b. Identification of the matter being grieved in sufficient detail to enable reviewing officials to clearly identify it (i.e. law, rule or regulation violated);

c. Specification of personal relief requested.

548 RIGHTS OF THE GRIEVANT REPRESENTATIVE:

a. Freedom from restraint, interference, coercion, discrimination or reprisal.

b. A reasonable amount of official time to prepare and present the grievance if the representative is an employee and is in a duty status.

549 PROCEDURES

a. A grievance must be filed in accordance with these procedures. The parties are free to obtain guidance and assistance from the personnel office.

b. A grievance under this procedure is forever barred unless it is presented in writing to the appropriate official within 30 calendar days after the event or incident giving rise to the grievance.

c. In cases other than those involving a written reprimand or suspension for 14 days or less, before an employee files a grievance, the matter should be discussed with the supervisor or lowest level management official (Responsible Officer) with authority to resolve it. The employee initiates the grievance procedure by submitting a grievance in writing to the Responsible Officer (see 549e for appropriate contents of the grievance). The Responsible Officer must respond in writing within twenty working days of receiving it. This deadline may be extended by mutual agreement between the employee and the Responsible Officer. If the employee is not satisfied with the decision, he or she may proceed to the next step and the final grievance decision must be made at a level higher than the Responsible Officer (except when such action is taken by the Director of Broadcasting).

d. Within 15 days of receipt of the initial decision as discussed in "c" above, or within 30 days of receipt of a written determination of a suspension of 14 days or less or a written reprimand, a grievance may be presented in writing to the appropriate office head or the Director or designee. If Broadcasting considers the grievance non-grievable, it shall so declare in its written reply and state the reason(s) supporting this claim.

e. The grievance must state:

(1) a specific description of the act or incident, and a copy of any decisions (see "c" above) if applicable, which gave rise to the grievance;

(2) the identification of any law, regulation, or Broadcasting policy that the grievant believes has been violated, misapplied or misinterpreted;

(3) names of any witnesses who have knowledge of the relevant facts;

(4) any documentary evidence on which the grievance rests;

(5) if applicable, copies of a reprimand or proposed suspension by the Proposing Official and the final determination by the Deciding Official;

(6) the action requested (e.g. a reconsideration of the decision, a lesser penalty imposed, removal of inaccurate statements from a performance appraisal, etc.).

f. The official considering the grievance may designate a factfinder(s), if appropriate. The factfinder(s) may not be a person who was involved in the action being grieved and may not be directly subordinate organizationally to an official who was part of the decision-making process that resulted in the action being grieved.

g. Normally, the grievance will be reviewed by the official considering the grievance within 45 work days of receipt of it from the employee. However, this period may be extended if circumstances warrant it. If so, the employee shall be notified of the extension. The employee must be given a written decision. (The Director of the Office of Cuba Broadcasting will recommend a decision to the Director for Broadcasting.) The written decision will constitute a final decision by Broadcasting

h. All individuals joining a group grievance must identify themselves by signing the formal written grievance. All individuals in a group grievance are required to accept the decision reached through the Administrative Grievance System and are not entitled to re-initiate the complaint as an individual grievance.

i. Grievance Records - A grievance file will be maintained and controlled by the labor relations office ( B/PL) for all formal grievances.

Section 560

DISCIPLINARY AND ADVERSE ACTIONS

561.1 Purpose - The objective of disciplinary and adverse actions is to correct and improve improper employee behavior and conduct so as to promote the efficiency of the service. Major offenses may be cause for severe action, including removal, regardless of whether previous action has been taken against the offending employee.

561.2 References - Title 5 CFR, Part 752. For furloughs of 30 days or less, see MOA V-A 790; for furloughs of more than 30 days, see MOA V-A 770.

561.3 Covered Employees - This section applies to Civil Service non-bargaining unit employees covered by Title 5 CFR, Part 752. It does not apply to members of the Senior Executive Service or Foreign Service or those employees excluded under Title 5 CFR, Part 752.

Civil Service employees in exclusive bargaining units represented by labor organizations are covered by procedures found in the negotiated labor-management agreements between Broadcasting and those organizations.

561.4 Covered Actions - This section applies to (1) admonishments, (2) reprimands, and (3) actions taken under the provisions of Title 5 CFR, Part 752.

561.5 Definitions

a. Day - calendar day

b. Admonishment - An oral or written warning from a supervisor telling an employee that particular conduct or behavior is unacceptable and will not be tolerated. It often is the first step taken by supervisors in dealing with a conduct problem. An admonishment may be considered when assessing a penalty in any subsequent disciplinary action. It is not filed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder. Admonishments cannot be appealed or grieved.

c. Reprimand - A written disciplinary sanction from a supervisor telling an employee that particular conduct or behavior is unacceptable and will not be tolerated. A copy is placed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder for a specified period of 1 to 3 years. The reprimand may be considered when assessing a penalty in any subsequent disciplinary action.

d. Suspension - A suspension is the placement of an employee, for disciplinary reasons, in a temporary status without duties and pay. Suspensions are taken for such cause as will promote the efficiency of the service. A suspension is recorded on an SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, which is permanently filed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder, and may be considered when assessing a penalty in any subsequent disciplinary action. A suspension may be for a definite stated period or for an indefinite period pending the conclusion of an investigation, inquiry or further action.

e. Reduction in Grade - A reduction in grade is the placement of an employee in a grade lower than her or his current grade for disciplinary reasons for such cause as will promote the efficiency of the service. A reduction in grade is recorded on an SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, which is permanently filed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder and may be considered when assessing a penalty in any subsequent disciplinary action.

f. Removal from the Federal Service - Removal is effected for disciplinary reasons for such cause as will promote the efficiency of the service when a lesser penalty is unlikely to be effective in correcting an employee's conduct. A removal is recorded on an SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, which is permanently filed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder and may be considered when assessing a penalty in any subsequent disciplinary action.

g. Non-Bargaining Unit Employee - An employee not in a recognized bargaining unit under the provisions of Title 5 USC, Chapter 71.

561.6 Proceeding with an Action

a. In each case, the circumstances will be considered to determine the most appropriate action. Depending on the seriousness of the offense and other factors, an employee may be suspended or removed without receiving a written reprimand or other lesser action. In all cases, supervisors and managers must consult with the Office of Personnel before initiating a disciplinary action to ensure compliance with law and regulation and consistency of application.

Before proceeding with an action, the supervisor or other appropriate management official may wish to discuss with the employee the specific circumstances or conduct which may warrant the action to elicit relevant facts. During such a discussion, the employee may present his/her side of the case including any extenuating circumstances.

b. Admonishment or Reprimand - The employee's supervisor or other appropriate management official will issue (if written) or present (if an oral admonishment) the admonishment or reprimand to the employee. An admonishment or reprimand will contain the specific conduct or behavior for which correction or improvement is sought.

c. Suspension, Reduction in Grade or Pay, or Removal

(1) Requirements

Step1 - The proposing official will provide a written notice of the proposed action to the employee. The notice shall state the basis for the proposed action with sufficient details so as to enable the employee to prepare a response. Upon the employee's request, the proposing official will provide one copy of the supporting documentation.

NOTE: A 30-day advance notice is required by statute before a proposed action to remove, reduce in grade or pay, or suspend for more than 14 days may be effected.

Normally, an employee will remain in a pay and duty in his or her regular assignment during the proposal period. However, in those circumstances where this status may pose a threat to persons or property or otherwise jeopardize Government interests, the proposing official may elect one or a combination of the alternatives listed below.

(a) Assigning the employee to other duties; or

(b) Allowing the employee to take leave, or carrying him/her in an absence without leave status if the employee has absented himself or herself from the work site without approved leave; or

(c) Curtailing the notice period under the provisions of Title 5 USC 7513(b) when, even in the absence of judicial action, there is reasonable cause to believe that the employee has committed a crime for which a sentence of imprisonment may be imposed; or

(d) Placing the employee in a paid, non-duty status for such time as is necessary to effect the action with the approval of the Office of Personnel.

Step 2 - Upon receipt of the official notice of proposed action, the employee will have ten days to respond to the deciding official. The response may be oral or written, or both. If the employee is in duty status, a reasonable amount of official time will be allowed, usually up to eight (8) hours, to prepare the oral and/or written response. The proposing official may grant additional time to prepare based on demonstrated need. The employee's response may include any statement or material the employee believes is relevant to defending against the proposed disciplinary action. The employee has the right to be represented by an attorney or other appropriate representative during these proceedings.

Step 3 - The deciding official will consider the employee's response and provide a written determination to the employee which includes specific reasons for the decision (including mitigating and/or aggravating factors), the disciplinary action to be taken, the effective date of the action, and the grievance and appeal rights contained in this section. If the deciding official determines that further investigation is necessary or there are other factors that will unreasonably delay the decision, the employee will be notified.

(2) Proposing and Deciding Officials

(a) Deciding Official - The Deciding Official for suspensions, reductions in pay or grade, and removals is the Director of Personnel or designee.

(b) Proposing Officials - A supervisor or manager one level below the deciding official or another official designated by the Director of Personnel may propose an action under this section.

561.7 Grievances/Appeals

a. Written Reprimand or Suspension of 14 Days or Less - An employee may grieve a written reprimand or a suspension of 14 days or less under the provisions of MOA V-A 540.

b. Suspension of More than 14 Days, Reduction in Grade or Pay, and Removal - The employee may appeal the matter to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) under MSPB rules.

SECTION 570

INCENTIVE AWARDS PROGRAM

571.1 Incentive Awards Program

a. The components of the Incentive Awards Program are described below: Superior Accomplishment Cash Awards (paragraph 573); Honor Awards (paragraph 574); Career Service Awards (paragraph 575); Employee Suggestion Program (paragraph 576); and Presidential Awards (paragraph 577).

b. This program is separate from the various cash performance award programs tied to the annual performance appraisal process and described elsewhere in MOA V-A: PMS (GS, GG, and Wage) in MOA V-A-260; and SES in MOA V-A-1130. For Quality Step Increases see MOA V-A-239.

c. This section applies to all employees. People who work under non-personal services contracts (i.e. purchase order vendors) are not employees of the Federal Government.

571.2 Purpose - Incentive awards are designed to improve Government efficiency, economy and effectiveness by motivating employees to increase productivity and creativity by rewarding their efforts which benefit the Government.

571.3 Policy

a. Broadcasting will make maximum use of its authorities under Chapter 45 of title 5, United States Code to:

(1) Establish and administer incentive awards programs which best support and enhance Broadcasting and national goals, and meet employee recognition needs; and

(2) Provide for adequate funds to provide for payment of awards, and staffing and support services to ensure prompt action on awards recommendations, and effective promotion and publicity of the program.

571.4 Definitions

a. Award or Superior accomplishment award means a monetary or non-monetary award for a contribution resulting in tangible benefits or savings and/or intangible benefits to the Government.

b. Contribution means an accomplishment achieved through an individual or group effort in the form of a suggestion, an invention or a special act or service in the public interest connected with or related to official employment, which contributes to the efficiency, economy, or other improvement of Government operations, or achieves a significant reduction in paperwork.

c. Intangible benefits means benefits to the Government which cannot be measured in terms of dollar savings.

d. Non-monetary award means a medal, certificate, plaque, citation, badge, or other similar item that has an award or honor connotation.

e. Special act or service means a contribution or accomplishment in the public interest which is:

(1) A nonrecurring contribution either within or outside of job responsibilities;

(2) A scientific achievement; or

(3) An act of heroism.

f. Tangible benefits means benefits or savings to the Government that can be measured in terms of dollars.

g. Suggestion or Invention means a contribution that promotes the efficiency, economy or other improvement of Government operations or achieves a significant reduction in paper work. Such suggestions include: ideas that save money, staff hours, material, supplies, and equipment; ideas that produce a useful change in an operating policy or procedure; ideas that bring about improvement in the quality of a product, activity, or program; and ideas that improve service to the public. In most cases, suggestions that relate directly to improvement in services and benefits provided to employees, to working conditions, maintenance, routine safety practices, and to other aspects of the work environment are not eligible for cash awards, but may be recognized through letters of commendation.

h. Group Award - An award granted to two or more persons for their share in the same contribution.

i. Non-Government award - Awards presented to Government employees by non-Government organizations, such as GEICO Public Service award, Arthur S. Flemming award, etc.

572 COMMITTEES

572.1 Incentive Awards Committees

a. The Director of Broadcasting appoints the Incentive Awards Committee. Additional committees are established when needed for special awards.

b. The Chairperson and members will serve on the Committee for a period of 18 months and may be reappointed as needed. The term of office will commence on the date of appointment.

572.2 Executive Secretary - The Director, Office of Personnel, appoints an Executive Secretary who:

a. attends committee meetings but does not vote;

b. plans, publicizes, and makes recommendations for improvements in the Awards Program;

c. receives nominations for all incentive awards;

d. after approval, authorizes payment for cash awards other than performance awards covered under MOA V-A-260 and -280;

e. checks with heads of Offices and Services, or designees, to make sure that awards are presented promptly and with appropriate ceremony and publicity;

f. maintains records and prepares reports for the Office of Personnel Management.

572.3 Incentive Awards Committee Authorities and Responsibilities - The Incentive Awards Committee is delegated the following authorities and responsibilities:

- a. to review, analyze, and evaluate the effectiveness of the Awards Program.
- b. to review and recommend to the Director, honor awards and/or cash awards of more than $1,000, but not more than $10,000. For cash awards in excess of $10,000, the Committee submits its recommendations (to OPM) through the Director;
- c. to recommend disapproval, request further justification or recommend another more appropriate type of recognition for any incentive award nomination received by the Committee.

572.4 Responsibilities of Heads of Services and Offices

a. The heads of Offices and Services, or designees, are responsible for publicizing, promoting, and administering the Awards Program in their respective areas. They should encourage employees to strive for awards and to nominate others for awards. They must endorse nominations before forwarding them to the Executive Secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee. They are also responsible for arranging suitable and prompt ceremonies for presenting the awards, and for seeing that recognition is given in TUNE IN and other media, if appropriate.

b. Heads of Offices and Services, or designees, will establish administrative facilities to carry out the following responsibilities:

- (1) to approve or disapprove recommendations for cash awards of $1,000 or less;
- (2) to send a copy of the approved nomination for a cash award of $1,000 or less to the Executive Secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee for authorization of payment. Upon receipt of cash award, to arrange for presentation of a cash award certificate and check to the employee.

573 SUPERIOR ACCOMPLISHMENT CASH AWARDS

573.1 General

a. The Superior Accomplishment Cash Awards program provides monetary awards to employees in recognition of one-time contributions resulting in tangible benefits or savings and/or intangible benefits to the Government. Such contributions include one-time special acts, service, or achievement of non-recurring contributions whether within or outside of job responsibilities, scientific achievement, or acts of heroism.

b. Superior accomplishment awards programs shall be for:

- (1) the granting of recognition commensurate with the value of the contribution to the Government; and

(2) obtaining maximum benefits for the Government, whenever possible, by considering the applicability of employee contributions throughout Government.

c. An award under this section may be granted alone or in addition to a performance award granted under MOAV-A-260 and -280 or a quality step increase granted under MOA V-A-239.

d. An award under this section shall not be used as a substitute for other personnel actions, or as a substitute for pay or for any other form of monetary recognition, e.g., SES Presidential Rank awards, other Presidential awards, or cash performance awards.

e. To be awarded under this section, a contribution must:

(1) have been made while the contributor was a Government employee;

(2) be supported by a written justification separate from the employee's rating of record; and

(3) be approved at a management level higher than that of the individual who recommended use of the suggestion or invention, or recommended the award.

f. Acceptance of a monetary award constitutes an agreement that the use by the Government of the idea, method, or device for which the award is paid does not form the basis of a further claim against the Government.

g. Due weight shall be given to an award under this section when rating and ranking an employee for promotion.

h. Superior accomplishment awards shall not be mandatory.

573.2 Eligibility - This section applies to all employees. NOT those persons under a non-personal services contract (i.e. purchase order vendors).

573.3 Procedures for Recommending and Approving Awards

a. Consistent with paragraphs 573.1 and 573.2 above, a supervisor may nominate or review employee nominations for an award for an employee or group of employees. Such nominations must be by memorandum. (Scales for measuring tangible and intangible benefits in determining the amount of cash awards are provided in Exhibit 570B.)

b. The next higher-level supervisor must review all nominations to determine whether they are consistent with the above criteria.

c. Awards of up to $1,000 may be approved by the Director, Office Director or designee.

d. If the award is more than $1,000, the nomination must be forwarded to the Executive Secretary of the awards committee. The awards committee will review nominations and forward its recommendations for approval by the Director for Broadcasting or his/her designee.

e. Award nominations in excess of $10,000 require that the Director certify to OPM that the suggestion, invention, superior accomplishment or other meritorious efforts are highly exceptional and unusually outstanding. In such instances, a cash award in excess of $10,000, but no higher than $25,000, may be awarded to the employee with the approval of OPM. Awards between $25,000 to $35,000 must be approved by the President following Broadcasting and OPM review and approval (see paragraph 577.)

573.4 Payment

a. An award under this section is in addition to regular pay and does not increase an employee's base pay. The award is subject to the withholding of income taxes.

b. When an award is approved for an employee of another agency, the benefiting agency shall make arrangements to transfer funds to the employing agency to cover the award. If the administrative costs of transferring funds would exceed the amount of the award, the employing agency shall absorb the award costs and pay the award.

c. When an award is approved for a member of the armed forces for a suggestion, invention, or scientific achievement, arrangements shall be made to transfer funds to the agency having jurisdiction over the member in accordance with Executive Order 11438, "Prescribing Procedures Governing Interdepartmental Cash Awards to the Members of the Armed Forces."

573.5 Funding - Superior accomplishment awards shall be funded by money budgeted for the Incentive Awards Program based on an assessment of the effectiveness of various awards in achieving their stated objectives, award amounts used in previous years, and estimates of appropriate increases or decreases for the current year, subject to overall budget constraints.

574 HONOR AWARDS UNDER THE INCENTIVE AWARDS PROGRAM

Honor awards are a means of recognizing achievement and are designed to bestow singular honor and official recognition and to act as an incentive to further accomplishments. Employees may be nominated individually or in group

574.2 Broadcasting Honor Awards

a. Distinguished Honor Award is the highest recognition for an individual. All employees are eligible and selection is based upon outstanding or exceptional contribution to the accomplishment of Broadcasting's mission, or to public service of national or international significance. The award consists of a certificate, a gold medal, a rosette, and either a tie bar or stick pin. The level of achievement for this award is comparable to one of the following:

(1) exceptionally outstanding service to Broadcasting or the Government resulting in achievements of marked national or international significance;

(2) exceptionally outstanding service and/or leadership in the administration of one or more Broadcasting program which results in highly successful accomplishment of mission, or in a major attainment of objectives or specific accomplishment to meet unique or emergency situations;

(3) outstanding accomplishments over a prolonged period that involve the exercise of authority or judgment in the public interest.

Contract employees, members of the armed services and commissioned officers of the Public Health Service are not eligible.

b. Superior Honor Award is the second highest honor award given to individuals or to groups of employees. All employees are eligible. It recognizes significant contributions of unusual value and approaches the high standards required for the Distinguished Honor Award. When individually awarded, it consists of a certificate, a silver medal, a rosette and either a tie bar or stick pin. When awarded to a group, it consists of a certificate for each individual identified in the group. The following are examples:

(1) outstanding service to the Government; service of significance where the interests of the United States are involved or which has aided in furthering Broadcasting objectives;

(2) outstanding results in increased productivity, increased efficiency, and economy of operations resulting in a substantial contribution to the accomplishment of Broadcasting's mission;

(3) outstanding leadership and/or professional competence leading to the successful attainment of significant Broadcasting goals;

(4) a superior creative service or contribution such as the development of a new and highly effective product, program, or method for accomplishment of a Broadcasting objective;

(5) achievements in the identification, correction, and control of waste, fraud, and mismanagement.

Contract employees, members of the armed services, and commissioned officers of the Public Health Service are not eligible.

c. Meritorious Honor Award is presented to individuals or groups in recognition of deserving accomplishments in the discharge of assigned responsibilities that significantly exceed normal requirements. All employees are eligible. While the contributions are more limited in scope than those required for the higher awards, they are nevertheless significant in nature. The award to an individual consists of a certificate, a bronze medal, a rosette, and either a tie bar or stick pin.

For a group the award consists of a certificate for each individual identified in the group. The following are examples:

(1) outstanding service in the conduct or improvement of Broadcasting's information program;

(2) accomplishment of assigned responsibilities in an exemplary manner beyond the call of duty, and establishment of a record of achievement;

(3) demonstration of unusual initiative in contributing to the efficiency or improved management of Broadcasting programs or operations, including outstanding executive or technical ability;

(4) extraordinary devotion to duty under adverse conditions;

(5) achievements in the identification, correction, and control of waste, fraud, and mismanagement.

Contract employees, members of the armed services, and commissioned officers of the Public Health Service are not eligible.

d. AWARD FOR VALOR is presented to employees who have demonstrated outstanding performance under unusually difficult or dangerous circumstances requiring exceptional personal bravery and perseverance to complete an assignment. It may be offered for sustained superior performance while under threat of physical attack or harassment, or for an individual act of courage or exceptional performance at risk of personal safety. The award consists of a gold medal, a lapel emblem, and a certificate.

e. AWARD FOR HEROISM is presented to employees who, without concern for personal safety, exhibit unusual heroism in an emergency, whether or not in connection with performance of assigned duties, which reflect credit on the Federal Service. This award consists of a silver medal, a lapel emblem and a certificate.

f. The Director's Award for Outstanding Creativity recognizes exceptional field program, film or TV production, radio script or broadcast, exhibit, design layout, publication, story series, cultural activity, or other evidence of program creativity. The award is a plaque and a certificate. All employees are eligible.

g. Outstanding Secretary Award is offered annually and recognizes the high standards of performance that characterize the service of secretaries.. Any secretary is eligible for the award. This award consists of a certificate and cash (with the dollar amount to be determined annually). The award will be granted to the nominee whose overall performance most fully demonstrates qualities, competencies, and accomplishments exemplifying secretarial excellence. Key factors will include professional skills, managerial and organizational achievement, dedication to duty , interpersonal relations, contributions to the objectives of the office or service where serving.

h. Special Commendation recognizes special contributions which directly benefit Broadcasting or unusual dedication under adverse circumstances. Award consists of an honor certificate. All employees are eligible.

i. Career Achievement Award recognizes retiring career employees of any rank or pay plan who, over a period of 20 years or more, have performed with unusual dedication and distinction. The award consists of a certificate signed by the Director. Any employee may be eligible.

j. Expressions of Appreciation recognize people other than Broadcasting employees who have contributed in an outstanding manner to Broadcasting objectives.

k. Certificate of Appreciation is designed for awards to individuals or groups who have made valuable contributions to Broadcasting but which do not meet the specific criteria for other awards. Nominations are to be submitted to the Executive Secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee by memorandum. Each nomination must be accompanied with a citation, and must bear the endorsement signature of the nominee's supervisor and of the head of the Office or Service in which the nominee works.

Each certificate will carry the signature of the Director. The nomination will be processed by the Executive Secretary and the completed certificate forwarded to the appropriate office for presentation.

574.3 Nomination Procedures

a. Any employee may nominate any other employee or group of employees for an honor award consistent with the criteria cited.

b. Nominations may be submitted at any time except for those annual awards which are announced.

c. Nominations for group awards are confined to the smallest practical unit properly identified with the accomplishment. This need not be an officially recognized organizational element, but can be any group of two or more employees who contributed to the same special act or service. A list of the official names, pay plans and grades of all employees to be included in the group must accompany the nomination.

d. Nominations are submitted to the Executive Secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee by memorandum in accordance with Exhibit 570A. Each nomination must bear the endorsement signature of the nominee's supervisor and of the head of the Office or Service in which the nominee works.

e. When sufficient nominations have been received, the Incentive Awards Committee meets and makes recommendations to the Director, for all honor and cash awards.

f. Awards that can be approved by the heads of the, Offices or Services (up to $1,000) should be forwarded to the Executive Secretary within 30 days of receipt for processing.

g. Award nominations contain privileged information and should be made available only to those involved in the decision process or who otherwise have a need to know. Nominees should not be informed of recommendations until acted upon by the approval authority h.. After the Director has approved an award, these awards will be presented promptly by the heads of Offices or Services. Appropriate publicity will be given the winners. A copy of the award nomination and certificate will be placed in the recipients' Official Personnel Folder for permanent retention and Employee Performance File for a period not to exceed three years.

574.4 Safe Driving Awards - All full-time chauffeurs or motor vehicle drivers are eligible for this award which is given to full-time employees, a major portion of whose duties consist of driving motor vehicles.

a. The award is given as a recognition of outstanding driving care and ability. Employees eligible for consideration are those who have driven one or more years without being involved in an accident that involves personal or property damages resulting from their own carelessness or negligence, and whose performances are otherwise rated as fully successful or equivalent on this performance requirement, as indicated by their annual performance appraisal and their performance since submission of the last performance appraisal.

b. Cash awards will be given for safe driving and high sustained performance as follows:

Years of Safe Driving	Amount of Award
2	75.00
5 or more	150.00

The employee will continue to receive the maximum monetary award each year after five consecutive years so long as he or she continues to meet all eligibility requirements and is recommended for the award each year. The selection criteria are:

- (1) a candidate must be a full-time employee;
- (2) the major portion of a candidate's duties must consist of driving a motor vehicle;
- (3) a candidate must also have otherwise performed at the Fully Successful Level or equivalent as indicated by his or her annual performance appraisal and his or her performance continues at the level or above since submission of the last performance appraisal;
- (4) if an employee has a preventable accident, he or she must begin anew to accumulate his or her years of safe driving.

The awards are made only for the immediate preceding fiscal year. It is incumbent upon supervisors to make their recommendations as soon as possible, but not later than two months after the end of the fiscal year. There must be an interval of a fiscal year before an employee may be recommended for another award of this type.

574.5 Other Awards for Which Employees are Eligible - The Executive Secretary may announce the following awards and describe the format for their submission as they are announced: The President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service, Presidential commendations, Presidential Management Improvement Award, Outstanding Handicapped Federal Employee of the Year, and other awards as appropriate.

574.6 Annual Broadcasting Awards

a. Annual Awards - These awards are Broadcasting's highest recognition of individuals. Nominations will be reviewed by Element Heads and the Awards Committee. The final selection will be made by the Director. The awards are presented annually as appropriate, and consist of an honor certificate and $1,500 cash presented at the annual awards ceremony. Nominations for all Annual Awards must be submitted to the Incentive Awards Coordinator no later than November 15 of each year.

(1) Outstanding Employee Award - This award will be presented to a Broadcasting employee for extraordinary effort and dedication to the goals of the organization. Selection will be based on outstanding commitment and demonstrated accomplishment in overcoming hardships to make a personal contribution to the goals of Broadcasting. The winner of this award will be selected from all other annual award winners outlined below. (See Exhibit 570C for format.)

(2) Voice of America News and English Broadcasting Award - This award will be presented to the employee most responsible for significant programming within News and English Broadcasts. Selection will be based on the conception and development of outstanding programming or news coverage. The programming submitted must demonstrate both relevance to the target audience and adherence to the VOA charter. It should be so extraordinary as to serve as a model for all. All News and English Broadcasts employees are eligible for this award. (See Exhibit 570C for format.)

(3) Voice of America Language Broadcasting Award - This award will be presented to the employee most responsible for significant programming within the language services. Selection will be based on the conception and development of outstanding programming. The programming submitted must demonstrate both relevance to the target audience and adherence to the VOA charter. It should be so extraordinary as to serve as a model for all. All Voice of America Language Broadcasts employees are eligible for this award. (See Exhibit 570C for format.)

(4) Voice of America Technical Excellence Award- This award will be presented to a Broadcast Operations employee who has demonstrated a high degree of initiative and creative ingenuity to meet program objectives. Selection will be based on outstanding technical skills and contributions toward improving the overall VOA program quality. All Broadcast Operations employees are eligible for this award. (See Exhibit 570C for format.)

(5) Engineering Award - This award will be presented to the employee whose superlative achievements best personify the objectives and accomplishments of the Office of Engineering and Technical Services. Selection will be based on concrete accomplishments in engineering-related activities, resolution of specific engineering problems, and display of engineering skill of the highest order. All Office of Engineering and Technical Services employees are eligible for this award. (See Exhibit 570C for format.)

(6) Foreign Service National Employee Award - This award will be presented to a Broadcasting Foreign Service National Employee. Selection will be based on performance of assigned duties in a manner clearly instrumental in the achievement of major mission goals and objectives; special effectiveness in bridging national differences between the U. S. and the host country; and/or personal or professional courage in difficult, demanding or hardship situations. All Broadcasting Foreign Service National Employees are eligible. (See Exhibit 570-C for format).

(7) Transmitting Station Award - This award will be presented to a domestic or overseas transmitting station. Selection will be based on ability to keep the station operating despite problems, creativity in facility improvements, safety, local community involvement, and cost consciousness. All transmitting stations are eligible for this award. Because the award is granted to a Station and not to an individual, it is honorary in nature. The award consists of an honor certificate. (See Exhibit 570C for format.)

(8) Resource Management Award - This award will be presented to the employee most responsible for outstanding contributions to improvements in the management of Broadcasting administrative and personnel resources. Selection will be based on initiative and significant accomplishments in essential management support services, efficient resolution of specific problems, and display of professional management support skills of the highest order. All those serving in the following management support functions are eligible: employees in the Office of Personnel and Administration, and administrative personnel in domestic elements and at overseas posts.

(9) The OCB Outstanding Employee of the Year Award - This award will be presented to an OCB employee for extraordinary effort and dedication to the goals of the organization. Selection will be based on outstanding commitment and demonstrated accomplishment in overcoming hardships to make a personal contribution to the goals of Broadcasting. All OCB employees are eligible for this award.

(10) The Voice of America Outstanding Employee of the Year Award - This award will be presented to a VOA employee for extraordinary effort and dedication to the goals of the organization. Selection will be based on outstanding commitment and demonstrated accomplishment in overcoming hardships to make a personal contribution to the goals of the Voice of America. All VOA employees are eligible for this award.

(11) The Television and Film Service Outstanding Employee of the Year Award - This award will be presented to a TV employee for extraordinary effort and dedication to the goals of the organization. Selection will be based on outstanding commitment and demonstrated accomplishment in overcoming hardships to make a personal contribution to the goals of the Television and Film Service. All TV employees are eligible.

(12) The Television and Film Service Technical Excellence Award - This award will be presented to a Technical Operations employee who has demonstrated a high degree of initiative and creative ingenuity to meet TV program objectives. Selection will be based on outstanding technical skills and contributions toward improving the overall quality of TV programs. All TV technical employees are eligible for this award.

(13) The TV Post Excellence Award - The recipient of this award will be the overseas post which has made the most effective use of TV materials, products, and services in fulfillment of Broadcasting objectives. This award will recognize not one officer at a post, but rather, will acknowledge a post's team effort in achieving greater placement and use of TV products. Because the award is granted to a post and not to an individual, it will be honorary in nature.

(14) The Television and Film Service Program Excellence Award - This award will be presented to a TV production or program employee who has demonstrated a high degree of initiative and creative ingenuity in meeting TV program objectives. Selection will be based upon outstanding production skills and/or contributions towards improving the overall quality of TV programming. All Production and Program employees are eligible for this award.

(15) The Broadcasting Equal Employment Opportunity Award - This award will be presented to the employee who, with leadership, skill, imagination, innovation and perseverance, has made the greatest contribution toward the promotion of equal employment opportunities for minorities and women during the course of the year and/or over a sustained period of time. Contributions may have been in the area of recruitment and employment of new employees or in the treatment and advancement of current employees.

(16) The Affiliate Relations Award - This award will be presented to the employee or post which plays an essential role in placing VOA and TV material. Selection will be based on dedication, special achievements and exemplary services for placement of radio and television programs throughout the world.

(17) The Terry Hourigan Memorial Award - The Terry Hourigan Memorial Award is an achievement award meant to honor the memory of Terry Hourigan, a seasoned, professional broadcaster who served as Executive Producer of the Voice of America, co-founder and Director of VOA Europe and Director of Program Review for the Board for International Broadcasting. The award is designed to honor outstanding programming initiatives. This award will be given only occasionally and given only to an individual leader who has demonstrated the ability to create compelling programming, to make innovative use of technology and to foster leadership in talented broadcasters. Any VOA, TV, Marti, RFA and RFE/RL employee who possesses the talent for developing remarkable programming, is a skilled manager of resources, and who shares Terry Hourigan's gift for leadership is eligible.

COWAN AWARD FOR HUMANITARIAN REPORTING

This award is privately endowed, funded by friends and members of the Cowan family to honor both Geoffrey Cowan -- who left VOA in November 1996 to become Dean of the Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Southern California -- and his father, VOA's second director, Louis G. Cowan. The award, consisting of a certificate and up to $5,000, will be presented in February during Press Freedom Week. The winner of the Cowan Award will be selected by a distinguished panel of journalists, broadcasters, and nationally-known public figures.

This award will be presented on an annual basis to the VOA broadcaster who has distinguished himself/herself in humanitarian reporting. Such reporting will be original in nature and will effect change, impacting the lives of VOA listeners in some direct or indirect way. The Award winner's reporting will have introduced new information that stimulates awareness and/or action. It is compelling and instructive. Such reporting could focus on human suffering in the coverage of a refugee situation, a human rights issue, or natural disaster. The Award will honor the reporter's series of report and/or body of work.

Excellence in Programming Awards - VOA Awards for Excellence in Programming have been instituted to bestow recognition on employees responsible for the highest quality programming originating from the Voice.

(1) General - Awards for Excellence in Programming may be approved for individual employees or groups of employees. The Awards Committee will consider on a quarterly and annual basis presentation of awards for exemplary accomplishment in the following categories:

- (a) Correspondent Report/Interview/Backgrounder;
- (b) News Special or Documentary;
- (c) Feature or Special Program;
- (d) Regularly Scheduled Programs or Series;
- (e) Special Events Coverage/Remote Broadcasts;
- (f) Original Script;
- (g) Adaptation of Central
- (h) Music Programs.

(2) Description of Awards - Awards for Excellence in Programming that are given quarterly consist of a framed certificate and a cash award of $250 to the individual or the group receiving the award. The minimum award to members of groups winning quarterly awards is $50. The annual awards consist of a framed certificate and a cash award of $1,000 to the individual or to the group. The minimum award to members of groups winning annual awards is $100.

(3) Committee for Excellence in Programming - The Committee for Excellence in Programming (VOA) shall consist of a Chairperson and six members named by the Director, VOA. The Awards Coordinator will provide administrative support to the Committee.

(4) Duties and Responsibilities of the Committee - Quarterly, the Committee will consider nomination in each category and make recommendations to the Director, VOA of one winner per category, as appropriate. Annually, the Committee will review the quarterly award recipients and make recommendations to the Director, VOA. The Director, Voice of America will select the quarterly and annual award recipients. The decisions on VOA Awards for Excellence in Programming are final and are not subject to appeal or review.

(5) Documenting and Routing Nominations

(a) Nominations should be made by the Service or Branch Chief and endorsed by the Division Director before submission to the Incentive Awards Coordinator.

(b) Division Directors must clear the nominations.

(c) In addition to the form, the nomination submission must consist of the following:

(i) one leadered 10-inch reel with box and tape clearly labeled as to content, broadcast date and length of program.

(ii) one copy of the program on cassette labeled as above.

(iii) seven copies of the English language script or a detailed summary in English.

(6) Quarterly award nominations will be due by the tenth of the month following each quarter.

c. Special Broadcasting Industry Awards

(1) The Committee for Excellence in Programming will work in conjunction with the Awards Coordinator on special broadcasting industry award competitions. The organizations sponsoring these awards request nominations at various times throughout the year. Criteria for the selection of candidates, formats for the recommendations, and other details will be embodied in announcements issued by Personnel.

Nominations for these awards will be sent to the Awards Coordinator for Committee review.

(2) The Committee will then make recommendations to the Director, VOA. Final decisions on submission of VOA programs to outside organizations will be made by the Director, Voice of America.

574.7 Radio Marti Gold Star Award - The Radio Marti Gold Star Award consists of a certificate and $125. This award may be presented to an Radio Marti supportive staff employee (e.g. secretaries, clerks, program, technical, and production assistants, etc.) who demonstrates a high degree of dedication and personal commitment to the goals and objectives of the Radio Marti Program operation.

574.8 Non-Government Awards

a. Purpose - Various private groups provide honor awards for Federal employees. These awards reflect most favorably on the caliber of service performed within the Federal service and Broadcasting participation is strongly encouraged. Among the many nationally known awards in this category are the Arthur S. Flemming Award, GEICO Public Service Award, Roger W. Jones Award for Executive Leadership, etc.

b. Procedures - The organizations sponsoring these awards request nominations at varying times throughout the year. Criteria for the selection of candidates, format for the recommendations, and other details are embodied in the announcement sent by these organizations to the Executive Secretary. The Executive Secretary reproduces and disseminates this material to major operating elements within Broadcasting.

574.9 Time-Off As An Incentive Award

The Time-Off Award is a Congressionally-authorized award. Supervisors may give Civil Service and Foreign Service employees time-off with pay without charge to leave. First line supervisors may approve one-day awards. Office Directors or their designee must approve awards of more than one day. The approving official must be one level above the nominating official (except for a one-day award). Time-Off Awards do not require approval of the Awards Committee. However, approving officials are expected to exercise sound judgment and discretion in granting these awards, and be keenly aware that granting time-off is a special limited recognition of exceptional performance.

Time-Off Awards provide immediate recognition of employee accomplishments. Examples of worthy accomplishments include: a major contribution to an important project or assignment; a display of initiative and skill in completing an assignment or project well before the deadline; initiative and creativity in making improvements in a product, activity, program or service; ensuring that the mission of Broadcasting is accomplished during a difficult period when additional hours of work are needed; or, in the absence of a coworker, assisting with extra work in addition to an employee's own duties.

1. Full-time Employees - Each award may range from a minimum of one day (eight hours) to a maximum of five days (forty hours). Employees may receive time-off awards more than once, but total awards approved in a calendar year may not exceed 80 hours.

2. Part-time Employees - Each award may range from a minimum of one day to a maximum of five days. A one-day award may not exceed the part-time employee's longest daily schedule. Total awards approved in a calendar year may not exceed an employee's biweekly work schedule (32-64) hours at the time of the award.

All approved nominations must be forwarded to the Office of Personnel so that an SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, may be completed. A copy of the approved nomination will be placed in the employee's performance folder.

More than one employee may receive a time-off award for the same project or accomplishment. A time-off award should not be granted for an accomplishment already recognized through another incentive award or a quality step increase. A time-off award should be scheduled by mutual agreement between the recipient and the supervisor as soon as possible. The recipient has up to one year from the effective date of the SF-50 to use the time off. The time off may be taken at one time or it may be used intermittently throughout the year; but it shouldn't be scheduled at the end of the leave year if the recipient will lose annual leave as a result. Time-off not used in the one-year period will be forfeited and may not be restored, nor can the employee receive payment in lieu of time off. A time-off award is not transferable from one government agency to another.

The time-off award has no effect on benefits, payment of night differential or Sunday pay, accrual of sick and annual leave, or performance awards. Time-off awards should not be granted in lieu of compensatory time off.

575 CAREER SERVICE RECOGNITION

575.1 General - This award recognizes employees who have completed 10, 20, 25, 30, 35, 40, 45, and 50 years of creditable service with the U.S. Government. All creditable Federal civilian and military service is used in computing service for this award. (For retired military employees, all military service is creditable for this purpose, even though it may not all be creditable for leave and retirement purposes). Employees must be in Government at the time the period of service is completed. (See MOA V-A-574.2j) for Career Achievement Awards.

575.2 Responsibilities - The Executive Secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee is responsible for determining which employees are eligible for Career Service Awards and ensuring that the Career Service Awards Program is uniformly administered and is consistent with established principles and standards.

575.3 Types of Awards - Career Service Awards consist of the following types of certificates, emblems, and plaques:

No. of Years Service	Type of Emblem or Plaque
30	Gold
35	Gold
40	Gold
50	Plaque

575.4 Procedures - The Executive Secretary will have certificates printed and signed by the Director, and forwarded with appropriate emblems to Offices or Services for employees assigned in the United States and to posts for employees assigned overseas.

575.5 Presentations - The presentation of Career Service Awards provides an opportunity to demonstrate formally the Broadcasting's high regard and appreciation of the valued services of its employees. Upon receipt of the certificates and emblems the head of the Office or Service will arrange a time for the presentation ceremony, and will present the awards.

576 EMPLOYEE SUGGESTION PROGRAM

576.1 General - The Employee Suggestion Program provides a means by which employees can contribute their ideas on ways to improve the economy and effectiveness of Broadcasting operations. It is a component of the Incentive Awards Program.

576.2 Responsibilities -

a. Office of Personnel

(1) is responsible for the direction and administration of the Suggestion Program within Broadcasting.

b. Heads of Elements are responsible for ensuring that appropriate procedures exist in their organizations to stimulate and facilitate development of suggestions, to evaluate and forward promptly to the Office of Personnel suggestions originating in their own or other elements and to implement suggestions adopted by their organizations.

576.3 Procedures

a. Developing Suggestions - Employees are encouraged to seek the assistance and advice of their supervisors in developing and drafting their suggestions for submission. Supervisors should give every encouragement to employees to make suggestions for improving operations. One effective way of encouraging employees is to acquaint them with specific problems for which the supervisor is seeking solutions, and then invite their attention to ways of correcting the problem.

b. Submitting/Reviewing Suggestions

(1) A memorandum or an Employee Suggestion Form (OF-163) in duplicate should be used in submitting suggestions.

(2) Suggestions may be reviewed by the supervisor or sent directly to the Executive Secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee.

(3) The Executive Secretary will review the suggestions and forward them to the responsible Office for evaluation.

(4) The Director for Broadcasting or his/her designee, will exercise final approval authority.

(5) Award nominations in excess of $10,000 must use the procedures described in paragraph 573.2.

c. Validity of Suggestions

(1) Suggestions that contribute directly to economy or otherwise help directly to carry out specific operations of Broadcasting will be eligible for cash awards. These will include ideas that save money, staff hours, material, supplies, and equipment; ideas that produce a useful change in an operating policy or procedure; ideas that bring about improvement in the quality of a product, activity, or program; and ideas that improve service to the public.

