty to keep deliberative information privileged and confidential. More specifically, each member of the Board is obligated not to disclose:

1. The substance of deliberative information or the status of discussions about it;

2. Positions of other Board members regarding deliberative information or their individual comments about it;

3. Documents prepared to provide the Board with deliberative information or to memorialize any aspect of such deliberative information, or any subsection of documents that contain such deliberative information; or

4. The identity of Board members or staff members who provide deliberative information to and/or prepare deliberative information for the Board.

The obligation not to disclose deliberative information continues even after a final decision is publicly announced, and such information remains protected until authorized for release by the Board. Deliberative information should only be released after consultation with the Agency’s Office of General Counsel regarding the implications of waiving the deliberative process privilege for release and upon an official Board resolution providing the authority to do so.

Disclosure of deliberative information is a serious matter and constitutes both mismanagement and misconduct. The unauthorized disclosure of official non-public information is prohibited by 5 CFR 2635.703, and employees engaging in the unauthorized disclosure of deliberative information may be subject to punishment or discipline.

This policy does not affect the Agency’s requirements to comply with the Government in the Sunshine Act and shall be implemented in a manner consistent with its provisions.

Victor –

Thank you very much for your email. I am having the videotape of the meeting reviewed to determine whether, and in what form, an amendment to the proposed resolution regarding whistleblowing was actually adopted by the Board. If we missed something, I apologize in advance and thank you for bringing it to my attention. If there was a mistake, we will correct it. If not, I will come back with an explanation.

Regarding Lynne Weil, ever the professional, Lynne has been checking her blackberry while on vacation and has had access to this email.

Thank you. (b) (6)

In reading this so called protocol, I do not see the amendment relating to Whistleblowers included here. This was the amendment which states this protocol would not compromise or diminish the federal Whistleblower Act. That was the first amendment adopted in June 7 in Prague. Can (b) (6) send the document as amended twice to everyone on this list? We should be sent the entire policy out not just what is stated in part.

As I stated at the meeting, I will be guided by my conscience in complying with this. I feel the protocol was hurriedly and poorly drafted with many items not clear.

I see where Ms Weil is copied on this but I understand she is away on a 3 to 4 week vacation and not due back until July 7. Can someone make sure she sees this?

Dear Governors:

As you know, at its last meeting, the Board adopted a Policy Regarding Non-disclosure of Deliberative Information. The text of the policy, which is set forth below, was adopted unanimously by the Board.

The policy states, in part, that “information pertaining to . . . legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board’s further review” constitutes “deliberative information” which Board members have agreed they are obligated not to disclose, in accordance with the terms of the policy.

Please note that Governor Lynton, in his capacity as Presiding Governor, has clarified that materials related to the International Broadcasting Innovation Act (IBIA), the legislative initiative which the Board voted to pursue in January 2012, are subject to the non-disclosure policy. A copy of the Governor Lynton’s email is set forth below.

(b) (6)

POLICY REGARDING NON-DISCLOSURE OF DELIBERATIVE INFORMATION

For the purposes of this policy:

“The Board” refers to the Members of the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

“Deliberative information” means any non-public information, either tangible records or otherwise, exchanged between two or more Board members, or between Agency staff members and Board members. Deliberative information is information pertaining to (1) budgetary matters that are determined to be pre-decisional under Office of Management and Budget guidelines; (2) legislative proposals that are developed for the consideration of the Board, as determined by the Chair or Presiding Governor, subject to the Board’s further review; and (3) such other matters as the plenary Board may determine, based on the recommendation of the Governance Committee. Purely factual information that is otherwise publicly available or an individual Board member’s own opinion that does not reflect the Board’s deliberative processes is not deliberative information.

Each member of the Board has a duty to keep deliberative information privileged and confidential. More specifically, each member of the Board is obligated not to disclose:

1. The substance of deliberative information or the status of discussions about it;
2. Positions of other Board members regarding deliberative information or their individual comments about it;
3. Documents prepared to provide the Board with deliberative information or to memorialize any aspect of such deliberative information, or any subsection of documents that contain such deliberative information; or
4. The identity of Board members or staff members who provide deliberative information to and/or prepare deliberative information for the Board.

The obligation not to disclose deliberative information continues even after a final decision is publicly announced, and such information remains protected until authorized for release by the Board. Deliberative information should only be released after consultation with the Agency’s Office of General Counsel regarding the implications of waiving the deliberative process privilege for release and upon an official Board resolution providing the authority to do so.

Disclosure of deliberative information is a serious matter and constitutes both mismanagement and misconduct. The unauthorized disclosure of official non-public information is prohibited by 5 CFR 2635.703, and employees engaging in the unauthorized disclosure of deliberative information may be subject to punishment or discipline.

This policy does not affect the Agency’s requirements to comply with the Government in the Sunshine Act and shall be implemented in a manner consistent with its provisions.

Dick,

BBG seldom deals with national security and you know it. That is a real stretch based on your wish. The email you sent relates to a clear political battle at the presidential level which does not involve BBG unless you insist on injecting it into our deliberations.

The manner in which this was considered on June 7 by deliberating bypassing the governance committee and insuring that I received as little notice as possible was a text book study on how to reduce adequate consideration of the issue. Fairness would have dictated that adequate notice be given and committee hear the matter so all 7 Governors would have had equal consideration.

I assume the governance committee did not meet as I am a member of it and certain BBG members wanted to make sure I did not see the proposal a few days out and would have zero time to respond. In fact mention of consideration of it was omitted from the first agenda sent out.

As it was the Board adopted two obvious amendments to correct the hasty and ill considered manner in which it was drafted. You would be mistaken to take my vote for the amended resolution as an endorsement of it. The whole process was unfortunate in my view and did not reflect well on best practices to adopt policy.

I will continue to speak out on issues which I feel merit discussion.

Have a wonderful weekend.

POLITICO Breaking News

Responding to criticism over a series of national security leaks, President Barack Obama told reporters at the White House Friday he has "zero tolerance for these kinds of leaks and speculation."

"We have mechanisms in place where if we can root out people who've leaked, they will suffer consequences," Obama said.

He rejected the accusation from some Republican members of Congress that the leaks were being done in service of his re-election campaign.

"The notion that my White House would purposefully release classified national security information is offensive. It's wrong," Obama said.

Subject: Re: Labor talks

I am happy to discuss this with you and others. I think the Board from time to time should be briefed on the key aspects of the issues. We should know what the problems are. Talks which last two years on their face seem extraordinary and very long. It is hard to understand except this is a career undertaking with the end goal being an impasse panel. I can assure you that in the city of Knoxville on my 16 years as Mayor that labor talks on a single contract never lasted two years. We also never sent 5 to 7 persons to every discussion and we concluded talks as early as possible in a way where both sides were satisfied. I am not suggesting these talks are similar to what we had in Knoxville as they are not. However, [REDACTED] (b) (6) I think you might want to hear direct from both parties separately what they are thinking.

It has to be a serious warning sign that participation by VOA/OCB eligible employees in the employee satisfaction survey this year according to the memo we got from Dick Lobo has dropped from the mid 60 percentile to the mid 40 percentile. That is roughly a 33% drop off in one year which is not a positive sign. One might think employees who last year participated and this year did not are wondering 'why bother?' I do not drop this at your door step or blame you personally but ultimately it comes to you and to the Board. We cannot just pretend it is not happening. I worry about it and feel we must address it.

RFA has much better relations with its union. You may wish to check there and see how they handle it.

I trust your trip in Asia is going well and Look forward to a report on it.

Gov. Ashe,

Apologies that I haven't had a chance to respond to this earlier; as you know, I am on travel. I will still be gone during this week's board meeting, but will participate remotely when needed. In the meantime, I thought it would be useful for you to have my thoughts on your email and this important topic.

I disagree that labor talks are a job for Dick Lobo and I to take over. I know it sounds simple and easy, but given the complex nature of the agreement, and the many issues to be addressed, it simply isn't a valid or beneficial use of our time.

Union and Management negotiations are often a long, tedious process. I don't find any aspect of the current arrangement unusual, and in fact, believe it's quite common. I am briefed on the various issues and decisions, and asked for input. As Director of the Voice of America, I understand that the Board has delegated that decision-making to me. I believe that the guidance I am providing the negotiating team is beneficial for VOA and VOA employees. So again, perhaps we disagree on the "broken" nature of the system.

I agree that we have significant morale issues to address. We are committed to resolving them in a variety of ways; however, I don't believe expediting the negotiations is one of them. It's important we get this right, and I believe that discussions and back and forth among the principles will yield that.

As always, I value your unique perspective and hope that we can have a conversation about this when I return.

Subject: Labor talks

On May 14 I met with the BBG management team which handles the current labor negotiations with AFGE 1812. At the meeting were six BBG employees plus myself. They were (b) (6)

This seemed more persons than necessary but not unusual when a Governor of the BBG seeks information. I did not ask for so many to attend. All were polite and professional in their remarks.

This e mail is a report on the meeting and my thoughts at its conclusion. The meeting lasted about one hour.

I had requested a meeting on the talks without naming persons who needed to be in attendance. I had previously heard from the union about the status of talks which seem eternal. We all know morale at VOA/OCB and IBB is poor based on the OPM surveys of federal employees. Contract employees are not surveyed by OPM but one can reasonably conclude their views would be equally dismal towards the employee-employer situation as they receive no benefits and seldom see their contract pay increased while experiencing late payments occasionally.

I learned the current contract between BBG/IBB and AFGE is the one from 2005 which expired some years ago but continues in place because a new contract has not been negotiated. I also learned that one entire week a month, there are negotiations and have been going on since March, 2011. We are now in the 14th month of talks. When I asked when this seemingly career set of talks might end, (b) (6) cited December, 2012 as a possible date for conclusion but it seems likely to go then to an impasse panel with more months of consideration there. Almost two years will have been spent on these talks without conclusion.

Management, which is primarily (b) (6) who lead the labor talks, seem to want to revise the total contract on many different points. I really never got a firm fix on the exact issues separating the two sides other than some discussion on a FLRA opinion overturning the views of BBG/IBB on non citizen employment, the question of discipline articles, the question of merit promotions and staffing and arbitration on leave. The FLRA matter seems to be over whether the legal office wants to acknowledge it or not. Only congressional rewrite of current laws would change it. However, (b) (6) did not seem willing to throw in the towel on this without direction from those above her.

My concern is the Board is being represented on these talks by these individuals without being briefed on what the issues are and whether we would agree with them. While the Board would not want to actually negotiate, we should be informed periodically what is happening in our name especially as it impacts employee morale which is in the cellar.

I found it stunning that BBG/IBB management would allow these talks to go on for two years. My suggestion would be to pick out the 3 or 4 major issues of difference and try to resolve them. Forget the rest and save them for a later day. It is fantasy to think you can change 25 to 28 issues in one series of talks even ones which go on for two years. It is also wrong to allow these to drag on a week a month. If these had been done one week after the next, it would have been concluded one way or the other by now. Instead, by stretching them out for 2 years, they are part of the career of several person.

My own feeling is that Dick Lobo as IBB director and David Ensor as VOA head need to fast track these talks to an earlier conclusion than Christmas especially since most AFGE members will not regard the current talks ending at Christmas as much of a Christmas gift since they are headed to an impasse panel as surely as Tuesday follows Monday. For the Obama Administration which has stressed better relations with organized labor, this presents a most unusual situation. For the BBG Board which says it wishes to improve morale, this is a morale stopper. I urge that this be discussed at our Prague Board meeting. We should jump start this to an ending.

These comments are not confidential. I do not ask that you treat them as such. Feel free to share them with whoever you feel would benefit by having them. My goal is to secure progress on a situation which has lasted much too long and to the detriment of BBG.

I regret being the bearer of less than positive news but BBG needs to know about this.

Further, our affiliate was ordered by the government to "ban" RFA coverage on June 2 and 3, the day before and the day of the elections. Effectively silencing independent country-wide election coverage.

Listeners called us non-stop to find out when they didn't hear our program on FM stations on election night.

Today we are pushing out a strongly worded objection to RSF, CPJ, etc.

This reduces time for me to review materials and perform due diligence in casting an informed vote.

I feel the CEO issue should also be discussed fully by the full Board in public session. I also feel we should be given options on the CEO structure. It is well known that I felt the plan presented to the House Foreign Affairs Committee for a CEO amendment was flawed and worst that the problem it sought to cure. I think scheduling BBG meetings for January, February and March at least in 2013 if not to Sept 2013 is essential for planning. In January I suggest January 10 and 11 to avoid the inaugural.

In light of the news a few hours ago that DOJ has joined the whistleblower lawsuit against Gallup over false polling, I am urging this issue be added to strategy and budget meeting this Tuesday. We need to pull out of this contract and take our business elsewhere.

We should not hang around spending $8 million plus a year with Gallup hoping the lawsuit fails. BBG could be embarrassed and we ought to remove ourselves from this ASAP.

I am not faulting anyone for this but rather given developments we should act prudently and quickly.

What bothers me is not the nomenclature but the legal opinions designed to encourage streamlining which is consolidation by a different name without congressional approval. That ignites all sorts of issues. Presiding governor Lynton has said we need a new legal opinion from a source which does not have a stake in the outcome. I feel [REDACTED] (b) (6) is as non objective on this as much as some feel [REDACTED] (b) (6) is not objective. We need to secure congressional approval. I've been advocating for streamlining as a better descriptor of our goal. indeed, newsrooms and brands would not be impacted. it is the opposite; they could receive additional resources saved by eliminating duplicative admin management.

We have added discussion of the Gallup situation to the agenda for next Tuesday's Strategy and Budget Committee meeting, and we're gathering information as quickly as possible ahead of that session in order to be able to answer your questions and recommend possible actions.

We were in contact today with DoJ and will remain so as the investigation and case develop. We also have spoken with Gallup and are arranging a meeting with them to discuss the situation and our contract.

Agree. That one is innocent until proven guilty however, due diligence suggests BBG take note of this, be alert to it, ask questions and determine if the risks of continuing with this contract are worth it. We must discuss it and get the facts. We are now on notice in my view.

Victor,

In 2008, VOA sent 90 to Minneapolis and 98 to Denver. (The Denver number was higher because of the late add of the outdoor venue on the final night which required more technical people). This year we cut the numbers back to 75 per convention. As the item below notes this is one of the best opportunities VOA gets—every four years--to provide civics lessons, if you will, on American democracy. Twenty language services will be represented on location. All services will use material from Central News journalists at the conventions. I am pleased to defend this appropriate use of funds—the kind of coverage that is in effect called for by the VOA Charter.

The road to the White House gets a little steeper over the next several weeks as the political parties gather for their quadrennial conventions, and journalists from U.S. international broadcasting stations will be there to cover the proceedings for audiences in dozens of languages and across multiple platforms.

The Republicans gather in Tampa, Fla., Aug. 27-30, to nominate former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney as their standard-bearer. The Democrats follow Sept. 4-6 in Charlotte, N.C., where President Barack Obama is to be nominated to run for a second term.

Voice of America, Alhurra TV and Radio Sawa, and Radio and TV Martí will share workspace and live positions at both conventions, bringing comprehensive coverage of political America's showcase gatherings to millions worldwide. In addition to broadcasts, journalists will be posting to Facebook, Twitter and blogs.

Voice of America is sending a team of writers, producers, correspondents, VJs, editors, and technicians to both cities. Twenty VOA language services will be represented: The Horn of Africa, French to Africa, Swahili, Central Africa; Indonesian, Khmer, Mandarin; Russian, Ukrainian, Serbian, Albanian; Turkish, Armenian; Spanish, Creole; Persian; Dari, Pashto, Deewa and Urdu.

At the same time, VOA will be providing live remote feeds from the conventions to affiliate stations, including the acceptance speeches of both candidates and other proceedings.

Alhurra TV will broadcast a nightly program, "Road to the White House," from 7-11 p.m. each night of both conventions. The show will feature key speeches live with simultaneous translations along with expert analysis and packages on a range of topics, including the impact of Arab-Americans on the upcoming election. Radio Sawa will broadcast the keynote speeches and the addresses by Obama and Romney live with simultaneous translations.

The Office of Cuba Broadcasting is sending a team of reporters, two anchors, producers, technicians and others to cover the conventions. Antena Live, a TV Martí half-hour magazine style show, will broadcast live for four consecutive nights at 6:30 p.m. during both conventions. On the last two nights of each convention there will be programming from 9 to 11 p.m., including live speeches from Obama, Romney and others with translation, interviews with Hispanic political leaders, community representatives and expert analysis.

Victor,

In 2008, VOA sent 90 to Minneapolis and 98 to Denver. (The Denver number was higher because of the late add of the outdoor venue on the final night which required more technical people). This year we cut the numbers back to 75 per convention. As the item below notes this is one of the best opportunities VOA gets—every four years--to provide civics lessons, if you will, on American democracy. Twenty language services will be represented on location. All services will use material from Central News journalists at the conventions. I am pleased to defend this appropriate use of funds—the kind of coverage that is in effect called for by the VOA Charter.

What is the cost for 75 persons to each convention? $3000 per person for $225,000 per convention for $450,000 for both or a different amount? I do not need or seek an exact amount but a ball park figure which I assume you considered when you decided on 75 instead of 90 or 98 as in 2008.

I am not asking you to defend as I assume you would naturally defend what you directed to happen. However, it is fair and legitimate for me as a Governor to ask what the cost is especially when BBG issues a news release on it without numbers of personnel or cost involved. Once one knows the cost then one is in a better position to assess and evaluate.

I am only asking the questions you would have asked when you were a distinguished working journalist. I still believe you are distinguished.

No one should be surprised I am asking. I am asking (b) (6) the same. And the entity heads.

This year we cut the numbers back to 75 per convention. As the item below notes this is one of the best opportunities VOA gets—every four years--to provide civics lessons, if you will, on American democracy. Twenty language services will be represented on location. All services will use material from Central News journalists at the conventions. I am pleased to defend this appropriate use of funds—the kind of coverage that is in effect called for by the VOA Charter.

The road to the White House gets a little steeper over the next several weeks as the political parties gather for their quadrennial conventions, and journalists from U.S. international broadcasting stations will be there to cover the proceedings for audiences in dozens of languages and across multiple platforms.

The Republicans gather in Tampa, Fla., Aug. 27-30, to nominate former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney as their standard-bearer. The Democrats follow Sept. 4-6 in Charlotte, N.C., where President Barack Obama is to be nominated to run for a second term.

Voice of America, Alhurra TV and Radio Sawa, and Radio and TV Martí will share workspace and live positions at both conventions, bringing comprehensive coverage of political America's showcase gatherings to millions worldwide. In addition to broadcasts, journalists will be posting to Facebook, Twitter and blogs.

Voice of America is sending a team of writers, producers, correspondents, VJs, editors, and technicians to both cities. Twenty VOA language services will be represented: The Horn of Africa, French to Africa, Swahili, Central Africa; Indonesian, Khmer, Mandarin; Russian, Ukrainian, Serbian, Albanian; Turkish, Armenian; Spanish, Creole; Persian; Dari, Pashto, Deewa and Urdu.

At the same time, VOA will be providing live remote feeds from the conventions to affiliate stations, including the acceptance speeches of both candidates and other proceedings.

Alhurra TV will broadcast a nightly program, "Road to the White House," from 7-11 p.m. each night of both conventions. The show will feature key speeches live with simultaneous translations along with expert analysis and packages on a range of topics, including the impact of Arab-Americans on the upcoming election. Radio Sawa will broadcast the keynote speeches and the addresses by Obama and Romney live with simultaneous translations.

The Office of Cuba Broadcasting is sending a team of reporters, two anchors, producers, technicians and others to cover the conventions. Antena Live, a TV Martí half-hour magazine style show, will broadcast live for four consecutive nights at 6:30 p.m. during both conventions. On the last two nights of each convention there will be programming from 9 to 11 p.m., including live speeches from Obama, Romney and others with translation, interviews with Hispanic political leaders, community representatives and expert analysis.

Subject: Incomplete description of strategy meeting

This morning I looked at the BBG website and noticed the description of the upcoming strategy and budget committee meeting for August 28. It seems to fall short of listing all the topics we are in fact discussing.

For example, there will be discussion of PNN as directed by motion in the August 17 BBG board meeting and Parazit. There will be discussion of the Gallup contract and the DOJ lawsuit against Gallup. There will be discussion of further budget items. I think this should be added to the public description of this committee meeting. What is there now is inadequate in my view in terms of transparency and giving the public an idea of what the committee will actually discuss for 2.5 hours. I see no valid reason for omitting these topics.

I look forward to hearing from you on whether any changes will be made.

I think it is relevant to see the actual lawsuit or a summary of it. What does DOJ recommend to BBG? Also what steps are being taken to assure that the BBG contract does not suffer from the charges filed in federal court? Should we be doing business with this entity which has a major lawsuit against it for fraud by another federal agency? What is proper procedure here? What steps should the Board take to meet its fiduciary responsibility? If we continue with Gallup but Gallup is later held liable in the current charges against it, are we as Board members liable for not having suspended or canceled the contract? I am deeply concerned about this and feel we should disengage and seek research elsewhere.

We need to be briefed on what Gallup says about this, perhaps they will have someone at the meeting...what does DOJ say as well as State which may be being ripped off according to the lawsuit. We all need to know fully what is happening here. What safeguards exist in the current BBG contract with Gallup to protect BBG if wrongdoing is proven? The problem here is that the lawsuit may take 3 years to be resolved by which time the current contract has ended but BBG may not have received an honest accounting of what the taxpayers are paying for in this.

This lawsuit clearly places a cloud over it all.

When Justice joins a whistleblower suit, there must be a lot going on there and is this issue company wide at Gallup?

Just a reminder that I want the (b) (6) item on the BBG board agenda for the next bbg board meeting on Sept 12 as well as the Gallup contract which is being discussed at strategy and budget on August 28. We need a report on the DOJ lawsuit against Gallup and a report on whether the issues existing in the state dept contract over which the current lawsuit is being argued impact the BBG contract.

I also will raise the question as I have done previously on where the OCB lawsuit appeal stands from the matter involving employees being let go and their success in their legal efforts to date. I am not asking for legal strategy to be discussed but I am asking where this stands procedurally with dates as to the next hearing as well as potential financial exposure should these efforts fail. You are aware as is (b) (6) that I raise this matter with regularity. I feel it has large financial consequences to which we must pay close attention as a Board.

If you have issues with my requests please advise. I believe I am entitled by right as BBG board member to place this on the board agenda.

My most sincere advice to you based on my longer years of experience is to take a deep breath and be calm. It works better.

Meanwhile, as a board member I am seeking answers to the questions posed in my earlier e mail which are far more significant than worrying about titles. Your e mail did not reference those questions or even attempt to acknowledge them....well alone answer them.

Governors, some of you have weighed in today on this issue. We need, please, to bring this to closure now in order to finalize the budget, which is due in less than two weeks.

As finalized by the Strategy and Budget Committee, and outlined to you by Governor Meehan, the budget of $785 million includes 71 reductions in VOA Central News and English and 10 Central News reductions at RFE/RL. (b) (6) began this email discussion today by asking instead for a $2.5 million reduction in the Africa investment (taking it down from $15 million to $12.5 million) so that VOA could cut only 41 positions in Central News/English instead of 71.

RFE/RL has followed up with (b) (6) to press again to cut fewer than 10 Central News positions.

Do you wish further discussion on these issues?

Thanks and regards

Jeff

Happy to have all your help on the budget. We spent over 5 hours yesterday trying to tackle the outstanding issues left over from the board meeting.

OMB Asked the Agency to submit 696 million plus add backs to 733 million. So each network head argued with us not to cut any position.

As you saw in our memo last week we are 52 million dollars over what OMB requested for us to submit. The board ok'd the committee to come back in the 770s. We are at 785 even with the central news room cuts.

Happy to have the full board dig in from here.

Thanks.

> The reduction in FTE proposed for VOA Central News and VOA English is so deep and wide - 33% of the combined workforces - that it would cause severe damage to the Voice of America's ability to gather and report the news, to provide news products for its Language Services, and to implement the Board's strategic goal of establishing a Global News Network.

> During the past year, VOA has taken substantial steps to increase the cost-effectiveness of both Central News and VOA English. In Central News, my direction, we have refocused the energies of the journalists, moving them away from rewriting wire service copy, and toward original reporting, with the result that more VOA news reports are unique to our brand, more timely, and more interesting. We have strengthened central web operations for the benefit of all of our Language Services. We have reviewed the effectiveness of VOA news bureaus and are in the process of making changes that will improve our performance and save money.

under

> In the English Division, I have changed the leadership, and approved internal transfers of personnel to strengthen English to Africa and the Learning English staff. We have placed new emphasis on production of original TV programming, and have begun to acquire more products that complement our work and help tell America's story.

> Across the two Divisions, I have commissioned a restructuring plan that will move VOANews.com<<http://VOANews.com>> entirely into Central News - to consolidate our web operations, create an Internet-based newsroom, streamline our management ranks, and increase efficiency. In Central News the purpose is to create a foundation on which BBG can build its Global News Network. In English the purpose is to strengthen our base of products for Africa, and to create a unique and vibrant Learning English element for global audiences on all

> None of these initiatives were in place when deep cuts were proposed for FY 2013, a few weeks after I arrived. Since my arrival, VOA has worked as instructed by the Board on the issues of achieving economies, collaborating with sister entities, streamlining essential functions, and updating both our processes and our products. The initiatives we are taking in pursuit of BBG goals would be set back, if you rely on outdated numbers to set future spending and staffing requirements.

> Instead of a reduction of 33% of the combined News and English workforces (excluding the staffs of English to Africa and English Language Teaching) - the result of a loss of 71 FTE positions - I respectfully urge that number should be reduced to 20-25. Proposed cuts beyond the proposed number could cause staff and other interested parties outside the Agency to see the BBG and VOA leadership as opponents to be fought and lobbied against, rather than a leadership team whose vision for the future may lead to a stronger VOA. Many staff would be likely to use their free time to campaign on Capitol Hill against the proposed budget of the BBG. A high price would be paid in terms of lower morale and less ability by this Board to reform VOA, whether or not Congress ultimately agreed to the drastic cuts proposed.

Pursuant to our August 28 discussion I think it is critical the audit of the Gallup contract as suggested by US Attorney office proceed ASAP...not months from now. Please keep Strategy and Budget informed on where this stands and timetable.

While I previously urged disengagement from Gallup I am willing to suspend that call awaiting the result of the audit which must be totally objective and done in a timely manner to assure honesty on Gallup's part. Gallup telling us that they have rejected all plea bargain suggestions does not impress me as I know that is standard procedure until such time as a plea bargain might happen or not happen. Our obligation is to hold Gallup to the highest standards. and be assured in a timely manner that is happening now that we know about the serious charges against them.

Dear Strategy & Budget committee- Governors:

As you requested f2c Cuba Pocket Server project proposal information was provided to all in the email chain after the Strategy and Budget meeting on 8/28. (previously referred to as "Shazaam" and "the Cuba Project at f2c")

(b) (6) and RFAs f2c team met this morning to discuss any concerns or questions (b) (6) may have about the project. Having had a chance to dive into the project proposal, (b) (6) gave it his blessing for FY2013. (b) (6) also weighed in via email with thoughts and questions which we will integrate as we move forward.

We all agreed that we will schedule a time when (b) (6) returns to talk about how to use the remaining $10.1m of Internet Freedom funds for FY2013.

With your approval, RFA will immediately begin work on the project using FY2012 cash flow with the commitment that we will be granted the $1.5m in FY2013 funds.

Also, we engaged in a four-hour "peer review" session with 3 outside peers walking through and discussing each project in the IAC and in the RFA portfolios for FY2011-2012.

We look forward to their report as we welcome all input and feedback on our program. Hopefully we can apply some of their suggestions to our future funding decisions.

Thank you,

Jeff

I assume it takes 4 votes to adopt the proposed (b) (6) budget change. By my count it is 3 in favor, one against (me) and Meehan, Sonenshine and Perino have not voted yet. The three in favor are McCue, Mulhaupt and Lynton.

Let us all know the final outcome and by what vote.

Dear Governors,

The Board decided in January 2012 to pursue legislation for an International Broadcasting Innovation Act that would streamline U.S. international broadcasting and instructed IBB Director Dick Lobo to consult Governors Lynton and Ashe in developing a model to define the appropriate roles for the Board and CEO.

This is to confirm a briefing by phone next Tuesday, July 31, at 5:30 p.m. EDT. Governors Lynton, Ashe and McCue will participate by phone.

In the coming days, we will send a call-in number for the teleconference and materials, if any, in advance of the call.

Thank you.

Victor, I re-read the transcript, and if the item is not referring to the budget discussion about PNN but other PNN issues, then you are correct there is no reason to redact it. I assumed that it was related to the PNN budget discussion. We will make the adjustment. Thanks. (b) (6)

While I am not disagreeing with the other redactions at this point, I surely disagree with this one. It is not budget related. It is VOA related. I strongly disagree. Where do I argue this before the Board? On Sept 13 at BBG meeting when we vote on the approval of minutes? Obviously no Governor made this decision on redaction. An inquiry into PNN by this Board committee is NOT an OMB matter.

If necessary I will make the same motion at the public meeting.

While I am not disagreeing with the other redactions at this point, I surely disagree with this one. It is not budget related. It is VOA related. I stronlgy disagree. Where do I argue this before the Board? On Sept 13 at BBG meeting when we vote on the approval of minutes? Obviously no Governor made this decision on redaction. An inquiry into PNN by this Board committee is NOT an OMB matter.

If necessary I will make the same motion at the public meeting.

Victor, The PNN issue that is being proposed for redaction, as I understood it, was related to the budget discussion about PNN reductions. Items that are contained in or considered in discussions about the yet-to-be -released budget are confidential per OMB guidance.

I have it....is the part colored in yellow to be released or not? If not released then why is the part on the motion I made on PNN colored in yellow?

When will the Board vote to approve these minutes?

Please advise.

I had asked that the non disclosure protocol be placed on both governance and full Board. I do not have the e mail I sent on this but believe it did include both. However, in case there is any doubt I am asking it be placed on Sept 13 full Board meeting and if it is not done then on the next meeting of full Board in October regardless of what governance committee does.

I believe there must be notice of the intended closed meeting placed on BBG web site and the vote which I gather you want to hold prior to the meeting on Sept 13.

Subject: RE: Draft September BBG Meetings Agenda

Governor Ashe – Just to clarify, you requested that three items be placed on the agenda: the (b) (6) item, the Gallup contract and the OCB RIF litigation. Your email on this point is reprinted below.

The (b) (6) item and the OCB RIF litigation are on the agenda for the meetings on September 13.

The (b) (6) item (referred to as the Inner City Press at the United Nations) is expressly included within VOA briefing scheduled at 1230 pm.

The OCB RIF litigation is expressly included within the legal briefing that I intend to providing during Governors briefing.

I can include the Gallup contract as part of the legal briefing, but understood, based on your email following the Strategy and Budget Committee meeting, that you were satisfied with the information that you received about the DOJ lawsuit against Gallup at the Committee meeting. We will plan to update the Board on this matter during the legal briefing to the Board.

I do not have any record concerning your request to discuss the nondisclosure protocol during the September meeting. As you know, it is a subject on the Governance Committee agenda scheduled for the morning of September 13.

As far as the closing of the meeting to consider the follow on of the FY2014 budget, this can be handled in one of two ways. According to the transcript, the August 17 telephonic meeting was not formally adjourned so it is possible to view the portion of the upcoming meeting dealing with the budget to be part of that closed meeting. Second, it is possible for the Governors to vote to close the meeting on the date of the meeting itself in order to consider the FY2014 budget. We would simply record the votes of Governors regarding whether to close the meeting or not. (This latter procedure was the process we followed when the Board voted to appoint Mr. Ensor as VOA Director.)

Just a reminder that I want the (b) (6) item on the BBG board agenda for the next bbg board meeting on Sept 12 as well as the Gallup contract which is being discussed at strategy and budget on August 28.

We need a report on the DOJ lawsuit against Gallup and a report on whether the issues existing in the state dept contract over which the current lawsuit is being argued impact the BBG contract.

I also will raise the question as I have done previously on where the OCB lawsuit appeal stands from the matter involving employees being let go and their success in their legal efforts to date. I am not asking for legal strategy to be discussed but I am asking where this stands procedurally with dates as to the next hearing as well as potential financial exposure should these efforts fail. You are aware as is Garlos Garcia that I raise this matter with regularity. I feel it has large financial consequences to which we must pay close attention as a Board.

If you have issues with my requests please advise. I believe I am entitled by right as BBG board member to place this on the board agenda.

Dear (b) (6)

Thanks for sending this to me. I have several comments. I do not believe BBG can hold a closed meeting on September 13 to vote further on the budget without voting again to hold a closed meeting and giving notice of the closed meeting. Such a vote has not been held for a Sept 13 closed meeting, I formally object. We must comply with the rules and law.

Second, I had requested that the new non disclosure policy/protocol be placed on the open Board agenda in an e mail to (b) (6) along with the (b) (6) issue at the United Nations. I do not see either of them listed on the agenda. This request was made weeks ago in a timely manner.

Third, I find it most unfortunate that BBG in less than 90 minutes plans to vote on CEO and grantee consolidation (streamlining is a term which is more spin related than accurate) without a public hearing inviting concerned persons to appear and voice their views. For the record, I think this is fundamentally an error in both policy and practice. It does not build confidence or support before Congress.

I do not see an agenda for governance committee or RFE Board meeting. When will that be forthcoming?

Subject: Draft September BBG Meetings Agenda

Dear Governors,

Attached please find a draft agenda for all BBG-related meetings to be held next Thursday, September 13, in the BBG-IBB Conference Room of the Cohen Building. This draft agenda has been reviewed and approved by Presiding Governor Lynton.

A Governance Committee meeting is scheduled from 8 to 10 a.m. EDT. Committee members (Chair Mulhaupt, Ashe, McCue and Lynton) are confirmed for attendance, but we urge other Governors to participate as the Committee will, among other issues, examine the grantee administrative streamlining plan, discuss the creation of a CEO, and make recommendations to the plenary Board.

Please note that the meeting with Secretary Clinton should be confirmed sometime early next week; thus, the times of other BBG-related meetings may vary.

Given the importance of some topics, it is anticipated that the Governors' Briefing afternoon session would be attended by Governors, key staff and network heads.

Please note that a BBG open meeting via webcast is planned in the afternoon from 3:15 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. EDT, preceded by a brief closed meeting in order for the Board to further discuss and consider the FY 2014 budget submission.

We welcome your comments and requests for additional topics and/or other changes in the closed session (Governors' Briefing) or in the BBG open meeting.

Thank you.

Not a whole lot on cost savings. Dick is it really that important for you and (b) (6) to send 6 or 7 persons?

Dear Governor Ashe,

This responds to your August 27 email to Dick, David Ensor, Jeff and Marjyeann regarding BBG attendance at the ABU this year.

Attendees at last year's conference in New Dehli totaled 11 representatives broken down among the BBG elements as follows:

VOA: 3

IBB: 6 (includes TSI and Strategy & Development)

Info collected from the above offices for attendance at ABU in Seoul this year is estimated at 9 representatives broken down among offices below:

RFA: 2

VOA: 3

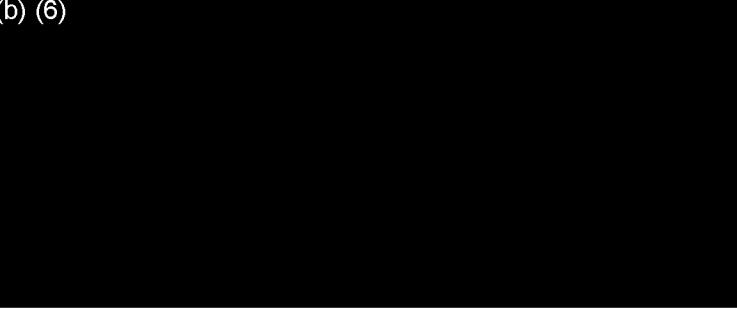

IBB: 3 or 4 (includes TSI and Strategy & Development)

Please let me know if there is any other information you need. As plans are finalized for Seoul, I will provide updates to the above information as needed.

We have processed it in accordance with the protocol for the release of documents from closed meetings, as stated in the BBG By-laws. Victor, I re-read the transcript, and if the item is not referring to the budget discussion about PNN but other PNN issues, then you are correct there is no reason to redact it. I assumed that it was related to the PNN budget discussion. We will make the adjustment. Thanks. [REDACTED] (b) (6)

While I am not disagreeing with the other redactions at this point, I surely disagree with this one. It is not budget related. It is VOA related. I strongly disagree. Where do I argue this before the Board? On Sept 13 at BBG meeting when we vote on the approval of minutes? Obviously no Governor made this decision on redaction. An inquiry into PNN by this Board committee is NOT an OMB matter.

If necessary I will make the same motion at the public meeting.

Victor, The PNN issue that is being proposed for redaction, as I understood it, was related to the budget discussion about PNN reductions. Items that are contained in or considered in discussions about the yet-to-be -released budget are confidential per OMB guidance.

I believe in full information as soon as BBG knows it. Sorry we differ. In this case there is a clear effort to adopt the consolidation of the three entities and the CEO proposal which Congress ignored at the upcoming meeting. Why else is BBG being asked to vote on something three hours after governance committee considers it?

I feel transparency is taking a back seat to other goals. Have a great weekend. Folks in Knoxville really like your work on Fox.

The communications committee was not consulted when this release was drafted so why the consultation now except to avoid dealing with it?

Best

this notice is very misleading. I really feel it merits revision. For example, the agenda I have for the public meeting states that the Board may vote on consolidation of the entities which you call streamlining. That is a whole lot different from simply receiving a report. As for the resolutions on anniveraries why are no specific names and years mentioned? This is usually given to me and I have heard not one word on this. I do not have a clue what I am being asked to do on this subject. Perhaps someone else is now doing it,

I urge a revised news release

this notice is very misleading. I really feel it merits revision. For example, the agenda I have for the public meeting states that the Board may vote on consolidation of the entities which you call streamlining. That is a whole lot different from simply receiving a report. As for the resolutions on anniveraries why are no specific names and years mentioned? This is usually given to me and I have heard not one word on this. I do not have a clue what I am being asked to do on this subject. Perhaps someone else is now doing it,

I urge a revised news release

As I mentioned today I am concerned and hopeful a correction can occur soon that the Sept 13 governance committee meeting is not listed on the BBG web site. Also the closed budget meeting is not listed as was done back on August 17.

I think we need to be more open in the meetings scheduled for Sept 13. We have always listed these committee meetings at least the ones I am on in the past.

Also I renew my suggestion that the meeting with Sec Clinton be listed as it is a significant event.

All board members were offered copies of the draft report by BBG staff (by (b) (6) I believe) a couple of months ago and, to my knowledge, no one other than me asked for one. What I saw was unredacted. I have no reason to believe that anything substantive changed before the report was finalized.

Also, (b) (6) is correct. This is technically a report to the BBG as the governing institution.

(b) (6) and Tish:

I just wanted to give you a heads-up that we will be posting the attached report, "Inspection of Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty Prague (Report Number ISP-IB-12-43, August 2012)" on the OIG Websites, as well as putting out a tweet about the posting, later today. There has been no media interest expressed in this report. It was delivered to the Hill on August 21, 2012.

Included in the report are the following key findings:

* Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL), a grantee organization of the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG), provides accurate and vital news to four regions: Central Asia, the Middle East (Iran and Iraq), Eurasia, and Afghanistan and Pakistan (AfPak). RFE/RL journalists and the personnel supporting them are passionate and dedicated.

* The president of RFE/RL is providing strong leadership during a period of budget challenges, resource pressures, and organizational restructuring. Nevertheless, uncertainty and change adversely affect morale. While senior management is appropriately focused on these and other operational issues, internal communication requires constant attention.

* RFE/RL's language services have adopted new ways to reach audiences, including the Internet, social media, and input from audience members acting as citizen journalists.

* In order to provide good administrative support to all employees, RFE/RL is updating policies and procedures.

* RFE/RL's technology division is creative and a source of cost-saving innovations that benefit the broader BBG organization.

* Although RFE/RL has a contingency security plan, it has not formally designated anyone from the information technology staff to provide network security oversight and monitoring of systems.

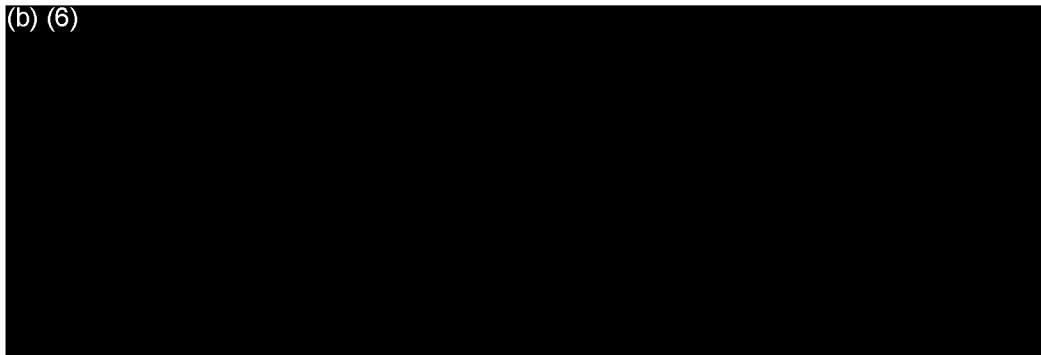

* The emergency management program is comprehensive but could improve contingency management and response. RFE/RL should focus on exercising and assessing the entire range of its emergency action plan, which includes identifying mission essential personnel and safe areas and educating RFE/RL employees on their roles and responsibilities.

Please note that there are some redactions to the posted report. They are marked as FOIA Exemption (b)(5) – “protects from disclosure inter-agency or intra-agency memoranda or letters consisting of pre-decisional advice, opinion or recommendations,” and Exemption (b)(6) – “exempts from disclosure records or information which if disclosed would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.”

Please feel free to call or email me if you have any questions.

I do not mean to be too technical or argumentative but RFERL Board is the governing body of RFERL..not BBG. BBG provides money from Congress to all three entities. Same people on both Boards but BBG staff do not govern RFE, RFA or MBN. If there is consolidation this could change.

Perhaps this should be explained to OIG or if OIG disagrees they should tell us why.

Dear Governor Ashe,

Here are the talking points that were provided to you when you visited VOA Kurdish and Swahili Services to present their anniversary certificates. You visited VOA Kurdish in late May and VOA Korean in July.

I hope you find them helpful when you make remarks during the BBG open meeting to recognize language services' anniversaries.

Please let me know if I can be of further assistance.

VOA Kurdish Service - 20th Anniversary

The service is the only international broadcaster that speaks to the Kurds of Iraq in their main dialects, Sorani and Kurmanji. The service also attracts a significant audience in Syria, Turkey and Iran, all with sizable Kurdish minorities.

On April 23, VOA started simulcasting its Kurdish language radio broadcasts on direct-to-home satellite, giving listeners in the Kurdish-speaking regions of Iraq, Turkey, Syria and Iran, a new way to hear the popular programs.

The Kurdish satellite broadcasts go on the air daily at 5:00 PM Iraq time and are simulcast on radio and Hotbird, one of the most widely-used direct-to-home satellites in the region. VOA Kurdish radio programs are also delivered on shortwave, FM transmitters in northern and southern Iraq, and broadcast over medium wave from Kuwait.

VOA Kurdish program lineup includes news and current affairs shows, a weekly call-in show as well as the bi-weekly Internet television program called, Kurdish Connection. The Service's multimedia websites, with successful blogs in both major Kurdish dialects, provide comprehensive coverage of regional, international and U.S. news and links to social media sites that offer the audience a platform for informed discussion.

VOA Swahili Service – 50th Anniversary

Swahili was the first African language service in the African Division. The first shows aired in 1961 were taped weekly programs. In May 1962, a live 30-minute Swahili-language daily show was launched.

Today, the Service produces 9.5 hours of original radio programming per week (two 30-minute daily shows and a State-funded 30-minute health program Saturdays and Sundays). VOA Swahili has a strong presence on the Internet. VOA Mitaani is a weekly web video with people in the streets (vox pop) discussing topics of interest.

VOA Swahili programs are carried by 10 FM affiliates, including two top-rated FM station in Kenya and Tanzania. Distribution also includes an IBB FM in Kigali, Rwanda.

The service has seven staff and three POVs in D.C. Their reporting is complemented by reports sent in by 11 stringers in the target areas.

Audience size has grown as the language has spread westward from the East African coast. The original target countries were Tanzania, Kenya, and Uganda. Today the target area includes the Democratic Republic of Congo, Rwanda, and Burundi. And the Service's reach extends even farther than that, including to the United Arab Emirates. The UAE has strong historical and cultural ties with Zanzibar, which is part of Tanzania. The Service receives many letters and emails from Swahili-speaking communities in the UAE.

The Service has boldly embraced new media technology, broadcasting on all platforms – mobile, web, and web-based video. Swahili has a website and a mobile site, a Facebook page, SMS distribution, and an e-mail newsletter. Internet access on mobile devices has grown fast in Kenya and Tanzania, making social media one of top way people get news, especially young people.

New programs such as Je Nifanyeje (Crossroads: Healthy decisions for the youth) aims at helping young people, especially girls in Tanzania, to make good health and social decisions that impact their lives. This program has great potential to bring new and young audience to VOA's Swahili service.

As I mentioned today I am concerned and hopeful a correction can occur soon that the Sept 13 governance committee meeting is not listed on the BBG web site. Also the closed budget meeting is not listed as was done back on August 17.

I think we need to be more open in the meetings scheduled for Sept 13. We have always listed these committee meetings at least the ones I am on in the past.

Also I renew my suggestion that the meeting with Sec Clinton be listed as it is a significant event.

It seems to me BBG should offer to cancel the meeting with the Secretary of State tomorrow given the tragic circumstances of the murder of our Ambassador in Libya.

