Re: OLA/12-00277 (F)

This is a final response to your Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request dated December 10, 2011, and received in this Office on December 12, 2011, in which you requested copies of (1) records provided to Representative Darrell Issa in response to his January 2011 letter asking for various information concerning the administration of the FOIA, and (2) any correspondence sent to Chairman Issa on the subject of this January 2011 letter or any correspondence sent on the subject of the FOIA. This response is made on behalf of the Office of Legislative Affairs.

In our letter to you dated January 10, 2012, we advised you record searches had been conducted in the electronic database of the Departmental Executive Secretariat, and that we had located records that may have been responsive to your request. Additionally, we advised you that we had to consult with other Department components on these located records before we could respond to you again. Those consultations are now complete. Please be advised that this Office located eleven documents that are responsive to your request. I have determined that two documents, totaling eight pages, are appropriate for release without excision, and copies are enclosed. Please be advised that the attachments noted in the June 3, 2010 response from the Office of Legislative Affairs to Representative Issa are all publicly available materials from the Office of Information Policy website. These materials can be accessed at www.justice.gov/oip. Also enclosed is one document, totaling 116 pages, which is appropriate for release with excisions made pursuant to Exemption 6 of the FOIA, 5 U.S.C. § 522(b)(6). Exemption 6 concerns information the release of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of third parties. For your information, the withheld information consists of names and other identifying information of individuals who submitted Privacy Act requests to the Office of Information Policy, and private individuals who are mentioned in the subjects of certain FOIA requests. Please be advised that entries in the log shaded in blue denote requests that were still pending or open at the Office of Information Policy as of forty-five days prior to January 25, 2011.

For your information, because the remaining eight responsive documents pertain to matters under the purview of other Department components, we have referred them to those entities for processing and direct response to you. Specifically, we have referred two documents to the Civil Rights Division and six documents to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. These components will respond directly to you regarding their determination on these documents. Should you wish to contact these components regarding their processing of these documents, you may do so using the following information:

Dear Congressmen McHenry and Issa:

This responds to your letter of March 25, 2010, regarding the Administration's policies with respect to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). As the lead federal agency responsible for implementation of the FOIA across the government, the Department of Justice is fully committed to encouraging compliance with the Act by all agencies and to fulfilling President Obama's goal of making this Administration the most open and transparent in history.

The Department's recent increased transparency efforts have their roots in two key documents: (1) President Obama's January 21, 2009 memorandum, and (2) Attorney General Holder's March 19, 2009 Guidelines. As your letter notes, on his first full day in office, President Obama issued a memorandum to the heads of all departments and agencies on the Freedom of Information Act. That document announced "a new era of open Government" in which "agencies should take affirmative steps to make information public" rather than waiting for the filing of FOIA requests. The President's memorandum also established a new approach to processing the requests that are made. Accordingly, we understand that when administering the FOIA, "all decisions" should be made "with a clear presumption" that, when in doubt, "openness prevails." The President directed the Attorney General to issue new FOIA guidelines to the heads of all executive departments and agencies reaffirming this commitment to transparency as well as to agency accountability.

The Honorable Patrick McHenry
The Honorable Darrell Issa

On March 19, 2009, Attorney General Holder issued guidelines (the "Guidelines") to federal agencies in response to the President's Memorandum. The Guidelines, issued during Sunshine Week, contain three primary messages. First, the Guidelines implement a new approach to disclosures of information. Second, they emphasize new management practices that will better enable federal agencies to make government accessible and open. Third, the Guidelines direct the implementation of new metrics by which FOIA performance can be measured.

Over the last several months, federal agencies have released numerous reports that capture the Administration's performance on these issues. In February, agencies completed their Annual FOIA Reports. These reports include data regarding agency FOIA performance over the fiscal year that began October 1, 2008 and ended September 30, 2009—reflecting approximately half a year of operation under the Attorney General's Guidelines. In March, agencies completed for the first time their Chief FOIA Officer Reports, which were required by the Attorney General's FOIA Guidelines and which contain qualitative information regarding a number of issues for which agencies had never been required to report previously. Each agency is required to post both its Annual FOIA Report and its Chief FOIA Officer Report on the agency website. The Department of Justice, in turn, facilitates access to these reports by posting them all in a central location on our website at http://www.justice.gov/oip/04_6.html and <http://www.justice.gov/oip/reports.html>, respectively.

Taken together, the information contained in these reports presents a picture that is very different than the one described in your letter—and much more similar to the picture reflected in the recent "Report Card" from a collection of good-government groups that gave the Administration an A grade for "establishing an unprecedented Executive Branch open government policy."