(2) Suggestions that relate directly to improvement in services and benefits provided to employees, to working conditions, maintenance, routine safety practices, and to other aspects of the work environment will not be eligible for cash awards, in most cases. Adoption of a suggestion of this kind which is related primarily to changes in the work environment will be recognized by a letter of commendation to the employee with a copy to his or her personnel file. Only if such an adopted suggestion has particularly broad and significant benefit will a cash award be paid.

(3) A suggestion, new or old, will be considered for an award if it results in an improvement not already under active consideration.

(4) Suggestions submitted for cash awards generally are received by the Executive Secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee before implementation by the evaluating office. However, employee ideas may be submitted to the Executive Secretary as suggestions after evaluation and implementation by the responsible office provided:

(a) The employee submits the suggestion within six months of the effective date of implementation; and

(b) The suggestion is submitted through the evaluating and implementing officer(s) who will provide or confirm any data of actual savings projected on an annual basis, or estimate and evaluate the intangible benefits, and recommend to the Office of Personnel the amount of award to be made.

(5) A suggestion may be either (a) outside the employee's job responsibilities, or (b) within the employee's job responsibilities but so meritorious as to warrant special recognition. When a suggestion is determined to be within or partially within the employee's job responsibilities, the amount of any cash award may be reduced proportionately from what the award would have been had the contribution been clearly beyond the employee's job responsibilities (e. g., by 25%, 50% or 75%, as appropriate). However, if the contribution benefits other units within or outside of the Agency or other Government agencies and the employee's assigned duties did not require such improvements or changes in these organizations, the employee should receive recognition based on the total benefits to the other organizations or agencies.

(6) Suggestions should contain information on present method, procedure or operation, and its weaknesses, proposed changes or innovation, ways of implementing the change; areas or posts to benefit; cost and tangible savings during the first year of operation if it is within the employee's capability to estimate, or intangible benefits expected from the proposed change.

(7) If the suggestion is meritorious solely or primarily because it will result in savings, these savings must be clearly demonstrable. Savings may be shown in terms of lower unit cost, reduction in cost of operations, combining duties to free personnel for other essential work, elimination of surplus positions, etc. However, reductions in unit costs cannot be considered savings if they are the result of such outside factors as the receipt of less complex work items or the normally expected decrease in unit costs occurring from increased volume, or if they are the result of, or result in, less effective operation or poorer quality of work or service.

(8) The following proposals are not considered valid suggestions:

(a) those that point out a problem without providing a solution;

(b) proposals relating to a personal grievance or problem;

(c) those that have no apparent benefit;

(d) those that are clearly within the job requirements of the employee, such as, proposals to improve working conditions the employee or his or her superior can correct through normal or customary action.

d. Action on Suggestions

(1) Acknowledging and Control - The Office of Personnel will acknowledge receipt of the suggestion and will maintain appropriate records on all suggestions.

(2) Investigating and Evaluating - The Office of Personnel will refer copies of the suggestion for evaluation and recommendation to the offices most knowledgeable on the subject and most concerned with its implications and possible implementation.

(a) Suggestions submitted through the normal procedure will be referred for evaluation upon receipt of the supervisory evaluation by the Office of Personnel.

(b) Employees may request that all identification pertaining to them be removed before the Office of Personnel circulates the suggestion for evaluation. No reason need be given for requesting removal of identification.

(3) Timeliness - Whenever a final recommendation cannot be made to the Office of Personnel within thirty (30) days, the evaluating office should prepare an interim reply stating the reason(s) for the delay and estimating the probable date of completion of the evaluation.

(4) Documenting Suggestion File - Each suggestion file processed will be documented with factual information so as to ensure equitable consideration by the reviewing authorities. Each file will include specific information to show clearly the reasons for the action, favorable or unfavorable.

(5) Reviewing Evaluations - The Office of Personnel will review each suggestion, together with appraisal reports to determine whether the contribution has received fair and impartial evaluation; whether an award is warranted; and, if warranted, that the appropriate award has been recommended by the implementing office.

(6) If a Suggestion Is Not Adopted - If a suggestion is not adopted, the employee will be notified in writing, or orally if appropriate, as to the reasons for non-adoption.

(7) Time Limitation - A two-year period immediately following the date of a decision on a suggestion is designated as the "award entitlement period." If during this period the idea is adopted, the case should be reopened for award consideration. An employee may start a new "award entitlement period" by resubmitting his or her suggestion two years after the previous decision. If the evaluating office does not complete an evaluation and submits an interim reply, the Office of Personnel may so advise the employee. This advisory notice to the employee begins an "award entitlement period" which continues until a recommendation is made or until the expiration of two years from the date of the interim reply, whichever comes first.

(8) Duplicate Suggestions - If the same suggestion is submitted independently by more than one employee, the award will be given to the employee whose suggestion carries the earliest formal receipt date. An award for a suggestion may be given to more than one employee where there is a joint employee participation in the development and submission of the suggestion.

(9) Appeals - There is no "appeal," as such, from the decision not to adopt a particular suggestion. The decision to adopt or not to adopt a suggestion is a management prerogative and is thus not grievable. However, if a employee can provide new or more information, he or she should request a reevaluation of the suggestion. All persons responsible for reviewing cases should welcome additional information that permits better evaluation of a case.

(10) Records - The Office of Personnel will retain a file on each suggestion for at least two years after final action.

e. Maximum Use of Suggestion - When an employee makes a suggestion that may be of use in another agency, whether or not the contribution is of benefit to Broadcasting, it is sent by the appropriate Office of Personnel to the appropriate agency for evaluation.

576.4 Cash Awards for Suggestions will be paid on the basis of resulting tangible and/or intangible benefits. The employee will be notified of an award by letter and a copy will be placed in his or her Official Personnel Folder for permanent retention and Employee Performance File for a period not to exceed three years. A suggestion award cannot be paid unless an adopting element puts a suggestion into effect or signifies a definite intention to implement a suggestion as soon as it may be practical. Even if adopted in modified form, a suggestion is eligible for an award based upon the contribution involved.

a. Award Recommendations - The adopting organization recommends the amount of an award based upon its estimate of monetary savings or intangible benefits. The basis of the computation must be explicitly stated.

b. Approval and Payment - Award amounts of $10,000 or less are approved and payment authorized by the Director of Broadcasting.

c. Computing Awards

(1) Tangible Benefits - The amount of an award for a suggestion that results in a monetary saving is based normally on the estimated net monetary saving for the first full year of operation. A cash award will not be made unless the net saving is $250 or more. When substantial nonrecurring costs are involved in the installation of a suggestion which is useful for a number of years, and if the computation of the award on the basis of the first year saving would result in an inadequate award, the award may be made on the basis of estimated average annual net savings over a period of years. See Exhibit 570B for scale for tangible benefits.

(2) Intangible Benefits - When benefits cannot be expressed in terms of monetary savings, the amount of cash award is determined by the importance of the activity affected by the suggestion, and by the impact of the suggestion on it. The criteria for judgment of intangible benefits are shown in page 2 of Exhibit 570B.

577 PRESIDENTIAL AWARDS

577.1 Authority and Coverage

a. Under title 5, United States Code, Chapters 45 and 54, the President may pay a cash award to and incur necessary expenses for the honorary recognition of an employee who:

(1) by his or her suggestion, invention or other personal effort contributes to the efficiency, economy, or other improvement of Government operations, or achieves a significant reduction in paperwork; or

(2) performs an exceptionally meritorious special act or service in the public interest in connection with or related to official employment.

b. Presidential awards for Senior Executive Service (SES) members (i.e., Meritorious Executive and Distinguished Executive) are discussed in MOA V-A-1130.

577.2 Nomination Procedure - Nominations for such awards including the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service must be submitted through the Director for Broadcasting for approval and submission to the Office of Personnel Management.

577.3 Review by the Office of Personnel Management - The Office of Personnel Management shall review agency recommendations for the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service and recommend to the President which career employees should receive this award.

577.4 Determination of Benefits - The Office of Personnel Management has the authority to determine the benefits derived from any suggestion, invention, or other contribution which forms the basis for a Presidential award.

577.5 Payment - A Presidential award is paid by the agency primarily benefiting from the employee contribution.

577.6 Simultaneous Awards - A Presidential award may be in addition to a superior accomplishment award.

578 ANNUAL PROGRAM REVIEW AND ORIENTATION AND TRAINING

578.1 Program evaluations will be conducted annually by the Office of Personnel.

578.2 Periodic orientation and training on the incentive awards program will be provided to all personnel by the Office of Personnel.

Exhibit 570B - Computation of Cash Awards for Suggestions, Inventions, and Special Acts or Services

a. Tangible Savings

Tangible savings means savings to the Federal Government that can be measured in terms of dollars saved. In assigning a value to any employee contribution, whether of the suggestion or performance type, every effort should be made to determine the tangible savings that may accrue. The savings, for example, of 15 minutes in a particular operation, elimination of 10,000 pieces of paper, and extension of life of equipment by 6 months should be converted into dollars to arrive at the estimated tangible savings.

A cash award is not granted unless the tangible savings have a value to $250 or more. The amount of a cash award will normally be based on the estimated tangible savings for the first full year of operation in accordance with the following scales:

SCALE FOR MEASURABLE BENEFITS

Estimated First-Year Benefits to Government	Amount of Award
Up to $10,000-----	10% of benefits
$10,001 - $100,000-----	$1,000 for the first $10,000, plus 3% of benefits over $10,000.
$100,001 or more-----	$3,700 for the first $100,000, plus .5% of benefits over $100,000

Monetary awards may not exceed the above scales.

When there are substantial nonrecurring costs to install an employee contribution which will be useful for a number of years, and if the amount of the award on the basis of the net first-year benefits would result in an inadequate reward, the award may be based on an average of estimated net benefits over a period of years.

b. Intangible Benefits

A cash award may also be made when an employee contribution does not lend itself to appraisal on the basis of tangible benefits. The amount of such cash award is determined on the basis of its value to the agency's operations and importance to the programs affected. There is no substitute for good judgment in determining the amount of a cash award. However, the minimum cash award of $25 is not granted unless the contribution compares favorably with those receiving the minimum cash award for tangible benefits.

The criteria used for determining degree of benefit from contributions having intangible benefits are as follows:

(1) Exceptional Benefit: Contribution materially affecting substantial or significant phases of Broadcasting's over-all program or of outstanding services in the public interest.

(2) High Benefit: Contribution affecting significant phases of broadcasting's operations or which involve major changes in methods.

(3) Substantial Benefit: Contribution which is an important improvement affecting minor programs, such as safety contributions which prevent disabling injuries or heavy damage to property, or contributions involving important changes in methods or property.

(4) Moderate Benefit: Contribution limited in scope either as to number of employees or nature of program affected. The following scale provides guidance for evaluating intangible benefits:

AMOUNT OF BENEFIT EXTENT OF APPLICATION

Contributor's Immediate Work Area		Several Divisions, Branches, or Sections
Moderate	$25 - $100	$100 - $250
Substantial	$100 - $250	$250 - $500
High	$250 - $500	$500 - $1000
Exceptional	$500 - $1000	$1000 - $2500
Entire Bureau or Comparable Area		Entire BBG
Moderate	$250 - $500	$500 - $1000
Substantial	$500 - $1000	$1000 - $2500
High	$1000 - $2500	$2500 - $5000
Exceptional	$2500 - $5000	$5000 - $10,000

c. Tangible Plus Intangible Benefits

Contributions may result in a combination of tangible and intangible benefits. In such cases, the amount of award based on the tangible benefits will be computed first and the appropriate amount for intangible benefits will be added. In every case, the record must reflect the basis on which the award was computed.

d. Monetary Awards for Groups

An award cannot be granted to two or more persons for the same contribution except in group or shared awards. Group awards may be made in shares if each individual in the group made varying contributions; that is, in recognizing a group and supervisor, it may be appropriate to award a larger amount to the supervisor and equal shares to the rest. The total amount of the award generally should be the amount authorized for a cash award if made to one individual, except that at least the minimum cash award is given to each individual in a group.

581 Witnesses and Representatives in the Federal EEO Process

The procedures outlined here relate specifically to the processing of individual and class complaints of discrimination that include the provisions in section 1614.105 through 1614.110 and in section 1614.204. These procedures should be consistent with all other applicable provisions and the instructions for complaint processing contained in the commission's Management Directives (MD). These MD's will serve as a primary document for processing complaints.

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

CHAPTER 1

DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY

I. INTRODUCTION

In order for the agency to implement a continuing affirmative employment program to promote equal employment opportunity and to identify and eliminate discriminatory practices and policies, the agency shall appoint a Director of Equal Employment Opportunity, who shall be under the immediate supervision of the agency head. 29 C.F.R. § 1614.102(b)(3).

II. DIRECTOR OF EEO MUST HAVE INDEPENDENT AUTHORITY

Agencies must avoid conflicts of position or conflicts of interest as well as the appearance of such conflicts. For example, the same agency official(s) responsible for executing and advising on personnel actions, may not also be responsible for managing, advising, or overseeing the EEO pre-complaint or complaint processes. Those processes generally challenge the motivations and impacts of personnel actions and decisions. In order to maintain the integrity of the EEO investigative and decision making processes, those functions must be kept separate from the personnel function.

Agencies should also be cautious of excessive intrusion on the investigative and deliberative processes of EEO complaint resolutions by agency representatives and offices responsible for defending the agency against complaints. Maintaining some distance between the fact-finding and defensive functions of the agency enhances the reliability of the EEO office and the integrity of the EEO complaints process. Legal sufficiency reviews of EEO matters are best handled by a functional unit apart from the unit which handles agency representation in EEO complaints. This is suggested by the Commission because impartiality or the appearance of impartiality is important to the credibility of the equal employment program.

For example, it would be excessively intrusive for the individual who represented the agency in an equal employment hearing to have authority to approve decisions with respect to resolution in the same or related cases. It may also be improper for members of the functional unit of the office where the representative is employed to have the legal sufficiency function with respect to cases in which a colleague served as agency representative.

III. AUTHORITY TO DELEGATE OTHER FUNCTIONS

The agency, through the Director of Equal Employment Opportunity, shall have the authority to designate Equal Employment Opportunity Officer(s) and such Special Emphasis Program Managers, clerical and administrative support as may be necessary to carry out the functions described in Part 1614 in all organizational units of the agency and at all agency installations.

29 C.F.R. § 1614.102(b)(3).

Special Emphasis Program Managers may include managers of the Program for People with Disabilities, the Federal Women's Program, Hispanic Employment Program and such other programs as may be required by the Office of Personnel Management or the particular agency.

An agency head may delegate authority under this part to one or more designees.

IV. EEO OFFICIALS CANNOT SERVE AS REPRESENTATIVES

EEO counselors, EEO officers, and EEO program managers have vital roles in the resolution of discrimination complaints and to operate effectively they must have the confidence of both the agency and the employees. It is inconsistent with their neutral roles for EEO counselors, EEO officers, and EEO program managers to serve as representatives for agencies or complainants.

Therefore,

EEO counselors, EEO officers, and EEO managers cannot serve as representatives for complainants or for agencies in connection with the processing of discrimination complaints. See generally, 29 C.F.R. § 1614.605(c) (disqualification of representatives for conflict of duties).

CHAPTER 2

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY COUNSELING

I. INTRODUCTION

Equal Employment Opportunity counseling, or pre-complaint processing, is conducted pursuant to 29 C.F.R. section 1614.105, which provides that aggrieved persons who believe they have been discriminated against on the bases of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, or handicap, or in retaliation for having participated in activity protected under various civil rights statutes, must consult an EEO counselor prior to filing a complaint, in order to try to

complaint process. This section of the management directive prescribes Commission guidance and procedures to be followed by EEO counselors when presented with both individual and class allegations of discrimination.

(1) While recognizing that each agency will have its own techniques for counseling, the Commission has compiled a guide of step-by-step techniques for counseling that may be used by agencies in developing or refining their own procedures. (See Attachment A.) EEO counseling is an essential part of the Federal system for processing and resolving employee and applicant EEO concerns. The opportunity for informal resolution at an early stage is an important feature of the counseling stage. If resolution is not achieved, the counselor plays a vital role in ensuring prompt and efficient processing of the formal complaint. The EEO counselor has six clearly defined duties that must be performed for each completed counseling action where an informal resolution is not achieved. The six duties are:

1. Advise the aggrieved person about the EEO complaint process under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 and possible election requirements;
2. Determine the issue(s) and basis(es) of the potential complaint;
3. Conduct a limited inquiry for the purposes of furnishing information for settlement efforts and determining jurisdictional questions if a formal complaint is filed;
4. Seek a resolution of the matter at the lowest possible level;
5. Document the resolution or advise the complainant of his/her right to file a formal discrimination complaint if resolution fails; and
6. Prepare a report sufficient to determine that required counseling actions have been taken and resolve any jurisdictional questions that may arise.

II. PROVIDING ADVICE TO THE AGGRIEVED PERSON

A. Provide Required Written Notice.

1. At the initial counseling session or as soon as possible after, the counselor must provide the aggrieved person written notice of the following:
    - a. The right to have the counselor refrain from revealing the identity of the aggrieved person except when authorized by the aggrieved person.
    - b. The right to representation throughout the complaint process including the counseling stage.
    - c. The possible election requirement between a negotiated grievance procedure and the EEO complaint procedure.
- Where an agency is covered by 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d) and where the negotiated procedure and the statute (2) cover the alleged discrimination, the aggrieved individual is required to elect either: (1) the statutory procedure for discrimination (the internal agency EEO process) or (2) the negotiated grievance procedure, but not both.
- d. The election requirement in the event that the matter at issue is appealable to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB), i.e., the matter is a mixed case.

The complainant has 20 calendar days from the date of the alleged discriminatory act to file a mixed case appeal with the Merit Systems Protection Board and 15 calendar days from the date of a counselor's notice of final interview or 30 calendar days after the initial EEO counselor contact to file a formal mixed case EEO complaint. (S)he may not file both an MSPB appeal and an EEO complaint on the same matter. The process selected first is deemed the elected process.

e. The requirement that the aggrieved person file a complaint within 15 calendar days of receipt of the counselor's notice of right to file a formal complaint in the event (s)he wishes to file a formal complaint at the conclusion of counseling.

f. The right to file a notice of intent to sue when age is alleged as a basis for discrimination and of the right to file a lawsuit under the ADEA instead of an administrative complaint of age discrimination, pursuant to section 1614.201(a).

g. The right to go directly to U.S. district court on claims of sex based wage discrimination under the Equal Pay Act even though such claims are also cognizable under Title VII.(3)

h. The right to request a hearing before an EEOC administrative judge (AJ) in a non-mixed case after 180 calendar days from the filing of a formal complaint or after completion of the investigation, whichever comes first.

i. The right to go to U.S. district court 180 calendar days after filing a formal complaint or 180 days after filing an appeal.

j. The duty to mitigate damages, e.g., that interim earnings or amounts which could be earned by the individual with reasonable diligence generally must be deducted from an award of back pay.

k. The duty to keep the agency and EEOC informed of current mailing address and to serve copies of appeal papers on the agency.

l. The right to receive in writing within 30 calendar days of the first counseling contact (unless the complainant agrees in writing to an extension) a notice terminating counseling and informing the aggrieved of: (1) the right to file a formal individual or class complaint within 15 calendar days of receipt of the notice, (2) the appropriate official with whom to file a formal complaint, and (3) the complainant's duty to immediately inform the agency if the complainant retains counsel or a representative. Any extension of the counseling period may not exceed an additional 60 calendar days. Where notice is not provided and no extension is secured, the complainant has the right to file a formal complaint after the 30th day. Exception: Where complainant agrees to participate in an established alternative dispute resolution program, the written notice terminating the counseling period will be issued upon completion of the dispute resolution process or within 90 calendar days of the first contact, whichever is earlier.

m. Only the same or like and related matters raised at the counseling stage may be the subject of a formal complaint.

n. The time frames in the complaint process.

o. The class complaint procedures and the responsibilities of a class agent, if the aggrieved person informs the EEO counselor that (s)he wishes to file a class complaint.

2. The counselor must conduct a final interview with the aggrieved person within 30 days of initial contact unless the aggrieved person and the agency through the EEO Director or his/her designee agree in writing to an extension of counseling for up to an additional 60 days. Where the agency or the unit of the agency where the counseling occurs has an established alternative dispute resolution procedure and the aggrieved individual agrees to participate in the procedure, the pre-complaint processing period shall not exceed 90 days.

3. The counselor must provide the aggrieved person with a written notice of final interview at the conclusion of counseling. The notice will provide instructions on how to file a formal complaint (including a class complaint) and specify that such a complaint must be filed within fifteen (15) calendar days of receipt of a notice of final interview.

4. If counseling continues beyond thirty (30) days, the counselor must inform the complainant that (s)he has the right to file a formal complaint after thirty (30) days in counseling, regardless of whether counseling has been completed.

B. Provide Other EEO Complaint Information to the Aggrieved Person.

In addition to providing a written notice as outlined above, the counselor should explain the requirements for initiating a formal complaint. If the complainant raises class issues, the counselor should explain the class procedures or refer the person to a counselor trained in class procedures.

1. Aggrieved Person Must Contact EEO counselor.

All persons who believe they have been discriminated against because of race,

any practice made unlawful by Title VII, the ADEA, the EPA, or the Rehabilitation Act or for participating in any stage of administrative or judicial proceedings under those statutes, must first make contact with an EEO counselor to receive counseling before filing a formal complaint of discrimination. The counselor must make whatever inquiry into the matter (s)he believes necessary and seek resolution of the matter on an informal basis.

2. Time Limits.

A person who believes (s)he has been discriminated against is required to contact an EEO counselor within 45 days of the date the alleged discriminatory

action. The agency shall extend the 45-day time limit to permit timely contact

a. the aggrieved person shows that (s)he was not notified of the time limits and was not otherwise aware of them; or

b. (s)he did not know and reasonably should not have known that the matter or personnel action occurred; or

c. despite due diligence, (s)he was prevented by circumstances beyond his/her control from contacting a counselor within the time limits; or

d. other reasons considered sufficient by the agency or Commission as are found to exist. All time limits in part 1614 are subject to waiver, estoppel, and equitable tolling. Where these exceptions are invoked, agency legal counsel should be consulted for guidance.

3. Class Agent Must Contact EEO Counselor.

The regulatory requirements for class complaints at 29 C.F.R.

§ 1614.204 provide a different structure for class complaints than for individual complaints. For class complaints there is a three-stage process.

The

first stage is the establishment of a class complaint. At this stage, the class agent is required to seek counseling from an agency EEO counselor. The second stage is a determination on the merits of the class complaint. The third stage is the determination of the claims for relief of the individual class members.

A class is defined as a group of employees, former employees, or applicants who are alleged to have been adversely affected by an agency personnel policy or practice which discriminates against the group on the basis of their common race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, or handicap.

The aggrieved person comes to the EEO counselor as a class agent representing the group. A class allegation must be brought to the attention of an EEO counselor by a class agent within 45 days of the date that the specific policy or practice adversely affected the class agent or, if a personnel action, within 45 days after its effective date. Extensions of time should be considered by the agency pursuant to the guidance in section II.B.2. above.

A person must seek class counseling just as (s)he would for individual complaints. However, the facts must be framed to meet the requirements of section 1614.204.

C. Provide Information On Special Procedures as Required.

Depending upon the facts and circumstances of the particular case, an aggrieved person may have options other than the part 1614 procedure available in pursuit of a discrimination claim. The individual, in some cases, may have to elect the process (s)he wishes to pursue. These so-called "special procedures" apply in age discrimination complaints, mixed case complaints, Equal Pay Act complaints and matters where a negotiated grievance procedure could apply.

It is crucial, therefore, that the EEO counselor be familiar with those special procedures and be able to identify such cases when the aggrieved person first seeks counseling. Unless the counselor is able to identify a special case and advise the aggrieved person fully on the procedures, the aggrieved person will not be able to make informed decisions concerning his/her case. Experience has shown that sometimes aggrieved persons are given incomplete or incorrect information concerning the applicable procedures. Since aggrieved persons rely on the knowledge and advice of counselors, counselors must know the procedures and must be able to counsel aggrieved persons accordingly.

1. Negotiated Grievance Procedures in Collective Bargaining Agreements. (4)

a. Aggrieved Person Makes Election.

At the initial counseling session, the counselor must inform the aggrieved person of the possible applicability of the election of remedies from the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978, 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d), concerning negotiated grievance procedures.

(1) In order for an aggrieved person to be covered under 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d),

(a) (S)he must be employed in a Federal agency subject to the provisions of 5

U.S.C. § 7121(d); and

b) (S)he must be covered by a collective bargaining agreement at the agency where the grievance arises. The agreement must also permit allegations of discrimination to be raised in the negotiated grievance procedure.

2) If these conditions are met, then the counselor must inform the aggrieved person that 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d) applies. This means that the aggrieved person must be informed of the requirement that (s)he choose one, (not both) of the

a) a right to have his/her allegations of discrimination addressed in the negotiated grievance procedure of the collective bargaining agreement with a caution that the opportunity to raise allegations of discrimination will be lost if not raised in the grievance process; or

b) a right to have his/her allegations of discrimination addressed under 29

C.F.R. Part 1614.

3) An election to proceed under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 is indicated only by the filing of a formal complaint, in writing. Use of the counseling process does not constitute an election to proceed under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614.

4) Allegations of discrimination that are raised by employees not covered by section 7121(d) are to be processed as EEO complaints under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 regardless of whether they are also pursuing a grievance on the same matter

a) Under section 1614.301(c), the complaint may be held in abeyance while the grievance on the same matter is processed. The abeyance shall terminate without further notice upon the issuance of a final decision on the grievance. The complaint may be held in abeyance only if the aggrieved is provided written

The notice of abeyance shall state that the abeyance is instituted pursuant to section 1614.301(c) and that time limits for processing the complaint contained in section 1614.106 and for appeal to the Commission contained in section 1614.402 will also be held in abeyance until fifteen (15) days following the issuance of the final decision on the grievance.

(b) If the EEO complaint is held in abeyance, the time limits for processing are tolled until a final decision is rendered in the grievance process.

b. Election is Final.

Pursuant to section 1614.301, EEO counselors are required to inform an aggrieved person that once (s)he decides which forum she will use - the negotiated grievance procedure in a collective bargaining agreement covered by section 7121(d) or 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 - the aggrieved person is precluded from using the other forum to address the same matter. This preclusion holds regardless of whether discrimination is actually raised.

example, if an aggrieved person elects to have a matter involving a claim of discrimination addressed under the terms of a collective bargaining agreement by filing a grievance, (s)he could not also file a formal complaint of discrimination under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 on the same matter. This bar to a subsequent formal EEO complaint would hold true even if the grievance omitted

If an agency issues a decision rejecting the grievance either because the individual is not covered by the collective bargaining agreement, the collective bargaining agreement does not contain a provision that allows allegations of discrimination to be raised in the grievance process, or because the grievance was untimely filed, the agency shall include appeal rights to the

c. Appeals

The complainant has the right to appeal a final decision on his/her grievance to the Commission as provided in subpart D of 29 C.F.R. Part 1614.

2. Mixed Cases.

a. MSPB Mixed Case Complaints and Appeals.

In addition to negotiated grievance procedures, an aggrieved person may present an allegation that constitutes a mixed case. A mixed case is one which alleges discrimination in connection with a matter which is also appealable to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB). Two criteria determine whether a case is a mixed case:

(1) the employee has standing to file an appeal to the MSPB. The following employees generally have a right to appeal to the MSPB: (6)

(a) competitive service employees not serving a probationary period under an initial appointment;

b) career appointees to the Senior Executive Service;

c) non-competitive service preference eligible employees with one or more years of current continuous service (e.g., postal employees and attorneys with veterans preference); and,

d) non-preference eligible excepted service employees with two or more years of current continuous service; and

2) the matter which forms the basis of the discrimination complaint can be appealed to the MSPB. Most MSPB appealable matters fall into the following six categories:

(a) reduction in grade or removal for unacceptable performance;

(b) removal reduction in grade or pay, suspension for more than 14 days, or furlough for 30 days or less for such cause as will promote the efficiency of the service;

c) separation reduction in grade, or furlough for more than 30 days, when the action was effected because of a reduction-in-force;

(d) reduction-in-force action affecting a career SES appointee;

e) reconsideration decision sustaining a negative determination of competence for General Schedule employees; and

f) disqualification of an employee or applicant because of a suitability determination.

b. Choosing a Forum.

If both criteria for a mixed case are met, the EEO counselor must notify an aggrieved person that (s)he must choose the forum in which (s)he wishes to proceed. Where a negotiated grievance can also be filed, the counselor must explain that the aggrieved person must choose to proceed in one of three forums: the MSPB appeal process, the internal EEO process, or the negotiated grievance process (see section C.1. above).

1) Federal agencies are initially responsible for identifying mixed cases and for advising aggrieved persons of their right to pursue the matter as a mixed case complaint or as a mixed case appeal. Federal agencies must identify mixed cases early in order to ensure that aggrieved persons are fully informed of their complaint processing options.

2) An aggrieved person may choose to raise allegations of discrimination in a mixed case either as an appeal to the MSPB ("mixed case appeal") or as a discrimination complaint with the agency under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 ("mixed case complaint"), but not both. Whichever action the employee files first is considered an election to proceed in that forum.

3) An election to proceed under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 is made when the aggrieved person files a formal complaint in writing. Use of the EEO counseling process is not an election to proceed under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614.

4) If an employee chooses to file an appeal with the MSPB on a mixed case, the agency must thereafter dismiss any subsequently filed complaint on the same matter, regardless of whether the allegations of discrimination are raised in the appeal to the MSPB. Upon dismissal, the agency must advise the employee to raise the allegations of discrimination in connection with his/her appeal to

5) Where the agency disputes MSPB jurisdiction, the agency shall notify the complainant that it is holding the mixed case complaint in abeyance until the MSPB's administrative judge rules on the jurisdictional issue. During this period, all time limitations for processing or filing will be tolled. An agency decision to hold a mixed case complaint in abeyance is not appealable to EEOC.

If the MSPB administrative judge finds that MSPB has jurisdiction over the matter, the agency shall dismiss the mixed case complaint under 1614.107(d).

6) If the employee elects to file a mixed case complaint under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614, the agency must process the complaint in a manner substantially similar to any other discrimination complaint, except that the employee is not entitled to a hearing before an EEOC administrative judge. An aggrieved person's appeal rights will be to the MSPB, not the EEOC. Following a final decision from MSPB, an aggrieved person may petition EEOC to consider that decision as it pertains to the allegations of discrimination.

A discriminatory constructive discharge occurs when the employer discriminatorily creates working conditions which are so difficult, unpleasant, or intolerable that a reasonable person in the aggrieved person's position would feel compelled to resign. In other words, the aggrieved person is essentially forced to resign under circumstances where the resignation is tantamount to the employer's termination or discharge of the employee. Similarly, in coerced or involuntary retirement cases, the aggrieved person alleges that (s)he was essentially forced to retire, for example, because of age, and the retirement decision was not voluntary.

CHAPTER 3

SPECIAL PROCEDURES FOR RELATED PROCESSES

I. INTRODUCTION

As set out in Chapter 2, Section V, special procedures apply to certain related processes. The relationship between 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 complaints, Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) actions, grievances pursuant to negotiated grievance procedures, notices of intent to sue in Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA) complaints and the alternative available in Equal Pay Act

(EPA) complaints are set out more specifically here. All time frames in this

II. PROCESSING MIXED CASE COMPLAINTS AND APPEALS -- 29 C.F.R.

A. Definitions

A "mixed case complaint" is a complaint of employment discrimination filed with a Federal agency based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, handicap, or reprisal related to or stemming from an action that may be appealed to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB). The complaint may contain only an allegation of employment discrimination or it may contain additional non-discrimination allegations that the MSPB has jurisdiction to address. A "mixed case appeal" is an appeal filed directly with the MSPB that alleges that an appealable agency action was effected, in whole or in part, because of discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, handicap, or age.

B. Procedures

EEOC regulations provide for processing discrimination complaints on matters which are otherwise appealable to the MSPB. Two determinations must be made to decide if the mixed case regulations apply, i.e., (1) the employee must have standing to file such an appeal with the MSPB, and (2) the matter which forms the basis of the discrimination complaint must be appealable to the MSPB.

1. Standing

a. the following employees generally have a right to appeal to the MSPB and, therefore, to initiate a mixed case complaint or appeal: (1

- 1) competitive service employees not serving a probationary or trial period under an initial appointment;
- 2) career appointees to the Senior Executive Service;
- 3) non-competitive service preference eligible employees with one or more years of current continuous service (e.g., postal employees and attorneys with veterans preference); and
- 4) non-preference eligible excepted service employees who have completed their probationary period or with two or more years of current continuous service (e.g., attorneys).

b. The following employees generally do not have a right to appeal to the MSPB:

- (1) probationary employees (but see 5 C.F.R. § 315.806 under certain circumstances, discrimination based on party affiliation, marital status, procedural deficiencies),
- 2) non-appropriated fund activity employees, and
- 3) employees serving under a temporary appointment limited to one year or less.

2. Appealable Matters

a. Most appealable matters fall into the following six categories:

- (1) reduction in grade or removal for unacceptable performance;

2) removal reduction in grade or pay, suspension for more than 14 days, or furlough for 30 days or less for cause that will promote the efficiency of the service;

3) separation reduction in grade, or furlough for more than 30 days, when the action was effected because of a reduction in force;

4) reduction-in-force action affecting a career appointee in the Senior Executive Service;

(5) reconsideration decision sustaining a negative determination of competence for a general schedule employee; and

6) disqualification of an employee or applicant because of a suitability determination.

b. See Attachment A for a more complete listing of appealable actions.

3. Election to Proceed is Required

a. The regulations provide that a covered individual may raise allegations of discrimination in a mixed case either as a direct appeal to the MSPB or as an EEO complaint with the agency, but not both.

b. Whatever action the individual files first is considered an election to proceed in that forum. Filing a formal EEO complaint constitutes an election to proceed in the EEO forum. Contacting an EEO counselor or receiving EEO counseling does not constitute an election.

c. Where an aggrieved person files an MSPB appeal and timely seeks counseling, counseling may continue pursuant to section 1614.105, at the option of the parties. In any case, counseling must be terminated with notice of rights pursuant to section 1614.105(d), (e), or (f).

4. Procedures for Handling Dual Filing

a. Where the agency does not dispute MSPB jurisdiction:

If an individual files a mixed case appeal with the MSPB before filing a mixed case complaint with the agency, and the agency does not dispute MSPB jurisdiction, the agency must thereafter dismiss any complaint on the same matter, regardless of whether the allegations of discrimination are raised in the appeal to the MSPB.

The agency must advise the complainant that (s)he must bring the allegations of discrimination contained in the dismissed complaint to the attention of the

The agency final decision dismissing the complaint must advise the complainant of the right to petition EEOC to review the MSPB's final decision on the discrimination issue. An agency decision to dismiss a mixed case complaint is not appealable to the Commission except where it is alleged that section 1614.107(d) has been applied to a non-mixed case matter.

b. Where the agency or the MSPB administrative judge questions MSPB jurisdiction:

The agency shall hold the mixed case complaint in abeyance until the MSPB's administrative judge rules on the jurisdictional issue, notify the complainant that it is doing so, and instruct him/her to bring the discrimination allegation to the attention of MSPB. During this period, all time limitations for processing or filing the complaint will be tolled. An agency decision to hold a mixed case complaint in abeyance is not appealable to EEOC. If the MSPB's administrative judge finds that MSPB has jurisdiction over the matter, the agency shall dismiss the mixed case complaint and advise the complainant of the right to petition EEOC to review MSPB's final decision on the discrimination issue. If the MSPB administrative judge finds that MSPB does not have jurisdiction over the matter, the agency shall recommence processing of the mixed case complaint as a non-mixed case EEO complaint.

c. Where a complainant files with the agency first:

If an employee first files a mixed case complaint at the agency and then files a mixed case appeal with the MSPB, the agency should advise MSPB of the prior agency filing and request that the MSPB dismiss the appeal without prejudice.

d. Where a complainant has pending a non-mixed case complaint or a series of non-mixed case complaints and the matters raised in those complaints lead to an appeal on a matter that is appealable to the MSPB. (2)

If the agency believes that the non-mixed case complaint(s) are sufficiently related to the subsequent mixed case complaint, such that the mixed case matter cannot be adjudicated without also adjudicating the non-mixed matters, the agency must notify the complainant in writing that the filing of a mixed case appeal may terminate the processing of the non-mixed cases and that the non-mixed matters will be consolidated with the mixed case appeal.

The agency may file with the MSPB a motion to consolidate the non-mixed case matter with the mixed case appeal. Upon filing the motion, the non-mixed case complaints will be held in abeyance pending a decision by the MSPB Administrative Judge on the agency's motion. If the MSPB Administrative Judge should fail to consolidate the non-mixed case complaints, they shall be processed pursuant to section 1614.106, et seq. Time for processing will commence to run without notice, fifteen (15) days following the decision denying jurisdiction. The time periods are to run from the time processing ceased. This means that if processing of the non-mixed matter ceased on the 70th day, the count of days will begin with day 71.

5. Processing Where MSPB Dismisses a Mixed Case Appeal Because it Finds no Jurisdiction, (i.e., The case is not appealable to MSPB and thus not mixed)

If the individual files a mixed case appeal with MSPB and MSPB subsequently dismisses the appeal as non-jurisdictional, the agency must inform the individual that (s)he may contact a counselor within forty-five (45) days to raise the discrimination claim(s) and that the filing of the mixed case appeal will be deemed to be the date the individual initially contacted the counselor.

If the individual filed the appeal after the agency issued an agency final decision on the mixed case complaint or after the agency failed to issue a final decision on the mixed case complaint within 120 days, the agency must provide the complainant a thirty (30) day notice of right to elect a final decision with a hearing or an immediate final decision by the agency pursuant to section 1614.110 and thereafter proceed as in a non-mixed case.

6. Processing Mixed Case Complaints Filed at the Agency

If an employee elects to file a mixed case complaint, the agency must process the complaint in the same manner as it would any other discrimination complaint, except :

a. Within forty-five (45) days following completion of the investigation, the agency must issue a final decision.

b. Upon the filing of a complaint, the agency must advise the complainant that if a final decision is not issued within one hundred and twenty (120) days of the date of filing the mixed case complaint, the complainant may appeal the matter to the MSPB at any time thereafter, as specified in 5 C.F.R. § 1201.154(a), or may file a civil action as specified in section

c. Also upon the filing of a complaint, the agency must notify the complainant that if (s)he is dissatisfied with the agency's final decision on the mixed case complaint, (s)he may appeal the matter to the MSPB (not the EEOC) within twenty (20) days of receipt of the agency's final decision.

d. Upon issuance of the agency's final decision on a mixed case complaint, the

MSPB (not EEOC) within twenty (20) days of receipt of the notice and of the right to file a civil action as provided in section 1614.310(a).

III. NEGOTIATED GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES IN COLLECTIVE

BARGAINING AGREEMENTS

A. Where Agency is Covered by 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d).

The election to proceed under the negotiated grievance procedure or under part 1614 is set out in this Management Directive in Chapter 2 (EEO Counseling). The underlying principle is that an aggrieved employee who has a choice of forums in which to proceed cannot go forward in more than one forum (unless the employing agency is exempt from coverage of 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d)). This is true

"irrespective of whether the agency has informed the individual of the need to elect or of whether the grievance has raised an issue of discrimination."

If an employee first files a grievance and thereafter files a complaint of discrimination on the same matter, the complaint must be dismissed without prejudice to the complainant's right to proceed through the negotiated grievance procedure, including the right to appeal to the Commission from a final decision as provided in subpart D of part 1614 (Appeals and Civil Actions). The dismissal of the complaint must advise the complainant of the obligation to raise discrimination allegations in the grievance process and of the right to appeal the final grievance decision to the Commission. §

1614.301(a).

An individual is not prohibited from filing a grievance alleging a non-EEO discrimination matter and a complaint at the same time.

B. Where Agency is not Covered by 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d).

1. The U.S. Postal Service and the Tennessee Valley Authority are examples of two agencies not covered by 7121(d). In such agencies, aggrieved persons may file a complaint pursuant to part 1614 and may also file a grievance pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement where the agreement provides for filing complaints of discrimination on the same bases as part 1614.

2. In such agencies, complaints filed pursuant to part 1614 may be held in abeyance where a grievance is filed on the same matter, if written notice of the abeyance is provided.

3. Complaints may be held in abeyance until a final decision is issued on the grievance.

IV. PROCESSING NOTICES OF INTENT TO SUE UNDER AGE

DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT

It is incumbent upon Federal agency personnel responsible for processing discrimination complaints to inform complainants or potential complainants of the unique nature of age discrimination complaints and the following procedures

A. Election of Administrative Process

An aggrieved person may file an administrative age discrimination complaint with the agency pursuant to 29 C.F.R. Part 1614. If the aggrieved person elects to file an administrative complaint, (s)he must first exhaust administrative remedies before (s)he may file a civil action in U.S. district court. Exhaustion in an age case means that the complainant has pursued the administrative process to the point where a civil action may be filed, pursuant to section 1614.201. See also chapter 8, sections II and III.

B. Aggrieved May Bypass Administrative Process

An aggrieved person may bypass the administrative complaint process and file a civil action directly in U.S. District Court provided that the aggrieved person first provides the Commission with a written notice of intent to sue under the ADEA. The notice to the Commission must be filed within one hundred and eighty (180) days of the date of the alleged discriminatory action. Once a timely notice of intent to sue is filed with the Commission, the aggrieved person must wait at least thirty (30) days before filing a civil action.

C. Responsibilities Regarding Notices of Intent to Sue

The following is a statement of the procedures and a delineation of the responsibilities on the part of the aggrieved person, the Commission, and the agency with respect to the filing and processing of notices of intent to sue under the ADEA.