Sec. Clinton has much more important issues today than BBG. We should adopt a resolution of sympathy and regret also in memory of our Ambassador and other lost American lives.

Dear (b) (6),

The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) received your e-mail of September 11, 2012. I have been asked to reply on the Board's behalf.

The BBG understands that your contract with Middle East Broadcasting, Inc. (MBN) allows for termination by MBN for any reason upon provision of 30 days notice to you. We further understand that MBN has provided you notice in compliance with the contract you signed in April, 2012. BBG supports MBN's decision to exercise the contract provision.

We wish you luck in your future endeavors.

Governors,

Below please find a message on two House-passed pieces of legislation from [REDACTED] (b) (6), the agency's new congressional coordinator. We will follow the same system established with [REDACTED] (b) (6) predecessor, [REDACTED] (b) (6). You'll hear about key developments on the Hill from both of us, and can safely assume that if a message comes from [REDACTED] (b) (6), I've seen or heard about it from her first.

Please note that both of these bills were adopted by voice vote, and that the reference to BBG action on programming to Vietnam is phrased as the "sense of the Congress." Should H.R. 1410 become law, we will work with the State Department on the required report.

[REDACTED] (b) (6) thanks for tracking these two pieces of legislation, and for your quick analytical work. We can all look forward to your more-than-virtual introduction to the Board tomorrow.

Lynne

Last night, by a voice vote, the House passed an amended measure (HR 1410 <<http://www.cq.com/bill/112/HR1410>>) to cap most future U.S. aid to Vietnam at fiscal 2011 levels until the government in Hanoi has made "substantial progress" in respecting religious freedom, property rights and human rights. The proposal includes exceptions for humanitarian assistance and aid designed to promote the rule of law, human rights and certain exchange programs.

HR 1410 includes a reference to the BBG and a few references to Radio Free Asia. It also requires an annual report from State that should include "efforts by the United States Government to promote access by the Vietnamese people to Radio Free Asia transmissions."

FROM HR 1410:

SEC. 4. UNITED STATES PUBLIC DIPLOMACY.

?(a) Radio Free Asia Transmissions to Vietnam.—It is the sense of Congress that the United States should take measures to overcome the jamming of Radio Free Asia by the Government of Vietnam and that the Broadcasting Board of Governors should not cut staffing, funding, or broadcast hours for the Vietnamese language services of the Voice of America and Radio Free Asia, which shall be done without reducing any other broadcast language services.

SEC. 5. ANNUAL REPORT.

?(a) In General.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act and every 12 months thereafter, the Secretary of State shall submit to the Congress a report on the following:

?(1) The determination and certification of the President that the requirements of subparagraphs (A) through (G) of section 3(a)(2) have been met, if applicable.

?(2) Steps taken to carry out section 3(a)(1)(A), if applicable.

?(3) Efforts by the United States Government to promote access by the Vietnamese people to Radio Free Asia transmissions.

Also yesterday, the House passed HR 463 by voice vote. The bill limits federal agency spending on conference travel each year through fiscal 2017 to 70 percent of the amount an agency spent in fiscal 2010 and prohibits agencies from spending more than $500,000 to support a single conference without a “compelling purpose.”

Agencies would be barred from paying the travel expenses to international conferences for more than 50 U.S.-based agency employees unless the State Department determines that attendance is in the national interest. Furthermore, agencies would be required to publish quarterly reports online detailing conferences attended by employees and their costs.

HR 4631 and Senator Coburn’s amendment (SA 2060) both limit per conference spending to $500K and cap the total number of employees traveling to international conferences at 50. However, HR 4631 would limit agency conference spending to 70 percent of 2010 levels, whereas Senator Coburn’s amendment would reduce agency conference spending to 80 percent of 2010 levels.

A PDF of the bill text is attached.

Subject: Minutes of BBG Meeting from September 13 and follow up

Dear (b) (6)

As a result of the lengthy discussion on the CEO issue and the several amendments made to the proposed text, I urge you and your office to review the tape of the meeting carefully so that all amendments are accurately incorporated. I want to see a copy of the revised text. I suspect several or perhaps all Governors would like to see it as well. I assume it will appear on the BBG web site. I certainly hope so.

As you recall, we have had recent experience from the Prague meeting where one amendment to the non disclosure policy relating to whistle blowers was not included in the notice you sent out because you had not recalled it. It had to be corrected. We all want to make sure that situation does not repeat itself this time with the CEO item.

I look forward to working with your office on the amendment to the non disclosure policy relating to legislation which Susan McCue and I discussed and Governor Meehan voiced interest in as well. I also look forward to learning why union membership should not be listed in the equal employment opportunity statement. What harm if any would it do? My interest is in stating clearly by the Board that no penalty will occur from belonging to and participating in union activities.

As I stated both publicly at BBG and at governance if your office would communicate with me on these items perhaps much of the subsequent discussion which I raise would be unnecessary and lots of time could be saved. As you know on both the sexual harassment and equal opportunity statements I was the Governor who raised 90 percent of the questions. However, no one from your office either emailed me or spoke to me about the changes I suggested back in March. Six months later when governance committee finally got around to considering it again, I had to ask repeatedly if all or some of my suggested changes which the governance committee itself had agreed to in March were included in the product before the committee on September 13. You did not know at the governance committee meeting. By the end of the day, you said all but the union matter were included. Had whoever on your staff handles these matters contacted me I would like to think we could have handled this and much of the ensuing discussion would have been unnecessary. At no time during the day of September 13 did you speak to me on this matter and relate what you had discovered. I had to ask about it in the public setting.

I cannot make you or your office call or e mail me. That is your decision or your superiors decision.. However, in the absence of communication from your office on issues I have personally raised, I have no choice but to raise these issues in the committee and full Board setting at some length.

I urge you to take this more effective approach and work more closely with me on the issues I raise and believe deeply in. If you are unsure about all of this, then I refer you to (b) (6) with whom I have an excellent relationship with her and her office and who either herself or her staff frequently contact me directly on issues which have been raised.

You should also note that at the end of the Board meeting yesterday as part of my motion to adjourn (and you can check the tape) my motion stated that the remaining items on the agenda not discussed or acted upon would be postponed to the October BBG meeting.

I will be requesting several topics be added to the October Board agenda pursuant to the BBG bylaws. I will forward them to you in a timely manner.

Best wishes for a restful weekend.

Dear Dennis

I felt badly for you at the BBG meeting where you read the statement referring to the 'passing' of Ambassador Chris Stevens as whoever wrote that piece for you or Michael Lynton did you both a disservice. To use the word 'passing' when in fact it was murder was most unfortunate and downplays the singnificance and brutality of the event. I felt I had to speak out about this crime and that is why I did it. It was not to embarrass you and I suspect you had not seen the prepared remarks prior to reading them. Someone needs to counsel with the drafters of there remarks for you and Michael to make them more consistent what the event on the ground and a more appropriate public response.

Second, I think whoever planned the time allotted for the actuall BBG meeting yesterday erred seriously in terms of us being able to do our work. There was no way the Board was going to do it all in 75 minutes allotted. There were 17 items on the agenda whicimplore h if divided equaly came out to 4.5 minutes each. Consequently we heard no reports from entity heads or VOA, OCB or IBB for our public session.

I say not so much to crticize whoever programmed this but to implore you and Governor Lynton to insist that for October BBG Board have two hours for our meeting. You also have a RFE audit committee meeting which you say would be held plus a governance committee which must go over the issues (b) (6) placed on our doorstep. This day will be a busy one and perhaps should go to two days if RFA and MBN also need meetings.

I am happy to discuss this with you if you wish. I trust your weekend goes well.

At the September 13 BBG Board meeting the Gallup contract was discussed and both of you said you would brief me in private on it but not in a public setting. I asked when and was told it would be in my lifetime and even in the near future. I wonder if one or both of you would be available to brief me on it this Sept 20 after 1030 in the morning when I will be at the Cohen Bldg.

If not then perhaps arrange a phone time this Friday afternoon, Sept 21 or next Monday afternoon, Sept 24.

Please advise what times work.

Thanks for sending me and I assume the whole Board the proposed summary of the decisions made on Sept 13.

The record is less than normal due to inability of Board to complete the agenda outlined in 75 to 90 minutes. This is not meant to point fingers but to state the obvious. Hopefully this will not happen on October 11. We have now not had a serious report at the Board meeting level from entities or VOA, OCB and IBB since June 7. This is most unfortunate in my view. It makes us all look bad when we fail to complete the agenda.

However in this record of decisions, the final motion made at the meeting by me and adopted is missing. It was to postpone the unfinished agenda for Sept 13 to the October 11 meeting and to adjourn.

I request this motion duly adopted be added to the agenda published on the BBG web site. A review of the tape will reflect this.

Subject: schedule

I am genuinely concerned that whoever is scheduling BBG meetings for the full Board has seriously underestimated the time needed to conduct our business.

Ever since the March meeting in Miami, BBG has failed to complete the agenda established. Last week on September 13 was the worst failure we had in my view to meet our responsibility. The vast majority of the agenda was never discussed.

We should resolve that this not happen again. We must go back to two day meetings if we are to have entity board meetings along with private sessions and governors only time or be prepared to go into the evening.

Allowing only 75 minutes for this agenda assured failure to consider the full agenda. How did anyone think we would complete the agenda and we did not complete the agenda in Prague on June 7 either.

This needs correction. I urge Dennis Mulhaupt and Michael Lynton as the two presiding Governors to take steps to assure us adequate time to meet on October 11...even starting October 10 or going over to October 12.

This e mail is not meant to cirticize anyone but simply to urge that we do better.

Dear (b) (6)

Pursuant to the BBG bylaws I want to add several topics to the October 11 agenda and should there not be an October 11 meeting then whenever the next BBG Board meeting does occur.

The topics I wish to add are as follows:

1-consideration of the non disclosure policy and how potential violations are handled..what process exists and what rights the accused have?

2-setting meeting dates for January, February, March, and April 2013 as well as meeting at RFA which has not happened in 2012..also setting date for Meeting at OCB in Miami

3-discussion of morale and contract employees

4-statement on union membership by employees that membership and acitvities in an union for all employees shall not be basis for discrimination by management in the workplace.

I believe I am meeting the notice requirement set out in BBG bylaws.

On another subject, I do not when goverance committee is set to meet on October 11 or what its agenda may be. I do not know if RFE audit committee will meet October 11 or not and what its agenda may be.

Personally, I have no confidence in Putin and feel it is only a matter of time before he forces RFE out of Russia. What approach he uses is the only unknown. RFE should approach this all with caution and our eyes wide open. The neighborhood there is dangerous to freedom.

We were up against tough competition in the category, including CNN, the New York Times and the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Middle East Voices website

Washington, D.C., September 24, 2012 -- Middle East Voices, a collaborative Voice of America social journalism project that combines traditional reporting, commentary, and the stories of people living through the Arab Spring, has been honored with a 2012 Online Journalism Award for "Topical Reporting."

The awards, which were announced Saturday at the 2012 Online News Association <<http://journalists.org/>> Conference in San Francisco, recognize excellence in digital journalism.

"The competition was very stiff, and we are so proud of what the small but dedicated team at Middle East Voices <<http://middleeastvoices.voanews.com/>> has been able to accomplish," VOA Director David Ensor said. "It is an excellent example of how VOA journalists are working with social media and online tools to tell stories in a meaningful way, and to help others share stories about the events that are shaping their lives," Ensor said.

Middle East Voices emphasizes audience input and engagement. The site features essays from leading thinkers and average citizens. During the final phase of the Egyptian presidential runoff election in June, radio and TV reports from Egypt were supplemented by live-tweeting from events and daily streams of stories and photos using Storify and Facebook <<http://www.facebook.com/VOAMiddleEastVoices>> to showcase events in real time.

"Middle East Voices has sought to tell the stories of the Arab Spring not simply through our own individual voices, but collaboratively, via those who are on the ground living the events," says web reporter Cecily Hilleary. "Flickr, Facebook <<http://www.facebook.com/VOAMiddleEastVoices>> , and Twitter <<https://twitter.com/MideastVoice>> are simply a means for us to mine those voices."

The other finalists in the "Topical Reporting, Large" site category were CNN, The New York Times and the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The finalists were selected by industry-leading journalists and digital media professionals. The winners were selected by a panel of judges at the University of Miami under the auspices of the School of Communication in Coral Gables, Florida.

Subject: Issues in Moscow

I am continuing to receive reports of issues arising with RFE/RL in Moscow including a journalist who was not fired actually quitting. She is (b) (6). She apparently claims there was a lock out situation by RFE management which offended her and was part of the ultimate cause of her departure after being there 20 years. Can you confirm her departure?

Could you let me and the Board know about this controversy and how you see it playing out. I am also told there are some old online interviews with (b) (6) which reflect poorly on her and raise questions as to her judgment. However, since it is Russia, we know some interviews with people could be false and manufactured for the sole purpose of embarrassment which is my reason for not passing them on until their validity is verified. The other point being made is that (b) (6) has not held a job anywhere longer than two years and often has departed in a wake of controversy. This is more easily verified.

Additionally, it is being said that (b) (6) is stating she had nothing to do with the current layoffs which are causing unrest as she does not start work until October 1. Technically that could be true but it is stated that as a consultant some of her work urged downsizing that these layoffs implement part of her report as a consultant so it is not entirely accurate for her to claim non involvement now when her report may have suggested this in the first place. Again, I am passing this on as I have received these comments.

I look forward to a report on this.

Through our lawyers in Moscow we sought guidance from the relevant Russian ministry on whether the new law would apply to our operations in Russia. In Russia we conduct our business through a "representative office" of RFE/RL. The ministry has informed us that the new law does not apply to the activities of a "representative office" of a foreign non-profit. Therefore we do not have to identify ourselves as a "foreign agent".

The canceling of the governance committee meeting defies the stated intention of Gov. Mulhaupt at the Sept 13 public meeting to hold this meeting on October 11. Why did Gov Mulhaupt change his mind and assure the items deferred to that committee will not be heard? Mr. Lobo you state this is based on input from Governors but I am one Governor whose views you did not seek and it is not based on my input. If it based on input from only one or two Governors then the notice should state that.

Why is the town hall meeting being canceled? It looks to me like a light schedule that day. I am reminded of an old saying in East Tennessee, if you do not want to work, you should not hire out. If there is a quorum for BBG then it exists for other sessions such as RFE audit committee.

Of course there are those who suggest all meetings are being reduced as much as BBG can avoid having the OIG team attend these meetings as they did on September 13. I hope this is not true but that thought is out there. One way to dispel that is to hold these meetings previously announced to be held.

Based on input we have from Governors, the Governance Committee will not meet in October. There will also be no grantee corporate board meetings.

On Thursday, October 11, there will be a Governors' Briefing in the morning and a BBG open meeting in the afternoon. A proposed agenda for the meeting will be forwarded to you in the next few days.

Dear Dennis

I have had thought further about this since my last e mail and prefer a Board meeting over a briefing but feel either is better than nothing. However, the occasion should be more than RFE management giving us their view. We should have private time for Governors to discuss this among ourselves (obviously OIG would be there if they wish). We also need to have contact with one or more the dissidents signing the letter which has become so public. There needs to be outreach here.

We are faced with a serious morale and public perception issue at the very least. However, there could be more and duty is to ascertain in an objective way all sides so a factual determination can be made. A briefing by staff is only a start not an ending to this crisis for RFE in Moscow. If this turns out to be staff only and that ends it, then we have failed.

Your email suggests that it is all "misinformation and misconceptions." I am not sure we have enough knowledge to reach that conclusion any more than we have enough information to state that RFE management erred in full or in part. I urge you to be more neutral and even handed as chair until we hear all the facts.

Colleagues:

I believe it would be worthwhile to have a briefing on where things stand with respect to the reorganization of RFE's Russian Service that is being forced on us by the changes in Russian law. This will be a followup to the report given by Steve and his colleagues at the RFE board meeting a few weeks ago. There is a significant amount of misinformation and misconceptions about what we are actually doing and our plans going forward.

Within the next several days, we will organize a call-in briefing for those who are interested in participating. RFE management will update us on the current state of affairs and answer any questions you may have. As soon as this can be organized, we will be back to you.

Best,

Dennis

Dear Dennis

I am glad you are doing this but I feel it should be a RFE meeting. It is very important. I think it is important the dissidents' letter from Moscow be addressed as well as the manner in which people were dismissed. How much money is involved? It appears we have a significant public relations issue on our hand. It is important to address how management in hindsight would have done anything differently and if they feel there were any errors. What is the backup plan when/if Putin shuts down RFE? Has there been any contact with US Embassy in Moscow? If not, why not?

I trust you will consult with all 7 Board members on their availability for a call so all can participate or if someone cannot participate but still wants a briefing that an alternative time be provided to him/her. Your email does not state if Board members will be contacted on availability. I also think it should be an actual Board meeting in case the Board wished to take action as formal action in a briefing is not legally possible.

Who will preside at the briefing or meeting?

Those persons from RFE who went to Moscow should also be on the line such as (b) (6). I do not know who else was there but we should be told in advance of the call.

I look forward to participating, I am not available on October 1 thru 3, but available afterwards.

Dear Victor,

It was very good to have your participation in this event last year and your support of employee recognition is always appreciated. I will be glad to share with the Board the information on the winners once everything is finalized. While we will have a final list of names in a few days, the citations describing their work take a bit longer given that there are about 85 winners.

In terms of the time/day of the awards, unfortunately the auditorium is in use by another group on Thursday Oct 11 until noon.

The event requires several hours of set up and involves many of the same staff that support the Board open meeting and webcast, so a midday ceremony is regrettably problematic.

We will go forward with this event on October 10, 2012 at noon in the Cohen Auditorium.

Subject: Re: Draft October BBG Meetings Agenda

To my fellow Governors and staff,
Thanks for sending this schedule. I am very disappointed that my requests listed as item VII in the Governor's briefing are not listed for the public meeting as I had requested them be discussed at the full BBG Board meeting and my request was filed with the deputy general counsel in a timely manner as provided by the bylaws. No one has the right to move a Governor's request from the Board meeting to the private session. This is directly contrary to my request and I ask that this be adjusted to be included at the BBG meeting. Surely we will abide by our bylaws.

Second, it is virtually unheard of in a setting such as ours to place approval of the minutes from the prior meeting at the end of the agenda. Such action always comes at the first of the meeting and that has been our BBG practice since we all joined the Board on June 30, 2010. Item F on the agenda should be Item A and each renumbered accordingly.

To be honest, this does not appear to be the result of checking with all the Governors. Certainly I was not consulted and I had asked for several items on the discussion list including (b) (6) from the prior meeting which is now missing. While it is good for Gov Lynton to review the proposed agenda, why not consult with all of us first before it is made up and sent out? This would produce a more collegial approach.

Third, given that the day ends at 3:15 PM in the afternoon, it is now abundantly and sadly clear that the governance committee could have met but for reasons Chairman Mulhaupt has not shared with me, he has decided not to hold the meeting which he said at the Sept 13 full BBG meeting he would hold to deal with issues referred Sept 13 to governance such as unions. Why? The same holds for his decision for the RFE audit committee not to meet that same day due to lack of time. Well, this schedule shows there is time. What is missing is the will to meet and honor the pledge made in mid September in a public setting. There is time from 0730 to 0830 and with planned adjournment at 3:15 there would be time to meet from 3:15 to 6 PM if people are willing to work.

In Tennessee, our late Gov Ned McWherter when he was Speaker of the Tenn House and I was a minority party member under his leadership, he often told the 99 members when some wanted to adjourn early without finishing the day's business the following: "You should not hire out, if you are not willing to work." Enough said.

BBG faces serious issues which are not receiving attention. RFE faces serious programming issues and management style questions not to mention issues involving fiduciary responsibility and the best answer is to dodge discussion of them. Transparency is jettisoned here.

This is not good. It reflects poorly on all. I urge reconsideration and a response. I am back in USA on Wednesday evening and happy to talk to any Governor or anyone else about this.

Governors,

Some of you have inquired about recent coverage concerning last week's decision of the Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) to uphold an arbitrator's decision against the Agency in connection with the Agency's 2009 reduction-in-force at OCB.

Our staff has not yet finished reviewing and digesting the case, nor have we formulated any formal response. It should be noted that the fact that the FLRA affirmed the arbitrator's decision does not necessarily mean that either the arbitrator or the FLRA decided the case correctly on the merits. There are more than a few cases where agencies have successfully challenged FLRA decisions.

The BBG has sixty days in which to respond and it is extremely important for the Agency to analyze the case carefully before deciding how to proceed. There are a number of issues at play in the OCB RIF case that go beyond the issue of possible financial exposure or reinstatement of employees, including substantive issues that may affect other RIFs that may be contemplated in the budgetary decisions that the Board has made. I plan to make a decision on how to proceed based on a sober analysis of the merits of the case. Like you, I of course share the desire to do what is in the best interest of the Agency and its employees. I will certainly take your concerns into account and will consult closely with the OCB Director as well as our Labor and Employee Relations team.. At the appropriate time, I will brief the Board on how best to proceed.

In the meantime, it would be advisable for individual Governors to refrain from discussing the case with BBG Union members or officials. If you are contacted by the media, please consult with our communications team before commenting. Such outreach can be affirmatively harmful to the Agency's interests because it can unnecessarily embolden the stance taken by other stakeholders in this important litigation and may complicate or undermine the Agency's litigation and settlement posture. I appreciate your understanding of and compliance with this point.

BBG Condemns Jamming of Broadcasts to Iran

Washington, DC – October 3, 2012 – U.S. international broadcasting signals to Iran are once again being jammed, possibly in connection with street demonstrations and arrests there, and the Broadcasting Board of Governors has condemned the resumption of interference in its programming for Iranians.

“The jamming of news delivered by satellite into Iran is an outrage, a deplorable violation of well-established international agreements,” said International Broadcasting Bureau Director Richard M. Lobo. “Freedom of information is a universal human right as well as an essential component for the health of any nation.”

The practice of deliberate interference with broadcast signals, known as “jamming,” is prohibited under rules of the International Telecommunications Union (ITU).

The most recent interference began on Wednesday, October 3, and affected both video and audio signals of the Voice of America’s Persian Service and Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty’s Radio Farda.

The jamming coincided with reports of street demonstrations and mass arrests of Iranians protesting falling currency exchange rates. Both VOA and RFE/RL report that, in some instances, interference starts just before newscasts, and ends just afterwards.

The jamming affected three satellite transponders operated by Eutelsat and those most popular among Iranian viewers: HotBird 13B, Eutelsat 25A and Eutelsat 7A. Viewers said the signals reappear intermittently, and that less-popular satellites are not impacted.

The interference has affected other U.S. international broadcasting programs on the Eutelsat satellites, including Georgian, Armenian and Balkan-language broadcasts.

VOA and RFE/RL programs continue to be broadcast on diverse media platforms, including digital audio and video streams on other satellite paths and on the Internet.

In February 2012, the ITU called upon the world's nations to take "necessary actions" to stop intentional interference with satellite transmissions. -- <http://www.bbg.gov/press-release/new-pressure-on-jammers-of-international-broadcasts/>

The practice of deliberate interference with broadcast signals, known as “jamming,” is prohibited under rules of the International Telecommunications Union (ITU).

The most recent interference began on Wednesday, October 3, and affected both video and audio signals of the Voice of America’s Persian Service and Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty’s Radio Farda.

The jamming coincided with reports of street demonstrations and mass arrests of Iranians protesting falling currency exchange rates. Both VOA and RFE/RL report that, in some instances, interference starts just before newscasts, and ends just afterwards.

The jamming affected three satellite transponders operated by Eutelsat and those most popular among Iranian viewers: HotBird 13B, Eutelsat 25A and Eutelsat 7A. Viewers said the signals reappear intermittently, and that less-popular satellites are not impacted.

The interference has affected other U.S. international broadcasting programs on the Eutelsat satellites, including Georgian, Armenian and Balkan-language broadcasts.

VOA and RFE/RL programs continue to be broadcast on diverse media platforms, including digital audio and video streams on other satellite paths and on the Internet.

In February 2012, the ITU called upon the world's nations to take "necessary actions" to stop intentional interference with satellite transmissions. -- <http://www.bbg.gov/press-release/new-pressure-on-jammers-of-international-broadcasts/>

I cannot tell if you plan to bring the final decision to the BBG Board for a vote or whether you plan to act on your own? Which is it?

I believe this is serious enough to come to the full Board for a vote on whether to proceed with an appeal or halt the process. I am eager to have your recommendation as well as the deputy general counsel and [REDACTED] (b) (6).

We should be sensitive to those persons who were terminated and it is now three years later. We should be sensitive to how this impacts the agency too. We should consult with DOJ on this. We should consult with plaintiffs to determine their interest in a settlement and what it would be. We should be advised what the current financial exposure is today, October 3 and what it could be two years from now if the appeals proceed and fail. In other words the plaintiffs win.

While this is not our personal money it is the public's money and we must be sensitive to this.

Governors,

Some of you have inquired about recent coverage concerning last week's decision of the Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) to uphold an arbitrator's decision against the Agency in connection with the Agency's 2009 reduction-in-force at OCB.

Our staff has not yet finished reviewing and digesting the case, nor have we formulated any formal response. It should be noted that the fact that the FLRA affirmed the arbitrator's decision does not necessarily mean that either the arbitrator or the FLRA decided the case correctly on the merits. There are more than a few cases where agencies have successfully challenged FLRA decisions.

The BBG has sixty days in which to respond and it is extremely important for the Agency to analyze the case carefully before deciding how to proceed. There are a number of issues at play in the OCB RIF case that go beyond the issue of possible financial exposure or reinstatement of employees, including substantive issues that may affect other RIFs that may be contemplated in the budgetary decisions that the Board has made. I plan to make a decision on how to proceed based on a sober analysis of the merits of the case. Like you, I of course share the desire to do what is in the best interest of the Agency and its employees. I will certainly take your concerns into account and will consult closely with the OCB Director as well as our Labor and Employee Relations team.. At the appropriate time, I will brief the Board on how best to proceed.

In the meantime, it would be advisable for individual Governors to refrain from discussing the case with BBG Union members or officials. If you are contacted by the media, please consult with our communications team before commenting. Such outreach can be affirmatively harmful to the Agency's interests because it can unnecessarily embolden the stance taken by other stakeholders in this important litigation and may complicate or undermine the Agency's litigation and settlement posture. I appreciate your understanding of and compliance with this point.

I know my fellow Governors would not want that to happen. The public is entitled to see and hear our deliberations.

The BBG governance committee is not meeting despite chairman Mulhaupt saying there would be one. He certainly did not ask me as a committee member about skipping a meeting. The same applies to RFE audit committee where serious issues are on the table. All three audit committee members will be in DC on October 11 and we are told there is not time for a meeting. That is inaccurate. It may be inconvenient for some due to issues which may be discussed but there is time. The three audit committee members of RFE are Mulhaupt, Ashe and McCue. The 4 governance committee members are Mulhaupt, Ashe, Lynton and McCue. All will be in DC on october 11 but there is no meeting. Why? An answer is merited. Governance has several issues to consider. Apparently, Governance is skipping the calendar for 2013 which normally it reviews. Why? Why is protection for union activities not being considered as was discussed at Sept 13 meeting as being referered to governance committee?

The more important issue here is that you and Gov Lynton should consult with the other 6 Governors on the agenda. That is not too many to contact. For two years plus I have shown keen interest in these matters. You know of my interest. I am the only Governor to have visited all language services of VOA. while in Tbilisi on October 2, I took time out to visit the current RFE offices and see the new space as well. I have even been to the mail room of the Cohen Bldg. In other words, I take time to do my job. Common courtesy would suggest that when I ask for items to go on the agenda that you or someone contact me and let me know whether it is the open or private meeting. If my request failed to be specific, then call and ask me what was meant. I would extend the same courtesy to you.

Betreff: October 11 Board Meeting Issues

Victor,

I would like to clear the air about a few things concerning the upcoming October 11 Board meeting agenda.

To begin with, all of the issues that you requested are on the meeting agenda. Your September 20 email to (b) (6) is set forth below. You did not request these issues be placed on the open meeting agenda. Moreover, the provision of the bylaws relating to the requests of individual Governors does not require that the agenda topics requested by individual Governors have to necessarily be discussed in the open meeting. For your convenience, I have reproduced the relevant provision of the by-laws below. There has been no failure of compliance with the BBG bylaws as you suggest.

In addition, it is important for you and all of the Governors to understand and accept that the staff does not set the agenda of Board deliberations or determine when meetings of the Board of Governors, its committees, or of any grantee Board will occur. This is within the Board's exclusive authority. In this case, we have followed the procedures laid out in the by-laws and worked with the Presiding Governor on the development of the agenda. Given the number of topics that have to be covered by the Board in the open meeting – including picking up where we left off last time, as you requested – and the fact that you are the only Governor who has expressed interest in these particular topics, I made the recommendation to the Presiding Governor to place the discussion in the Governors briefing, as reflected in the draft agenda that we circulated to the Board.

If you or any Governor have a disagreement with the proposed agenda, it is appropriate for you to address your suggestions to the other members of the Board and to obtain their agreement on the items that should be discussed during the open meeting. (b) (6) email clearly stated that she was transmitting a draft agenda and soliciting the comments of the Governors. Perhaps the Board can have a further discussion about whether any of the agenda topics that you have suggested should be moved to the open session, as well as how to deal with these questions going forward.

Finally, you have suggested on several occasions that the Board, certain Governors and/or the staff have conspired to reduce the number of meetings and meeting times in order to avoid the attendance and scrutiny of the Office of Inspector General (OIG).

Nothing could be further than the truth. The Board and the staff welcome the current OIG inspection. Board leaders and I personally invited the team to attend all Board-related meetings while they were here. I am very pleased to have had OIG staff at all the Board's meetings thus far and to have given them full visibility into all communications related to the Board and its members and proceedings.

In your October 1 email regarding these matters, you cite a saying by the late Tennessee Governor McWherter. Allow me to cite a couple of quotes regarding teamwork as it should apply to any organization, including the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

"Individual commitment to a group effort - that is what makes a team work, a company work, a society work, a civilization work." – Vince Lombardi

"Coming together is a beginning. Keeping together is progress. Working together is success." – Henry Ford

"No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent." – John Donne

Dear (b) (6)

Pursuant to the BBG bylaws I want to add several topics to the October 11 agenda and should there not be an October 11 meeting then whenever the next BBG Board meeting does occur.

The topics I wish to add are as follows:

1-consideration of the non disclosure policy and how potential violations are handled..what process exists and what rights the accused have?

2-setting meeting dates for January, February, March, and April 2013 as well as meeting at RFA which has not happened in 2012..also setting date for Meeting at OCB in Miami

3-discussion of morale and contract employees

4-statement on union membership by employees that membership and acitvities in an union for all employees shall not be basis for discrimination by management in the workplace.

I believe I am meeting the notice requirement set out in BBG bylaws.

On another subject, I do not when goverance committee is set to meet on October 11 or what its agenda may be. I do not know if RFE audit committee will meet October 11 or not and what its agenda may be.

To my fellow Governors and staff,

Thanks for sending this schedule. I am very disappointed that my requests listed as item VII in the Governor's briefing are not listed for the public meeting as I had requested them be discussed at the full BBG Board meeting and my request was filed with the deputy general counsel in a timely manner as provided by the bylaws. No one has the right to move a Governor's request from the Board meeting to the private session. This is directly contrary to my request and I ask that this be adjusted to be included at the BBG meeting. Surely we will abide by our bylaws.

Second, it is virtually unheard of in a setting such as ours to place approval of the minutes from the prior meeting at the end of the agenda. Such action always comes at the first of the meeting and that has been our BBG practice since we all joined the Board on June 30, 2010. Item F on the agenda should be Item A and each renumbered accordingly.

To be honest, this does not appear to be the result of checking with all the Governors. Certainly I was not consulted and I had asked for several items on the discussion list including (b) (6) from the prior meeting which is now missing. While it is good for Gov Lynton to review the proposed agenda, why not consult with all of us first before it is made up and sent out? This would produce a more collegial approach.

Third, given that the day ends at 315 PM in the afternoon, it is now abundantly and sadly clear that the governance committee could have met but for reasons Chairman Mulhaupt has not shared with me, he has decided not to hold the meeting which he said at the Sept 13 full BBG meeting he would hold to deal with issues referred Sept 13 to governance such as unions. Why? The same holds for his decision for the RFE audit committee not to meet that same day due to lack of time. Well, this schedule shows there is time. What is missing is the will to meet and honor the pledge made in mid September in a public setting. There is time from 0730 to 0830 and with planned adjournment at 315 there would be time to meet from 315 to 6 PM if people are willing to work.

In Tennessee, our late Gov Ned McWherter when he was Speaker of the Tenn House and I was a minority party member under his leadership, he often told the 99 members when some wanted to adjourn early without finishing the day's business the following: "You should not hire out, if you are not willing to work." Enough said.

BBG faces serious issues which are not receiving attention. RFE faces serious programming issues and management style questions not to mention issues involving fiduciary responsibility and the best answer is to dodge discussion of them. Transparency is jettisoned here.

This is not good. It reflects poorly on all. I urge reconsideration and a response. I am back in USA on Wednesday evening and happy to talk to any Governor or anyone else about this.

Honorable Ambassador Victor Hashe: Dzie?dobry.

My name is (b) (6). I was a Cuban political prisoner. First of all, I want to commend you on the transparency of your services throughout your professional career. It's a strong contrast when compared to the practices of the Office of Cuba Broadcasting (OCB) in recent years. "It's no longer hidden. It's not in the closet." It is certainly true in the case of the group of workers of Radio and TV Marti who was expelled in 2009. I'll refer back to this later in my letter.

Since its creation, the fundamental objective of the Voice of America and its sister stations has been to spread truth and objectivity around the world. They have been the voice of the opposition, prisoners of conscience, and an encouragement to all those who suffer repression from dictatorships. These stations reach the corners of the world. They have always forged a fight to relay objective news to the needy, and provide accurate information in places where the media serves as a mouthpiece for oppressive governments. My vote stands true behind short-wave and television signals in countries ruled by dictators. VOA and its sister stations must be present before and after the news strikes. I support the letter of protest of the Russian human rights movement [REDACTED] (b) (6), Chairwoman of the Moscow Helsinki Group, for the expulsion of Russians Journalists (Radio Liberty).

Now let me summarize my biography. I was one of the most popular artists from Cuba to have worked for Radio and TV Marti. My popularity in Cuba compares to that of an idol, which infuriated the Castro regime. I ended up serving a three-year prison sentence for my anti-revolutionary ideals (1982-1985). Thanks to French Actor (b) (6) his wife (b) (6) Amnesty International, and French President Francoise Mitterrand, I was liberated and given political asylum in France. I started working as a free-lancer in Paris. Since then, I have dedicated my exiled life to fight for human rights all over the world. In fact I was a member of the U.S. Delegation for the Human Rights Commission, in Geneva, and worked alongside General Vernon Walters and Ambassador Armando Valladares I've produced and exhibited documentaries for the Human Rights Commission in Geneva, and other programs, geared towards preventing populism in Latin America. In 2005, I started working as an International Broadcaster for TV and Radio Marti. My talent and dedication to its mission earned me excellent reviews. But in 2009 I was expelled during the illegal RIF the agency conducted.

As part of the group RIFed, I would like to express to the Board of Governors that it is in our best intentions to return to our jobs, and work as diligently as ever. We've been suffering for three years, and have won one lawsuit, and the appeal. With each day that passes, not only do we incur more debt, but so does the citizenry of this country with the huge amount of taxpayer dollars spent on this legal process. The case has been published twice in "The Washington Post", "The Miami Herald" and in "El Nuevo Herald". A number of local radio and television stations has also dedicated its airwaves to report on our case. I would like to quote the words of Madame [REDACTED] (b) (6) "Reorganization of Radio Liberty work was carried out in a form of 'special operation' that was shameful and abusive for its employees. The KGB could not harm the image of the radio and the United States in Russia as did U.S. managers – the President of the Radio Liberty Steven Korn and the Vice President Julia Ragona." Our case is similar: The reorganization (RIF) of Radio Marti was carried out in a form of "special operation" that was shameful and abusive for its employees. The Cuban KGB, could not harm the image of Radio and TV Marti and the United States in Cuba as did former Director "Pedro Roig," and an incomprehensible lack of support from the current administration of Carlos Garcia, which has not even respected the Priority List, designed to offer us first dibs on employment within OCB.

Your excellency, we know you are in favor of ending this matter. I want to reiterate our good faith to give the best of ourselves to OCB's mission.

Respectfully,

(b) (6)

Dear Governors and Secretary Sonenshine,

Since we have emailed you the letter from (b) (6), she has informed us that 27 of her colleagues attached their signatures to her letter. We include their names here:

(b) (6) [REDACTED] letter was signed by former RFE/RL staffers who share the author's opinions (27 signatures):

(b) (6)

The next letter is from former Radio Liberty employee (b) (6).

I am exasperated and confused. I worked with RFE/RL Russian Service for 14 years, and witnessed such a notorious ending!

People, who gave years of hard work to popularize democracy and human rights activism, are caught unawares, and fired one by one in no time.

I remember guards at our beloved RFE/RL Moscow editorial office and frozen eyes of bureaucrats saying "Thank you, we no longer need your service. Here is your compensation, hope you are satisfied."

As time goes by I begin to more fully realize what happened. Seizure, devastation? What will happen to the Radio, what will happen to my colleagues? Will everyone have a knack to stay healthy after such a strike?

Why did RFE/RL top management decide that we can't and don't want to work in a new – multimedia – format?

Everyone knew about the switch to multimedia, and was getting prepared for it. Everyone dreamed of working with new equipment on an updated radio station.

Why were we fired? Still no answer.

Our RFE/RL Moscow bureau team consisted of professionals, who were invited to Radio Svoboda by different directors. Directors changed, and my colleagues carried on doing their job with great talent and honesty.

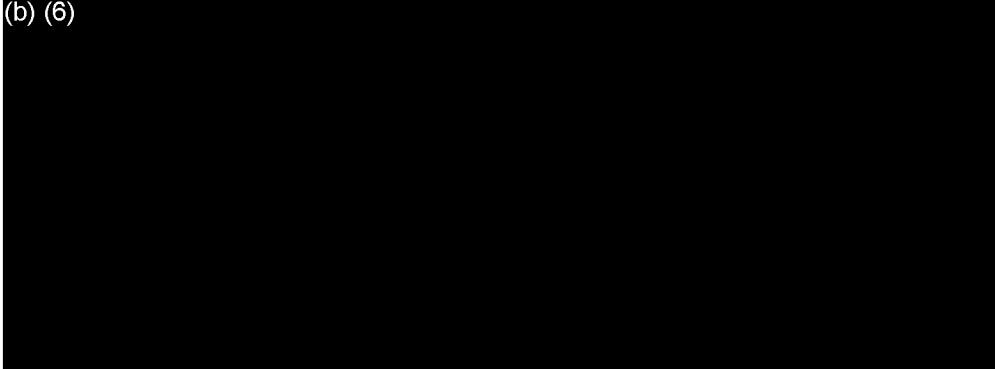

Many of them, due to their political beliefs and censorship in Russia, will not be able to find jobs in Russian media. Training for a new profession and the unemployment office are awaiting most of us.

Dear Governor Ashe,

My name is (b) (6), I am one of the people that was affected by the RIF. I write to you with the hope that your involvement in this matter will help me return to my rightful position at the Office of Cuba Broadcasting (OCB) as soon as possible.

It has been almost three years of much pain and suffering for my family and me. I am hopeful that I may once again return to work and do what I love doing. I wish nothing more than to have my life return to normalcy.

As you know the Agency has now definitively lost the arbitration and appeal to the FLRA, yet they continue to prolong the anguish of the 16 RIFed employees. The uncertainty and the fact that I have not been able to provide for my family has been extremely painful. I know that you have asked the Agency what they intend to do. Now that the appeal has been lost, I hope that you may once again ask and continue to ask until you receive a concrete answer from General Council.

I sincerely thank you for your time and attention. May God continue to bless you and your family.

Respectfully,

After consulting with Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt, they suggest that the Board meet this Thursday from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. in Governors' Briefing which would include an OIG briefing with the Governors only, and hold the BBG open meeting from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. There will be no meetings after 11:30 a.m. Also, the strategy and budget briefing is being postponed and will be rescheduled at a later date at Governor Meehan's request.

In order to ensure a quorum for the BBG open meeting, please advise us of your availability from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. by COB today.

With your input, we will amend the Federal Register notice for the BBG open meeting in order to maximize notice to the public.

With USAID having been kicked out of Russia, the RFE situation only make US look weaker.

Will the Board seek to have RT blocked in USA in retribution?

BBG Condemns Jamming,
Intimidation as Threats to Media Freedom
October 11, 2012

Michael Lynton
The Broadcasting Board of Governors today expressed its enduring outrage over persistent attempts to stifle the free flow of news and information through satellite jamming, intimidation and the detention of journalists in Iran, Syria, Cambodia, Ethiopia and elsewhere.

During the BBG's Oct. 11 meeting, Presiding Governor Michael Lynton condemned the jamming of BBG satellite signals in Iran and said BBG journalists are encountering new impediments to free reporting almost daily.

"Just yesterday, Radio Free Asia and Voice of America reporters were summoned to a meeting with officials in a blatant attempt to discourage objective reporting on the Cambodian government," Lynton said. As reported by Reuters, AFP and others, RFA and VOA...are among the few radio stations in Cambodia considered free of government influence."

The Board also expressed concern about the cases of Marthe van der Wolf, a VOA reporter in Ethiopia who was forced by local police to erase recordings of a protest rally, and Gulnur Raqifqizi Kazimova, a Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) freelancer who was prohibited from taking pictures in Azerbaijan.

Members of the Board renewed their condemnation of recent illegal jamming of BBG Persian broadcasts to Iran that also affected many other BBG radio and TV programs around the globe, including broadcasts in Arabic, Georgian, Armenian, Bosnian, and Korean.

"The Board calls on Iran to cease disrupting broadcast signals, and to respect the well-established international agreements that prohibit jamming," Lynton said.

The Board also noted that Monday marked 50 days since the capture of Alhurra TV journalist Bashar Fahmi and his cameraman Cüneyt Ünal in Syria, and renewed its demand that the pair be released.

Fahmi and Ünal were last heard from on August 20, when they were reporting from Aleppo, Syria. On August 26th, Ünal appeared on Syrian television, but the Syrian government said it has no information on Fahmi.

Lynton spoke at length of recent Russian legislative steps that have imposed restrictions on freedom of expression, including a law that is forcing RFE/RL programs off of the organization's last AM affiliate in Moscow. He noted, "This board strongly objects to the tightening stranglehold on the free flow of information taking place today in Russia." Lynton reiterated Governors' support for Steve Korn's leadership of RFE/RL in its efforts throughout the region.

The BBG recognized the David Burke Distinguished Journalism Awards winners. This year's winners are: Mukarram Khan Aatif of the VOA's Deewa Radio; Karen Caballero of Radio and TV Martí; Sailab Mahsud of RFE/RL's Radio Mashaal; RFA's Korean Service; and Mohamed Moawad and Lamia Rezgui Bouroogaa of the Middle East Broadcasting Networks' Radio Sawa.

Several events at the meeting honored the legacy and ongoing work of the Voice of America.

Gov. Susan McCue honors Leo Sarkisian, standing
Board members enjoyed a presentation honoring VOA Ethnomusicologist Leo Sarkisian, the creator of Music Time in Africa, VOA's oldest English-language music program. They presented a resolution expressing the agency's appreciation to Sarkisian, who retired recently after a career that spanned more than half a century and took him to every country in Africa.

The Board also recognized the 20th anniversary of VOA's Kurdish Service and the 50th anniversary of its Swahili Service.

Discussion at the meeting included the BBG's expanded broadcasting reach in China via the Telstar satellite and other developments intended to modernize and extend the reach of the agency and its media worldwide.

Public documents related to this meeting will be posted here, and video of this meeting will be available on-demand shortly.

I should point out that the Board as a Board has voted to meet November 15. Only a Board vote can cancel what the Board has voted to do. If it appears a quorum is not present and some wish to cancel the November 15-16 meeting, then a called Board meeting or a notational vote is needed to cancel the meeting. This decision cannot be arrived at informally or by the IBB Director with one or two Governors concurring with him. I urge Governors to consider an alternative date if the 15th and 16th do not work. I could attend earlier in the week or come Nov 19 or 20 if that worked. That too requires a Board vote.

Who is going to be our new interim replacement for (b) (6) [REDACTED]?

I am available. If the full BBG board cannot meet due to 5 persons not being present (I assume Lynton cannot even attend by phone?)

However, the RFA Board can meet with 4 members present which is a quorum for RFA and Governance can meet if Ashe, McCue and Mulhaupt are present. I hope these groups will meet even if BBG lacks 5 persons for its quorum. Governance has failed to meet now since May..almost five months. RFE audit has not met for months either. MBN may need to meet as well.

Subject: Fwd: OGC Report
Attachments: OGCReport.doc

I have the report of your office for July to Sept 2012. The email said that questions should be directed to you and I have several questions from the memo received October 16.

1-I would like to see a copy of the opinion rendered to GAO mentioned on page three of the memo relative to the agency examining and addressing overlap. It can be e mailed to me.

2-Nothing is mentioned about FOIA requests and how they are being handled in this period. How many FOIA requests came in during this period and what topics did they cover? FOIA is a continuing interest of mine as we work to promote transparency.

3-Nothing is mentioned about L88 purchasing the Cohen Bldg and the concerns I have voiced as to how this can be done by GSA without any public notice for more than one firm to bid on it. What is the legality of this? How can only one firm have sole right to buy this public Bldg? Perhaps I am missing something but it bothers me. I have voiced this concern repeatedly but do not have an answer.

