SUBJECT INDEX OF CENTRAL RESEARCH SECTION MONOGRAPHS

Introduction

During the past eight and one-half years the Central Research Section has conducted research on and published one hundred and fifty-two monographs. All of these monographs either have been furnished previously to all field offices, or are readily available.

The subject matter of these research studies can be separated into four main classifications: (1) organizational and operational studies of the Communist Party, USA; (2) doctrinal studies necessary to the proper understanding of Communist activities in the United States and their relation to international Communism; (3) studies relating to the structure and operational techniques of Soviet and Soviet satellite intelligence organizations; and (4) studies on special investigative problems of the Bureau.

The specific purposes for which the studies were prepared are varied and the subjects expansive. There are necessarily many different approaches to the same general subjects resulting in exceedingly numerous references to the same individuals or organizations throughout

Sample index entry:

MASSES, Communist interpretation (77) 29-38, (111) 15-20

Explanation:

To identify the monographs for each of these references, it is necessary to consult both sections of the Bibliography. Upon reference to Section I, listing (77) is found to be the monograph entitled Communist Strategy and Tactics--Part II: Communist Strategy and Tactics of the Communist Party, USA. By reference to Section II, listing (111) is found to be the monograph entitled Communist Front Movement in the United States.

It is recommended that this index be filed adjacent to the two sections of the bibliography as they will be needed in conjunction with each other and should be available for ready reference.