1. The Aggrieved Person

It is the responsibility of the aggrieved person to provide the Commission with a written notice of intent to sue within one hundred and eighty (180) days of the date of the alleged discriminatory action.

a. Notices of intent to sue must be mailed to the Commission at the following address:

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission
Office of Federal Operations
Federal Sector Programs
P. O. Box 19848
Washington, D.C. 20036
hand delivered to:

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission
Office of Federal Operations
Federal Sector Programs
1801 L Street N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20507
or facsimile sent to:
(202) 663-7022

b. The notice of intent to sue should be dated and must contain the following information:

- 1) statement of intent to file a civil action under section 15(d) of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, as amended;
- 2) name address, and telephone number of the employee or applicant;
- 3) name address, and telephone number of the complainant's designated representative, if any;
- 4) name and location of the Federal agency or installation where the alleged discriminatory action occurred;
- 5) date on which the alleged discriminatory action occurred;
- 6) statement of the nature of the alleged discriminatory action(s); and
- 7) signature of the complainant or the complainant's representative.

2. The Commission

Upon receipt of a notice of intent to sue, the Commission will promptly notify the concerned agency (and all persons named in the notice as prospective defendants in the action, if any), in writing, of its receipt of the notice of intent to sue and will provide the agency with a copy of the notice. Commission contact with the concerned agency will normally be through the agency headquarters level Office of Equal Employment Opportunity or similarly designated office, as the case may be. A copy of the Commission's notification will be provided to the aggrieved person and/or his/her representative, if any.

Additionally, the Commission will take any appropriate action to ensure the elimination of any unlawful practice.

Where an aggrieved person files a civil action before the agency has completed its inquiry, or before the Commission has reviewed the agency's disposition, the Commission will close the matter and will take no further action on the notice of intent to sue.

3. The Agency

Upon receipt of a notice of intent to sue, an agency must review the allegation(s) of age discrimination and conduct an inquiry sufficient to determine whether there is evidence that unlawful age discrimination has occurred. The method of the review/inquiry is a matter of determination by the particular agency and may vary depending on the scope and complexity of the allegations. Agencies are encouraged to make good faith efforts to resolve the matter.

V. EQUAL PAY ACT COMPLAINTS

Equal Pay Act (EPA) complaints will be administratively processed like Title

VII complaints. The complainants in EPA cases should be notified of the statute of limitations of two years, or three years for a willful violation, and of the right to file directly in Federal district court without first providing notice to the Commission or exhausting administrative remedies.

NOTICE OF POSSIBLE APPLICABILITY OF

5 U.S.C. § 7121(d) TO ALLEGED DISCRIMINATORY ACTION

Section 1614.105 of the regulations of the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission requires that upon an aggrieved person's initial contact with the Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) counselor, or as soon thereafter as possible, the counselor shall inform each aggrieved person of the possible applicability of 5 U.S.C.

§ 7121(d) to the alleged discriminatory action which caused the aggrieved person to seek EEO pre-complaint counseling. Further, the EEO counselor must communicate to the aggrieved person the substance of 29 C.F.R. § 1614.301 concerning the election of remedies.

Section 1614.301 (Relationship to Negotiated Grievance Procedure) provides as follows:

a) When a person is employed by an agency subject to 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d) and is covered by a collective bargaining agreement that permits allegations of discrimination to be raised in a negotiated grievance procedure, a person wishing to file a complaint or a grievance on a matter of alleged employment discrimination must elect to raise the matter under either part 1614 or the negotiated grievance procedure, but not both. An election to proceed under this part is indicated only by the filing of a written complaint; use of the pre-complaint process as described in section 1614.105 does not constitute an election for purposes of this section. An aggrieved employee who files a complaint under this part may not thereafter file a grievance on the same matter. An election to proceed under a negotiated grievance procedure is indicated by the filing of a timely written grievance. An aggrieved employee who files a grievance with an agency whose negotiated agreement permits the acceptance of grievances which allege discrimination may not thereafter file a complaint on the same matter under part 1614 are regardless of whether the agency has informed the individual of the need to elect or of whether the grievance has raised an issue of discrimination. Any such complaint filed after a grievance has been filed on the same matter shall be dismissed without prejudice to the complainant's right to proceed through the negotiated grievance procedure, including the right to appeal to the Commission from a final decision as provided in subpart D of this part. The notice of final action dismissing such a complaint shall advise the complainant of the obligation to raise discrimination in the grievance process and of the right to appeal the final grievance decision to the Commission.

b) When a person is not covered by a collective bargaining agreement that permits allegations of discrimination to be raised in a negotiated grievance procedure, allegations of discrimination shall be processed as complaints under this part.

c) When a person is employed by an agency not subject to 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d) and is covered by a negotiated grievance procedure, allegations of discrimination shall be processed as complaints under this part, except that the time limits for processing the complaint contained in section 1614.106 and for appeal to the Commission contained in section 1614.402 may be held in abeyance during processing of a grievance covering the same matter as the complaint if the agency notifies the complainant in writing that the complaint will be held in abeyance pursuant to this section. Accordingly, if you are alleging discrimination on the grounds of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, and/or handicap, and if you wish to pursue the matter, you must make an election to pursue it either as a complaint with your agency under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 or in a negotiated grievance procedure, if the following conditions apply:

1. You are an employee of a Federal agency subject to the provisions of 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d), and
2. You are covered by a collective bargaining agreement which permits allegations of discrimination to be raised in a negotiated grievance procedure.

If those two conditions apply to you, then you must elect one or the other procedure, but not both. An election is made as follows:

1. By filing a grievance in writing (whether or not the grievance has raised an allegation of discrimination), or
2. By filing a written formal EEO complaint with your agency under part 1614.

Use of the pre-complaint process (counseling) under section 1614.105 does not constitute an election.

If you have further questions concerning the possible applicability of 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d) to you, it is suggested that you immediately contact a representative of the employee organization which has a negotiated agreement with your agency or ask the EEO counselor for further information and assistance.

(1) This is not an all-inclusive list of those employees who have standing to appeal to the MSPB, and questions which arise in this area should be referred to the personnel office at the agency or to the MSPB.

(2) This provision is specifically meant to address those situations where a series of events connected in time or type, culminate in termination or appealable disciplinary action against a person with standing to appeal to the MSPB. Example: minor discipline, warnings or other matters which form the basis for a non-mixed case, but ultimately lead to suspension in excess of 14 days or termination which raise mixed case issues.

I. AGENCY SHALL ACKNOWLEDGE FORMAL COMPLAINT

Immediately upon receipt of a formal complaint of discrimination, the agency shall acknowledge receipt of the complaint in writing. The acknowledgment shall also inform the complainant of the date on which the complaint was filed and should inform the complainant of the issues alleged. Note that, if the complaint is mailed, the date of filing is the postmark date, not the date the agency received the complaint. The acknowledgment is not appealable. The agencies must also inform the complainant of the issue(s) to be investigated and, if appropriate, that the complaint, or a portion of the complaint, is dismissed. This may be done simultaneously with the acknowledgment. Copies of the acknowledgment and all subsequent actions on the complaint should be mailed or delivered to the complainant's representative.

II. THE AGENCY SHALL ALSO PROVIDE OTHER INFORMATION AND NOTICE OF RIGHTS

A. Agency Shall Inform the Complainant of the Agency's Obligations

1. To Investigate in a Timely Manner

The obligation to investigate in a timely manner. The investigation must be factually complete, impartial and finished within one hundred and eighty (180) days of filing the complaint or within the time period contained in an order from the Office of Federal Operations on an appeal from a dismissal pursuant to section 1614.107, unless the EEO Office or designee and the complainant agree in writing to an extension of not more than ninety (90) days. See § 1614.108(e).

2. To Process Mixed Cases Timely

The obligation to process mixed cases in a timely manner. With regard to mixed case complaints, if a final decision is not issued on a mixed case complaint within one hundred and twenty (120) days of the date of filing, the complainant may appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) at any time thereafter pursuant to 5 C.F.R. § 1201.154(b)(2) or may file a civil action as provided in section 1614.310(g), but not both. See § 1614.302(d)(1).

3. Unilateral Extension for Sanitizing Classified Information

The agency may, after providing notice to the complainant, unilaterally extend the time period or any period of extension for no more than 30 days where it must sanitize a complaint file that may contain information classified pursuant to Executive Order 12356 or successor orders as secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy.

B. Agency Shall Inform Complainant of His/Her Rights

The agency shall ensure that all rights enumerated in Chapters 2 and 3 are provided to every complainant. In addition, the agency shall inform the complainant of the following:

1. The Right to Hearing

The complainant has the right to request a hearing before an EEOC administrative judge (AJ) in a non-mixed case after 180 calendar days from the filing of a formal complaint or after completion of the investigation, whichever comes first.

2. The Right to Appeal

The complainant has the right to appeal the final decision or dismissal of all or a portion of the complaint.

a. The notice shall inform the complainant that (s)he may appeal within thirty

(30) days by mail to:

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission

Washington D. C. 20036

or hand deliver to:

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission

Office of Federal Operations

Washington, D.C. 20507

or send facsimile to:

(202) 663-7022.

b. The notice shall provide the information at 29 C.F.R. 1614.403 (a)-(d) (Use of appeal form EEOC Form 573, content of petition, service of copies on agency EEO director, and certification of delivery).

c. With regard to a mixed case, if the complainant is dissatisfied with the agency's final decision on the mixed case complaint, the complainant may appeal the matter to the MSPB, not the EEOC, within twenty

(20) days of receipt of the agency's final decision.

3. The Right to File a Civil Action

The complainant has the right to file a civil action in Federal district court on matters raised in the administrative process:

a. Within ninety (90) days of receipt of an agency final decision on an individual or class complaint if no appeal has been filed;

b. After one hundred and eighty (180) days from the date of filing an individual or class complaint if an appeal has not been filed and a final decision has not been issued;

c. Within ninety (90) days of receipt of the Commission's final decision on appeal; or

d. After one hundred and eighty (180) days from the date of filing an appeal with the Commission if there has been no final decision by the Commission.

4. See chapter 2, attachment E for detailed list.

C. Agency Information for all Witnesses-Including Agency Officials Alleged to have Discriminated Against the Complainant

Since the Agency officials alleged to have discriminated against the complainant often will be in the best position to articulate the non-discriminatory reason for taking the action complained about, it is particularly important that (s)he fully understand the investigatory process.

To this end, the Agency must ensure that these officials be given formal written notice of their right to representation and what materials are available and accessible in the case file if they are not already provided. This should apply to other witnesses as well to ensure consistent and fair treatment. The above written notice must be delivered each time information is sought by the investigator.

III. AGENCY DISMISSAL PROCESS

A. Agency Should Process Certain Dismissals Expeditiously

To conserve program resources and program integrity, certain dismissals should be processed expeditiously. Following are types of dismissals which should be made early in the administrative process:

1. Untimely Counseling Contact

a. The complaint raises a matter that has not been brought to the attention of a counselor and is not like or related to a matter that was brought to the attention of a counselor.

b. The aggrieved person did not contact an EEO counselor within forty-five (45) days of the discriminatory event or within forty-five (45) days of the effective date of the personnel action [29 C.F.R. § 1614.105(a)(1)], and

1) The aggrieved person did not show that the forty-five (45) day contact period should be extended pursuant to section 1614.105(a)(2). In other words,

(s)he could not establish that (s)he was not notified of the time limits and was not otherwise aware of them, or did not know and reasonably should not have known that the matter or personnel action occurred or that despite due diligence was prevented by circumstances beyond his/her control from contacting a counselor within the time limits, or for other reasons considered sufficient by the agency or the Commission, and

2) The aggrieved person cannot show other equitable circumstances that mitigate untimely contact. Time limits are subject to waiver, estoppel and equitable tolling under section 1614.604(c).

2. Untimely Filing of the Formal Complaint

The aggrieved failed to file a formal complaint within fifteen (15) days of the counselor's notice of right to file a formal complaint in an individual complaint [§ 1614.105(d)] or in a class complaint [§ 1614.204(c)].

3. Failure to State a Claim

The aggrieved person failed to state a claim under section 1614.103. A claim not covered by EEO statutes should be dismissed early. Also, where the improper agency is named, an early dismissal pursuant to section 1614.106(a) is expected.

B All Agency Dismissals Must Be Accompanied by Reasons for the Action and Must

Following are additional bases for dismissal under 29 C.F.R. Part 1614:

1. The complaint states the same claim that is pending before or had been decided by the agency or Commission except in those cases where a class action

2. The complainant files a civil action concerning the same matter, at least one hundred and eighty (180) days after (s)he filed his/her administrative complaint.

3. The same matter has been decided by a United States district court or court of appeals and the complainant was a party to the lawsuit.

[29 C.F.R. § 1614.107(c)]

4. The complainant has raised the matter in a negotiated grievance procedure that permits allegations of discrimination, indicating an election to pursue a

5. The complainant has elected to appeal the matter to the Merit Systems Protection Board, rather than file a mixed case complaint under section 1614.302.

[29 C.F.R. § 1614.107(d)]

6. The complaint alleges that a proposal to take or a preliminary step in taking a personnel action is discriminatory. (2)

7. The complaint is moot.

[29 C.F.R. § 1614.107(e)]

8. The complainant cannot be located provided that reasonable efforts have been made to locate the complainant and the complainant has not responded within fifteen (15) days to a notice of proposed dismissal sent to his or her last known address.

[29 C.F.R. § 1614.107(f)]

9. The complainant has failed to respond to a written "request to provide relevant information or to otherwise proceed" within fifteen (15) days of receipt provided that the request contained notice of the proposed dismissal and further provided that there is otherwise insufficient available information to adjudicate the matter.

10. The complainant refuses, within thirty (30) days of receipt of an agency offer of settlement, to accept the offer, providing that it is an offer of full relief containing a certification from the agency's EEO Director, chief legal officer, or designee reporting directly to the EEO Director or chief legal officer, that the offer constitutes full relief, and providing further that the offer gave notice that failure to accept within thirty (30) days would result in dismissal of the complaint. See section 1614.501 for appropriate relief. See also Chapter 9 on full relief and Handout at Appendix B to Chapter 9.

C. Processing of Partially Dismissed Complaints

Complainants dissatisfied with the agency's dismissal of all or part of the complaint can immediately appeal from the agency's dismissal. Where an appeal from a partial dismissal is filed, and the dismissal is reversed by the EEOC's Office of Federal Operations, the matter will be sent back to the agency for completion of the investigation. The time frame for completing the investigation of the accepted portion of the complaint will be stayed pending a decision on the appeal. Agencies may, but are not required to investigate the accepted portions of the complaint during this time period. When, on appeal, the dismissal of a portion of a complaint is upheld but the remainder of the complaint is to be processed administratively, the EEOC does not intend to force the complainant to proceed to court on the dismissed portion at that time. The complainant can wait until a final decision is issued by the agency or the EEOC on the merits of the remainder of the complaint and will have 90 days from receipt of that decision to file in Federal district court.

D. Allegations of Dissatisfaction Regarding Processing of Pending Complaints

If a complainant is dissatisfied with the processing of his/her pending complaint, whether or not it alleges prohibited discrimination as a basis for dissatisfaction, (s)he should be referred to the agency official responsible for the quality of complaints processing. Agency officials should earnestly attempt to resolve dissatisfaction with the complaints process as early and expeditiously as possible.

The agency must process complaints alleging discrimination pursuant to part 1614. Where an aggrieved person or participant in the EEO complaints process alleges that (s)he is treated differently or that (s)he is being adversely affected by a policy or practice having a discriminatory effect on the processing of his/her complaint on a basis protected by the laws which the EEOC enforces, the aggrieved person must be provided EEO counseling and the opportunity to file a formal complaint.

IV. I INVESTIGATIONS SHALL BE CONDUCTED BY THE AGENCY AGAINST WHICH THE COMPLAINT HAS BEEN FILED.

A. Agency Retains Responsibility

An agency may contract out an investigation or may arrange for another agency to conduct the investigation, but must remain responsible for the content and timeliness of the investigation.

B. Investigations Must Be Finished Timely

Investigations must be finished within one hundred and eighty (180) days of filing a complaint or within the time period contained in an order from the Office of Federal Operations to investigate a complaint following an appeal from a dismissal, unless the EEO Officer or designee and the complainant agree in writing to an extension of not more than an additional ninety (90) days.

C. Investigation Shall be Completed in a Manner Consistent with Chapter 5 of this Directive

D. What Must Be Done for an Investigation to Be Considered Complete

A timely completed investigation means that within the applicable time period:

4. the complaint must be investigated in a manner consistent with Chapter 5;

5. copies of the investigative file, including a summary (3 of investigation must be provided to the complainant(s); and

6. a thirty (30) day notice must be given to the complainant informing him of his/her right to request a hearing, if it is not a mixed case, or of the right to request an immediate final decision by the agency pursuant to section 1614.110.

V. FINAL DECISIONS

A. Final Decisions Must be Issued Within Sixty (60) Days

The agency shall issue a final decision within sixty (60) days of receiving notice that a complainant has requested an immediate decision from the agency; within sixty (60) days of the end of the 30-day period for requesting a hearing, if the agency has not received a timely request; or within sixty (60) days of receiving the findings and conclusions of an administrative judge.

B. Final Decisions Shall Include the Following:

1. findings on the merits of each issue in the complaint;
2. appropriate remedies and relief in accordance with subpart E of part 1614 when discrimination is found;
3. notice of right to appeal to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC Form 573, Notice of Appeal/Petition to be attached);

If a mixed case, notice of right to appeal to the MSPB (not the EEOC) within twenty (20) days of receipt of the agency final decision.

4. notice of right to file a civil action in Federal district court;
5. the name of the proper defendant in any such lawsuit; and,
6. the applicable time limits for appeals and lawsuits.

(1) In that case, an individual complaint will be subsumed under the class complaint.

(2) If the individual alleges, however, that the preliminary step was part of a pattern of harassing the individual for a prohibited reason, the complaint cannot be dismissed under this section because the preliminary step has already affected the employee.

(3) See Chapter 5 of this Management Directive for the nature and content of an investigative summary.

CHAPTER 5

DEVELOPMENT OF COMPLETE AND IMPARTIAL FACTUAL RECORDS PURSUANT TO 29 C.F.R. PART 1614

I. INTRODUCTION

Section 1614.108(b) requires that "the agency shall develop a complete and impartial factual record upon which to make findings on the matters raised by the written complaint." Pursuant to that regulation, this chapter prescribes the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's standards for completeness and impartiality in factual findings on formal complaints of discrimination. This chapter is intended to ensure that Federal agencies consistently develop sound factual bases for findings on matters raised in equal employment opportunity complaints while retaining the maximum flexibility in the use of fact-finding techniques and in the use of established dispute resolution plans. This directive is not intended as an exhaustive guide for conducting investigations, but represents the standard that the Commission should expect in an investigation.

II. CONTENTS OF A COMPLAINT FILE

The complaint file will include the various documents and information acquired during fact-finding under this directive, indexed and tabbed in accordance with the instructions contained in this chapter. The file will include affidavits or statements of the complainant and witnesses, copies (or extracts) of records, policy statements, or regulations of the agency, organized to show their relevance to the complaint or the general environment out of which the complaint arose. It will also include transcriptions, notes, or minutes of proceedings conducted pursuant to this directive along with an investigative summary of the findings.

The complaint file will also include letters, notes, and copies of letters and notes by, to, or from the investigator, the complainant, the EEO staff or counselor concerning the processing of the complaint. It should include a copy of the complaint and any notices of meetings and conferences. However, documentation concerning the substance of attempts to resolve the complaint during informal counseling or during any alternative dispute resolution procedure should not be included in the complaint file.

III. RESPONSIBILITIES

A. Director of Equal Employment Opportunity

The Director of Equal Employment Opportunity shall ensure that (1) all issues listed are investigated, (2) that all employees of the agency cooperate in the investigation, and (3) that witness testimony is given under oath or affirmation and without a promise that the information will be kept confidential.

The Director will also ensure that individual complaints are properly and thoroughly investigated and that final decisions are issued in a timely manner in accordance with 29 C.F.R. § 1614.110.

B. Equal Employment Opportunity Investigator

The equal employment opportunity investigator is a person officially designated and authorized to conduct inquiries into matters raised in equal employment opportunity complaints. The authorization includes the authority to administer oaths and to require employees to furnish testimony under oath or affirmation without a promise of confidentiality.

C. Complainant

The complainant must cooperate in the investigation and keep the agency informed of his/her current address. Where the agency has provided the complainant with a written request to provide relevant information or otherwise

a failure to respond could result in dismissal of the complaint. § 1614.107(g).

IV. INVESTIGATION

An investigation of a formal complaint of discrimination is an official review or inquiry, by persons authorized to conduct such inquiries or reviews, into matters raised in an equal employment opportunity complaint.

The investigative process is non-adversarial. That means that the investigator is obligated to collect evidence regardless of the parties' positions with respect to the items of evidence.

A. Methods of Investigation

1. Statement of Issues Accepted

A copy of a statement of the issues accepted for investigation shall be provided to the investigator prior to the commencement of the investigation.

The statement of issue must agree with those issues contained in the acknowledgment letter to the complainant.

2.A Variety of Fact-Finding Techniques Allowed

Investigative inquiries may be made using a variety of fact-finding models, such as the interview or the fact-finding conference, and a variety of devices, such as requests for information, position statements, exchange of letters or memoranda, interrogatories, and affidavits. The inquiry/review process may also incorporate some of the features of a dispute resolution plan.

B. Purpose of the Investigation

The purpose of the investigation is to (1) gather facts upon which to base a determination as to whether an agency subject to coverage under the statutes which the Commission enforces in the Federal sector has violated a provision of any of those statutes (1 and (2) if a violation is found, to have a sufficient factual basis from which to fashion an appropriate remedy.

C. General Investigative Requirements

The investigation shall include a thorough review of the circumstances under which the alleged discrimination occurred, the treatment of members of the complainant's group as compared with the treatment of other similarly situated employees, and any policies and/or practices which may constitute or appear to constitute discrimination, even though they have not been expressly cited by the complainant. The investigative report must include a section devoted to the articulation of the nondiscriminatory reason for the action alleged to be discriminatory. This must include as a minimum, the articulation of the non-discriminatory reason or reasons given by the Agency official alleged to have committed the discriminatory act or acts. If this specific information is not initially obtained, it must be specifically requested, obtained and included in the investigative report. This section may (and usually will) contain any other defenses articulated by other management officials or witnesses. Any allegation not supported in any way by the facts should be identified as such so that the responsible management official can be exonerated.

V. THE ROLE OF THE INVESTIGATOR

A. Collecting and Discovering Factual Information

The role of the investigator is to collect and to discover factual information concerning the issues in the complaint under investigation and to prepare an investigative summary.

B. Variety of Methods Available

The investigator may accomplish his/her mission in a variety of ways. The investigator may function as:

7. a presiding official at a fact-finding conference,
8. an examiner responsible for developing material evidence,
9. an issuer of requests for information in the form of requests for the production of documents, interrogatories, and affidavits, and/or,
10. a face-to-face interviewer in on-site visits.

C. Investigator Must Be Unbiased and Objective

In whatever the mix of fact-finding activity selected for a particular case, the investigator must be and must maintain the appearance of being unbiased, objective, and thorough. (S)he must be neutral in his/her approach to factual development. The investigator is not an advocate for any of the parties or interests and should refrain from developing allegiances to them. In addition, the following rules must be observed:

4. The person assigned to investigate shall not occupy a position in the agency that is directly or indirectly under the jurisdiction of the head of that part of the agency in which the complaint arose.

5. The investigator, if a contract investigator, shall not have been hired by or be obligated to the person(s) involved in the matter(s) giving rise to the complaint. For example, where the contract monitor of EEO investigation contracts is alleged to have been involved in discriminatory activity, the use of the usual contract investigator would create an apparent bias because there is at best the appearance that the contract investigator could not be impartial.

6. An agency is prohibited, in some situations, from using its own immediate investigative resources, even though the investigation of discrimination complaints in the Federal service is primarily an agency function and responsibility. In such cases the agency shall use alternatives, such as contract investigators or other outside sources. Such situations include, but are not limited to:

a) Particularly sensitive cases involving high-level officials (e.g., complainant is an immediate subordinate of the head of the agency and the head of the agency is alleged to have taken discriminatory action).

b) Potential conflict of interest (e.g., complainant is an employee in the EEO office and names the EEO director as the person taking the wrongful action).

c) A small agency unable to carry out an unexpected EEO workload (e.g., an agency with less than 450 employees has a staff of part-time or ad hoc EEO investigators and is unable to absorb an additional investigative caseload).

D. Investigator Must Be Thorough

This means identifying and obtaining all relevant evidence from all sources regardless of how it may affect the outcome.

The investigator need not concern himself/herself with balancing the amount of evidence supporting the complainant as compared with the amount of evidence supporting the agency. To ensure a balanced record, it is necessary only to exhaust all sources likely to support the complainant and the respondent. An investigation conducted in this manner might reveal that there is ample evidence to support the complainant's allegations and no evidence to support the agency's version of the facts, or vice versa.

Nevertheless, this investigation would be complete.

Since Agency officials from the Office of Personnel are often knowledgeable about sources of relevant/material information or evidence pertaining to individual complaints, the investigator must solicit this input from a designated official in the Office of Personnel as an integral part of every investigation.

VI. EVIDENCE

A. Quality of Evidence

Evidence will be gathered from the complainant, witnesses, and other sources.

In order to support findings and ultimately decisions, this evidence should be material to the complaint, relevant to the issue(s) raised in the complaint,

1. Material Evidence

Evidence is material when it relates to one or more of the issues raised in the complaint or raised by the agency's answer to it. To determine whether evidence is material, one must look to the allegations of discriminatory conduct and resultant harm contained in the complaint and the agency's answers to the allegations. If the evidence relates to one or more of those matters, then it relates to matters at issue and it is material.

2. Relevant Evidence

Evidence is relevant if it tends to prove or disprove a material issue raised by a complaint. Relevancy and materiality are often used interchangeably. Generally, relevance is the more important concept in an investigation. If evidence is not relevant, whether it is material is of little consequence. A test of relevance is to ask, "What does this evidence tend to prove?" If the answer is that it tends to prove or disprove a proposition that is related to the complaint, then the evidence is relevant.

3. Reliable Evidence

Evidence is reliable if it is dependable or trustworthy. Evidence should not be ignored because it is of questionable reliability. Such evidence may lead to evidence that is reliable.

Some factors to consider in determining whether testimony is reliable are: whether the witness' testimony is based on his/her own experience and personal knowledge, or based on rumor, hearsay, or innuendo; whether the testimony is a statement of fact or is merely a conclusion; and whether witnesses have an interest in the outcome of the complaint, or are otherwise biased.

Some factors to consider in determining whether documents are reliable are: whether they were prepared in response to the investigation or whether they are maintained in the ordinary course of business; whether they are obtained from the custodian of records or the author of the document; whether they are copies or original documents and whether the documents are signed and/or dated.

The rules of evidence were designed to set limits on the reliability of documents and testimony entered in evidence in court. Such formal rules not be strictly applied in the collection of evidence for the investigation of Federal equal employment opportunity complaints. Such rules may be used, however, as a guide in assessing the evidentiary weight to be given particular items of evidence.

B. Types of Evidence

There are many types of evidence which can be obtained on the issues raised in an equal employment complaint. The three basic types of evidence are circumstantial evidence (e.g. comparative evidence or other evidence giving rise to an inference of discrimination), direct evidence, and statistical evidence.

1. Comparative Evidence

Comparative evidence must be sought in every case alleging disparity in treatment on a basis protected by a law enforced by the EEOC.

One of the challenges of developing comparative evidence is gathering sufficient evidence to determine whether the comparatives are similarly situated with respect to the complainant. In general, similarly situated means that the persons who are being compared are so situated that it is reasonable to expect that they would receive the same treatment in the context of a particular employment decision. It is important to remember that individuals may be similarly situated for one employment decision, but not for another. For example, a female GS-4 clerk-typist may be similarly situated to a male GS-7 paralegal in a discrimination case involving the approval of annual leave where the same rules are applied to both by the same supervisor or where both are in the same unit or subject to the same chain of command. The investigator would be obligated to find out whether there were indeed persons, not named by the complainant but similarly situated, whose treatment could be compared to the complainant's treatment.

2. Direct Evidence

Direct evidence of discrimination consists of facts which reveal that intentional discrimination caused an adverse action without the need to resort to inference or circumstantial evidence.

Direct evidence is relevant in cases involving disparate treatment where the question is whether the employer intentionally treated employees differently because of a protected factor. It is also relevant in cases involving the effect of policies where the question is whether the policy disparately treats all employees in the protected class.

Direct evidence is rare. The statement "I would never hire a woman for that job" is direct evidence of discrimination on the basis of sex in hiring.

3. Statistical Evidence

Statistical evidence or a survey of the general environment will be conducted as appropriate. For example, this evidence may be probative when allegations involve comparative treatment of groups, as in an allegation of a pattern or practice of discrimination, or the adverse effect of an agency policy or practice.

C. Sources of Evidence

1. The Complainant

The equal employment opportunity complaint will generally provide the initial information concerning the bases, issues, and incidents which gave rise to the complaint of discrimination. The complaint may also indicate the reason, if any was given, for any adverse employment decision. Additional background and detailed information must be obtained from the complainant and recorded through written questions and answers (interrogatories), recorded interviews (using handwritten notes or verbatim transcription), an exchange of letters or memoranda, or a fact-finding conference. This information should include medical documentation, where necessary. Witness testimony intended to be made a part of the complaint file should be made under oath or affirmation or penalty of perjury.

That volume contains substantive topics arranged in sections. Most sections contain advice on what questions to ask when certain issues are raised. The Commission's Compliance Manual is published commercially and is available at many libraries and at the Commission's district, area, and field offices.

2. The Agency

Information from the agency may be obtained initially through a request for information. Consult the agency Director of EEO or EEO officer for instructions concerning to whom to direct the request. The EEOC Compliance Manual, Volume I,

Section 26.3 provides some guidance on developing requests for information. Follow-up information should be obtained in a variety of ways, including further requests, affidavits, interrogatories, or a fact-finding conference.

In most instances, the individual who initiated or enforced the decision about which the complaint was filed should be interviewed early in the investigation.

His/her reasons for the action will often open other avenues to explore. The designated official from the Office of Personnel also must be solicited for sources of information and additional witnesses if any.

3. Witnesses

Witnesses can be identified by asking the complainant, the official involved in the alleged discriminatory action, or other obvious witnesses if they are aware of other persons who might have information related to the complaint.

Witnesses

a. The EEO staff may be of some assistance in discovering other witnesses, but they should rarely be witnesses themselves. Their information will usually be hearsay and their use as a witness would compromise their objectivity. The primary source of the information is required.

b. Witness bias should be noted when it is discovered. The following should be noted: 1) Favorable feelings toward a party based on a mutual alliance, family ties, or close friendship; 2) hostility to a party, because of a past disagreement; and 3) self-interest in the outcome of the complaint are some indicators of potential bias. The indicators should be made a part of the record, and efforts should be made to corroborate the testimony. The weight accorded the evidence adduced from such witnesses will be governed by the degree to which it can be determined that the bias colored the testimony.

4. Documentary Evidence

All relevant documents should be obtained. The complainant, the supervisor, the manager who took the personnel action, or the personnel office of the agency,

Statistical evidence can usually be obtained through the EEO Office or the personnel office of the agency.

D. Evidence on the Question of Remedies

Where it appears to an agency that a finding of discrimination is likely, evidence should be gathered from which an appropriate remedy can be fashioned.

This essentially means that a determination of the parameters of full relief should be made and the appropriate inquiries developed. Agencies should be aware that, during the investigative process, they need to address evidence that may be used in connection with framing remedies. Evidence on the question of remedies may include evidence of a complainant's interim earnings or subsequent promotions (in a discharge or non-promotion case) or other mitigating factors. See Chapter 9 on full relief.

VII. Witnesses and Representatives in the Federal EEO Process

The procedures outlined here relate specifically to the processing of individual complaints of discrimination under section 1614.108. The principles reflected in these procedures, however, should also guide the processing of class complaints of discrimination under section 1614.204.

A. Disclosure of Investigative Material to Witnesses

1. To the complainant

The complainant must receive a copy of the complaint file and a transcript of the hearing, if a hearing is held.

2. To other witnesses

Agencies may disclose information and documents to a witness where the investigator determines that the disclosure of the information or documents is necessary to obtain information from the witness, e.g. to explain the allegations in a complaint or to explain a manager's articulated reason for an action in order to develop evidence bearing on that reason.

3. The Agency Official Alleged to Have Discriminated Against the Complainant

The agency official responsible for allegedly discriminatory activity is a witness and is entitled to no more rights than any other witness. However, since this official is the one who usually bears the burden of articulating the non-discriminatory reason for taking the action complained against, it is necessary for the investigator to ensure that all information in the complaint file has been made available so that a thorough defense may be proffered. The Agency is responsible for remedial action in the event that they determine that the complainant has been discriminated against illegally. Since the remedial action could well be against the responsible management official, it is only fair that (s)he be allowed a full and complete opportunity to provide input and articulate non-discriminatory reasons on all of the evidence to be used in the formal investigation.

This has not always been so. On March 13, 1978, The former U.S. Civil Service Commission, in a Federal Personnel Manual (FPM) Letter 713-42, titled Participation in the Discrimination Complaint Process of Persons Named as "Alleged Discriminatory Officials," set forth guidance on the participation in the EEO process of persons alleged to have discriminated against complainants.

The EEOC adopted the substance of that guidance on November 29, 1978 [See 43

Fed Reg. 60901]. For many years that guidance controlled the ADO's access to complaint file information. On October 15, 1987, the EEOC revoked its adoption of several FPM Letters and Civil Service Commission Bulletins, but retained the ADO participation provisions. Then, effective November 30, 1987, the EEOC adopted new EEO complaint procedures which deleted the term and concept of an ADO [52 Fed. Reg. 41920, October 30, 1987]. In the supplementary information, the EEOC expressed the view that an individual who is named or is identified as the person responsible for the action which gave rise to a complaint is a witness whose participation in the complaint process should not be materially different from that of any other witness. After the Commission's deletion of the term and concept of an ADO, some Federal agencies decided to coin new terms for ADO's, such as "Responsible Management Officials", "Responding Management Officials," and others. From a legal standpoint, complaints are filed against Federal agencies as entities regardless of whether a complainant names or identifies the person responsible for the action which gave rise to the complaint. The agency is responsible for remedial action in the event that it is determined that the complainant has been discriminated against illegally. Agencies must determine, on a case-by-case basis, whether individual employees should be disciplined. However the disciplinary matter is a matter separate from whether discriminatory conduct has occurred. The primary purpose of the complaint process is to determine whether discriminatory conduct occurred and not to provide a separate set of rules for agency officials who are identified as being responsible for the actions which gave rise to the allegations of discrimination. The responsible management official should have access to case materials to the extent needed to respond to allegations and give evidence. The agency has the burden of determining what case material may be released in accordance with The Privacy Act. Agencies should treat all witnesses consistently and fairly. They should be fully informed of the nature of a counselor's or an investigator's inquiry and allowed to respond fully to the inquiry and informed of the right to be represented at any stage of the EEO complaint process.

B. Travel Expenses

1. Witness Employed by Federal Government

Section 1614.605(f) requires that, when the presence of a witness is required or authorized by agency or Commission officials in connection with a complaint, the witness be in an official duty status. A witness is entitled to travel expenses. If a witness is employed at an agency other than the one against which the complaint is brought and must travel to provide the attestation or testimony, the witness is entitled to reimbursement for travel expenses. The current employing agency of a Federal employee must initially authorize and pay the employee's travel expenses and is entitled to reimbursement from the responding agency which is ultimately responsible for the cost of the employee's travel. Decision of the Comptroller General, Matter of John Booth -

2. Outside Complainant or Applicant Not Employed by Federal Government

The agency is not responsible, however, for paying the travel expenses of an "outside" complainant or applicant. Although the complainant who, for purposes of his/her complaint is a witness, may once have been employed by the agency against whom she/he complains, the termination of the employment status with the Federal government also terminates any Federal obligation to pay travel expenses associated with prosecution of the complaint. Decision of the Comptroller General, Matter of: Expenses of Outside Applicant Complainant to Travel to Agency EEO Hearing, File: B-202845, 61 Comp. Gen. 654 (1982).

C. Official Time

Section 1614.605 provides that complainants are entitled to a representative of their choice during pre-complaint counseling and at all stages of the complaint process. Both the complainant and the representative, if they are employees of the agency where the complaint arose and was filed, are entitled to a reasonable amount of official time to present the complaint and to respond to agency requests for information, if otherwise on duty. Witnesses who are Federal employees, regardless of whether they are employed by the respondent agency or some other Federal agency, shall be in a duty status when their presence is authorized or required by Commission or agency officials in connection with the complaint.

1. Reasonable Amount of Official Time

"Reasonable" is defined as whatever is appropriate, under the particular circumstances of the complaint, in order to allow a complete presentation of the relevant information associated with the complaint and to respond to agency requests for information. The actual number of hours to which complainant and his/her representative are entitled will vary, depending on the nature and complexity of the complaint and considering the mission of the agency and the agency's need to have its employees available to perform their normal duties on a regular basis. Complainant and the agency should arrive at a mutual understanding as to the amount of official time to be used prior to the complainant's use of such time.

2. Meeting and Hearing Time

Since most of the time spent by complainants and their representatives during the processing of a typical complaint is spent in meetings and hearings with agency officials or with EEOC administrative judges, and since complainants and their representatives generally have no control over the length of those meetings and hearings, whatever time is spent in such meetings and hearings is automatically deemed reasonable. Stated another way, whenever the presence of a complainant and/or his/her representative is required by an agency or an EEOC official in connection with an investigation or hearing on the complaint, both the complainant and the representative are to be granted official time for the duration of such meetings or hearings and are in a duty status regardless of their tour of duty.

3. Preparation Time

Since presentation of a complaint involves preparation for meetings and hearings, as well as attendance at such meetings and hearings, complainants and their representatives are also afforded a reasonable amount of official time, as defined above, to prepare for meetings and hearings. They are also to be afforded a reasonable amount of official time to prepare the formal complaint and any appeals that may be filed with the Commission, even though no meetings or hearings are involved. However, because investigations are conducted by agency or Commission personnel, the regulation does not envision large amounts of official time for preparation purposes. Consequently, "reasonable," with respect to preparation time (as opposed to time actually spent in meetings and hearings), is generally defined in terms of hours, not in terms of days, weeks, or months. Again, what is reasonable depends on the individual circumstances of each complaint.

4. Aggregate Time Spent on EEO Matters

The Commission considers it reasonable for agencies to expect their employees to spend most of their time doing the work for which they are employed. Therefore, an agency may restrict the overall hours of official time afforded to a representative, for both preparation purposes and for attendance at meetings and hearings, to a certain percentage of that representative's duty hours in any given month, quarter, or year. Such overall restrictions would depend on the nature of the position occupied by the representative, the relationship of that position to the mission of the agency, and the degree of hardship imposed on the mission of the agency by the representative's absence from his/her normal duties. The amount of official time to be afforded to an employee for representational activities will vary with the circumstances. Moreover, section 1614.605(c) provides that, in cases where the representation of a complainant or agency would conflict with the official or collateral duties of the representative, the Commission or the agency may, after giving the representative an opportunity to respond, disqualify the representative. At all times, the complainant is responsible for proceeding with the complaint, regardless of whether (s)he has a designated representative. The Commission does not require agencies to provide official time to employee representatives who are representing complainants in cases against other Federal agencies. However, the Commission encourages agencies to provide such official time.

D. Duty Status/Tour of Duty

For purposes of these regulations, "duty status" means the complainant's or representative's normal hours of work.

It is expected that agency and Commission officials will, to the extent practical, schedule meetings and hearings during the complainant's normal working hours and that agency officials shall provide official time for complainants and representatives to attend such meetings and hearings. If meetings and hearings are scheduled outside of the complainant's or the representative's normal work hours, agencies should adjust or rearrange the complainant's or representative's work schedule to coincide with such meetings or hearings, or grant compensatory time or official time to allow an approximately equivalent time off during normal hours of work. The selection of the appropriate method for making the complainant or representative available in any individual circumstance shall be within the discretion of the agency.

Any reasons for an agency's denial of official time should be fully documented and made a part of the complaint file.

Witnesses who are Federal employees, regardless of their tour of duty and whether they are employed by the respondent agency or another Federal agency, must be in a duty status when their presence is authorized or required by Commission or agency officials in connection with a complaint.

E. Use of Government Property

Since the filing of an EEO complaint is a personal matter, the complainant's use of government property in the processing of the complaint must be authorized by the agency.

VIII. COMPLAINT FILE

A. Contents of the Complaint File

The complaint file will be assembled in a suitable binder, have a title page

(see Appendix B of this chapter), and contain all documents pertinent to the complaint, including the following:

1. The notice of the EEO counselor to the complainant pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §

2. The written report of the EEO counseling efforts pursuant to § 1614.105(c), and any attached documents.

3. A copy of the complaint.

4. Acknowledgment of filing of complaint.

5. If the complaint is withdrawn in whole or in part, or otherwise amended or changed, the withdrawal or changes must be in writing and signed by the complainant. A copy of the signed withdrawal or change must be made a part of

6. If adjustment or resolution of the complaint is reached, the terms of the adjustment or resolution must be reduced to writing and included in the complaint file.

7. A notice of issues to be investigated.

8. A record of any activity before the EEOC, Office of Federal Operations.

9. Evidence collected by the investigator.

10. A summary of the investigation.

B. Features of the Complaint File

The completed complaint file shall have the following features:

1. Case Index to documents and exhibits.

2. Tabbed sections for documents, exhibits, and explanatory material.

3. A typed summary of the investigation signed and dated by the investigator and containing a discussion and analysis of the evidence. See section VIII of this chapter and volume 2, EEOC's Compliance Manual for further guidance.

C. Format for the Complaint File

The following is a suggested format for complaint files.

Case Index -The index to the file should list the contents of the file by tab

Tab A Tab A should contain the formal complaint and documents submitted by the complainant. (Individual documents under each tab should be consecutively numbered in addition to being identified as part of the tab. Example A-1,

A-3, etc.).

Tab B Tab B should contain the EEO counselor's report and all documents generated in the informal process. Included here should be the notice of right to file a complaint.

Tab C Tab C should contain the agency's notice of issues to be investigated pursuant to section IV.A.1. of this chapter. Copies of any other documents bearing on delineation of the issues to be investigated should also be included.

Tab D Tab D should contain documentation of attempts at informal resolution.

Tab E Tab E should contain any documentation of appellate activity and any decisions affecting the processing of the complaint.