4-In regard to the OCB RIF case decided adversely to OCB and BBG, I trust the Board will be kept fully informed and consulted. It is important we know the current cost to settle the case or pay what the court has ordered and what potentially it could be if an appeal is filed and we ultimately lose two years from now. This is not the only consideration but it is part of the total list of items which merit attention. The arbitrator held that the testimony of some employees was not truthful. What is the likelihood that this finding of fact at that level would be over ruled? If I am mistaken please advise.

I look forward to additional information and responses to these questions. I personally feel this should be presented in either open or closed session to BBG Governors. I am afraid this may not be read and digested by all Governors.

Dear Governors,

At the request of IBB Director Lobo, I am polling the Board to determine its ability to meet in November.

According to the schedule previously approved by the Board in December 2011, the Board is scheduled to meet on November 15 and 16, and the meeting will be held at RFA headquarters.

Because Presiding Governor Lynton cannot attend the November Board meeting, Alternate Presiding Governor Mulhaupt has suggested that all BBG-related meetings to take place on Thursday, November 15, at RFA headquarters. No meetings will be scheduled on Friday, November 16.

In the event that the Board cannot achieve a quorum for a meeting on November 15, even by phone or videoconference, the Board will need to decide whether to meet in December as it is currently scheduled as an optional meeting on December 13 and 14. (The next scheduled meeting after December is February 21-22, 2013.)

Please confirm your availability for a Board meeting on November 15 at RFA headquarters. I look forward to hearing from you.

Thank you.

This really requires a BBG briefing and meeting...not simply an e mail that we all acquiesce to ...I would like to hear the arguments on both sides. I am surprised my friends and colleagues on this Board are not seeking more information on this. If BBG loses this appeal, the price tag just escalated by millions. Only a few weeks ago, I asked what the current cost to settle is and what the potential cost would be. There has not been an answer to this.

I really worry that we are not meeting our fiduciary duties here with absolutely no discussion of this latest development. Has Mr Lobo conferred with the White House or Labor Dept. on this? I want this placed on the agenda for November 15 BBG meeting for a full review.

Does (b) (6) agree with this? was he part of the decision making process? Who did Mr Lobo consult besides (b) (6) ?

Please record me as not agreeing to this recommendation pending the receipt of further information and dialogue. Morale at VOA/OCB is at a low and this action will not help improve the situation.

Dear (b) (6)

Your e mail of October 18 indicated you would respond to my questions on October 19. My questions were the result of the quarterly report from your office sent to all BBG Board members wherein you asked us to feel free to submit questions if we had any. I did have some and submitted them to you.

It is now October 24 and the responses have not been received. I understand you have been busy with the non citizen issue from FLRA and other matters. However, I am writing to ascertain when I might expect a response to the inquiries I submitted on October 18 and you said would be answered on October 19. I am happy to discuss them with you as well.

Sincerely yours

I have the report of your office for July to Sept 2012. The email said that questions should be directed to you and I have several questions from the memo received October 16.

1-I would like to see a copy of the opinion rendered to GAO mentioned on page three of the memo relative to the agency examining and addressing overlap. It can be e mailed to me.

2-Nothing is mentioned about FOIA requests and how they are being handled in this period. How many FOIA requests came in during this period and what topics did they cover? FOIA is a continuing interest of mine as we work to promote transparency.

3-Nothing is mentioned about L88 purchasing the Cohen Bldg and the concerns I have voiced as to how this can be done by GSA without any public notice for more than one firm to bid on it. What is the legality of this? How can only one firm have sole right to buy this public Bldg? Perhaps I am missing something but it bothers me. I have voiced this concern repeatedly but do not have an answer.

4-In regard to the OCB RIF case decided adversely to OCB and BBG, I trust the Board will be kept fully informed and consulted. It is important we know the current cost to settle the case or pay what the court has ordered and what potentially it could be if an appeal is filed and we ultimately lose two years from now. This is not the only consideration but it is part of the total list of items which merit attention. The arbitrator held that the testimony of some employees was not truthful. What is the likelihood that this finding of fact at that level would be over ruled? If I am mistaken please advise.

I look forward to additional information and responses to these questions. I personally feel this should be presented in either open or closed session to BBG Governors. I am afraid this may not be read and digested by all Governors.

Subject: Tonw Hall meeting

I am e mailing to voice the hope that a Town Hall meeting which has not occurred so far in 2012 will occur on November 15. It had been planned for our October 11 meeting but that meeting was reduced to half a day when presiding Governor Lynton's schedule required him to depart a little before noon for a luncheon in Washington. Our September meeting was cut short as well due to some Board members departing for evening events.

This event is always looked forward to each year by employees in the Cohen Bldg and it offers Board members a chance to hear concerns from employees on an annual basis.

I realize that the November meeting is questionable since Gov. Lynton is in Japan and cannot attend in person or by phone. Gov. McCue must participate by phone. However, even if less than 5 Governors are present for a Town Hall meeting it sends a strong signal of interest and concern to employees. If we miss November then I fear we will miss December and 2012 passes without a Town Hall meeting at all and our first 2013 meeting is not until February.

Hope it works out.

Subject: Re: Tune in on this week's networking event

You indicated in a recent e mail that GSA is no longer in discussions with L88 for possible purchase of the Cohen Bldg. How was BBG advised of this? Orally or by letter/e mail? any reason given as to why discussions are ended. Are discussions terminated or simply suspended?

My concern was and is that this was not opened up to all interested parties to compete. It seemed most unusual if not illegal (at least in Knoxville where I was Mayor such a deal would have been illegal without open competition). My question is whether this is temporarily concluded or actually terminated.

Where does this place possible renovations to the Cohen Bldg?

I hope the Storm does not halt BBG operations.

October Networking Event

There was a great turnout for this week's networking event, sponsored by the BBG Office of Communications and External Affairs. From 9:00am to 10:00am on October 25, the first floor of the Cohen Building was filled with people gathering to chat with colleagues from around the building and to eat a delicious array of autumnal-themed breakfast treats.

This event is the latest in a series of monthly networking events, jointly sponsored by VOA/IBB/BBG. These events started as a grassroots effort by (b) (6) who continue to organize the gatherings. They are a great way to participate, and connect with colleagues across the organization in a low-key setting!

Each month the event is sponsored by a different group from around the building. Stay tuned for more details on November's event, which will be sponsored by the CFC team. Does your office want to sponsor a future month? Contact (b) (6)

[REDACTED] to find out how!

Colleagues,

Thanks so much to all who took part in today's festivities – from planning to baking to set-up to bringing in those decorative flourishes that made it a unique, seasonal event.

The financial contributions were put to full use; thanks to your generosity, we attracted a big, lively crowd and gave them something to sip and nosh on while enjoying one another's company.

A number of people on the spot, as well as a few others in the halls, said this event was a great success. I told each and every one that I feel immensely lucky to be part of such a terrific team.

For those who were unable to attend: We missed you, but you didn't miss out entirely. There will be a recap of the action on Tune In soon!

Subject: Our fun networking event -- Thursday, Oct. 25

Colleagues,

The agency networking event that we've volunteered to host - at 9 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 25 - is a week away! (b) (6) Tish and I suggest a seasonal/autumn theme that allows for a bit of spooky creativity should anyone like to give a nod to Halloween.

We're looking to keep the logistics simple. We'll serve cider and other items that can be purchased in advance – a provisional list and cost estimate will be assembled over the weekend. Meantime, if there is a specialty item that you'd like to make at home, please say the word and we'll factor that in. The personal touch is always welcome at events like this, but certainly not mandatory.

Additionally, if you have decorative items at home that you'd like to bring to sit atop the refreshment tables or nearby, let us know. Better to use those than to take the time to create something new for these couple of hours. We'll be gathering in the same space as previous networking events: just off the main hallway, outside the auditorium.

Set-up will start at 8 a.m. on Thursday, but not everyone will be needed for that. However, please plan to be on hand to assist and participate in the event. I'll be doing the Costco run on the previous night. Contributions at whatever level you can afford will be welcome – Tuleda and Tish will handle the collections among their respective teams.

Many thanks,

Lynne

Your opinion does not answer the question of whether he can also vote on issues. While you opine that this counts towards a quorum can this person also vote and attend Governors only briefings? Also who does the written opinion come from at State? Who must sign it to make it valid? I think it is important for you to issue a formal opinion on this to place in the minutes for the November 15 BBG meeting.

I am not trying to be argumentative but rather precise in terms of dotting the i's and crossing the t's.

Governor Ashe -- The duly authorized representative of the Secretary of State has always counted toward the quorum requirement. This is clearly consistent with the International Broadcasting Act.

You are correct that there should be a written delegation in accordance with State Department rules. If the State Department were to issue a delegation of authority to (b) (6) (in accordance with State's rules) allowing him to represent the Secretary of State at this meeting, then his presence would count toward the quorum. This is entirely consistent with BBG practice.

By the way, my opinion is not based on convenience, but on a review of the provisions of the International Broadcasting Act and the existing delegation of authority from the Secretary of State to the Undersecretary of State for Public Diplomacy. I would be happy to review the relevant parts of the statute with you if that would be helpful.

Frankly, if your opinion is correct it would make life easier in getting a quorum. However, making life easier is not the standard we act on. It must be whether it is legal or not and how it comports with past practice and precedent. State needs to weigh in on this which I assume Secretary Sonenshine can get to happen.

However, for the two years and 4 months I have been here, the representative of the Under Secretary has neither voted or counted towards a quorum. He/she is the representative of the representative of the Secretary who is a BBG member by law. It seems to me the Secretary must designate the representative as she has designated Sec. Sonenshine. A different representative cannot be named by Sec. Sonenshine but must be named by Sec. Clinton.

This is relevant as it applies to the three entities too. However a quorum there is 4 persons not 5 persons as it a majority of the existing members which is 7. BBG quorum is 5 as it is a majority of the 9 members.

I am not trying to make life difficult but rather assure we act by the rules and laws enacted by Congress. We cannot have legal opinions based on convenience but on the law. I am not suggesting this is based on convenience. State needs a written document here and there is time to secure it. It also sets a precedent for the future. Let the record show that Sec. Sonenshine is an able and effective Board member who participates fully when she is there.

I think we should develop a method by which this can be accommodated. If the BBG meetings are public then it should not be hard to let interested citizens who pay for BBG speak. There should be a time limit. Five minutes seems reasonable per person with a requirement to sign up on a first come basis. Other federal agencies do this. I do not think it would be difficult and would send positive signals as to our interest in hearing from not just employees but citizens in general. My experience with this over the years has been positive.

Dear Lynn:

What a shame. If the BBG invites the public, why not allow for comment? Are there any specific rules within the BBG that prevent public comments at meetings?

Here are some links to show that the public's verbal comments are welcome at other federal agency meetings.

This is a link to the meeting regulations for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission:
<http://www.nrc.gov/reading-rm/doc-collections/nuregs/brochures/br0297/br0297.pdf>

This is a link to a meeting announcement for Department of Health and Human Services Meeting of the Presidential Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS:
<http://aids.gov/federal-resources/pacha/meetings/2010/june-2010-meeting-notice.pdf>

It's my understanding that one benefit of the Sunshine Act was so that government wouldn't hold "closed door, we're not doing anything good and we don't want anyone to know that" type meetings.

I'd like to request the proper channels through which I can appeal your decision to deny a 3-minute comment at the BBG's December 14, 2012 Full Board Meeting.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Dear (b) (6)

Thanks again for your ongoing interest in US international broadcasting.

Sorry it took a little while to get back to you, but since the request from a member of the public to make remarks at the open meeting has no precedent that anyone here is aware of, I needed to check with several people, including Board leadership.

Unfortunately, the press of regular business at open Board meetings does not leave time for speaking requests from the public. There is an opportunity at periodic "town hall" type meetings. This board has held one such meeting and is working to identify the next available date.

When the notice is posted for the Board's December 14 open meeting in keeping with the Government in the Sunshine Act, there will be the usual opportunity for members of the public to attend as observers on a first-come, first-served basis. As a courtesy, I will flag the notice for your attention when BBG Public Affairs posts it. As you know, members of the public are invited to observe at these meetings.

If you have input you'd like to offer, I'm happy to facilitate that with the Board.

All the best,

Lynne

Governors,

As you are aware, Rep. Ed Royce (R-CA) had expressed interest in serving as the chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in the 113th Congress. This afternoon, it became official. Please see the article below for more information.

We will work on drafting a congratulatory letter from the Board to Mr. Royce.

Royce Wins Foreign Affairs Chairmanship
By Emily Cadei, CQ Roll Call

California Republican Ed Royce will be the new chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in the next Congress, according to a GOP leadership aide.

As anticipated, the 10-term congressman from Orange County defeated Rep. Christopher H. Smith, R-N.J., for the post in a Republican caucus vote on Tuesday. The current chairwoman, Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, R-Fla., is stepping down due to House GOP term limits.

Royce currently chairs the Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Terrorism, Nonproliferation and Trade and plans to continue to emphasize oversight of U.S. counterterrorism programs. He is also a member of the House Financial Services Committee and hopes to tap that expertise to help shape U.S. trade and export control policies from the helm of Foreign Affairs.

Though a conservative, Royce is not considered to be as polarizing as Ros-Lehtinen, who has been a harsh critic of the Obama administration's foreign policies, particularly related to the Middle East, Cuba and the United Nations.

Democrats will also have a new face leading the committee's minority, after Rep. Howard L. Berman, D-Calif., lost reelection in November. Rep. Eliot L. Engel, D-N.Y., is the favorite to win the ranking member post.

Rep Rohrabacher believes "abrupt dismissal" of Radio Free Asia Tibetan director was "for political reasons."

Posted: 27 Nov 2012 05:27 AM PST

Tibet Sun, 20 Nov 2012, Lobsang Wangyal: "Radio Free Asia (RFA) has dismissed Ngapo Jigme, its director of Tibetan Language Service, without revealing the reasons for his sacking. Npo has been director of the Radio Free Asia Tibetan Service since its inception 16 years ago. Jamyang Norbu, author, intellectual, and prominent supporter of Tibetan independence, also had his contract terminated by RFA, a few months ago. It is speculated that pressure from the Central Tibetan Administration in Dharamshala is responsible for the recent removal of the long-time Director. On being asked by Tibet Sun about the reasons for Ngapo's dismissal, RFA's Media Relations Manager Rohit Mahajan replied in an email: '... Speculation that Mr Ngapo's employment was terminated for political reasons is categorically untrue,' and that reports of Ngapo was escorted from the building by security personnel are false. ... In a letter to Radio Free Asia President Libby Liu on 15 November inquiring about Ngapo's dismissal, US Congressman Dana Rohrabacher expressed concerns about censorship in the radio service. Rohrabacher wrote, 'I have reason to believe that he was terminated for political reasons.'"

Subject: New VOA Afghan Service Chief

Governors,

I am pleased to inform you that an award-winning Afghan journalist and author, (b) (6) has been selected as the new VOA Afghanistan Service Chief. He is coming from Kabul in the near future to take charge of this important and strategic VOA language service. (b) (6) began his journalism career reporting on the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in the late 1980s. Following the Soviet withdrawal in 1989, he attended the Lawrenceville School in Lawrenceville, New Jersey, and Harvard College, from which he graduated in 1994 with a degree in history and politics. He spent the next 10 years working as a Dow Jones reporter and editor in New York, covering the United Nations and global energy markets for Dow Jones Newswires and the Wall Street Journal.

Starting in 2007, (b) (6) returned to Afghanistan working for Internews Network, providing oversight of news and cultural programming for "Salam Watandar" (Hello Countrymen) Radio and helping it become Afghanistan's largest network of independent radio stations. (b) (6) spent the 2011-2012 academic year as a John S. Knight Fellow in Journalism at Stanford University. As I write he is in Kabul, working for Internews, and preparing to move to Washington.

Veteran VOA television producer (b) (6), who served as Afghan Service Chief for some years, until a few months ago, did much to strengthen TV Ashna, our signature evening news broadcast in Dari and Pashto, which is broadcast on RTA, and started our second TV broadcast "Karwan", aimed at younger viewers, as well as overseeing steady growth in our radio audience.

I felt that it is important at this time that the new Service Chief be an Afghan. (b) (6) will lead our efforts even as President Obama draws down U.S. combat forces between now and 2014, and as full responsibility for Afghanistan's future transfers more and more into Afghan hands.

Regards,

(b) (6)

The two week clock commences when I receive a formal electronic version of the draft report. I am told that could be as soon as tomorrow.

Governor Lynton will send an email to all Governors asking for their comments and providing a deadline for submission.

We previewed the annual audience numbers -- one performance measure in the PAR -- in a press event and release, and at this past week's Strategy and Budget Committee meeting. The full report is an integrated presentation of the Agency's program performance, financial accountability, and managerial effectiveness and is intended to assist Congress, the President, and the public in assessing the BBG's performance during FY 2012.

I wanted to let you know that a Turkish delegation went into Syria this week to meet with Syrian President Bashar Assad to request the release of Alhurra correspondent Bashar Fahmi and cameraman Cuneyt Unal. They were able to meet with Assad today and Cuneyt Unal was released to the delegation. At this moment we are still waiting to hear if there is any information regarding Bashar Fahmi, which we expect within a few hours. The BBG has a statement will be issued as soon as we learn about Bashar. Below is an AFP article about Cuneyt's release.

Turkish journalist missing for months in Syria freed

(AFP) – 14 minutes ago

ANKARA — A Turkish journalist who went missing in Syria in August and was believed to have been held by government troops has been freed and handed to Turkish lawmakers touring the country on Saturday, the Anatolia news agency reported.

"I am very happy, I am doing well," Cuneyt Unal was quoted by the agency as saying by telephone from Syria.

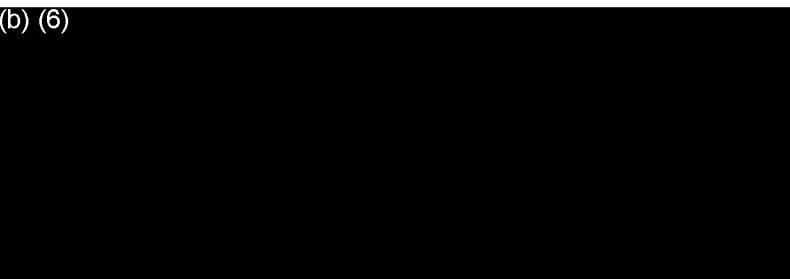

One of the lawmakers, Hasan Akgol of Turkey's main CHP opposition party, told the agency that the cameraman was in good health.

The journalist and lawmakers were due to return to Turkey later in the day, Akgol said.

Cameraman Unal and his Jordanian colleague Bashar Fahmi, who were working for US broadcaster Al-Hurra, disappeared in the northern city of Aleppo on August 20.

The Anatolia report had no immediate information on Fahmi's whereabouts or fate.

Subject: BBG Annual Global Audience Estimate

Governors,

Attached and below, please find a news release about the BBG's annual global audience estimate that is about to go out; it will be familiar already to the members of the Communications Committee.

The news release and supporting documents, also attached, were prepared to coincide with a just-completed conference call that Dick Lobo and Bruce Sherman held with key Hill staffers, public diplomacy bloggers and other interested stakeholders. The conference call on the BBG's global audience estimate is done annually as a precursor to release of the Performance Accountability Report (PAR).

As you may recall, the PAR goes to the White House and Congress and is made available to the public each November 15; this year's PAR will be delayed by a day due to complications involving Superstorm Sandy. It will be released this Friday, Nov. 16.

Should you have any questions regarding the PAR or the global audience estimate released today, Bruce Sherman is standing by. The PAR is to be discussed during tomorrow's open meeting of the Strategy and Budget Committee.

BBG Measures Audience Growth in Key Markets

Washington, D.C. – U.S. government-funded, civilian international broadcasters reached an estimated 175 million people per week on a variety of media platforms in 2012, including large audiences in countries that are key priorities for U.S. foreign policy, the Broadcasting Board of Governors announced today.

The figure, which reflects the combined viewership and listenership of Voice of America, Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty, Radio and TV Martí, Radio Free Asia and the Middle East Broadcasting Networks (Alhurra TV and Radio Sawa), is a net decrease of 12 million from last year's record total as detailed in the BBG's annual Performance Accountability Report. While this drop likely reflects actual loss in overall audience, some of it may also be attributable to a change in research providers and resulting changes in the survey questionnaire, both of which occurred during FY 2012.

"Reliable and high-quality research informs our strategies, which in turn helps us fulfill our critical mission of reaching marketplaces around the globe, such as Afghanistan, Iraq, and Pakistan," said BBG Presiding Governor Michael Lynton. "This agency is committed to evaluating and assessing performance through a rigorous research program as required by law. And as audience preferences change, we will continue to innovate on all platforms -- radio, TV, the Internet and social media."

Audiences grew substantially in Iran, where more than 10 million people watch or hear BBG programs, and in other key countries including Libya, and Ethiopia. The largest change was in Indonesia, where audience numbers dropped by 17.4 million, from 38 million to 21 million people, in part due to a potential overestimate in 2011. Among other countries that saw audience declines were Egypt, Nigeria, and Burma, as these markets became more competitive and open; in Haiti, where surge broadcasts instituted after the 2010 earthquake diminished; and in Russia, where government media regulations have curtailed distribution.

BBG broadcasts reached significant audiences in other important markets, including 75 percent of the adult population in Afghanistan, 75 percent in the Somaliland and Puntland regions of Somalia, 67 percent in Iraq, 30 percent in Libya, and 27 percent in the FATA region of Pakistan. In FY 2012, the BBG enhanced its distribution network, adding new FM transmitters in key cities in Libya and Afghanistan.

Consistent with the practice of other international broadcasters, the BBG measures and reports unduplicated audience; each individual, regardless of how many programs watched or listened to, or media platforms used, is counted only once. This is a conservative approach to quantifying the audience and in keeping with the mission of BBG to inform and engage people, rather than count individual interactions with them.

Other indices of impact -- such how trustworthy audiences find BBG programming and how much the broadcasts increase their understanding, the scope or quality of an individual's consumption of BBG programming, the level of social media engagement, website page views, file downloads or media citations of BBG news coverage -- are important factors considered for program and strategic planning purposes.

Radio and TV are increasingly close in terms of reach by platform, with radio reaching more than 95 million people per week and television measures in at 92 million people. The Internet audience was between 12 and 13 million, with the largest online audiences measured in Iraq, at 2.7 million.

The audience estimate includes research conducted within the past five years in over 70 countries and territories and surveys representing 2.8 billion people in markets around the globe. The 2012 Performance and Accountability Report will be available to download on Nov. 16.

This is the actual tape from (b) (6) speaking to RFERL on the Moscow personnel firings as it appeared on BBG watch. I urge you to listen to it. Draw your own conclusions. Apparently someone recorded this while (b) spoke.

<http://www.usgbroadcasts.com/bbgwatch/2012/11/11/radio-liberty-in-exile-posts-rferl-president-steven-korns-dismissive-comments-about-russian-opposition-leaders/>

However, I feel the content is stunning. As a manager myself when I was Mayor for 16 years and as Ambassador for 5 years at Embassy, it shows virtually no empathy for fired persons. He basically says it is my way or the highway. This approach can only incite fear and anger. As an American I cannot be proud of the way he is handling this. It sends the wrong message to working men and women who make up RFERL.

This approach can only leave lingering hostility towards him and his small management team. As a RFERL Board we have not faced up to the management issues we face now. Perhaps we will never face up to it and it may be that I am the only one who worries about (b) (6) management style which triggers so much unrest. We have not met as a Board on this. Missing is any sense of compassion or concern. They are key ingredients to a sound management approach.

Our chair, Dennis Mulhaupt, under the employment contract with (b) (6) has not done the annual evaluation after the first year of employment which passed several months ago. At least that is what Gov. Mulhaupt told me at the last September RFERL Board meeting. If he has done it since then, he did not seek views of all other Board members and/or share the results of his evaluation with the full Board. If it is done, I use this e mail to ask for a copy of it.

It may be that an RFERL audit committee meeting will occur in December and I hope all Board members will be invited to attend if such occurs. That is what I do as chair of MBN audit which is meeting November 15 and all MBN Board members can listen in if they wish.

If we continue to sidestep this building personnel/morale issue, we will continue the damage which is being done to RFERL, to its image, to freedom loving citizens and to US foreign policy.

Subject: Re: Status of November Meeting

(b) (6) has stated and opined that Sec Sonenshine can send a rep which counts towards a quorum. That does not seem to be noted here. If that happens then we have a quorum when Gov Perino and McCue call in for afternoon so why would this be canceled?

But in either case, the grantee Board meetings plus MBN audit should occur and the briefings for those Governors in attendance should occur plus Gov Meehan has called a Strategy and Budget Committee meeting that day for business. We will have a full gathering of the committee membership. No one will be absent.

I feel staff should still brief Governors for those issues outlined in the proposed agenda sent out a few days ago. Grantees can still meet.

Will there be a December meeting? Or will February, 2013 be the next meeting?

Governors,

As of this afternoon, we have definitive word that Governors Lynton, Mulhaupt, and Under Secretary Sonenshine will not be able to attend the November 15 Board meeting.

Governors Meehan and Ashe have confirmed their availability to attend in person.

Governors McCue and Perino have confirmed their availability to participate by phone in the late afternoon.

Therefore, there will be no quorum for a public BBG meeting and no formal votes can be taken. The Government in the Sunshine Act does not require public observation (webcast) if no meeting takes place.

If you wish, Board members can still meet on November 15 to receive briefings by staff and to conduct RFA and MBN corporate Board meetings in the afternoon.

If the Board members who have indicated their availability on November 15 would like to hold briefings and RFA and MBN corporate Board meetings at RFA headquarters, please let us know as soon as possible so that we can prepare an amended, updated agenda.

Thank you.

Dear (b) (6),

I have received a copy of the November 1 letter to (b) (6). It was not received until November 7 at RFA outlining material needed for a meeting on tomorrow, November 8 and a later meeting on November 15. This is simply not enough time to comply.

Without speaking to the merits of the issue, I do wish to speak to the time frame both as a BBG Governor and RFA vice chairman. If a letter is dated November 1, it should be hand delivered the next day or sent by courier. Arriving the day before material is requested for an entrance conference is not adequate.

To request meetings the same day BBG is literally meeting at RFA is also not a good approach.

Second, if the letter is going to say clearly that the BBG thru OCR is conducting a compliance review then BBG Governors should be notified as we serve on both Boards. We need to be informed. We want to know it is happening and what the outcome it in case we need to take action.

This letter is not meant to be critical except to say that better and more timely communication is needed. I strongly support the purpose for which the OCR exists. I strongly oppose discrimination in all its ugly forms. I enjoyed visiting your office when I have been going to different areas within BBG/IBB.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe
BBG Governor

Why are the legal counsels for the three grantees not invited to hear the IBB Director's report? Seems like the VOA and OCB legal counsel is there in the form of the deputy general counsel (b) (6) but not (b) (6) who are interim or regular general counsels for the three grantees. I think this is an error and sets up a "we versus them" scenario which can only cause long term problems. It does not build confidence. Courtesy and collegiality would suggest we include them. At least let them know the governance committee is meeting. I assume it must be announced on BBG web site even if it is by phone so they will learn of it anyway by compliance with federal regs.

I urge they be included and invited to participate. I am sure there will be questions on the IBB Director's report where Governors want the reaction of the three grantees? Why not have them there and send them the same advance copy being sent to the three Governors and already given to Gov. Lynton? This would shorten the process. Otherwise, we will have to do it at a second meeting.

With such a crowd apparently participating in this call, I have trouble believing they will not learn of it anyway.

The Bureaucratic Attack on International Broadcasting - Heritage Foundation
<<http://blog.heritage.org/2012/11/02/the-bureaucratic-attack-on-international-broadcasting/>> , November 2, 2012

By Caitlin Duvall

November 2, 2012

The recent layoff of Voice of America (VOA) employees in Russia comes at a time when U.S. international broadcasting is also losing ground to bureaucratic overkill.

Despite a continually expanding budget, many mission-critical broadcasting services are being cut, personnel are being let go, and broadcasters are being required to do more with less. Low job satisfaction within the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) has become a growing trend in recent years. Many employees attribute their dissatisfaction to accepted behaviors of underperformance from managers. Mere awareness of these and other problems has failed to bring about much-needed changes.

But perhaps the biggest problem facing U.S. international broadcasting is its very own leadership. The BBG's nine-person board, which oversees all government civilian broadcasting, was created to serve as a firewall between policymakers and broadcasters. However, as one VOA employee puts it, broadcasters "need more protection from the firewall than they need the firewall itself."

Many of the BBG members exercise little meaningful guidance to the group (if they even attend the meetings at all). The board has also been criticized for cracking down on the disclosure of “deliberative information” circulating internally. With its core mission being the promotion of America’s policy positions abroad, it seems counterproductive to stifle internal communications, especially when collaboration and exchange are essential for success.

The inefficiencies highlighted above are in need of real solutions. In order for the U.S. to effectively promote its policies abroad, Congress should consider rewriting the legislation that created the BBG in a way that ensures professional management and a transparent structure. It should also include an independent strategic overview of all broadcasting entities of the U.S. government.

A much-needed review of the BBG is underway at the State Department Office of the Inspector General, which will most likely find these solutions necessary to correcting the internal problems of U.S. international broadcasting.

In a time when the promotion of U.S. policies is sorely needed to combat a growing anti-American sentiment around the world, the U.S. should undertake reforms to improve the management practices and structures of the BBG. If not, the organization is in danger of remaining, in the words of Senator Tom Coburn (R-OK), the “most worthless organization in the federal government.”

Phone ins do count. For BBG it is 5 as quorum is a majority of the total membership even if the membership is down to 5 persons. (b) (6) has opined that Tara Sonenshine can send a rep and that counts towards a quorum for BBG if sending a rep is consistent with State Dept regs.

this should be discussed at the next RFA Board meeting which is November 15. Time not determined. Not sure if BBG will meet November 15 but should be discussed there too whenever BBG Meets. Apparently not determined. Also not sure there is a December meeting and none is scheduled for January so February, 2013 may be first time to discuss this as a BBG Board unless there is a special meeting before then. We could meet after we hear the OIG report on Monday, November 19 by phone if there is interest in doing so.

We also have the very negative OPM survey results which are consistent and in some cases worst than what we already knew but have not been solved. Additionally, the meltdown of RFERL in Moscow does not go away which merits a RFERL Board meeting and RFERL audit has not met since May despite ongoing RFERL audit and questions as to pay packages for the new Moscow hires.

I think going to February without a BBG Meeting is not defensible and impossible to explain in a credible way to the public or to the Hill. Hopefully, that will not happen but our July meeting was not held and October 11 meeting was reduced to two hours and most items scheduled discarded from the private session. Our September meeting ended with 85 Percent of the agenda not heard.

We have work to do. This week, and Tuesday in particular, promise to be fascinating. May all enjoy to some degree.

When I was in DC yesterday on Nov 1 it was never mentioned to me by anyone and yet I am sure Dick Lobo, (b) (6), Jeff Trimble knew it was under consideration. No one mentioned it to me. Is this meeting notice going to be placed on the BBG web site? How can this go forward when Gov Lynton has not named the committee which the Board in September voted to create and directed him to name? Should not that committee meet first as it has recommendations to make? On October 11 he acknowledged he had not named it.

Finally, concurrent with this we learn of the terrible results from the OPM survey of morale which shows things are worst than ever. Gov. Mulhaupt says we should meet on this as governance committee. Why is that not on the agenda for discussion November 8? Which is more important the CEO or the Morale or

Also will entity heads be included along with (b) (6) at governance by phone meeting? I have copied our nominated new chair on this so he is informed.

I think one hour on this topic is inadequate. It weakens the merit of the final product as it shows we did not take time in a thoughtful setting where we were all present to act.

Unhappily yours,

Victor Ashe

PS Dennis did call me a few minutes ago and said he assumed that I had been called and regretted that I had not been contacted. It was not intentional he said which I know is true from his vantage point.

It is beginning to look like December 14 will not be a Board meeting now and nothing is set for January. If this means BBG goes to February without a Board meeting then it is shameful and makes all look bad. There are really pressing issues especially with RFERL in Moscow continuing to implode and bad results from OPM.

Subject: Proposed Agenda for Governance Committee Mtg by Phone on November 8, 2012

Dear Governance Committee Members,

Attached please find a draft agenda for a telephonic meeting of the Governance Committee to be held on Thursday, November 8, from 2:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. EST. This draft agenda has been approved by Governor Mulhaupt.

Given the short window in which Committee members can meet, the Committee will consider the IBB Director's plan for the creation of a CEO as directed by the Board at its September 2012 meeting.

The relevant text of the Board's September 13, 2012 decision is reproduced below for your convenience.

... That the Board instruct the IBB Director, under the guidance of the Governance Committee, to develop a plan to address the following issues:

- a. The authorities that should be delegated from the Board to the CEO;
- b. The agency officers who should report directly to the CEO;
- c. The relationship of the CEO and the IBB Director;
- d. The relationship between the CEO and the Grantees, including how the relationship should be formalized and expressed in the grant agreements;
- e. A proposed budget and timeline for implementation of a CEO.

Please let us know if you have any questions. Please also let us know what number we can contact you for this meeting.

Thank you.

(b) (6) let's work together to look into this and adjust as needed. I believe the time change was based on this email from (b) (6) in another email trail:

Subject: RE: Communication from SkyNet

Below is the info that came from VOA. I don't fully understand what they are proposing.

We are on Asiasat-3 right now and New Skies, NSS-12 , so I don't know what they mean when they talk about Asiasat-IOR and Asiasat-340.

The change to 1400-1430 UTC is fine as that is when we currently run our RRSat program on Apstar 7. According to research, Thaicom 5 is the most popular satellite in Burma with about half of satellite owners using it. I don't know if BBG has Thaicom time.

I doubt I have the full set of email exchanges, so I'd ask (b) (6) to work with you and others as needed to sort this out. Am I correct that the next scheduled program is on Monday? If so, that should give time to work this through. I suggest that the technical colleagues start another email correspondence.

Going forward we can work on procedures to make sure that there is no confusion or misunderstanding.

Regards
Jeff

Agree. But, in my opinion, we shouldn't let perfection be the enemy of the good, either.

Also, I recommend we consider the longer-term. SkyNet only reaches 80,000 or so households now while we already have direct-to-home service going. It's not the key yet to wider distribution.

But, the same folks who operate SkyNet also control the Shwe FM network, and FM is a large and growing medium that we need to be on to have increasing impact in the country.

Bottom line: the SkyNet deal, like the English learning programs we placed on Myanmar Radio and TV earlier in the year, is part of an evolutionary process there. It's important as a step toward where we want to be as much as destination in itself.

Sharing here the latest on the SkyNet deal based on (b) (6) further negotiations today.

Do note SkyNet's proposal now to fashion a channel ultimately composed of both VOA and RFA content -- as well as (their proposal) Democratic Voice of Burma programming.

(b) (6) is in touch with you through emails exchanged earlier in your day. He sees (b) (6) tonight your time and will update him on the status of the talks. I think it is very important that you also weigh in and support a workable deal.

While I think not doing news now as the political environment matures is manageable (again, we have always known getting domestic distribution in Burma was going to be subject to many conditions), asking us to share a channel with DVB is something else. I find it problematic (and another new stipulation), but am open to other views.

Best, Bruce

Subject: Burma Interim Report - (b) (6) Agreement to Review!

Bruce:

We met with the Sky Net team this morning, and into the afternoon for more than three hours. Share as you see fit.

We listened to their explanation of events - they expected to have approval for our agreement from the Ministry of Information by now; and they suspect that announcing the signing raised the visibility level of the whole event. They said they were contacted by the Ministry of Information this past Saturday (1 December), and while the subject of ordering VOA's news off the air never came up (and never would, directly, they say), they were asked words to the effect of, "You're not about to do anything foolish, are you?"

And that, they say, put a scare into them. They maintain that they want to run news, and acknowledge that their viewers would want to see VOA and RFA. But basically, they say we've got a business to run that goes beyond Sky Net, and we believe it would be dangerous to run any news content in Burmese right now. French, English, Japanese, German...all okay. Burmese - a problem.

So we began to roll out a Plan B, which would allow them to cherry pick from the "VOA Asia" schedule, and run it as a block. As the conversation rolled along, a number of things became clear:

- They do not intend to run VOA content 24 hours a day.
- They're reserving space for RFA to eventually join the stream on the same channel.
- They're reserving space for Democratic Voice of Burma (DVB) to also join the stream on the same channel.

(b) (6) claims that DVB will be paying big money for the placement. He says he's heard $200K, and he swears that RFA has also offered Sky Net money for placement. If so, VOA becomes the loss leader that they believe will open the door to making money on this channel. I did make it clear to them that any RFA placement would come from our office, and could simply be added to the existing agreement at some later date. We also discussed that since VOA was the first, it should lay claim to prime time.

So. The way it stands is this: We negotiated the language of the placement agreement - the Basic "Affiliation and Licensing Agreement," which is attached. There were no changes made to this document. Annex I is also pristine. I did belatedly notice two remnants from earlier discussions in Annex II, both are highlighted, both are very minor. Annex III is where all the other changes are noted. Most of this language was approved by (b) earlier. We spent nearly 90 minutes discussing their proposals, which they said had already been approved by the Ministry of Information, and why we would not and could not sign them.

The two new sections are five - which they ask for, and says they may take programs live from our feed, or record them and play them back at convenient times. So long as they're not news programs, we're okay with it.

Section six strikes some language that pertains to ownership of edited programs or programs created from excerpting other programs. Since all they're running are whole programs ("Agency Product"), this really didn't apply, and so I agreed to it.

Important to state once again, that I stressed that the agreement and all of the annexes needed to be blessed by our legal people (b) and that (b) who was very disappointed about no news content, would weigh in before deciding if he will sign.

Now. What would be signed. The agreement is covered by a "Letter of Intent," which I cribbed from an earlier letter (b) wrote. It says nothing, except that we're going to work to finalize the Agreement by some date certain. We still need to agree to:

- Which programs they will take, and when they will air the "block" they intend to make.
- If we're even comfortable with the idea of a non-24 hour stream
- If we're comfortable with sharing a channel with DVB.
- Of course, if we're comfortable with no news
- Or might we want to figure out a way to do more news in English for this stream?

They still need to get Ministry of Information approval for the agreement we've just negotiated, since we threw out their proposed Annex III. They believe that will be pro forma, since there is no news content here. A nod from the MOI while the governors or (b) (6) are in Naypyidaw would, they say, go a long way.

They do ask that (b) (6) or the Governors, should they speak with the MOI word any concern in positive terms.

Not: "We understand you're getting in the way of putting our news on Sky Net."

But rather: "We've been talking to Sky Net about placing our news on their platform. You wouldn't object, would you?"

More I know not. I'm going to sleep for a few hours before it's time to pick up (b) (6) late tonight.

I've briefed (b) (6) at the Embassy; I'm making tentative plans to fly to Naypyidaw with (b) (6) tomorrow, to speak to the Ministry of Information - assuming there's a meeting (not confirmed as of 430 this afternoon.) Copying them here, because I promised I would.

Feel free to call - closer to 9am your time, please, if that's okay.

I have received this letter. It seems to me that the most appropriate action to take in light of the statements is for the BBG Office of Civil Rights headed by (b) (6) to undertake an inquiry on this and to determine if any laws of the US have been violated by an American entity. If an office other than OCR handles disability issues then it should be referred there. Certainly the RFERL Board should know if an inquiry actually occurs by BBG. I am not personally agreeing or disagreeing with the statements contained here.

The Honorable

Victor H. Ashe

Governor

The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG)

330 Independence Ave. SW

Washington, D.C. 20237

Dear Governor Ashe,

We have been asked by representatives of the fired Radio Liberty journalists, as well those who resigned in protest, to share with you their open letter to Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) (b) (6) in which they ask that two of their colleagues with disabilities and a single mother with dependent children be allowed to return to work.

We also enclose a personal account written by (b) (6), one of the disabled employees, who was a fully performing web editor, multimedia specialist and reporter before being forced to resign. You may already be familiar with media accounts how RFE/RL-hired guards prevented these journalists from entering the Moscow bureau and directed them to a law firm where they were informed that they no longer had a job and had no other choice but to agree to a termination of their employment contracts. RFE/RL executives with the help of security guards prevented these well known, highly respected and dedicated journalists from saying good bye to their radio and online audience of many years.

(b) (6) account and Russian media reports all indicate that employees who were fired included many new media specialists with more experience and greater multimedia skills than some of the newly hired employees who replaced them. According to latest media reports, Radio Liberty's Russian website has lost more than 60 percent of its daily visitors since September when the mass dismissals took place. Many Russian media reports, as well as statements from leading Russian human rights and democratic political leaders, assert that Radio Liberty has been destroyed as an effective pro-democracy medium and its reputation ruined in Russia.

A similar situation has developed in Kazakhstan, where RFE/RL management -- after dismissing several experienced journalists -- tried to produce and place sexually suggestive videos with obscene content to attract a new audience but instead caused a moral outrage among many Radio Liberty website visitors.

We urge you to take immediate action to address this crisis. We appeal to you to order RFE/RL to re-employ all Radio Liberty staffers who were forced to resign and want to return to work, including (b) [REDACTED]

Sincerely,

(b) (6)
[REDACTED]

Open Letter to (b) (6) [REDACTED]

(b) (6)

Leaving aside the appropriateness and reasonableness of your ongoing reform of the Russian Service of Radio Liberty, it is our professional and human duty to make the following statement.

During the mass layoffs in the Russian Service combined at the same time with mass recruitment of new employees, two of our colleagues were fired from Radio Liberty's Russian Service - Radio Liberty website editor (b) (6) [REDACTED] and coordinator of the Moscow office (b) (6) [REDACTED], who because of the state of their health are considered persons with disabilities. Furthermore, (b) (6) [REDACTED], a single mother of three young children, was also fired. Officially, they have left "by mutual agreement," in reality, your subordinates used psychological pressure to force them to resign.

We are convinced that this kind of treatment of vulnerable people violates the norms of civilized society and is directly contrary to the values which Radio Liberty defends in accordance with its mission. We are confident that the American taxpayers who fund the activities of the institution entrusted to you would strongly condemn the firing of vulnerable people with disabilities.

In this situation, we are convinced that the clarification of the circumstances of what happened to Radio Liberty must take place in the public forum.

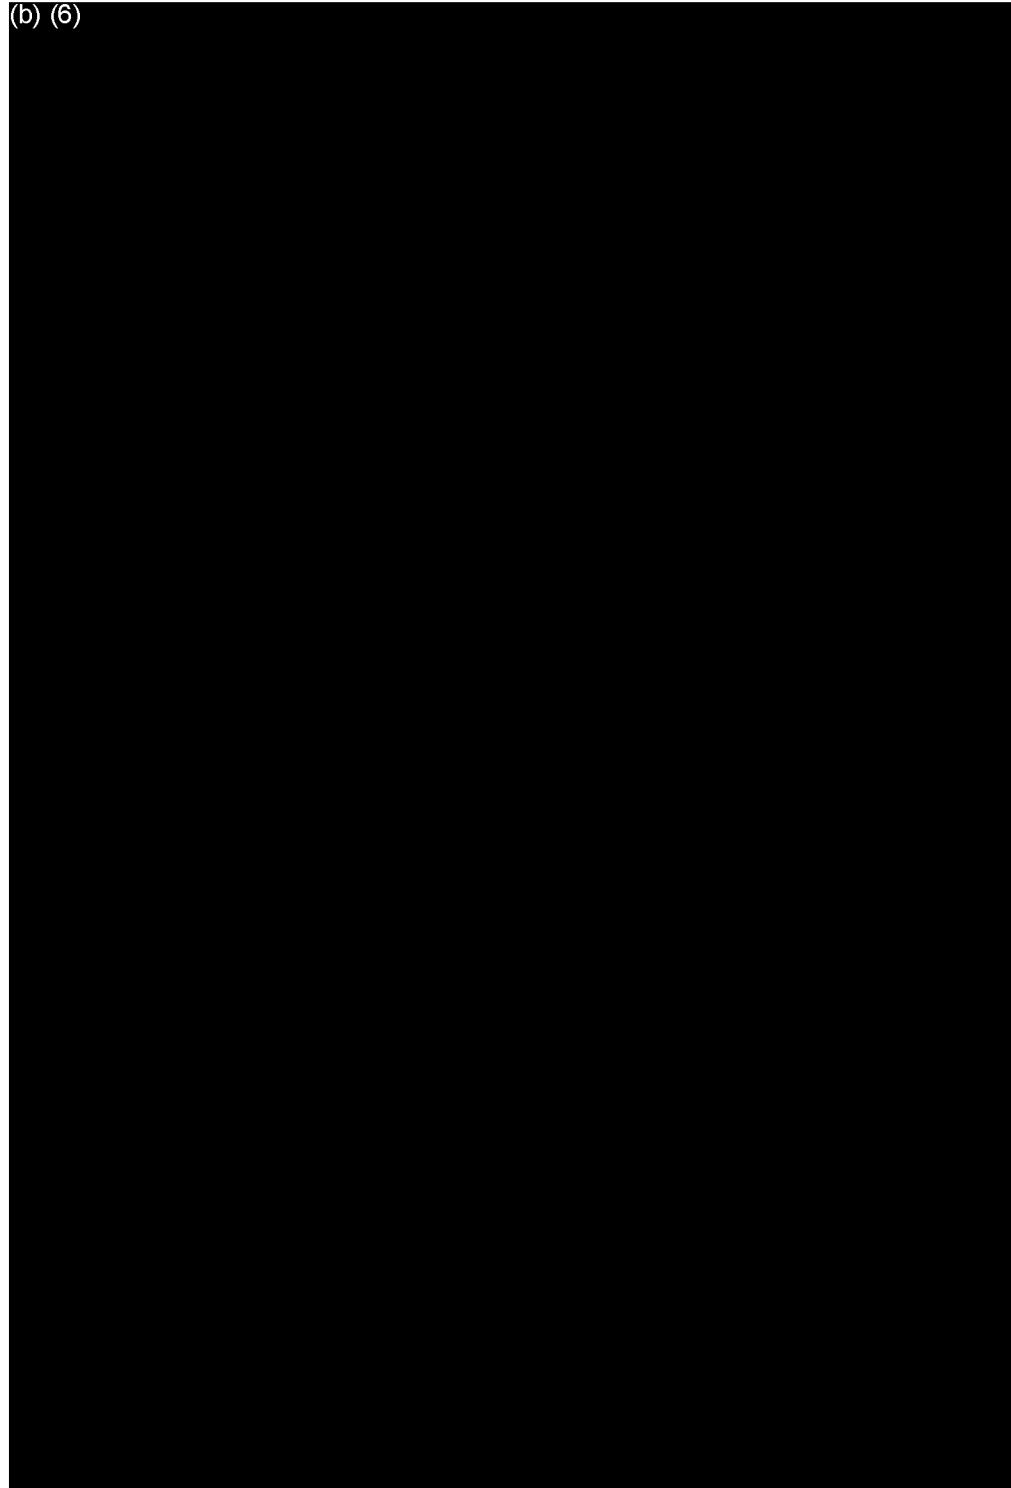

We do not expect charity from you. This is about the persons who are able to fully serve the mission of spreading democratic values in Russia and in the world. (b) (6) [REDACTED] worked effectively for many years for Radio Liberty. While they were employed, they have lost their health, which, despite the efforts of doctors, they did not fully regain. However, despite their status as persons with disabilities, (b) (6) [REDACTED] and (b) (6) [REDACTED] flawlessly continued to perform their duties.