Your letter suggests, for example, that agencies have not substantially increased the release of information under the Attorney General's Guidelines. In fact, the Annual FOIA Report data for seventeen key agencies—the fifteen Cabinet agencies and the EPA and Federal Reserve—shows that the number of requests for which information was released increased over the past year, both in absolute terms and as a percentage of the requests processed. At the Department of Justice in particular, the total number of requests processed stayed approximately the same from FY 2008 to FY 2009. Yet the number of full releases rose 5%—meaning that 1,000 more requesters got everything they asked for compared to the year before. In addition, the number of partial releases increased 13% over the year before—another 1,000 requesters who got information that they sought. In other words, the Department released far more information than it had the year before.

The Honorable Patrick McHenry
Page Three

Your letter also suggests that across those seventeen key agencies, “the number of rejections rose by 154,189.” That is incorrect, and appears to stem from a misreading of the Gaston, North Carolina Gazette editorial that it cites. In fact, the number of FOIA requests that were denied in full did not rise from FY 2008 to FY 2009. Rather, the number of full denials fell by 5%. The number of full denials also fell as a percentage of the total requests processed. Again, transparency is increasing, not decreasing.

Your letter may have been referring to an overall increase in the number of times that agencies invoked exemptions when responding to FOIA requests. The invocation of exemptions, without any correlation to the amount of material withheld pursuant to the exemptions, is not an accurate metric of agency transparency. Invoking an exemption simply means an agency referred to an exemption; it does not reflect how much, or how little, material was withheld. For example, an agency might withhold a single paragraph by invoking three different exemptions, or could withhold a single hundred-page document under just one exemption. The number of times exemptions are used does not itself correlate with the amount of material that is withheld.

Moreover, an increase in the number of times exemptions are asserted is related to the number of times that an agency partially releases documents in response to a request. That is, generally speaking, agencies that saw significant increases in partial releases also saw significant increases in the number of exemptions they invoked; similarly, agencies that saw slight decreases in the number of partial releases generally also saw slight decreases in the number of exemptions they invoked. As agencies identified more and more documents that they could partially release rather than withholding them entirely—as the Attorney General’s Guidelines directed them to do—their invocations of exemptions to cover the exempt portions of those additional releases increased proportionally.

Your letter also suggests that the Administration contravened the President’s and Attorney General’s presumption of disclosure by invoking FOIA Exemption 5 more than it had been invoked the year before. In fact, the additional invocations of Exemption 5 are not evidence that the guidelines have not been applied. Rather, when looking at the statistics for twenty-six key agencies, the additional invocations are directly tied to increases in the number of requests processed by one cabinet Department. The Department of Homeland Security’s use of Exemption 5 increased as a result of its processing 53,033 more requests in FY 2009 than it did in FY 2008, a massive processing increase for which it is to be commended. If the statistics of the Department of Homeland Security are removed from the overall statistics of these key agencies, Exemption 5 was used nearly fifteen hundred times fewer than in the year before.

The Honorable Patrick McHenry
Page Four

All seventeen key agencies have made concrete changes that are producing improved results and that are institutionalizing the framework for long-term reform. From new policies that force agency personnel to take a second look before withholding information, to additional investments in the technology that enabled the government to cut its FOIA backlog by 56,320 requests—or 45%—from FY 2008, the President's and Attorney General's directives are taking hold and changing a culture.

The Department is always happy to provide information necessary to demonstrate the effectiveness of the President's and Attorney General's FOIA performance, but it must do so in a manner that avoids impairing that performance. The Department's forty components process approximately 60,000 requests each year that are critical to the openness and transparency that your letter identifies as priorities. The various components' current FOIA tracking systems are simply unable to provide the particular data that your letter requests without requiring months, if not years, of manual processing. Specifically, the Department's various FOIA tracking systems enable the Department to produce summary data regarding the total number of requests, grants and denials, invocations of exemptions, and other statistical data contained in the Department's Annual FOIA Report. However, an effort to produce the FOIA log data that you seek about each of the requests the Department receives in its forty components would require the Department to manually review tens of thousands of database entries, manually separate out FOIA requests from the other kinds of requests (such as Privacy Act requests) that are also tracked, and manually redact personally identifying information such as individual requester addresses that are also maintained in the databases. Similarly, providing particularized information about the reasons for each specific decision to withhold requested information would require the Department to review thousands of individual request files. Given these burdens, we are sure that you would agree that our shared goal of openness and transparency in government would be ill-served by requiring the Department to divert massive resources from its processing of FOIA requests—thereby greatly delaying the release of information to the public—in order to provide such request-by-request data.

While the Department's systems are not capable of providing the information you seek for each of its 60,000 requests, we are able to provide a number of materials that will assist you in your efforts to evaluate the Department's implementation of the President's and Attorney General's FOIA principles. With respect to Requests 1-3, the Department's 2009 Annual FOIA Report provides a vast array of aggregate data regarding the treatment of its 60,000 requests, including the reasons that requests were denied in part or in full. The Department's 2010 Chief FOIA Officer Report also provides information on a number of issues important to FOIA administration.