Tab F Tab F should contain the evidence and documents in a logical order, with documents further separated by numerical tabs as necessary.

Tab G Tab G should contain any miscellaneous material.

D. Availability of Complaint Files

The complainant and his/her representative shall be entitled to one copy each of the complaint file and investigative summary at the time that the investigation is completed.

E. Disposition of Complaint Files

1. Effective October 1, 1980, the former National Archives and Records Service revised General Records Schedule 1, Item 26, titled Equal Employment Opportunity Records, to reflect the transfer of the appeals function from the Office of Personnel Management to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

General Records Schedule 1, Item 26 provides:

26. Equal Employment Opportunity Records.

a. Official Discrimination Complaint Files.

Originating Agency's file containing complaints with related correspondence, reports, exhibits, withdrawal notices, copies of decisions, records of hearings and meetings, and other records as described in 29 C.F.R. § 1613.222 [now 29

C.F.R. Part 1614, (2)

Authorized Disposition

Destroy 4 years after resolution of case.

2. The agency originating the equal employment opportunity case will retain the original ("official") file during the appeals process and send only duplicate copies of documents to EEOC for use in the appeal. The agency sending the duplicates will certify that the file contains everything that is in the original.

3. EEOC will create documents relating to the appeal, but will file such documents apart from the materials sent by the originating agency. After resolution of the appeal, the Commission will destroy all duplicate materials, but will retain the appeals documentation for four years. The originating agency will retain the original file for four years after resolution of the case. EEOC will retain the appeals documentation and will answer Freedom of Information Act requests on the appeals file. The EEOC will maintain the security of documents as required by Federal Statutes and Executive Orders.

4. The originating agency will be responsible for retiring the original case file to the Federal Records Center, and answering Freedom of Information Act requests on the original file. Requests for disclosure, which the EEOC determines are requests for the agency's complaint file, will be forwarded to the agency for a response.

5. Further information concerning the disposition of records under this section

IX. THE INVESTIGATIVE SUMMARY

The investigative summary is a narrative document which succinctly states the issues and delineates the evidence addressing both sides of each issue in the case. The summary should state facts (supported in the complaint file) sufficient to sustain a conclusion(s), but should not state the conclusion(s).

HANDICAP-REASONABLE ACCOMMODATION

PRIMA FACIE CASE -- Where Complainant Alleges a Failure to Provide a Reasonable

Accommodation:

- 1) Does complainant have a physical or mental impairment?
  - 2) Does this impairment substantially limit complainant's ability to perform a major life activity (e.g., caring for one's self, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, and working)? Provide evidence on the activities affected, how they are affected, and the degree to which they are affected (can't do the activity at all, can only do the activity with assist devices or equipment, can only do the activity for a limited period of time, etc.).
  - 3) Does the agency know of the complainant's handicap?
  - 4) Is the complainant otherwise qualified? (i.e., Does the complainant meet the education and experience requirements of the job?)
  - 5) What are the essential functions of the complainant's job?
  - 6) Did complainant request accommodation?
  - 7) What action did the agency take to identify possible accommodation or attempt accommodation? What accommodation, if any, did the complainant suggest?

10) What reason has the agency given for its refusal?

11) If the agency contends that a particular accommodation would impose an undue hardship on its operations, are these reasons sufficient to establish an undue hardship defense given:

a) the overall size of the agency's program (the number of employees, number and type of facilities and size of budget);

b) type of agency operation (composition and structure of work force);

c) nature and cost of accommodation.

which they are affected (can't do the activity at all, can only do the activity

of time, etc.).

3) Does the complainant have a record or history of a substantially limiting impairment (from which the complainant may have recovered in whole or in part)?

OR

Was the complainant regarded as having such an impairment (whether or not the complainant has an impairment or a substantially limiting impairment)?

4) Does the agency know of the complainant's handicap?

5) Is complainant qualified to perform the essential functions of the job with or without reasonable accommodation:

a. Is the complainant otherwise qualified (i.e., does the complainant meet the educational and experience requirements of the job)?

b. What are the essential functions of the complainant's job?

c. Can complainant perform the essential functions of the job with or without accommodation? If an accommodation is necessary, see Model for Analysis -- Handicap -- Reasonable Accommodation, Attachment A-5.

HANDICAP -- REASSIGNMENT

PRIMA FACIE CASE -- Where Complainant Requests Reassignment Pursuant to 29 C.F.R. § 1614.203(g)

1) Has the Complainant successfully completed his/her probationary period with the agency?

2) Does Complainant have a physical or mental impairment?

3) Does this impairment substantially limit complainant's ability to perform a major life activity (e.g., caring for one's self, performing manual tasks, walking, seeing, hearing, speaking, breathing, learning, and working)?

Provide evidence on the activities affected, how they are affected, and the degree to which they are affected (can't do the activity at all, can only do the activity with assist devices or equipment, can only do the activity for a limited period of time, etc.).

4) Is the complainant no longer able to perform the essential functions of the position because of the handicap?

5) Can the complainant perform the essential functions of another funded vacant position with reasonable accommodation if necessary?

a. Is this new position located within the same commuting area, serviced by the same appointing authority, and at the same grade or level as the original position?

b. In the absence of a position at the same grade or level, is reassignment to a vacant position at the highest available grade or level below the employee's current grade or level possible?

Handicap -- Reassignment

EXCEPTIONS TO THE DUTY TO REASSIGN NON-COMPETITIVELY

Has the agency already posted a notice or announcement seeking applications for the vacant position before determining that the non-probationary employee is unable to perform the essential functions of his/her current position even with a reasonable accommodation?

Did the handicapped person apply for the advertised position? If so, has the agency considered the handicapped person on an equal basis with those who applied for the position.

The term "individual with handicaps" shall not include an individual who is currently engaging in the illegal use of drugs. See 1614.203(h).

LIMITATIONS ON THE DUTY TO REASSIGN U.S. POSTAL SERVICE EMPLOYEES.

Is the complainant an employee of the U.S. Postal Service for whom a reassignment would be inconsistent with the term of any applicable collective bargaining agreement?

NOTE

There is no duty to reassign where an agency proposes the removal of a person with a handicap for failure to perform the essential duties of the position when such failure is not because of the handicap.

RELIGIOUS ACCOMMODATION

PRIMA FACIE CASE

1) Does the complainant sincerely hold a religious belief which conflicts with employment requirements?

2) Has the complainant informed his/her superior of a conflict?

3) Has the complainant been penalized for failing to comply with employment requirements?

1) Belief or practice not of religious nature [rare: belief is not sincere]

2) Agency could not accommodate without undue hardship

HEARINGS

I. INTRODUCTION

In individual complaints of discrimination, an agency must, pursuant to section

1614.108(f), notify the complainant of his/her right to request, within 30 days of receipt of the investigative file, a hearing on the complaint by an EEOC administrative judge. Hearings are governed by section 1614.109. In the case of accepted class complaints, an EEOC administrative judge will, pursuant to section 1614.204(h), conduct a hearing on the complaint in accordance with section 1614.109(a) through (f).

Generally, an administrative judge will conduct a hearing on the merits of a complaint unless: (1) the parties mutually resolve the complaint and the hearing request is withdrawn; (2) the hearing request is otherwise voluntarily withdrawn; (3) the complaint is remanded for failure to prosecute; or (4) the administrative judge determines that some or all material facts are not in genuine dispute and issues an order limiting the scope of the hearing, or if the administrative judge decides to issue findings and conclusions without a hearing pursuant to section 1614.109(e) (2) or (3).

The hearing is an adjudicatory proceeding which completes the investigation of a complaint by ensuring that the parties have a fair and reasonable opportunity to explain and supplement the record and to examine and cross-examine witnesses. An administrative judge from the EEOC adjudicates claims of discrimination and issues findings and conclusions.

It is the obligation of the parties to obtain and enter into the record any evidence necessary to such an adjudication. The Commission will be less inclined to remand for further supplementation of the record where parties had the notice and opportunity to develop the record below.

II. THE ROLES OF THE AGENCY AND THE ADMINISTRATIVE JUDGE

A. Agency Responsibility at the Hearing Stage

1. Room and Notice to Witnesses

The agency is responsible for arranging for an appropriate size room in which to hold the hearing and for ensuring that all approved witnesses who are Federal employees are notified of the date and time of the hearing and the approximate time that their presence will be required.

2. Hearings are closed to the public.

Hearings are a part of the investigative process and access to the hearing room and the record of the hearing shall be restricted in accordance with the Commission's regulations and policies and the discretion of the administrative judge.

3. Verbatim Hearing Transcripts and Court Reporters

The agency shall arrange and pay for a verbatim transcript of the hearing proceedings pursuant to section 1614.109(f). All documents submitted to, and accepted by, the administrative judge shall become a part of the record. The administrative judge shall issue findings and conclusions on the merits of the complaint, including appropriate relief where discrimination is found. Agencies should instruct reporters with whom they contract to submit bills to the agency, but to submit the original and all copies (usually two) of the transcript to the Commission's administrative judge, who can provide verification of transcript receipt and the number of pages in the transcript.

Contracts with court reporting firms must require delivery of the transcript to the administrative judge within 21 calendar days or less after the close of the hearing. If the administrative judge identifies a problem with timely delivery of the transcript or any other difficulty, (s)he should contact the agency directly to resolve the matter. The agency shall take any steps necessary to ensure that the transcript is provided as expeditiously as possible. Absent a specific memorandum of understanding with the EEOC, the agency may not use agency employees to transcribe the proceedings. Although Federal agencies are required to comply with their internal contracting procedures in contracting for reporters, EEOC district offices can, upon request, furnish to Federal agencies the names and addresses of responsible reporters in the geographic area where the hearing is to be held.

As a matter of information, the General Services Administration also maintains a list of court reporters available to agencies in the Federal Supply Schedule.

4. The Site of the Hearing

Attachment A to Chapter 7 (Class Complaints) of the management directive is a list of the addresses of the EEOC district and field offices and their geographic jurisdictions. Agencies' requests for a hearing must be sent to the district office having jurisdiction of the agency facility where the complaint arose. Should the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose not fall within one of the geographical jurisdictions shown, the agency should contact the following office for guidance:

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission

Complaints Adjudication Division

Federal Sector Programs

Office of Federal Operations

P.O. Box 19848

Washington, D.C. 20036

Telephone: (202) 663-4517

Upon receipt of a hearing request, the administrative judge assigned to hear the complaint will determine the site of the hearing. Within his/her discretion, the administrative judge is authorized to conduct the hearing in the EEOC district office, in an EEOC area or local office, at the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose or at such other location as he/she may determine appropriate. In determining the hearing site, the administrative judge may consider factors such as the location of the parties, the location of EEOC district, area and local offices, the number and location of witnesses, the location of records, travel distances for the administrative judge, the parties and witnesses, travel costs, the availability of sources of transportation and other factors as may be appropriate.

If the administrative judge sets a hearing site which is outside the local commuting area of the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose, the agency must bear all reasonable travel expenses of complainants, their authorized representatives, agency representatives, and all witnesses approved by the administrative judge, except that an agency does not have the authority to pay the travel expenses of complainant's witnesses who are not Federal employees.

Should an agency desire that a hearing be held within the jurisdictional area of another EEOC district office, it must submit a request, in writing, to the administrative judge in the appropriate EEOC district or field office having jurisdiction over the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose. In its request, the agency must set out, in detail, its reasons and justification for the requested change. The administrative judge will rule on the request only after the directors of the concerned EEOC district offices have conferred on the matter.

If the agency's request for a change in location from the jurisdiction of one EEOC district office to another is approved, and if the hearing site, as determined by the administrative judge, is outside of the local commuting area of the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose, the agency must bear all reasonable travel expenses associated with the change. This includes the travel expenses of complainants, their authorized representatives, agency representatives, and all witnesses approved by the administrative judge, except that an agency does not have the authority to pay the travel expenses of complainants' witnesses who are not Federal employees.

The agency's obligation is limited to those costs which are legally payable in advance by the agency. See Decisions of the Comptroller General, Matter of: Expenses of Outside Applicant/Complainant to Travel to Agency EEO Hearing, File: B-202845, 61 Comp. Gen. 654 (1982). See also Matter of: John Booth--Travel Expenses of Witness -- Agency Responsible, File: B-235845, 69 Comp. Gen. 269 (1990).

B. The Role of the Administrative Judge

1. Administrative Judge's Review

When a case is referred for a hearing, an administrative judge shall, within 10 days, review the file, determine whether additional documentation is necessary

If after reviewing the file, the administrative judge determines that the investigation is inadequate and incomplete due to the agency's failure to complete the investigation within the time limits set forth in section 1614.108(e), and the agency has not cooperated in the discovery process as required by section 1614.109(d)(3), the administrative judge may take the following actions:

- a. Subject the agency to adverse inference findings in favor of the complainant;
- b. Consider the matters to which the requested information or testimony pertains to be favorable to the complainant;
- c. Exclude other evidence offered by the agency;
- d. Permit the complainant to obtain a summary disposition in his/her favor on some or all of the issues without a hearing; or
- e. Take other action deemed appropriate, including, but not limited to, requiring the agency to pay any costs incurred by the complainant in taking depositions or in any other form of discovery.

2. Data Requests

If the agency is requested to produce additional documents, it shall furnish a copy of those documents to the complainant at the time they are submitted to the administrative judge. If the complainant is requested to submit additional documents, the administrative judge shall make the documents available to the agency for reproduction.

3. Administrative Judge's Authority

The administrative judge shall have the authority to do the following:

- a. Administer oaths.
- b. Regulate the conduct of hearings.
  - c. Limit the number of witnesses so as to exclude irrelevant and repetitious evidence.
- d. Order discovery or the production of documents and witnesses.
  - e. Direct supplemental investigations when discovery would be inadequate in developing the record.
- f. Exclude any person from the hearing who is disruptive.
- g. Issue findings and conclusions without a hearing if there are no material facts in issue.
  - h. Limit the hearing to the issues in dispute.
- i. Impose appropriate sanctions on parties who fail to comply with discovery orders.

The administrative judge has the authority to impose sanctions on a party if

(s)he fails to comply without good cause with rulings on requests for information, documents, or admissions, where the information is solely in the control of that party. Similarly, if a party fails to provide an adequate explanation for the failure to respond fully and in a timely manner to a request and the information is solely in the control of that party, the administrative judge may impose sanctions. These sanctions include, but are not limited to, the authority to:

- 1) draw an adverse inference that the requested information would have reflected unfavorably on the party refusing to provide the requested information;
- 2) consider the matters to which the requested information pertains to be established in favor of the opposing party;
- 3) exclude other evidence offered by the party failing to produce the requested information;
- 4) enter a decision fully or partially in favor of the opposing party; and,
- 5) take such other actions as appropriate.

4. Findings and Conclusions Without a Hearing

a. On Motion of a Party

A party who believes that some or all material facts are not in genuine dispute may file a statement in support of this contention with the administrative judge at least fifteen (15) days prior to the hearing, or at such earlier time as required by the administrative judge. The administrative judge shall, in the acknowledgment order, specify a date for filing such a statement and provide for extending that time in certain circumstances. A copy of any such statement shall be served on the opposing party.

The opposing party will have fifteen (15) days from the receipt of the statement in which to file any opposition to the statement.

After considering the request and the opposing submission, if any, the administrative judge may deny the request, order that discovery be permitted on the facts involved, limit the hearing to the issues remaining in dispute (if any), issue findings and conclusions without a hearing, or make such other rulings as are appropriate.

b. On Administrative Judge's Determination

If the administrative judge determines, in the absence of a request from either party, that some or all of the facts are not in genuine dispute, he or she may, after giving notice to the parties and providing them an opportunity to respond within fifteen (15) days, issue an order limiting the scope of the hearing or issue findings and conclusions without conducting a hearing.

5. Transmittal of the Findings and Conclusions

At the conclusion of the hearing stage and within 180 days of a request for a hearing, the administrative judge shall send the following items to the parties by certified mail.

a. The findings and conclusions.

b. Copies of the entire record, including the transcript.

The administrative judge may, when necessary, release the transcript prior to the issuance of the findings and conclusions, e.g., when the transcript is needed to prepare a post-hearing brief.

The administrative judge may issue findings of fact and conclusions of law from the bench after the conclusion of the hearing, in lieu of issuing written findings and conclusions.

III. DISCOVERY

A. Introduction

1. General

The purpose of discovery is to enable a party to obtain relevant information for preparation of the party's case. Both parties are entitled to reasonable development of evidence on matters relevant to the issues raised in the complaint, but the administrative judge may limit the quantity and timing of discovery. In cases where the investigative record is complete, the administrative judge may disapprove discovery requests.

A reasonable amount of official time shall be allowed to prepare requests for discovery and to respond to discovery requests.

2. Avoidance of Delay

The discovery instructions which follow are intended to provide a simple method of discovery. They will be interpreted and applied so as to avoid delay and to facilitate adjudication of the case. The parties are expected to initiate and complete needed discovery with a minimum of intervention by the Commission's administrative judge. The parties are further expected to use discovery judiciously for its intended purpose only.

B. Right to Seek Discovery

1. Notice of Right to Seek Discovery

The administrative judge will notify the parties of the right to obtain discovery.

a. The administrative judge will send an acknowledgment order to the parties within ten (10) calendar days after the Commission's receipt of the hearing request. The acknowledgment order will notify the parties of the right to seek discovery. In order to conduct discovery, a party must file, within ten (10)

of the parties permitting discovery or a motion to conduct discovery with the administrative judge.

b. It is the Commission's policy that the parties are entitled, pursuant to section 1614.109(b), to the reasonable development of evidence on matters relevant to the issues raised in the complaint.

2. Discovery is Designed to Supplement the Record

It is anticipated that discovery will ordinarily involve supplementing the existing record. There may be situations in which the record does not have to be supplemented.

3. Discovery Time Frames Will Be Strictly Regarded

Discovery must be completed within ninety (90) calendar days from the Commission's receipt of a request for hearing. Parties' requests to the administrative judge to extend discovery beyond this time limit ordinarily will not be granted.

C. Methods of Discovery

1. Evidence may be developed using a variety of methods including:

a. Interrogatories

Absent specific authorization from the administrative judge, a party may propound no more than one (1) set of interrogatories. A set of interrogatories will not contain more than thirty

(30) questions and the questions will not have subparts.

b. Depositions

Generally the party requesting depositions will pay for them.

A failure to appear at a properly scheduled deposition may result in the non-appearing party bearing the cost of the missed session. For purposes of this section, any employee or former employee of the agency currently employed by the Federal government is a party. Agencies must make such persons available for depositions and such depositions shall be taken on official time. The agency may be liable for costs incurred if such persons are not made on the clock for depositions or other discovery or if such persons fail to appear.

c. Stipulations

Stipulations are strongly encouraged.

d. Requests for Admissions

A request for admissions will contain no more than thirty (30) requests for the admission of facts.

e. Requests for the Production of Documents

Requests must be specific, identifying the document or types of documents requested.

2. Where possible, more informal methods of discovery should be employed.

a. The parties may request that a witness be made available for questioning

to discover the availability of other evidence, either documentary or testimonial.

b. The parties may agree to the questioning of witnesses using a tape recording device, provided that any such tape will not be accepted in evidence without authentication. Such authentication can be presumed where the opposing party is provided a copy of the tape at the close of the discovery session and it is identical to the tape proffered in evidence.

D. Discovery Procedures

1. Commencing Discovery

a. Written agreements

Where the parties have agreed in writing concerning the methods and scope of discovery, they must, within ten (10) calendar days of receipt of the administrative judge's notice of right to seek discovery, furnish a copy of the agreement to the administrative judge and begin the exchange of discovery requests.

b. Requests for authorization to commence

If the parties have not agreed in writing concerning the method and scope of discovery, a party must, within ten (10) calendar days of receipt of the administrative judge's notice of right to seek discovery, submit to the administrative judge a request for authorization to commence discovery. The request must state the method(s) and scope of discovery requested and its relevance to the issue(s) in the complaint. Within ten (10) calendar days of receipt of a request, the administrative judge will issue an authorization to begin discovery if the request is approved in whole or in part.

c. Exchange of requests

Upon receipt of the administrative judge's authorization to begin discovery, the parties must, within ten (10) calendar days, exchange requests for discovery. The parties must cooperate with each other in honoring requests for relevant, non-repetitive documentary and testimonial evidence. Discovery disputes will be resolved by the administrative judge.

1) Where to address discovery

Requests for discovery should be addressed to the agency representative, complainant or complainant's representative of record, and not to the administrative judge. Requests for discovery addressed to the administrative judge will be returned by the administrative judge to the party submitting the discovery request with instructions to serve the request on the agency representative, the complainant or the complainant's representative of record, as appropriate. Where a party inappropriately submits a discovery request to the administrative judge, the required time frame for submitting the request to the appropriate party will not stop running.

2) Criteria for requests

The request should be: (1) as specific as possible, (2) reasonably calculated to discover non-repetitive, material evidence and, if not self-evident, the request must indicate the materiality of the documentary or testimonial evidence sought and the manner in which the information sought will elucidate the accepted issues.

2. Informal Discovery

Informal discovery includes unrecorded meetings and conference calls designed to exchange information. In many instances discovery should proceed on an informal basis. For example, if a primary purpose of discovery is to determine the scope and content of a material witness' testimony, it may be sufficient that there be a meeting scheduled with the witness and that the discovery be conducted on an informal basis. If that method proves unsatisfactory, a more formal method of discovery may be used.

3. Response to Discovery Request

The opposing party/representative must respond to the request for discovery within fifteen (15) calendar days from the date of receipt of the request. A response means:

a. Compliance with the request;

Voluntary cooperation with discovery requests is encouraged;

b. Written opposition to the request;

Such opposition shall set forth a basis for finding that the request is irrelevant, overburdensome, repetitious, or privileged;

c. Written agreement or stipulation obviating the request;

Stipulations of fact are favored as a means of resolving discovery issues;

d. Request for extension of time;

Request for extension of time to comply or to produce a written agreement shall not exceed fifteen (15) calendar days.

4. Failure to Respond to Request for Discovery

a. Failure to respond to a request for discovery within fifteen (15) calendar days of receipt of the request, shall form the basis for a motion to compel discovery.

b. A motion to compel must be filed within five (5) calendar days after the expiration date for responding to a request for discovery.

c. A motion to compel compliance with a request for discovery must be addressed to the administrative judge and certify that a copy was served on the opposing party.

d. .Any statement in opposition to the motion must be filed within ten (10) calendar days of service of the motion and must certify that a copy was mailed to the moving party.

5. The Administrative Judges Will Rule Expeditiously on Matters of Discovery

Within ten (10) calendar days following the filing of an opposition, if any, to the motion to compel discovery, the administrative judge will rule on the request for discovery. In the alternative, the administrative judge may, in the interest of expediting the hearing, order that the document(s), witness(es) or other evidence at issue be produced at the hearing.

6. Administrative Judge's Orders to Comply

a. In considering a motion to compel compliance, the administrative judge will consider whether the following factors apply:

1) the discovery is calculated to produce or lead to the production of material evidence that is not repetitious of facts or documents already in the complaint

2) the discovery does not concern privileged or restricted information, and

3) the discovery is not overly burdensome.

b. Where a motion to compel discovery is approved, in whole or in part, the administrative judge shall issue a written order to comply with the request.

The parties shall have fifteen (15) calendar days to comply with a discovery

7. Failure to Respond or Comply With Administrative Judge's Order May Result in an Adverse Inference.

A failure to respond or failure to follow an order to comply with a request for discovery, may result in an inference that the evidence not produced was contrary to the non-complying party's interest.

E Failure to Request Discovery Does Not Imply Waiver of Requests for Documents

and Witnesses at Hearing.

The parties will be provided the opportunity to make requests for documents and witnesses at the hearing regardless of whether the discovery process is invoked. In the course of setting a matter for hearing the administrative judge will ask the parties to submit a list of documents and proposed witnesses which they believe to be necessary to the presentation of their case and which should be produced at the hearing. The request must be supported by a statement demonstrating the materiality and the non-repetitive content of the witnesses' testimony and/or the documents.

F. Cost of Discovery

The parties shall initially bear their own costs with regard to discovery, unless the administrative judge, as a result of a discovery order issued pursuant to section 1614.109(d)(3)(v), requires the agency to bear the costs for the complainant to obtain depositions or any other discovery because the agency has failed to complete its investigation timely as required by section 1614.108(e) or has failed to investigate the matter adequately pursuant to Chapter 5 of this Directive.

CHAPTER 7

COMPLAINTS OF CLASS DISCRIMINATION

IN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

I. INTRODUCTION

Section 1614.204 provides for processing class complaints of discrimination. A class complaint is a written complaint of discrimination filed on behalf of a class by the agent of the class, alleging that the class is so numerous that a consolidated complaint by the members of the class is impractical, that there are questions of fact common to the class, that the claims of the agent of the class are typical of the claims of the class, and that the agent of the class or, if represented, the representative, will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.

II. TIME REQUIREMENTS

Section 1614.204(b) provides that, as with an individual complainant, an employee who seeks to represent a class of employees must seek counseling and be counseled in accordance with section 1614.105, i.e., the employee must seek counseling within 45 days of the alleged discriminatory event.(1) The agency shall extend the 45-day time limit when the individual shows that he or she was not notified of the time limits and was not aware of them that he or she did not know and reasonably should not have known that the discriminatory matter or personnel action occurred, that despite due diligence he or she was prevented by circumstances beyond his or her control from contacting the counselor within the time limits, or for other reasons considered sufficient by the agency or the Commission. See § 1614.105(a)(2). The time period may be waived by the agency and is subject to the theories of estoppel and equitable tolling. See § 1614.604(c). If the complaint is not resolved on the 30th day following initial EEO counseling, the counselor must give the agent written notice that (s)he has 15 days from receipt of the notice to file a formal complaint. § 1614.204(c)(2). The counseling period may be extended up to an additional sixty (60) days if, prior to the expiration of the 30-day period, the aggrieved person agrees with the agency in writing to postpone the final interview. Also, pursuant to section 1614.105(f), where the agency has an established alternative dispute resolution procedure and the aggrieved person agrees to participate in it, the pre-complaint processing period shall be 90 days. Within 30 days of an agency's receipt of a complaint, an agency must designate an agency representative and forward the complaint, along with a copy of the counselor's report and any other relevant information about the complaint, to the Commission. § 1614.204(d)(1). The Commission will assign an administrative judge (or in some limited circumstances involving national security, a complaints examiner from another agency) to recommend that the agency accept or dismiss the complaint. § 1614.204(d).

III. DISMISSAL -- 29 C.F.R. § 1614.204(d)

A. Class Complaint Criteria

A class complaint will be dismissed if it does not meet the following criteria:

11. The complaint does not meet the prerequisites of a class complaint under section 1614.204(a)(2) (i.e., numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation).
12. The allegations lack specificity and detail pursuant to section 1614.204(d)(4).
13. The agent cannot satisfactorily explain why an allegation which appears in the formal complaint was not raised in counseling.(2)
14. The complaint meets any of the criteria for dismissal pursuant to section 1614.107 "Dismissals of complaints."

B. Individual Complaints Filed on Bases Identical to Class Complaints

An individual complaint which is filed before or after the class complaint is filed, which comes within the definition of the class allegation(s), will not be dismissed but will be subsumed within the class complaint. If the class complaint is dismissed at the certification stage, the individual complaint may still proceed. If the class proceeds to a hearing, the individual claim may be used by the class representative at the liability stage of the process, or it may be presented at the remedy stage by the complainant. If the class complaint is dismissed at the certification stage, the class members may not proceed unless they have timely filed individual complaints. The agency shall, within 90 days of the issuance of a final decision dismissing a class complaint for failure to meet the criteria of a class complaint, issue the acknowledgment of receipt on an individual complaint as required by section 1614.106(d) and process in accordance with subpart A, each individual complaint that was subsumed into the class complaint.

IV. RECOMMENDED DECISION -- 29 C.F.R. § 1614.204(d) (7)

A. Transmittal of Recommended Decision

The administrative judge's recommended decision on whether to accept or dismiss the class complaint will be transmitted to the agency and notification of that transmission will be sent to the class agent.

B. Recommended Decision Becomes Final Agency Decision in 30 Days

The recommended decision will become the agency decision unless the agency accepts, rejects, or modifies the recommended decision within 30 days of receipt of the recommended decision and complaint file. The agency must notify the agent by certified mail and the administrative judge of its decision to accept or dismiss the complaint. At the same time, the agency must forward to the agent copies of the administrative judge's recommendation and the complaint file.

C. Dismissal at the Accept/Dismiss Stage

A decision by the agency to dismiss the class complaint at the certification stage will inform the agent either that the complaint is being filed on that date as an individual complaint or that the complaint is also dismissed as an individual complaint in accordance with section 1614.107. The decision must inform the agent of the right to appeal the final agency decision dismissing the class complaint to the Commission or to file a civil action, and it must include EEOC Form 573, Notice of Appeal/Petition.

V. NOTIFICATION -- 29 C.F.R. § 1614.204(e)

A. Timing and Method of the Notice

Within 15 calendar days of accepting a class complaint, the agency shall use reasonable means, such as hand delivery, mailing to the last known address, or distribution (such as through inter-office mail) to notify all class members of the acceptance of the class complaint.

The "reasonable means" used by agencies for notification should be those most likely to provide an opportunity for class members to know about the complaint.

Conspicuous posting on bulletin boards to which all potential class members have easy access may constitute adequate notice in some situations.

B. Content of the Notice

The notice must contain:

7. the name of the agency or organizational segment, its location, and the date of acceptance of the complaint;

8. a description of the issues accepted;

9. an explanation of the binding nature of the final decision or resolution of the complaint on class members; and,

10. the name, address, and telephone number of the class representative. C.

Individuals May Not Opt Out

The class members may not "opt out" of the defined class; however, they do not have to participate in the class or file a claim for individual relief.

Those who wish to participate will have the opportunity to object to any proposed settlement and to file claims for individual relief if discrimination is found.

D. Settlement Notice

All class members must receive notice of any settlement or decision on the class complaint whether or not they participated in the action. See

section

VIII. B. of this chapter.

VI. REFERRAL FOR PROCESSING

A. Acceptance of Class Complaints by the Agency

Within five days of its acceptance of a class complaint, the agency will return the complete complaint file to the EEOC office that determined the class certification issue.

B. Site of the Class Hearing

Attachment A to this chapter is a list of the addresses of the EEOC district and field offices and their geographic jurisdictions. Agencies' requests for a hearing must be sent to the district office having jurisdiction of the agency facility where the complaint arose. Should the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose not fall within one of the geographical jurisdictions shown, the agency should contact the following office for guidance:

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission
Complaints Adjudication Division
Federal Sector Programs
Office of Federal Operations
P.O. Box 19848
Washington, D.C. 20036
Telephone: (202) 663-4517

Upon receipt of a hearing request, the administrative judge assigned to hear the complaint will, upon expiration of the period allowed for preparation of the class case, set a date for hearing and determine the site of the hearing. Within his/her discretion, the administrative judge is authorized to conduct the hearing in the EEOC district office, in an EEOC area or local office, at the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose or at such other location as he/she may determine appropriate. In determining the hearing site, the administrative judge may consider factors such as the location of the parties, the location of EEOC district, area and local offices, the number and location of witnesses, the location of records, travel distances for the administrative judge, the parties and witnesses, travel costs, the availability of sources of transportation and other factors as may be appropriate. If the administrative judge sets a hearing site which is outside the local commuting area of the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose, the agency must bear all reasonable travel expenses of complainants, their authorized representatives, agency representatives, and all witnesses approved by the administrative judge, except that an agency does not have the authority to pay the travel expenses of complainant's witnesses who are not Federal employees.

Should an agency desire that a hearing be held at a location within the jurisdictional area of another EEOC district office, it must submit a request, in writing, to the EEOC office that determined the class certification issue. In its request, the agency must identify the location of the desired place of hearing and must set out, in detail, its reasons and justification for the requested change. The administrative judge will rule on the request only after the directors of the concerned EEOC district offices have conferred on the matter.

If the agency's request for a change in location from the jurisdiction of one

EEOC district office to another is approved, and if the hearing site as determined by the administrative judge is outside of the local commuting area of the agency's organizational component where the complaint arose, the agency must bear all reasonable travel costs associated with and necessitated by the change in location for complainants, their authorized representatives, agency representatives, and all witnesses approved by the administrative judge, except that an agency does not have the authority to pay the travel expenses of complainants' witnesses who are not Federal employees.

The agency's obligation is limited to those costs which are legally payable in advance by the agency. See Decision of the Comptroller General, Matter of: Expenses of Outside Applicant/Complainant to Travel to Agency EEO Hearing, File: B-202845, 61 Comp. Gen. 654 (1982); see also Decision of the Comptroller General, Matter of: John Booth -- Travel Expenses of Witness -- Agency Responsible, File: B-235845, 69 Comp. Gen. 269 (1990).

VII. DEVELOPING THE EVIDENCE -- 29 C.F.R. § 1614.204(f)

A. The Process of Developing the Evidence

The administrative judge will advise both parties that they will have at least 60 days to develop evidence. They can do this in the same manner as in individual cases, i.e., through interrogatories, depositions, requests for admissions, stipulations, or production of documents. The parties may object to production on the grounds that the information sought is irrelevant, overly burdensome, repetitious, or privileged. The administrative judge has the authority to impose sanctions on a party if (s)he fails to comply without good cause with rulings on requests for information, documents, or admissions, where the information is solely in the control of that party. Similarly, if a party fails to provide an adequate explanation for the failure to respond fully and in a timely manner to a request and the information is solely in the control of that party, the administrative judge may impose sanctions. These sanctions include, but are not limited to, the authority to:

3. draw an adverse inference that the requested information would have reflected unfavorably on the party refusing to provide the requested information;

4. consider the matters to which the requested information pertains to be established in favor of the opposing party;

5. exclude other evidence offered by the party failing to produce the requested information, and/or;

6. recommend that a decision be entered in favor of the opposing party.

B. Use of Agency Facilities by Class Agent

The class agent should be permitted reasonable access to and/or use of agency facilities (e.g., copiers, telephones, word processors, etc.) for

of the case as long as there is no undue disruption of agency operations.

A

class agent and/or representative may not use agency resources and facilities in the preparation of the class case without obtaining the prior approval of the designated agency official. An agency may charge reasonable rates for the search and reproduction of information and documents.

VIII. RESOLUTION -- 29 C.F.R. § 1614.204(g) (4)

A. Notice of Resolution

If the matter is resolved, notice must be given to all class members in the same manner as the notification of acceptance of the class was given. The notice must set out the relief, if any, which the agency will grant. The resolution will bind all members of the class.

B. Petition to Vacate Resolution

Within 30 days of the date of the notice of resolution, any class member may petition the EEO Director to vacate the resolution because it benefits only the class agent or is otherwise not fair and reasonable. Within 30 days of receipt of the petition, the EEO Director will forward the petition to the administrative judge, who will make a decision about the fairness and reasonableness of the resolution. If the judge determines that the resolution was not fair and reasonable, (s)he will recommend that the resolution be vacated and that the original class agent be replaced by the petitioner or by some other class member who is eligible to be the new class agent.

An agency's decision that a resolution is not fair and reasonable vacates the agreement between the former class agent and the agency. The agency decision must inform the former agent or the petitioner, as appropriate, of the right to appeal the decision to the Commission. The agency's decision must include a copy of EEOC Form 573, Notice of Appeal/Petition.

IX. HEARING -- 29 C.F.R. § 1614.204(h) and (i)

A. Hearing Procedures

Hearing procedures in class complaints are the same as those applied to hearings in individual complaints of discrimination, and are set out at section 1614.109.

B. Official Time for Agency Employees

Any employee testifying at a hearing is entitled to official time for the time

(s)he spends testifying as well as a reasonable amount of time for travel to and from the hearing. The class agent and agent's representative, if employees of the agency where the complaint arose and was filed, are entitled to official time for actual time spent at the hearing and for a reasonable amount of time spent preparing for the hearing.

An agency may permit its employees to use official time in preparing and presenting a class complaint which arose in another agency.

C. Travel Expense Incurred for Agency Convenience

If a hearing is scheduled for the convenience of the agency at a geographical location distant from the class agent and the agent's representative and the agent and/or representative are Federal employees, the agency must provide a per diem allowance and any other travel expenses for the agent and agent's representative, to the extent permitted by law.

X. AGENCY DECISION -- 29 C.F.R. § 1614.204(j) and (k)

A. Action on Administrative Judge's Report of Findings and Recommendations Within sixty (60) days of receipt of the report of findings and recommendations issued by the administrative judge, the agency must issue a decision to accept, reject or modify those findings and recommendations. If the agency does not issue the final decision within sixty (60) days, the administrative judge's findings and recommendations will become the final decision of the agency.

The agency must transmit its final decision to the agent within five days of the expiration of the 60-day period.

B. Required Features of the Agency Final Decision

4. The agency's final decision on a class complaint must be in writing and shall be transmitted to the agent by certified mail, return receipt requested, and shall include a copy of the report of findings and recommendations of the administrative judge. See § 1614.204(j)(2).

5. Where the administrative judge addresses the merits of the complaint, the agency final decision must also address the merits. It must include a finding on the issue of discrimination, address the merits of the class agent's personal allegation, and include the corrective action, if any, awarded to the class agent.(3)

3. A decision finding discrimination should include the dates of the agent's initial contact with the counselor and the date the agency eliminated the policy or practice on which there has been a finding of discrimination.

4. The final agency decision shall inform the agent of the right to appeal or to file a civil action and of the applicable time limits.

C. Binding Nature of Agency Decision

The final agency decision will be binding on all members of the class and on the agency. Class members may not "opt out."

D. Notification of Agency Final Decision

The agency shall notify class members and class representative, (and or the attorney for the class) of the decision and relief awarded, if any, through the same media employed to give notice of the existence of the class complaint. The notice, where appropriate, shall include information concerning the rights of class members to seek individual relief and of the procedures to be followed.

Notice shall be given by the agency within 10 days of the transmittal of its decision to the agent. The notice shall include the period for which the relief will be available and stating it in terms of precise calendar days, e.g., between 6/30/90 and 9/1/97.

XI. RELIEF FOR INDIVIDUAL CLASS MEMBERS -- 29 C.F.R.

§ 1614.204(l)

A. Claims for Individual Relief by Class Members Where Discrimination is Found

Within 30 days of notification of the final agency decision, a class member who believes that (s)he is entitled to individual relief must file a written claim with the head of the agency, or with the agency's EEO Director.

The claim must be specific, and show the following:

1. The claimant is a class member who was affected by a personnel action or matter resulting from the discriminatory policy or practice.

2. The discriminatory action occurred during the period specified in the notice. The claimant must show that the discriminatory action occurred during the time period beginning 45 days prior to the agent's initial contact with the counselor, and not after the date when the agency eliminated the discriminatory policy or practice.

B. Timing of Agency Decision on Individual Claims for Relief

Within sixty (60) calendar days of receiving an individual claim, the agency must issue a final decision on that claim. The agency's final decision must include a notice of the right to file an appeal or a civil action within the applicable time limits.

C. Limits on the Duration of a Finding of Class-Wide Discrimination

The time period for which the agency finds class-wide discrimination may begin not more than 45 days prior to the agent's initial contact with the EEO counselor and must end not later than the date when the agency eliminates the policy or practice found to be discriminatory. See §1614.204(1)(3). This 45-day time period does not limit the two-year time period for which back pay can be recovered by a class member.

D. Where Class-Wide Discrimination is Not Found But Discrimination is Found for the Agent

The agency shall, within sixty (60) calendar days of issuance of the final decision, acknowledge receipt of an individual complaint as required in section

1614.106(d) and process in accordance with the provisions of subpart A, each individual complaint that was subsumed into the class complaint.

If it is found that the class agent, or any other member of the class is a victim of discrimination, the relief provisions of section 1614.501 shall apply.

XII. REPRISAL

Federal employees who are agents, claimants, representatives of agents or claimants, witnesses, or agency officials having responsibility for processing class complaints may file individual discrimination complaints if they believe they have been subjected to restraint, interference, coercion or reprisal because of their involvement in the presentation and/or processing of a class complaint. EEO counseling must precede the filing of such a complaint.

(1) All time limits are expressed in calendar days, not business days.

(2) If the agent provides a satisfactory explanation for failure to see a counselor concerning an allegation, the administrative judge must refer the allegation to the agency for further counseling of the agent. Upon completion of counseling, the allegation shall be consolidated with the accepted portion of the complaint.

(3) Section 1614.204(j)(5) provides: "The final decision of the agency shall require any relief authorized by law and determined to be necessary or desirable to resolve the issue of discrimination."

CHAPTER 8

APPEALS TO THE COMMISSION

I. INTRODUCTION

Section 1614.402(a) provides that appeals to the Commission must be filed by an appellant within thirty (30) days<sup>(1)</sup> of receipt of an agency's dismissal or final decision. If the complainant is represented by an attorney, the 30 day time limit shall begin to run from the date of receipt by the attorney, of the notice of dismissal or notice of final decision. The appeal of an agency final decision or dismissal must be filed with the following:

Director, Office of Federal Operations,
Equal Employment Opportunity Commission,
P.O. Box 19848

Washington, D.C. 20036.

hand delivered to:

Director, Office of Federal Operations,
Equal Employment Opportunity Commission,
1801 L Street N.W. 5th Floor

or facsimile sent to:

(202) 663-7022

A copy of the appeal must also be filed with the agency's EEO Director (or whomever is designated by the agency in its final decision).

The appellant should use EEOC Form 573, Notice of Appeal/Petition. See form attached to Chapter 4 of this directive. The agency shall attach a copy of EEOC Form 573 to all final decisions and dismissals of equal employment complaints.