We do not expect from your an apology - it is unlikely to make up for the moral damage RFE/RL corporate executives caused to these vulnerable people.

We demand the immediate return of our colleagues to work and are ready to defend their rights at every level, right up to the U.S. Congress.

This letter has been signed by former and current employees of Radio Liberty.

"Firing a disabled but fully employable and well performing person is extraordinary in any civilized country. I became disabled after a strike, which happened in 2008. My schedule, created at that time by RFE/RL management, was very demanding. I spent more than ten hours a week doing live broadcasts, three days – early in the morning. My stroke didn't happen at the work place, but it came just one hour after my exhausting morning shift. I didn't demand that RFE/RL pay for my medical treatment, although it wouldn't have been hard to prove in court that my work schedule was the principle reason for my stroke.

I've always thought that RFE/RL's mission is more important than my health, and that we would always come to an agreement, if needed.

We did. In 2008, RFE/RL management arranged my schedule in a different way. I started working from home on the web team as an editor, coming to the editorial office just once a week. As a longtime disabled employee, I thought that I would never be thrown out on the street by an American publicly-funded and publicly-owned company. I did not think that given my employment record and the public nature of my employment, such a thing would be likely to happen to me if I were employed in the United States and that RFE/RL would treat its employees as if they were working in America. But I was employed in Russia and I was wrong.

The mass firings at the RFE/RL Moscow bureau were done so inappropriately and with the use of such strong psychological pressure, that many of my colleagues and I got a distressing impression that fighting for our rights would be fruitless and impossible.

When RFE/RL managers said I was fired, I reminded them that I was disabled. They suggested that I could work one more month as a freelancer, a prolongation of the suffering.

It will be quite impossible for me to find a job in Moscow. I'm 52, and I'm disabled.

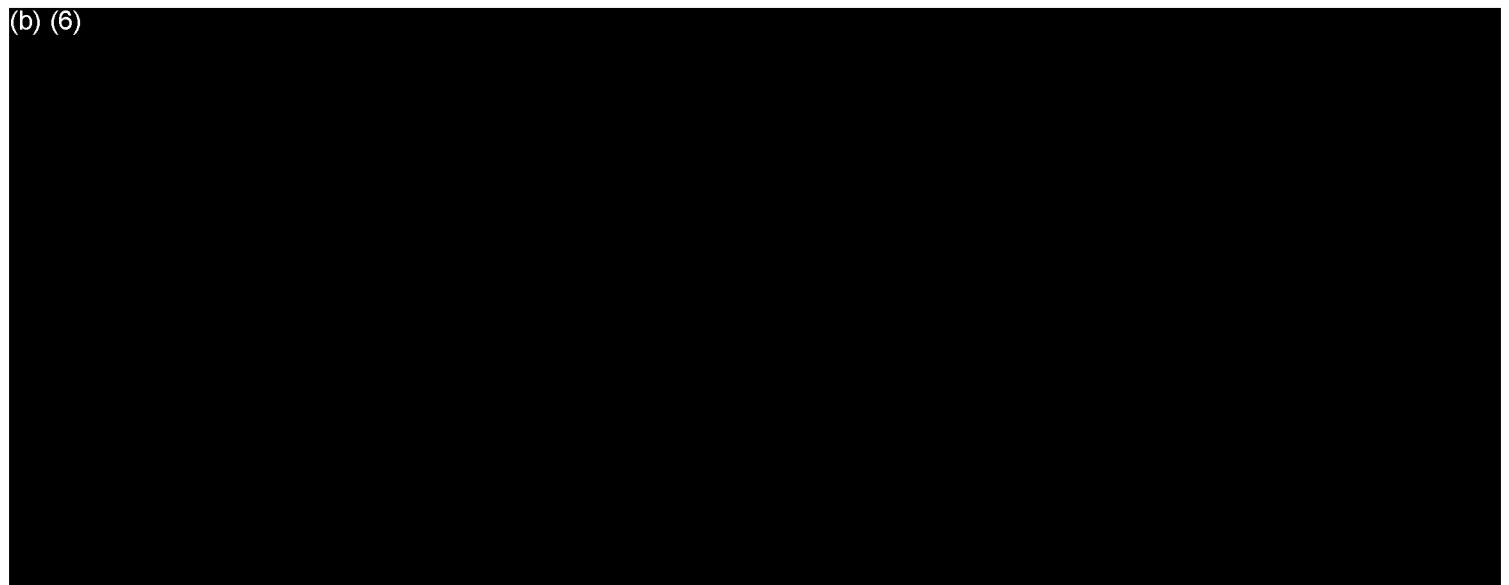

It is worth mentioning something that the chief executive did to increase our torment and humiliate us even more. Shortly before the mass firings, (b) (6) told us that we would finally be getting medical insurance. We spent years fighting for it, and this apparent victory seemed especially valuable for me. But as it turned out, we were not the ones to see the fruits of our struggles. Medical insurance will be a bonus for some other people who didn't become disabled working for RFE/RL. Not for someone like me.

The new RFE/RL management keeps bragging about Radio Svoboda's transformation into as a multimedia platform, which doesn't involve dividing staff into radio and Internet teams. I was one of the employees who worked exactly without such a division of functions as one of the website's editors, sports columnist and radio correspondent.

I also did photos and videos while covering UEFA championship in Kiev. I think my experience could become an example of new, multimedia Radio Svoboda.

But instead I was fired without any warning whatsoever or anyone bothering to talk to me or seek my input. I was informed of the fact that my experience in an area which coincides with RFE/RL multimedia strategy, as well as my health, are of no concern to the RFE/RL management. Such an attitude on the part of RFE/RL's top American executives is capricious, nonprofessional and disreputable at the same time." —(b) (6)

Dear Victor,

I was happy to know you had a successful visit to Burma, and I'll look forward to hearing more about the trip upon your return.

In the meantime, I wanted you to know that we were able to resolve the matter I mentioned in an earlier e-mail (see below) involving thorough fact-checking of the information for the letter to Congress regarding the Murrow facility, and that letter went to the Hill. It will be included in the briefing books that (b) (6) and her team are sending to Board members tomorrow, but in the meantime I've attached a copy for you.

Wishing you a safe trip home,

Lynne

I completely agree, both from the point of view of this agency and my previous job at State, which has a large legislative affairs team and still sometimes sees long delays in responding to incoming correspondence.

But as a former senior congressional staffer serving the chairmen of two foreign affairs committees, I also expected Executive Branch agencies to be thorough and accurate in their replies.

Appreciate your making the distinction between my team's effort and the source of the delay. We'll get it done a.s.a.p.

John wanted to participate but could not, due to an out-of-town obligation in connection with consulting work that he is doing now in the private sector.

We have a good range of participants, including leading journalists who are working now in Russia or worked there in the past, and who can bring current, thoughtful knowledge about the worsening media situation and about the opportunities that might be available for VOA and RFE/RL.

We expect representatives from State and the Hill to be on hand as well – we don't yet have a final list of those who will attend.

Yet her trip to Myanmar and Thailand was on official business. Therefore she had to hire a taxi and take time off from work to secure this which cost BBG the taxi fare and time off. This is a case where there should be some flexibility to accommodate unusual but legitmiate situaitons. Is there anyway this rule can be modified to prevent similar issues in the future?

Governors,

We have learned that The Gallup Organization (GALLUP) was suspended from doing business with the Federal Government on December 6, 2012 by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security/FEMA ("the Suspending Official"). GALLUP was notified by certified mail, but has not yet indicated that it knows about the suspension. Nevertheless, we anticipate that there could be press reports concerning the suspension soon.

We will provide additional information about this matter during Governors' Briefing this Friday morning.

The Suspending Official's action indicates there is evidence that immediate action is necessary to protect the Government's interest. GALLUP's suspension is effective throughout the Executive Branch, including BBG. Under the law, contractors suspended are excluded from receiving contracts and Executive Branch agencies are precluded from soliciting offers from or awarding contracts to, or consenting to subcontracts with these contractors, unless the Agency determines that there is a compelling reason to do so.

A contractor suspension endures for a temporary period, pending the completion of investigations and any ensuing legal proceedings, unless sooner terminated by the Suspending Official. If legal proceedings are not initiated within 12 months after the date of the suspension notice, the suspension shall be terminated unless the Assistant Attorney General requests its extension, in which case it may be extended for an additional 6 months.

What this means for BBG?

BBG may continue its existing contract with GALLUP, but may not issue task orders under the contract unless the Agency finds that there is a compelling reason to do so.

Based on input from the Director of Strategy and Development, the Office of General Counsel and the Agency's Procurement Executive, I believe that there is a compelling reason to continue to issue task orders for research to Gallup on an interim basis. The International Broadcasting Act mandates BBG to conduct audience research, which is used to evaluate and assess the impact of BBG-sponsored broadcasting activities, which is also required by law. To replace GALLUP as a source of research, BBG will have to initiate a new procurement activity, a competitive process which is governed by the Federal Acquisition Regulations (the FAR), and could take 3 – 5 months (but may take up to a year) to conclude.

Because of the statutory mandate for research and the important programmatic role of audience research in BBG's activities, I have determined, as IBB Director, that there is a compelling reason to continue to award task orders for research to GALLUP under its existing contract until an alternate source of research can be responsibly procured. The Agency will begin work forthwith on a new procurement to replace GALLUP.

If GALLUP's suspension is terminated during the pendency of the new procurement activity, BBG would have adequate justification to cancel the new procurement if it were in the Agency's interest to do so.

We look forward to robust, lively discussions.

Dear Lynn:

What a shame. If the BBG invites the public, why not allow for comment? Are there any specific rules within the BBG that prevent public comments at meetings?

Here are some links to show that the public's verbal comments are welcome at other federal agency meetings.

This is a link to the meeting regulations for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission:

<http://www.nrc.gov/reading-rm/doc-collections/nuregs/brochures/br0297/br0297.pdf>

This is a link to a meeting announcement for Department of Health and Human Services Meeting of the Presidential Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS:

<http://aids.gov/federal-resources/pacha/meetings/2010/june-2010-meeting-notice.pdf>

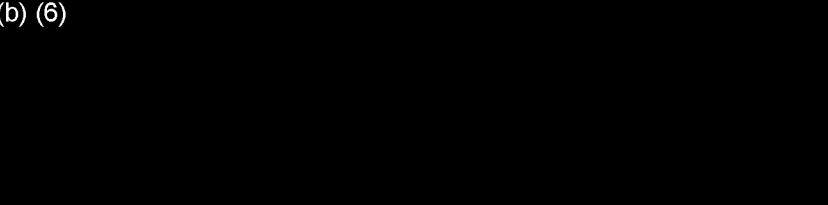

It's my understanding that one benefit of the Sunshine Act was so that government wouldn't hold "closed door, we're not doing anything good and we don't want anyone to know that" type meetings.

I'd like to request the proper channels through which I can appeal your decision to deny a 3-minute comment at the BBG's December 14, 2012 Full Board Meeting.

Thank you.

Dear (b) (6)

Thanks again for your ongoing interest in US international broadcasting.

Sorry it took a little while to get back to you, but since the request from a member of the public to make remarks at the open meeting has no precedent that anyone here is aware of, I needed to check with several people, including Board leadership.

Unfortunately, the press of regular business at open Board meetings does not leave time for speaking requests from the public. There is an opportunity at periodic "town hall" type meetings. This board has held one such meeting and is working to identify the next available date.

When the notice is posted for the Board's December 14 open meeting in keeping with the Government in the Sunshine Act, there will be the usual opportunity for members of the public to attend as observers on a first-come, first-served basis. As a courtesy, I will flag the notice for your attention when BBG Public Affairs posts it. As you know, members of the public are invited to observe at these meetings.

If you have input you'd like to offer, I'm happy to facilitate that with the Board.

Lynne (and team) can you give thoughts over the holidays about how to structure public comments in the future? With some ideas in hand, we'll convene the Governance Cmt to recommend a policy for the full board. We should have one in place for the next meeting.

Thanks all, and if I do not see you before the New Year, have a safe, peaceful and inspiring holiday break.

I am unaware of any further discussion among the Governors on this topic since your November 30 exchange about it with the recipients of this e-mail chain. Should there be a decision, I will be happy to let you know.

Looking forward to seeing you tomorrow,

Hello, (b) (6)

Thank you for the additional information, which will further inform the discussion.

As indicated below, the choice was not mine alone and involved consultation with Board leadership. Now that all of the Governors have been engaged on the matter, I'll be back in touch with you on their decision when it is made.

Best regards,

Subject: Request to comment at BBG Dec 14 Meeting

Dear Lynn:

What a shame. If the BBG invites the public, why not allow for comment? Are there any specific rules within the BBG that prevent public comments at meetings?

Here are some links to show that the public's verbal comments are welcome at other federal agency meetings.

This is a link to the meeting regulations for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission:

<http://www.nrc.gov/reading-rm/doc-collections/nuregs/brochures/br0297/br0297.pdf>

This is a link to a meeting announcement for Department of Health and Human Services Meeting of the Presidential Advisory Council on HIV/AIDS:

<http://aids.gov/federal-resources/pacha/meetings/2010/june-2010-meeting-notice.pdf>

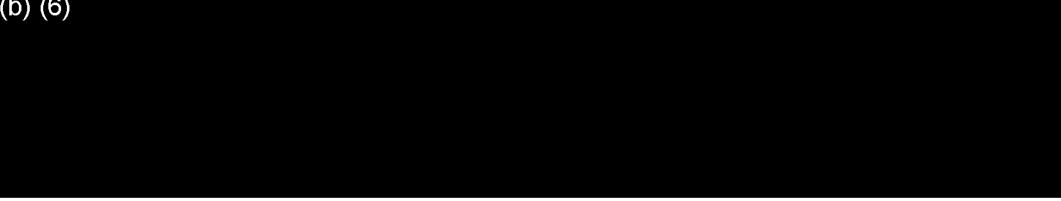

It's my understanding that one benefit of the Sunshine Act was so that government wouldn't hold "closed door, we're not doing anything good and we don't want anyone to know that" type meetings.

I'd like to request the proper channels through which I can appeal your decision to deny a 3-minute comment at the BBG's December 14, 2012 Full Board Meeting.

Thank you.

Sincerely

Dear (b) (6)

Thanks again for your ongoing interest in US international broadcasting.

Sorry it took a little while to get back to you, but since the request from a member of the public to make remarks at the open meeting has no precedent that anyone here is aware of, I needed to check with several people, including Board leadership.

Unfortunately, the press of regular business at open Board meetings does not leave time for speaking requests from the public. There is an opportunity at periodic "town hall" type meetings. This board has held one such meeting and is working to identify the next available date.

When the notice is posted for the Board's December 14 open meeting in keeping with the Government in the Sunshine Act, there will be the usual opportunity for members of the public to attend as observers on a first-come, first-served basis. As a courtesy, I will flag the notice for your attention when BBG Public Affairs posts it. As you know, members of the public are invited to observe at these meetings.

If you have input you'd like to offer, I'm happy to facilitate that with the Board.

All the best,

Lynne

Hawaii Sen. Daniel Inouye dies at age 88

By Chris Cillizza , Updated: December 17, 2012

Hawaii Democratic Sen. Daniel Inouye has died at age 88, his office confirmed Monday night.

His last word, according to a statement released by his staff, was "Aloha".

Inouye has been hospitalized since early December due to respiratory problems. His cause of death was "respiratory complications".

Inouye had served in the Senate since 1962 and represented Hawaii since 1954. He served as the Senate pro tempore — the designation for the chamber's longest serving Senator — and the person third in line to the presidency. He also chaired the powerful Senate Appropriations Committee at the time of his death.

As the Post's Jason Horowitz wrote in a 2010 profile of Inouye <<http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2010/10/04/AR2010100403606.html>> :

"More than any other statesman in the history of these volcanic islands — more than Kamehameha the Great, who united them into a kingdom in 1810, or Gov. John Burns, who led the political revolution that established Democratic Party rule here in 1954 — Inouye, 86, has ruled over Hawaii."

Immediately following Inouye's death, his colleagues took to the Senate floor to remember him. "His service to the Senate will be with the greats of this body," said Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid (Nev.).

Inouye's seat will be filled by an appointment by Gov. Neil Abercrombie (D). He will pick from three finalists provided by the state Democratic Party. State law requires that Inouye must be replaced by a senator from the same political party. Inouye's seat is up for a full term in 2016.

Dear Governors,

Last Friday, we received a copy of the GAO draft report, "Broadcasting Board of Governors – Additional Steps Needed to Address Overlap in International Broadcasting."

As you will recall, the GAO began this engagement at the request of the Chair and Ranking Member and joined by other members of the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and the Federal Workforce. GAO's brief from its Congressional sponsors was to "examine the extent to which (1) BBG language services overlap with one another and (2) BBG broadcasts in the same languages as other international broadcasters."

While the draft report references efforts pursuant to the agency's strategic plan and budget requests to reduce overlap, its rather simplistic mandate and its methodology in quantifying the extent of overlap, as presented in GAO's summary findings, are misleading. GAO finds that "nearly two-thirds of the BBG's language services – offices that produce content for particular languages and regions – overlap with another BBG service by offering programs to the same countries in the same languages." GAO cites the cost of supporting these programs at about $149 million – nearly 20 percent of the agency's total budget. Over the next few weeks, staff will be working with GAO to refine portions of its draft report and ask for modifications in its methodology to avoid "headlines" that will be misleading outside the context of the full report.

GAO's draft report also contains two recommendations for the BBG:

- The BBG should ensure that BBG's annual language service review includes systematic consideration of the cost and impact of internal overlap among BBG entities' language services.
- The BBG should ensure that BBG's annual language service review includes systematic consideration of the activities of U.S. commercial broadcasters and other democratic nations' broadcasters, such as the languages used and the countries served. GAO review started in March 2012 and included a review of agency proposals and strategies for streamlining USIB, focusing on challenges related to program overlap and coordination. GAO's researchers met with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity, and also met with officials of the State Department, USAID, and experts from other organizations, including the DG-5 broadcasters. GAO did not review management and administrative streamlining proposals of the BBG, except to the extent they might affect program overlap.

We will review and provide comments to the GAO by January 11. The final report will be a public document, and will include the BBG's formal comments in an appendix to the report.

Because the current report status is "restricted to official use only," we must safeguard it to prevent its improper disclosure. Please let us know if you are interested in receiving a copy of this draft report and we will send it to you.

The draft report includes this direction from GAO: "This draft report is being provided to obtain advance review and comment. It has not been fully reviewed within GAO and is subject to revision. Recipients of this draft must not, under any circumstances, show or release its contents for other than official review and comment. It must be safeguarded to prevent improper disclosure. This draft and all copies remain the property of, and must be returned on demand to, the Government Accountability Office."

I do not concur with support for (b) (6) at this stage. My hope is that the Board directed review by Jeff Trimble will include an assessment of (b) (6) and whether she is the right person to lead RFERL in Moscow or outside Russia if Putin removes RFERL from Russia which I think is more likely than not over the next year or so.

However, I find it disappointing and offensive that the current RFERL leadership has not provided the materials which the Strategy and Budget Committee requested on (b) (6). That includes a copy of her contract and salary information. Information on the search process which produced her. To date the information has been withheld. This was the subject of a strong conversation between (b) (6) and Gov. Meehan in November before a large number of persons at RFA headquarters on M Street.

Jeff Trimble needs to look at the current programming under (b) (6) how the fired employees are treated and strategy to win back dissidents to like RFERL again. We need to give a statement to Jeff as to what he needs to do. He also needs to complete it by April (not 6 months from now).

If a majority of the Board insists on backing (b) (6) then it seems to me that the Board has tacitly condoned the 41 firings in Moscow as I have been told that (b) (6) played a significant role in these firings. Trimble needs to review how her role as a paid consultant to RFERL prior to her becoming Moscow director may have impacted the decision to terminate these people and then quickly hire 11 to 13 of her people to fill some of those positions. I will not in good conscience sign off on a statement in support of (b) (6). Her future at RFERL is still to be determined in my opinion. Endorsing her at this stage is putting the cart before the horse. If a majority of the Board issues such a statement, I will issue an opposing view respectfully differing.

Lynne

I have seen the e mails with you from (b) (6) on the awards given in Moscow to two former journalists at RFERL in Moscow for their work when they were employed at RFERL. They received the significant Sakharov awards. The people in question are (b) (6).

Apparently there has not been recognition by RFERL or BBG on this. Despite these two persons no longer working for RFERL, when they did work there they had an excellent record and obviously with these awards it was recognized by others.

Does BBG plan to issue a statement or recognize their achievements on our web site or RFERL web site? If (b) (6) for example received an award for his VOA work we would recognize it despite him no longer working at VOA.

If not, I am inclined to make a statement alone congratulating them and wishing them well but it would be more significant if it came from the whole BBG. I cannot think of a reason not to do it and it might be a giant step towards healing and reconciliation which is needed in Moscow at this time. Also coming at this season of the year it seems even more appropriate. As you recall I asked (b) (6) what her strategy to win back the disaffected was last week. This seems to me to be a small step in that direction.

Michael Lynton recently has asked me to share my possible public statements with you before I do them and in this case I am willing to forgo one if BBG or RFERL does something. However, in the absence of a BBG or RFERL statement I feel something positive about them ought to be said by at least one individual Board member unless someone can give me a good reason not to do so. I welcome feedback on this from my colleagues and management.

Happy Holidays

Subject: Moscow awards

Lynne

I have seen the e mails with you from (b) (6) on the awards given in Moscow to two former journalists at RFERL in Moscow for their work when they were employed at RFERL. They received the significant Sakharov awards. The people in question are (b) (6).

Apparently there has not been recognition by RFERL or BBG on this. Despite these two persons no longer working for RFERL, when they did work there they had an excellent record and obviously with these awards it was recognized by others.

Does BBG plan to issue a statement or recognize their achievements on our web site or RFERL web site? If (b) (6) for example received an award for his VOA work we would recognize it despite him no longer working at VOA.

If not, I am inclined to make a statement alone congratulating them and wishing them well but it would be more significant if it came from the whole BBG. I cannot think of a reason not to do it and it might be a giant step towards healing and reconciliation which is needed in Moscow at this time. Also coming at this season of the year it seems even more appropriate. As you recall I asked (b) (6) what her strategy to win back the disaffected was last week. This seems to me to be a small step in that direction.

Michael Lynton recently has asked me to share my possible public statements with you before I do them and in this case I am willing to forgo one if BBG or RFERL does something. However, in the absence of a BBG or RFERL statement I feel something positive about them ought to be said by at least one individual Board member unless someone can give me a good reason not to do so. I welcome feedback on this from my colleagues and management.

Thank you for the heads-up that you intend to issue a statement if the agency does not.

A bit of insight into how agency news releases regarding the grantees have been done until now: We do not control the grantees' websites. And if a grantee has not issued a release about a matter concerning its programming or personnel -- or worked in tandem with the agency on a release -- then the BBG has not issued one, either.

So if, for instance, the former head of an RFA language service were to receive an award, we would either elevate RFA's news release though BBG Public Affairs or work with RFA on a release.

This doesn't have to remain the case. I appreciate your reasoning, and am interested in hearing more views. Since not everyone who is relevant to this conversation is in the office yet or copied on this e-mail, let me come back to you with more thoughts a little later.

The proposed travel dates are February 3-11, 2013. The Russian online visa applications have to go through the State Department we cannot deliver them directly to the Embassy. The State Department stated that the visa process takes seven days.

Additional information needed to complete the Russian online visa application: parents' names, marital status; if married spouses; name, date of birth and place of birth; do you have medical insurance that covers your stay in Russia. I cannot complete the Russian online visa application without these questions being answered. Once the Russian online visa application is complete it needs an original signature in blue ink.

Hotel reservations have been made for Governors McCue and Meehan and Jeff Trimble at the Sheraton Palace Hotel Moscow.

The Russian Embassy will be closed December 31-January 8, 2013.

Also as of December 25, the Russian online visa application may have changed. The State Department has offered to review the applications prior to submitting the completed package because there may be glitches with the online submission process.

All delegations (five or more individuals traveling together with identical entry and departure dates) we must submit a list to the State Department. The list and the visa applications should be delivered to the State Department together.

Governors,

The proposed travel dates are February 3-11, 2013. The Russian online visa applications have to go through the State Department we cannot deliver them directly to the Embassy. The State Department stated that the visa process takes seven days.

Additional information needed to complete the Russian online visa application: parents' names, marital status; if married spouses; name, date of birth and place of birth; do you have medical insurance that covers your stay in Russia, I cannot complete the Russian online visa application without these questions being answered. Once the Russian online visa application is complete it needs an original signature in blue ink.

Hotel reservations have been made for Governors McCue and Meehan and Jeff Trimble at the Sheraton Palace Hotel Moscow.

The Russian Embassy will be closed December 31-January 8, 2013.

Also as of December 25, the Russian online visa application may have changed. The State Department has offered to review the applications prior to submitting the completed package because there may be glitches with the online submission process.

All delegations (five or more individuals traveling together with identical entry and departure dates) we must submit a list to the State Department. The list and the visa applications should be delivered to the State Department together.

thanks for your help on this. With fiscal cliff looming it is a very tough time.

I would be interested in going to Moscow in February with Suan and Michael..perhaps Dennis as well based on his comments this morning,. I just need to know the proposed or perspective dates in Moscow.

I will make myself available for any phone calls over the next 6 days. The only day I cannot do it is Jan 3 when I am in flight back to Knoxville.

Hi Victor -- I asked that this be checked, and we did not find instances in the past when grantee Board meetings were announced in advance on the BBG web site. I assure you that any news coming from the meeting will be put into a press release immediately -- as soon as possible -- after the session.

Yes, we will call your hotel room -- if the meeting takes place as proposed, that would at 11 a.m. Monday San Juan time.

This is a matter best decided by the Communications Committee as to whether we should announce grantee board meetings on the BBG website. Has other implications which the Comm Comm can address. Have no problem if they decide to do it and Jeff Trimble can refer to them.

A resolution outlining what the board will address will be circulated this weekend.

FYI, I will be offline starting in a few minutes until Monday morning.

Happy New Year.

That is unfortunate and a serious omission in our bylaws....all meeting notices as best practice should contain a reason for the meeting and agenda...This is most unfortunate especiall for a meeting which will receive great attention.

While not required, Dennis, please do it....list personnal as topic or something..hard to defend having nothing on the agenda or a topic.

Again not trying to be difficult but trying to prevent grief afterwards.

the call should relate what the chair told you in my view...IN other words the reason for a public notice to all Board members in addition to making the call is to inform the Board members of the purpose so they can prepare for the meeting. Do not mean to be picky but I do feel it is important to note. Do bylaws speak to this? You may wish to check.

Dennis, nothing wrong in stating "personnel" in the call...I want to make sure the call is totally legal and it is clear what we are voting on...should send out an agenda especially if there are several motions to vote on which I suspect will be the case.

I am not trying to cause you headaches but do feel the call should speak to what we are going to consider.

Just seeing this string of messages now. Yes on attendees. Yes, reason for informal call (which some board members have requested) is there is nothing to vote on (accepting an officer's resignation does not require board action according to RFE's bylaws). My understanding is that [REDACTED] (b) (6) final day will be Fri 1/25.

As to things to discuss, that appears logical to me.

- * interim leadership

persons...Meehan and Ashe favor a formal Board meeting...I do not know how Susan or Tara feel. Once a meeting is called we should meet as a Board whether we vote or do not vote on something.

Just seeing this string of messages now. Yes on attendees. Yes, reason for informal call (which some board members have requested) is there is nothing to vote on (accepting an officer's resignation does not require board action according to RFE's bylaws). My understanding is that (b) (6) final day will be Fri 1/25.

As to things to discuss, that appears logical to me.

Reason for postponing formal board meeting is because we are pausing on Enders, so there's nothing to vote on, right? And items to discuss and resolve are the following:

- * interim leadership

I'm reaching out to you regarding your Strategy and Budget Committee travel coming up January 9, as (b) (6) is out until Thursday of this week. There are two elements of the trip that are not matching up in our system - you're scheduled to fly in to DC on January 9 and fly out January 10. Your hotel is currently reserved from January 9-15. What should the trip actually look like? Do we need to tweak the hotel or flight?

the story on the meeting with the President of Myanmar (Burma) is also misleading in describing it as a courtesy meeting...perhaps this has been changed. Dear Ambassador Ashe,

Hope your trip is going well and you have enjoyed Burma. It looks from the pictures VOA sent along like there was quite a signing ceremony. Glad you could make it.

On your question, we have the Board meeting and Governance Committee meetings on the BBG website. We have not publicized internal panels in the past such as China and Indonesia in recent months. Individual entity board meetings are up to the entities themselves to handle.

Thanks so much and look forward to seeing you next week.

Dear Ambassador Ashe:

I recently observed the work of the BBG online at one of its recent monthly board meetings, and got better acquainted with some of the issues facing it. I write you now to seek your guidance in possibly exploring some role in advancing our country's work in exploiting the power of media to further our foreign policy objectives.

I'm aware that appointments to that body are made by Presidential appointment, and require approval by the Senate. With the pending resignation of Governor Perino next month, in addition to the two other vacant positions on the Board, I thought the timing might be right to tell you of my interest in being considered for one of those unfilled appointments.

I am not unfamiliar with the workings of media in Washington.

- During the early 1950s, I produced and directed many short films in Iran under the Marshall Plan for the U.S. State Department. When the forces of Prime Minister Mossadegh overthrew the Shah the first time in 1953, I was there in the streets amid the rioters shooting newsreels of the revolution.
- While on leave from my post as a professor at UCLA in 1959, under a Ford Foundation Mass Media Fellowship, I earned the first Ph.D. awarded by Stanford University in a specially approved multi-disciplinary program called “Communications and International Relations.”
- When the USIA was created I served as an early advisor and contract producer. One of my films (on the history of mosaic art) was translated into several languages and used by a number of our posts abroad.
- As the recipient of four Fulbright Senior Fellowships, I helped found the 9,000 member Fulbright Association in 1976.
- For five years I headed the University of California’s Statewide Media Production Center in Berkeley making films under government grants and contracts in many parts of the world for all nine campuses of the University.
- I also represented the United States in a number of international organizations, and at one such meeting was in Prague the night hundreds of Soviet tanks rumbled into the city to crush Dubcek’s Prague Spring movement. I have a modest working knowledge of seven languages.
- Among my scholarly publications in nine books and many journals are several research studies about the credibility of films, and how attitude change communication works in the mass media.

- Following my retirement from academic life, I was called back to Washington during 1997 and 1998 to be a consultant on films to the U.S. Department of Justice. I served there as an expert witness in a dispute with members of the Zapruder family over the dollar value of the 8mm movie documenting the assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas which was placed in the National Archives by the U.S. Government.

- For nearly a decade, as dean of a large liberal arts college in California, and later, one of the leading colleges of fine arts in the U.S., I have learned to work with a wide range of people with differing views, and to help find ways of working together to find solutions to a variety of difficult problems.

Among those who might be willing to provide personal and professional references, if asked, are Robert Corrigan (recently retired President of San Francisco State University), Bruce Herschenson (political broadcaster, formerly a top aid to President Nixon, and currently a professor of Public Policy at Pepperdine University), Michael J. Kittross (editor of such scholarly journals as Media Ethics and the Journal of Broadcasting, and retired Provost & Academic V.P. of Emerson University), William T. Murphy (recently retired after 30 years as head of audiovisual collections at the National Archives and Records Administration), and Kirk Manhardt (former Assistant Director, Civil Division, U.S. Justice Dept., D.C.) Concerning the bi-partisan balance of BBG members, I am a lifelong registered Democrat but not a partisan ideologue.

I believe this experience could be helpful in adding an additional measure of diversity and perspective to the deliberations of the BBG. It includes (1) extensive practical experience in creating non-fiction programs for overseas consumption, (2) a reputation for international leadership and innovation in the professional training of communication specialists, and (3) a knowledge of how persuasion works in the mass media, and some of the scholarly research that has contributed in that field.

I have shared these thoughts in e-mails with both of my senators from California. Given all of the far more urgent tasks demanding attention in Washington, I am not surprised that I have not yet heard back from them, except for a routine response from Senator Feinstein saying that, because of the Hatch Act, she cannot forward my letter elsewhere since she does not know me personally. Since I gather that it is Senator Coburn of Oklahoma who has put a hold on any additional appointments to the BBG, I thought it could do no harm also to copy him in on this matter.

Being far more knowledgeable about how things get done in Washington than I am, I'd be most grateful for any thoughts you may have on what further steps I should consider taking, who in the White House deals with such matters for the President, how to get in touch with them, and how your fellow Governors might feel about working with an "outside person" such as me.

In conclusion, I am 86 years old, in good health, and quite busy with a number of active commitments. But the embers of public service still burn in my gut, and I would welcome the opportunity to stoke them once again.

I am not unfamiliar with the workings of media in Washington.

- During the early 1950s, I produced and directed many short films in Iran under the Marshall Plan for the U.S. State Department. When the forces of Prime Minister Mossadegh overthrew the Shah the first time in 1953, I was there in the streets amid the rioters shooting newsreels of the revolution.
- While on leave from my post as a professor at UCLA in 1959, under a Ford Foundation Mass Media Fellowship, I earned the first Ph.D. awarded by Stanford University in a specially approved multi-disciplinary program called “Communications and International Relations.”
- When the USIA was created I served as an early advisor and contract producer. One of my films (on the history of mosaic art) was translated into several languages and used by a number of our posts abroad.
- As the recipient of four Fulbright Senior Fellowships, I helped found the 9,000 member Fulbright Association in 1976.
- For five years I headed the University of California’s Statewide Media Production Center in Berkeley making films under government grants and contracts in many parts of the world for all nine campuses of the University.
- I also represented the United States in a number of international organizations, and at one such meeting was in Prague the night hundreds of Soviet tanks rumbled into the city to crush Dubcek’s Prague Spring movement. I have a modest working knowledge of seven languages.
- Among my scholarly publications in nine books and many journals are several research studies about the credibility of films, and how attitude change communication works in the mass media.

- Following my retirement from academic life, I was called back to Washington during 1997 and 1998 to be a consultant on films to the U.S. Department of Justice. I served there as an expert witness in a dispute with members of the Zapruder family over the dollar value of the 8mm movie documenting the assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas which was placed in the National Archives by the U.S. Government.

- For nearly a decade, as dean of a large liberal arts college in California, and later, one of the leading colleges of fine arts in the U.S., I have learned to work with a wide range of people with differing views, and to help find ways of working together to find solutions to a variety of difficult problems.

Among those who might be willing to provide personal and professional references, if asked, are Robert Corrigan (recently retired President of San Francisco State University), Bruce Herschenson (political broadcaster, formerly a top aid to President Nixon, and currently a professor of Public Policy at Pepperdine University), Michael J. Kittross (editor of such scholarly journals as Media Ethics and the Journal of Broadcasting, and retired Provost & Academic V.P. of Emerson University), William T. Murphy (recently retired after 30 years as head of audiovisual collections at the National Archives and Records Administration), and Kirk Manhardt (former Assistant Director, Civil Division, U.S. Justice Dept., D.C.) Concerning the bi-partisan balance of BBG members, I am a lifelong registered Democrat but not a partisan ideologue.

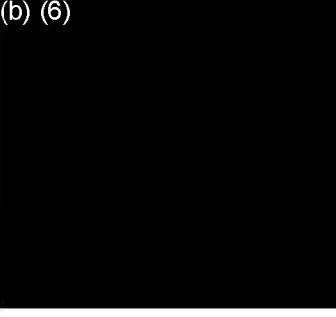

I believe this experience could be helpful in adding an additional measure of diversity and perspective to the deliberations of the BBG. It includes (1) extensive practical experience in creating non-fiction programs for overseas consumption, (2) a reputation for international leadership and innovation in the professional training of communication specialists, and (3) a knowledge of how persuasion works in the mass media, and some of the scholarly research that has contributed in that field.

I have shared these thoughts in e-mails with both of my senators from California. Given all of the far more urgent tasks demanding attention in Washington, I am not surprised that I have not yet heard back from them, except for a routine response from Senator Feinstein saying that, because of the Hatch Act, she cannot forward my letter elsewhere since she does not know me personally. Since I gather that it is Senator Coburn of Oklahoma who has put a hold on any additional appointments to the BBG, I thought it could do no harm also to copy him in on this matter.

Being far more knowledgeable about how things get done in Washington than I am, I'd be most grateful for any thoughts you may have on what further steps I should consider taking, who in the White House deals with such matters for the President, how to get in touch with them, and how your fellow Governors might feel about working with an "outside person" such as me.

In conclusion, I am 86 years old, in good health, and quite busy with a number of active commitments. But the embers of public service still burn in my gut, and I would welcome the opportunity to stoke them once again.

How can we have a legal meeting of Governance committee and not have it announced on BBG web site? Admittedly it is by phone. Will it be recorded? Who will take the minutes?

When will it go on the BBG web site for Thurs Nov 8 at 2 PM EST? as well as agenda? Dennis we have come too far on transparency not to announce this meeting by phone as has been done on all prior Governance Committee meetings. It is not secret? is it?

I do not know if you have seen this but I will look forward to seeing the response from Dick Lobo.

My views on this are that Murrow should stay open for many years and [REDACTED] (b) (6) answer at the recent October 11 Board meeting to my inquiry may have triggered this letter as he danced all the way around the question I asked and avoided a direct answer.

Dear Fellow Board members,

I am sharing this e mail with you which I just received. I do not know the person but feel it raises issues which we should all know about. Senior management at RFERL was copied on the original.

Lots is happening at RFERL which is attracting wide comment and attention. Unfortunately, it is not positive for us. I truly believe we need a RFERL Board meeting (not a briefing) as well as an RFERL audit committee meeting which has been postponed for months now.

Subj: RFE/RL turns into the media spreading Sexism, Xenophobia, Homophobia, Racism and Platitude

Congratulations, ladies and gentlemen, RFE/RL has quickly turned into obscene, vulgar, racial and tabloid media after its president [REDACTED] (b) (6) declared his struggle to attract new audience. For almost three months there has been a new video project at RFE/RL, which on the outside looks like as satirical review of clumsy video recordings or unsuccessful professional video clips from Kazakhstan but, in reality, it is derision at readers and morale. Performers of the video project - young Kazakh actors themselves build their original projects based on platitude, racism, homophobia, propagating dirty sex and shoddy tabloid journalism. The group entitled Wi-Fi 25 has an odious image in Kazakhstan. They often not only use obscene language but also demonstrate sex and show genitals using their hands in their video project. Here is the typical video show that is already available in the Internet. I am sorry but I need to provide the link to this dirty product because RFE/RL has been implementing its joint project exactly with this very odious and vulgar group, using money of American taxpayers. Since their vulgar, obscene manners and moderators' smutty faces, grins and swearing words are obvious without any interpretation, it is not necessary to translate them into English.

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5GRhb25xBz8>

RFE/RL has invited the group - Wi-Fi 25, which has an odious and dirty image, for cooperation and already produced their joint first three video shows. You still can find the video products on RFE/RL's website. The first video show is called "Shopaq" (which in slang means male genital organ) and was published on 2 August 2012.

Cynicism of the video project starts with the following warning caption: "Warning!!! There are dirty, swearing words in this video product. People with high morale and distinct culture are prohibited to watch it". RFE/RL also issues this kind of warning in other two video shows, probably because it thinks that somehow they adhered the corporation's journalism ethics and laws of the USA and Kazakhstan. There are the website of RFE/RL's Kazakh service www.azattyq.org and RFE/RL logo (the torch that is supposed to represent light to people and serve them by promoting democratic values) on the left side corner of the video show's screen. However, the performers of the video show use obscene language, pouring platitude, cynicism and sexism. There is also propaganda of child violence. In those videos you can see a fight between children. At the end of video show you can also see how one of the moderators examines his zipper (XYZ). The hosts of the video show tell goodbye to RFE/RL readers with gesture meaning sex.

<http://www.azattyq.org/media/video/24664714.html>

RFE/RL and Wi-Fi 25 published the next joint video product entitled "Sol Paskal" on 3 Septeber 2012. It is also full of sexism, filthy language and swearing words.

<http://www.azattyq.org/media/video/24696177.html>

In its third video show entitled "Agent" on 18 October, RFE/RL promotes sexism even further by showing, focusing on intimate parts of beautiful girls' seminude body and hinting that one of the hosts masturbating at the same time during moderation of the program. On the fourth minute of the show there is obvious and direct swearing words: "Fuck! you stepped on my foot...". On the seventh minute of the show you hear racism when the hosts of the video show call a representative of allegedly Latino-American race "Cacao".

<http://www.azattyq.org/media/video/24744067.html>

These are the certain examples of reforms at RFE/RL, the new president of which, (b) (6), declared to the whole world that he will make breakthrough by introducing new digital technology. Under the external "dog and pony show" of pseudo-reforms, and (as Russian say) under Potemkin Villages, there is just a hidden cheap literary production issued at the expense of American taxpayers.

This really requires a BBG briefing and meeting...not simply an e mail that we all acquiesce to ...I would like to hear the arguments on both sides. I am surprised my friends and colleagues on this Board are not seeking more information on this. If BBG loses this appeal, the price tag just escalated by millions. Only a few weeks ago, I asked what the current cost to settle is and what the potential cost would be. There has not been an answer to this.

I really worry that we are not meeting our fiduciary duties here with absolutely no discussion of this latest development. Has Mr Lobo conferred with the White House or Labor Dept. on this? I want this placed on the agenda for November 15 BBG meeting for a full review.

Does (b) (6) agree with this? was he part of the decision making process? Who did Mr Lobo consult besides (b) (6)?

Please record me as not agreeing to this recommendation pending the receipt of further information and dialogue. Morale at VOA/OCB is at a low and this action will not help improve the situation.

Turkey's Press Freedom Crisis - CPJ, October 2012

Turkish authorities are engaging in widespread criminal prosecution and jailing of journalists, and are applying other forms of severe pressure to promote self-censorship in the press, a CPJ analysis shows. CPJ has found highly repressive laws, particularly in the penal code and anti-terror law; a criminal procedure code that greatly favors the state; and a harsh anti-press tone set at the highest levels of government. Turkey's press freedom situation has reached a crisis point.

Appease, Surrender, Abandon, and Get Nothing: Obama's NaivePolitik [op-ed]- Forbes, October 21, 2012

Putin used the USA as geopolitical enemy number one (to borrow a phrase from Romney) in his own presidential campaign, vetoed all meaningful United Nations resolutions against Iran, resupplied Syria, annexed Georgian territory by force, and expelled American organizations, including Radio Liberty and USAID, as "foreign agents." He tightened the screws on domestic opposition and free press, threw ordinary protesters in jail, while accusing Hillary Clinton, of all people, of fomenting "mass disorder." Putin will not renew a twenty-year-old agreement on securing weapons of mass destruction.

I will be interested in knowing how BBG intends to respond to the inaccuracies which Dick Lobo says exist.

You have an incorrect e mail for Tara Sonenshine as she is at the Department of State now...no longer at Institute for Peace as this e mail suggests.

BBG Condemns Jamming, Intimidation as Threats to Media Freedom

October 11, 2012

Michael Lynton

The Broadcasting Board of Governors today expressed its enduring outrage over persistent attempts to stifle the free flow of news and information through satellite jamming, intimidation and the detention of journalists in Iran, Syria, Cambodia, Ethiopia and elsewhere.

During the BBG's Oct. 11 meeting, Presiding Governor Michael Lynton condemned the jamming of BBG satellite signals in Iran and said BBG journalists are encountering new impediments to free reporting almost daily.

"Just yesterday, Radio Free Asia and Voice of America reporters were summoned to a meeting with officials in a blatant attempt to discourage objective reporting on the Cambodian government," Lynton said. As reported by Reuters, AFP and others, RFA and VOA...are among the few radio stations in Cambodia considered free of government influence."

The Board also expressed concern about the cases of Marthe van der Wolf, a VOA reporter in Ethiopia who was forced by local police to erase recordings of a protest rally, and Gulnur Raqifqizi Kazimova, a Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) freelancer who was prohibited from taking pictures in Azerbaijan.

Members of the Board renewed their condemnation of recent illegal jamming of BBG Persian broadcasts to Iran that also affected many other BBG radio and TV programs around the globe, including broadcasts in Arabic, Georgian, Armenian, Bosnian, and Korean.