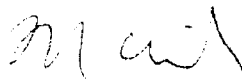

The Honorable Patrick McHenry
Page Five

The Department also recently announced, as part of the Administration's Open Government Initiative, that it intends to create a "FOIA Dashboard" to facilitate the process of tracking FOIA performance information across agencies and over time. For the first time, the Dashboard will present the agency FOIA reporting data graphically, where it can be easily tracked and compared from year to year and agency to agency. In addition to promoting transparency, this visual report card should also encourage the Department's FOIA offices—and FOIA offices across the government—to improve their compliance efforts and release as much information to the public under FOIA as possible.

With respect to Request 4, we are enclosing materials generated by our Office of Information Policy, which is responsible for carrying out the Department's mandate to encourage agency compliance with the FOIA and which manages the Department's own FOIA responsibilities. This material has been used at training sessions that the Office of Information Policy has conducted within the Department and for other agencies regarding the implementation of the Administration's FOIA policies. It also includes written guidance that our Office of Information Policy has issued regarding the FOIA since President Obama took office.

We hope that this information is helpful. Please do not hesitate to contact this office if you would like additional assistance.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Chairman:

This responds to your letters, dated January 25, 2011, to Carmen L. Mallon, Chief of Staff in the Department's Office of Information Policy (OIP), and representatives of other Department offices, boards, and divisions, which requested information about the Department's responses to requests under the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) over the past five years, including logs of all requests, communications with requesters, and court orders providing for the payment of attorneys' fees in FOIA litigation. OIP processes FOIA requests addressed to the Department's Senior Leadership Offices, including the Offices of the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, and the Associate Attorney General, as well as the Offices of Legislative Affairs, Public Affairs, Legal Policy, Intergovernmental and Public Liaison, and Information Policy.

We appreciate the willingness of Committee staff to work with us to narrow your requests to the extent that Department components do not track all of the requested information in any readily retrievable form. As we have advised staff informally, we have enclosed here in Excel format OIP's FOIA log for the time span of October 1, 2009 to January 25, 2011, which includes the information requested in items one and two of your letter. The pending FOIA requests that OIP received more than 45 days prior to the date of your letter, January 25, 2011, are set forth in shaded text in this log. Although OIP had a system for tracking requests prior to October 1, 2009, the type and quality of the data fields are limited and the system does not permit us to provide its stored information in Excel format as you requested.

The new OIP system, launched on October 1, 2009, tracks both FOIA requests and requests made by individuals for records about themselves, which are submitted pursuant to the Privacy Act. Since we are not equipped to remove electronically references to Privacy Act requests, they are included in the enclosed log, which we are providing in response to the first two items of your letter. While our public disclosure of information about Privacy Act requests might be prohibited by that statute, we are providing it in response to your request and pursuant to 5 U.S.C. § 552a(b)(9). We ask, however, that you not disclose this log outside of the

The Honorable Darrell E. Issa

Committee because we want to protect the individual privacy interests and we are concerned that public disclosure might discourage individuals from making requests pursuant to the Privacy Act and FOIA.

In accordance with our discussions with Committee staff and in response to the third item in your letter, we are providing at this time a description of OIP's system for tracking and storing correspondence in lieu of copies of all correspondence associated with requests more than 45 days old. OIP creates a hard-copy file for each FOIA request. In each file, OIP keeps the original request, all correspondence between OIP and the requester, a hard-copy log describing all activity regarding the request, and any documents processed in response to the request. Much of the correspondence involves routine communications, such as letters acknowledging receipt of a request; letters notifying requesters of fees; letters requesting more information in order to locate responsive records; letters notifying requesters of the status of their requests; and interim responses. OIP notes the details of phone calls with a requester in the hard-copy log, and prints any emails between OIP and the requester and places them in the file. OIP does not track or store these records in its electronic tracking system.

On behalf of all Department components, we appreciate your agreement to defer the requests for information about attorneys' fees, which are set forth in items four and five of your letters. As we have advised Committee staff, we enter into settlement agreements at times that include provisions for payment of attorneys' fees, but court orders requiring them are rare. One of the Department's annual reports to Congress about FOIA describes cases in litigation, including their dispositions, costs, and fees. These reports are available on our website, as we have advised Committee staff. We do not track information on settlements containing attorneys' fee provisions in any database.

We hope that this information is helpful. We will supplement this response on a rolling basis with the additional logs and other information provided by other Department components in response to your request. Please do not hesitate to contact this office if we can provide additional assistance regarding this or any other matter.

Sincerely,

Ronald Weich
Assistant Attorney General