II. PERSONS WHO MAY APPEAL

The Commission's regulations governing appeals to the Commission are located at subpart D of part 1614. Section 1614.401 sets out who may appeal to the Commission when an issue of employment discrimination is raised either alone or in connection with a grievance, settlement, or a Merit Systems Protection Board

A.A Complainant May Appeal

15. An agency's final decision or the agency's dismissal of all or a portion of a complaint.

16. An agency's alleged non-compliance with a settlement agreement in accordance with section 1614.504.

B.A Class Agent May Appeal

11. A final agency decision on a class complaint.(2)

12. A final agency decision on a petition to vacate a settlement agreement in the class action.(3)

13. An agency's alleged non-compliance with a settlement agreement in accordance with section 1614.504.

C.A Class Member May Appeal

7. A final agency decision on a claim for individual relief under a class complaint.

8. A final agency decision on a petition to vacate a settlement agreement in a class action.(4)

9. An agency's alleged non-compliance with a settlement agreement in accordance with section 1614.504.

D.A Grievant May Appeal

6. A final decision of the agency.

7. A final decision of the arbitrator.

8. A final decision of the Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) on the grievance.

9. Exception: A grievant may not appeal under subpart D of part 1614, when the matter initially raised in the negotiated grievance procedure is:

a.still ongoing in that process,

b.in arbitration,

c.before the FLRA,

d.appealable to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB), or e.if 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d) is inapplicable to the involved agency.

III.FILING THE APPEAL AND AGENCY RESPONSE

A.Briefs and Supporting Documents

The appellant shall have thirty (30) days from the filing of the appeal to submit a brief and any other documents in support of the appeal. The original must be submitted to the Director, Office of Federal Operations.

A copy of the brief and any other supporting documents must be sent to the agency, within the 30 day limit, and the appellant's submission must include proof of service on the agency. Appellants must ensure that the agency's copy of any statement or brief in support of the appeal is submitted to the designated agency representative, and not just to the agency's Civil Rights/EEO office. A copy of the agency statement or brief in opposition to the appeal must be sent to the appellant, and the agency's submission must also include proof of service on the appellant. Failure by either party to include proof of service with supporting documents or comments, or failure to provide such materials within the established time frame, may result in the materials not being considered in the appellate review.

Requests for an extension of time to submit supporting documents or comments in rebuttal must be made in writing before the time limit for such submission expires.

B.The Agency Response

After receiving the appeal and any brief from the complainant in support of the appeal, the Director, Office of Federal Operations (OFO), will request the complaint file from the agency. The agency must submit to the Director, Office of Federal Operations, the complaint file and any agency statement or brief in opposition to the appeal within thirty (30) days of the date on which OFO requests the complaint file. Submission of the agency's complaint file shall not be delayed for purposes of including additional comments. Failure to provide the complaint file within the prescribed time frame may result in the Commission drawing an inference adverse to the agency.

IV. APPELLATE PROCEDURE

A.Appeal Will Be Acknowledged

The appeal will be docketed upon receipt in the Office of Federal Operations and will be acknowledged in writing.

B. Where Record is Complete

Where the record is complete, OFO shall issue a decision in accordance with

section 1614.405.

C.Where Record Requires Supplementation

While the Commission retains the right to supplement the record of appeal, it is intended that this provision will be used only in rare instances to avoid a miscarriage of justice.

3. Where the record requires supplementation, OFO may require additional information from one or both of the parties. OFO may supplement the record by an exchange of letters, memoranda, or investigation. Each party shall provide copies of such supplemental information to the other party at the time it is submitted to OFO.

4. Where the record is so incomplete as to require remand to the agency in order to complete the investigation, the Commission shall designate a time period between thirty (30) and ninety (90) days within which the agency must complete the investigation. During the period of remand, the appeal will be held in abeyance and the matter will be monitored by OFO. Upon completion of the investigation, the agency must provide the complainant with a copy of its supplemental findings and return the completed record to OFO. The complainant may, within 30 days of receipt of the supplemental record, submit a statement concerning the supplemental record to OFO. Upon receipt by OFO, the supplemental record will be included in the appeal file and processed appropriately.

V. RECONSIDERATION

A. Reconsideration is Not an Appeal

A request for reconsideration is not a second appeal to the Commission. Such requests must contain arguments or evidence which establish that:

1. new and material evidence is available that was not readily available when the previous decision was issued; or
2. the previous decision involved an erroneous interpretation of law, regulation or material fact, or misapplication of established policy; or
3. the decision is of such exceptional nature as to have substantial precedential implications.

B. Reconsideration Procedures

1. Requests for reconsideration and any supporting statement or brief must be filed with OFO within thirty (30) days of receipt of a decision of the Commission or within twenty (20) days of receipt of another party's timely request for reconsideration.

2. The requesting party must submit any supporting documents or brief at the time the request is filed. The request must also include proof of service on the opposing party.

3. The opposing party shall have twenty (20) days from the date of service in which to submit any statement or brief in opposition. Such statement or brief must be served on the requesting party and proof of service must be included with the submission to OFO.

4. Failure to provide a proof of service or to submit comments within the prescribed time frame may result in the return of the submission.

5. Requests for an extension of the time to submit opposing comments must be made in writing before the time for such submissions has expired.

C. Reconsideration Decision is Final

The Commission's decision on a request for reconsideration is final, and there is no further right by either party to request reconsideration, unless the decision remanded the complaint for further processing.

VI. REMEDIES

A. An Agency Shall Provide Full Relief After Finding Discrimination

When an agency or the Commission finds that an applicant or employee has been discriminated against, the agency shall provide full relief as explained in part 1614. See also Chapter 9 of the directive.

B.Types of Relief Available

Relief shall include the following elements in appropriate circumstances.

1. A notification to all employees of the agency in the affected facility of their right to be free from unlawful discrimination and assurance that the particular types of discrimination will not recur.
2. A commitment that corrective, curative or preventive action will be taken, or measures adopted, to ensure that violations of the law similar to those found will not recur.
3. An unconditional offer to each identified victim of discrimination of placement in the position the person would have occupied but for the discrimination suffered by that person, or a substantially equivalent position.
4. A payment to each identified victim of discrimination on a make whole basis for any loss of earnings and benefits the person may have suffered as a result of the discrimination.
5. A commitment that the agency shall cease from engaging in the specific unlawful employment practice found in the case.

C.Clear and Convincing Standard Needed to Avoid Liability: Duty to Cure Discrimination Remains

1. When an agency or the Commission finds that discrimination existed, but also finds by clear and convincing evidence that the agency would have made the same employment decision even absent the discrimination, the agency shall nevertheless take all steps necessary to eliminate the discriminatory practice and ensure that it does not recur.

2. Back pay, computed in the manner prescribed by 5 C.F.R.

§ 550.805, shall be awarded from the date the individual would have entered on duty unless clear and convincing evidence indicates that the applicant or employee would not have been selected for the position even absent discrimination. Complainant has the obligation to mitigate damages. See Chapter 9, section III.A.

D.Interest on Back Pay

Interest on back pay shall be included in the back pay computation.

E.Offer of a Position Must Be in Writing

When the relief ordered includes the offer of a position or a promotion, the offer shall be made to the complainant in writing, providing the complainant 15 days from receipt of the offer to notify the agency of the acceptance or rejection. Failure to respond within the 15-day time limit shall be construed as a declination. Any back pay liability shall cease to accrue with either the actual placement of the complainant into the position in question, or with the date the offer was declined.

F. Attorney's Fees - 29 C.F.R. § 1614.501(e)

1. Attorney's fees and costs may be provided to a complainant as part of a settlement pursuant to section 1614.603. Section 1614.501(e) sets out in detail the requirements and limitations on the award of attorney's fees and costs.

2. A finding of discrimination raises a presumption of entitlement to an award

a. Any award of attorney's fees or costs shall be paid by the agency. § 1614.501(e)(1)(ii).

b. No award is allowable for the services of any employee of the Federal government. § 1614.501(e)(1)(iii).

3. Attorney's fees are allowable only for the services of:

a. members of the Bar,

b. law clerks and paralegals, and

c. law students under the supervision of members of the Bar.

4. Attorney's fees may not be payable under certain circumstances.

a. An agency is not required to pay attorney's fees before the filing of a formal complaint and before the complainant has notified the agency that he or she is represented by an attorney. Written submissions to the agency that are signed by the representative shall be deemed to constitute notice of representation. § 1614.501(e)(1)(iv).

Exception: Fees are allowable for a reasonable period of time prior to the notification of representation (which may include time prior to the filing of the written complaint) for any services performed in reaching a determination to represent the complainant.

b. Attorney's fees are not recovered at the administrative level under the Age discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA) or the Equal Pay Act (EPA). See Palmer

v. General Services Administration, 787 F.2d 300 (8th Cir. 1986).

5. Attorneys (or complainants, if attorney's fees have been paid by the complainant in advance) shall submit a claim for payment to the agency within 30 calendar days of receipt of a decision in which attorneys fees have been awarded. § 1614.501(e)(2).

6. The agency shall pay the amount claimed in full, or issue a decision with appeal rights where the amount claimed is partially paid or rejected in full.

Amounts not in dispute shall be paid even where disputed amounts are in the appellate process.

§ 1614.501(e)(2)(ii)(A).

G. Computation of Service Time

When an individual accepts an offer of employment as a remedy for discrimination, (s)he shall be deemed to have performed service for the agency during the period he would have served but for the discrimination for all purposes except for meeting service requirements for completion of a required probationary or trial period.

VII. COMPLIANCE

A. Relief Ordered in a Final Decision on Appeal

Relief ordered in a final decision on appeal to the Commission is mandatory and binding on the agency unless a party files a timely request for reconsideration or the Commission on its own motion reconsiders the decision. The relief shall be provided in full not later than sixty (60) days after receipt of the final decision unless otherwise ordered in the decision.

B. Relief Pending a Motion for Reconsideration

In the event that the agency files a timely request for reconsideration and the case involves removal, separation or suspension continuing beyond the date of the request for reconsideration, the agency shall comply with the decision only to the extent of the temporary or conditional restoration of the employee to duty status in the position recommended by the Commission, pending the outcome of the agency request for reconsideration.

When no request for reconsideration is filed, or when such a request is denied, the agency shall provide the relief ordered and there is no further right to delay the implementation of the ordered relief. The relief shall be provided in full not later than sixty (60) days after receipt of the final decision unless otherwise ordered in the decision.

C. Complainant May File an Appeal Alleging a Breach of a Settlement Agreement

Where a complainant files an appeal alleging a breach of a settlement agreement and OFO determines that the agreement was breached, the complainant may request enforcement of the settlement agreement or may request reinstatement of the initial complaint at the point at which the processing of the complaint was stopped.

D. Complainant May Petition the Commission for Enforcement of a Decision Issued

Under the Commission's Appellate Jurisdiction.

A complainant may petition the Commission for enforcement of a decision issued under the Commission's appellate jurisdiction. The petition shall be submitted to OFO, and shall set forth the reasons which lead the complainant to believe that the agency is not complying with the decision.

The petitioner shall be notified of any decision made on the petition.

Subsequent to the docketing of a petition, acknowledgement letters will be sent to both parties identifying the new docket number and advising both parties of the right to submit a brief or to comment on the issue in dispute.

The Commission may issue a notice to the head of any Federal agency which has failed to comply with a decision to show cause why there is non-compliance.

Such notice may request the head of the agency or his/her representative to appear before the Commission or to respond to the notice in writing with adequate evidence of compliance or with compelling reasons for non-compliance.

VIII. CIVIL ACTIONS

Filing a civil action terminates Commission processing of an appeal. See sections 1614.408 and 1614.409.

IX. NOTICE REQUIREMENTS

Agencies are required to notify complainants of their rights to appeal to the Commission and to file a civil action within the specified limitations periods.

Agencies must also notify complainants of their statutory right to request court appointment of counsel for representation in connection with the filing of civil actions, which arise from Title VII and the Rehabilitation Act. See Hilliard v. Volcker, 659 F.2d 1125 (D.C. Cir. 1981). Therefore, agencies that are subject to 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 are required to include the appropriate language in every final decision on complaints which allege discrimination. Sample language is provided in Chapter 10, section V.

(1) All time limits stated in this Management Directive are in calendar days.

The time limits in Part 1614 are subject to waiver, estoppel, and equitable tolling. 29 C.F.R. § 1614.604(c). For further guidance, see EEOC Compliance

Manual, Volume II, Section 605.

(2) Included is a dismissal of a complaint that does not meet the prerequisites of a class complaint as enumerated in section 1614.204(a)(2) where the decision to dismiss informs the class agent that the complaint is being filed as an individual complaint.

(3) See § 1614.204(g)(4). A petition to vacate a settlement agreement may be filed if the settlement agreement favors only the class agent or is not fair and reasonable. The agency's decision on the petition is appealable by the agent as well as class members.

CHAPTER 9
FULL RELIEF - RESERVED

CHAPTER 10
ADMINISTRATIVE APPEALS, CIVIL ACTIONS, ATTORNEY'S FEES, AND APPOINTMENT OF COUNSEL

I. INTRODUCTION

Aggrieved persons must be made aware of administrative and civil action time limitations which potentially may bar an aggrieved person's ability to file appeals and civil actions. The time limits specified throughout this Management Directive are stated in calendar days.

All parties should be aware that attorney's fees are awardable at the administrative level and beyond under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (29 U.S.C. § 633a), or the Equal Pay Act (29 U.S.C. § 206(d).

Finally, the agency must advise complainants that they can request that a U. S.

district court appoint counsel for them after they file suit in that court.

II. ADMINISTRATIVE APPEALS

A. Time Limits for Appeals to the Commission - Section 1614.402

The following time limits apply for filing an appeal to the Commission:

1. Appeals limits for agency final decisions and dismissals on individual complaints of discrimination at agencies covered by 5 U.S.C.

2. Appeals limits for agency final decisions or dismissals on individual complaints of discrimination at agencies not covered by 5 U.S.C.

??§ 7121(d)(1) where both a complaint and grievance are filed.

a.Within thirty (30) days of receipt of agency final decision.

b.Section 1614.301 (c) provides that where an aggrieved person whose employing agency is not covered by 5 U.S.C.

§ 7121(d) files a grievance and an EEO complaint on the same matter, the time limits contained in section 1614.106 (individual complaint processing) and section 1614.402 (time for appeals to the Commission) may be held in

during the processing of the grievance if the grievance raises discrimination issues. (2)

3. Appeals limits for agency final decisions on class complaints of discrimination (§ 1614.402(a)).

o Within thirty (30) days of receipt of the decision.

4. Appeals limits for allegations of non-compliance with a settlement agreement or a final decision of an agency which has not been appealed to the Commission or been the subject of a civil action

a. Within thirty (30) days of the complainant's receipt of an agency's determination on an allegation of non-compliance.

b. Thirty-five (35) days after the complainant serves the agency with an allegation of noncompliance, if the agency has not issued a determination.

5. Appeals limits on final grievance decisions in employment discrimination matters where 5 U.S.C. § 7121(d) applies to the agency.

· Within 30 days of receipt of the final decision of an agency, an arbitrator, or the Federal Labor Relations Authority when employment discrimination was raised.

6. Limits on petitions for consideration of final decisions of the MSPB on mixed case appeals and mixed case complaints (5 C.F.R.

§ 1201.151 et seq. and 5 U.S.C. § 7702). (4)

a. Within 30 days of receipt of the final MSPB decision.

b. Within 30 days after the decision of a MSPB field office becomes final.

B. Petitions to Consider MSPB Decisions

A petition to EEOC to consider a final MSPB decision on a mixed case appeal or on the appeal of a final decision on a mixed case complaint, under sections 1614.303 and 1614.304, must be in writing and must include:

17. The name and address of the petitioner and of petitioner's representative

18. A statement of the reasons why the decision of the MSPB is alleged to be incorrect, only with regard to the issues of discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, or handicap;

19. A copy of the decision issued by the MSPB; and

20. The signature of the petitioner or representative, if any.

C. Appeal to MSPB on Mixed Case Complaint

At the time the agency issues its final decision on a mixed case complaint the agency shall advise the complainant of the right to appeal the matter to the MSPB (not the EEOC) within twenty (20) days of receipt of the agency's final decision provided at section 1614.302(d) (3).

III. CIVIL ACTIONS

A. Time Limits for Civil Actions

1. Title VII, Age Discrimination in Employment Act, Rehabilitation Act -- 29

A complainant who has filed an individual complaint, an agent who has filed a class complaint, or a claimant who has filed a claim for individual relief in a class action complaint may file a civil action in an appropriate United States district court:

a. Within 90 days of receipt of an agency's final decision on an individual complaint, or final decision on a class complaint, if no appeal has been filed.

b. After 180 days from the date of filing an individual or class complaint if no appeal has been filed and no agency final decision has been issued.

c. Within 90 days after receipt of the Commission's final decision on appeal.

d. After 180 days from the date of filing an appeal with the Commission if there has been no final decision by the Commission.

2. The Equal Pay Act -- 29 C.F.R. § 1614.409

Regardless of whether the individual complainant pursued any administrative complaint processing, a complainant may file a civil action in a court of competent jurisdiction within two years or, if the violation is willful, within three years of the date of the alleged violation of the Equal Pay Act.

Recovery

of back wages is limited to two years prior to the date of filing suit, or to three years if the violation is willful; liquidated damages in an amount equal to lost back wages may also be awarded. The filing of an administrative complaint does not toll the time for filing a civil action.

B. Termination of EEOC Processing

Filing a timely civil action under any of these statutes terminates Commission processing of an appeal. If a civil action is filed after an appeal has also been filed, the parties are requested to notify the Commission of this event in writing.

C. Mixed Case Complaints

The Civil Rights Act of 1991 did not extend the time limit for filing a civil action in mixed case complaints. See 29 C.F.R. § 1614.310 which sets forth the statutory rights to file a civil action in mixed case complaints.

IV. ATTORNEY'S FEES AND COSTS

Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-16, and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, 29 U.S.C. § 791 et seq., provide for an award of attorney's fees and costs if a complaint of unlawful employment discrimination is resolved in favor of the complainant. Attorney's fees are not recoverable at the administrative level under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA), 29 U.S.C. § 633a, or the Equal Pay Act (EPA), 29 U.S.C.

Section 1614.501(e) sets out the requirements and limitations on the award of attorney's fees and costs.

V. NOTICE OF COMPLAINANT'S RIGHT TO REQUEST COURT APPOINTMENT OF COUNSEL
Consistent with the court's holding in Hilliard v. Volcker, 659 F.2d 1125 (D.C.

Cir. 1981), it is the Commission's policy to require all federal agencies subject to this directive to fulfill their duty to inform complainants, in writing, of their statutory right to request court appointment of counsel for representation in connection with the filing of civil actions which arise under

and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, 29 U.S.C. § 791 et seq.

In Hilliard, the court held that agencies must inform administratively unsuccessful complainants that, in the event they file a civil action, the court has discretionary authority to appoint counsel for them. A litigant who fails to request counsel should not be penalized because an agency has been remiss in its duty to inform the complainant of the court's authority.

Therefore, all federal agencies subject to 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 are required to include the following language in every final decision on complaints which allege discrimination on the bases of race, color, religion, sex, national origin, and/or handicap:

Within 30 days of your receipt of the agency's final decision, you have the right to appeal this decision to:

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission

Office of Federal Operations

Washington, D.C. 20036

You also have the right to file a civil action in an appropriate United States district court. If you choose to file a civil action, you may do so

- -within 90 days of receipt of this final decision if no appeal has been filed, or

- -within 90 days after receipt of the EEOC's final decision on appeal, or

- -after 180 days from the date of filing an appeal with the EEOC if there has

You must name the person who is the official agency head or department head as the defendant. Agency or department means the national organization, and not just the local office, facility, or department in which you might work. Do not name just the agency or department. In your case, you must name as the defendant. (The agency must supply the name of the proper person). You must also state the official title of the agency head or department head. Failure to provide the name or official title of the agency head or department head may result in dismissal of your case.
If you decide to file a civil action, under Title VII or under the Rehabilitation Act, and if you do not have or cannot afford the services of an attorney, you may request that the Court appoint an attorney to represent you and that the Court permit you to file the action without payment of fees, costs, or other security. The grant or denial of the request is within the sole discretion of the Court. Filing a request for an attorney does not extend your time in which to file a civil action. Both the request and the civil action MUST BE FILED WITHIN NINETY (90) CALENDAR DAYS of the date you receive the Commission's decision.
(1) For example, the United States Postal Service, United States Postal Rate Commission and the Tennessee Valley Authority.
(2) Abeyance notice is required. See Chapter 2 section V. A. 1. d., page 11 of this Management Directive.
(3) As a prerequisite to the agency determination, section 1614.504 provides :
If the complainant believes that the agency has failed to comply with the terms of a settlement agreement or final decision, the complainant shall notify the EEO Director, in writing, of the alleged noncompliance within 30 days of when the complainant knew or should have known of the alleged noncompliance.
(4) The Commission will only accept petitions for review of final MSPB decisions.

I. INTRODUCTION

This chapter of the Management Directive contains the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's (EEOC) guidance and instructions for the preparation and submission of annual reports on Federal pre-complaint counseling, formal complaint processing and disposition of Federal EEO complaints. The provisions of this section apply to all Federal agencies and departments covered by 29 C.F.R. § 1614.103(b) and (c). The EEOC is authorized by 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-16 to collect Federal complaints processing data. The analyses of the data collected enable the EEOC to assist in refining the efficiency and effectiveness of the Federal EEO process. Every effort should be made to ensure accurate recordkeeping and reporting of federal EEO data and that all data submissions are fully responsive and in compliance with information requests.

II. PROCEDURAL REQUIREMENTS

The EEOC will collect federal pre-complaint and complaint processing data and disposition data annually, as prescribed by Commission regulations at section 1614.602. Federal agencies and departments are required to provide EEO complaints data on a form prescribed by the EEOC. Section 1614.602. See Attachment A to this chapter. The heads of all covered Federal agencies and departments with 100 or more employees are responsible for submitting annual Fiscal Year reports, including counseling data from all organizational components under their jurisdiction, to the EEOC not later than October 31st of each year. Heads of all Federal agencies with less than 100 employees are responsible for maintaining data on pre-complaint counseling and formal complaints and for submitting this information to EEOC if requested. Agencies and departments that are covered and had no EEO complaint activity are required to submit negative reports. All reports under the reporting requirements of 29 C.F.R. Part 1614 will begin with the report for Fiscal Year 1992.

The report, EEOC Form 462, data submissions and inquiries concerning the report should be directed to:

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission
Office of Federal Operations
Federal Sector Programs
Complaints Adjudication Division
P.O. Box 19848
Washington, D.C. 20036

III. INSTRUCTIONS FOR COMPLETING EEOC FORM 462

EEOC Form 462 is divided into nine parts. Agencies should report the discrimination complaint processing statistics for INDIVIDUAL COMPLAINTS OF DISCRIMINATION only on the Form 462. Information must be reported for all categories in each part. If there was no activity, a zero should be entered in the appropriate spaces. The instructions for completing the report are as follow:

Part I. SUMMARY OF PRE-COMPLAINT COUNSELING ACTIVITIES

1. TOTAL NUMBER OF INDIVIDUALS COUNSELED THIS REPORTING PERIOD

Report the number of individuals who received pre-complaint counseling for the reporting period. This total should include the number counseled according to the requirements at 29 C.F.R. 1614.105, and reported separately:

a. NUMBER COUNSELED WHERE COUNSELING WAS COMPLETED WITHIN 30 DAYS

Report the number of individuals counseled under section 1614.105 within the 30 day time limit.

b. NUMBER COUNSELED WITHIN 60-DAY EXTENSION

Report the number of individuals counseled under the provision for an additional 60-day extension, as provided at 1614.105(2)(e).

c. NUMBER COUNSELED THROUGH AGENCY DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROCEDURES (DRP)

Report the number of individuals electing an established dispute resolution procedure pursuant to section 1614.105(2)(f).

d. NUMBER COUNSELED ON REMAND

Report the number of individuals counseled on issues remanded to the agencies where the EEOC administrative judge at the hearing stage determined that a complainant raised or intended to pursue issue(s) like or related to the complaint, as provided at 1614.109(a).

FORMULA FOR THE TOTAL:

Part I. 1.(a)., number counseled within 30 days plus (+), Part I. 1.(b), number counseled with an additional 60 day extension plus (+), Part I. 1.(c), number counseled through Agency's Dispute Resolution Procedure (DRP), plus (+) number counseled on remand equals (=) total number of individuals counseled this reporting period.

Part II. SUMMARY OF FORMAL COMPLAINT ACTIVITIES

1. COMPLAINTS ON HAND AT THE END OF THE PRIOR REPORTING PERIOD

Report the number of complaints in the agency complaint inventory at the end of the previous fiscal year. The complaint inventory includes complaints in any administrative processing stage prior to dismissal or a final decision.

This number should include remands from EEOC for completion of investigations and other reinstatements.

2.COMPLAINTS ON HAND AT THE BEGINNING OF THE REPORTING PERIOD

Report the number of complaints filed with the agency in any administrative processing stage which are on hand at the beginning of the fiscal year.

there is no lapse of time between the end of the previous fiscal year and the beginning of a new fiscal year, numbers for Part II, (1) and (2) should be the same.

Exceptions:

(1) If a complaint that was previously dismissed during the reporting period is remanded to the agency to complete the investigation, or reinstated during the reporting period, the number of complaints on hand at the beginning of the reporting period should be adjusted upward accordingly.

An

explanation should be provided in the space for comments on the Form 462.

(2) If any complaints have been consolidated during the reporting period, the number of complaints on hand at the beginning of the reporting period should be adjusted downward accordingly and an explanation provided in the space for comments on the Form 462.

3.COMPLAINTS FILED THIS REPORTING PERIOD

Report the number of formal complaints filed during the reporting period, in accordance with section 1614.106.

4.REMANDS

Report the number of complaints that were remanded to the agency for further administrative processing. This number should include: (a) complaints remanded to the agency for counseling of like or related issues provided at 1614.109(a);

(b) complaints on appeal remanded to the agency for supplemental investigations; and (c) complaints remanded to the agency for other processing as ordered by the EEOC.

5.COMPLAINTS CLOSED THIS REPORTING PERIOD

Report the number of complaints closed by dismissal, withdrawal, settlement, and final decision on the merits during the reporting period. Dismissals are covered by section 1614.107(a)-(h).

Note: A complaint should be reported as closed only when all issues are closed by any pre-appellate closure categories, i.e., dismissal, withdrawal, settlement, and final decision.

6.FORMAL COMPLAINTS ON HAND AT THE END OF THIS REPORTING PERIOD.

Report the number of complaints remaining in the EEO complaint inventory at the end of this reporting period.

FORMULA FOR THE TOTAL:

Part II. 2. Number of complaints on hand beginning of reporting period, plus

(+) Part II. 3. Number of complaints filed, plus (+) Part II. 4. Remands, minus

(-) Part II. 5. Complaints closed, equal (=), Part II. 6. Complaints open at the end of this reporting period.

Part III.AGENCY WORK FORCE AND EEO RESOURCES

1.AGENCY PERMANENT WORK FORCE

Report the total number of full-time and part-time career employees on board at the end of the fiscal year.

2.NUMBER OF EEO COUNSELORS

Report the number of agency personnel designated for EEO counseling at the end of the reporting period.

a.FULL-TIME

Report a subtotal for full-time counselors. Employees performing EEO

duties full-time means those working 40 hours per week.

b.PART-TIME

Report a subtotal for part-time counselors. Employees performing EEO counseling

duties part-time means those working less than 40 hours per week.

c.COLLATERAL DUTY

Report a subtotal for collateral duty EEO counselors. EEO counseling is not a

3.NUMBER OF INVESTIGATORS

Report the number of agency personnel designated for EEO investigations at the end of the reporting period.

a.FULL-TIME

A subtotal must be reported for those that are full-time (work week is 40 hours).

b.PART-TIME

A subtotal must be reported for part-time (work week is less than 40 hours).

c. COLLATERAL DUTY

Those that are collateral duty investigators (EEO investigation duty is not a primary job duty).

4.NUMBER OF COUNSELORS/INVESTIGATORS

Report the number of agency personnel designated for counselors/investigators at the end of the reporting period.

a.FULL-TIME

Report a subtotal for full-time counselors/investigators (work week is 40 hours).

b.PART-TIME

Report a subtotal for those part-time counselors/investigators (work week less than 40 hours).

c. COLLATERAL DUTY

Report a subtotal for collateral duty counselors/investigators, (EEO counselor/investigator is not a primary job duty).

Part IV. SUMMARY OF BASES AND ISSUES IN COMPLAINTS FILED

Report the number of bases and issues alleged in all formal complaints filed during the reporting period.

Issues involving Equal Pay Act violations and sexual harassment should be based on sex (Male and/or Female) and reprisal only. All other bases under these issues are inappropriate.

Terminations involving reduction-in-force action should be reported under the "other" category under disciplinary action to distinguish this from other terminations.

Note: Where two or more bases and/or issues are included in a single complaint, be sure to record each basis and/or issue alleged in a complaint in the appropriate column(s). Because complainants often include more than one basis and/or issue in a complaint, the number of bases and issues will not be equal to the number of individual complaints filed during the reporting period.

Part V. SUMMARY OF CLOSED COMPLAINTS BY STATUTE

Report the combined number for all statutory bases, i.e., Title VII, Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA), Section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act, and Equal Pay Act (EPA).

Note: This number will be larger than the total number of closures because a single complaint may allege a violation of more than one statute.

Provide the number of complaints closed by each statute as indicated in Part

V. (A) 1. Title VII, 2. Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA), 3.

Rehabilitation Act, and 4. Equal Pay Act (EPA) on the Form 462.

Note: Where two or more statutory bases are contained in a single complaint, be sure to record each statutory basis in the appropriate column. The number of complaints by statutory bases will be larger than the number of complaints closed during the reporting period.

Part V. 1. Column (B) - Title VII:

Report the number of closed complaints that contained Title VII bases (race, color, sex, national origin, and religion).

Part V. 2. Column (B) - Age Discrimination in Employment Act (ADEA):

Report the number of closed complaints that contained age discrimination basis

Part V. 3. Column (B) - Section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act:

Report the number of closed complaints that contained handicap discrimination basis.

Part V. 4. Column (B) - Equal Pay Act (EPA):

Report the number of closed complaints that contained an equal pay basis.

Part VI. SUMMARY OF CLOSURES BY AGENCY

A.TOTAL NUMBER OF CLOSURES

Column (A) TOTAL NUMBER OF CLOSURES

Report the combined number of complaints closed in all closure categories:

Dismissals, (2) Withdrawals, (3) Settlements, and (4) Final Decisions.

The combined and the total number for each type of closure, i.e.,

Dismissals,

Withdrawals, Settlements, Final Agency Decisions (with and without a hearing) must be reported for all complaints closed during the reporting period.

NOTE: In the case where two or more issues were closed in a single complaint by more than one type of closure, the agency can record it in the category it determines is most important for the case.

FORMULA FOR THE TOTAL:

Part VI.B.1. Dismissal plus (+) Part VI.B.2. Withdrawals plus (+)Part VI.B.3.

Settlements plus (+) Part VI.B.4. Final Decisions equal (=)Part VI.A. Total Closures.

Column (B)TOTAL NUMBER OF DAYS

Report the total number of days for processing complaints closed during this reporting period, from date filed to date closed for each type of closure, i.e., Dismissal, Withdrawal, Settlement, and Final Decision.

Column (C) AVERAGE NUMBER OF DAYS FROM FILING TO CLOSURE

Report the average number of days for processing complaints this reporting period, from date filed to date closed for each type of closure, i.e., Dismissal, Withdrawal, Settlement, and Final Decision.

FORMULA FOR THE TOTAL:

Part VI.(B) divided (÷) by Part VI.(A) equals (=) Part VI.(C), Average Number of Days From Filing to Closure.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR AVERAGE NUMBER OF DAYS COMPUTATIONS

In order to assist with correctly computing the average number of days for the total closures and the individual types of closures, please note that Part VI(A), (B) and (C) computations should be done as illustrated below:

B. NUMBER OF CLOSURES BY CATEGORY

1. Definition: Dismissals - Report the number of complaints dismissed under the provisions at 29 C.F.R. § 1614.107. The agency shall dismiss a complaint or part of a complaint:

(a) that fails to state a claim under section 1614.103 or section 1614.106(a) or states the same claim that is pending before or has been decided by the agency or Commission;

(b) that fails to comply with the applicable time limits contained in sections 1614.105, 1614.106 and 1614.204(c), unless the agency extends the time limits in accordance with section 1614.604(c), or that raises a matter that has not been brought to the attention of a counselor and is not like or related to a matter that has been brought to the attention of a counselor;

(c) that is the basis of a pending civil action in a United States district court in which the complainant is a party provided that at least 180 days have passed since the filing of the administrative complaint, or that was the basis of a civil action decided by a United States district court in which the complainant was a party;

(d) where the complainant has raised the matter in a negotiated grievance procedure that permits allegations of discrimination or in an appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board and section 1614.301 or section 1614.302 indicates that the complainant has elected to pursue the non-EEO process;

(e)that is moot or alleges that a proposal to take a personnel action, or other preliminary step to taking a personnel action, is discriminatory;

(f)where the complainant cannot be located, after reasonable efforts have been

days to a notice of proposed dismissal sent to his or her last known address;

(g)where the agency has provided the complainant with a written request to provide relevant information or otherwise proceed with the complaint, and the complainant has failed to respond to the request within 15 days of its receipt or the complainant's response does not address the agency's request, provided that the request included a notice of the proposed dismissal. Instead of dismissing for failure to cooperate, the complaint may be adjudicated if sufficient information for that purpose is available; or

(h)if, prior to the issuance of the notice required by section 1614.108(f), the complainant refuses within 30 days of receipt of an offer of settlement to accept an agency offer of full relief containing a certification from the agency's EEO Director, Chief Legal Officer or a designee reporting directly to the EEO Director or the Chief Legal Officer that the offer constitutes full relief, provided that the offer gave notice that failure to accept would result in dismissal of the complaint. An offer of full relief is that which is appropriate relief in section 1614.501.

2.Withdrawals - Report the number of complaints that were withdrawn.

Withdrawals include only those complaints in which the complainant initiated the action to terminate the administrative processing after filing a formal complaint.

Withdrawals with voluntary resolution and corrective action should be reported in Part VI.B.3 as settlements.

3.Settlements - Report the number of complaints that were resolved through settlement. A settlement is an adjustment, formal or informal, of a complaint and should be in the form of a written agreement signed by the complainant and the agency.

4.Final Decisions Issued by the Agency - Report the number of final decisions issued by the agency with a hearing and without a hearing (i.e., recommended findings from EEOC Administrative Judge). The final decision is a finding on the merits of discrimination or no discrimination.

Only the agency decisions reported in VI.B.4. above need to be tabulated.
Do not include the decisions to dismiss or the withdrawals and settlements, reported in VI.B.1., 2., and 3.

The method for calculating this number is: Add the totals of Part VI.B.4(a) Finding Discrimination to Part VI.B.4(b) Finding No Discrimination.

(a) Report a subtotal of all final decisions on the merits issued by the agency, with and without a hearing, finding discrimination, Part VI.B.4.(a) on the Form
462.

(b) Report a subtotal of all final decisions issued by the agency, with and without a hearing, finding no discrimination, Part VI.B. 4.(b) on the Form 462.

FORMULA FOR THE TOTAL:

Part VI.B.4.(a) (Finding Discrimination) plus (+) Part VI.4.(b) (Finding no

Discrimination) equal (=) Part VI.B.4., Final Agency Decisions.

C.TYPES OF FINAL AGENCY DECISIONS

Report the total number for all final agency decisions.

This number should be the same as reported in Part VI.B.4.

1.FINAL AGENCY DECISION WITHOUT A HEARING

(a) Report the total number of final decisions on the merits issued by the agency finding discrimination where there has been no recommended findings and conclusions from the EEOC.

(b) Report the total number of final agency decisions on the merits finding no discrimination, where there have been no recommended findings and conclusions

from the EEOC.

2.FINAL DECISION WITH A HEARING BY EEOC ADMINISTRATIVE JUDGE - Report the number of:

a. Agency actions taken on recommended findings and conclusions from EEOC finding discrimination.

Report the number of recommended findings and conclusions from EEOC administrative judges' recommended findings of discrimination on which the agency acted by indicating how many instances those findings were:

21. accepted as the agency decision,

22. modified by the agency or

23. rejected by the agency

b. Agency action taken on recommended findings and conclusions from EEOC finding no discrimination.

Report the number of recommended findings and conclusions from EEOC administrative judges' findings of "No Discrimination" on which the agency acted by indicating how many instances those findings were:

14. accepted as the agency decision,

15. modified by the agency or

16. rejected by the agency

Note: If there is an instance where a recommended finding of discrimination or no discrimination is accepted, modified, or rejected in part, the agency can record it in the category it determines is the most important for the case.

Part VII.SUMMARY OF COMPLAINTS CLOSED WITH CORRECTIVE ACTION UP TO AND INCLUDING FINAL DECISION BY THE AGENCY

1.TOTAL NUMBER OF COMPLAINTS CLOSED WITH CORRECTIVE ACTION THIS REPORTING PERIOD

Report the total number of complaints closed with corrective action. In the instance where a single case contains more than one corrective action, count each corrective action separately in the appropriate designated category. Do not include corrective action taken pursuant to a Commission or Office of Federal Operations appellate order.

2.AMOUNT OF BACK PAY AWARDED THIS REPORTING PERIOD

Report the total dollar amount of back pay granted to complainants during the reporting period.

3.ATTORNEY'S FEES AND COSTS AWARDED

Report the total dollar amount awarded for attorney's fees and costs during the reporting period.

4.TYPES OF CORRECTIVE ACTION

Report the total number of complaints closed with corrective action. The number should be reported for each category of resolutions and corrective action as listed on the Form 462, Part VII. D. and indicate how many such actions included or did not include an award of back pay.
Note: Several types of resolutions and corrective action may be applicable for each complaint, and each should be entered in the appropriate column. This total will be more than the total number of complaints closed.

Part VIII.SUMMARY OF OPEN EEO COMPLAINTS INVENTORY

PENDING AT THE END OF THE REPORTING PERIOD

1.TOTAL NUMBER OF OPEN EEO COMPLAINTS PENDING IN INVENTORY AT THE END OF THE REPORTING PERIOD.

Report the total number of open complaints left in the inventory for processing at the end of the reporting period in column 1.(A); the total number of days in processing, i.e. from date filed to end of the reporting fiscal year (September 30th) in column 1.(B); the average number of days from filing to end of fiscal year (September 30th) in column 1.(C); pending 1-180 days in column 1.(D); 181-365 days in column 1.(E); pending 366-720 days in column 1.(F); and over 720 days in column 1.(G).

FORMULA FOR PART VIII 1. COLUMN (C): Part VIII 1.(B) divided (÷) Part VIII 1.(A)=Part VIII 1.(C)

2.TOTAL NUMBER OF OPEN COMPLAINTS PENDING BY CATEGORY.

a.Written Acknowledgement of Receipt (Notification of Acceptance for Processing or Dismissal)

Report the total number of open complaints pending written acknowledgement of receipt (with notification of acceptance for processing or dismissal) in inventory in Column 2a.(A); the total number of days in processing; i.e., from date filed to end of fiscal year (September 30th) in column (B); the average number of days from date filed to end of fiscal year (September 30th) in Column

Report the total number of open complaints pending in Column (A); the total number of days in processing; i.e., from date filed to end of fiscal year (September 30th) in Column (B); and the average number of days from date filed to end of fiscal year (September 30th) in Column (C); pending 1-180 days in Column (D); pending 181-365 days in Column (E); 366-720 days in Column (F) and pending over 720 days in Column (G).

Report the total number of open complaints pending hearings in Column (A); the total number of days in processing; i.e., from date filed to end of fiscal year

(September 30th) in Column (B); the average number of days from date filed to end of fiscal year (September 30th) in Column (C); pending 1-180 days in Column

and over 720 days in Column (G).

d.FINAL DECISION BY THE AGENCY

Report the total number of open complaints pending Final Decision by the agency in column (A); the total number of days in processing; i.e., from date filed to end of fiscal year (September 30th) in column (B); the average number of days from date filed to end of fiscal year (September 30th) in column (C); pending

1-180 days in column (D); pending 181-365 days in column (E); pending 366-720 days in column (F); and pending over 720 days in column (G).

Part IX.SUMMARY OF ACTIVITY FOR COMPLETED INVESTIGATIONS

1.NUMBER OF INVESTIGATIONS COMPLETED THIS REPORTING PERIOD.

Report the total number of all investigations completed by agency personnel and investigations contracted out.

a.NUMBER OF INVESTIGATIONS COMPLETED BY AGENCY PERSONNEL

Report the number of investigations completed by agency personnel separately in column (A); the total number of days to complete investigations for complaints from date assigned for investigation to date investigation was completed, in column (B); and the average number of days to complete the investigations.

b. NUMBER OF INVESTIGATIONS COMPLETED CONTRACTED OUT.
Report the number of investigations contracted out separately in column (A); the total number of days it took to complete the investigation(s) in column (B); and the average number of days from assignment to date investigation was completed.

FORMULA FOR THE TOTAL:

Part IX.1.a plus (+) Part IX.1.b equal (=) Part IX.1.

2. NUMBER OF INVESTIGATIONS COMPLETED AND NOTICES ISSUED WITHIN 180 DAYS.

Report the total number of investigations completed and notices issued within 180 days as required at 1614.108(e) during the reporting period in column 2(A); total number of days for completion, i.e., date filed or within time period contained in an EEOC Order on an appeal to date of notice, in column 2(B); and average number of days for completion.

NOTE: The average days should be derived by dividing the total number, column

(A) into the total number of days, column (B).

3. NUMBER OF INVESTIGATIONS COMPLETED AND NOTICES ISSUED AFTER ADDITIONAL EXTENSION OF UP TO 90 DAYS.

Report the total number of investigations completed and notices issued up to an additional 90-day extension, i.e., up to a total of 270 days, as provided at 1614.108(e), during the reporting period, in column 3(A); total number of days for completing the investigations, counting from the date filed or from the date or time period contained in an EEOC Order on an appeal, to the date of notice in column 3(B); and average number of days for completion.

NOTE: The average number of days should be derived by dividing the total number of investigations, column 3(A) into the total number of days, column 3(B).

FORMULA:  $\text{Part IX 3.(B)} \div \text{Part IX 3.(A)} = \text{Part IX 3.(C)}$ .

4. NUMBER OF INVESTIGATIONS COMPLETED AND NOTICE ISSUED IN EXCESS OF 270 DAYS.

Report the total number of investigations completed and notices issued in excess of 270 days during the reporting period in column 4(A); total number of days for completing the investigations, i.e., from date filed or within time period of an EEOC Order on an appeal to date of notice in column 4(B); and the average number of days for completion.

NOTE: The average number of days should be derived by dividing column 4.(A);

Total number into column 4.(B); Total number of Days.