"The Board calls on Iran to cease disrupting broadcast signals, and to respect the well-established international agreements that prohibit jamming," Lynton said.

The Board also noted that Monday marked 50 days since the capture of Alhurra TV journalist Bashar Fahmi and his cameraman Cüneyt Ünal in Syria, and renewed its demand that the pair be released.

Fahmi and Ünal were last heard from on August 20, when they were reporting from Aleppo, Syria. On August 26th, Ünal appeared on Syrian television, but the Syrian government said it has no information on Fahmi.

Lynton spoke at length of recent Russian legislative steps that have imposed restrictions on freedom of expression, including a law that is forcing RFE/RL programs off of the organization's last AM affiliate in Moscow. He noted, "This board strongly objects to the tightening stranglehold on the free flow of information taking place today in Russia." Lynton reiterated Governors' support for Steve Korn's leadership of RFE/RL in its efforts throughout the region.

Several events at the meeting honored the legacy and ongoing work of the Voice of America.

Gov. Susan McCue honors Leo Sarkisian, standing

Board members enjoyed a presentation honoring VOA Ethnomusicologist Leo Sarkisian, the creator of Music Time in Africa, VOA's oldest English-language music program. They presented a resolution expressing the agency's appreciation to Sarkisian, who retired recently after a career that spanned more than half a century and took him to every country in Africa.

The Board also recognized the 20th anniversary of VOA's Kurdish Service and the 50th anniversary of its Swahili Service.

Discussion at the meeting included the BBG's expanded broadcasting reach in China via the Telstar satellite and other developments intended to modernize and extend the reach of the agency and its media worldwide.

of this meeting will be available on-demand shortly.

Governors,

Some of you have inquired about recent coverage concerning last week's decision of the Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) to uphold an arbitrator's decision against the Agency in connection with the Agency's 2009 reduction-in-force at OCB.

Our staff has not yet finished reviewing and digesting the case, nor have we formulated any formal response. It should be noted that the fact that the FLRA affirmed the arbitrator's decision does not necessarily mean that either the arbitrator or the FLRA decided the case correctly on the merits. There are more than a few cases where agencies have successfully challenged FLRA decisions.

The BBG has sixty days in which to respond and it is extremely important for the Agency to analyze the case carefully before deciding how to proceed. There are a number of issues at play in the OCB RIF case that go beyond the issue of possible financial exposure or reinstatement of employees, including substantive issues that may affect other RIFs that may be contemplated in the budgetary decisions that the Board has made. I plan to make a decision on how to proceed based on a sober analysis of the merits of the case. Like you, I of course share the desire to do what is in the best interest of the Agency and its employees. I will certainly take your concerns into account and will consult closely with the OCB Director as well as our Labor and Employee Relations team.. At the appropriate time, I will brief the Board on how best to proceed.

In the meantime, it would be advisable for individual Governors to refrain from discussing the case with BBG Union members or officials. If you are contacted by the media, please consult with our communications team before commenting. Such outreach can be affirmatively harmful to the Agency's interests because it can unnecessarily embolden the stance taken by other stakeholders in this important litigation and may complicate or undermine the Agency's litigation and settlement posture. I appreciate your understanding of and compliance with this point.

I cannot tell if you plan to bring the final decision to the BBG Board for a vote or whether you plan to act on your own? Which is it?

I believe this is serious enough to come to the full Board for a vote on whether to proceed with an appeal or halt the process. I am eager to have your recommendation as well as the deputy general counsel and (b) (6).

We should be sensitive to those persons who were terminated and it is now three years later. We should be sensitive to how this impacts the agency too. We should consult with DOJ on this. We should consult with plaintiffs to determine their interest in a settlement and what it would be. We should be advised what the current financial exposure is today, October 3 and what it could be two years from now if the appeals proceed and fail. In other words the plaintiffs win.

While this is not our personal money it is the public's money and we must be sensitive to this.

Dear Dennis

I have had thought further about this since my last e mail and prefer a Board meeting over a briefing but feel either is better than nothing. However, the occasion should be more than RFE management giving us their view. We should have private time for Governors to discuss this among ourselves (obviously OIG would be there if they wish). We also need to have contact with one or more the dissidents signing the letter which has become so public. There needs to be outreach here.

We are faced with a serious morale and public perception issue at the very least. However, there could be more and duty is to ascertain in an objective way all sides so a factual determination can be made. A briefing by staff is only a start not an ending to this crisis for RFE in Moscow. If this turns out to be staff only and that ends it, then we have failed.

Your email suggests that it is all "misinformation and misconceptions." I am not sure we have enough knowledge to reach that conclusion any more than we have enough information to state that RFE management erred in full or in part. I urge you to be more neutral and even handed as chair until we hear all the facts.

I believe it would be worthwhile to have a briefing on where things stand with respect to the reorganization of RFERL's Russian Service that is being forced on us by the changes in Russian law. This will be a followup to the report given by [REDACTED] (b) (6) and his colleagues at the RFE board meeting a few weeks ago. There is a significant amount of misinformation and misconceptions about what we are actually doing and our plans going forward.

Within the next several days, we will organize a call-in briefing for those who are interested in participating. RFE management will update us on the current state of affairs and answer any questions you may have. As soon as this can be organized, we will be back to you.

I believe in full information as soon as BBG knows it. Sorry we differ. In this case there is a clear effort to adopt the consolidation of the three entities and the CEO proposal which Congress ignored at the upcoming meeting. Why else is BBG being asked to vote on something three hours after governance committee considers it?

I feel transparency is taking a back seat to other goals. Have a great weekend. Folks in Knoxville really like your work on Fox.

The communications committee was not consulted when this release was drafted so why the consultation now except to avoid dealing with it?

Best

Victor

this notice is very misleading. I really feel it merits revision. For example, the agenda I have for the public meeting states that the Board may vote on consolidation of the entities which you call streamlining. That is a whole lot different from simply receiving a report. As for the resolutions on anniveraries why are no specific names and years mentioned? This is usually given to me and I have heard not one word on this. I do not have a clue what I am being asked to do on this subject. Perhaps someone else is now doing it,

I urge a revised news release

Victor,

In 2008, VOA sent 90 to Minneapolis and 98 to Denver. (The Denver number was higher because of the late add of the outdoor venue on the final night which required more technical people). This year we cut the numbers back to 75 per convention. As the item below notes this is one of the best opportunities VOA gets—every four years--to provide civics lessons, if you will, on American democracy. Twenty language services will be represented on location. All services will use material from Central News journalists at the conventions. I am pleased to defend this appropriate use of funds—the kind of coverage that is in effect called for by the VOA Charter.

BBG Bringing Political Conventions to the World

<image002.jpg> The road to the White House gets a little steeper over the next several weeks as the political parties gather for their quadrennial conventions, and journalists from U.S. international broadcasting stations will be there to cover the proceedings for audiences in dozens of languages and across multiple platforms.

The Republicans gather in Tampa, Fla., Aug. 27-30, to nominate former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney as their standard-bearer. The Democrats follow Sept. 4-6 in Charlotte, N.C., where President Barack Obama is to be nominated to run for a second term.

Voice of America, Alhurra TV and Radio Sawa, and Radio and TV Martí will share workspace and live positions at both conventions, bringing comprehensive coverage of political America's showcase gatherings to millions worldwide. In addition to broadcasts, journalists will be posting to Facebook, Twitter and blogs.

Voice of America is sending a team of writers, producers, correspondents, VJs, editors, and technicians to both cities. Twenty VOA language services will be represented: The Horn of Africa, French to Africa, Swahili, Central Africa; Indonesian, Khmer, Mandarin; Russian, Ukrainian, Serbian, Albanian; Turkish, Armenian; Spanish, Creole; Persian; Dari, Pashto, Deewa and Urdu.

At the same time, VOA will be providing live remote feeds from the conventions to affiliate stations, including the acceptance speeches of both candidates and other proceedings.

Alhurra TV will broadcast a nightly program, "Road to the White House," from 7-11 p.m. each night of both conventions. The show will feature key speeches live with simultaneous translations along with expert analysis and packages on a range of topics, including the impact of Arab-Americans on the upcoming election. Radio Sawa will broadcast the keynote speeches and the addresses by Obama and Romney live with simultaneous translations.

The Office of Cuba Broadcasting is sending a team of reporters, two anchors, producers, technicians and others to cover the conventions. Antena Live, a TV Martí half-hour magazine style show, will broadcast live for four consecutive nights at 6:30 p.m. during both conventions. On the last two nights of each convention there will be programming from 9 to 11 p.m., including live speeches from Obama, Romney and others with translation, interviews with Hispanic political leaders, community representatives and expert analysis.

What is the cost for 75 persons to each convention? $3000 per person for $225,000 per convention for $450,000 for both or a different amount? I do not need or seek an exact amount but a ball park figure which I assume you considered when you decided on 75 instead of 90 or 98 as in 2008.

I am not asking you to defend as I assume you would naturally defend what you directed to happen. However, it is fair and legitimate for me as a Governor to ask what the cost is especially when BBG issues a news release on it without numbers of personnel or cost involved. Once one knows the cost then one is in a better position to assess and evaluate.

I am only asking the questions you would have asked when you were a distinguished working journalist. I still believe you are distinguished.

No one should be surprised I am asking. I am asking (b) (6) the same. And the entity heads.

Dear Governor Ashe:

I trust that you and the other Governors received my June 4th email forwarded by Tish King prior to your last meeting. It lays out the unprecedented and, I believe, retaliatory killing of a VOA story by Central News chief (b) (6), who has refused to provide an explanation or to reconsider the decision.

(b) (6) told me last week that (b) (6) would respond to my appeal in (b) (6) absence. He still has not yet done so, although the facts are undisputed and the issue not complicated.

I did not appeal directly to (b) (6) originally because he had already had ample occasion to intervene with (b) (6) in this matter, prior to my appeal to (b) (6) and had not done so.

His delay in responding now is another example of something new and unfortunate at VOA: an attitude among senior news managers that they are above the need to explain or justify any decision regarding our journalism.

At leading news outlets, in contrast, top editors are at pains that substantive journalism decisions be ethical, well-reasoned, and transparent to staff -- lest journalists in their employ lose trust in the integrity of their own agency.

I believe that is what has happened at VOA in the last five years. OPM surveys have shown that VOA staff morale and trust in agency management is at rock-bottom. What those surveys do not indicate, because they do not ask questions about it, is the lack of confidence that many senior VOA correspondents also feel in the professional integrity and ethical journalism of senior news managers.

In addition to the killing of the story detailed below, senior news managers have simply stopped responding to story proposals on discomfiting subjects. Two veteran correspondents (I was one of them) independently proposed stories on the growing use of drones, in the U.S and abroad. Both pitches were ignored, despite (b)(6) assurances at a Newseum/CJR panel that VOA does not and would not shy away from reporting on the issue.

Regards,

(b)(6)

(b)(6), (b)(6) has not had an opportunity to address this yet in anyway. You should not interpret today's actions or responses as his actions. You will get a direct response of some sort, although it's Board meeting week and (b)(6) is Acting for (b)(6), so it might not be for a few days. Please stand by. (b)(6)

Hi (b)(6),

(b)(6) tells me that he received an email from (b)(6) today, perhaps a response to his inquiry from Friday, stating only that the Klimt story was "dead," and again offering no reason or explanation.

I assume this may mean that (b)(6) has chosen not to overrule her, as expected, given that he received the earlier emails on the topic and did not intervene then. Is that correct?

Thus my direct appeal to (b)(6) remains. Will he be back in the office later this week to rule on this matter?

Thanks,

Dear (b) (6) :

I am appealing to you to reverse news chief (b) (6) snap decision last week to spike a story on which we had invested nearly a week of staff-days setting up, shooting and writing. Her decision to kill the story, which she refused to explain, was retaliatory, I believe, constituting an abuse of her authority, and a willful waste of thousands of dollars in agency resources. Neither she nor executive editor (b) (6) has responded to my requests for an explanation and reconsideration of this decision.

As you know, some weeks ago I was assigned a TV arts feature about the Neue Galerie's show marking the 150th birthday of painter Gustav Klimt. Knowing that, as Wikipedia has it, "Klimt's primary subject was the female body, and his works are marked by a frank eroticism," I raised the point with (b) (6), the copy editor/arts editor who pushed the story, that it would have to deal in part with that central aspect of his work.

I didn't want to again invest time in a piece that (b) (6) would attempt to slant or bowdlerize with her editing, as she had in previous pieces, including a story about (b) (6) at MoMA, which she tried to rewrite top-to-bottom to match her memory of the fictionalized history in the feature film, "Frida." For example, she argued, "That's not the way the movie had it," when I told her that lines she had written describing Rivera's "final confrontation" with John D. Rockefeller, could not stand, since the two had never met. She also pressed me to go to Rockefeller Center to interview passersby about their thoughts on a 1931 arts censorship controversy.

The story took an extra month of work -- and caused considerable stress in days of negotiating with (b) (6), who, rather than admit that (b) (6) was handling the story inappropriately, making misstatements and inserting errors, assigned me to do a redo.

With the Klimt assignment, (b) (6) brushed my concerns off, insisting that coverage editors wanted the piece and that it need not include nudity. Senior executive producer (b) (6) also weighed in and told New York bureau chief (b) (6) in answer to his question, that we would not cover up Michelangelo's David, so we need not worry about what the Klimt story might entail.

In (b) (6) emails about how I should cover the Klimt story, she made much of the fact that the museum cafe would be selling a special "Klimt cake" with a bit of gold leaf on it, and wondered if we could shoot the cakes being baked and decorated, etc. She also wanted reaction to the show from museum visitors. Most of all, she wanted an interview with the museum's billionaire co-founder, Ronald Lauder.

The museum said Lauder would do the interview and set up the shoot for May 23, just before the show opened and again for May 24, when we could interview museum-goers and shoot in the cafe. Lauder canceled at the last minute, handing off the interview to museum director and art historian Renee Price, who was excellent. The next day, (b) (6) insisted that I again request that the Lauder interview be rescheduled, even though the museum had already twice told me no.

I was off through Tuesday the 29th, when I received an email from (b) (6) telling me the story must be written and produced by Thursday night.

(I am off Fridays). So, I stayed late on Wednesday to log and write the story in one day. I also canceled my plans for Thursday evening, in case production took long.

The script I wrote was, I thought, innocuous but accurate and entertaining. It described some of Klimt's portraits of women, and included the reaction to his art from museum-goers. I "opted" a couple of lines that referred to a painting showing a woman's bottom that some language services might not want to show.

The only other painting in the story with nudity was a full-length portrait that showed partly-revealed breasts. This part of the portrait might be finessed by language services that had issues with that, or shown only fleetingly. Sending in the script Wednesday night, I expected it would get a quick turnaround by copy editors so it could be produced on Thursday.

On Thursday, however, VOA Central News chief (b) (6) unilaterally decided not to delay but to kill the story. "We don't have time" for it, she wrote, as if putting stories out is not exactly what we have time for. She refused to explain or give any reason. She had earlier received an email from (b) (6) that said in part, "(b) (6) has focused on the erotic aspects of Klimt. She was opposed to doing this story because she said there were naked portraits."

As noted, we had spent days discussing, shooting and writing this story, and it remains timely for two more months -- even more timely next month. The actual Klimt anniversary is not until July 14 and the show will remain up through August.

(b) (6) unnecessary spiking of the story is damaging to my productivity and standing, and retaliatory, I believe, for my having pointed out and attempted to negotiate corrections to (b) (6) editing errors in many past stories and for appealing to (b) (6) to put a stop to (b) (6) unprofessional conduct and bullying.

In February, I informed (b) (6) that (b) (6) who is ranked a supervisor, had sent angry, untrue emails about me on at least two occasions to groups of my colleagues and supervisors. One said, "As usual, (b) (6) has used abuse and bizarre allegations to discredit my comments about her piece." (b) (6) responded to my appeal by saying that I had offended (b) (6) too.

According to a petition from 1999 signed by 50 Central News staff members, (b) (6) in her first stint as news chief engaged in arbitrary, vindictive and/or retaliatory actions against ten highly-regarded employees, some of whom subsequently left VOA. Following the petition, she was removed as news chief, and returned to a job as an overseas correspondent. I did not sign that petition, incidentally, and had never worked with (b) (6) until she was reinstalled as news chief two years ago by (b) (6), over the protests of Central News staff.

I have worked at VOA for many years. I have never before had a completed script killed. One editor attempted to kill a two-part radio series of mine about a controversial anti-malaria drug. The VOA director at the time, (b) (6), was familiar with the issue. He overruled her and ordered the story be issued.

Nor have I heard before of a Central News chief who killed a story without offering a reason for doing so. It strikes at everything our journalism is supposed to be based on: honesty, integrity, impartiality, professionalism, good faith, transparency, candor. Not to mention morale. We are to invest ourselves in stories -- and impose on our sources to give us their time in interviews and shoots -- and then have them killed without explanation?

Below is a record of email exchanges on the Klimt script (with my spelling of Munch and Ungar corrected), including the script itself.

Subject: Klimt show script for editing -- with "The Goldfish" and "The Kiss" attached, FYI

Note to Eds: The "Kiss" section seems important to include because it is the most recognizable Klimt painting (and we can use a jpeg, since it is in the public domain as the work of an artist dead more than 70 years. Ditto with The Goldfish, and the works for the Vienna University Commission, for which we have a high-res image in color, and one of his charcoal drawings from the show.)

Also, (b) (6) Regarding the Klimt cake being sold in the museum's café during the show: I couldn't find an opening where it wouldn't seem like a PR puff/digression. It is a piece of chocolate cake with a bit of gold on top - nothing evocative of art or Klimt. I also couldn't make it work in the Intro either, again because it seems like a PR gambit, and of no interest or value to audiences even closer to NYC than Indonesia, Nigeria, etc..

((INTRO))

Museums in Vienna are celebrating the 150th anniversary of the birth of the Austrian modernist painter Gustav Klimt this coming July. New York City's Neue Galerie - a private museum co-founded ten years ago by billionaire collector Ronald S. Lauder - is also marking the anniversary with a special show of Klimt's paintings, drawings and photographs of the artist. VOA's Carolyn Weaver reports.

((NARRATOR))

The small Neue Galerie show's centerpiece is Klimt's 1907 portrait of an Austrian socialite, Adele Bloch-Bauer -- a painting as mosaic-like and blazing with gold leaf as the Byzantine icons that Klimt admired.

Neue Galerie director Renee Price:

((RENEE PRICE))

"He used Old Master techniques, he applied gesso to the canvas. And of course this woman is sort of almost in an armor of ornament, or sea of ornament around her and considerable portion of the canvas is a flat abstract space. This is extremely modern for the time."

((NARRATOR))

Museum co-founder Ronald S. Lauder paid $135 million for the portrait in 2006 - the largest sum ever spent on a single work of art at the time - and it has drawn new visitors to Neue Galerie's collection of early 20th century Austrian and German art and design.

(([BEGIN OPT TWO LINES ABOUT "THE KISS"] Many said they first discovered Klimt through an even more famous painting from his "golden" period, "The Kiss," which is owned by a Vienna museum.

SOPHIE KARBJINSKI:

"I love 'The Kiss,' I just fell in love with it the first time I saw it."

END OPT LINES))

((NARRATOR))

High school student Sophie Karbjinksyi:

((SOPHIE KARBJINSKI))

"The women he paints have something mysterious but vulnerable, and so beautiful about them, in such a natural way, though - they're never perfect."

((NARRATOR))

She points to "The Dancer," for example, another portrait at the Neue Galerie. Like many of Klimt's works, the subject - partially undressed and surrounded by flowers - glows as if lit from within by a rosy eroticism.

((RENEE PRICE))

"Klimt loved women, and many of his women and drawings are extremely sensuous. Even today, they still make people look twice."

((NARRATOR))

Riley Steiner, visiting from Virginia, said she approved:

((RILEY STEINER))

"That's a good thing, as far as I'm concerned. I always look for the grittiness and the eros in a piece of work. I love it."

((OPT THE BITE FROM GUSTAVO BELOW, OR THE STEINER ONE ABOVE, IF NEC. FOR TIME]))

((NARRATOR))

Mexican law student Gustavo Acebes agreed:

((GUSTAVO ACEBES))

"I can very well see how they were shocking in their time, particularly in the beginning of the 20th century. I can imagine my grandmother being horrified and unable to appreciate many things that my mother is now able to admire."

((NARRATOR))

In addition to his portraits of women, Klimt also painted many landscapes during summers in the lake region. He withdrew from public art after the University of Vienna rejected as "obscene" his works for their schools of science, medicine and philosophy.

((BEGIN OPT LINES; Note to EDS: See the image attached. It is a beautiful, humorous painting, but still could be optional for services whose audiences might object.))

His painting "The Goldfish" was a rejoinder to that, Price says, presenting the viewer with the ample backside of a curvy woman.

((RENEE PRICE))

That was his answer, literally saying, 'Why don't you just kiss my posterior,' in a very sort of nice way. Everybody knew what he meant when that painting came. ((END OPT)) And that was really the end for him of any public commissions. And yet he was the greatest living artist in Vienna at the time."

((NARRATOR))

Most of Klimt's works are in other collections, so the anniversary show in New York is relatively small: seven paintings and about 40 drawings and photographs, including some never shown before of Klimt - often wearing the long robe he favored.

((BEGIN OPT LINE))

He never married, but lived at home with his mother and sisters - while fathering at least six children with his models.

((END OPT))

The Neue Galerie exhibit is on view through August 27.

When do you want to talk about this. I think (b) (6) has focused on the erotic aspects of Klimt. She was opposed to doing this story because she said there were naked portraits. The museum assured me that most of the paintings were not naked.

Bottom line: (no pun intended) Klimt has a huge and cultish following here and abroad. His paintings are lush, beautiful, like collages of dense fabrics. Hopefully the video is beautiful (they were shot by Daniela). There's no need to focus on naked bodies.

In fact, we'd have a shorter piece, and that's not bad.

By the way, having (b) (6) in this piece, explaining what he loves about Klimt, would have been terrific.

Anyway, I am reading the original script before the first edit by (b) .

Dear Editors:

(b) (6) email mischaracterizes both Klimt's work and the backstory of the assignment. And it really should have been cc'd to me, among the dozens of others who received it.

Klimt's paintings of women, particularly semi-clothed and naked women, are a central aspect of his work. He would not be remembered today for his occasional landscapes. His paintings are sensuous rather than sexual, for the most part, and my script did not mention his explicitly erotic drawings of sexual acts. His "golden period" paintings are not "lush" (a niche-luxury magazine word) -- they are flat paintings with gold and silver leaf that refer to Byzantine art and mosaics.

Regardless, my script -- as you can see below-- covered Klimt's painterly eroticism tastefully. I opted the lines about one "bare-bottom" painting. The only other painting that has nudity in it is The Dancer. It has only partly exposed breasts, and the treatment is of something beautiful, not "sexual." We can also edit even that innocuous image in a way that will make it even more discreet and fleeting, if necessary. So, there simply is not an issue of explicit nudity in the story -- and no reason to agonize over it.

Further, I was not "opposed" to doing this story. I raised the point with (b) that the story would inevitably present issues of sensuality and nudity and censorship. This is something editors need to consider prior to assignment.

(b) (6) denied this, choosing to overlook the art itself, while focusing on the big-money aspect of the central portrait, the prestige of possibly getting an interview with the museum's billionaire founder, and a PR gimmick about cake.

Her reference to it "would have been nice" to have (b) (6) in the piece beats a dead horse. We did not have the option of including Lauder. He first agreed, then canceled at the last minute with no excuse, giving us the museum director instead. I asked twice more if he might consider rescheduling; the museum was firm that it was not going to happen. Indeed, why would it pester its billionaire founder?

And -- last -- I wrote a fine script on short notice, staying late to do it, and canceling my own plans for tonight in case of a late production. How extraordinary that the copy editor would fail in the courtesy of cc'ing me, the reporter, her email about my script, and even fail to communicate as of this writing that the script was being held over.

(b) (6) continues to eat up enormous resources and time with her editing errors and wild-goose chase assignments (having a videographer spend half a day searching Chinatown for coffee-mug reproductions of the Munch painting "The Scream," is just one recent example.)

She is grossly incompetent as a copy editor, rewriting (and botching) sentences willy-nilly, inserting factual errors, and taking longer to "edit" a script than it does to write it.

In the Barnard profile I did, she pressured the second copy editor to include footage of Meryl Streep giving a commencement speech, and wrongly identified Streep as a Barnard graduate. He would have capitulated had I not pushed back.

As a largely self-appointed "arts and culture" editor, she is interested mainly in wealthy people, celebrities, fashion, blockbuster plays, and big-ticket art auctions and other niche luxury items of interest to elite westerners. Art and culture stories in other categories, particularly about not-yet-famous immigrants from our target audiences, is ignored.

I think we would do better without any one editor specifically assigned to arts coverage rather than allow (b) (6) to continue to misdirect our scarce resources here.

Dear (b) (6) :

Thank you for your reply and of course, I'm sorry if my note was out of line. I would not knowingly send an unprofessional or uncivil note, and I would be grateful if you would explain to me, if you wish, exactly how it is unprofessional to communicate specifically to an employee's superiors, and to their superiors, that we are spending enormous amounts of time dealing with errors, delays, and errant assignments by that employee.

This situation has gone on for years, as you know, with story after story.

More seriously. (b) (6) treatment of me personally, as I have also indicated to you before, amounts to harassment and bullying. You have tolerated that conduct, even when I told you that (b) (6) a supervisor, has on at least two occasions vented anger and slurred me as "malicious" in emails she sent to to entire mail groups. In response, you told me that my attempts to correct errors inserted by her editing were equivalent offenses against her. (i.e.: "Malicious" emailed by a supervisor to a broadcast group is the equivalent of "Can we fix this?" spoken by a subordinate to an editor.)

Your most recent note says that the Klimt story is to be KILLED, because "we" do not have "time" to deal with it. May I ask how that could be? I don't understand why this would take much time, beyond an hour's worth of copy editing and an afternoon of production?

Note again that the script I wrote has no essential nudity in it -- two shots that can be elided or opted out -- or indeed anything controversial. And (b) (6) when we discussed the question of nudity in this story weeks ago, told (b) (6) that we would not cover up Michelangelo's David -- yet we cannot do this story, even though the nudity can be sidestepped? Are we really to waste several days' worth of work by (b) (6) and me, again? This is exactly the outcome that I feared when (b) (6) first broached the assignment.

(b) (6)

I've been reading through a list of e-mail exchanges between you and (b) (6) and find that they tend to be more "pointed" than they should be and usually include a large group of recipients. As I have so very often said, I encourage discussion between reporter and editor and it can be spirited. It is best to keep e-mail discussions between reporter and editor and not include a wide e-mail group. Part of the job of an editor is not just to copy edit, but to also decide what stories are wanted, which ones not, what angle might prove most interesting, what not. Of course, most times the correspondent will and should have a good idea what stories work best and how and what angle a story should take. That's part of the story pitch and discussion. Usually differences can be talked through and resolved.

If there is a major difference it can warrant calling in a more senior editor, for example - but this should really not be par for the course. Bottom line is that differences must not turn into personal attacks, which will likely cause great offense and are simply not acceptable.

I ran across an e-mail from late last year in which I wrote a similar note to you about maintaining a professional tone in your e-mails.

You replied November 12, 2011 that you agreed with, as you put it, my "wise reminder" to conduct exchanges in a professional manner. Let follow that please.

It was my decision to spike the Klimt story.

I understand that tomorrow is your day off? Let's get back on track Monday. If you've already got a story you're working on, please advise. Otherwise there will time for pitches or assignments on Monday. Have a good weekend.

(b) (6),

Would you be so kind as to tell me your reason for spiking the Klimt story? It is the first story in all my years at VOA that has been spiked after scripting. It represents several days of agency time and resources spent by both (b) (6) and me. There need be no nudity in it -- no breasts, no buttocks. It is a charming story and well-written script, if I say so myself, with beautiful visuals.

It seems only fair that you should share your reasoning as to why it should be thrown away. And I would like to share with the inspector general the waste that I believe spiking it would represent.

I do recall that (b) (6) once tried to spike a story of mine about an anti-malaria drug. (b) (6), whose wife worked in public health, intervened in defense of our journalistic integrity and common sense.

I am sorry you think my emails are unduly pointed. It is sometimes challenging to smooth over unpleasant realities. And that is not really our job as journalists, is it? But I have always attempted to be diplomatic in pointing out errors introduced by (b) (6) rewriting and editing of my scripts, and in suggesting corrections. Except to you and her superiors, I have not criticized her generally, only worked to repair specific problems in specific scripts.

When (b) emails to a large group, I use "reply all" to the same group, lest they receive only partial information that is relevant to their work. I have not initiated recent emails about her errors broadly, although one night when she went home, I had to email the central editors who would be putting the story out.

In any case, are we not responsible for our work? Is this something to cover over, that there are errors in a story that need to be corrected -- even if it happens with every single story that one editor works on? If I did not tell other editors when (b) (6) refused to correct an error, errant stories would go out. Is that what you say I should accept -- to knowingly track and produce stories with errors in them?

Is that what our audience and the taxpayers are paying for?

Below is the February note where I attempted to lay out for you the nature of the situation. You responded with a false equivalence between a supervisor angrily slurring an employee to her colleagues, and my attempts, as her subordinate, to correct scripts prior to their release. I don't think my note was too pointed.

Regards,

FEBRUARY NOTE:

From: (b) (6)
Sent: Thursday, February 09, 2012 1:07 PM
To: (b) (6)
Subject: re: your note

Hi (b) (6),

Thanks for your note. I hope this will further clarify what is happening here. With most of my editors, I have only one thing to say: "Thanks." Or, "Nice catch!" Unfortunately, this situation is not about an editor and a writer having a spirited debate, but about an editor who arbitrarily and carelessly rewrites scripts, frequently inserting errors. It is an irrational situation that has continued for several years, wasting hundreds of agency hours and pushing off production.

As you know from previous episodes, I have attempted to negotiate careful corrections to errors inserted by her editing, trying not to offend her as I do so. Sometimes she'll correct one error, but introduce a new one with her next iteration of the script. When errors are pointed out to her, however diplomatically, she sometimes gets angry and verbally abusive.

You will recall that during her month's-long reworking of my Diego Rivera story, at one point she cited a fictional film as a historical authority for a dramatic incident she wanted included in my script.

When I said that the incident had never taken place, she argued, "But that's not how the movie had it." She disputed the scholars we interviewed and made incorrect statements about the exhibit itself and about the historical period. She claimed she never had asked for documentary footage that she had emailed me about asking me to try to obtain.

There is no such tolerance in our agency for errors or misstatements committed by the rank and file. When I tell people outside the agency about these incidents, their jaws drop.

Obviously, this costs the agency. I could have covered the Viktor Bout court hearing yesterday had I not had to spend much of the day working to amend the errors she inserted into my latest feature script. I could have done several other stories in the weeks we spent doing and redoing the Diego Rivera story.

(b) (6) has twice now written slurring notes about me to my colleagues, including a blanket note she sent to the web desk. As far as I know, she hasn't been called to account for that wildly unprofessional behavior, or asked to retract or apologize for those notes.

Best,

(b) (6)

AND AN UNSENT NOTE FROM FEBRUARY OR MARCH:

(b) (6),

It was nice to see you in the bureau last week. I wanted to answer your note below, now that I have a minute on the weekend again. I was disappointed that your response to my email did not address the serious concerns that mine raised, concerns that are causing me to become stressed and sleepless.

My email described to you a wasteful, unpleasant and harassing situation: the wholesale, clumsy rewriting and constant insertion of errors into scripts by (b) (6), a copy editor, and the delays in issuing stories and reduced productivity caused by this.

When (b) is done with an edit of my story, the result is often simply embarrassing. The style becomes that almost of a computer translation by a computer that doesn't know English well. Sentences are chopped up willy-nilly, sometimes creating a singsong-y effect along the lines of "Look at Spot. See Spot run." Nuances and humor and anything like gracefulness are excised. It's editing as an exercise in bullying.

I appealed to you to exercise your responsibility as news chief to correct this situation, one that would not be tolerated in a rationally-run organization.

My note also described (b) (6) anger at having to correct her errors, and the two attack-emails she has sent to other supervisors and rank-and-file falsely slurring me in response.

You wrote back stating that you had not read the script then in question, but advising me that when a disagreement about copy cannot be resolved with the editor directly, then I should appeal to a manager. Since you had acted as supervisory editor in my last editing imbroglio with (b) (6) over the (b) (6) story, I assumed you meant yourself.

I responded by sending you an email appealing an inaccuracy that (b) had written into the story that was being produced that day that she had refused thus far to correct.

You did not respond to my email or to a follow-up around 5 p.m. At 9 p.m. you finally wrote back, telling me I should refer such questions to other, lower-ranking managers such as (b) (6).

In the meantime, (b) (6) also refused to consider the correction, on the grounds that I had put the ball in your court and it was now up to you to decide.

I produced the piece that evening with the modified phrase wild-tracked at the end. The next day, (b) (6) chose to put the story out with the misleading line instead. So, between the two of you, the responsibility to ensure the accuracy and integrity of a story was evaded.

Your note also suggested that the emails (b) has sent slurring me to colleagues are not a problem, because, as you note, (b) (6) is equally offended by my attempts to correct errors she inserts in my scripts.

These two situations are not equivalent, obviously.

I believe that (b) (6) "editing" of my stories (or rather, her wholesale rewriting), has become a means of personal harassment. I think she is now consciously retaliating against me, both by obstructing my work and slurring me to colleagues.

As you may know, I have been a journalist for many years. Feature stories and long-form investigative pieces of mine have been published in The New York Times and national magazines. I have freelanced as a copy editor myself for national magazines. Both in my freelance writing in the past and my many years at VOA, I can assure you that I have never dealt with an editor like (b) (6)

Short of filing a grievance, I would suggest a simple solution: that other editors edit my work. (b) (6)

[REDACTED] -- are all good editors who conduct themselves professionally. They answer questions and resolve issues immediately and collegially. ((b) [REDACTED] often leaves questions unanswered rather than admit to an error.) They edit scripts with dispatch, and their edits improve the script. They do not rewrite routinely.

This won't solve the entire problem, given that other reporters I have spoken with in DC and the bureaus have similar issues with (b) (6) work, but at least it will remove the ugly personal situation that has developed here.

Had a chance to review the Consolidation plan that was posted on BBG website. <http://www.bbg.gov/wp-content/media/2012/05/Draft-Grantee-Consolidation-Plan-April-12-2012A.pdf>

As my note below from January indicated when the initial Deloitte report came out, I am still not convinced in the efficacy or efficiencies the plan envisions, and will recommend Senator Lugar oppose it.

I continue to believe that the Consolidation will disrupt the operations of those portions of the BBG family which have the least need of tinkering.

I grant you their salary and benefit structures may be different, but they are clearly not an impediment to operations and, b/c of language differences do not result in the 3 grantees poaching from one another.

Rather than comparing them to each other, they should be compared to VOA, language duplications eliminated, DC-colocation and de-federalization discussions laid upon the table.

Such “small ball” as the Consolidation proposes may score you a run or two, but if you don’t “swing for the fences” it will not win you the game (apologies to Nats fans for the baseball metaphor abuse).

Subject: Thoughts on BBG Grantee Consolidation before tomorrow's Board mtg

I read the Deloitte rpt.

<http://media.voanews.com/documents/Deloitte+Grantee+Consolidation+AssessmentRedacted.pdf>

While I agree that there is potential for marginal savings by combining/harmonizing the HR and Budget shops, I don't really see how, absent co-location, you will see that significant of a savings.

Based on the report, I am not convinced that you will see significant Tech savings given the disparities in platforms used and the vast distances between Dubai-Prague, DC/Sterling.

I think it IS worth looking at harmonizing the HR structures of each so that each profession/skill earns the same wage/benefit (the report notes that a “significant” # of RFA employees are unionized, but gives no # or %, which was unhelpful).

While the plan calls for a CEO/President over the 3 Grantees, each would still need a head/Director to run them who would have the day to day operational issues to deal with.

I am unconvinced that this is any different from the existing situation except to add another layer, esp if RFE remains in Prague and one or more Grantees remain in DC.

Given, as the report notes, the only-crossover language between any of the services is Arabic, it is clear that no real savings will come from there.

Absent a grander reorganization that addresses/includes VOA in the mix, the only real savings I see would be moving MBN to Prague and/or co-locating MBN/RFA/RFE(DC) into a single building in the DC Metro area.

Subj: comments to Consolidation Summary

To Whom It May Concern:

Below are some comments to requested by the Broadcasting Board of Governors on your website. The plan as presented is lacking in specificity, and a true review cannot be accomplished without a thorough review of the underlying data from which the expected savings were calculated. If the full data is to be made available at a future date, I can be more specific in my comments.

Comments BBG Consolidation Plan

- 1) Bias - The plan is very MBN centric, making it seem as if the youngest of the three grantees knows best. Putting forward the most homogenized and localized entity as the model of the merged entity seems specious at best. Of course, having the two main authors of the report being senior management at MBN might have something to do with the obvious bias in the report.
- 2) Structure - The proposed management structure actually adds a layer of management to the operation of the "brands." Changing the titles of the CEOs to General Manager of the brands does not appear to lead to efficiency. The support of these positions will necessarily mean that some of the positions forecast to be eliminated by the reduction of the number of Presidents is overstated.
- 3) Culture - There is no mention of the distinct differences in the cultures of the three entities, and how a new structure will affect the individual nature of the three entities. There is mention of maintaining the individual brands, but nothing is said of protecting that which makes each entity unique. This consolidation over time risks the homogenization into a singular entity, so that all the three brands would be noting but names.
- 4) Timeline - The timeline as presented is too quick to allow for an optimal structure of the new organization. A proper procedure would be for the new consolidated entity to begin operations, then look to choosing the management structure and underlying systems that will best work for the new organization. By putting these decisions early on in the process, the best systems will not be chosen and the costs could be higher than otherwise. Further to this, there is not enough time in the process for proper procurement as outlined in OMB Circular A-110.
- 5) Cost/Benefit Analysis - The information provided talks about the savings without showing any numbers to back them up. Further to this, the savings appear to be based on the immediate consolidation of all activities. There is no mention of the costs associated with canceling already contracted services, including rent on current facilities. There is also the mention of eliminating fifty-one support positions as the basis for 50% of the proposed cost savings. How many of those positions that are currently vacant/frozen is not mentioned. Any position eliminated that is not filled does not actually lead to savings. These funds have already been diverted for broadcasting, so they should not be counted toward the total.

- 6) Balance Sheet - There is no mention about the costs associated with combining balance sheets. There are assets and liabilities that come with each of the entities, and will necessarily have to be paid off or merged into the new entity. Along with this will be then necessary revaluation at current levels. This could lead to starting the new entity with major expenses that will necessarily need to be charged off in the first year of operations.
- 7) Employee Comparisons - There is a mention of the cost of benefits for employees in the various location without any context or actual numbers. Having employees in Prague may have benefits to the overall organization based on their being closer to their broadcast regions. This allows for more timely news gathering and reporting. As for the actual comparison of benefit percentages this is very disingenuous, as it does not show the total cost per employee, and doesn't look at the productivity of the employees. For example, even with the cost of local social taxation in the Czech Republic the total cost of support personnel is 30% to 50% of the cost of the same position in Springfield, VA.

Dear Colleagues

I am responding to the joint memo sent to Dick Lobo by Governor Mulhaupt and Lynton. While I respect the difference of opinion which exists here, I also profoundly differ. There is an absence of discussion on the points I have raised. I feel the public process is enhanced when there is debate in a public setting on these issues. Tax dollars are involved. The memo references that I would receive answers from Mr. Lobo on the questions I raised. His email to me and copied to the full Board said I would receive them Monday (today). Unless they arrive in the next two and half hours, I have not received them on Monday. I do not know when or if I will receive them. All Governors should have responses to their questions. I look forward to the Lobo response.

Since the Lynton-Mulhaupt memo refers to the legislative process as being one in which this proposal will be fully vetted, I assume this is an assertion that the legislative process should work its way and hear from all interested citizens on all sides of this issue. I believe the legislative process should include public hearings on this which, in my view, did not happen in an adequate way on our Board. I do not feel there should be a rush to judgment.

I trust that prior e mails on this subject including the Lynton-Mulhaupt e mail should be posted on the BBG web site and it should be public that BBG is pursuing this. This is no longer pre-decisional given this memo. The decision has been now been made by memo and without a Board meeting/discussion. It seems to me that this is now in the public arena and the discussion on the topic should be fully public even if it is not in a Board setting. I welcome the thoughts of others.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Ashe

From: Michael Lynton and Dennis Mulhaupt

You have asked for the Board's comments and guidance on offering the proposed CEO draft legislation to the House Foreign Affairs Committee for review and possible inclusion in a bill now under consideration. We are responding to this request in our roles as the Presiding Governor and Chair of the Governance Committee.

Based on the facts as outlined below and a number of conversations with Board colleagues, and absent specific contrary instructions expressed by a majority of Governors (as outlined below), please move forward with this initiative.

The entire Board has more than once approved the concept of an empowered CEO, to be achieved through legislation as appropriate. We discussed the need for and the means to create a BBG CEO position for almost a year and a half before unanimously and formally approving it in January 2012. In fact, it was one of the first issues and priorities that we discussed after being seated in July 2010. Formal approval this January came after extensive consultations and discussions with a number of relevant stakeholders, both inside and outside the agency, including Members of Congress and Congressional staff and on several occasions with the executives heading VOA, OCB, and the grantees. We also note that most of these five executives have repeatedly expressed support for this initiative. To our knowledge, not one of them has spoken out in opposition to it (unlike the case of the potential grantee merger, where one of three people heading the grantees has expressed opposition to that separate plan).

It is therefore clear that the Board has already approved the creation of a CEO. When your team identified a potential opportunity to implement this decision through draft legislation being prepared in Congress now, quite appropriately the Board was informed of this opportunity, starting with the Communications Committee 10 days ago. When asked, a majority of Board members then indicated they were comfortable with this specific approach, and they directed staff to proceed. Only one Governor expressed a negative opinion on proceeding and has raised questions and concerns; you have affirmed that you will provide answers and information to address them. In the interval, the legislative proposal was provided to the Board several days ago. A number of legitimate questions and issues have been raised about how the CEO position will be implemented and how it will work in practice, some of them by Governor Ashe. The Board will discuss and decide these issues in due course. Again, it is clear that a majority favors moving ahead without delay on the basic issue of creating the position, whether through legislation or otherwise. If individual Governors have a contrary view, please let us and the entire Board know as soon as possible. If a majority expresses a definitive contrary view at this time, the entire Board will revisit this matter. Of course, Congress will consider this provision carefully and it will be fully vetted through the legislative process.

We wish to thank you and your senior colleagues, particularly [REDACTED] (b) (6) for your excellent and useful work in bringing this important opportunity to the Board's attention.

Subj: Comment on the BBG Proposal to Consolidate Entity Support Functions

I want to express my appreciation to the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) for seeking public comment on the proposal to consolidate various support functions for Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL), Radio Free Asia (RFA), and the Middle East Broadcasting Networks (MBN). I trust this is a sincere request and that the views of individuals such as myself will be taken seriously.

First, let me state that my comments are based on four decades of experience in U.S. International Broadcasting (USIB). I worked for RFE/RL in New York and Munich for 11 years, becoming Assistant News Director before I left to join Voice of America. At VOA I served many years as a correspondent abroad and domestically before becoming Managing Editor of Central News. At then Director (b) (6) request, I then served as Acting Director of the Persian News Network, launching the successful Parazit show and other initiatives. Before retiring in 2011, I was a Senior Advisor to the Director, focused on Afghanistan and Pakistan programming as well as general news issues.

I am proud of my service and want the institution I served to be as successful as possible. To achieve that goal, I believe it is incumbent on the Board to consider more far-reaching consolidation measures that will achieve both substantial taxpayer savings while preserving the journalistic mission of USIB.

I am of the firm opinion that the plan offered by the Board to merge support functions at RFA, RFE/RL, and MBN into a single new grantee organization, eliminating 51 positions and saving approximately $10 million per year beginning in FY 2014, does not go far enough and will only exacerbate existing tensions within USIB.

The creation of a new executive position, presumably highly-paid, to oversee the new entity while preserving the existing highly-paid top leadership at RFE/RL, RFA and MBN is, quite simply, a bad move. Creating another managerial position while gutting the journalistic and technical staffs of the entities will provoke open outrage at a time when the Board can least afford it.

No. It's time for the BBG, if it truly wants to save taxpayers' money and enhance the global mission of U.S. International Broadcasting, to consider a much bigger and bolder kind of consolidation.

I would integrate the non-federal RFE/RL, RFA and MBN entities together with the federal Voice of America (VOA) and Radio/TV Marti into a single, federal organization, eliminating all language duplication. Salaries would be public information and limited by law. As I have proposed before, this new operation would be headquartered in Washington D.C. at the existing VOA center with satellite production bureaus as needed in strategic locations in addition to smaller news bureaus.

Because VOA is the oldest (70 years) and best-known brand, the new consolidated entity would be known as the Voice of America. If there was compelling reason to preserve any of the other entity names, I would re-label existing VOA programming. For example, Radio/TV Marti could be part of VOA's Latin America Division and any shows directed at Cuba could be called "Marti on VOA." Similarly, like VOA's current "Persian News Network", we could have "The Middle East Broadcasting Network on VOA."

The integration of the entities and the closure of selected facilities (the RFE/RL and RFA offices in Washington, for example, as well as RFE/RL HQ in Prague) would yield substantial cost savings as would personnel reductions stemming from the consolidation of language services and support staff. It would then be possible to trim substantially the executive ranks, as there would no longer be need for separate entity directors, legal counsels, personnel directors, budget chiefs and the various technical and engineering directors. This would help keep peace with the rank-and-file who see in the current environment that working journalists and studio technicians usually carry the heaviest burden when staffs are cut while the managerial ranks inevitably seem to grow.