FORMULA: Part IX 4.(B) ÷ Part IX 4.(A)=Part IX 4.(C).

5.TOTAL DOLLAR AMOUNT SPENT FOR ALL INVESTIGATIONS.

Report the total amount spent on all investigations (i.e., investigations completed by agency personnel and investigations contracted out during this reporting period.

a.Amount spent on investigations completed by agency personnel.

Report the amount spent on investigations completed by agency personnel.

COMPLIANCE WITH THE ETHICS IN GOVERNMENT ACT OF 1978

591 PURPOSE - This section provides regulations and procedures for the filing, control of, and public access to financial disclosure reports which certain prospective or present employees are required by law to prepare and to submit for review.

592 BACKGROUND - The Ethics in Government Act of 1978 requires certain employees to prepare a comprehensive report on their financial situation to be reviewed for possible conflicts of interest by the General Counsel, who is the designated official, and in specified cases by officials of the Office of Government Ethics. By law, these reports must be available for public inspection and copies must be provided on request. The Act also imposes significant new restrictions on post-employment contacts between former employees of Broadcasting.

593 DEFINITIONS

a. "Designated Agency official" means the official designated by the Director of Broadcasting to administer the provisions of the Act within Broadcasting. (see paragraph 595.1).

b. "Covered employee" means an employee, including a special Government employee, whose position is classified at GS -16 or higher, and a member of the Senior Foreign Service or a domestic specialist of Class 2 or above (FSRU-2 or FSRU-1). It also includes individuals appointed to positions by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate; employees in positions which are of a confidential or policy-making character, unless their positions have been excluded by regulations issued by the Director, Office of Government Ethics; and certain others described in the Office of Personnel Management Regulations governing Executive Personnel Financial Disclosure Requirements.

c. "Special Government employee" means an officer or employee who is retained, designated, appointed, or employed to perform, with or without compensation, for not to exceed 130 days during any period of 365 consecutive days, temporary duties either on a full-time or intermittent basis.

d. "Government-wide regulations" means regulations heretofore or hereafter issued by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM), and specifically the regulations published in the Federal Register on October 21, 1980 .

e. "The Act" means the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-521; 92 Stat. 1824-1885; approved on October 26, 1978), as amended.

594 PROCEDURES

594.1 Financial Disclosure Statement - There is at present one Financial Disclosure Statement Form (Standard Form 278 Revised). (It may be used:

a. By employees filing annual statements and termination of employment statements under the Act; and

b. By newly appointed or elected officials and, at the time of nomination, by those persons nominated by the President to positions requiring the advice and consent of the Senate, who must fill statements under the Act (see paragraph 593b).

594.2 Filing Requirements - A covered employee must prepare a financial disclosure report on the appropriate standard form issued by the Office of Personnel Management and file it as follows:

a. An individual who assumes a position covered by the Act must file a completed Standard Form 278 within 30 days of assuming the position (e.g., a GS-15 promoted to GS -16) or a new SES employee unless the individual:

(1) has left another covered position within 30 days prior to assuming the new position; or

(2) has already filed a report in connection with a nomination or as a candidate for the position.

b. Except for Career Ministers, an individual nominated for a position as a Foreign Service Information Officer must file a completed Standard Form 278 within 30 days of the date the nomination is forwarded to the Senate (e.g., Class 1 FSIO nominated by the President to Senior Foreign Service).

c. An individual who occupies a covered position and performs the duties of that position for more than 60 days during any calendar year must file a completed Standard Form 278 on or before May 15 of each succeeding calendar year. The reports filed on or before May 15 are to include information for the preceding calendar year.

d. An individual whose employment in a covered position terminates must file a completed Standard Form 278 unless the individual has accepted employment in another covered position. The report required by this paragraph covers the preceding calendar year, unless the May 15 report covering that year has been filed, plus the period of the current year up to the individual's termination from employment.

594.3 Effective Dates and Deadline for Submission of the Financial Disclosure Statements

All Statements must be submitted to the General Counsel no later than May 15 of each year. Except as otherwise specifically provided in Paragraphs 595.6, 595.7, and 595.8, and except for officers assigned overseas who must file by June 15.

594.4 Contents of Completed Reports

a. Each covered employee should carefully read the Information Sheet on the Standard Form to assure it is the Form appropriate to the circumstances of the employee and to understand the information which is required to be included. Employees with questions are referred in the first instance to the Government-wide regulations or to the instructions to Standard Form 278 . Any questions still unanswered should be referred to the General Counsel.

b. Each covered employee is instructed to include the employee's grade or class in the block entitled "Position for which filing" on page 1 of Standard Form 278.

c. Under Schedule C of the Financial Disclosure Statement, an officer need not identify or disclose gifts that were offered and accepted as part of a publicly recognized representational function (e.g., diplomatic dinner or reception). These are more properly covered by the Foreign Gifts Act (5 USC 7342) and are excluded from coverage under these regulations.

595 RESPONSIBILITIES

595.1 Office of the General Counsel - The General Counsel serves as the designated official to administer the provisions of the Act.

595.2 Heads of Offices, and Services

On March 1 of each year, the Director of International Broadcasting is requested to designate a subordinate officer who will:

(1) identify the covered employees, i.e., every employee who must file a Financial Disclosure Statement (Standard Form 278) by reason of the employee's personal class in the Foreign Service or of the position which the employee occupies in the Civil Service;

(2) distribute the Financial Disclosure Statements to these employees.

(3) request each covered employee to fill out the Financial Disclosure Statement;

(4) obtain a current job description for each covered employee and identify the employee to whom the description relates;

(5) request missing information from an employee who has filed an incomplete Statement; and

(6) forward the job descriptions and the completed Statements to the General Counsel no later than May 15 (June 15 in the case of officers assigned overseas) with certification that all employees have complied. IT IS MOST IMPORTANT THAT JOB DESCRIPTIONS ACCOMPANY THE COMPLETED STATEMENTS. It is the responsibility of the designated subordinate officer to ensure that the job descriptions are forwarded to the General Counsel.

As an aid in identifying covered employees, the Office of Personnel, will provide a list of employees whose incumbency in a civil service position or whose personal foreign service rank subjects them to the reporting obligations.

In case of doubt whether an employee is obligated to submit a Statement, the officer required to obtain the Statement from the employee should consult the Designated Agency Ethics Official (DAEO).

The name and location of each officer who fails or refuses to submit a Financial Disclosure Statement shall be provided to the DAEO, with a narrative statement of the efforts made by the Office, or Service to obtain the officer's compliance with the obligation.

593.3 Overseas Employees - The appropriate offices will be responsible for obtaining job descriptions for and Financial Disclosure Statements from employees based abroad as well as from domestically assigned employees, excluding those listed under Paragraphs 595.4 and 595.5 below.

595.4 Detailed Employees - All covered detailed employees will file completed Financial Disclosure Statements with the Designated Agency Ethics Official of the agency to which they are detailed.

595.5 Presidential Appointment of the Principal Officers of Broadcasting - The DAEO shall obtain the completed Financial Disclosure Statement (Standard Form 278) of proposed presidential appointees for the positions of Director from the Executive Office of the President and, within three (3) days of receipt, submit a letter of review to the Director of the Office of Government Ethics.

595.6 New Employees - the Office of Personnel will obtain the required job descriptions for, and Financial Disclosure Statements from, all covered new employees, and from any proposed presidential appointees. The Statement must be submitted to the DAEO within thirty (30) days after the date of the employee's appointment.

595.7 Separated Employees -The Office of Personnel will obtain the last applicable job descriptions and Financial Disclosure Statements for employees who, immediately before separation from Broadcasting were employed in a covered position.

The completed Statement and job description pertaining to a covered employee who has been separated will be forwarded within thirty (30) days after separation to the DAEO. Periodically, the Director, Office of Personnel, will provide the DAEO with a list of employees who have been separated. The DAEO will check the list against the Statements of separated employees on file and notify the Director, Office of Personnel, of any former employees who have not filed Statements. The Director, Office of Personnel, will notify any such former employees of the requirement to file the Statements and of applicable penalties.

596 PENALTY FOR FAILURE TO FILE OR FALSIFYING REPORTS

The Attorney General may bring a civil action in any United States District Court with jurisdiction against any individual who knowingly and willfully falsifies or who knowingly or willfully fails to file or to report any information required by the Act. The court in which such action is brought may assess against such individual a civil penalty not to exceed $5,000.

597 RIGHTS OF THE EMPLOYEE

a. Steps to Determine the Existence of the Obligation to Report - When the DAEO has been informed by an Office, or Service that an employee failed or refuses to submit a complete Statement, the DAEO shall communicate to the employee the reasons for which the obligation has been applied to the employee, and the obligation incumbent on the DAEO:

(1) to refer to the Attorney General the name of any individual who, the DAEO has reason to believe, has knowingly and willfully falsified or knowingly or willfully failed to file or to report any information required to be reported; or

(2) to recommend that disciplinary action be taken against the employee.

The DAEO shall notify the employee in writing that the decision to refer the employee's name to the Attorney General as well as to take any appropriate disciplinary action in accordance with applicable law or regulation is under consideration and that the employee is required within ten (10) working days of receipt of the written notice to submit the completed Statement or to furnish any evidence or arguments before further action is taken.

After receipt of the employee's reply or where no reply has been submitted, the DAEO shall review the entire available record, decide whether to accept the employee's argument, or to recommend to the General Counsel that the employee's name be referred to the Attorney General or that disciplinary action be taken (or both) and notify the employee in writing of the decision and the reasons for it.

Appeal - An employee may appeal a decision of the General Counsel:

(1) that the employee must submit a complete Financial Disclosure Statement:

(2) that specific information is required to be submitted;

(3) that the required information has not been submitted;

(4) that a conflict of interest exists; or

(5) proposing to refer the employee's name to the Attorney General.

The appeal directed to the General Counsel shall be in writing, and shall be sent within ten (10) working days after an employee receives written notice of the decision to be appealed. This appeal shall not preclude any other appeal provided by law or regulation of the Office of Personnel Management or of the Office of Government Ethics.

The General Counsel shall decide the appeal on the written record and notify the employee in writing of the decision and of the reasons for it.

598 PUBLIC INSPECTION OF THE FINANCIAL DISCLOSURE STATEMENTS

On written request, the Office of Administration will make available to the Public the filed job descriptions and completed Financial Disclosure Statements. If a job description is not attached to a Statement which has been requested for inspection, an Assistant General Counsel will obtain the job description for an overseas position from the appropriate Office, and for a domestic position from the appropriate head of the Office, or Service (see paragraph 595.2). A record shall be kept of each person who inspects or requests a copy of a particular Statement and of the date on which inspection took place or the document was furnished. The Director Office of Administration, will post prominently at the place where Statements are inspected by the public, and will attach to the Statements furnished, a notice describing the penalties for misuse of the Financial Disclosure Statements or of their contents. The Director Office of Administration, will dispose of Financial Disclosure Statements on file in accordance with Sections 734.603 (b) & (c) of the OPM Government-wide Regulations.

The General Counsel shall be responsible for review of Statements filed by Presidential nominees to the positions of Director and of the Statements which are subject of appeals by employees.

All referrals to the Attorney General or to the Director of the Office of Government Ethics shall be by the General Counsel.

MOA V-A Section 600

601 WORKWEEK

601.1 Authority - Part 610 of the 5 Code of Federal Regulations and 5 U.S.C. 6101 grant broad authority to each federal department and agency to schedule the work of its employees.

601.2 Definitions - See 5 CFR 610.

a. Alternative Work Schedules - Flexible and compressed work schedules which allow employees to deviate from the Basic Workweek and Basic Workday, but must account for 40 hours a week, or 80 hours a pay period, for a full-time employee.

b. Administrative Workweek - The administrative workweek of Broadcasting is the calendar week -- Sunday through Saturday -- and each day is the 24-hour period from midnight to midnight, the Office of Personnel (B/P) approves a different "administrative workweek" or "day" to facilitate work scheduling for employees whose daily duty tours begin before and end after midnight.

c. Basic Workweek - The regular basic workweek consists of five consecutive work days appropriate to the needs of each work unit.

d. Basic Workday -Broadcasting's officially established basic workday for full-time employees consists of eight consecutive hours with 45 minutes for lunch.

e. Regularly Scheduled Administrative Workweek - For full-time employees, the regularly scheduled administrative workweek will consist of not fewer than 40 hours of work.

f. Suffer or Permit - A term applicable to employees entitled to overtime compensation under the Fair Labor Standards Act and means compensable overtime work performed for the benefit of Broadcasting, whether requested or not, provided the employee's supervisor knows of or has reason to believe that work is being performed and has the opportunity to prevent the work from being performed.

601.3 Scheduling an Administrative Workweek - All full-time employees of Broadcasting who are not working on an approved Maxiflex, Flextime, or Compressed Work schedule as defined in Section 603, shall be scheduled in accordance with the provisions of the basic workweek and basic work day unless specific authorization states otherwise (Section 601.6).

601.4 Meal Period - Normally, each tour of duty must include a meal period, normally 45 minutes, during which the employee will be excused from duty. On a case-by-case basis, a supervisor may grant a 30-minute lunch hour to employees with special needs, as long as the requirements of the office and equity among employees in the office have been considered. Examples of special needs include, but are not limited to, car pool or transportation, or child care or elder care needs. The lunch period will be scheduled as near the middle of the workday as possible. Ordinarily the meal period will not be scheduled during the first or last 2 1/2 hours of the work day.

601.5 Clearances by General Services Administration (GSA) - The Regional Administrator, Region III, GSA, must approve any changes in work-hours involving 50 or more employees. B/P obtains any clearance necessary before the change can be implemented.

601.6 Irregular Workweek

a. An irregular workweek is one which does not fall within the definitions for basic workweek and basic workday. The requirements for an irregular workweek contained in 5 CFR 610.121 may be waived only when Broadcasting would be seriously handicapped in carrying out its functions or that costs would be substantially increased. Examples of an irregular workweek include a non-overtime schedule other than Monday through Friday, shift work or a schedule which has a starting time which varies from day to day.

b. The head of the employing Office must request approval from the Director, B/P or his or her designee, to establish an irregular basic workweek for an individual employee or a group of employees. The written request must describe the circumstances that justify the proposal, and include additional justification if requesting the waiver of requirements in 5 CFR 610.121 as noted in "a" above. The irregular basic workweek may be either on a continuing basis or may be authorized to cover special requirements that occur from time to time or emergency work situations.

d. Employee Travel During Non-Duty Hours - 5 U.S.C. 6101(b)(2) provides that travel shall, to the maximum extent practicable, be scheduled within an employee's scheduled workweek. When an employee is required to travel outside his or her scheduled duty hours under circumstances that do not entitle him or her to overtime pay or compensatory time off, the official who orders the travel must record the reasons for ordering the travel during non-duty hours and must furnish the employee a copy upon request. (See MOA V-A 242.4c for circumstances in which hours of travel are treated as hours of work in determining entitlement to overtime compensation).

e. Special Work Schedules for Educational Purposes - B/P may approve an individual request by an Office for an irregular workweek to permit an employee to take one or more courses in a college, university, or other educational institution that will equip him or her for more effective work in Broadcasting. An employee assigned to a special work schedule for educational purposes is generally ineligible for night pay differential or Sunday pay.

601.7 Scheduling Hours of Work for Part Time Employees (See 5 CFR Part 340)

a. Work schedules of part-time employees will be from 16 to 32 hours a week under a specified schedule which must be indicated on the SF-50. Any permanent change including decreasing or increasing the part-time hours can be done only by the issuance of an SF-50.

b. The work schedule for each part-time employee will be determined by the employing office in advance of appointment, and submitted on the SF-52. These work schedules may be changed to meet operating requirements, but they must be fixed in advance of the date on which they become effective and cover more than two pay periods. The employee will be provided a written schedule in advance of the effective date. All work schedules must meet the following requirements unless written approval for an exception has been obtained in advance from B/P (see (7) below):

(1) The total number of hours scheduled to be worked each day will be in full hours or in multiples of one-half hour;

(2) The workweek must consist of specified hours of duty during no more than five consecutive days, with at least two consecutive days off;

(3) No more than 8 hours of work may be scheduled in any one workday;

(4) The daily work schedule of a part-time employee who works 5 or more hours a day must include a non-paid meal period during which the employee will be excused from duty. In accordance with Broadcasting practice, this meal period should be 45 minutes in duration. However, if a 45 minute meal period is impracticable, heads of Offices may prescribe meal periods of different duration, provided that the minimum length of a meal period will be 30 minutes;

(5) The schedule of the basic workweek must not be altered to permit or prevent the inclusion of holidays; and

(6) All work schedules must meet the requirements of (1) above. Any work schedule not meeting the criteria of (2) through (6) must be requested and justified in writing and approved in advance by Personnel.

c. Part-time employees earn leave only if work is scheduled during each week of each biweekly pay period.

d. A part-time employee will not be scheduled for full-time work (with the exception noted below) without approval by Budget. An employing office that wishes to schedule a part-time employee for full-time work either permanently or for a limited period will request Personnel to convert the employee from a part-time to a full-time appointment. A part-time employee who is required to perform irregular or occasional hours of work in addition to his or her established part-time schedule may do so for up to two consecutive pay periods and an SF-50 is not necessary. The additional hours, and the supervisor's authorization, must be shown on the time and attendance report.

601.8 Hours of Work for Intermittent (WAE) Employees

a. Intermittent (WAE) employees work irregularly or occasionally. They do not have a prearranged schedule of days and hours of work but are called to work as their services are needed. They are paid only for work actually performed. Daily work assignments of intermittent employees will be in full hours or multiples of one-half hour. They are excluded from annual and sick leave benefits.

b. Intermittent employees normally will work not more than 30 hours per week.

c. In emergency situations, an intermittent employee may be required to work more than 30 hours a week, but he or she will not be ordered to work more than 30 hours a week for more than four consecutive calendar weeks without prior approval of B/P. If warranted by unusual circumstance, B/P may extend the four-week restriction. B/P will notify the employing office in writing of such extensions and of their expiration dates. Work in excess of 30 hours a week may not be ordered beyond the expiration date of an extension without prior approval from B/P.

d. An intermittent employee may not be scheduled for regular part-time or full-time work without B/P approval. An employing office that wishes to schedule an intermittent employee for regular part-time or full-time work will request B/P to convert the employee to a part-time or full-time appointment. B/P will review the request and take appropriate action in consultation with the employing office.

601.9 Hours of Work for Experts and Consultants - Instructions for scheduling hours of work for experts and consultants are contained in MOA V-A 800.

602 OVERTIME WORK

602.1 General Overtime Policy - Work in excess of 40 hours during the administrative workweek will be authorized only as an emergency measure to avoid backlogging of regular work or to meet unforeseen developments or circumstances. It is the policy of Broadcasting that those officials authorized to order or approve official overtime will make every effort to avoid or diminish need for overtime work by careful scheduling, by distributing and controlling work assignments, reviewing requests for approval of overtime to be worked, and devising other means of meeting workload requirements, e.g., through improved management and streamlined procedures. Whenever possible, overtime will be distributed among employees in an equitable manner.

602.2 Regularly Scheduled Overtime is hours of duty in excess of 40 hours during an employee's administrative workweek or in excess of 8 hours during an employee's workday that are officially ordered and scheduled (or should have been scheduled) by management prior to the beginning of the administrative workweek and designated by calendar days and number of hours per day as part of the regularly scheduled administrative workweek. Compensatory time off may not be substituted for overtime pay for regularly scheduled overtime.

602.3 Irregular or Occasional Overtime is hours of duty in excess of 40 hours in an administrative workweek or in excess of 8 in a workday that is officially ordered in advance by management, but cannot be scheduled in advance of the administrative workweek.

602.4 Shift Rotation - A 40-hour administrative workweek that includes overtime because an employee must work more than 8 hours in one or more workdays because of shift rotation may be approved by the head of the Office.

602.5 Authority to Order or Approve Overtime

(a) First level supervisors, second level supervisors, and higher officials are authorized, within the limitation of available allotted funds, to order or approve overtime work to be performed by employees who are GS-12s (or equivalent FP officers) or below, or by wage system employees. Overtime will not be ordered or approved for employees who are at or above GS-13 (or equivalent Foreign Service) level except in very unusual circumstances. If such unusual circumstances occur, the order or approval of overtime must be in writing and signed by the head of the employing office.

(b) Overtime must be ordered in advance or approved in writing immediately after it has been performed in order to be creditable for pay or compensatory time purposes.

602.6 Recording and Reporting Overtime Work - Procedures and instructions for authorizing, recording, and reporting overtime work for time and attendance and payroll purposes are contained in MOA VII-500, Time and Attendance Handbook.

602.7 Compensatory Time Off

(a) MOA V-A 242 provides that GM, GS, GG, and FP employees, whose salary exceeds the top GS-10 pay rate, earn one hour of compensatory time off, rather than overtime pay, for every hour of irregular or occasional overtime work authorized under 5 USC. Compensatory time off may not be granted for regularly scheduled overtime. MOA V-A 242 further provides that GM, GS, GG, and FP employees not subject to the Fair Labor Standards Act who are paid at lesser rates should be encouraged to elect compensatory time off in lieu of overtime pay. Wage system employees must be paid for overtime worked unless they request in writing, compensatory time off in lieu of overtime pay.

(b) Non-wage system employees covered by FLSA must be paid for overtime which is approved or suffered and permitted without regard to grade level. Under the provisions of 5 CFR 551.531, officials authorized to approve overtime shall, upon written request from a non-wage system employee covered by FLSA, approve compensatory time off in lieu of paid overtime. Such employees may not be required to be compensated for overtime work with an equivalent amount of compensatory time off.

(c) Scheduling and Approving Compensatory Time Off

(1) Supervisors who order or approve overtime work by a GM, GS, GG, or FP employee not covered by FLSA whose salary exceeds the top GS-10 rate should, at the time of ordering or approving irregular or occasional overtime, schedule the compensatory time off. If it is not possible to develop such a schedule, the supervisor will schedule the compensatory time off as soon as possible after the overtime is worked, taking into account the plans and wishes of the employee.

(2) An employee will be required to use earned compensatory time off before taking annual leave. However, this requirement will not be applied during the last three months of the leave year if it would result in the employee's having to forfeit annual leave, nor will it be applied to scheduled vacation periods.

(3) An employee whose salary is below the GS-14 step 1 base pay may be paid for unused compensatory time at the end of the eighth pay period after the compensatory time was earned if the Director or Office Head, or designee, certifies to B/F on the Time and Attendance Report, that the time off could not be taken during the allowed period.

(4) If employees have elected, or have been required to take compensatory time in lieu of overtime pay, they will forfeit the time off if they refuse to take it when offered, or otherwise make it impossible to grant them such time off. In such instance, the supervisor is required to record the amount of compensatory time so forfeited on the Time and Attendance Report. Employees whose salary is at the minimum GS-14 rate (or Foreign Service equivalent) and above forfeit compensatory time off if it is not taken by the end of the eighth full pay period after the compensatory time was earned.

(d) Limitation on Granting Compensatory Time Off - Compensatory time off may not be earned for overtime for which the employee could not receive overtime pay because of the maximum aggregate salary limitation (maximum rate of GS-15 - MOA V-A 251). This limitation does not apply to FLSA overtime.

(e) Units of Compensatory Time Off - Compensatory time off is excused absence in lieu of overtime pay and should not be confused with annual leave. Compensatory time may be used in fifteen-minute increments.

(f) Recording and Reporting Compensatory Time - MOA VII-500, Time and Attendance, contains instructions for recording and reporting compensatory time.

(g) Compensatory Time Off Not Taken Before Involuntary Separation - If employees are involuntarily separated before they are permitted to take compensatory time off to their credit, they will be paid for the overtime.

(h) Reassignments - Compensatory time off will be granted before the effective date of an employee's reassignment from one Office to another. In exceptional circumstances, subject to agreement by the losing and gaining office, credit for compensatory time off may be transferred by the use of a Individual Compensatory Time Record.

(i) Transfer to Another Federal Agency - An employee who leaves Broadcasting to transfer to (or accept appointment without break in service by) another Federal department or Agency will forfeit unused compensatory time off to his or her credit unless the Director or Office Head certifies that such compensatory time off could not be granted before the employee's separation, and the employee may be compensated for it.

603 ALTERNATIVE AND COMPRESSED WORK SCHEDULES

Maxiflex, Flextime, and Compressed Work Schedules are three systems of work schedules approved for use in Broadcasting. Within a work unit, and with the supervisor's approval, employees who are not required to work a previously approved schedule, may request a Maxiflex, Flextime, or Compressed Work schedule. Prior to implementing any schedule individual units must ensure that internal Office procedures and approvals have been followed. All three schedules may be used within a single work unit.

603.1 - Alternative Work Schedules

5 U.S.C. 6120 authorizes the Director to establish flexible work schedules for Broadcasting employees. The Director has delegated this authority to the Office of Personnel.

a. Flextime

(1) Participation in and Termination of Flextime - Broadcasting offices in the U.S. may participate in the Flextime program by notifying Personnel through the office supervisor.

If it is determined by a supervisor that participation in this program is disruptive to the work unit, hinders its productivity, or incurs additional cost in the performance of its work, after consultation with the unit employees, and a good faith effort to work out any problems, the supervisor may terminate or modify participation in Flextime.

(2) FlexibleTime - Under Flextime, employees may depart 8 hours and 45 minutes after arrival (or appropriate number of hours in a part-time employee's daily schedule). All employees in offices using flexible schedules must sign in and sign out daily on a centrally located time sheet. For time-keeping instructions, see MOA VII 523.

(3) Night Pay Differential - Employees who elect to vary departure time beyond 6:00 p.m. are not eligible for night pay differential.

b. Maxiflex Work Schedule Program - Maxiflex is a system of flexible hours, core time, and the option of earning credit time. Through accumulation of credit time, employees may take up to a day off (without charge to leave) every other week. The following outlines the policy and procedures for the Maxiflex Work Schedule Program.

(1) Coverage - All full-time and part-time Civil Service and Foreign Service employees in the United States who work in units which have adopted the Maxiflex Work Schedule are covered by this section.

Members of the Senior Executive Service and Senior Foreign Service are precluded by regulation from earning credit time, and thus, may not work a Maxiflex schedule.

The Office of Personnel should be notified if Broadcasting units begin or terminate participation in the program.

(2) Definitions

(a) Flexible Hours - those hours during which employees may choose their arrival and depart 8 hours and 45 minutes after arrival, during the normal administrative workweek (usually Monday through Friday).

(b) Core Time

Hours during which an employee must be present for work: eight consecutive work hours. (including a 45 minute lunch break), unless on approved absence (annual leave, sick leave, credit time, LWOP, etc.).

(c) Credit Time

Work time in excess of 80 hours per pay period or 8 hours per day which an employee elects to work so as to vary the length of a workday or a workweek. Employees may work up to 10 regular hours per day (plus a 45-minute lunch break), may accumulate 10 hours of credit time per pay period, and may carry over 24 hours of credit time from pay period to pay period. Credit time may be accumulated and used in fifteen-minute increments.

(d) Work Unit - An organizational unit located in one place with a specific mission and homogenous procedure or technology, headed by a supervisor or manager authorized to certify time and attendance reports and approve leave. A work unit may consist of as few as two individuals.

(e) Work Schedule - The employee's approximate starting and quitting times, requested days off, either on annual leave, compensatory time off or earned credit time, and the days during which the employee will work 9 or 10 hours or fewer than 8 hours. All hours must be worked during the normal administrative workweek (usually Monday through Friday). There are no flexible core days -- that is, days on which all employees are expected to work; supervisors will determine when each employee may be spared from the work unit on a day off.

The work schedule is submitted monthly if necessary and approved, disapproved and/or amended by the supervisor. Full-time employees are required to account for 80 hours per pay period; part-time employees are required to account for the number of predetermined bi-weekly hours that constitute their workweek.

(3) Participation in Maxiflex

Participation will be determined on a unit by unit basis. Individual participation within the work unit will be voluntary even if the entire unit has been approved for Maxiflex, and should be in writing. A unit decision to participate in or terminate Maxiflex may be changed at a later time. Supervisors should notify Personnel and the Administrative Officer of the Office of the unit's participation, or termination of participation, and the number of employees participating or terminating.

Individual work schedules will be worked out at the beginning of each month between the employee and supervisor. (After an initial approval, monthly schedules may not be desirable.) Employee's arrival and departure times should be as flexible as possible within the Broadcasting-wide flexible hours. However, in those units where the work situation so dictates, after discussion with employees, the supervisor may require the employees to adhere to the approved monthly schedule, including arrival and departure times. The schedule may be amended during the month as the needs of the office and/or the employee change.

All employees in participating units must sign in and sign out daily on a centrally located time sheet, and in addition, employees on Maxiflex must sign a Maxiflex Bi-weekly Time Record identifying the number of regular, overtime or compensatory hours worked and the number of hours of annual, sick, credit or compensatory time taken each day. The bi-weekly time record will be certified by the employee and approved by the supervisor at the end of the pay period and used and retained by the unit timekeepers in completing the bi-weekly time cards. See Time and Attendance Handbook MOA VII, Section 500, for time-keeping instructions.

(4) Premium Pay Under Maxiflex

(a) Overtime

Employees participating in Maxiflex are not eligible for overtime coverage under the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) for those hours in excess of 8 in a day or 40 in a week which the employee elects to work so as to vary the length of a workday or a workweek. If the overtime is officially ordered in advance, the employee is eligible for overtime under the provisions of the FLSA or Title 5, as applicable.

A supervisor may order an employee to work hours that are in excess of the number of hours which that employee had intended to work that day, but which are not in excess of 8 in that day or 40 in that week. For example, an employee submits the following schedule to the supervisor and has it approved: 9 hours on Monday, 9 hours on Tuesday, 7 hours on Wednesday, 8 hours on Thursday, and 7 hours on Friday. On Wednesday, the supervisor decides that the employee is needed for one additional hour and orders the employee to work the additional time. Although this is work officially ordered in advance, it is not in excess of 8 hours in a day, and therefore, is not necessarily to be paid as overtime. In such a case the supervisor may allow the employee to: 1) work one hour less on a subsequent workday; 2) work out the balance of his or her schedule as planned, and receive one hour of credit time; or 3) work out the balance of his or her schedule as planned, and receive overtime pay for one hour, which would be the 41st hour of his or her week.

(b) Compensatory Time - Employees participating in Maxiflex may earn up to, but no more than 10 hours of compensatory time off in addition to any credit time earned. If an employee enters the program with more than 10 hours to his or her credit, that employee may earn no further compensatory time until the balance is less than 10 hours. The limit does not apply to compensatory time off for religious observances discussed in paragraph 604.

Voluntary compensatory time, in lieu of overtime pay, is extended to prevailing rate employees. Prevailing rate employees working a Maxiflex schedule are subject to the policy on the earning and subsequent payment of compensatory time found in paragraph 602 of this section and MOA V-A 240.

(c) Credit Time - Credit time is distinguished from overtime and compensatory time in that it is not officially ordered in advance by management, but is time worked at the employee's option. Employees may earn up to 2 hours of credit time per day, in fifteen-minute increments; earn a maximum of 10 hours of credit time each pay period; and up to 24 unused hours of credit time may be carried over from pay period to pay period. Any credit time in excess of 24 hours not used during the pay period will be forfeited without compensation. An employee has the right to use earned credit time either on an ad hoc basis or as part of a pre-established regular schedule, subject to advance approval of his or her supervisor.

An employee shall not be paid overtime, Sunday, or holiday pay for credit time. However, an employee who transfers or terminates from Broadcasting shall be paid for accumulated credit time at the employee's then current hourly rate, up to a total of 24 hours of accumulated credit time. An employee who transfers from a Maxiflex work unit to a non-Maxiflex work unit should arrange to use all accumulated credit time before the transfer date.

(d) Other Premium Pay - Night pay is paid only when work between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. is scheduled by a supervisor or element. Employees who elect to vary their departure schedule beyond 6 p.m. are not entitled to night pay. Agency core time, the hours employees are required to be present, does not extend into the night-work hours. Holiday and Sunday pay are limited to 8 hours. Any General Schedule, Federal Wage System, or Foreign Service employee whose basic workweek includes Sunday, will not receive premium pay of 25 percent if work is not performed on Sunday because of paid leave, excused absence with pay, compensatory time off, credit time, holidays, or time off taken as a result of an award.

(5) Leave, Excused Absence, and Temporary Duty under Maxiflex - Paid absence on an official holiday is limited to 8 hours for full-time employees; and for part-time employees, to that portion of the holiday which is within the employee's regular work schedule, up to 8 hours.

On a given day, an employee covered by a Maxiflex schedule may use up to 8 hours of sick or annual leave. An employee may use 8 hours of sick or annual leave to gain not more than 8 hours of credit time on any given day if the leave results in excess hours in the employee's daily, weekly, or biweekly schedule.

To make up for a credit time debit to complete the basic work requirement of 40 hours, the employee may do one of the following: charge annual leave on another day, or sick leave if he/she is still sick on another workday; or apply credit time or compensatory time off to his or her basic work requirement, if such credit time or compensatory time is available.

Broadcasting policy on excused absence (administrative leave) is outlined in MOA V-A 692.

Regardless of the work schedule that an employee elects to perform, an entitlement to sick, annual, military, funeral leave, and in some cases creditable service for retirement purposes has as a frame of reference the 8-hour day. The statutory provisions which allow maxiflex work schedules are not intended either to increase or decrease any employee's existing entitlement to leave or creditable service.

An employee covered by Maxiflex, who is assigned to a temporary duty station, may be required to follow a different schedule used at the temporary work site.

(6) Consultation with Employee Representative - In all matters relating to this program, the Agency will abide by its obligation to consult/negotiate with the employee representative.

If there is agreement between the supervisor and employees on the use of Maxiflex within the unit, Maxiflex may be implemented or declined without meeting with the employee representative. Otherwise, at the request of either the supervisor or the employees, the employee representative will attend a meeting of the unit employees with their supervisor to discuss Maxiflex. If it is determined by a supervisor that participation in this program is disruptive to the work unit, hinders its productivity, or incurs additional cost in the performance of its work, after consultation with the unit employees and the union, and a good faith effort to work out any problems, the supervisor may terminate or modify participation in Maxiflex. If a supervisor determines that Maxiflex is not feasible, but employees are interested in Maxiflex, the unit employees, the supervisor, and the employee representative may make recommendations and request a final decision from the Director, or Office Head or designee on participation in Maxiflex in the unit. The Director or Office Head's decision is final.

603.2 5/4-9 and 4-10 Compressed Work Schedules (CWS) - The authority for compressed work schedules can be found in 5 U.S.C. 6133(a) and 5 CFR 610.

a. Participating Employees - Civil Service, Foreign Service in the U.S., Senior Executive and Senior Foreign Service, and Federal Wage System employees, temporary or permanent, full-time or part-time.

b. Tour of Duty - Management officials must establish a tour of duty for each unit within a Branch, and provide a written copy of it to each unit employee. Hours of duty and days off must be fixed; flexible hours are not permitted. The day off in a 5/4-9 schedule may be rotated, but the rotation must be an established pattern. Neither managers nor employees may change the day-off on an ad hoc basis.

The biweekly tour of duty for employees working a 4-10 CWS is 10 hours and 45 minutes long (which includes a 45-minute meal period) for four days a week, each week.

The biweekly tour of duty for employees on a 5/4-9 CWS must include 8 nine-hour and forty-five minute days, one eight-hour and forty-five minute day, and one day off per pay period. With a fixed schedule, the day-off may be established on any day of the workweek.

If possible, CWS schedules should not include hours between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. because the Agency is obliged to pay night pay.

c. Participation in CWS - Participation will be determined on a unit by unit basis with supervisory approval. Individual participation within the unit will be voluntary. A unit decision to participate in or terminate CWS may be changed at a later time. If the supervisor determines that it is disruptive to the unit, hinders productivity, or incurs additional expenses, the CWS schedule may be terminated within the unit. Offices starting or terminating CWS must notify the Office of Personnel. Broadcasting offices must obtain Office of Personnel concurrence prior to implementation.

d. Leave - Leave will be charged in accordance with the employee's schedule. For example, if an employee who is scheduled to work nine hours is absent for the whole day, he or she is charged nine hours of annual or sick leave, leave without pay, or another kind of leave; or, if an employee works four hours, he or she is charged five hours of leave.

e. Credit Time - Not permitted under a compressed work schedule.

f. Overtime Work - Hours that an employee is ordered to work in excess of the compressed work scheduled.

g. Compensatory Time Off - Under the General Schedule, may be accrued in lieu of pay for irregular or occasional overtime worked in excess of the compressed work schedule.

h. Holiday Pay - A full-time employee on a compressed work schedule must receive holiday pay for non-overtime work performed on the holiday or the

"in lieu of holiday," not to exceed the number of hours normally scheduled for that day.

A part-time employee on a compressed work schedule is entitled to holiday pay only for non-overtime work performed during his or her compressed work schedule which falls on a holiday.

i. Sunday Pay - A full-time employee who performs non-overtime work during a period of duty, a part of which is performed on Sunday, is entitled to Sunday pay for his or her entire period of duty on that day.

A part-time employee is not entitled to Sunday pay.

j. Holidays - An employee on a CWS schedule is entitled to regular pay for a day designated as a holiday (or an in lieu of holiday) for the number of hours he or she normally would have been scheduled to work that day (i.e., 8, 9, or 10 hours).

If a holiday falls on a day included in a part-time employee's tour of duty, the employee is entitled to pay for the number of hours he or she normally would have been scheduled to work that day.

k. Holidays falling on non-workdays

If a holiday falls on any non-workday except Sunday, the "in lieu of" day is the preceding day. For example, if an employee's CWS is Tuesday through Friday and Monday is a holiday, the employee's "in lieu of" holiday is the preceding Friday. If the holiday falls on Sunday, the "in lieu of" day is the next workday.

l. Time and Attendance Records - If more than one schedule is used within a unit, employees on compressed work schedules must sign in and sign out daily on the centrally located time sheet. Time-keeping instructions can be found in MOA VII 604.

604 ADJUSTMENT OF WORK SCHEDULES FOR RELIGIOUS OBSERVANCE

604.1 Authority - 5 U.S.C. 5550a authorizes Broadcasting to grant compensatory time off for religious observance purposes.

604.2 Procedures - Any employee whose personal religious beliefs require the abstention from work during certain periods may work overtime for time lost for meeting those religious requirements. Employees shall be granted compensatory time off in lieu of overtime pay from their scheduled workday for such religious reasons. Supervisory approval must be obtained prior to working overtime for the time absent due to religious observances. Employees may work the overtime before or after the granting of compensatory time off. Advance grants of compensatory time off must be worked within a reasonable amount of time. Such overtime work shall be credited for compensatory time off on an hour for hour basis or fraction thereof.

605.1 Identification of Holidays

a. The following days and dates have been designated as Federal legal holidays by law or Executive Order:

- (1) New Year's Day, January 1.
- (2) Martin Luther King, Jr.'s Birthday, third Monday in January
- (3) Washington's Birthday, third Monday in February.
- (4) Memorial Day, last Monday in May.
- (5) Independence Day, July 4.
- (6) Labor Day, first Monday in September.
- (7) Columbus Day, second Monday in October.
- (8) Veterans Day, November 11.
- (9) Thanksgiving Day, fourth Thursday in November.
- (10) Christmas Day, December 25.
- (11) Inauguration Day (Washington, D.C. area only) January 20.

b. The regulations in 605.2 and 605.3 apply to these holidays and to any other days or dates designated as Federal legal holidays by law or Executive Order, subject to the following exception:

- (1) 605.2 and 605.3e do not apply to Inauguration Day.
- (2) When January 20 of any fourth year after 1965 falls on Sunday, the next succeeding day selected for the public observance of the inauguration of the President is a legal public holiday for pay and leave purposes.

605.2 Observance of Federal Legal Holidays

a. General Rule - A Federal legal holiday occurring during an employee's scheduled basic workweek is observed as a non-workday.

b. Rule for Holiday Occurring on a Non-workday

(1) Monday Through Friday Workweek - When a holiday falls on Sunday or Saturday, a full-time employee eligible for holiday benefits whose workdays are Monday through Friday is excused from work on the Monday immediately following if the holiday falls on Sunday, and on the immediately preceding Friday if the holiday falls on Saturday.

(2) Basic Workweeks Other Than Monday Through Friday - When a holiday falls on the first non-workday in the calendar week (the day regularly scheduled instead of Saturday), a full-time employee eligible for holiday benefits is excused on the workday immediately before the non-workday. See Title 5 USC 6103(b) (2).

When a holiday falls on the second non-workday in the calendar week (the day regularly scheduled instead of Sunday), a full-time employee eligible for holiday benefits is excused on the immediately following workday. See Executive Order 11582.

c. Uncommon Daily Tours - Section 5 of Executive Order 11582 provides that when an employee whose daily tour begins on one calendar day and ends on the following day, and either day is a holiday, he or she should be excused from the entire daily duty tour that commences on any such calendar day, or paid holiday premium pay for the entire shift if required to work that shift.

Example: Workweek: 10:00 p.m. to 6:45 a.m., Monday through Friday.

Holiday: Occurs on calendar Friday

Day Off: Begins at 10:00 p.m. Friday and continues through 6:45 a.m. on Saturday.

d. Two 8-hour Duty Tours Beginning on the Same Calendar Day - An employee will be excused from the first tour, or paid holiday premium pay if required to work that shift.

Example: Workweek: Midnight to 8:45 a.m. - Monday through Thursday and 10:00 p.m. Thursday to 6:45 a.m. Friday.

Holiday: Occurs on calendar Thursday

Day Off: Midnight to 8:45 a.m. tour on Thursday.

605.3 Pay for Holidays Not Worked - All employees of the Agency who have a regular tour of duty, except wage system employees serving under appointments limited to 90 days or less (unless the employee has served continuously for more than 90 days without a break in service through a succession of appointments or extensions of appointment), are eligible for pay for holidays not worked subject to the conditions stated in paragraphs a through g below.

a. Full-Time Employees - Full-time employees are eligible for their regular pay for a holiday that falls on or is observed on a day on which they are scheduled to work. If they are scheduled to work on Sunday or Saturday, and the holiday falls on one of their days off, paragraph 605.2b(2) applies. For example, a holiday falls on Sunday and is observed on Monday. Full-time employees who are scheduled to work on Tuesday through Saturday will get Tuesday off with their regular pay. If the holiday falls on Monday, they will get the preceding Saturday off with their regular pay.

b. Part-Time Employees - Part-time employees with prearranged work schedules are eligible for pay for that part of their work schedule that falls on a holiday. If the office in which they work is closed on one of their work days because the holiday is observed on that day, they may be excused without charge to leave and get their regular pay. If neither the calendar holiday nor the day on which the office is closed fall within a part-time employee's work schedule, he or she gets no holiday benefits. The designation of days in lieu of Sunday and Saturday, provided for in paragraph 605.2 do not apply to part-time employees. For example: A holiday falls on Sunday and is observed on Monday. A part-time employee who is scheduled to work Tuesday through Saturday is not entitled to any excused absence. (If he or she works on Sunday or Monday, his or her pay is not affected by one day's being a holiday and the other's being generally observed as a holiday.)

c. Intermittent Employees - An intermittent employee does not have a regular scheduled tour of duty and, therefore, is not eligible for pay for a holiday not worked.

d. General Rule - Entitlement to pay for a holiday not worked is based on the general rule that employees are entitled to such pay, provided they are prevented from working solely because of the occurrence of a holiday.

e. Official Travel - Eligible employees who are in official travel status on a holiday (or day in which a holiday is observed) are entitled to their regular pay. (If they are required to perform actual work on a holiday or day on which a holiday is observed while in travel status, they are entitled to holiday premium pay for not to exceed eight hours of such work.)

f. Pay Status - In general, an employee who is in pay status during the last hour of the workday immediately preceding the holiday or the first hour of the workday immediately following the holiday is entitled to pay for the holiday not worked. However, the General Accounting Office has ruled that an employee may not be paid for a holiday not worked if the holiday is included within a period of leave without pay that was approved in advance, whether or not the employee returns to duty before the expiration of the approved period of leave without pay (13 CG 206). Further, a suspended employee whose period of suspension includes a holiday is not entitled to pay for the holiday. In both of the preceding sentences, the first or last day of a period of leave without pay or suspension is treated as being within the period of non-pay status.

g. New Employees - It is Broadcasting policy that if Monday is a holiday, a new employee's appointment will be effective on the day after the holiday, when the oath of office will be administered.

605.4 Ordering Holiday Work - Directors of Divisions and higher officers, and officers immediately responsible to them (when so designated in writing by them) are authorized to order employees to work during a holiday on which the employee ordinarily would be excused from duty when the nature of the work to be performed does not permit excusing the employee.

606 "ON-CALL" SCHEDULES - STANDBY OFFICERS

606.1 Standby Officers are on alert status outside of regular work hours. They are not required to be in their offices during the period that they are on call, but should not be absent for more than one hour from a telephone number at which they may be reached and, if necessary, they should be able to reach their offices within two hours after notification.

If the scheduled assignment of a Standby Officer is to be changed, or if the officer on-call expects to be available at a telephone number other than his or her home telephone number, he or she will notify the Broadcast Operations Center. Newsroom employees will notify the Newsroom Duty Editor.

Duty at an employee's residence when no work is required is not "hours of work" within the meaning of 5 USC 5542, and is not compensable.

606.2 Standby Officer - Standby Officers are on alert status during weekends and holidays, available on short notice for consultation on problems involving policy decisions. Either the head of each Office or an officer of sufficient rank to make policy commitments without reference to its head, will be designated. One week prior to the first of each month, the heads of Offices will notify the Secretariat in writing which officers are designated as Standby Officers to be on call for their Offices during the month. The Secretariat will ensure that office heads receive a copy of the complete schedule. The Secretariat will notify the News Division and the Broadcast Operations Center. A Standby Officer's failure to answer a telephone call from the Operations Center or the Newsroom is recorded in the Operations log.

b. Standby Officers should be familiar with the official itineraries of the heads of their Offices so that they may be contacted at any time. The Secretariat must be kept informed in advance of any changes in the published roster.

607 TELECOMMUTING

607.1 Definition - Telecommuting is a program which gives employees the opportunity to work part of their work schedule at an alternate work site, either at home or at a telecenter. In this circular, the term "alternate work site" will refer to working at home. Broadcasting cannot consider renting telecenter space at this time due to budget limitations.

607.3 Coverage - All employees, Civil Service and Foreign Service, full-time and part-time, in the U.S. and overseas, may be considered for participation in telecommuting.

The work requirements of some organizations or overseas environments may not be compatible with telecommuting practices. Further, overseas employees are subject to approval by the Affiliates Office chief, relay station chief, or correspondent bureau chief. Approving officials overseas and in the U.S. must determine the extent to which the telecommuting policy can be implemented consistent with Broadcasting needs and available resources.

607.4 Background - In 1990, the President's Council on Management Improvement established the Federal Flexible Workplace Pilot Project (Flexiplace), which was co-directed by the Office of Personnel Management and the General Services Administration. In President Clinton's 1993 Climate Change Action Plan, he called for the Department of Transportation to develop a telecommuting program aimed at decreasing greenhouse emissions through reduced vehicle trips, energy consumption, and auto emissions. On July 21, 1994 and June 21, 1996, President Clinton issued Presidential Memorandums directing Executive Departments and Agencies to support the expansion of flexible family-friendly work arrangements, including the increase of telecommuters throughout the Federal Government.

607.5 How Telecommuting Works - An employee may volunteer to work at an alternate work site. If the supervisor agrees that the work of the position is such that at least part of it may be accomplished outside the office, the employee and supervisor establish a written agreement, signed by both, which provides guidelines and requirements for telecommuting. The employee works one or two days at the alternate work site each week and spends the remainder of the workweek in the office.

a. The Telecommuter - There is no entitlement, or right, to telecommuting, nor can an employee be forced to telecommute. The employee who telecommutes must be a self-starter, dependable and highly motivated, and must be in a position which is adaptable to telecommuting. An employee who is on leave restriction or has less than a Fully Successful performance appraisal rating of record should not be considered for telecommuting.

b. Supervising Telecommuting - All telecommuting situations must be approved by the appropriate supervisor. Upon an employee's request to telecommute, a supervisor must evaluate the duties of the position and decide if all or some of them may be achieved outside the office setting and the impact on other employees. Telecommuting should be used in a way which will not place an additional burden on employees who are staffing the office. Technological support and resources may also be a consideration.

The supervisor is responsible for certifying time and attendance records including periods of telecommuting. A degree of trust is required, and the supervisor may choose to manage by results (i.e., based on projects successfully completed). However, a supervisor may also manage by asking the employee to keep a journal of tasks completed and telephone calls made, or to check in via E-Mail or telephone, or through some other method.

A 90-day test period is recommended. The supervisor and the telecommuter should keep detailed records on successful and timely completion of work done at home, impact on the office, and any other factors relevant to the experience. At the end of the 90 days, the supervisor should assess the test period, and decide on continuation of telecommuting.

Telecommuting may be terminated at any time if there is a change in duties or workplace conditions; or the performance of the telecommuter or the office has been adversely affected. The supervisor must give the employee reasonable advance notice, two weeks if possible.

Telecommuting may also be terminated if the telecommuter does not abide by the telecommuting agreement and Broadcasting policy. Advance notice of the end of the telecommuting may be given, but is not required under these circumstances.

c. The Telecommuting Agreement - Prior to establishing a formal agreement, an employee interested in telecommuting should prepare a proposal for the supervisor outlining an individual telecommuting plan tailored to the employee's job, his/her needs, and the needs of the office. It should include: duties of the position which can be performed at home; materials and equipment which would be required to perform those duties; equipment which will be provided by the employee; hours and days which the employee would prefer to work; how to minimize any impact on coworkers; and any other information that would be useful to the supervisor in making a decision.

A written agreement must be established and signed by the supervisor and the telecommuter before a telecommuting situation begins. Such an agreement is additional protection if the telecommuter experiences an accident or injury at the alternate work site. The agreement will cover a variety of issues such as: the exact duty station (e.g., home address); the identification of the types of assignments to be done at the alternate work site; taking leave on a telecommuting day; responsibility for equipment and security; and liability and injury on the job.

d. Work Performed At The Alternate Work Site - There is no single definition for work which can be performed outside the office. Although many jobs can be adapted to a telecommuting situation, there are some which cannot be accomplished outside the office. Ultimately, this is the decision of the supervisor.

To telecommute, the position must include work which is portable and able to be performed effectively outside the office; job tasks should be measurable or primarily project oriented; the work done at the alternate work site must not be classified.

e. Work Schedules - The supervisor and telecommuter must decide on the frequency of regular telecommuting days, which days of the week, and if the work hours will be fixed or flexible (Maxiflex, Flextime, or compressed work schedule). Most telecommuters will work at an alternate work site for a maximum of one or two days each week on a regular basis. As much as possible, work-hours should parallel those worked in the office so that the telecommuter may be available by phone to coworkers and customers. In general, overtime work should be reserved for days an employee is in the office. The telecommuting agreement must stipulate these factors. If there are permanent changes, the telecommuter should be given adequate notice, usually 30 days, and the agreement must be amended accordingly.

Intermittent telecommuting also may be utilized to complete special projects that require uninterrupted periods of concentration. For example, an employee may be permitted to work at home for an entire workweek to write a script or complete performance appraisals. In all situations, the supervisor's advance approval of any telecommuting schedule must be obtained.

It may be necessary for a supervisor to require the presence of an employee in the office on a day normally scheduled for telecommuting. Normally an employee is notified of such a change in advance, but sometimes advance notice is not always feasible when the circumstances are beyond the supervisor's control. Employees must be flexible in these situations.

f. Leave And Administrative Dismissal - Regulations and procedures for requesting annual and sick leave or leave without pay are found in MOA V-A 600 and apply to days worked in the office as well as telecommuting days.

The ability to work (and the nature of any impediments) whether at the alternate work site or at the official duty station, determines when an employee may be excused from duty. During emergencies such as inclement weather or transportation disruptions which affect the employee's ability to commute to the official duty station, a supervisor may permit employees to temporarily telecommute or allow a participating telecommuter to telecommute on an unscheduled day. The employee must be able to perform work tasks at the alternate work site and provide a work product or evidence of tasks completed. There may not be sufficient work to fill an eight-hour day workday. If not, the employee should request an appropriate type and amount of leave for part of the day.

607.6 Worker's Compensation - Telecommuting employees are covered by the Federal Tort Claims Act of the Federal Employees Compensation Act (FECA) and can qualify for continuation of pay or workers' compensation for on-the-job injury or occupational illness. Completing injury report forms, notification of the supervisor, and other requirements adhered to in the traditional office setting must also be followed at an alternate work site.

607.7 Telecommunications And Equipment - Employees who telecommute at home will be responsible for providing the necessary equipment to do so. This may include computers, software, printers, fax machines, additional telephone lines, modems, diskettes, and related supplies. The employee is also responsible for repair and maintenance of personal equipment.

a. Equipment on Loan - Office Heads may determine that excess equipment such as computers and printers within their offices can be lent to employees for use at home. All such equipment must be properly charged out in accordance with procedures found in MOA IV, Part 710 and 720, and ownership and control of hardware, software, and data remain with the U.S. Government. The equipment must be used only by the employee and only for official business. The employee will be responsible for transporting to, and installing the equipment at home (training may be provided at the office) and returning the equipment to the office for needed repairs. If government-owned equipment is damaged through negligence or by a non-employee, the employee is liable for the cost of the repairs or replacement of the equipment.

b. Telephone Calls - Long distance business telephone calls made from the home may be reimbursed with the supervisor's approval when the employee provides a copy of the telephone bill and identifies the business party called. At the supervisor's request, additional justification may be required. If an employee's residence is outside the local calling area of the office, he/she will be responsible for the expense of any long-distance calls to the office when telecommuting.

607.8 Security - Classified material may not be taken to alternate work sites, nor may it be accessed through the computer. A telecommuter must properly safeguard material and data which are subject to the Privacy Act or are otherwise considered sensitive. Such material may only be used at home with the supervisor's approval.

The designated alternate work site must have adequate physical or environmental security measures in place (e.g., door locks, passwords, etc.) to protect equipment from being accessed by unauthorized individuals. In addition, telecommuters must take appropriate actions to safeguard against computer viruses. Anti-virus software should be installed on the computer and software should be scanned for viruses.

Dial-up telecommunications access to U.S. Government computers presents special security concerns. A combination of physical controls, unique user identifiers, passwords, terminal identifiers, access control software, and strict adherence to security procedures is required to protect the information from unauthorized access.

607.9 Family Responsibilities - Telecommuting is not a substitute for child care or elder care. An employee must make other arrangements for a dependent in the home who requires care. However, it may decrease child care costs by reducing commuting time or reducing the need for before or after-school care. To the extent that they are controllable, other family responsibilities should not interfere with an employee working at home.

607.10 Telecommuting Committee/Coordinator -Offices may establish a telecommuting committee or coordinator to provide guidance on telecommuting issues, assist in the development of work-at-home plans, provide training, ensure that appropriate safeguards on office materials and data have been implemented, and assess telecommuting within the element and prepare findings for the Office head and/or Broadcasting management.

EXHIBIT 607 - TELECOMMUTING HANDBOOK

PURPOSE

This Telecommuting Handbook provides information and guidelines on telecommuting for managers and employees.

SCOPE

This handbook applies to all domestic and overseas offices of Broadcasting and is intended to serve as a flexible guide to enable elements to develop effective telecommuting arrangements. Organizational needs may vary. Offices may need to adjust their telecommuting programs, within the parameters outlined in Broadcasting policy and this guidance, to suit their specific requirements. Correspondent Bureau Chiefs, Affiliate Office Chiefs or Transmitting Station Managers will determine if telecommuting can be accommodated at their overseas sites.

DEFINITIONS

Telecommuting is a program which gives employees the opportunity to work part of their tour of duty at an alternate work site. It is also known as flexiplace, flexiwork, telework, and work-at-home.

An alternate work site is a specific room or area in an employee's residence or telecommuting center (telecenter) which is used to perform work assignments.

Portable work includes those tasks that can be completed, in whole or in part, outside of an employee's official duty station within an 8-hour work day.

BACKGROUND

In March 1990, then President George Bush introduced his Statement of National Transportation Policy by saying:

"Sometimes the best transportation policy means not moving people, but moving their work...a trend known as telecommuting. Millions have already found their productivity increases when they work nearer the people they're actually working for -- their families at home...think of it as commuting to work at the speed of light."

Telecommuting in the Federal Government started as a pilot program in 1990. The President's Council on Management Improvement (PCMI), in cooperation with the Office of Personnel Management and the General Services Administration, established The Federal Flexible Workplace Pilot Project (Flexiplace). The nationwide program was established to improve the Federal Government's ability to recruit and retain capable employees, to improve employee quality of life, and to reduce Federal operating costs.

Flexiplace was designed to test the feasibility and use of specific alternate workplace arrangements. These arrangements included allowing Federal employees to work at their homes or at satellite work centers. The terms telecommuting and work-at-home refer to paid employment away from the traditional workplace. Telecommuting implies the use of communications technology (computers, modems, fax machines, telephones, voice mail, etc.) to connect the employee to the official duty station (Demers, 1994). Programs such as work-at-home may include the use of technology but may have guidelines that differ somewhat from those used for telecenter arrangements.

Further Federal impetus to telecommuting came in President Clinton's 1993 Climate Change Action Plan. The plan underscored America's commitment to protecting the global environment by taking immediate actions to reduce greenhouse gas emissions to 1990 levels by the year 2000. Action #21 in the plan called for the Department of Transportation (DOT) to develop a telecommuting program aimed at decreasing greenhouse gas emissions through reduced vehicle trips, energy consumption, and auto emissions.

On March 1, 1994, Transportation Secretary Pena issued a directive to top-level DOT management to identify potential candidates for telecommuting programs in Los Angeles and Washington, D.C. On April 1, 1994, DOT issued a formal department policy on telecommuting.

On July 11, 1994, President Clinton, in support of a recommendation of the National Performance Review, issued a memorandum in which he directed the heads of Executive Departments and Agencies to "establish a program to encourage and support the expansion of flexible family-friendly work arrangements, including: job sharing; career part-time employment; alternate work schedules; telecommuting and satellite work locations...." On June 21, 1996, President Clinton reaffirmed his strong commitment to support family members in the Federal workplace by directing executive agencies to expand their family-friendly programs, to the extent feasible, to provide opportunities to telecommute.

BENEFITS

Telecommuting is designed to benefit employees, management, and society.

Management Benefits

- o Improves employee productivity, effectiveness, and morale.
- o Improves communications between supervisors and employees.
- o Retains skilled employees.
- o Decreases absenteeism.

Employee Benefits

- o Allows the employee to become more productive and creative by providing a more relaxed working environment with fewer interruptions.
- o Reduces stressful commuting time.
- o Increases flexibility to coordinate work schedules with personal and family priorities.
- o Improves employee's organizational skills.
- o Gives the employee more control over his/her life.

- o Reduces costs for transportation, parking, and food.
- o Boosts morale and increases job satisfaction.
- o Improves communications with his/her supervisor.
- o Increases motivation.

Societal Benefits

- o Reduces commuting trips and traffic congestion.
- o Reduces air pollution and conserves transportation fuels (energy conservation).
- o Lessens the wear and tear on cars and roads.
- o Improves employment opportunities for the disabled and mobility restricted.
- o Reduces problems associated with "latch-key" children.

PARTICIPATION IN A TELECOMMUTING PLAN

Before volunteering to be considered for telecommuting, employees must evaluate their jobs and their life-style requirements to determine if both are well-suited for telecommuting. The work tasks within a job, not a job title, determine suitability for telecommuting. Also critical are the employee's work history and personal characteristics. A history of reliable and responsible discharge of work duties, an ability to establish priorities and manage time, and a proven track record of personal motivation are measures of successful telecommuters.

Once the employee has volunteered and received approval to telecommute, sufficient time should be allowed to iron out any wrinkles or to overcome any obstacles to success. Participating supervisors and employees are encouraged to remain in the program for at least 90 days to provide a fair test of the telecommuting arrangement.

Telecommuting is an employee privilege, not an employee right. After an employee has identified work tasks which may be suitable for telecommuting, the supervisor has to determine if the position is suitable for off-site work. The supervisor also must evaluate the content of the work to be performed off-site and the past performance of the employee. Because this telecommuting arrangement is a supervisory work option, the employee does not have an automatic right to continue participation in the event of a change of supervisor.

If the employee is selected to participate in the program, the supervisor and employee will sign a Work Agreement to ensure that both parties fully understand program policies and procedures. The supervisor and the employee must establish appropriate arrangements for the employee to follow when working off-site. The overall interests of the office must take precedence. A supervisor may require an employee to be on-site on a regular off-site day if the needs of the office require this. In addition, one person's off-site work should not adversely affect the performance of other employees. Telecommuting should not put a burden on staff remaining in the office. Not only should an equitable distribution of workload be maintained, but methods should be instituted to ensure that office employees do not have to handle the telecommuter's work. Employees must complete a Telecommuting Program Safety Checklist and Employee Self-Certification.

The supervisor has the right to end participation of an employee in the program if the employee's performance declines or if the program fails to benefit organizational needs. Whenever possible, the supervisor should provide at least two weeks advance notice of cancellation of an employee's participation in the program. The supervisor also should include the reasons for cancellation.

RESPONSIBILITIES

Supervisors Will:

- o Evaluate employee requests to participate in the program. Consider the employees' responsibilities, work tasks, and potential for successful participation in the program.
- o Develop performance work plans as needed for work performed away from the official duty station.
- o Complete and sign the telecommuting agreement.
- o Assign appropriate work to be performed at the alternate duty station.
- o Determine how the quantity and quality of work will be measured and evaluated.
- o Periodically evaluate the telecommuting program.
- o Request approval to use excess computers or other government-owned equipment for telecommuting.

Employees approved for participation in the program will:

- o Complete and sign the telecommuting agreement.
- o Observe agreed-upon hours of work in accordance with established Broadcasting policies.
- o Observe policies for requesting leave.
- o Provide all necessary equipment to work at home unless Government equipment can be provided.
- o Protect loaned U.S. Government equipment and use it for official purposes only.
- o Assist in evaluating telecommuting programs.

Telecommuting Program Coordinator

Each Office may establish a mechanism to assist participation in the telecommuting program. This could be a Telecommuting Committee, a Telecommuting Program Coordinator, or a combination of the two. This committee or program coordinator also could be responsible for evaluating the impact of the program on the efficiency and effectiveness of work operations in the respective element.

Telecommuting Program Coordinator duties may include but are not limited to:

- o Providing orientation materials and briefings on telecommuting policies and procedures.
- o Ensuring that all participating supervisors and employees are aware of their responsibilities to measure and report performance and time and attendance accurately.
- o Providing information on the proper safeguarding of information, papers, diskettes, etc.
- o Coordinating inventory records and providing assistance on the maintenance and use of borrowed U.S. Government property and equipment.
- o Providing evaluation materials to the participating individuals and supervisors and co-workers of the telecommuters.
- o Assessing the telecommuting program.

CRITERIA FOR PARTICIPATION

Several criteria play in the selection of those allowed to participate in the telecommuting program: the nature of the work performed and the characteristics of the employee and supervisor.

Identifying a Position Suitable for Telecommuting

Careful examination of tasks to be performed at whether the goals of the office can be achieved without causing hardship for staff remaining in the office.

Supervisors and employees must discuss their expectations of how work will be performed and evaluated. In addition, employees must recognize that Broadcasting standards of conduct apply at the alternate work site.

Telecommuting positions will have at least some of the following characteristics: work activities can be performed effectively outside the office; job tasks are easily quantifiable or primarily project oriented; an essential component of responsibility consists of reading/analytical tasks -- e.g., evaluating proposals and reviews, making funding decisions, and conducting research; contact with other employees and service clientele is predictable; most work handled is not classified; the technology needed to perform the job is currently available; cyclical work does not present a problem; security of data, including sensitive, non-classified, privacy act concerns, etc. can be adequately ensured.

After deciding that a certain job contains sufficient portable work tasks, supervisors need to explore other considerations:

o Contact Requirements - Is a significant percentage of the job devoted to "face-to-face" contact with other employees, the public, or internal Broadcasting staff? Can contact be readjusted to allow for telephone or computer communications or can such contact be conducted only when the employee is at the conventional office?

o Reference Materials Requirements - To what extent does the job require access to photocopiers, fax machines, or other specialized equipment? Can access needs be grouped and scheduled for days when the employee is in the conventional office?

o Travel Requirements - Does the job involve field work? Can trips begin or end at the alternate work site rather than the main office? Can paperwork be done at the alternate work site?

o Information Security Requirements - Does the employee rely primarily on sensitive or classified documents to perform work tasks?

Identifying A Successful Telecommuter

An employee who succeeds as a telecommuter is a self-starter, can function independently; has demonstrated dependability and discipline; is highly motivated; can deal with isolation for one or two days a week; has the ability to establish priorities and manage his/her own time; has a history of reliable and responsible discharge of work duties; has a full understanding of the operations of the organization; has the trust of his/her supervisor; has overall performance evaluations equivalent to fully successful or higher; can satisfy adequate alternate work site requirements; and can assure security of U.S. Government information and property at the alternate work site.

Supervising a Telecommuter

The supervisor of a telecommuter should be progressive and supportive of the telecommuting concept and should be willing to attempt to work through any problems or obstacles that may occur. He/She should be comfortable with evaluating work performance in a manner compatible with telecommuting, i.e., measuring performance by results and without direct observation; and must be an effective communicator and be able to define tasks and expectations clearly.

TELECOMMUTING WORK AGREEMENTS

Each participant must sign a Telecommuting Work Agreement. This document constitutes an agreement between the employee and the supervisor on the terms and conditions of participating in the telecommuting program.

WORK SCHEDULES

Telecommuting work schedules should parallel those followed at the official duty station. The Telecommuting Work Agreement will specify the employee's work schedule and tour of duty. Generally, up to two days per week will be scheduled outside of the office. This will ensure that the employee is available in the office during the week for face-to-face meetings, access to facilities, etc. Furthermore, successful programs have shown employees need to spend at least part of the week in the office to minimize isolation and communication problems, to facilitate integration of the employee with those in the office, and to ease the supervisor's adjustment.

Intermittent use of telecommuting also is permissible. For example, to complete a special project, an employee may require a block of uninterrupted time. Agency supervisors have the authority to allow an employee to telecommute for a reasonable length of time to complete the project. The supervisor must evaluate the best means for the organization to meet its needs. Allowing an employee to telecommute beyond two days per week may provide that means.

A regular schedule makes it easier to stay in touch with colleagues and to be available to clients. Supervisors must approve telecommuting schedules in advance so that employee's time and attendance can be properly certified and to preclude any liability for premium or overtime pay. Absences from the alternative work site (e.g., to attend meetings) must be coordinated with the supervisor at the earliest time practicable.

Periodic adjustments are permitted, as needed, to achieve a schedule suiting employee and organizational requirements. Developing fixed times during the day for supervisor/employee telephone conversations may be helpful to ensure optimum communication.

Care must be taken not to approve any schedule that is inconsistent with provisions of an applicable negotiated labor agreement.

To reduce employee isolation, supervisors should ensure that telecommuters feel part of the team by keeping them aware of activities in the office while they are off-site; holding staff meetings on days when everyone is present at the official duty station; considering them equally with other employees in selection for special projects, etc. Employees should not be disadvantaged regarding performance appraisals, awards, or any other employee/employer matter because they are telecommuting.

DUTIES

Changes to position descriptions will not normally be required. Supervisors should carefully specify the employee's official duties in their work requirements and priorities on the Performance Appraisal Report form. The supervisor and employee must reach an agreement on which of those duties can be performed off-site.

Critical elements and performance standards must have clearly defined performance requirements that are measurable and results oriented. The standards must provide a reasonable basis for measuring performance. Explicit and objective norms for work output should be based on experience with those required and sustained at the official duty station. Work output should be monitored through scheduled and required progress reports. The supervisor and employee should establish objective measures of quantity and quality.

An increase in an employee's effort or productivity may not occur if an employee is already performing at a highly successful or outstanding performance level. Standards of performance must be fair and consistent with those expected of employees at the official duty station.

TIME AND ATTENDANCE

Hours of Duty: Employees may work standard schedules or follow alternate work schedules depending upon the agreement between the employee and the supervisor. The supervisor and employee select the telecommuting day(s). The supervisor will evaluate each circumstance on a case-by-case basis. Completely unstructured arrangements are not permitted.

Overseas staff follow established hours. Regular and flextime tours of duty in the U.S. are permitted as follows:

Regular - five 8 consecutive-hour days, Monday through Friday and a 45 minute non-paid lunch period.

Flextime - five 8-hour days, Monday through Friday, with core hours of 9:30 a.m. - 4:00 p.m., flexible arrival (7:15 a.m. - 9:30 a.m.) and departure (4:00 p.m. - 6:15 p.m.) times, and a non-paid lunch period of 45 minutes each day.

Maxiflex - includes flexible arrival (7:15 a.m. - 9:15 a.m.) and departure (5:00 p.m. - 6:45 p.m.) hours, core hours of 9:30 a.m. - 5:00 p.m., the option of earning credit time to take a day off as often as every other week, and a non-paid lunch period of 45 minutes each day.

Compressed Work Schedules - includes two types of fixed schedules. The 5/4-9 schedule which is eight nine-hour days, one eight-hour day, and one day off; and the 4-10 schedule of four ten-hour days each week.

Leave and Overtime: The policies for requesting annual leave, sick leave, or leave without pay are the same for working on or off-site. The employee is responsible for requesting leave in advance from the supervisor and for keeping the timekeeper informed of leave usage.

A supervisor may approve overtime or credit time if needed in extraordinary circumstances. The existing rules governing overtime in Title 5 USC and the Fair Labor Standards Act apply to telecommuting arrangements. Because the supervisor is responsible for regulating and controlling the use of overtime, the supervisor must approve all overtime in advance and be satisfied that more than eight hours in a day were worked.

With prior supervisory approval, the employee will be compensated for overtime work in accordance with applicable law, regulations, and policies. The employee understands that the supervisor will not certify un-approved overtime work.

Certification and Control of Time and Attendance: A high level of trust between the supervisor and employee is essential. Federal policy and procedures governing certification of time and attendance require agencies with employees working at remote sites to provide reasonable assurance that they are working when scheduled. Reasonable assurance may include occasional telephone calls between the offices and the telecommuter; evaluation of work output for the time spent; a log of work completed; or telephone calls or e-mail transmissions from the telecommuter to the timekeeper of starting and ending times of each telecommuting day. Supervisors must report time and attendance to ensure that employees are paid only for work performed and that absences from scheduled tours of duty are accounted for correctly.

Administrative Leave, Dismissals, Emergency Closings: Although a variety of circumstances may affect individual situations, the principles governing administrative leave, dismissals, and emergency closings remain unchanged.

The ability to work (and the nature of any impediments), whether at the alternate work site or at the official duty station, are factors considered when determining when an employee may be excused from duty. For example, if the employee is working at the alternate work site, and the main office closes, the telecommuter should continue working at the alternate work site. However, if the employee's electricity fails while working at the alternate work site, the supervisor may grant administrative leave or direct the employee to report to work, depending on which action is more appropriate given the circumstances, i.e., number of hours remaining in the employee's work day and the distance the employee commutes.

Emergency Situations: Local emergency situations such as transportation disruptions, natural disasters, or inclement weather may adversely affect an employee's ability to commute to the official duty station. In such an event, a supervisor has the authority to grant temporary telecommuting arrangements for affected employees or to allow a participating telecommuting employee to telecommute on an unscheduled telecommuting day. The employees must be able to perform work tasks at the alternate work site station. In these circumstances, the supervisor may allow an employee to telecommute for a portion of the work day and to take appropriate leave for any remaining time.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION

Telecommuting employees are covered by the Federal Tort Claims Act of the Federal Employees Compensation Act (FECA) and can qualify for continuation of pay or workers' compensation for on-the-job injury or occupational illness. Employees, in all situations, bear responsibility for informing their immediate supervisors of injuries at the earliest time possible. They also must provide details to the Department of Labor when filing a claim. The supervisor's signature on the request for compensation attests only to what the supervisor can reasonably know, whether the event occurred at a conventional work site or at an alternative work site during official duty. Even under normal circumstances, supervisors are often not present when an employee sustains an injury.

Domestic employees should contact the Compensation and Benefits Division (B/PA/PB), Room 1543, Cohen Building, Telephone: (202) 619-3117.

The supervisor also must require the employee to designate one area in the employee's residence as the official work station and to specify the location in the Telecommuting Work Agreement.

EMPLOYEE COMPENSATION

Duty Station: For pay purposes, the "official duty station" is the employee's Federal office in Washington, D.C., field office, or assigned overseas post.

Locality Pay or Special Salary Rates: The employee's official duty station serves as the basis for determining any special salary rates or locality pay.

Premium Pay: MOA V-A 240 and 600 apply to overtime, night differential, Sunday and holiday pay for Civil Service employees (and foreign service employees) whether work is accomplished at the conventional or alternate work site. Official work schedules determine entitlement to premium pay.

FACILITIES

Work Space: An employee participating in the telecommuting program should have a designated work space or work station at the alternate work site for performance of telecommuting duties. Requirements will vary and depend on the nature of the work and the equipment needed to perform the work. At a minimum, an employee should be able to communicate easily by telephone with the supervisor during the telecommuting day.

Employees are responsible for ensuring that their alternate work sites are clean, free of obstructions and hazardous materials, and meet relevant building codes. Therefore, each participating employee must sign a Telecommuting Program Safety Checklist and Employee Self-Certification.

Utility Expenses: Broadcasting will not pay for a telecommuter's utility costs at his/her personal residence. Potential savings to the employee resulting from reduced commuting, meals, etc. may offset any incidental increase in utility expenses. Exceptions apply only where the personal expense directly benefits the U.S. Government, e.g., business-related long distance calls on the employee's personal phone.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND EQUIPMENT

Management will review each participant's application to assess equipment requirements and costs. Some telecommuters may be able to perform assignments with minimal technological support while others may have assignments requiring extensive telecommunication capability. Participation in the telecommuting program may be contingent on equipment costs if considerable equipment is needed to accomplish portable work tasks and is not available with existing Broadcasting equipment.

The policy on proper use of the internet is applicable to telecommuters.

Telephones: Employees must provide basic telephone service, modem, fax machines, and any other telephone equipment necessary for telecommuting. GSA regulation 41 CFR, 101-7i allows for reimbursement of long distance telephone expenses incurred as a result of official duties on SF-1164 (Claim for Reimbursement for Expenditures for Official Business), if approved by the employee's supervisor and accompanied by a copy of the telephone bill. If an employee's residence is outside the local calling area of the office, he/she will be responsible for the expense of any long-distance calls to the office when telecommuting.

Employee Personal Property: Employees who telecommute will be responsible for providing the necessary equipment at home to do so. This may include computers, software, printers, fax machines, additional telephone lines, modems, diskettes, and related supplies. The employee is also responsible for repair and maintenance of personal equipment.

Government-Owned Equipment: Office Heads may determine that excess equipment such as computers and printers exists within their offices and can be loaned to employees for use at home. All such equipment must be properly charged out in accordance with procedures found in MOA IV, Part 710 and 720, and ownership and control of hardware, software, and data remain with the U.S. Government. The equipment must be used for official business only and may not be used by family members or others.

The employee will be responsible for transporting to and installing the loaned equipment at home (training may be provided at the office), and for returning the equipment to the office for needed repairs. The employee must notify his/her supervisor immediately following a malfunction of U.S. Government-owned equipment. If repairs are extensive, the employee may be asked to report to the official duty station until equipment is usable.

If government-loaned equipment is unsecured and consequently damaged by non-employees (for example, by dependents of the employee), employees will be held liable for the repair or replacement of the equipment, software, etc., to the same extent they are presently held liable when loaned equipment is damaged because of their negligence. (See Manual of Operations and Administration, Part IV, Section 712.5.)

Reference Materials: Employees are responsible for identifying the tools they will need while working at their alternate work sites. If an office has a limited number of reference books, publications or other tools normally used in the job, the telecommuter must provide his/her own copies.

Computer Security: Although classified documents and information may not be kept or used at alternate work sites, telecommuters still need to pay close attention to security procedures and precautions at their alternate work sites to protect sensitive information.

Supervisors must be confident that the designated work space or work station of the employee has adequate physical or environmental security measures in place to protect the equipment from damage or from being accessed by unauthorized individuals. This can be accomplished by having the employee specifically identify the proposed work area and certify in writing the security measures that will be used. Telecommuters should use good judgment in safeguarding equipment and information at their alternate work sites. This includes covering sensitive information when approached by visitors.

Dial-up telecommunication access to computers throughout the U.S. Government presents special security concerns. In Broadcasting facilities, precautions have been taken to avoid unwanted access. However, home computers are susceptible, so telecommuters must use physical controls, unique user identifiers, passwords, terminal identifiers, access control software, and strict adherence to security procedures to protect the information from unauthorized access. Computer support personnel can provide further details.

Employees need to be aware that telephones, particularly cordless and cellular telephones, represent a security vulnerability because conversations can be easily intercepted. Normal home telephones cannot be used to discuss classified information. A standard "corded" telephone must be used for sensitive conversations.

To safeguard against computer viruses, computer support personnel should be consulted regarding applicable software and its licensing. Periodically, anti-virus software must be updated, so telecommuters must see that this is done on home computers.

Telecommuters must follow the Broadcasting property management procedures for their accountable property including computers, whether owned or borrowed, to ensure an immediately retrievable inventory and physical location identification of equipment and software.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Privacy Act, Sensitive, or Classified Data: Proper use and handling of sensitive data and records subject to the Privacy Act are decided by supervisors who permit employees to telecommute. Off-site access to sensitive data may be permitted only if ADP/Security officials certify the adequacy of the security for such access. Classified data may not be removed from an employee's official duty station.

Records subject to the Privacy Act must be maintained and protected in accordance with government-wide regulations. Sensitive non-classified data may not be disclosed to anyone except to those who are authorized access to such information to perform their duties. Offices allowing employees access to records subject to the Privacy Act from a remote work site must maintain appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to ensure the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of the records.

Dependent Care Costs: Studies show that working at home and child care are not compatible. Young children create too many distractions for the parent working at home. Telecommuting is not intended to serve as a substitute for child care, but it may decrease child care costs because the telecommuter's commuting time is reduced or the need for before and after school day care is reduced or eliminated.

The employee is responsible for ensuring that a proper work environment is maintained. For example, dependent care arrangements must be made so as to not interfere with the work, personal disruptions such as non-business telephone calls and visitors must be kept to a minimum, and employees and their families must understand that the home office is a space set aside for the employee to work. Family or other responsibilities must not interfere (to the extent they are controllable) with work time at the alternate work site.

Tax Benefits: Generally, an employee who uses a portion of his or her home as an alternate work site does not qualify for any Federal tax deductions. However, employees should consult their tax advisors or the Internal Revenue Service for information on tax laws and interpretations that address their specific circumstances.

Pitfalls to Avoid: Many of the common pitfalls and traps that new telecommuting employees and their supervisors may encounter have already been identified. Fortunately, ways to avoid these situations also have been developed. The following are examples of some of the common troublesome situations and ways to create a "win/win" telecommuting environment.

CREATING A WIN/WIN TELECOMMUTING ENVIRONMENT

SITUATION    ALTERNATIVES

Managers are concerned about the employee's ability to retrieve files from a remote work site.

- o Notify the supervisor a day or two ahead of the telecommuting day of the work to be accomplished at the alternate work site and if any office or shared files are needed.
- o Work closely with administrative professionals to ensure that files are well organized, indexed, and easily retrievable. Needed items could then be sent by facsimile or E-Mail to the telecommuter.
- o Increase the use of the Local Area Network (LAN) to support and streamline file access.
- o Transfer hard copy items to diskettes.

Managers plan important meetings during scheduled telecommuting days.

- o Set up a conference call.
- o Plan one day per week when all employees will be present at the official duty station.

Managers and employees do not have a clear understanding of work expectations.

- o Define work expectations, deadlines, and reporting procedures jointly and in advance to avoid misunderstanding.
- o Establish performance goals and objectives together.

- o Review completed tasks on a weekly or bi-weekly basis, either in person or in an E-Mail report.

Co-workers don't know when the employee will be in the office. There is a general sense that the employee is "never around."

- o Post a schedule when employees are telecommuting and when they are out, e.g., on approved leave, in training, or at meetings.

Co-workers are not able to contact the employee (and are sometimes actively discouraged). Staff are unclear on how or when to contact the employee, and some staff are reluctant to call employees "at home" on their telecommuting days.

- o Provide staff with the telephone number of each telecommuter.
- o Encourage staff to call employees on their telecommuting days.
- o Supervisors should set an example by calling employees on their telecommuting work days and by insisting that others continue to transact business with employees at their alternate work sites.
- o Refrain from use of term "working at home."

Employees are reluctant to leave the phone on their telecommuting days, even to use the restroom or take a break, because someone who called might think they are not working.

- o Use answering machines to take messages during absences and follow up
- o with callers immediately upon return to the alternate work site.
- o Let administrative staff know of any extended absences, including lunch-break.

Employees run into technical problems with their computers, and no one is available to assist them.

- o Establish procedures for call-in troubleshooting with the organization's computer staff.

Telecommuting is joked about as "goofing off." Telecommuting days are referred to by co-workers as days off.

- o Explain or distribute information on the benefits of telecommuting to other staff members.
- o Use faxes or E-Mail on the computer to share or edit written material with colleagues.
- o Make visible the work products that the telecommuting employee produces while working off-site.
- o Discuss telecommuting during staff meetings.

Employee feels a sense of isolation and loss of interaction with co-workers.

- o Encourage active communication through E-Mail, voice mail, and telephone contact between telecommuters and office staff.

Employees are distracted or have difficulty establishing a disciplined work routine at their alternate work site.

- o Keep the office separate from the living area by placing it in a separate room as far removed from the living area as possible.
- o Keep a definite schedule of work time and personal time and stick to it.

The organization incurs additional expenses associated with the provision of equipment and services such as telephone charges for computer connections and long-distance calls.

- o Weigh additional costs against current and projected organizational needs.
- o Factor in potential recruitment savings, savings in training funds, and other "bottom line" savings to the organization.

TELECOMMUTING WORK AGREEMENT

This document constitutes an agreement between the _____ and (Name of employee) on the terms and conditions of participating in the Telecommuting Program.

EMPLOYEE PARTICIPATION

1. The employee volunteers to participate in the program and agrees to follow all applicable policies and procedures.
2. The employee recognizes that the telecommuting arrangement is not an employee benefit but an additional means for Broadcasting to accomplish work objectives.
3. The employee agrees to a one-year term of participation beginning (month/day/year) and ending (month/day/year), with a 90 day probationary period.

Participation in the program may extend beyond the initial first year if agreeable to the employee and supervisor. In such a case, the employee and supervisor must review and update the terms of the agreement as necessary.

OFFICIAL DUTIES

4. The supervisor and employee must clearly identify tasks to be performed at the alternate work site and include only those duties carried out at the official duty station. No personal business, dependent care, or home repairs may be conducted at the alternate work site during work hours. Broadcasting standards of conduct apply to each employee at the alternate work site.

DUTY STATION

5. All pay, salary, benefits, leave, and travel entitlement are based on the employee's official duty station in (city, county) and will not change as a result of this telecommuting arrangement. The employee will continue in pay status while working at the alternate work site.

Alternate work site address:

Alternate work site telephone:

WORK SCHEDULE AND TOUR OF DUTY

6. The employee will work at the alternate work site on (day(s) of the week) from to (duty hours).

The employee agrees to work an 8-hour and 45-minute day unless the supervisor and employee specify otherwise. (Tour of duty includes a non-paid 45-minute meal period during which the employee will be excused from duty.)

7. The supervisor may grant additional telecommuting days in instances of inclement weather or other emergency situations if the employee can specify portable tasks to accomplish at the alternate work site.

8. If the employee's physical presence is required at the official duty station on a scheduled telecommuting day, the employee agrees to return to the official duty station when requested. The time remaining in the employee's work day, the distance the employee would have to commute to return to the official duty station, and rush hour constraints will be considered by the supervisor before making the request.