Unfortunately, the BBG staff maintains that “one organization, many brands” is integral to the BBG’s new strategy and contends that the ability to have multiple brands offers several advantages.

Frankly, I believe it creates consumer confusion instead and there is no benefit from confusing audiences. VOA once had a respected Arabic service. It was closed and MBN was created (at great cost). Wouldn’t it have been more efficient and cheaper to simply provide the already well-established VOA with additional transmitters and staff?

The same is true of RFA. Instead of creating it, Congress could have given half the funds required to VOA’s Asia Division to expand its programming.

RFE/RL? That entity has long lost its original target audience and is now jokingly referred to as “Radio free of Europe.” It broadcasts to many of the same countries VOA already has significant audiences in.

Two more points, if you will. I believe the BBG needs to adopt a new mission statement. I propose:

“U.S. International Broadcasting (USIB) will serve as a consistently reliable and authoritative source of accurate, objective and comprehensive news in support of freedom of the press and the free flow of information worldwide.”

Your staff strategists maintains their choice of a new mission statement – “To inform, engage and connect people around the world in support of freedom and democracy” – covers objective journalism and press freedom. But I am of the opinion that this statement overreaches and in so doing undermines audience confidence in the actual objectivity of USIB programming.

My final point is this: it is time for Congress and the Administration to consider revamping the BBG itself and a consolidation of the various existing entities offers the best opportunity to do so.

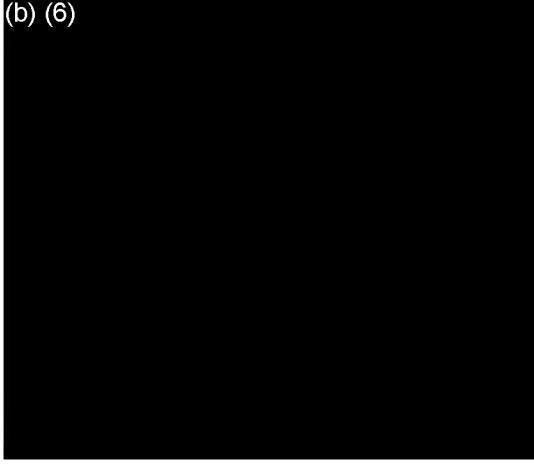

If Congress and the Administration were to agree on creation of a single, unified USIB entity, there would be no further need for the BBG as it is presently constituted. Instead I would recommend there be a Broadcasting Board of Advisors (BBA) to select and advise a single new Director of USIB, who should not be subject to Senate confirmation. This Board of Advisors should be entirely non-partisan and professional. I would suggest giving seats to representatives of the U.S. news media, to appointees representing journalism education, to USIB retirees and, perhaps, to retired U.S. public diplomacy specialists. I would also remove the Secretary of State from the Board and allow the eight other members to elect their own Chairman.

I believe a restructuring of USIB and the BBG along these lines would truly spark a renaissance in our nation's efforts to communicate to the world.

Thank you for considering my views.

Very good answer...and all understandable. The idea of a photo is a good one. The other photos in the carousel are really quite good. It is easy to not notice that the current photo is not from the real Miami meeting and while no one else may notice it is still not the real meeting, updating it to include a real photo of the actual Miami meeting makes sense. I think the carousel idea is sound and ought to continue.

A good thought, Victor, thank you. Hadn't noticed that until you pointed it out. And I wanted to get the complete story from the BBG PA team before replying to you.

The photo was posted when advance notice of the April 20 meeting went on-line -- posting a photo alongside text is one way to draw attention to the latter.

BBG PA's long-standing practice has been to convert the web page with the advance notice for a given meeting into the location for storing relevant documents and archived video after that meeting. Without having easy access to a photo of the Board in action in Miami, the team simply added the documents and video, ands left the old photo up.

Through Tish, I've asked that the team create a screen grab from the video of the April 20 meeting and post that one instead. I'm also asking colleagues at OCB whether any stills were taken; if so, we'll use one of those. In either case, the swap normally would happen on Monday.

In the meantime, the "carousel" where this item appears at the top of the homepage includes several other, compelling pieces about the agency's work, each of which is on-screen briefly as it cycles through. Hopefully folks will pay attention to those.

I am sorry to point out that the current photo on the BBG web site page of the April 20 Board meeting is not the April 20 Board meeting in Miami but another one as it shows Michael Lynton and Dana Perino at the meeting along with me. I wish, of course, that they could have attended the meeting.

While it does not state precisely that this photo was of that Miami meeting, the implication is that they were there. It seems to me that if BBG is going to run a photo of a Board meeting next to the language which points the way to hear and see the tape of a specific meeting (namely, the April 20 meeting) then the photo should be from the meeting being promoted and not a different one as two of the three people in the photo were not at the meeting and did not appear on the tape/video.

I know this was not intentional but in the interest of truth in advertising either there should be a photo from the actual meeting or a disclaimer that the photo is from a different meeting than April 20. Just a thought.

It is food for thought and I think a good place to start is for the grantee heads along with VOA and OCB heads to start regular meetings over breakfast or lunch when BBG meets or by teleconference. This used to happen and has dropped off in the past year for whatever reason I understand.

In specific instances like this, then using the phone to call MBN or VOA or them calling RFE if it is the other way around makes sense. This can happen now. We do not have to wait on the consolidation issues being resolved.

Have a good weekend and we all look forward to May and the wonderful weather. The Murrow Transmission facility dedication is this Wednesday and should be a great event thanks to efforts of Tish King, Lynne Weil, local staff, Congressman Jones and local officials in Pitt County.

Dennis' response is spot on. I could not have said it better myself.

As to raising this in Miami, that would have been tough to do, since I was only told about it this past week during a meeting I held with language service directors to prepare for a series of meetings Dick is chairing on the 2014 budget.

Regarding my failure to copy (b) (6) mea culpa. It was inadvertent. I didn't even realize it until Dick pointed it out to me late last night (my time). I had planned to send them a copy this morning (my time). So thank you for forwarding a copy to them.

Nothing in my email was intended as a criticism of MBN or VOA. I am confident that there are plenty of instances where RFE/RL has failed to provide our sister organizations with material that they needed. The point here is that organizations (and people) respond to the incentives which are provided to them. Unless and until the incentives are changed, one cannot expect the behavior to change. This was, is, and always will be a feature of human nature.

As I said, this was only intended as food for thought in your ongoing deliberations on the future structure of USIB.

Victor:

I don't think (b) was trying to be critical here. I believe he was just trying to point out some of the institutional barriers to cooperation and to our ability to deliver as effectively as possible on USIM's over-arching global mission. Clearly, and understandably given the current structure, all the networks have their individual priorities which do not always fit with their sister institutions' priorities. Even with the best will the world, which I believe all our business leaders have, absent some new approaches these problems will continue to arise and the cooperation and mission success we all seek in different parts of the world, and on different platforms, will continue to present a challenge.

I sure (b) has, or will, discuss this individual case with (b) but again I don't see it as criticism of MBN or its leadership, but rather an effort to bring to the board's attention some of the "on the ground" challenges all our networks face.

this should be shared with (b) and others too as it involves MBN and criticism of MBN. This type of issue could be resolved easily right now by you (b) letting the Board know and/or Lobo and asking for his involvement. You could have told the 6 Board members present in Miami only 8 days ago about this and we could have discussed it with (b) (6) present. I assume you knew about it then as the story broke on April 5 according to the e mail.

Frankly I am disappointed that this was not bumped up to you (b) much earlier and then you should have picked up the phone and called (b) as well relative Governors if you thought it merited action.

Consolidation has many unanswered questions and missing documentation on cost and savings which I raised on April 20 at the BBG Board meeting. Even a so called streamlined organization which you favor will have these issues too. As Gov Meehan pointed out, this consolidation does not impact VOA so the VOA issue mentioned here would not be solved by merger of grantees.

Cooperation and/or sharing may be an issue today but the current structure can solve if the relevant people raise it to the right people like the April 20 BBG Board meeting or you calling (b) and/or (b) direct when those below you were unable to make the progress they desired. Is this trial still going on and is there still time for VOA/MBN to participate? Do (b) agree with (b) assessment of the merit of the story? That is why I have copied them on this e mail. Cooperation and sharing would suggest that you let MBN and VOA know of your unhappiness when you are e mailing the entire BBG Board and IBB Director Lobo so they can respond.

Sincerely yours and thanks for letting us know,

Victor Ashe

Mr. Ashe,

Have sent (FEDEX) you a CD containing audio and video files of the initial dedication ceremony.

Video files do not have sound, but, station had the sound tracks on file.

The Edward R. Murrow audio segment is nothing short of inspirational. I would have hoped that this segment be played during this re-dedication ceremony, but the idea wasn't well received. Thought you'd find these interesting. Have higher quality video copies, but large files and hard to disseminate.

Enjoy,

Also, can someone can an invitation to me as to what was actually sent out? I think it would be nice if all Governors got one even though they may not be able to attend.

Dear Governor Ashe,

Thank you for checking back in. Your continued interest is much appreciated. We, the Station and the folks in IBB Hqs. are fully engaged in planning and implementing your previously suggested steps.

The Pastor of the local Free Will Baptist Church agreed to provide an invocation and maybe a short choral arrangement. Unsure on the choral part, it's not been firmed up just yet. (b) (6)
[REDACTED] our Chief Engineer attained band services from the local A.G. Cox middle school along with a vocalist for the Star Spangled Banner and some other songs. Any suggestions?

(b) (6) the Station's Program Specialist acquired a set of risers, a podium and PA system. He is also working to arrange the catering, invitations, funding, various loose ends etc. We've invited people from the local community, Greenville Chamber, the Mayor, the Pitt County Sheriff, employees and retired employees and folks from the East Carolina School of Journalism. Various news services are invited.

Regarding signs, we've installed new signs designed and prepared by IBB's graphic artists in the three panel marquee at the main entrance and installed new 10 inch high gold colored block letters over the main entrance to the building. IBB Hqs is also providing new 4 X 8 ft murals highlighting Edward R. Murrow, the BBG and all the broadcast services. We expect to have the murals installed next week.

IBB Hqs also provided an edited CD of the original dedication of the Station by Edward R. Murrow. We plan to play it on a large screen TV in the lobby. I think (b) (6) located a technician who worked at the Station back then.

We were unable to attain enough signatures necessary to request the Pitt County planning committee to change the name of the local road from VOA Site-B Rd to Edward R. Murrow Rd. We will continue to work on gaining signatures. Also, coordinating changing the name on the highway direction signs with the NC DOT has proved very difficult. Personally, I don't expect new direction signs will be installed in time for the event.

Public Affairs Leticia King and my boss (b) (6) are coordinating event activities closely with us so they can draft a written Program. I believe another telephone meeting will take place tomorrow between the planning folks in WashDC and (b) (6) at the Station. I am off work this week but have been following some of the event planning activities. I'll be back in the office on Monday.

Letitia King can best advise of ongoing activities at her end. So I'll copy her on this response.

For your information, (b) (6) from Congressman Jones' office visited the Station today. (b) (6) was provided a tour of the Station and had a small lunch on site.

Best Regards,

(b) (6)

Jeff...this is fine...all good to know...however, I still want to know when this specific letter is received and also I want to know what happens to mail addressed only to BBG which survives the security checks ...who gets it and who opens it and responds to it and who decides whether to share it with Governors. That is is separate from security. Victor Ashe

Governors, there are well-established and standard practices, consistent with those at other Federal agencies, for handling mail at BBG. Governor Meehan is correct that delivery of hard copy mail correspondence is delayed due to security screening procedures that are conducted at another facility.

We will be happy to provide a report to the Governors about procedures for handling mail.

No one wants fast Goverment response than those of us on the board But we are still on the path of still inside the margin of error.

I recommend that any response to (b) (6) be copied to (b) (6), who has been running the foundation named for her late father, and who sent the letter to (b) (6) by e-mail.

Suggestion: That VOA begin drafting something in coordination with the agency's Office of Strategy and Development, as well as that of the CFO, to be approved as usual after that. As Dana noted, under the circumstances the turnaround time won't be inordinate.

Looping in Bruce and (b) (6) here, along with the chiefs of staff at VOA and the IBB.

I further suggest that as this effort gets under way the Governors not be subjected to process-related messages, but that they be copied on the final version per normal procedures.

i just tried to open the letter - it comes up just as characters - so i'll read it when i can. And though i am having to do this from nyc and with a different working situation than i had before, i don't see why there would need to be anything directed toward Lynne when there could be a perfectly reasonable explanation for where the letter went or an unintentional oversight...it has only been 7 days, 1 of which was an observed holiday for many, 2 of which were weekend days. From what i can tell, everyone's doing more with less and doing it pretty darn well.

April 4, 2012

Members of the Broadcasting Board of Governors
330 Independence Avenue
Washington, DC 20237

To Whom It May Concern:

I write in support of Voice of America radio and television broadcasting, particularly to China, Tibet and Russia. In addition, I write in support of the efforts of the Committee for U.S. International Broadcasting. The CUSIB works to ensure that U.S. government-funded broadcasts promote respect for human rights and freedom of the press, especially in nations where these basic freedoms are under attack.

I write to you on a personal basis to express dismay that Voice of America radio and television broadcasts to Russia ceased in 2008. I am deeply concerned that although last year's proposed cuts of VOA Mandarin and Cantonese radio and television programs were halted, this year's proposal includes the elimination of VOA Cantonese services and VOA Tibetan Radio Services, at a time when there is significant unrest in Tibet. I urge you to continue the Cantonese and Tibetan broadcasts, and to restore them to Russia.

I well remember as a girl in Nazi-occupied Hungary, how every Sunday afternoon my family would draw the shades, close the curtains, and gather around the shortwave radio, pressing our ears close so that we could catch each precious word of freedom and hope that poured out of that radio receiver like manna from heaven. We had to strain to hear over the static caused by Nazi attempts to block the signal, but we were grateful to do so, because these words of truth were pure gold in the ubiquitous mire of Nazi propaganda. The VOA and BBC broadcasts were our one connection to freedom, our one connection to hope, and our lifeline that gave the resistance the courage to endure to the end. The VOA broadcasts fanned the fires of resistance in the brave underground fighters who sought to destroy the brutal Nazi totalitarianism from within. To cut off the VOA broadcasts would have been to cut off the very legs of the resistance. The same is true today in nations ruled by totalitarian regimes.

Now, the people of China and Tibet are suffering at the hands of a brutal, heartless regime. They also cannot speak openly without fear of punishment. The Chinese Communist Party seeks to maintain complete control over the information available to the people of China and Tibet. The CCP blocks the Internet and controls the flow of information, distorting the truth and promoting distrust of America. VOA has been the voice of freedom and democracy in China for 70 years. It is highly respected, even venerated, in China. Human rights activists like Chinese Nobel Peace Prize laureate Liu Xiaobo and Chinese campaigner for women's rights Chen Guangcheng languish in prison and under house arrest. VOA broadcasts may be the only link with the free world for their families and supporters.

Millions of Cantonese speaking and Mandarin speaking Chinese people depend on VOA daily as their lifeline to the light of truth, freedom and hope. Millions of Tibetans also depend upon VOA's Tibetan radio broadcasts. Radio reaches hundreds of millions who are too poor to afford television or the Internet, especially in rural China and Tibet.

Further, VOA radio and satellite television serve to counter anti-American propaganda in the most powerful way, giving a positive view of America, which is so necessary during this time of increasing Chinese militarism and anti-American militancy. Thus, these broadcasts are important to our national security.

I know that my late husband, (b) (6), would have fought to save the VOA Russian, Tibetan, and Cantonese Broadcast Services -- to use all available means to deliver uncensored news, hope and encouragement to those seeking freedom. How could I do any less? Recent pro-democracy protests around the world and attempts to suppress them show that giving up radio and television broadcasting to rely exclusively on the Internet would be a mistake, because the Internet can so easily be monitored and blocked. I commend the CUSIB's efforts to urge the Broadcasting Board of Governors to maintain broadcasting ? especially Voice of America radio and television broadcasting ? into China and Tibet, and to restore it to Russia.

Sincerely,

(b) (6)

Given that he is traveling some distance, that seemed the hospitable idea but I realize the travel schedules are still being finalized.

Dear (b) (6),

I really think outside in the front yard area is better unless weather works against you then move to the garage area. If you have a high school band which plays not only the National Anthem but also other music as folks arrive, that would be 20 or so persons. You ought to consider an honor guard which could be a high school ROTC or Boy Scout group. A stage to hold honored guest and podium is needed but decorations on it. A minister is needed for invocation. Who will MC the event? Who will actually speak? A printed program is needed as well as printed invitations to be mailed out. Printed program should have a nice photo of Murrow on the front.

There is a possibility a member of the Murrow might attend...and he/she should speak along with Cong Walter Jones, a rep of BBG Board, IBB Director Lobo. Someone might sing the national anthem.

Ample parking is needed. I suggest a reception afterwards..Light refreshments like lemonade and cookies..so people can visit. In addition to county officials, previous employees who worked there and are now retired should be asked. Area neighbors, Chamber leaders, business leaders, persons who do business in the area with facility should be invited....journalism students at community college should be asked...

this needs to be a grand occasion..an open house afterwards for people to see it.

I look forward to being there. Such be a wonderful occasion.

I agree with your comments on the lobby as being too small. We have been cleaning up the garage area. Equipment and junk were removed, the floor thoroughly scrubbed and a clear sealer applied. The area is large and should accommodate 50 - 100 folks. With the large doors open, the ramp area could hold perhaps another 50 to 100 people.

I want to offer any help I can provide on the May 2 dedication as I have done many of them as Mayor of Knoxville. I really hope this will be a big event for a long neglected and even forgotten station.

First, unless rainy or inclement weather dictates it, it should be outside so as many people as possible attend. There should be a high school band to play the National Anthem while a local person sings it.

There should be chairs, a platform, sound system. A tent could be erected. If a high school band comes, it brings more people plus their parents. Area residents should be asked...neighbors (not just public officials), mediaStudents should be invited. Journalism students should be invited from community college in Pitt County. Make sure County officials as well as city Mayor of Greenville are invited..do not leave out one and invite the other.

It is a mistake to plan it in the lobby of the bldg as that limits the crowd to 50 persons at best. That is much too small. Audience should be biracial.

Sheriff's office needs to be asked to assist in traffic planning. Sheriff should be asked to attend as he is an elected county official. All elected officials in Pitt County should be asked.

Dear Lynne and Tish

I am so excited about the May 2 event in Greenville which can be a wonderful occasion. I got up early this morning and googled (b) (6). I found he lives in Vermont and his e mail is (b) (6). I copied Lynne on an e mail I sent him which I hope you do not mind as I know it would be marvelous if the only child of (b) (6) could attend and represent his father on May 2. I hope BBG would offer to pay his travel to attend. I recall him from our days at Yale. He was in President George W Bush's class at Yale.

He is head of (b) (6) and it is located in Vermont.

I will arrive May 1 as there are NO flight which arrive before 1030..all go thru Charlotte. US Airways is only carrier into Greenville, NC. I will depart at 2 on May 2 back to Knoxville.

I also checked out Pitt County where the facility is located and found out it is governed by a 9 member commission and six members are from districts. It is important that you determine whose county commission district the Murrow Facility is located in and give him/her a role in the ceremony. Commissioners will be sensitive to who actually represents the area. Someone should go there and scout out where the ceremony should be and if a tent is needed, chairs rented, sound system installed, platform created, reception afterwards, parking and media leading up to the event. This is different from what Tish and her staff normally do but I know she and all of them are up to this...The event should go up on our web site now.

I am anxious to help as I know from my Mayor days how events like this must work in southern counties.

Main thing is to make the most of this...someone also needs to be there to install sound system, platform, special seating..., have enough chairs, get an American flag, a BBG banner if there is one.....welcome Cong Walter Jones, etc...who will go early...who will be there to handle the check list. There is lots to do to make it come off well. Someone needs to contact local Sheriff (who also should be invited) to assist in traffic on county road outside facility.

Over the years I have done a lot of these and they are handled somewhat differently in the south. I suggest the following...invite a high school area band to play the national anthem, and consider having a local person sing the national anthem, have a minister give an invocation, choose the right MC...probably the head of the local facility...find and invite a member of the Edward Murrow family..a child or grand child...and let him/her speak on behalf of family. I believe Edward Murrow's son was (b) (6) ...not sure where he lives now or if he is alive. He would be in mid 60s age wise.

Make Sure Senator Hagen (think that is her name) and Senator Burr are invited as well as Gov. Beverly Perdue are invited and speak if they attend...invite them to send a rep if they cannot attend but representative would be recognized but not speak.

Local officials of this county should be asked.

The event should be outdoors unless it rains...make sure there is parking...have a reception with light refreshments after the event. Make sure the picture of Murrow inside the bldg has a bio under it which was missing when I was last there.

Invite immediate neighbors on the road near facility ..would not be many as it is a rural area but effort is underway to change name of road to edward Murrow Rd...Invite county commission and head of county...not sure what the office might be called. Invite leaders of chamber of Commerce....

Print up nice invitations...mail them out at least 20 days out if possible...invite former employees of facility who are still alive....also former BBG Board members.

Someone needs to call local media and TV and invite them. not just a news release.

I may have other ideas and will pass them on. This is exciting and can be a big deal.

the actual program will be important as well. Who will MC it? Who will speak? Make sure the two Senators are asked, the local county Mayor or Commission and area State Senator and State Rep as well as Governor of NC...I will come in night before if flights are not available in time to be there at 1000 which I suspect will be the case. Who will represent the BBG Board at event? Does Dick Lobo or (b) (6) plan attending? Victor

Governors,

The Greenville transmitter rededication will take place on May 2. Rep. Walter B. Jones will be in his district and plans to attend, barring a change to his schedule during that Constituent Work Week.

We have a great event in store featuring historic video/audio and photos, brief remarks, an exhibit and a tour. Local media will be invited, along with community figures.

All this, and more, courtesy of a creative team involving the Greenville transmitter staff, engineering/technical folks in DC, and BBG communications and public affairs. Special thanks to Tish King for driving this effort and ensuring that it all gets done right, to (b) (6) and her talented colleagues in the graphics unit led by (b) (6), and to (b) (6) for her diligence in engaging Rep. Dear (b) (6)

It was good to talk with you, albeit briefly, on Tuesday. I'm glad that you were able to find the basic information about the research contract on-line.

As promised, I've checked with all the right people here, some of whom were away from the office last week, to see what more is available. Thanks for your patience regarding this request.

I'd like first to ensure that you're aware that the BBG currently spends roughly $10 million per year on research, and that this is only 1.3% of the agency's $750 million budget. The proposed FY 2013 budget includes $8.8 million for research, or 1.1% of the total -- a fraction of what commercial media spend.

For FY2013, the BBG research budget is being reduced more than 10% while overall reductions are 4.2%.

To ensure value for taxpayer dollar, we need solid information about audiences.

And as you may know, BBG's enabling legislation mandates a "reliable research capacity." Research is a broad and serious statutory requirement, not a frill.

The BBG plans to release results from the Gallup research when available. In the meantime, we cannot make the full Gallup contract available since it may include proprietary information. To ensure fair, equitable, and transparent treatment for this contractor and all others, as well as any who may request information about the contract, it will need to be reviewed under a FOIA process before release.

I've forwarded your request to the BBG's FOIA office. You can expect to receive an acknowledgment letter from them in the coming days.

Please let me know if there is more that I can do to assist you with this matter.

Best regards,

Lynne

Hi Gov. Ashe,

Here's the latest update to the item about your trip for bbg.gov. I wanted to run it past you before I publish.

(b) (6)

BBG Gov. Victor Ashe wrapped up his tour of Southeast Asian broadcast facilities with a stop at the BBG's Thailand transmission facility, where he met with staff and delved into the plant's history.

Ashe, a former U.S. ambassador to Poland, expressed a keen interest in the facility's history, which dates to the Vietnam conflict, as well as current operations in the region.

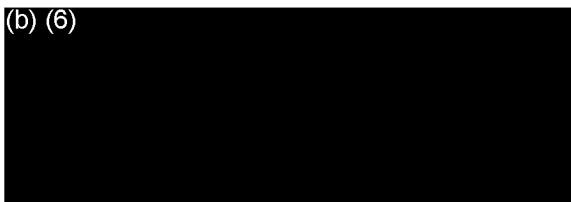

During the 10-day trip, Ashe's itinerary has included stops at BBG facilities, meetings with agency staff and talks with U.S. embassy officials and local authorities in Thailand, Cambodia, and Laos.

In the Udon Thani province of northeast Thailand, Ashe toured a BBG transmission facility and presented 30-year and 20-year service awards to staff members.

In Phnom Penh, Ashe toured the Voice of America facilities and met with staff, including (b) (6) director of the RFA's Cambodian Service.

The first BBG member to visit Laos, Ashe met there with RFA staff, U.S. embassy officials and Laotian officials.

Greetings from Bangkok. Earlier today Governor Ashe visited the IBB Bangkok Transmitter plant north of Bangkok near Ayutthaya to tour the site and meet with staff. During our visit, we took a group photo in front of the station. Governor Ashe asked me to forward this image to you so that it could be posted on the BBG web page. The Station email server is off line so I am sending this photo to you from my hotmail account. Since our email service is off line, I am also unable to verify your email address. Hopefully, I have addressed this to you correctly.

No problems! The Governor met the assembled staff in our multi-purpose room shortly after arriving at the station and was kind enough to present 30 year and 20 year service awards to staff members. He spoke briefly about our mission and how much the Board appreciated the quality work they do in support of US international broadcasting and was quite sincere and personable with the staff.

He invited questions and was asked about the future of the station to which the Governor assured everyone that the Board had no intention or plan to close and he expected that the station would continue operating for quite some time.

We re-assembled on the front steps and took several pictures so the Governor has at least one image that he can place on the BBG web page when he returns. Several personal photos were taken individually with nearly every staff member lining up to get a photo with the Governor.

Then we toured the entire station. he wanted to see everything he could... He was shown the interior of one of the off-line Marconi transmitters, cooling room and power supply, the antenna switchbay and then toured the facilities maintenance building. By the end of the tour I think he managed to meet and greet each member of the staff before we went into Ban Dung for lunch.

The signage was not an issue for us as it was in Greenville, though he spoke at some length with me about the name of the Greenville station and wondered if the Thailand station had ever had a namesake. A couple months ago, I had the front wall repainted and letters on the signs regilded so our signage looked like new.

The Ambassador part of Governor Ashe took particular interest in the activities that we undertake to maintain a relationship with our local community and asked me to develop a brief narrative that he can take back to the next BBG meeting to share with the Board since none of the other members has ever been to the Thai station. I'll draft that and give it to him next week when we tour the MW station.

He pointed out that visiting the Stations was not his primary purpose in coming to SE Asia, but that he felt that it was important to meet the staff and present the flag to the troops in the field and to assure them that he and the Board value the work they do in support of our mission.

He will meet with the acting-PAO at the Embassy in the morning.

Regards from Thailand.

I comment Lynne Weil for reaching out to respond to some groups/individuals who previously were not responded to in an adequate manner. We should remember that responses will not always convince but an unanswered charge often becomes true if not answered. Certainly in politics that is the case. We must be players and not spectators.

Russia is difficult. We should discuss it at RFE and BBG for VOA. Putin is no friend of democracy. Journalists have been murdered during his tenure with little apparent effort on the government's part to track down the guilty parties. What is the best way to get into Russia? How successful are we?

I am genuinely worried that the proposed budget cuts especially for Tibetan and Laos are setting our ourselves up for another congressional slap in the face. Personally, I certainly did not know about them when I voted for the budget last fall at Walter's personal urging. Not being on Strategy and Budget, I was not privy to any lengthy analysis of the budget. After the fact I learn about specific cuts which I find unfortunate and unacceptable. My view is we should proactively save these cuts before Congress makes us do it.

Strategy and Budget Committee is now down to two members only while governance has 4 members. There seems to be imbalance here in terms of numbers.

FYI: This opinion piece appeared overnight in the online content-aggregator Digital Journal. Facts are still being verified.

Digital Journal Op-Ed: America's radios dancing to Putin's tune in Moscow

Moscow - Voice of America and Radio Liberty, funded by US taxpayers to promote media freedom abroad, self-censor news on two stations in Moscow to comply with Russian media law prior to Russia's presidential elections on March 4.

US government-funded media freedom broadcasters, Voice of America (VOA) and Radio Liberty (Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, RFE RL), have resorted to self-censorship of their news to keep broadcasting on two leased radio stations in Moscow in the days leading up to Russian presidential elections. Self-censorship affects only their radio newscasts on two AM Moscow transmitters, which are leased and paid for by the US government to rebroadcast VOA and RL programs. It does not extend to their other program delivery options, such as their websites. The newscasts on these stations were changed in response to a request from Russian operators of the transmitters who had warned that broadcasting political programming or poll results several days before the elections would violate Russian media law.

Because uncensored VOA and RL newscasts are still available online and, in the case of Radio Liberty, also through shortwave radio transmissions, a spokeswoman for the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG), which manages and funds these two broadcasters, said that the restrictions "do not interfere with the ability of the Voice of America or Radio Liberty to cover the elections or to carry on with their other duties." In the case of the Voice of America, however, removing news even from some broadcasts may violate Public Law 94-350 which mandates that

"VOA will serve as a consistently reliable and authoritative source of news." Furthermore, the law, also known as the VOA Charter, stipulates that "VOA news will be accurate, objective, and comprehensive."

The BBG's newly-hired director of communications Lynne Weil said in a response to an inquiry from Free Media Online, a US-based media freedom NGO, that "the BBG and its content providers, including the many individuals who risk their lives to shine the light of truth on some of the world's darkest corners, are fiercely protective of their journalistic independence and integrity, and vigilant about any obstacles - real or potential - to getting their work done."

Free Media Online said that any kind self-censorship of news, especially by stations established by US law and funded by American taxpayers to promote free press and democracy, sets a dangerous precedent and reveals a serious problem, particularly in the case of Russia where most of the media is controlled by the government and supporters of Prime Minister and presidential candidate Vladimir Putin.

"At the very least, the Broadcasting Board of Governors should have made a strong public announcement that its mission in Russia is being obstructed instead of keeping nearly silent about this problem and hoping that no one would notice," a spokesman for Free Media Online said.

Free Media Online has been critical of the Broadcasting Board of Governors for lacking transparency, over-dependence on authoritarian regimes for local program placement, and BBG's most recent decision to terminate Voice of America shortwave radio broadcasts to Tibet and all VOA news programs in Cantonese to China.

The letter sent to the Broadcasting Board of Governors by the operator of the Radio Liberty station in Moscow warned of a five-day ban on opinion polls, forecasts and use of research related to the campaigns or elections. The ban applies to the period from February 28 to March 4, 2012. Additionally, the letter states that on the day before and day of the election, there are what Russian authorities call "silence days" during which it is prohibited to broadcast (or print) positive or negative information about any of the candidates and/or political parties. This means no analysis or opinions pertaining to the candidates or elections and no information that can in any way "influence" voters. While a few Western democracies have laws that place less severe restrictions on media reporting, usually only on the election day, in Russia Prime Minister Putin has established effective control over most media to guarantee his reelection to the presidency. Numerous independent journalists who were outspoken in their criticism of the Kremlin and other Russian government bodies have been assassinated during the last decade.

BBG spokeswoman suggested that other Western media organizations whose news programs are available directly through local media outlets in Russia received similar letters and are also complying with requests for altering their news coverage. It is one thing, however, to comply with laws in democratic nations and another to accept restrictions on media freedom in a country ruled by an authoritarian regime, especially for an American institution created to set an example for local independent media and to promote media freedom abroad. The BBG pays hundreds of thousands of dollars a year for these two weak AM transmitters in Moscow. Since the BBG claims that its newscasts also can be easily accessed online, that money might be better spent on US-operated shortwave transmitters to reach those without Internet access in Russia rather than making Putin supporters richer and allowing them to dictate VOA and RL news coverage. Some of the money could be used to advertise shortwave frequencies in Russian media, for as long as that is allowed, and the remainder on improving radio, TV and new media coverage of human rights issues.

BBG spokeswoman insisted that that the Russian media law has virtually no impact on the Voice of America Russian Service because nearly all of its audience accesses its programming online. The BBG terminated all VOA shortwave radio and satellite television broadcasts to Russia in 2008, losing all of its Russian radio and TV audience.

The VOA Russian Service intends to report on the elections and update its website and blogs throughout the election cycle, without any restriction on its activities, BBG spokeswoman said. The VOA Russian Service prepares, however, a 30 minute radio program that gets broadcast Monday through Friday on another AM station in Moscow. The rest of VOA's programming on the Moscow medium-wave station is in English. Because the frequency is on a local lease, it is subject to the Russian law. To comply, in the five days before the election the VOA English Service is making a change to the 24/7 stream sent to Moscow -- replacing its five-minute hourly newscast with a pre-recorded segment that invites audiences to go online to VOANews.com for news and information about Russia and the world, Lynne Weil said. The remainder of English stream to Moscow is unchanged.

Prior to 2008, the Russian secret police put pressure on private radio and television stations in Russia to stop rebroadcasting VOA and RL programs. Experts speculate that the two AM stations in Moscow were allowed to carry these programs because they are directly controlled by the Russian authorities. This highly-controlled arrangement allows them to claim that there is media freedom in Russia and that Russian programs such as Russia Today and Voice of Russia should have unlimited access to US cable networks and private US radio stations, which they do.

Critics charge that the BBG's overeagerness to place programs on local networks in countries like Russia and China has resulted in many examples of removal of VOA brand name and downplaying the media freedom mission to achieve program placement and higher audience ratings even at the price of self-censorship. An influential independent Russian journalist and new media scholar Dr. Nikolay Rudenskiy has accused the VOA Russian Service staff of having a pro-Putin bias and downplaying human rights reporting. After the BBG terminated VOA Russian broadcasts in 2008, many seasoned VOA Russian Service reporters and editors were replaced with poorly-paid contractors hired from Russia. They had recently placed on the VOA website an interview with a leading Russian opposition figure Alexei Navalny that turned out to be fake. Navalny suggested that they should all be replaced.

Human rights organizations in Russia have also criticized Radio Liberty's Russian Service of a similar pro-Kremlin bias and for providing a forum for nationalist extremists. One expert pointed out that with the large Radio Liberty news bureau in Moscow, it would be inconceivable that the Russian security services which take their orders from a former KGB officer Vladimir Putin are not actively engaged in a campaign of behind the scenes intimidation and infiltration against the US supported broadcaster.

The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) also has its critics in the United States, including its employees who anonymously access and report for an independent website BBG Watch (www.bbgwatch.com). Many question why programs for Tibet, China, Chechnya in the Russian Federation, Georgia as well as VOA English and many other programs were chosen for severe cuts and layoffs while BBG executives, rated as the worst managers in the federal government, give themselves bonuses, create new bureaucratic positions and promote a programming philosophy that encourages self-censorship.

It appears that not even all BBG members have confidence in the executive staff. Senior Republican Victor Ashe -- the Board has four Democrats and four Republicans with the Secretary of State serving as an ex officio ninth member -- has been highly critical of poor employee morale and foreign control of BBG program delivery channels. Other part-time BBG members, however, still seem more inclined to rely on the executive staff which can claim no support of its journalists and other rank-and-file employees. These executives have developed a strategic restructuring plan, which critics argue would give them even more power and limit accountability, transparency and public scrutiny over US international broadcasting.

Employees also suspect that there may be also political reasons for focusing the BBG's cuts on countries with the most severe restrictions on media and the greatest human rights violations. Removing the Voice of America brand-name, which implies prestige and support of the American people, may be the Obama Administration's attempt to soothe the Chinese communist dragon, one BBG employee said. Employees do not believe that the BBG's claim of trying to save money in the environment of tight federal budgets is credible in light of the lavish spending on BBG executives and contractors such as the Gallup Organization which received a $50 million five-year contract just before program cuts and layoffs were announced. The BBG claims that Radio Free Asia (RFA), which it also manages, can fill the gap left by VOA in Tibet and China. Human rights groups argue, however, that while RFA broadcasts are both excellent and needed, Voice of America broadcasting offers a special measure of credibility and moral support from the American people that a private radio cannot provide. One anonymous BBG journalist wrote a desperate commentary:

"The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) budget submission requests cutting seven employees out of 22 in the Voice of America (VOA) Tibetan Service, ending all six hours of daily VOA Tibetan radio broadcasts.

This is happening on the day China's Vice President Xi Jinping, heir apparent of the communist regime, arrives in Washington on a get-to-know-you visit.

This is happening while Tibet is burning. A day after the 23rd Tibetan monk self-immolated to protest unprecedeted Chinese crackdown on their religion.

This is happening one week after CCTV, China's state TV, launched its first live daily broadcast from its brand new 36000 sq ft studio in Washington DC, the first step of China's $7 billion media offensive in America.

What is the BBG thinking? Has the Broadcasting Board of Governors gone mad?"

The independent, nongovernmental Committee for U.S. International Broadcasting (CUSIB - www.cusib.org), whose members include many human rights activists, joined forces with BBG employees to convince members of Congress of both parties to stop last year the BBG's plan to end all VOA broadcasts to China. This year CUSIB again issued an open letter to Congress adamantly objecting to the BBG's latest plan to end or reduce broadcasts to Tibet, China and other countries without free media.

Ted Lipien is a former Voice of America journalist and former VOA acting associate director. He co-founded Free Media Online and the Committee for U.S. International Broadcasting.

I assume the sign for Greenville re naming it Edward Murrow is done...when will it be installed?

Are you waiting on the local government to change the road name? That should not hold by erecting the new sign.

Has the decision been made on when and whether to have a ceremony installing the sign? It would be nice to invite the living children of Edward Murrow to it. I am sure they could be found.

I look forward to hearing about this.

Naturally I am sorry that the fuller trip you and others had envisioned for Burma/Myanmar has met headwinds from State. However, my original purpose for the trip had little to do with the expansion which you and others such [REDACTED] (b) (6) planned. Rather it was purely for Michael Meehan as chair of RFA and me as vice chair to accompany [REDACTED] (b) (6) president of RFA to Myanmar as she explores potential for RFA activities in Myanmar so we could learn more about the opening in Myanmar.

I think it is most unfortunate and unfair that this limited purpose also be negated because State is reluctant to move ahead with BBG/VOA and others on the more expanded purpose of the trip you had hoped for in March.

Therefore, I shall continue to seek approval for the limited purpose of the original trip and I trust you will support this in your talks with State. There is no reason this need be an either or choice but both can work out.

I am simply unable to go in April and most of May as planning for this trip has been in the works for over 4 weeks now and other plans in my life for April and May moved ahead.

Victor,

Good morning. BBG broadcasts to more than 100 countries, but we have never had the resources to survey all of those annually, or even biannually. Typically we do survey research in 50 or so countries a year.

For example, for the 22 countries of the Middle East served by Alhurra TV and Rado Sawa, we have surveyed 9-11 countries per year. For the 31 countries of Francophone Africa served by VOA French to Africa, we do just a few annually, again due to limited resources. The same holds true for our research in the many Spanish-speaking countries of Latin America.

On the other hand, for top-priority countries or territories such as China, Tibet, Russia, Pakistan, Iran, Afghanistan, et al, we have always tried to do annual work.

(b) (6) BBG's research manager who works for me, can send you the list of countries we surveyed last year and those we have identified to survey thus far this year under the new Gallup contract. Among the first Gallup projects were Tibet and Iran, and we should have the final results from both studies very soon. (Looking at these two specifically will also allow us to discuss with you and the Board how we approach difficult-to-research areas to procure nonetheless actionable data.)

The cost range for a nationally representative media survey across our universe of countries is $125,000-250,000. This is for a random sample of 2000 respondents (or much higher in larger countries like China, where national samples go as high as 8500 respondents) with a questionnaire that can run 45 minutes in length to obtain the diversity of data our language services require in terms of ownership of/access to and actual use of TV, radio, Internet, mobile phones, and social media as well as preferences for media outlets and subject areas.

From the surveys, we derive most of our key performance data on audience reach, news reliability, audience understanding, etc., which we are required to report to OMB and Congress. The data also inform our strategy and budget formulation, drive the annual language service review, and help determine distribution/transmission decisions, etc.

This said, audience and media surveys are only part of the BBG's research program. Qualitative and evaluative research are the other, equally important, parts.

Qualitative research includes focus groups and in-depth interviews to probe specific issues of interest to the language services regarding their programs, to test program concepts and pilots, to explore audience perceptions of competing media outlets, etc.

Evaluative research involves listener and viewer panels, which have been done for every service for many years to gauge program quality on both substance and style, and custom-commissioned reviews of program content such as the evaluations the Board (Enders was the lead) asked be done of PNN.

All BBG research is archived in our offices and at the broadcast entities. You can see any of it whenever you wish. In fact, we'll also send you a complete set of studies for a single country so you can see the specific work products.

For years we routinely distributed all BBG research in summary form to the Board. But the sheer volume of the work proved overwhelming -- tallying up all quantitative (surveys), qualitative, and evaluative studies annually, the number of discrete projects with corresponding reports runs between 200-300.

I hope this answers your immediate questions. I appreciate your interest. The research program is an open book. We'll follow up as noted and will gladly walk you through any of the studies or reports, or any aspects of actual research methodologies or program administration that you'd care to explore.

Best, Bruce

Dear (b)

It was good to talk with you, albeit briefly, on Tuesday. I'm glad that you were able to find the basic information about the research contract on-line.

As promised, I've checked with all the right people here, some of whom were away from the office last week, to see what more is available. Thanks for your patience regarding this request.

I'd like first to ensure that you're aware that the BBG currently spends roughly $10 million per year on research, and that this is only 1.3% of the agency's $750 million budget. The proposed FY 2013 budget includes $8.8 million for research, or 1.1% of the total -- a fraction of what commercial media spend.

For FY2013, the BBG research budget is being reduced more than 10% while overall reductions are 4.2%.

To ensure value for taxpayer dollar, we need solid information about audiences.

And as you may know, BBG's enabling legislation mandates a "reliable research capacity." Research is a broad and serious statutory requirement, not a frill.

The BBG plans to release results from the Gallup research when available. In the meantime, we cannot make the full Gallup contract available since it may include proprietary information. To ensure fair, equitable, and transparent treatment for this contractor and all others, as well as any who may request information about the contract, it will need to be reviewed under a FOIA process before release.

I've forwarded your request to the BBG's FOIA office. You can expect to receive an acknowledgment letter from them in the coming days.

Please let me know if there is more that I can do to assist you with this matter.

Lynne

Dear Governors,

Last Friday, we received a copy of the GAO draft report, "Broadcasting Board of Governors – Additional Steps Needed to Address Overlap in International Broadcasting."

As you will recall, the GAO began this engagement at the request of the Chair and Ranking Member and joined by other members of the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management and the Federal Workforce. GAO's brief from its Congressional sponsors was to "examine the extent to which (1) BBG language services overlap with one another and (2) BBG broadcasts in the same languages as other international broadcasters."

While the draft report references efforts pursuant to the agency's strategic plan and budget requests to reduce overlap, its rather simplistic mandate and its methodology in quantifying the extent of overlap, as presented in GAO's summary findings, are misleading. GAO finds that "nearly two-thirds of the BBG's language services – offices that produce content for particular languages and regions – overlap with another BBG service by offering programs to the same countries in the same languages." GAO cites the cost of supporting these programs at about $149 million – nearly 20 percent of the agency's total budget. Over the next few weeks, staff will be working with GAO to refine portions of its draft report and ask for modifications in its methodology to avoid "headlines" that will be misleading outside the context of the full report.

GAO's draft report also contains two recommendations for the BBG:

- The BBG should ensure that BBG's annual language service review includes systematic consideration of the cost and impact of internal overlap among BBG entities' language services.
- The BBG should ensure that BBG's annual language service review includes systematic consideration of the activities of U.S. commercial broadcasters and other democratic nations' broadcasters, such as the languages used and the countries served. GAO review started in March 2012 and included a review of agency proposals and strategies for streamlining USIB, focusing on challenges related to program overlap and coordination. GAO's researchers met with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity, and also met with officials of the State Department, USAID, and experts from other organizations, including the DG-5 broadcasters. GAO did not review management and administrative streamlining proposals of the BBG, except to the extent they might affect program overlap.

We will review and provide comments to the GAO by January 11. The final report will be a public document, and will include the BBG's formal comments in an appendix to the report.

Because the current report status is "restricted to official use only," we must safeguard it to prevent its improper disclosure. Please let us know if you are interested in receiving a copy of this draft report and we will send it to you.

The draft report includes this direction from GAO: "This draft report is being provided to obtain advance review and comment. It has not been fully reviewed within GAO and is subject to revision. Recipients of this draft must not, under any circumstances, show or release its contents for other than official review and comment. It must be safeguarded to prevent improper disclosure. This draft and all copies remain the property of, and must be returned on demand to, the Government Accountability Office."

Thank you.

I noticed it was dated March 2 but the full BBG Board was not told about the GAO study until this week..the week of May 1...almost two months after the original notice of March 2. Even in our Miami meeting this was not discussed in open or private session. What was the reason for the delay in providing such important information? GAO doing a study is not an everyday event but significant especially in terms of our congressional relations and oversight. I feel this two month delay in notice to the full BBG Board needs some explanation.

Jeff, is there any additional information in writing from GAO since March 2 on this study and review?

Subject: RE: GAO study

Governors, colleagues – as Dick wrote last evening, the GAO has begun a study in cooperation with this agency that looks at the proposals and strategy for streamlining U.S. international media.

In its notification to the agency of the engagement (attached here, and pls not for further distribution), the GAO referenced the multiple international broadcast entities that BBG oversees and noted challenges and opportunities identified by both the Board and others for streamlining U.S. international media.

The study is in its very early days. (b) (6) [REDACTED], working with (b) (6) [REDACTED], is the agency lead contact. The agency met with the GAO staff in late March for an initial “entrance” discussion. At that time, the GAO stressed that they were in the “design phase” of the study, and would be working on their methodology and the scope of the report. As yet the GAO has not fully defined the scope of the project or its methodology, and these could change with time. They are in a “data collection” stage in the project, after which they will confer with interested parties on the Hill to agree on the overall approach of the study. We'll learn more as they enter more deeply into discussions with us. The GAO does not expect to finish its report until this autumn.

So far, the GAO has expressed an interest in the new strategic plan and agency implementation of it, stating that they do not take issue with what we have done, but are interested in how we derived the plan. They have asked for extensive background information related to the development of the strategic plan, such as the convening of expert panels, SWOT analysis, and other research. Going forward, the GAO's researchers will want to speak with senior agency officials and the broadcast executives at the head of every entity.

The lead staff member of the GAO group, (b) (6) [REDACTED], will attend the rededication event at Greenville. Her purpose is to see a BBG transmitting station.

We view this study as an opportunity to make the GAO - and its ultimate audience and client, Congress - aware of the agency's robust efforts to operate more efficiently and effectively amid the current budget environment.

We have asked the GAO about the appropriateness of posting information about the GAO engagement on our website. Consulting with the GAO's public affairs and congressional relations offices, we were told that they are not aware of any instance where an agency posted this information. It is GAO's policy not to confirm or deny any engagement until the scope and methodology of the job are settled. These issues have not been settled with respect to the current BBG engagement, and are not likely to be settled for several more months. Thus, if the GAO were to get an inquiry pursuant to our posting, the GAO would offer no information.

In addition, the GAO cautioned that reports are "owned" by the requesters from the Congress, rather than the GAO. Therefore it is possible that the requesters in Congress would not find the web posting appropriate and it could in fact anger them.

Rgds
Jeff

Bruce is well aware of our schedule as he has been guiding this Skynet thing. We will be in Yangon on the 3rd and on the 6th.

Perhaps one or more of you would like to remain in Yangon to attend (b) (6) signing ceremony?

I'm doing a country clearance cable for Yangon - for myself and (b) (6), who's in line to be the new OSD Regional Marketing Officer in Bangkok - to arrive on 2 December, and depart on 7 December - for the signing ceremony with SkyNet, set for the morning of 4 December.

Protectively, I'll be including (b) (6) in the cable. (b) (6) will cover for me in the event I cannot go.

I've asked several times, and I'm asking again, if others planning to go on this trip - Governors, (b) (6) - are covered with a country clearance cable, or if I should include them in ours.

To do that, I really need itineraries; and if any of us plan to visit with officials in Naypyitaw, we really need to alert the embassy to that fact.

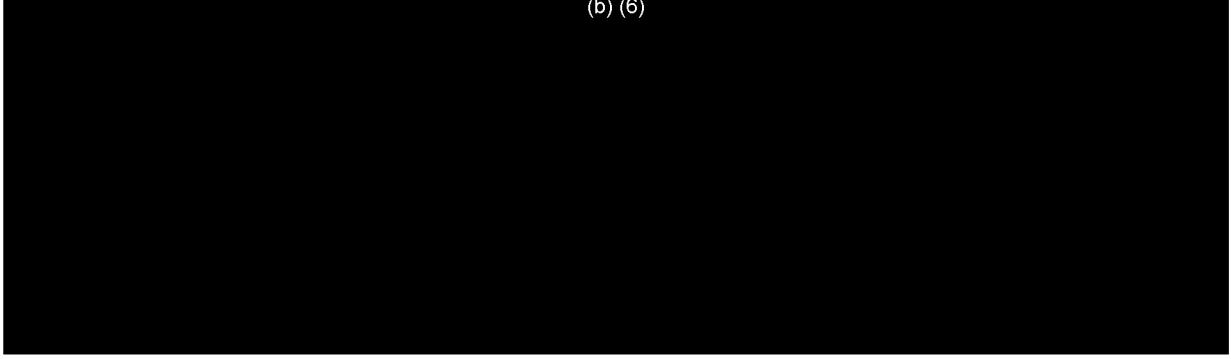

This all needs to go out as soon as possible, as the Embassy needs a heads-up.

If Country Clearance Cables are being handled by others, just let me know, please.

Thanks.

Dear Strategy & Budget committee- Governors:

As you requested f2c Cuba Pocket Server project proposal information was provided to all in the email chain after the Strategy and Budget meeting on 8/28. (previously referred to as "Shazaam" and "the Cuba Project at f2c")

(b) (6) Jeff and RFAs f2c team met this morning to discuss any concerns or questions (b) (6) may have about the project. Having had a chance to dive into the project proposal, (b) (6) gave it his blessing for FY2013. (b) (6) also weighed in via email with thoughts and questions which we will integrate as we move forward.

We all agreed that we will schedule a time when (b) (6) returns to talk about how to use the remaining $10.1m of Internet Freedom funds for FY2013.

With your approval, RFA will immediately begin work on the project using FY2012 cash flow with the commitment that we will be granted the $1.5m in FY2013 funds.

Also, we engaged in a four-hour "peer review" session with 3 outside peers walking through and discussing each project in the IAC and in the RFA portfolios for FY2011-2012.

We look forward to their report as we welcome all input and feedback on our program. Hopefully we can apply some of their suggestions to our future funding decisions.

Thank you,

BBG Condemns Jamming of Broadcasts to Iran

Washington, DC – October 3, 2012 – U.S. international broadcasting signals to Iran are once again being jammed, possibly in connection with street demonstrations and arrests there, and the Broadcasting Board of Governors has condemned the resumption of interference in its programming for Iranians.

"The jamming of news delivered by satellite into Iran is an outrage, a deplorable violation of well-established international agreements," said International Broadcasting Bureau Director Richard M. Lobo. "Freedom of information is a universal human right as well as an essential component for the health of any nation."

The practice of deliberate interference with broadcast signals, known as "jamming," is prohibited under rules of the International Telecommunications Union (ITU).

The most recent interference began on Wednesday, October 3, and affected both video and audio signals of the Voice of America's Persian Service and Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty's Radio Farda.

The jamming coincided with reports of street demonstrations and mass arrests of Iranians protesting falling currency exchange rates. Both VOA and RFE/RL report that, in some instances, interference starts just before newscasts, and ends just afterwards.

The jamming affected three satellite transponders operated by Eutelsat and those most popular among Iranian viewers: HotBird 13B, Eutelsat 25A and Eutelsat 7A. Viewers said the signals reappear intermittently, and that less-popular satellites are not impacted.

The interference has affected other U.S. international broadcasting programs on the Eutelsat satellites, including Georgian, Armenian and Balkan-language broadcasts.

VOA and RFE/RL programs continue to be broadcast on diverse media platforms, including digital audio and video streams on other satellite paths and on the Internet.

In February 2012, the ITU called upon the world's nations to take "necessary actions" to stop intentional interference with satellite transmissions. -- <http://www.bbg.gov/press-release/new-pressure-on-jammers-of-international-broadcasts/>

Dear Governors,

In April, the Board voted to change the previously selected date for the July 2012 meeting and asked Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt to choose a new date. Having canvassed the Board, they selected July 24 as the best available option.

As that date approaches, it has become apparent that many Governors' attendance cannot be assured. Some of you are available only at limited times -- or perhaps not at all -- on July 24. Guaranteeing a quorum under these conditions would not be possible.

For this reason, Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt have agreed to postpone the July meetings of the Board and Governance Committee. They will suggest an alternate date.

While most of the work on the July agenda may be safely deferred until the scheduled September meeting, it is critical for the Board to discuss the proposed FY 2014 budget sometime in early August by telephone or videoconference. We will be back in touch as soon as possible with a proposed date.

Finally, a number of Governors have pointed out the importance and complexity of the key issues requiring detailed discussion before any votes could take place. The postponement will provide time for you to review any materials sent in advance.

Dear Colleagues,

Budget update. I have been able to secure a meeting at OMB on Tuesday, July 17th at 11 am in Washington. If any of you are in town and interested in attending please let me know. Our goal is to make a case about 5-10 percent cuts and what it does to our agency.

I am hopeful to schedule a meeting of the Strategy and Budget Committee in the next couple of weeks. We can make it a committee of the whole and have any board member, who wishes for a deeper dive into the 2014 budget and an update on the 2013 budget status participate by phone or in person. I know the staff has been sending us update materials.

China. On Friday July 27th, we have assembled several outside experts to convene in Washington that morning. It's part of an effort to bring outside voices into our internal discussions about a comprehensive approach to USIB in China. Board members are encouraged to join by phone or in person on the 27th. It's with this input that I am hopeful we can advance a more comprehensive strategy that leverages all of USIB assets in Asia.

Iran. The staff is still working on recruiting panelist. I am hope for us to have conducted a similar effort before the September board meeting and our 2014 budget submission. Stay tuned.

If you are interested in participating directly in the Budget committee meeting, please let me know and we will work to accommodate your schedule. The staff needs our guidance and as Dick points out, September is too late to start.

Best,

Subject: July 24th Board Meeting Postponed

Dear Governors,

In April, the Board voted to change the previously selected date for the July 2012 meeting and asked Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt to choose a new date. Having canvassed the Board, they selected July 24 as the best available option.

As that date approaches, it has become apparent that many Governors' attendance cannot be assured. Some of you are available only at limited times -- or perhaps not at all -- on July 24. Guaranteeing a quorum under these conditions would not be possible.

For this reason, Governors Lynton and Mulhaupt have agreed to postpone the July meetings of the Board and Governance Committee. They will suggest an alternate date.

While most of the work on the July agenda may be safely deferred until the scheduled September meeting, it is critical for the Board to discuss the proposed FY 2014 budget sometime in early August by telephone or videoconference. We will be back in touch as soon as possible with a proposed date.

Finally, a number of Governors have pointed out the importance and complexity of the key issues requiring detailed discussion before any votes could take place. The postponement will provide time for you to review any materials sent in advance.

Is the town hall meeting for MBN employees only or all BBG/IBB employees as well. This town hall open meeting should not replace the one we have held annually in Cohen Bldg. Seems late in the day to start BBG at 4 and end it at 5 in time to hit rush hour traffic (although much of it will be leaving Washington). Our last January 13 BBG meeting went almost two hours.

I think the March BBG meeting should start earlier around 3 or 330 as I can see the March meeting going over one hour. Limiting the BBG meeting to one hour limits serious discussion of current and future issues. We also have a governance committee meeting February 9 which may produce recommendations for the March meeting.

On Thursday, March 8, you will have a closed Governors' Briefing, followed by a town hall meeting with employees and an MBN and/or other corporate board meetings. A BBG open meeting (webcast) is planned for the afternoon starting at 4 pm. You should be finished with meetings by 5 p.m.

At this time, we do not have additional information that may require a meeting on Friday, March 9. We will keep you posted.

Also, please indicate whether you favor a Governors-Only dinner (Self Paid). Staff is prepared to make arrangements as needed.

Governors,

We have learned that The Gallup Organization (GALLUP) was suspended from doing business with the Federal Government on December 6, 2012 by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security/FEMA ("the Suspending Official"). GALLUP was notified by certified mail, but has not yet indicated that it knows about the suspension. Nevertheless, we anticipate that there could be press reports concerning the suspension soon.

We will provide additional information about this matter during Governors' Briefing this Friday morning.

The Suspending Official's action indicates there is evidence that immediate action is necessary to protect the Government's interest. GALLUP's suspension is effective throughout the Executive Branch, including BBG. Under the law, contractors suspended are excluded from receiving contracts and Executive Branch agencies are precluded from soliciting offers from or awarding contracts to, or consenting to subcontracts with these contractors, unless the Agency determines that there is a compelling reason to do so.

A contractor suspension endures for a temporary period, pending the completion of investigations and any ensuing legal proceedings, unless sooner terminated by the Suspending Official. If legal proceedings are not initiated within 12 months after the date of the suspension notice, the suspension shall be terminated unless the Assistant Attorney General requests its extension, in which case it may be extended for an additional 6 months.

What this means for BBG?

BBG may continue its existing contract with GALLUP, but may not issue task orders under the contract unless the Agency finds that there is a compelling reason to do so.

Based on input from the Director of Strategy and Development, the Office of General Counsel and the Agency's Procurement Executive, I believe that there is a compelling reason to continue to issue task orders for research to Gallup on an interim basis. The International Broadcasting Act mandates BBG to conduct audience research, which is used to evaluate and assess the impact of BBG-sponsored broadcasting activities, which is also required by law. To replace GALLUP as a source of research, BBG will have to initiate a new procurement activity, a competitive process which is governed by the Federal Acquisition Regulations (the FAR), and could take 3 – 5 months (but may take up to a year) to conclude.

Because of the statutory mandate for research and the important programmatic role of audience research in BBG's activities, I have determined, as IBB Director, that there is a compelling reason to continue to award task orders for research to GALLUP under its existing contract until an alternate source of research can be responsibly procured. The Agency will begin work forthwith on a new procurement to replace GALLUP.

If GALLUP's suspension is terminated during the pendency of the new procurement activity, BBG would have adequate justification to cancel the new procurement if it were in the Agency's interest to do so.

In order to ensure a quorum for the BBG open meeting, please advise us of your availability from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. by COB today.

With your input, we will amend the Federal Register notice for the BBG open meeting in order to maximize notice to the public.

Governors --

We're about to launch a project involving public presentation of new audience research results from several countries.

Spearheaded by the BBG's Strategy and Development Office, together with BBG Public Affairs and the team at Gallup, this roll-out of audience data and information about the media environment is envisioned as a series starting in June. Research from Iran would be first in the line-up, on June 12, to be followed by other key countries monthly through September. The location will be at Gallup headquarters.

We expect only modest media interest, but stakeholders such as think tanks, NGOs and academia would likely take note. Through this proposed series, we expect to broaden awareness and understanding of our work in priority global media markets. News releases and any coverage by media would add up to a winning narrative about our programs' reach and impact that we could re-package in the fall for other purposes, including briefings on the Hill.

The Communications and Outreach Committee has been briefed on this proposed series. The public notice for the first event will be issued shortly.

Governors,

I am pleased to inform you that an award-winning Afghan journalist and author, (b) (6) has been selected as the new VOA Afghanistan Service Chief. He is coming from Kabul in the near future to take charge of this important and strategic VOA language service. (b) (6) began his journalism career reporting on the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in the late 1980s. Following the Soviet withdrawal in 1989, he attended the Lawrenceville School in Lawrenceville, New Jersey, and Harvard College, from which he graduated in 1994 with a degree in history and politics. He spent the next 10 years working as a Dow Jones reporter and editor in New York, covering the United Nations and global energy markets for Dow Jones Newswires and the Wall Street Journal.

Starting in 2007, (b) (6) returned to Afghanistan working for Internews Network, providing oversight of news and cultural programming for "Salam Watandar" (Hello Countrymen) Radio and helping it become Afghanistan's largest network of independent radio stations. (b) (6) spent the 2011-2012 academic year as a John S. Knight Fellow in Journalism at Stanford University. As I write he is in Kabul, working for Internews, and preparing to move to Washington.

Veteran VOA television producer (b) (6) who served as Afghan Service Chief for some years, until a few months ago, did much to strengthen TV Ashna, our signature evening news broadcast in Dari and Pashto, which is broadcast on RTA, and started our second TV broadcast "Karwan", aimed at younger viewers, as well as overseeing steady growth in our radio audience.

I felt that it is important at this time that the new Service Chief be an Afghan. (b) (6) will lead our efforts even as President Obama draws down U.S. combat forces between now and 2014, and as full responsibility for Afghanistan's future transfers more and more into Afghan hands.

Regards,

(b) (6)

Subject: Re: November Board Meeting

I should point out that the Board as a Board has voted to meet November 15. Only a Board vote can cancel what the Board has voted to do. If it appears a quorum is not present and some wish to cancel the November 15-16 meeting, then a called Board meeting or a notational vote is needed to cancel the meeting. This decision cannot be arrived at informally or by the IBB Director with one or two Governors concurring with him. I urge Governors to consider an alternative date if the 15th and 16th do not work. I could attend earlier in the week or come Nov 19 or 20 if that worked. That too requires a Board vote.

Who is going to be our new interim replacement for (b) (6) ?

Because Presiding Governor Lynton cannot attend the November Board meeting, Alternate Presiding Governor Mulhaupt has suggested that all BBG-related meetings to take place on Thursday, November 15, at RFA headquarters. No meetings will be scheduled on Friday, November 16.

In the event that the Board cannot achieve a quorum for a meeting on November 15, even by phone or videoconference, the Board will need to decide whether to meet in December as it is currently scheduled as an optional meeting on December 13 and 14. I feel you should bring this matter to the full Board for resolution with your recommendation so the Baord can discuss it and vote on it. I would like to know whether you plan to do this.

Some of you have inquired about recent coverage concerning last week's decision of the Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) to uphold an arbitrator's decision against the Agency in connection with the Agency's 2009 reduction-in-force at OCB.

Our staff has not yet finished reviewing and digesting the case, nor have we formulated any formal response. It should be noted that the fact that the FLRA affirmed the arbitrator's decision does not necessarily mean that either the arbitrator or the FLRA decided the case correctly on the merits. There are more than a few cases where agencies have successfully challenged FLRA decisions.

The BBG has sixty days in which to respond and it is extremely important for the Agency to analyze the case carefully before deciding how to proceed. There are a number of issues at play in the OCB RIF case that go beyond the issue of possible financial exposure or reinstatement of employees, including substantive issues that may affect other RIFs that may be contemplated in the budgetary decisions that the Board has made. I plan to make a decision on how to proceed based on a sober analysis of the merits of the case. Like you, I of course share the desire to do what is in the best interest of the Agency and its employees. I will certainly take your concerns into account and will consult closely with the OCB Director as well as our Labor and Employee Relations team.. At the appropriate time, I will brief the Board on how best to proceed.

In the meantime, it would be advisable for individual Governors to refrain from discussing the case with BBG Union members or officials. If you are contacted by the media, please consult with our communications team before commenting. Such outreach can be affirmatively harmful to the Agency's interests because it can unnecessarily embolden the stance taken by other stakeholders in this important litigation and may complicate or undermine the Agency's litigation and settlement posture. I believe this is serious enough to come to the full Board for a vote on whether to proceed with an appeal or halt the process. I am eager to have your recommendation as well as the deputy general counsel and [REDACTED] (b) (6).

We should be sensitive to those persons who were terminated and it is now three years later. We should be sensitive to how this impacts the agency too. We should consult with DOJ on this. We should consult with plaintiffs to determine their interest in a settlement and what it would be. We should be advised what the current financial exposure is today, October 3 and what it could be two years from now if the appeals proceed and fail. In other words the plaintiffs win.

While this is not our personal money it is the public's money and we must be sensitive to this.

The BBG governance committee is not meeting despite chairman Mulhaupt saying there would be one. He certainly did not ask me as a committee member about skipping a meeting. The same applies to RFE audit committee where serious issues are on the table. All three audit committee members will be in DC on October 11 and we are told there is not time for a meeting. That is inaccurate. It may be inconvenient for some due to issues which may be discussed but there is time. The three audit committee members of RFE are Mulhaupt, Ashe and McCue. The 4 governance committee members are Mulhaupt, Ashe, Lynton and McCue. All will be in DC on october 11 but there is no meeting. Why? An answer is merited. Governance has several issues to consider. Apparently, Governance is skipping the calendar for 2013 which normally it reviews. Why? Why is protection for union activities not being considered as was discussed at Sept 13 meeting as being refered to governance committee?

The more important issue here is that you and Gov Lynton should consult with the other 6 Governors on the agenda. That is not too many to contact. For two years plus I have shown keen interest in these matters. You know of my interest. I am the only Governor to have visited all language services of VOA. while in Tbilisi on October 2, I took time out to visit the current RFE offices and see the new space as well. I have even been to the mail room of the Cohen Bldg. In other words, I take time to do my job. Common courtesy would suggest that when I ask for items to go on the agenda that you or someone contact me and let me know whether it is the open or private meeting. If my request failed to be specific, then call and ask me what was meant. I would extend the same courtesy to you.

Betreff: October 11 Board Meeting Issues

Victor,

I would like to clear the air about a few things concerning the upcoming October 11 Board meeting agenda.

To begin with, all of the issues that you requested are on the meeting agenda. Your September 20 email to [REDACTED] (b) (6) is set forth below. You did not request these issues be placed on the open meeting agenda. Moreover, the provision of the bylaws relating to the requests of individual Governors does not require that the agenda topics requested by individual Governors have to necessarily be discussed in the open meeting. For your convenience, I have reproduced the relevant provision of the by-laws below. There has been no failure of compliance with the BBG bylaws as you suggest.

In addition, it is important for you and all of the Governors to understand and accept that the staff does not set the agenda of Board deliberations or determine when meetings of the Board of Governors, its committees, or of any grantee Board will occur. This is within the Board's exclusive authority. In this case, we have followed the procedures laid out in the by-laws and worked with the Presiding Governor on the development of the agenda. Given the number of topics that have to be covered by the Board in the open meeting – including picking up where we left off last time, as you requested – and the fact that you are the only Governor who has expressed interest in these particular topics, I made the recommendation to the Presiding Governor to place the discussion in the Governors briefing, as reflected in the draft agenda that we circulated to the Board.

If you or any Governor have a disagreement with the proposed agenda, it is appropriate for you to address your suggestions to the other members of the Board and to obtain their agreement on the items that should be discussed during the open meeting. (b) (6) email clearly stated that she was transmitting a draft agenda and soliciting the comments of the Governors. Perhaps the Board can have a further discussion about whether any of the agenda topics that you have suggested should be moved to the open session, as well as how to deal with these questions going forward.

Finally, you have suggested on several occasions that the Board, certain Governors and/or the staff have conspired to reduce the number of meetings and meeting times in order to avoid the attendance and scrutiny of the Office of Inspector General (OIG).

Nothing could be further than the truth. The Board and the staff welcome the current OIG inspection. Board leaders and I personally invited the team to attend all Board-related meetings while they were here. I am very pleased to have had OIG staff at all the Board's meetings thus far and to have given them full visibility into all communications related to the Board and its members and proceedings.

In your October 1 email regarding these matters, you cite a saying by the late Tennessee Governor McWherter. Allow me to cite a couple of quotes regarding teamwork as it should apply to any organization, including the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

"Individual commitment to a group effort - that is what makes a team work, a company work, a society work, a civilization work." – Vince Lombardi

"Coming together is a beginning. Keeping together is progress. Working together is success." – Henry Ford

"No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent." – John Donne

Dear (b) (6)

Pursuant to the BBG bylaws I want to add several topics to the October 11 agenda and should there not be an October 11 meeting then whenever the next BBG Board meeting does occur.

The topics I wish to add are as follows:

1-consideration of the non disclosure policy and how potential violations are handled..what process exists and what rights the accused have?

2-setting meeting dates for January, February, March, and April 2013 as well as meeting at RFA which has not happened in 2012..also setting date for Meeting at OCB in Miami

3-discussion of morale and contract employees

4-statement on union membership by employees that membership and acitvities in an union for all employees shall not be basis for discrimination by management in the workplace.

I believe I am meeting the notice requirement set out in BBG bylaws.

On another subject, I do not when goverance committee is set to meet on October 11 or what its agenda may be. I do not know if RFE audit committee will meet October 11 or not and what its agenda may be.

BBG BY-LAWS 2.11 AGENDAS

Where practicable, agendas for regular meetings shall be developed beginning thirty (30) days prior to each meeting and distributed electronically to each Governor at least fourteen (14) days prior to each meeting. The Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau (IBB Director) shall propose agenda items for plenary Board meetings to the Chair based on discussions with individual Governors. Individual Governors may designate specific agenda topics and/or resolutions.

Subject: Re: Draft October BBG Meetings Agenda

To my fellow Governors and staff,

Thanks for sending this schedule. I am very disappointed that my requests listed as item VII in the Governor's briefing are not listed for the public meeting as I had requested them be discussed at the full BBG Board meeting and my request was filed with the deputy general counsel in a timely manner as provided by the bylaws. No one has the right to move a Governor's request from the Board meeting to the private session. This is directly contrary to my request and I ask that this be adjusted to be included at the BBG meeting. Surely we will abide by our bylaws.

Second, it is virtually unheard of in a setting such as ours to place approval of the minutes from the prior meeting at the end of the agenda. Such action always comes at the first of the meeting and that has been our BBG practice since we all joined the Board on June 30, 2010. Item F on the agenda should be Item A and each renumbered accordingly.

To be honest, this does not appear to be the result of checking with all the Governors. Certainly I was not consulted and I had asked for several items on the discussion list including (b) (6) from the prior meeting which is now missing. While it is good for Gov Lynton to review the proposed agenda, why not consult with all of us first before it is made up and sent out? This would produce a more collegial approach.

Third, given that the day ends at 315 PM in the afternoon, it is now abundantly and sadly clear that the governance committee could have met but for reasons Chairman Mulhaupt has not shared with me, he has decided not to hold the meeting which he said at the Sept 13 full BBG meeting he would hold to deal with issues referred Sept 13 to governance such as unions. Why? The same holds for his decision for the RFE audit committee not to meet that same day due to lack of time. Well, this schedule shows there is time. What is missing is the will to meet and honor the pledge made in mid September in a public setting. There is time from 0730 to 0830 and with planned adjournment at 315 there would be time to meet from 315 to 6 PM if people are willing to work.

In Tennessee, our late Gov Ned McWhertter when he was Speaker of the Tenn House and I was a minority party member under his leadership, he often told the 99 members when some wanted to adjourn early without finishing the day's business the following: "You should not hire out, if you are not willing to work." Enough said.

BBG faces serious issues which are not receiving attention. RFE faces serious programming issues and management style questions not to mention issues involving fiduciary responsibility and the best answer is to dodge discussion of them. Transparency is jettisoned here.

This is not good. It reflects poorly on all. I urge reconsideration and a response. I am back in USA on Wednesday evening and happy to talk to any Governor or anyone else about this.

For two years plus I have shown keen interest in these matters. You know of my interest. I am the only Governor to have visited all language services of VOA. while in Tbilisi on October 2, I took time out to visit the current RFE offices and see the new space as well. I have even been to the mail room of the Cohen Bldg. In other words, I take time to do my job. Common courtesy would suggest that when I ask for items to go on the agenda that you or someone contact me and let me know whether it is the open or private meeting. If my request failed to be specific, then call and ask me what was meant. I would extend the same courtesy to you.

As we say in Knoxville at this time of the year, GO VOLS.

Betreff: October 11 Board Meeting Issues

Victor,

I would like to clear the air about a few things concerning the upcoming October 11 Board meeting agenda.

To begin with, all of the issues that you requested are on the meeting agenda. Your September 20 email to (b) s set forth below. You did not request these issues be placed on the open meeting agenda. Moreover, the provision of the bylaws relating to the requests of individual Governors does not require that the agenda topics requested by individual Governors have to necessarily be discussed in the open meeting. For your convenience, I have reproduced the relevant provision of the by-laws below. There has been no failure of compliance with the BBG bylaws as you suggest.

In addition, it is important for you and all of the Governors to understand and accept that the staff does not set the agenda of Board deliberations or determine when meetings of the Board of Governors, its committees, or of any grantee Board will occur. This is within the Board's exclusive authority. In this case, we have followed the procedures laid out in the by-laws and worked with the Presiding Governor on the development of the agenda. Given the number of topics that have to be covered by the Board in the open meeting – including picking up where we left off last time, as you requested – and the fact that you are the only Governor who has expressed interest in these particular topics, I made the recommendation to the Presiding Governor to place the discussion in the Governors briefing, as reflected in the draft agenda that we circulated to the Board.

If you or any Governor have a disagreement with the proposed agenda, it is appropriate for you to address your suggestions to the other members of the Board and to obtain their agreement on the items that should be discussed during the open meeting. Oanh's email clearly stated that she was transmitting a draft agenda and soliciting the comments of the Governors. Perhaps the Board can have a further discussion about whether any of the agenda topics that you have suggested should be moved to the open session, as well as how to deal with these questions going forward.

Finally, you have suggested on several occasions that the Board, certain Governors and/or the staff have conspired to reduce the number of meetings and meeting times in order to avoid the attendance and scrutiny of the Office of Inspector General (OIG).

Nothing could be further than the truth. The Board and the staff welcome the current OIG inspection. Board leaders and I personally invited the team to attend all Board-related meetings while they were here. I am very pleased to have had OIG staff at all the Board's meetings thus far and to have given them full visibility into all communications related to the Board and its members and proceedings.

In your October 1 email regarding these matters, you cite a saying by the late Tennessee Governor McWherter. Allow me to cite a couple of quotes regarding teamwork as it should apply to any organization, including the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

"Individual commitment to a group effort - that is what makes a team work, a company work, a society work, a civilization work." – Vince Lombardi

"Coming together is a beginning. Keeping together is progress. Working together is success." – Henry Ford

"No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent." – John Donne

Thank you,
Dick Lobo

Subject: October 11 BBG agenda

Dear (b) (6),

Pursuant to the BBG bylaws I want to add several topics to the October 11 agenda and should there not be an October 11 meeting then whenever the next BBG Board meeting does occur.

The topics I wish to add are as follows:

- 1-consideration of the non disclosure policy and how potential violations are handled..what process exists and what rights the accused have?
- 2-setting meeting dates for January, February, March, and April 2013 as well as meeting at RFA which has not happened in 2012..also setting date for Meeting at OCB in Miami
- 3-discussion of morale and contract employees

4-statement on union membership by employees that membership and acitvities in an union for all employees shall not be basis for discrimination by management in the workplace.

I believe I am meeting the notice requirement set out in BBG bylaws.

On another subject, I do not when goverance committee is set to meet on October 11 or what its agenda may be. I do not know if RFE audit committee will meet October 11 or not and what its agenda may be.

Victor Ashe

BBG BY-LAWS 2.11 AGENDAS

Where practicable, agendas for regular meetings shall be developed beginning thirty (30) days prior to each meeting and distributed electronically to each Governor at least fourteen (14) days prior to each meeting. The Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau (IBB Director) shall propose agenda items for plenary Board meetings to the Chair based on discussions with individual Governors. Individual Governors may designate specific agenda topics and/or resolutions.

Subject: Re: Draft October BBG Meetings Agenda

To my fellow Governors and staff,

Thanks for sending this schedule. I am very disappointed that my requests listed as item VII in the Governor's briefing are not listed for the public meeting as I had requested them be discussed at the full BBG Board meeting and my request was filed with the deputy general counsel in a timely manner as provided by the bylaws. No one has the right to move a Governor's request from the Board meeting to the private session. This is directly contrary to my request and I ask that this be adjusted to be included at the BBG meeting. Surely we will abide by our bylaws.

Second, it is virtually unheard of in a setting such as ours to place approval of the minutes from the prior meeting at the end of the agenda. Such action always comes at the first of the meeting and that has been our BBG practice since we all joined the Board on June 30, 2010. Item F on the agenda should be Item A and each renumbered accordingly.

To be honest, this does not appear to be the result of checking with all the Governors. Certainly I was not consulted and I had asked for several items on the discussion list including (b) (6) from the prior meeting which is now missing. While it is good for Gov Lynton to review the proposed agenda, why not consult with all of us first before it is made up and sent out? This would produce a more collegial approach.

Third, given that the day ends at 315 PM in the afternoon, it is now abundantly and sadly clear that the governance committee could have met but for reasons Chairman Mulhaupt has not shared with me, he has decided not to hold the meeting which he said at the Sept 13 full BBG meeting he would hold to deal with issues referred Sept 13 to governance such as unions. Why? The same holds for his decision for the RFE audit committee not to meet that same day due to lack of time. Well, this schedule shows there is time. What is missing is the will to meet and honor the pledge made in mid September in a public setting. There is time from 0730 to 0830 and with planned adjournment at 315 there would be time to meet from 315 to 6 PM if people are willing to work.

In Tennessee, our late Gov Ned McWherter when he was Speaker of the Tenn House and I was a minority party member under his leadership, he often told the 99 members when some wanted to adjourn early without finishing the day's business the following: "You should not hire out, if you are not willing to work." Enough said.

BBG faces serious issues which are not receiving attention. RFE faces serious programming issues and management style questions not to mention issues involving fiduciary responsibility and the best answer is to dodge discussion of them. Transparency is jettisoned here.

This is not good. It reflects poorly on all. I urge reconsideration and a response. I am back in USA on Wednesday evening and happy to talk to any Governor or anyone else about this.

(b) (6) wanted to participate but could not, due to an out-of-town obligation in connection with consulting work that he is doing now in the private sector.

We have a good range of participants, including leading journalists who are working now in Russia or worked there in the past, and who can bring current, thoughtful knowledge about the worsening media situation and about the opportunities that might be available for VOA and RFE/RL.

We expect representatives from State and the Hill to be on hand as well – we don't yet have a final list of those who will attend.

Dear RFA Board, Dick, Bruce and Jeff

As surprising as it seems, RFA has beat our own pick-up record with the latest tragic Tibetan self-immolations reported this weekend.

This latest news has caused immediate and mass reaction from the government both in terms of physical military intimidation and internet/press censorship.

On Monday, Radio Free Asia's Tibetan service broke the news that two Tibetans in Lhasa had self-immolated in protest of China's rule of the Tibetan regions. The report was translated into English and sent out as a news release. The incident, being the first reported case of self-immolations occurring in the Tibetan capital city, quickly spread around the world when the Associated Press and numerous other global newswires picked up RFA's exclusive report. Global news networks such as BBC, CNN, and Al Jazeera, as well as sources like the New York Times, The Guardian, Daily Telegraph, among many others, reported on the incident citing RFA's original coverage.

RFA has broken the news on roughly half of the 37 Tibetan self-immolations and followed with in-depth stories surrounding the final desperate acts.

Here's the summary from this morning:

ASSOCIATED PRESS (Also in CNN, BBC, REUTERS, NEW YORK TIMES, AGENCE FRANCE PRESSE, AL JAZEERA, DEUTSCHE WELLE, UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL, BANGKOK POST, TELEGRAPH, HINDUSTAN TIMES, GLOBAL POST)
May 28 "

Two men engulfed themselves in a burst of flames outside a Buddhist temple popular with tourists and pilgrims in Lhasa, marking the first time a recent wave of self-immolations to protest Chinese rule has reached the tightly guarded Tibetan capital.

... Radio Free Asia reported Monday that Lhasa was under heavy police and paramilitary guard following the immolations and that the situation was very tense.

Dear Dennis

I have had thought further about this since my last e mail and prefer a Board meeting over a briefing but feel either is better than nothing. However, the occasion should be more than RFE management giving us their view. We should have private time for Governors to discuss this among ourselves (obviously OIG would be there if they wish). We also need to have contact with one or more the dissidents signing the letter which has become so public. There needs to be outreach here.

We are faced with a serious morale and public perception issue at the very least. However, there could be more and duty is to ascertain in an objective way all sides so a factual determination can be made. A briefing by staff is only a start not an ending to this crisis for RFE in Moscow. If this turns out to be staff only and that ends it, then we have failed.

Your email suggests that it is all "misinformation and misconceptions." I am not sure we have enough knowledge to reach that conclusion any more than we have enough information to state that RFE management erred in full or in part. I urge you to be more neutral and even handed as chair until we hear all the facts.

This will be a followup to the report given by Steve and his colleagues at the RFE board meeting a few weeks ago. There is a significant amount of misinformation and misconceptions about what we are actually doing and our plans going forward.

Within the next several days, we will organize a call-in briefing for those who are interested in participating. RFE management will update us on the current state of affairs and answer any questions you may have. As soon as this can be organized, we will be back to you.

Below is an addendum to the November 5, 2012 BBG Media Highlights:

The Bureaucratic Attack on International Broadcasting - Heritage Foundation, November 2, 2012

By Caitlin Duvall

November 2, 2012

The recent layoff of Voice of America (VOA) employees in Russia comes at a time when U.S. international broadcasting is also losing ground to bureaucratic overkill.

Despite a continually expanding budget, many mission-critical broadcasting services are being cut, personnel are being let go, and broadcasters are being required to do more with less. Low job satisfaction within the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) has become a growing trend in recent years. Many employees attribute their dissatisfaction to accepted behaviors of underperformance from managers. Mere awareness of these and other problems has failed to bring about much-needed changes.

But perhaps the biggest problem facing U.S. international broadcasting is its very own leadership. The BBG's nine-person board, which oversees all government civilian broadcasting, was created to serve as a firewall between policymakers and broadcasters. However, as one VOA employee puts it, broadcasters "need more protection from the firewall than they need the firewall itself."

Many of the BBG members exercise little meaningful guidance to the group (if they even attend the meetings at all). The board has also been criticized for cracking down on the disclosure of “deliberative information” circulating internally. With its core mission being the promotion of America’s policy positions abroad, it seems counterproductive to stifle internal communications, especially when collaboration and exchange are essential for success.

The inefficiencies highlighted above are in need of real solutions. In order for the U.S. to effectively promote its policies abroad, Congress should consider rewriting the legislation that created the BBG in a way that ensures professional management and a transparent structure. It should also include an independent strategic overview of all broadcasting entities of the U.S. government.

A much-needed review of the BBG is underway at the State Department Office of the Inspector General, which will most likely find these solutions necessary to correcting the internal problems of U.S. international broadcasting.

In a time when the promotion of U.S. policies is sorely needed to combat a growing anti-American sentiment around the world, the U.S. should undertake reforms to improve the management practices and structures of the BBG. If not, the organization is in danger of remaining, in the words of Senator Tom Coburn (R-OK), the “most worthless organization in the federal government.”

(b) (6) let's work together to look into this and adjust as needed. I believe the time change was based on this email from (b) (6) in another email trail:

From: (b) (6)
Date: Wed, 21 Nov 2012 12:18:26 -0500 (EST)
To: (b) (6)
Subject: RE: Communication from SkyNet

Below is the info that came from VOA. I don't fully understand what they are proposing.

We are on Asiasat-3 right now and New Skies, NSS-12 , so I don't know what they mean when they talk about Asiasat-IOR and Asiasat-340.

The change to 1400-1430 UTC is fine as that is when we currently run our RRSat program on Apstar 7. According to research, Thaicom 5 is the most popular satellite in Burma with about half of satellite owners using it. I don't know if BBG has Thaicom time.

I doubt I have the full set of email exchanges, so I'd ask (b) (6) to work with you and others as needed to sort this out. Am I correct that the next scheduled program is on Monday? If so, that should give time to work this through. I suggest that the technical colleagues start another email correspondence.

Going forward we can work on procedures to make sure that there is no confusion or misunderstanding.

Regards
Jeff

still no country clearance from State on visiting Burma. Victor Ashe

Happy to report we now have State Legal's clearance on BBG's proposed provision of English learning programs to Burmese media outlets. Head of placement (b) (6) and BBG lawyer (b) (6) secured the approval in a meeting with State this afternoon. Next step is for (b) (6) to convey the affiliate agreement to the prospective Burmese partners for their review and acceptance. He will do that immediately. We will keep you posted on progress. Recall that the Burmese have asked to see the agreement. We're working a live deal.

Getting this first piece of program placement done is just one of the Burma action steps in play as agreed to at the BBG Burma meeting on February 14 (another copy of the issues paper attached) consistent with our evolving Burma strategy (strategy map also attached). All are up to speed, I think, on the upcoming trip by (b) (6) and governors Meehan and Ashe. On Friday I conveyed in writing a reiteration of the purposes of that trip to State East Asia Pacific Bureau and have asked that a decision be taken soonest on country clearance for the governors.

That's it for now. Kudos to (b) (6) and (b) (6) Bruce

I assume there will be a full and complete discussion of the budget to be submitted to OMB. I trust (b) (6) will submit to the committee a budget which includes consolidation of the three entities and one which does not include consolidation. so we can consider both approaches. I would like to see areas of proposed savings in our July 31 meeting. I hope the three entities are invited to be represented so they can respond to questions along with VOA and OCB.

I consider this a serious issue. Having good relations with employees is important. That is why the governance committee has held hearings on this which you have attended. Yes, I have heard complaints. As I stated, I am not taking sides but in the interests of openness these matters need to be aired and discussed. If that makes you uncomfortable I regret it but it goes with the job.

The failure to have a contract with AFGE bothers me. The Board was not told this. This is not the first time either. I had to learn it. BBG needs to improve morale and having a working contract is part of it.

BBG needs to be told what is happening here. (b) (6) I appreciate what you do but I do not always agree with your approach.

In regard to your first issue, I want to state for the record that I am not “at odds” with anyone. Unfortunately, difficult decisions sometimes must be made. I did my job and I did it properly. I had a personal meeting with (b) (6) to discuss this case, and, yes, he disagreed with the outcome – that is to be expected given the fact that he is a union representative. The meeting was pleasant, or as pleasant as any meeting with (b) (6) can be.

Given these facts, I cannot understand why you would send a message to my entire supervisory chain implying that the Office of Human Resources does not work well with the Department of State. In fact, this office has an excellent professional and collaborative relationship with State and has had for many years. This case involved immigration laws over which this agency has no jurisdiction, and I have no intention of using my federal position to influence State to ignore immigration laws.

Thank you,

Subject: Fwd:(b) (6)

Here is an employee issue from this week where (b) (6) president of the AFGE union voices really strong views on how (b) (6) and HR handled this issue. I am not taking sides on the issue but I do feel it raises significant questions in light of our March 9 governance committee meeting and the good will created there from just listening. (b) (6) and (b) (6) are clearly at odds here. It is not a good situation. BBG does not seem to work well with State here either.

As mayor of Knoxville, I tried to work with employees. I maintained strong communications with unions and individual employees. Dick Lobo has reached out to contractors. However, he learned in one meeting a contractor who had appeared before us was sent a termination notice shortly thereafter followed shortly thereafter by a new notice saying it was all a mistake. While he has NOT been fired there are those who wonder if this was just an error or intended to have a chilling impact by seeming to terminate but then not doing it. Someone seems to not have gotten the Board message that we want to work to solve these issues. These 'mistakes' cause us lasting damage. Under Dennis Mulhaupt's leadership the governance committee is listening. Lobo is holding more contractor meetings even at 0700. We must not allow other incidents to undercut top level actions.

It also bothers me that BBG does not have a new contract with AFGE. Why is this? What are the hurdles to overcome? If morale is to improve we must do better. I am told more meetings are not even scheduled. I worry that the second level folks in a few cases are not getting the message from Lobo and the Board as evidenced by this e mail and the contractor firing followed by rescinding the termination. There is suspicion that this is designed to create an impasse and send it to arbitration.

We have lots to discuss in Miami.

(b) contacted me and wanted to respond regarding putting the issue on our website. He didn't know that we had already discussed this but yes we will address this on our website. I have discussed it with (b) (6) because I didn't want to do it without her knowledge and permission. She has given her permission so we will do it.

(b) (6) description of our meeting with (b) (6) is accurate. One thing that shocked me (although I should be used to this by now) was her complete lack of concern or empathy for (b) (6) plight. I told her that the problem I had with this whole process was that this individual was told that her Visa had expired and she would have to leave the country by March 14th or face deportation and the possibility of never being able to enter the U.S. again. (b) asked her what would have happened if she had left the country by March 14th - what if the Agency decided that she should not have been fired. (b) (6) said that if she left there would be no reconsideration of her removal because the Agency would not agree to bring her back.

I told her that the process put her in a catch 22 then. She responded that she knew the conditions when she was hired - she knew what she was getting into. She then said that she was not a good employee anyway because they had Program Review go through her reports and she was mediocre at best. I then told her that Program Review directly contradicted what her two former Service Chiefs and her direct supervisor stated - in writing no less. She dismissed what they said claiming that the first Service Chief (the one who hired her) was only there for a short time so her statement didn't count. The other one was acting only for a few months and she just completely discredited her direct supervisor. Keep in mind the Service Chief who wanted her out had only been in the position since this past November and had only just returned after leaving the Agency to work for some firm in Pakistan.

The whole thing stinks.

This is the actual tape from (b) (6) speaking to RFERL on the Moscow personnel firings as it appeared on BBG watch. I urge you to listen to it. Draw your own conclusions. Apparently someone recorded this while (b) (6) spoke.

<http://www.usgbroadcasts.com/bbgwatch/2012/11/11/radio-liberty-in-exile-posts-rferl-president-steven-korns-dismissive-comments-about-russian-opposition-leaders/>

However, I feel the content is stunning. As a manager myself when I was Mayor for 16 years and as Ambassador for 5 years at Embassy, it shows virtually no empathy for fired persons. He basically says it is my way or the highway. This approach can only incite fear and anger. As an American I cannot be proud of the way he is handling this. It sends the wrong message to working men and women who make up RFERL.

This approach can only leave lingering hostility towards him and his small management team. As a RFERL Board we have not faced up to the management issues we face now. Perhaps we will never face up to it and it may be that I am the only one who worries about (b) (6) management style which triggers so much unrest. We have not met as a Board on this. Missing is any sense of compassion or concern. They are key ingredients to a sound management approach.

Our chair, Dennis Mulhaupt, under the employment contract with (b) (6) has not done the annual evaluation after the first year of employment which passed several months ago. At least that is what Gov. Mulhaupt told me at the last September RFERL Board meeting. If he has done it since then, he did not seek views of all other Board members and/or share the results of his evaluation with the full Board. If it is done, I use this e mail to ask for a copy of it.

It may be that an RFERL audit committee meeting will occur in December and I hope all Board members will be invited to attend if such occurs. That is what I do as chair of MBN audit which is meeting November 15 and all MBN Board members can listen in if they wish.

If we continue to sidestep this building personnel/morale issue, we will continue the damage which is being done to RFERL, to its image, to freedom loving citizens and to US foreign policy.

With Burma's political opening and thawing relations with the U.S., opportunities have emerged for the BBG to engage the Burmese media sector in ways that could benefit BBG's reach and impact in Burma and advance U.S. strategic interests. The purpose of the trip is to pursue these objectives in meetings with senior government officials and media representatives in close cooperation with U.S. diplomatic personnel, including the U.S. Special Envoy for Burma.

Being new to the Strategy and Budget Committee, I opened the book on the April 10 meeting with great anticipation. However, I was struck by the absence of names (authors) on each tab as that is important should I wish to ask questions in advance of the meeting. Is it Bruce or who?

Also I was disappointed not to see a serious discussion of alternatives on the proposed Tibetan language services cuts. The Board voted to ask the Committee to review this. Staff should prepare options for us to consider including full restoration. There was not a single proposal presented to us. Waiting until the committee actually meets does not provide adequate time for discussion and thinking it all over.

We are charged with important tasks which include interested observers on the Hill who are fully prepared to weigh in on these issues. Our mission statement must be a work in progress as we adjust to reality. It is not etched in stone and can never be altered.

We must be prepared to address all the issues raised to date and consider options. We need to discuss whether spending up to $10 million a year with Gallup is wise or would a lesser sum achieve our desired goals. We need to discuss areas of savings such as a travel contract with Carlson which costs us 50 to 80 percent more every time a ticket is booked. For example, I was prepared to buy direct from United a $1800 ticket to Prague and I am advised by (b) (6) [REDACTED] that the contract forces me to use the $3600 ticket...all economy class. Why must I spend taxpayers money in such a foolish fashion? This never would have happened on my watch as Mayor of Knoxville. We must insist on fewer people attending international conferences like the one in Delhi last year where 12 persons went and 4 or 6 could have sufficed in my view.

These savings could help prevent language cuts which are triggering anger towards BBG.

I am sorry to raise these issues over Easter and Passover but I only got the material Friday for a Tuesday afternoon meeting.

One can and should hope it works. My view is that this is a story still unfolding and we are not at the end of it from several perspectives which makes it all the more interesting to serve on the RFE Board.

Personally, I have no confidence in Putin and feel it is only a matter of time before he forces RFE out of Russia. What approach he uses is the only unknown. RFE should approach this all with caution and our eyes wide open. The neighborhood there is dangerous to freedom.

Thanks for your response. I understand your views. When I have had time to digest it, I will get back with further questions and comments. I appreciate your time to respond to this.

To be honest, while I think research is important and needed, I think the current proposed layoffs and reduction in services force difficult choices upon us with which reasonable people can differ.

This is where we may part company on this issue as I am troubled by spending 10 million a year ($8.8 million one year) while 200 fine employees are discharged and services like Tibetan language are reduced. I wonder if we should not cut even more in the Gallup contract for a few years to produce the savings needed to keep more of these lost jobs and Tibetan language. I feel sure Congress will take steps to halt the reduction in Tibetan language and based on what I know I would agree with Congress on that. Our priorities need further thought in my view.

Subject: BBG Annual Global Audience Estimate

Governors,

Attached and below, please find a news release about the BBG's annual global audience estimate that is about to go out; it will be familiar already to the members of the Communications Committee.

The news release and supporting documents, also attached, were prepared to coincide with a just-completed conference call that Dick Lobo and Bruce Sherman held with key Hill staffers, public diplomacy bloggers and other interested stakeholders. The conference call on the BBG's global audience estimate is done annually as a precursor to release of the Performance Accountability Report (PAR).

As you may recall, the PAR goes to the White House and Congress and is made available to the public each November 15; this year's PAR will be delayed by a day due to complications involving Superstorm Sandy. It will be released this Friday, Nov. 16.

Should you have any questions regarding the PAR or the global audience estimate released today, Bruce Sherman is standing by. The PAR is to be discussed during tomorrow's open meeting of the Strategy and Budget Committee.

BBG Measures Audience Growth in Key Markets

Washington, D.C. – U.S. government-funded, civilian international broadcasters reached an estimated 175 million people per week on a variety of media platforms in 2012, including large audiences in countries that are key priorities for U.S. foreign policy, the Broadcasting Board of Governors announced today.

The figure, which reflects the combined viewership and listenership of Voice of America, Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty, Radio and TV Martí, Radio Free Asia and the Middle East Broadcasting Networks (Alhurra TV and Radio Sawa), is a net decrease of 12 million from last year's record total as detailed in the BBG's annual Performance Accountability Report. While this drop likely reflects actual loss in overall audience, some of it may also be attributable to a change in research providers and resulting changes in the survey questionnaire, both of which occurred during FY 2012.

"Reliable and high-quality research informs our strategies, which in turn helps us fulfill our critical mission of reaching marketplaces around the globe, such as Afghanistan, Iraq, and Pakistan," said BBG Presiding Governor Michael Lynton. "This agency is committed to evaluating and assessing performance through a rigorous research program as required by law. And as audience preferences change, we will continue to innovate on all platforms -- radio, TV, the Internet and social media."

Audiences grew substantially in Iran, where more than 10 million people watch or hear BBG programs, and in other key countries including Libya, and Ethiopia. The largest change was in Indonesia, where audience numbers dropped by 17.4 million, from 38 million to 21 million people, in part due to a potential overestimate in 2011. Among other countries that saw audience declines were Egypt, Nigeria, and Burma, as these markets became more competitive and open; in Haiti, where surge broadcasts instituted after the 2010 earthquake diminished; and in Russia, where government media regulations have curtailed distribution.

BBG broadcasts reached significant audiences in other important markets, including 75 percent of the adult population in Afghanistan, 75 percent in the Somaliland and Puntland regions of Somalia, 67 percent in Iraq, 30 percent in Libya, and 27 percent in the FATA region of Pakistan. In FY 2012, the BBG enhanced its distribution network, adding new FM transmitters in key cities in Libya and Afghanistan.

Consistent with the practice of other international broadcasters, the BBG measures and reports unduplicated audience; each individual, regardless of how many programs watched or listened to, or media platforms used, is counted only once. This is a conservative approach to quantifying the audience and in keeping with the mission of BBG to inform and engage people, rather than count individual interactions with them.

Other indices of impact -- such how trustworthy audiences find BBG programming and how much the broadcasts increase their understanding, the scope or quality of an individual's consumption of BBG programming, the level of social media engagement, website page views, file downloads or media citations of BBG news coverage -- are important factors considered for program and strategic planning purposes.

Radio and TV are increasingly close in terms of reach by platform, with radio reaching more than 95 million people per week and television measures in at 92 million people. The Internet audience was between 12 and 13 million, with the largest online audiences measured in Iraq, at 2.7 million.

The audience estimate includes research conducted within the past five years in over 70 countries and territories and surveys representing 2.8 billion people in markets around the globe. The 2012 Performance and Accountability Report will be available to download on Nov. 16.

Sharing here the latest on the SkyNet deal based on (b) (6) further negotiations today.

Do note SkyNet's proposal now to fashion a channel ultimately composed of both VOA and RFA content -- as well as (their proposal) Democratic Voice of Burma programming.

(b) is in touch with you through emails exchanged earlier in your day. He sees (b) tonight your time and will update him on the status of the talks. I think it is very important that you also weigh in and support a workable deal.

While I think not doing news now as the political environment matures is manageable (again, we have always known getting domestic distribution in Burma was going to be subject to many conditions), asking us to share a channel with DVB is something else. I find it problematic (and another new stipulation), but am open to other views.

Best, Bruce

Subject: Burma Interim Report - (b) Agreement to Review!

Bruce:

We met with the Sky Net team this morning, and into the afternoon for more than three hours. Share as you see fit.

We listened to their explanation of events - they expected to have approval for our agreement from the Ministry of Information by now; and they suspect that announcing the signing raised the visibility level of the whole event. They said they were contacted by the Ministry of Information this past Saturday (1 December), and while the subject of ordering VOA's news off the air never came up (and never would, directly, they say), they were asked words to the effect of, "You're not about to do anything foolish, are you?"

And that, they say, put a scare into them. They maintain that they want to run news, and acknowledge that their viewers would want to see VOA and RFA. But basically, they say we've got a business to run that goes beyond Sky Net, and we believe it would be dangerous to run any news content in Burmese right now. French, English, Japanese, German...all okay. Burmese - a problem.

So we began to roll out a Plan B, which would allow them to cherry pick from the "VOA Asia" schedule, and run it as a block. As the conversation rolled along, a number of things became clear:

- They do not intend to run VOA content 24 hours a day.
- They're reserving space for RFA to eventually join the stream on the same channel.
- They're reserving space for Democratic Voice of Burma (DVB) to also join the stream on the same channel.

(b) claims that DVB will be paying big money for the placement. He says he's heard $200K, and he swears that RFA has also offered Sky Net money for placement. If so, VOA becomes the loss leader that they believe will open the door to making money on this channel. I did make it clear to them that any RFA placement would come from our office, and could simply be added to the existing agreement at some later date. We also discussed that since VOA was the first, it should lay claim to prime time.

So. The way it stands is this: We negotiated the language of the placement agreement - the Basic "Affiliation and Licensing Agreement," which is attached. There were no changes made to this document. Annex I is also pristine. I did belatedly notice two remnants from earlier discussions in Annex II, both are highlighted, both are very minor. Annex III is where all the other changes are noted. Most of this language was approved by (b) earlier. We spent nearly 90 minutes discussing their proposals, which they said had already been approved by the Ministry of Information, and why we would not and could not sign them.

The two new sections are five - which they ask for, and says they may take programs live from our feed, or record them and play them back at convenient times. So long as they're not news programs, we're okay with it.

Section six strikes some language that pertains to ownership of edited programs or programs created from excerpting other programs. Since all they're running are whole programs ("Agency Product"), this really didn't apply, and so I agreed to it.

Important to state once again, that I stressed that the agreement and all of the annexes needed to be blessed by our legal people (b) and that (b) who was very disappointed about no news content, would weigh in before deciding if he will sign.

Now. What would be signed. The agreement is covered by a "Letter of Intent," which I cribbed from an earlier letter (b) wrote. It says nothing, except that we're going to work to finalize the Agreement by some date certain. We still need to agree to:

- Which programs they will take, and when they will air the "block" they intend to make.
- If we're even comfortable with the idea of a non-24 hour stream
- If we're comfortable with sharing a channel with DVB.
- Of course, if we're comfortable with no news
- Or might we want to figure out a way to do more news in English for this stream?

They still need to get Ministry of Information approval for the agreement we've just negotiated, since we threw out their proposed Annex III. They believe that will be pro forma, since there is no news content here. A nod from the MOI while the governors or (b) are in Naypyidaw would, they say, go a long way.

They do ask that (b) or the Governors, should they speak with the MOI word any concern in positive terms.

Not: "We understand you're getting in the way of putting our news on Sky Net."

But rather: "We've been talking to Sky Net about placing our news on their platform. You wouldn't object, would you?"

More I know not. I'm going to sleep for a few hours before it's time to pick up (b) late tonight.

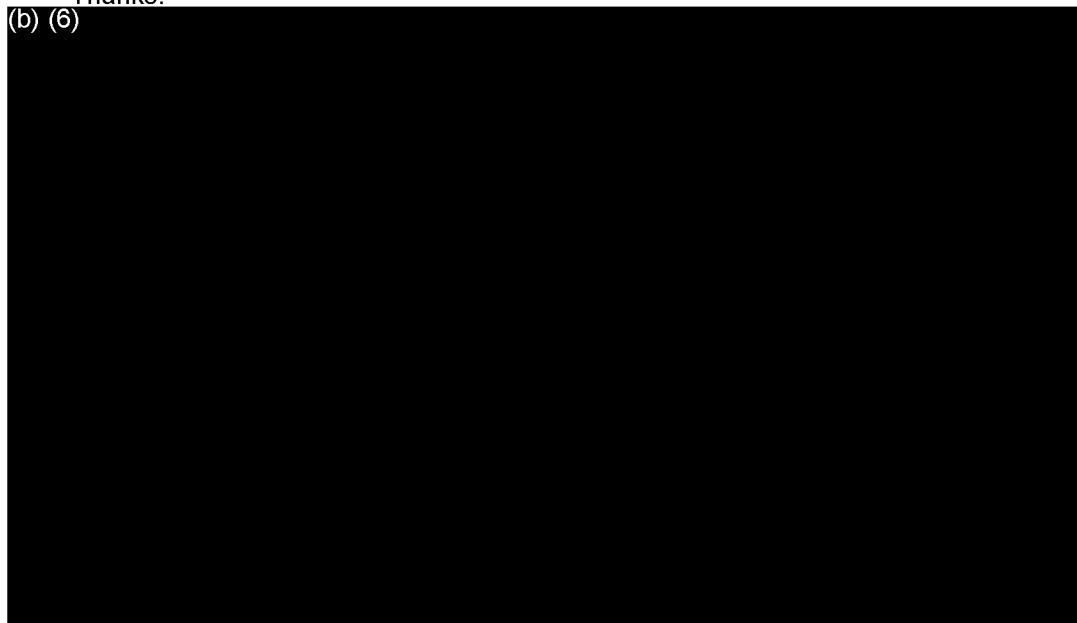

I've briefed (b) at the Embassy; I'm making tentative plans to fly to Naypyidaw with (b) tomorrow, to speak to the Ministry of Information - assuming there's a meeting (not confirmed as of 430 this afternoon.) Copying them here, because I promised I would.

Feel free to call - closer to 9am your time, please, if that's okay.

Supporting what I just said to (b) (6), FYI, on which you were copied, I'd already reached out to her as one of my first actions in heading the new Strategy & Development Office to say we needed to meet on Burma. Distribution decisions need to follow strategy, and all BBG media properties need to be in the mix. We'll now coordinate an overall strategy and sort out the TV, radio, etc. pieces. We will likely need your support to avoid, once again, unnecessary duplication of effort. This is the practical, hands-on stuff of BBG integration.

Hi (b) (6) I'll see you tomorrow but wanted to say in advance that I want to talk to you about Burma. VOA reached an agreement in principle, as you know, with Burma to distribute selected VOA "soft" programming over domestic outlets. Now there's a return trip in the offing to follow up and discuss terms. But we also have to factor in RFA. We need an integrated BBG strategy. So I'd like to propose that you and I and our placement folks headed by (b) [REDACTED] and our VOA colleagues all sit together to talk through how we see the Burmese market/situation now and opportunities and how we best to seize them. I know you've had ideas and plans for Burma. So with the proposed VOA/IBB return trip, it's time we looked at our overall interests and strategies. Just wanted to lay this out here since it's on my mind. We'll talk tomorrow. Bruce

Dear Governors, and (b) (6)

I understand you are discussing a possible trip to Burma in December, and write to suggest broadening its focus to include the full spectrum of BBG opportunities--VOA as well as RFA matters.

As you know, we have been in discussions for quite some time now about an opportunity to have a VOA television presence on Burma's most popular dish network, Skynet, an opportunity that was first discussed when (b) (6) of OSD and I met with the owner of the company.

There is now a tentative target date of December 3rd for a signing ceremony for a VOA memorandum of understanding which is being negotiated for VOA and the BBG by (b) (6) and his team. Skynet has already signed some agreements for channels with major international broadcasters and they convinced top executives to attend those events—it means a lot to them to have a high level delegation attending.

I wonder whether we could arrange to have those governors planning to travel to Burma attend this significant event, along with me? Your added "star" power would mean a lot. (I imagine the date could move a bit if needed.)

Best,

(b) (6)

Agree. But, in my opinion, we shouldn't let perfection be the enemy of the good, either.

Also, I recommend we consider the longer-term. SkyNet only reaches 80,000 or so households now while we already have direct-to-home service going. It's not the key yet to wider distribution.

But, the same folks who operate SkyNet also control the Shwe FM network, and FM is a large and growing medium that we need to be on to have increasing impact in the country.

Bottom line: the SkyNet deal, like the English learning programs we placed on Myanmar Radio and TV earlier in the year, is part of an evolutionary process there. It's important as a step toward where we want to be as much as destination in itself.

Subject: CLOSE HOLD, please: Draft messaging documents on the FY13 budget submission

Dear Governors,

Attached for your review are the draft messaging materials prepared by agency staff in collaboration with the network heads and communications teams across all entities. They are:

- A message from the Board to agency employees
- A news release
- Talking points on the top nine most anticipated questions, in rank order of likelihood
- Examples of ways that we are ending duplication and streamlining services
- A budget overview, strategic principles guiding BBG budgeting decisions, and a comparison across broadcast entities at the request of some of the entity heads.

Much of what is in the talking points has been pulled from existing and in some cases published agency documents for consistency. Similarities between the board statement and the news release are intentional, as are the differences. Apart from those two items, which will be distributed, please forgive any typos or formatting errors arising from the production process this week.

Your feedback will help strengthen these items so that we can most effectively convey the reasoning and goals underlying this budget request. It would be most useful if comments could be made within the next 24 hours to ensure timely incorporation into these materials.

In a separate message, (b) (6) has sent you the actual budget documents.

Best regards,

Lynne W.

I am available for the December meetings. Surely we will meet. If we do not meet in December and there is no quorum for November then it means we go from October 11 to mid February with NO Meeting. That is 4 months. Shame on us if we let that happen. That will be awful.

Dear Governors,

At the request of IBB Director Lobo, I am polling the Board to determine its ability to meet in December.

According to the schedule previously approved by the Board, December 13 and 14 (Thursday and Friday) are designated as an optional meeting of the Board.

If for some reason the Board does not achieve a quorum on November 15, the Board could still meet to receive briefings by staff and hold Committee and entity meetings but there could be no formal votes taken.

Therefore, the Board, if it wishes, could consider holding a meeting in December as the next scheduled meeting after December is February 21-22, 2013.

Please let us know if you would be available for a Board meeting on Thursday, December 13 and/or Friday, December 14 in the Cohen Building.

Thank you.

We need to be briefed on what Gallup says about this, perhaps they will have someone at the meeting...what does DOJ say as well as State which may be being ripped off according to the lawsuit. We all need to know fully what is happening here. What safeguards exist in the current BBG contract with Gallup to protect BBG if wrongdoing is proven? The problem here is that the lawsuit may take 3 years to be resolved by which time the current contract has ended but BBG may not have received an honest accounting of what the taxpayers are paying for in this. This lawsuit clearly places a cloud over it all.

When Justice joins a whistleblower suit, there must be a lot going on there and is this issue company wide at Gallup?

thanks for sending this. I understand (b) (6) is on vacation this week.

I may not be able to join the call until 0945 due to a 0915 medical appointment. I will work out with (b) (6) when she can contact me that morning so I can join the call

As you know the full Board voted on August 17 for this committee to review PNN and the parazit show issue. I feel this subject must be on the agenda ..for 1000 and afterwards. Perhaps this may require fewer persons present for a candid discussion. Also I want to know how many people work to produce Parazit. What is the total budget? What have these people been doing while off the air for 9 months? What plans exist to get the show back on the air with new or same leadership? Why was the Board not informed earlier?

Why did state decline to fund proposals for Radio Sawa?

I look forward to the meeting with these changes.

April 4, 2012
Members of the Broadcasting Board of Governors
330 Independence Avenue
Washington, DC 20237

To Whom It May Concern:

I write in support of Voice of America radio and television broadcasting, particularly to China, Tibet and Russia. In addition, I write in support of the efforts of the Committee for U.S. International Broadcasting. The CUSIB works to ensure that U.S. government-funded broadcasts promote respect for human rights and freedom of the press, especially in nations where these basic freedoms are under attack.

I write to you on a personal basis to express dismay that Voice of America radio and television broadcasts to Russia ceased in 2008. I am deeply concerned that although last year's proposed cuts of VOA Mandarin and Cantonese radio and television programs were halted, this year's proposal includes the elimination of VOA Cantonese services and VOA Tibetan Radio Services, at a time when there is significant unrest in Tibet. I urge you to continue the Cantonese and Tibetan broadcasts, and to restore them to Russia.

I well remember as a girl in Nazi-occupied Hungary, how every Sunday afternoon my family would draw the shades, close the curtains, and gather around the shortwave radio, pressing our ears close so that we could catch each precious word of freedom and hope that poured out of that radio receiver like manna from heaven. We had to strain to hear over the static caused by Nazi attempts to block the signal, but we were grateful to do so, because these words of truth were pure gold in the ubiquitous mire of Nazi propaganda. The VOA and BBC broadcasts were our one connection to freedom, our one connection to hope, and our lifeline that gave the resistance the courage to endure to the end. The VOA broadcasts fanned the fires of resistance in the brave underground fighters who sought to destroy the brutal Nazi totalitarianism from within. To cut off the VOA broadcasts would have been to cut off the very legs of the resistance. The same is true today in nations ruled by totalitarian regimes.

Now, the people of China and Tibet are suffering at the hands of a brutal, heartless regime. They also cannot speak openly without fear of punishment. The Chinese Communist Party seeks to maintain complete control over the information available to the people of China and Tibet. The CCP blocks the Internet and controls the flow of information, distorting the truth and promoting distrust of America. VOA has been the voice of freedom and democracy in China for 70 years. It is highly respected, even venerated, in China. Human rights activists like Chinese Nobel Peace Prize laureate Liu Xiaobo and Chinese campaigner for women's rights Chen Guangcheng languish in prison and under house arrest. VOA broadcasts may be the only link with the free world for their families and supporters.

Millions of Cantonese speaking and Mandarin speaking Chinese people depend on VOA daily as their lifeline to the light of truth, freedom and hope. Millions of Tibetans also depend upon VOA's Tibetan radio broadcasts. Radio reaches hundreds of millions who are too poor to afford television or the Internet, especially in rural China and Tibet.

Further, VOA radio and satellite television serve to counter anti-American propaganda in the most powerful way, giving a positive view of America, which is so necessary during this time of increasing Chinese militarism and anti-American militancy. Thus, these broadcasts are important to our national security.

I know that my late husband, (b) (6), would have fought to save the VOA Russian, Tibetan, and Cantonese Broadcast Services -- to use all available means to deliver uncensored news, hope and encouragement to those seeking freedom. How could I do any less? Recent pro-democracy protests around the world and attempts to suppress them show that giving up radio and television broadcasting to rely exclusively on the Internet would be a mistake, because the Internet can so easily be monitored and blocked. I commend the CUSIB's efforts to urge the Broadcasting Board of Governors to maintain broadcasting ? especially Voice of America radio and television broadcasting ? into China and Tibet, and to restore it to Russia.

Sincerely,

(b) (6)

I think it is relevant to see the actual lawsuit or a summary of it. What does DOJ recommend to BBG? Also what steps are being taken to assure that the BBG contract does not suffer from the charges filed in federal court? Should we be doing business with this entity which has a major lawsuit against it for fraud by another federal agency? What is proper procedure here? What steps should the Board take to meet its fiduciary responsibility? If we continue with Gallup but Gallup is later held liable in the current charges against it, are we as Board members liable for not having suspended or canceled the contract? I am deeply concerned about this and feel we should disengage and seek research elsewhere.

Subject: Re: Draft July BBG Meetings Agenda

In looking over the agenda, I have several more questions and concerns.

First, can someone let at least the Governors know what the classified session on July 24 between 1045 and 1 PM will cover in terms of topics so we can be thinking about it. Simply saying it is classified does not give a clue as to what might be discussed. If the powers that be do not want this whole list to know, then perhaps send it to Governors only. I do not feel we should have a classified session unless there is some heads up to Governors as to what it is about.

Second, I do not understand how we can vote on the budget when strategy and budget committee has not met to go over the budget. No one has briefed me on its contents. When will we receive information on the budget? However, I thought it was and is the role of the Strategy and budget committee to go over the budget before the full Board considers it. Am I mistaken? It seems Strategy and Budget does not have a meeting planned. Going over the budget should take more than the 30 minutes allotted on July 24. Only having 30 minutes for this without a strategy and budget committee meeting makes the Board appear less than diligent in its discharge of its duties. As one Governor, I have not been briefed on the budget and feel allocating 30 minutes only is totally inadequate for a budget of over $700 million.

Third, I wish to register a protest that my request for discussion of the non disclosure protocol is placed virtually last on the agenda of the full Board behind congratulatory resolutions. I requested this in a timely manner. It seems to me that items requested by Governors should have a higher priority than what is being given to this issue which has triggered much public discussion and questions. The reality is that the Board has failed to conclude its full agenda at the last two meetings. Placing this item last if that happens at this meeting almost guarantees that the Board does not reach it and a thoughtful discussion does not occur on this significant issue.

Fourth, I feel entity heads and network heads should be allowed to attend all of the Governor's briefing not simply as directed.

Hopefully, someone can answer these concerns. (b) (6) Mr. Lobo, Gov, Lynton or others.

Victor Ashe

In a message dated 7/10/2012 1:07:48 P.M. Eastern Daylight Time, (b) (6) writes:

Dear Governors,

Attached please find a draft agenda for all BBG-related meetings to be held on Tuesday, July 24, in the BBG-IBB Conference Room of the Cohen Building. This draft agenda has been reviewed and approved by Presiding Governor Lynton.

A Governance Committee meeting is scheduled from 8:30 to 10:30 a.m. EDT. Committee members (Chair Mulhaupt, Ashe, McCue and Lynton) are confirmed for attendance, but we urge other Governors to participate as the Committee will, among other issues, examine the grantee consolidation plan and make a recommendation to the plenary Board.

As Jeff mentioned to you on June 28, the Board needs to decide on grantee consolidation – a decision with significant implications for the FY 2014 budget process. In addition, the Board must consider, provide guidance, and adopt the key elements of the Agency's FY 2014 budget proposal in a closed meeting because of the need to preserve the confidentiality of pre-decisional budget information per OMB guidelines. That said, in a separate email per usual procedures, we will circulate a notice to the Board with a request to close a portion of the Board meeting.

Given the importance of these issues, it is anticipated that the Governors' Briefing morning session (starting at 10:45 a.m. EDT) would be attended by Governors, key staff and network heads.

Please note that a BBG open meeting is planned in the afternoon from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. EDT. Following the open meeting, Governors' Briefing would continue, including a substantial discussion about the Agency's digital/on-line programs per Governor McCue's request.

We welcome your comments and requests for additional topics and/or other changes in the closed session (Governors' Briefing) or in the BBG open meeting.

Thank you.

How do you propose that the Board vote on a bylaw change for which it has not received a copy of 21 days in advance? I still have not seen the by law change proposal and I had asked you for it.

I had not seen the agenda until this evening when it was emailed out. The text of the by law change is simply not available even now. Current bylaws say 21 day notice...this means the full text...not just notice that the subject matter will be considered. Of course amendments are always in order both at the committee level and by the full Board. In other words the full Board cannot vote on this until April without violating the current bylaw requirement of 21 days notice.

Victor --

Thanks for your email.

As you point out, the issue will be dealt with in the Governance Committee at its March 7 meeting. It is on the agenda which was sent you yesterday. We are planning to propose a bylaw amendment to meet your request, as I explained to you by email last week.

A report of the Governance Committee is scheduled during both the Governors' briefing and the open meeting on March 8. The intention is for the Committee to report out on this issue and others considered the day before.

I am not clear why it would have made sense for me to propose a bylaw change to the plenary Board 21 days before it would have been considered by the Governance Committee when the change itself is on the Committee meeting agenda only 1 day before the plenary Board meeting. It is certainly possible that the Committee members will propose amendments to the draft.

In any case, my intention all along has been to comply with your requests, Victor. So, I really don't understand the nature of your objection or why you are raising it in this email. (I would have been happy to speak with you about it today when you were in the BBG offices. I was readily available to meet with you if you had requested.)

In any case, I will be available all day tomorrow to meet with you in person or by phone at (b) (6). I would be delighted to speak with you about this or any other topic. Is there a time that would be convenient for you to talk?

Dear (b) (6)

I had requested to you several weeks ago by law changes to be voted on at the March 8 meeting to deal with the presiding Governor issue. I do not see it on the proposed agenda. I have not received in a timely manner the proposed change either. The current bylaws clearly state in section 1.02 that a proposed by law change must go to full Board 21 days in advance of the meeting. While it is true the governance committee will consider this on March 7 at my request, you do not appear to have carried out my request sent to you over 10 days ago asking that this bylaw change appear on the March 8 BBG Board agenda and that the text of it be sent to all Governors in compliance with the time frame spelled out in the bylaws which is 21 days. This now means that the Board cannot consider any by law change until its April meeting. Even if the March 7 governance committee approves and recommends by law changes failure to comply with the 21 notice means this now goes to the April meeting.

Perhaps you can explain why this is as we had by e mail discussed this more than 21 days in advance of the March meeting and I had asked this proposed change be sent to all Governors in compliance with the bylaws.

Dear Governors,

Attached is a draft agenda for the March 2012 meetings. This draft agenda has been reviewed and approved by presiding Governor Lynton.

There will be two sessions of the Governance Committee meeting, March 7 and March 9, to be held at the Cohen Building.

All BBG-related meetings will be held on Thursday, March 8, at MBN Headquarters in Springfield, VA, from 9 am to 4:30 pm.

We welcome your comments and requests for additional topics and/or other changes in the closed session (Governors' Briefing) or in the open BBG meeting.

While some Governors might prefer to handle their own transportation, we would be happy to make arrangements for a group transfer from the Cohen Building to MBN as well as a return transfer. Please indicate your preference at your earliest convenience.

Thank you.

(b) (6) My request was to have a bylaw change drafted and presented March 8. That request was sent to you in ample time to comply with the bylaws.. I am a Board member. Whether you agree or disagree with my approach, I am entitled to have my request implemented when I asked for it. If there was a problem with doing that then I am entitled to have you as deputy legal counsel tell me why you are not doing it. You failed to honor my request and are only telling me your reason for not doing it since I have raised the issue after it is too late to do much about it as the 21 day notice requirement has passed.

As an attorney myself, I differ with your legal analysis that this can be done without a bylaw chnage. What is the basis for your rationale? On your theory the Board can do anything and ignore the bylaws. You give me the impression of making legal opinions based on your hope for certain outcomes and not on the law.

I find this whole process most disappointing.

Victor – Thanks for your follow-up. A by-law change is not required in order to create the presiding Governor's authorities. This can be done by Board decision. So, if we follow the Board's precedent, the Board would consider and adopt the recommendation of the Governance Committee about the authorities and roles of the Presiding Governor -- including the text of a proposed bylaw change -- at the March 8 meeting. The Board decision would go into effect immediately and could then be reflected subsequently in a formal bylaw change as a housekeeping matter. Thanks. (b) (6)

How do you propose that the Board vote on a bylaw change for which it has not received a copy of 21 days in advance? I still have not seen the by law change proposal and I had asked you for it.

I had not seen the agenda until this evening when it was emailed out. The text of the by law change is simply not available even now. Current bylaws say 21 day notice...this means the full text...not just notice that the subject matter will be considered. Of course amendments are always in order both at the committee level and by the full Board. In other words the full Board cannot vote on this until April without violating the current bylaw requirement of 21 days notice.

Victor --

Thanks for your email.

As you point out, the issue will be dealt with in the Governance Committee at its March 7 meeting. It is on the agenda which was sent you yesterday. We are planning to propose a bylaw amendment to meet your request, as I explained to you by email last week.

A report of the Governance Committee is scheduled during both the Governors' briefing and the open meeting on March 8. The intention is for the Committee to report out on this issue and others considered the day before.

I am not clear why it would have made sense for me to propose a bylaw change to the plenary Board 21 days before it would have been considered by the Governance Committee when the change itself is on the Committee meeting agenda only 1 day before the plenary Board meeting. It is certainly possible that the Committee members will propose amendments to the draft.

In any case, my intention all along has been to comply with your requests, Victor. So, I really don't understand the nature of your objection or why you are raising it in this email. (I would have been happy to speak with you about it today when you were in the BBG offices. I was readily available to meet with you if you had requested.)

I prepared an initial draft of the report which was circulated for comments to IBB staff who attended the meeting. You may recall that, after the discussion of each agenda item at the meeting, I raised my hand and summarized what I understood to be the recommendations of the Committee. I then prepared the draft based on the concurrence of the Governors and circulated it for comment to the other IBB staff members who attended the meeting.

With respect to China, the agreement was to create a working group to develop a "holistic plan" for broadcasting to China (including Tibet and Cantonese), which is reflected in the draft report.

This does not foreclose any outcome, including the possibility of restoring funding, once the requested plan is reviewed by the Committee and the Board. If you wish, we can note your view that China funding should be fully restored.

Thanks. (b) (6)

well, let the record reflect that Enders and I have very different memories of the same meeting which we both attended. So the Board will have to decide which way the Board wishes to go.

failure to restore Tibetan language and the China cuts will only result in Congress doing it for us. I prefer we do it but in either case it will happen as congress will override any failure of the Board to restore.

I beg to differ. This is exactly the meeting I co-chaired. We did not vote to restore all funding to China/Tibet. Rather, we instructed the subcommittee we formed at the time (Sherman, (b) (6), with (b) (6) added later) to provide a draft plan for a holistic approach to China/Tibet and to proceed as if we had made no cuts. The purpose of this approach was to give this group free rein to come up with the best possible solution. If their recommendation appeals to the entire board, and if it includes restoring cuts that have already been voted by the board, then by a favorable vote of the entire board those cuts may be restored. The S&B committee has no such power on its own. We only recommend to the whole board.

In all respects, including noting Victor's opinion on Laos broadcast issues, this is an excellent summary of what actually took place at the meeting, exactly, as far as I can tell, as (b) [redacted] read our recommendations back to us after each issue was discussed. My compliments to whomever compiled the report.

I was also clear in my view that we should have more than one recommendation on China from this committee...we needed several options. I am firmly convinced that full restoration is needed and is what Congress wants. We have engaged in enough non productive battles with Congress. Furthermore given what is occurring in Tibet we cannot and should not be cutting back.

Enders and I differ on the writing of the report as we have very different recollections on what transpired.

Here is an employee issue from this week where (b) (6) president of the AFGE union voices really strong views on how (b) (6) and HR handled this issue. I am not taking sides on the issue but I do feel it raises significant questions in light of our March 9 governance committee meeting and the good will created there from just listening. (b) (6) and (b) (6) are clearly at odds here. It is not a good situation. BBG does not seem to work well with State here either.

As mayor of Knoxville, I tried to work with employees. I maintained strong communications with unions and individual employees. Dick Lobo has reached out to contractors. However, he learned in one meeting a contractor who had appeared before us was sent a termination notice shortly thereafter followed shortly thereafter by a new notice saying it was all a mistake. While he has NOT been fired there are those who wonder if this was just an error or intended to have a chilling impact by seeming to terminate but then not doing it. Someone seems to not have gotten the Board message that we want to work to solve these issues. These 'mistakes' cause us lasting damage. Under Dennis Mulhaupt's leadership the governance committee is listening. Lobo is holding more contractor meetings even at 0700. We must not allow other incidents to undercut top level actions.

It also bothers me that BBG does not have a new contract with AFGE. Why is this? What are the hurdles to overcome? If morale is to improve we must do better. I am told more meetings are not even scheduled. I worry that the second level folks in a few cases are not getting the message from Lobo and the Board as evidenced by this e mail and the contractor firing followed by rescinding the termination. There is suspicion that this is designed to create an impasse and send it to arbitration.

We have lots to discuss in Miami.

I have discussed it with (b) (6) because I didn't want to do it without her knowledge and permission. She has given her permission so we will do it.

(b) (6) description of our meeting with (b) (6) is accurate. One thing that shocked me (although I should be used to this by now) was her complete lack of concern or empathy for (b) (6) plight. I told her that the problem I had with this whole process was that this individual was told that her Visa had expired and she would have to leave the country by March 14th or face deportation and the possibility of never being able to enter the U.S. again. (b) asked her what would have happened if she had left the country by March 14th - what if the Agency decided that she should not have been fired. (b) (6) said that if she left there would be no reconsideration of her removal because the Agency would not agree to bring her back.

I told her that the process put her in a catch 22 then. She responded that she knew the conditions when she was hired - she knew what she was getting into. She then said that she was not a good employee anyway because they had Program Review go through her reports and she was mediocre at best. I then told her that Program

Review directly contradicted what her two former Service Chiefs and her direct supervisor stated - in writing no less. She dismissed what they said claiming that the first Service Chief (the one who hired her) was only there for a short time so her statement didn't count. The other one was acting only for a few months and she just completely discredited her direct supervisor. Keep in mind the Service Chief who wanted her out had only been in the position since this past November and had only just returned after leaving the Agency to work for some firm in Pakistan.

The whole thing stinks.

I cannot do the 0900 meeting I fear. I can do it at 330 PM or 4. If Bruce is not available for the contract in later afternoon, I can and will look at it myself and then talk to him later. Contract visit should not last one hour. Morale should be 30 mins or so...Can we work it out at 330 or 4?

Dear Governors and Secretary Sonenshine,

Since we have emailed you the letter from [REDACTED] (b) (6), she has informed us that 27 of her colleagues attached their signatures to her letter. We include their names here:

(b) (6) letter was signed by former RFE/RL staffers who share the author's opinions (27 signatures):
(b) (6)

(b) (6)

The next letter is from former Radio Liberty employee (b) (6).

I am exasperated and confused. I worked with RFE/RL Russian Service for 14 years, and witnessed such a notorious ending!

People, who gave years of hard work to popularize democracy and human rights activism, are caught unawares, and fired one by one in no time.

I remember guards at our beloved RFE/RL Moscow editorial office and frozen eyes of bureaucrats saying "Thank you, we no longer need your service. Here is your compensation, hope you are satisfied."

As time goes by I begin to more fully realize what happened. Seizure, devastation? What will happen to the Radio, what will happen to my colleagues? Will everyone have a knack to stay healthy after such a strike?

Why did RFE/RL top management decide that we can't and don't want to work in a new – multimedia – format?

Everyone knew about the switch to multimedia, and was getting prepared for it. Everyone dreamed of working with new equipment on an updated radio station.

Why were we fired? Still no answer.

Our RFE/RL Moscow bureau team consisted of professionals, who were invited to Radio Svoboda by different directors. Directors changed, and my colleagues carried on doing their job with great talent and honesty.

Many of them, due to their political beliefs and censorship in Russia, will not be able to find jobs in Russian media. Training for a new profession and the unemployment office are awaiting most of us.

Victor,

Good morning. BBG broadcasts to more than 100 countries, but we have never had the resources to survey all of those annually, or even biannually. Typically we do survey research in 50 or so countries a year.

For example, for the 22 countries of the Middle East served by Alhurra TV and Rado Sawa, we have surveyed 9-11 countries per year. For the 31 countries of Francophone Africa served by VOA French to Africa, we do just a few annually, again due to limited resources. The same holds true for our research in the many Spanish-speaking countries of Latin America.

On the other hand, for top-priority countries or territories such as China, Tibet, Russia, Pakistan, Iran, Afghanistan, et al, we have always tried to do annual work.

(b) (6), BBG's research manager who works for me, can send you the list of countries we surveyed last year and those we have identified to survey thus far this year under the new Gallup contract. Among the first Gallup projects were Tibet and Iran, and we should have the final results from both studies very soon. (Looking at these two specifically will also allow us to discuss with you and the Board how we approach difficult-to-research areas to procure nonetheless actionable data.)

The cost range for a nationally representative media survey across our universe of countries is $125,000-250,000. This is for a random sample of 2000 respondents (or much higher in larger countries like China, where national samples go as high as 8500 respondents) with a questionnaire that can run 45 minutes in length to obtain the diversity of data our language services require in terms of ownership/access to and actual use of TV, radio, Internet, mobile phones, and social media as well as preferences for media outlets and subject areas.

From the surveys, we derive most of our key performance data on audience reach, news reliability, audience understanding, etc., which we are required to report to OMB and Congress. The data also inform our strategy and budget formulation, drive the annual language service review, and help determine distribution/transmission decisions, etc.

This said, audience and media surveys are only part of the BBG's research program. Qualitative and evaluative research are the other, equally important, parts.

Qualitative research includes focus groups and in-depth interviews to probe specific issues of interest to the language services regarding their programs, to test program concepts and pilots, to explore audience perceptions of competing media outlets, etc.

Evaluative research involves listener and viewer panels, which have been done for every service for many years to gauge program quality on both substance and style, and custom-commissioned reviews of program content such as the evaluations the Board (Enders was the lead) asked be done of PNN.

All BBG research is archived in our offices and at the broadcast entities. You can see any of it whenever you wish. In fact, we'll also send you a complete set of studies for a single country so you can see the specific work products.

For years we routinely distributed all BBG research in summary form to the Board. But the sheer volume of the work proved overwhelming -- tallying up all quantitative (surveys), qualitative, and evaluative studies annually, the number of discrete projects with corresponding reports runs between 200-300.

I hope this answers your immediate questions. I appreciate your interest. The research program is an open book. We'll follow up as noted and will gladly walk you through any of the studies or reports, or any aspects of actual research methodologies or program administration that you'd care to explore.

Best, Bruce

It is my understanding that the Gallup contract provides for surveys in 100 countries as part of the research project. Is that number correct? How can I find out which nations those are? Does the type of survey done in each nation vary or the same in each? Does the contract do 100 countries annually? When those surveys are done who at BBG maintains them?

If I should be asking someone else about this please advise or share it with them?

I look forward to hearing from you about this. Feel free to call if this inquiry is too burdensome so we can discuss.

Then your office should explain all of this to (b) (6) who is seeking this information. The (b) (6) does NOT offer this explanation. This explanation gives BBG a somewhat more credible explanation but in the end I feel we have an obligation to let the public see how $50 million is being spent. I urge a second letter from (b) (6) to (b) (6) which contains basically the material you have sent me in two e mails. This would make it appear BBG actually cares and is taking the matter seriously. The first response strikes me as typical government jargon with no end in sight.

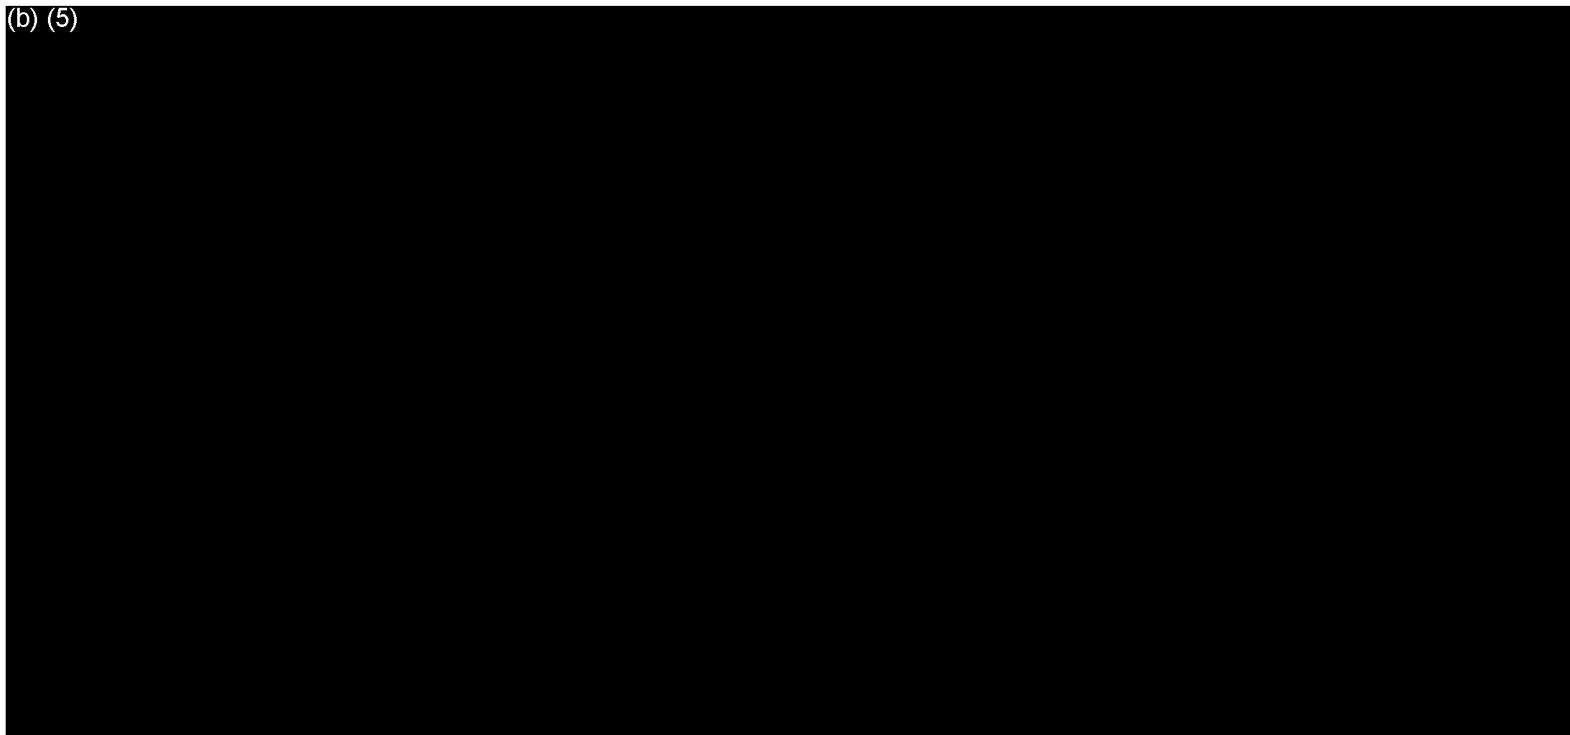

I also believe that I as a Governor am entitled to see the contract subject to the limitations of the law.

Dear (b) (6)

I want to go on record as one BBG member saying that the Gallup contract for almost $50 million should be released to inquiring persons asking under FOIA without delay or cost. In fact, it ought to be placed on the BBG web site. I should remind you that the President in his first year in office urged more openness. We should honor his executive order. When BBG thru your office responds to such a request outlining potential costs and seems less than anxious to comply, it places BBG in a bad light. I urge prompt release of this significant contract to those who wish to review it. BBG should not receive negative publicity over this issue which delay to release will cause. Why not just place it online and let people download it?