9. The employee may select a different telecommuting day during the work week if the supervisor approves.

LEAVE AND OVERTIME

10. The employee agrees to follow established procedures for requesting and obtaining approval for leave.

11. A supervisor may approve overtime or credit time if needed. The supervisor must approve all overtime in advance. The employee will be compensated for overtime work in accordance with applicable law, regulations, and policies. The employee understands that the supervisor will not accept the results of un-approved overtime work.

TIME AND ATTENDANCE

12. The employee must be available at his/her alternate work site during established work hours. The employee agrees to apprise appropriate administrative personnel of any extended absence from the alternate work site, including lunch breaks, during the scheduled work day.

13. The employee's supervisor and timekeeper will maintain copies of the employee's telecommuting schedule.

The employee's timekeeper will record the employee's starting and ending times for each telecommuting day based on (telephone calls) (e-mail transmissions) (describe other method).

The supervisor will certify biweekly the hours worked by the employee at the official duty station and at the alternate work site based on (describe pre-established method) .

EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES

14. The employee will use personal equipment to complete official duty tasks at the alternate work site. The employee agrees to install, service, and maintain any personal equipment used.

Borrowing of U.S. Government equipment by employees is subject to Office approval, availability of equipment, and completion of all requisite property pass documentation. The employee agrees to use borrowed U.S. Government equipment for official purposes only. The following equipment has been issued to Ms./Mr. .

15. With appropriate supervisory approval, Broadcasting will provide or reimburse employees for all necessary office supplies, business-based long-distance telephone calls, and other expenses incurred while conducting business for the U.S. Government as provided by statute and implementing regulations. The supervisor has the authority to limit costs incurred.

The U.S. Government is not responsible for any operating costs that are associated with the employee's use of the alternate work site at a personal residence (e.g., home maintenance, insurance, utilities, etc.).

SECURITY

16. The employee agrees to protect all borrowed U.S. Government equipment from possible theft and environmental damage in compliance with applicable regulations.

17. The employee agrees to safeguard all equipment and information used to perform official duties.

18. The employee agrees to neither use nor store classified documents (hard copy or electronic) at the alternate work site.

19. The employee agrees to protect Federal records from unauthorized disclosure or damage and to comply with the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 USC 552a.

LIABILITY AND INJURY COMPENSATION

20. The U.S. Government is not liable for damages to an employee's personal or real property while the employee is working at the approved alternate work site except as provided by the Federal Tort Claims Act or the Military Personnel and Civilian Employees Claims Act.

21. The employee is covered under the Federal Employee's Compensation Act if injured while performing duties at the official duty station or alternate work site. The employee agrees to notify the supervisor immediately of any accident or injury that occurs at the alternate work site. The supervisor must investigate all injury reports immediately following notification.

WORK AREA AND WORK SITE INSPECTION

22. The employee agrees to designate one area in the home as the official alternate work site. By completing the Safety Checklist and Employee Self-Certification, the employee certifies that the alternate work site area is adequate for performance of official duties and meets applicable building and safety codes. This includes but is not limited to: ensuring that the electrical system is adequate for use of U.S. Government equipment; ensuring a smoke detector is present and working; and safeguarding U.S. Government equipment and records.

WORK ASSIGNMENTS AND EMPLOYEE PERFORMANCE

23. The employee must have a fully successful or higher performance rating to participate or continue in the telecommuting program.

24. The employee will meet with the supervisor to receive assignments and to review completed work as necessary or appropriate. All assigned work will be completed in accordance with guidelines and standards in the employee's performance plan and according to procedures agreed to by the supervisor and employee. The supervisor may require regular progress reports from the employee to assist in judging performance. A decline in performance may be grounds for canceling employee participation in the program.

25. The employee agrees to limit performance of duties to the official duty station or to the approved alternate work site. Failure to comply with this provision may result in loss of pay, removal from the telecommuting program, or other disciplinary action.

CANCELLATION

26. After notice to the supervisor, the employee may resume working his/her regular schedule at the official duty station. After notice to the employee, the supervisor may instruct the employee to resume working his/her regular schedule at the official duty station.

OTHER

27. Broadcasting maintains the right to take appropriate disciplinary or adverse action against an employee who fails to comply with the provisions of this agreement.

Signature indicates that the parties understand and agree to follow the terms and conditions stated in this Telecommuting Work Agreement.

(a) PURPOSE: To establish the Broadcasting Board of Governors' Telework policy and to provide guidelines and procedures for implementing the program, this telework policy enables an Agency employee to perform the duties, responsibilities, and other authorized activities of his or her official position from an alternative worksite, rather than at his or her official duty station. Telework is an arrangement established first and foremost to facilitate the accomplishment of work. The purposes of the Agency's telework program include:

- (1) Recruiting and retaining the best possible workforce by demonstrating a forward-thinking, innovative workplace that promotes work/life balance;
- (2) Helping employees manage work and personal responsibilities, including long commutes and other work/life issues that, if not addressed, could have a negative impact on employee morale, effectiveness, or retention;
- (3) Reducing traffic congestion, fuel costs, vehicular emissions, and infrastructure impact in urban areas, thereby improving the environment;
- (4) Ensuring Agency, Department, and Division business continuity of operations planning (B-COOP) in the event of local or national emergencies, and/or pandemics;
- (5) Ensuring during a pandemic, the agency could implement flexible work site (telework) policies and flexible work hours (staggered shifts), if appropriate;
- (6) Ensure the Agency equipment, technology, and technical support telework have been tested periodically;
- (7) Ensuring the Agency IT infrastructure is in place to allow large numbers of employees to telework simultaneously; and
- (8) At least annually, identify emergency employees (including B-COOP employees) and notify them in writing, including the requirement that emergency employees report for work or remain at work (or work at home or report to an alternative work site) when government operations are disrupted.

(b) AUTHORITY & SCOPE:

(1) Authority.

- (i) The Telework Enhancement Act of 2010, Public Law 111-292; and

- (ii) Public Law 106-346 § 359;

- (xv) Federal Management Regulation \(FMR\) Bulletin 2006-B3, “Guidelines for Alternative Workplace Arrangements,” 71 Fed. Reg. 13845 \(Mar. 17, 2006\); and
- (xvi) FMR Bulletin 2007-B1, “Information Technology and Telecommunications Guidelines for Federal Telework and Other Alternative Workplace Arrangement Programs,” 72 Fed. Reg. 9532 \(Mar. 2, 2007\).

(2) Scope. The Telework program applies to all Federal employees (both supervisory and non-supervisory, both domestic and overseas) of the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG), and all offices of the Federal Government supervised by the BBG – Voice of America (VOA), the Office of Cuba Broadcasting (OCB), and the International Broadcasting Bureau (IBB) (collectively, “the Agency”). This Agency-wide telework program permits Agency elements to establish and use effective telework agreements.

(1) Promoting Telework. It is Agency policy to actively promote and encourage Telework as a workplace flexibility arrangement and to allow eligible employees to perform the duties, responsibilities, and other authorized activities of his or her official position from an alternative worksite, rather than at his or her official duty station.

(2) Telework is not an employee right. Federal law requires the establishment of telework programs but does not give individual employees a legal right to telework.

(3) Employee participation in the Agency’s Telework Program is voluntary. The Agency may not compel an employee to telework except in emergency situations or when consistent with a government-wide directive.

(4) Ineligibility for Telework. Eligibility and ineligibility for telework are determined based on The Telework Enhancement Act of 2010, which allows agencies to establish additional eligibility criteria.

(i) Under The Telework Enhancement Act of 2010 two categories of employees are not eligible for telework under any circumstances:

(A) An employee who has been disciplined for being absent without permission for more than five days in any calendar year; or

(B) An employee who has been disciplined for violations of subpart G of the Standards of Ethical Conduct of Employees of the Executive Branch for reviewing, downloading, or exchanging pornography, including child pornography, on a Federal computer or while performing Federal Government duties;

(ii) The Agency Head, the Director of VOA, or the Director of OCB may make a written determination that a category of positions (e.g. all supervisory international broadcasters, or all contracting officers) within their organizations are ineligible for telework when the duties of the affected positions require employees to be physically present at the official duty station. Such a determination may make an employee ineligible for regular or recurring telework, but still eligible for telework on a situational basis when there are portions of the employee’s work (e.g. reading and analyzing documents, thinking and writing, computer-oriented tasks and preparing reports or other types of correspondence) or special circumstances that are compatible with Telework arrangements.

(5) Participation in Telework. In order to participate in Telework, an employee must not be ineligible as described above. Agency supervisors may determine that an employee, on an individual basis, may not participate in the Telework program or may only participate in situational telework, even though the employee is eligible, based on individual and organizational work needs. Participation shall ensure that telework does not diminish employee performance or Agency operations. Supervisors shall determine whether an employee may participate in Telework based on the following criteria and guidelines:

(i) Duties of the Position – In addition to being eligible, in order to participate, the employee must perform duties that are suitable for telework. Agency supervisors should deny participation altogether if an employee’s duties require regular and actual presence at the assigned duty station (e.g. providing daily tours, live broadcasts, editing shows), require face-to-face personal contacts that cannot be effectively or efficiently handled remotely or at an alternative worksite (e.g. hands on contact with equipment or hosting a show), or when an employee does not spend enough time on duties suitable for telework to fill any day in the employee’s work schedule, including alternative work schedules.

(ii) Network Capability- An employee’s capability to access the Department’s network does not meet network security requirements.

(iii) Employee Performance – An employee whose performance has been determined by Management to be at the “Does Not Meet Expectations Level” or at less than a Fully Successful performance level (Multi-Tier Rating System) may not participate in the Agency’s telework program;

(iv) An employee’s need to access/use classified or sensitive information; and

(v) The employee is in his/her probationary period and has not been in the organization long enough to know his/her duties and/or organizational relationships sufficiently well enough to perform independently or successfully unless in the office.

(6) Length of Telework. Regular or Recurring telework is limited to a maximum of eight (8) days per pay period. Additional days may be added due to emergency situations such as weather emergencies or COOP situations. Working unscheduled telework due to emergency situations may, depending on existing work needs, require a reduction in an employee’s regularly scheduled telework days. Supervisors may further limit the number of days per pay period that an individual employee may telework based on work requirements or operational needs, (e.g., availability of equipment and network capability necessary to telework, in-office staff coverage needs, supervisory responsibilities, the amount of the employee’s job responsibilities that are suitable for telework, or other considerations listed in paragraph (c)(5)). When making decisions about the number of allowable telework days for individual employees, supervisors should also give due consideration to the following guidelines:

(i) Supervisors must schedule a sufficient number of employees to be present in the office for the office to function effectively and efficiently.

(ii) For employees who perform both duties that are suitable for telework and duties that are not suitable for telework, supervisors must limit the number of allowable telework days to the number of workdays an employee can reasonably fill with duties that are suitable for telework.

(7) Relation to Existing Human Resources Policies.

(i) Parity for Teleworking and Non-Teleworking Employees. Teleworkers shall receive the same treatment and opportunities as non-teleworkers (e.g., work assignments, awards and recognition, development opportunities, promotions, etc.)

(ii) Hours of Duty. All existing regulations and policies relating to hours of duty apply to telework employees unless otherwise addressed and required by law, regulation or the NLMA.

(iii) Work Schedules. Normally, telework work schedules should parallel those worked at employees' official duty station. Adjustments are permitted, as needed or requested, if consistent with work needs. Employees may work authorized standard schedules or follow authorized alternate work schedules depending upon the agreement between the employee and the supervisor. Core hours will be established for each work shift. Employees on a Maxiflex and Flextime schedule shall confirm with their supervisors the core hours for their shift. Each employee is expected to adhere to the core hours for his/her shift. Ad hoc telework schedules or schedules that violate Agency and/or Government-wide work-schedule policies are prohibited.

(iv) Leave. The policies for requesting annual leave, sick leave, other paid time off, or leave without pay are the same for working at the official duty station or offsite. The teleworking employee must follow established procedures for requesting and obtaining approval for leave and must ensure the timekeeper is informed of leave usage.

(v) Duty Station. Teleworking does not affect the designation of an employee's official duty station.

(vi) Pay. The employee's official duty station serves as the basis for determining locality pay. Federal regulations governing night differential, Sunday Premium pay, and Holiday pay apply regardless of whether work is performed at the official duty station or an alternate worksite.

(vii) Certification and Control of Time and Attendance. A high level of trust and communication between the supervisor and employee is essential to an effective telework program. Therefore, a teleworker is required to telephone or email his/her supervisor at the starting and ending times of each telework day, and must be available by phone, email, and/or video conference during telework hours.

(viii) Overtime, Compensatory Time, and Credit Hours. Supervisors may approve overtime or compensatory time on a telework day, if needed to complete critical work. The employee will be compensated for authorized overtime work in accordance with applicable law, regulations, and policies. The existing provisions in Title 5 U.S.C. and in the Fair Labor Standards Act governing overtime apply to telework. Supervisors must approve all credit hours (if credit hours are part of the regular schedule, this approval may be contained in the Telework Agreement.), overtime, and/or compensatory time in advance and in writing. An employee on telework who works credit hours, overtime, or compensatory time without advance supervisory approval may be removed from the telework program. Supervisors may provide advance, conditional written approval for an employee on telework to work overtime.

(ix) Effect of Travel, Leave, Holidays, and Early Release on Telework. If the employee is on travel or leave on a scheduled telework day, or the scheduled telework day is a holiday, the employee may not automatically substitute an alternative telework day without advance supervisory approval. If the Federal Government is released early due to a holiday or “good will” gesture, eligible telework employees will receive the same benefit as similarly situated employees at his or her official duty station. Early release/Late arrival of federal employees for weather does not typically apply to teleworkers. Early Release applies only to non-emergency employees unless otherwise permitted by the Agency Head. Employees should read and follow OPM and Agency announcements for specific guidance.

(x) Dependent Care. The telework program is not intended to serve as a substitute for childcare, day care, elder care, or any other type of dependent care. Employees who have small children or adults requiring care or supervision must arrange to be free from dependent care during a telework workday. Employees unable to be free from dependent care during scheduled telework may request leave; supervisors will give due consideration to such a leave request, work needs permitting.

(xi) Reasonable Accommodations for Persons with Disabilities. Nothing in this policy affects existing policies or procedures for requesting reasonable accommodations under The Rehabilitation Act of 1973. For more information, or to make a request for reasonable accommodations, please contact the Office of Civil Rights.

(xii) Safety. Occupational Safety Health Administration (OSHA) rules govern Federal employee workplace safety. Employees must acknowledge receipt of and awareness of the Employee Safety Checklist form setting the standards for compliance with OSHA guidelines. The supervisor may deny a request to telework or may rescind a Telework Agreement based on safety problems at the alternate worksite.

(xiii) Transit Subsidy. Employees approved for telework who would otherwise be eligible to receive PTAP subsidies will be allowed to participate in the PTAP program. Employees receiving a transit subsidy benefit must adjust their monthly benefit to subtract commuting costs for regular and recurring telework days. Employees will be allowed to adjust their transit subsidy benefit, consistent with law and regulation, when they experience a change in their regular telework schedules.

(8) Relation to Virtual Private Network (VPN) Access and Business Continuity of Operations (B-COOP) Events:

(i) Background. A Government-wide initiative, mandated by the President was created to ensure the ability of the Federal departments and agencies to fulfill their essential roles and functions in response to a wide spectrum of threats. Each department is required to develop and maintain a Business Continuity of Operations Plan (B-COOP) to ensure that mission essential functions are operational within 12 hours of any emergency activation, with or without warning. Further information can be found in Federal Continuity Directive 1, located at <http://www.fema.gov/pdf/about/org/ncp/fcd1.pdf>. Some threats might include:

- (A) Fire in the building;
- (B) Natural disasters;
- (C) Threat or occurrence of a terrorist attack; or
- (D) Any event that makes it impossible for employees to work in their official duty station.

(ii) Relationship to Telework. During any period of time that the Agency is operating under a B-COOP, the B-COOP shall supersede this policy. Telework can be an essential part of a B-COOP. A fully implemented telework program should be a key component of an effective B-COOP Plan. Telework provides a cost effective reliable B-COOP capability that is routinely exercised since it is integrated into existing IT infrastructures and normal employee activities. To make telework a viable option during emergencies, work must be organized to facilitate electronic communication and eliminate paper-based processes whenever possible, e.g., automating reports and procedures as much as possible.

(iii) While this policy is applicable to almost all employees within the Agency, there are variances for those employees that serve as Continuity Personnel. Continuity Personnel are senior and core employees, who provide the leadership advice, recommendations, and functional support necessary to continue essential operations. This includes pre-designated BBG principals and staff, as well as Subject Matter Experts (SME) who have been designated to support B-COOP functions in the event the Headquarters building and/or other occupied space(s) is threatened or incapacitated.

(9) Policies related to Telework and Equipment.

(i) Telecommunications and Equipment. Participation in the Telework Program is contingent on the amount, type, and availability of telecommunications and equipment needed to accomplish portable work.

(ii) Employee Personal Property and Utility Expenses. Employees who telework are responsible for providing the necessary equipment to work at an alternate worksite. This may include computers, software, printers, fax machines, telephone lines, and related supplies. The employee is responsible for repair and maintenance of personal equipment. The Agency will ordinarily not pay for utility costs at a teleworker's personal residence. However, the Agency may reimburse teleworkers for long distance telephone expenses incurred as a necessary result of official duties (i.e. other forms of communication, such as voice-over-internet protocol (VOIP) or e-mail are not available). To obtain reimbursement, employees submit a SF-1164, Claim for Reimbursement for Expenditures for Official Business, accompanied by a copy of the telephone bill and proof that the long distance telephone expenses were a necessary result of the official duties, to his/her supervisor for approval.

(iii) Government-Owned Equipment. Supervisors, in consultation with their management team, may determine that Government-owned equipment, such as laptop computers and printers, may be loaned to employees for use at alternate worksites. A supervisor must approve loaning Government-owned equipment to a teleworker before the Agency incurs any expenses related to such equipment (e.g. purchase, installation, etc.). All such equipment must be properly signed out in accordance with Agency procedures, including sign-in/sign-out procedures in III BAM 700 Agency Mobile Device Policy. Ownership and control of hardware, software, and data remain with the U.S. Government. The equipment must be used for official business only and may not be used by family members or others. All policies on the acceptable use of Agency-owned Information Technology, Agency-owned equipment, and the Internet apply to teleworkers, including Standards of Ethical Conduct for Employees of the Executive Branch: Basic Obligations of Public Service. 5 C.F.R. 2635.101 \(b\)\(9\); and Standards of Ethical Conduct for Employees of the Executive Branch: Use of Government Property. 5 C.F.R. 2635.704.

(iv) If Government-owned property or equipment on loan to an employee is damaged or lost due to the employee's negligence, e.g., carelessness or failure to reasonably secure the property or equipment, the employee will be held liable for the repair or replacement of the equipment to the same extent he or she currently is held liable when loaned equipment is damaged or lost.

(v) Reference Materials. Employees are responsible for identifying the tools they need to work at alternate worksites. If an office has a limited number of reference books, publications, or other tools normally used on the job, the teleworker must provide his or her own copy or work from the official duty station.

(10) Use of Sensitive Material and Privacy Information.

(i) Teleworkers are expected to follow security procedures and precautions at their alternate worksites and to protect sensitive information.

(ii) Offsite access to sensitive data may be permitted only if Agency IT/Security officials certify the adequacy of the security for such access consistent with the Agency's policy on Safeguarding Personally Identifiable Information. Classified data may not be removed from an employee's official duty station or remotely accessed.

(iii) Records subject to the Privacy Act must be maintained and protected in accordance with Government-wide regulations and Agency policy. Sensitive non-classified data may not be disclosed to anyone except those who are authorized access to such information to perform their duties. Supervisors who allow employees access to records subject to the Privacy Act from a remote worksite are responsible for ensuring that appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards are present to ensure the confidentiality and integrity of the records.

(d) PROCEDURES AND PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITIES:

(1) Notification of Eligibility. Within 60 days of the effective date of the policy, the Office of Human Resources (OHR) shall inform all Agency employees of their eligibility to telework. Employees shall be notified of their eligibility to participate in telework within 30 calendar days of starting a new job.

(2) Agency Supervisor Responsibilities:

(i) Supervisors review each Telework Application to determine if employees are telework eligible and may participate in telework based on the criteria and guidelines in paragraphs (c)(4) and (c)(5) above.

(ii) The Supervisor normally will determine whether to approve or disapprove employees' requests to telework within 10 business days of receipt of a complete application, unless extenuating circumstances preclude processing within this time period. An example of an extenuating circumstance is when a supervisor is on leave or travel. The Supervisor provides a written explanation to the employee, and the Telework Coordinator, if the request to telework is denied.

(iii) The Supervisor determines and establishes required response times (e.g. phone call and e-mail responses) for supervisor/employee communications to ensure optimum communication.

(iv) The Supervisor monitors telework to ensure that employees are paid only for the time worked and that absences from scheduled tours of duty are accounted for correctly.

(v) The Supervisor enforces the terms of the Telework Agreement and takes appropriate corrective action to ensure conformance with the requirements of the Telework Program.

(vi) If an emergency or other situation affects the alternate worksite for a major portion of the workday, employees are required to notify their immediate supervisors (or designee) of the existing emergency situation unless the employees know that the immediate supervisors (or designees) are already aware of the emergency situation. Supervisors may require an employee to report to the official worksite or the employee must request and receive approval for annual leave, other paid time off (e.g., credit hours), or leave without pay. Supervisors will establish procedures for notifying employees if they are required to report to the official worksite.

(vii) The Supervisor will use an approved Agency notification method that can provide accountability of personnel who are on leave, teleworking, or off-site during emergencies.

(viii) In canceling all or part of a scheduled telework day, supervisors will normally provide, work needs or performance requirements permitting, the employee with a one-week notice. When Management determines that an emergency situation exists, supervisors will provide the employee notice as soon as reasonably practicable after the need for the employee to report to the official duty station becomes known. If a need for an employee to report to the official duty station arises close to or after the beginning of a scheduled workday, supervisors should balance the critical work requirements against such factors as the time remaining in the employee's workday and the time and distance required to travel from the employee's telework site to the employee's duty station before making the request.

(ix) If an employee is instructed to report to his/her official duty station during a telework already in progress, the supervisor will allow reasonable time to report to the duty station. Time spent reporting to the official duty station, when employees are called in when otherwise scheduled to telework, will be counted as duty time only as required by law and regulation.

(x) Supervisors must coordinate with the Telework Managing Officer to ensure that trained staff is integrated as part of the organization's Occupant Emergency Plan (OEP) and business continuity of operations policy/planning/response activities.

(xi) Supervisors may review telework agreements for employees they supervise whenever the affected work circumstances or significant duties change or if provisions of the Telework Agreement are changed.

(xii) Must take Telework training.

(3) Employee Responsibilities:

(i) The employee completes and submits a telework application package to his or her immediate supervisor that includes:

(A) The Telework Application;

(B) Acknowledgement of Receipt and Awareness of the Employee Safety Checklist;

(C) A Telework Agreement; and

(D) A copy of the employee's certificate of successful completion of online telework training.

(ii) Employees who telework are expected to comply with Federal ethics rules. Federal ethics rules are located at <http://inside.bbg.gov/offices/ethics/default.aspx>.

(iii) Performance standards for teleworking employees must be the same as performance standards for non-teleworking employees with the same job requirements. Employees are to ensure that telework does not diminish personal work performance or the accomplishment of the Agency's mission, and does not have any negative impact on the work of other members of the work group (e.g., co-workers, supervisors). Teleworking employees are also expected to adhere to all other expectations of professional conduct that would apply at the official duty station, such as respectful and cooperative behavior toward colleagues and supervisors and working the full assigned schedule.

(iv) The employee must demonstrate the ability to work independently and ensure the quality and quantity of work does not suffer while teleworking.

(v) The employee ensures that he or she is free from responsibility for dependent care for children, elders, or others during telework work hours.

(vi) The employee adheres to the terms and conditions of the Telework Agreement, including time and attendance reporting requirements.

(vii) The employee reports to the official duty station whenever the Supervisor informs the employee that his/her physical presence is required, even on a scheduled telework day. If an employee cannot report to the official duty station when requested, he/she must request annual leave, other paid time off (e.g., credit hours), or leave without pay. Procedures and appropriate arrangements for teleworking emergency employees who cannot report to their official duty station due to weather or other emergencies are governed by controlling provisions in law, regulation and NLMA.

(viii) Whenever an employee knows in advance of a situation that will preclude working at the alternate worksite, or when an emergency or other compelling circumstances prevent the employee from teleworking, the employee must either report to the official duty station or request and obtain approval for leave.

(ix) The employee is responsible for transporting any loaned, Government-owned equipment to the alternate worksite, installing such equipment (training may be provided), and returning the equipment to the Agency if repairs are needed or as requested by the employee's supervisor. The employee must notify his or her supervisor immediately following a malfunction of U.S. Government-owned equipment. If repairs are needed, the employee may be directed to report to the official duty station until equipment is usable or other equipment becomes available.

(4) Telework Managing Officer Responsibilities:

(i) The Telework Managing Officer (TMO), who is the Director of the Office of Workforce Support and Development, is responsible for policy development and implementation related to the Agency's telework program.

(ii) The TMO reports data on telework participation to Agency management, OPM, and other official entities that require and are entitled to the information.

(iii) The TMO is the primary point of contact with OPM on telework matters.

(5) Telework Coordinator Responsibilities:

(i) The Telework Coordinator (TC), who is the Office Manager in the OHR Administration and Benefits Division, administers the Telework Program in accordance with applicable laws and Agency guidelines. The TC answers to the TMO on Telework issues.

(ii) The TC, in coordination with the TMO and the Labor and Employee Relations Division, provides information and policy guidance to employees and supervisors on the Telework Program.

(iii) The TC provides Agency officials with technical assistance to help resolve telework issues.

(iv) The TC reviews telework application packages for completeness and certifies that Agreements do not include any non-qualifying provisions and sends an email message approving or disapproving the application to the employee and supervisor, normally within five business days of receipt.

(v) The TC coordinates with the Transit Subsidy Coordinator to ensure transit benefits are not issued for regularly scheduled telework days.

(6) TSI Deputy for Technology Support Services (T/TSS) or Computer Systems Support (CSS) Responsibilities:

(i) If an applicant requires Government equipment or a VPN token, CSS will discuss the applicant's information technology needs to determine what the employee requires to successfully perform the duties of his/her position from an alternate worksite. This could include connection capability to the Internet, software, and/or hardware. VOA users must get their laptops from Laptop Support, who will assist the users with VPN connection as well. If the employee does not have a home computer, a laptop may be issued, if available. However, the Agency maintains a limited number of laptop computers; therefore, employees may have to wait for an undetermined amount of time to receive a laptop.

(ii) Based on the discussions with CSS, the employee will be provided connectivity to Agency systems after the employee submits a virtual private network (VPN) request for the appropriate access through the Helpdesk.

(7) Submitting an Application.

(i) All employees are encouraged to apply for the Telework Program, even if they do not intend to work a regular and recurring telework schedule. Having an approved Telework Application and Agreement in place enables employees to utilize Situational Telework (see definition below), when necessary, and will help the Agency plan for emergencies at the Cohen Building or other locations.

(ii) Telework Training. The Telework Enhancement Act requires all employees eligible for telework and their supervisors to complete an online training course. Separate training modules are required for an employee participating in the Agency's Telework Program and a supervisor responsible for supervising an employee who teleworks. Copies of certificates confirming successful completion of the telework training courses by the supervisor and the employee must be included in the application package submitted to the TC. Employees and supervisors should maintain copies of their telework training certificates. By successfully completing the required telework training programs, which includes FEMA IS-546 Continuity of Operations (COOP) Awareness Course, each eligible employee will be authorized to telework during a continuity activation; and any other OEP or OPM designated emergency situation. The online training course will be available on the Agency's intranet. Employees may use their duty time to complete the training.

(iii) The application process includes completion and submission of the following forms:

(A) Employee Application (signed by the employee);

(B) Employee acknowledges receipt of and awareness of the Safety Checklist;

(C) Telework Agreement (signed by the employee and supervisor);

(D) Employee's Certification of Completion of: 1) Telework Training, and 2) COOP Training; and

(E) Supervisor's Certification of Completion of: 1) Telework Training, and 2) COOP Training.

(iv) Failure to submit or complete any of the above documents constitutes an incomplete application.

(v) The employee must complete, sign, and submit the Employee Application, acknowledgement of receiving the Employee Safety Checklist, and the Telework Agreement, along with the Employee's Certification of Telework Training (items 1 through 4, above) to his or her immediate supervisor for review and approval. The supervisor, or delegated approving official, will review the request and provide a written decision to the employee, normally within 10 business days of receipt of a complete application package from the employee.

(vi) If the application is approved, the supervisor will sign the Telework Agreement, attach his or her Certification of Completion of Telework Training, and forward the completed application package to the TC in OHR.

(vii) The TC will review the application package for completeness and to ensure the Agreement does not include any non-qualifying provisions. Incomplete applications will be returned to the supervisor, who will, in turn, return the unapproved application to the employee. If the application package is complete, the TC will send an email message approving or disapproving the application to the employee and supervisor, normally within five business days of receipt. A copy of the approved Agreement must be provided to the applicant's Timekeeper to ensure that time and attendance data input to the payroll system is consistent with the Agreement. The document is subject to the Privacy Act and must be maintained and protected by the Timekeeper in accordance with Government-wide regulations. The employee may not begin telework until it is confirmed in writing by the TC that a completed package has been received and approved. If the TC disapproves an application, the email to the employee and supervisor will contain the reason(s) for the disapproval.

(8) Denial and Reconsideration Process.

(i) While telework is not an employee entitlement, and not all employees or positions are appropriate for telework, management officials must give every application full consideration. Denial of a telework agreement must be based on criteria for eligibility or participation described above or work requirements.

(ii) If the request is denied, the supervisor will notify the employee of the decision in writing and provide the reason(s) for the denial. The supervisor will provide the TC with a copy of the denied application package and the written decision for review and recordkeeping.

(iii) After an initial denial by a first line supervisor, second line supervisors may accept an employee's written request for reconsideration submitted within 10 business days after the initial denial. If a second line supervisor accepts an employee's request for reconsideration, the second level supervisor should provide a written reply to the employee, within 10 business days after receiving a request for reconsideration, indicating whether the first line supervisor's decision will be upheld. If the telework application is denied by the second level supervisor, the decision is final.

(iv) If the TC denies a telework application, an employee's written request for reconsideration must be submitted to the TMO, within 10 business days after receiving the denial. The TMO should provide a written reply to the employee within 10 business days after receiving a request for reconsideration, indicating whether the TC's decision will be upheld. If the telework application is denied by the TMO, the decision is final. Employees will receive a copy of the final decision within 10 days after the decision was made.

(9) Term of Telework Agreements. Approved Telework Agreements will remain in effect until the employee withdraws from the agreement, the supervisor terminates the agreement, or the agreement is superseded by another Telework Agreement.

(10) Withdrawal from Telework Agreements. To withdraw from a telework agreement, an employee must send a written notice of withdrawal to his or her supervisor and the TC. Because the Agency may not require an employee to telework, the Agency must accept an employee's withdrawal.

(11) Termination of Telework Agreements.

(i) A supervisor may terminate a telework agreement for good cause, including but not limited to:

(A) The employee becomes ineligible to telework due to circumstances described in paragraph (c)(4) above;

(B) The employee may no longer participate in the telework program due to a change in circumstances that affects the participation factors described in paragraph (c)(5), such as the employee receiving a less than satisfactory performance rating or a change in employee responsibilities;

(C) The employee fails to comply with this policy; or

(D) The telework arrangement diminishes employee performance or Agency operations.

(ii) To terminate a telework agreement, the supervisor must write a notice of telework termination, which explains the reason for the termination.

(iii) Before issuing a notice of telework termination to an employee, the supervisor must submit the notice to the TMO for review, recordkeeping, and reporting. The TMO reviews the notice of termination to ensure it does not include any non-qualifying reasons for termination. The TMO also keeps records on, and reports to OPM, the number of telework terminations and the reasons for telework terminations. Only after the TMO reviews the termination, the supervisor may issue the termination to the employee.

(iv) The termination shall be effective 10 workdays after the employee receives it.

(12) Changing, Modifying, and Re-Applying for Telework Agreements.

(i) Completion of a new Telework Agreement is required whenever:

(A) Conditions of the Agreement are amended significantly, e.g., increases or decreases in the number of telework days. Minor changes may be indicated as pen and ink changes to the Telework Agreement. Such minor changes must be initialed by the supervisor and employee and a copy of the amended Telework Agreement must be submitted to the TC;

(B) The employee changes positions or the employee's duties change; or

(C) The employee's performance is determined by Management to be at less than an acceptable level (2-Tier Rating System) or at less than a fully successful performance level (Multi-Tier Rating System).

(ii) Employees working under telework agreements before issuance of this policy do not necessarily need to reapply for new telework agreements after issuance of this policy, unless one of the requirements above applies, or the terms of the telework agreement must change in order to comply with this policy.

(iii) Implementation of a new or replacement Telework Agreement requires the submission of a complete Telework application package to the TC for review and approval.

(1) “Eligible” means meeting the minimum criteria to telework as described in the Telework Enhancement Act of 2010 and Agency policy, which includes Agency employees, except those employees specifically described as ineligible in paragraph (c)(4) above.

(2) “Employee” means all employees of the agency meeting the definition of “employee” as defined in Section 2105 of Title 5 of the United States Code are covered by the policy.

(3) “Telework” means an arrangement under which an employee performs the duties and responsibilities of such employee’s position, and other authorized activities, from an approved worksite other than the location from which the employee would otherwise work. Please see the guidance below on types of telework:

(i) “Regular/Recurring Telework” is the performance of work from an alternative worksite on a regular and recurring basis for an agreed upon portion of a pay period. Employees who work Regular/Recurring Telework are scheduled to work offsite at least one day per pay period.

(ii) “Situational Telework” is non-recurring or irregular telework, including telework only in case of emergencies. Situational telework is ideal for employees whose work includes periods when projects or assignments have short turnaround times or require intense concentration or for emergency events. Supervisory approval is required for specific telework days, for specific projects, or other assignments.

(iii) “Emergency Telework” is non-recurring work away from the conventional office based on an emergency situation or need (such as office closure due to inclement weather, office and/or building repairs, an emergency event that affects office operations, etc.), which may or may not be associated with a B-COOP Event Emergency Situation. Since this is a temporary situation, the duration of telework is at the supervisor’s discretion and does not have to meet the minimum requirement of regular telework.

(4) “Business Continuity of Operations (B-COOP)” is an effort within individual agencies, including BBG, to ensure the Agency is able to continue to perform Mission Essential Functions (MEF) and Primary Mission Essential Functions (PMEF) during a wide range of emergencies, including localized acts of nature, accidents, and technological or attack-related emergencies.

(5) “B-COOP Event Emergency Situation” is a national security incident, situation, extended emergency, or other unique situation when the Agency, a department(s), or an affected office is closed, including but not limited to: hurricanes, earthquakes, terrorist threats/activity, pandemic influenza, etc.

(6) “Official Worksite/Duty Station” is identified in Block 39 (Duty Station) on all employees’ SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, forms.

(7) “Alternative worksite/location” is a location away from the official duty station that has been designated and approved for the performance of assigned official duties.

Section 610

ABSENCE AND LEAVE (GENERAL)

611 INTRODUCTION

611.1 Scope - This Section is applicable to all Civil Service employees.

611.2 Other Sources of Information -

a. 3 FAM 400 contains information on leave for Foreign Service employees.

b. MOA V-A 602 through 605 includes information and instructions on compensatory time off and on holiday absences.

c. MOA VII-500 contains instructions on reporting absences and leave. MOA VII-600 contains instructions on: (1) remitting fees received in connection with court leave and pay received in connection with military leave granted for law enforcement purposes and (2) requesting waivers of overpayments of pay.

611.3 Legal and Regulatory Background

Chapters 55, 61, and 63 of Title 5, United States Code are the legal basis for rules and regulations on absences and leave.

612 RESPONSIBILITIES

612.1 Heads of Services, and Offices are responsible for proper administration of regulations and procedures on absences and leave that pertain to employees under their respective jurisdictions. Normally, the authority to approve, deny, and cancel leave is delegated to the lowest supervisory level having personal knowledge of the work requirements and of the employees' leave records. Officials having authority to act on leave requests are also responsible for reporting absences and leave for their employees in accordance with instructions in MOA VII-500.

612.2 The Office of Personnel is responsible for developing policies and regulations governing leave administration in conformance with law and Office of Personnel Management and General Accounting Office requirements. The Office of Personnel is responsible for guiding and advising supervisors and managerial officials on leave administration.

612.3 Financial Operations is responsible for establishing and maintaining the leave accounting system in accordance with General Accounting Office regulations and instructions; for guiding and advising supervisory officials on matters of leave accounting, leave earning categories, and leave balances; and for collection of payments for premiums for the Federal Employees' Health Benefits Program which may have been incurred by employees while in LWOP status.

613 MANDATORY APPROVAL OF LEAVE

Under the following circumstances, the approval of leave requests is mandatory so long as the employee has followed proper procedures for requesting leave and has provided documentation acceptable to the approving official.

613.1 Treatment of Disabled Veterans - Executive Order 5396, July 17, 1930, requires that such annual or sick leave as may be permitted by law or leave without pay as is necessary for medical treatment of a disabled veteran shall be granted upon the veteran's request and presentation of an official statement from a duly constituted medical authority that such treatment is required, all without penalty in his or her efficiency rating (performance appraisal). A disabled veteran must similarly be authorized leave of absence for examinations and absences from duty in connection with his or her disability.

613.2 Military Leave - An employee (other than an intermittent employee or a temporary employee appointed for one year or less) who is a member of a Reserve component or the National Guard shall, upon request and presentation of official orders, be granted military leave to which he or she is entitled for performance of active duty or training. (See MOA V-A 660.)

613.3 Pending Disability Retirement - An employee whose disability retirement has been approved shall be granted available sick leave at his or her request.

613.4 Sick Leave - An employee is entitled to use accrued sick leave when incapacitated for duty due to illness, injury or pregnancy, or when emergency medical or dental treatment is required. See MOA V-A 640

614 ABSENCE WITHOUT LEAVE

614.1 Definition - Absence without leave (AWOL) means any absence from duty that has not been authorized or approved in accordance with existing regulations and policies.

614.2 Policy - When an employee's absence from duty was not approved in advance or on an emergency basis, the employee is considered AWOL. Pay for a period of such absence is forfeited. Flagrant or repeated instances of such absences may be considered the basis for disciplinary action. If the employee satisfactorily accounts for the absence, an appropriate category of approved leave may be substituted for the period of AWOL at the discretion of the leave-approving official.

614.3 Charging Absence Without Leave - Absence without leave is charged for the period of an employee's unauthorized absence during his or her scheduled tour of duty. The minimum charge for AWOL is fifteen minutes and it is charged in multiples of fifteen minutes. An employee who has been AWOL may not be charged with continued AWOL after presenting himself or herself as available for work. The supervisor must allow the employee to return to duty and pay status, but may confer with higher supervisory levels and the Office of Personnel concerning disciplinary action.

615 LEAVE WITHOUT PAY

615.1 Definition - Level without pay (LWOP) is an authorized or approved absence in temporary non-pay status which may be granted by Broadcasting upon an employee's request.

615.2 Policies

a. It is within the general administrative discretion of Broadcasting to grant LWOP to an employee. An employee cannot demand to be placed on LWOP as a matter of right, unless the employee is a disabled veteran or member of a Reserve component or the National Guard and is entitled to LWOP under the circumstances described in Sections 613.1 or 613.2 of this part.

b. LWOP is granted only for specific reasons and for definite periods of time. An employee's request for LWOP should be submitted in advance. LWOP may be initially authorized for up to one year; extensions beyond one year will be scrutinized carefully.

c. Each request for LWOP is examined closely by leave approving officials, managers, and, if appropriate, the Office of Personnel to ensure that the value to the Government or the serious needs of the employee are sufficient to offset the costs and administrative inconveniences to the Government of retention of an employee on LWOP. Among such costs and inconveniences are:

(1) Inability to fill the position (or a like position) on a permanent basis while the employee is on LWOP;

(2) Loss of the employee's services which may handicap the organization;

(3) Obligation to provide the employee employment at the end of the approved LWOP;

(4) Credit to the employee while on LWOP of up to six months each calendar year toward retirement; and

(5) Eligibility of the employee for continued life insurance coverage without cost for up to one year.

d. Extended LWOP (in excess of 30 calendar days) will not be approved unless there is a reasonable expectation that the employee will return at the end of the approved period and the element from which the employee is taking leave supports the request and agrees to make that employee's position or a substantially similar position available for him/her upon return to duty. In addition, it should be evident that at least one of the following benefits would result to an extent which would outweigh the costs and inconveniences of retention of the employee on extended LWOP:

(1) increased job ability;

(2) protection or improvement of the employee's health, or the health of others;

(3) retention of a valuable employee; or

(4) furtherance of a program of interest to the Government, e.g. Peace Corps, VISTA, IPA programs, etc.

e. LWOP is granted whenever possible upon request:

(1) While an employee is awaiting approval of a claim for disability retirement or action by the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs on a claim for disability compensation and does not have sick and/or annual leave to cover the period of absence from duty;

(2) While an employee is receiving compensation from the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs provided that the employee's return to duty is expected;

(3) To avoid a break in the continuity of service of a career-conditional employee who is the dependent of a civilian employee of the Federal Government or a member of the U.S. Armed Forces who is obliged to move outside the commuting area on rotational assignment or upon the transfer of a function or an activity.

615.3 Authority and Procedures to Approve Leave Without Pay

a. For 30 Calendar Days or Less - Consistent with the policies and requirements stated in paragraph 615.2, officers having authority to approve annual or sick leave may approve requests for LWOP for 30 calendar days or less whenever work permits and it is deemed advisable and in the interest of Broadcasting.

(1) A request for not more than 80 hours of leave without pay may be made orally or in writing to the supervisory official who normally approves an employee's leave.

(2) A request for leave without pay of more than 80 hours but not more than 30 calendar days' duration must be submitted on an SF-71, Application for Leave, to the supervisory official who normally approves the employee's leave.

b. For More Than 30 Calendar Days

(1) Consistent with the policies and requirements stated in paragraph 615.2, the Office of Personnel may approve requests for LWOP for more than 30 calendar days and any subsequent extensions, and extensions of LWOP which will result in a total of more than 30 calendar days, for reasons such as the following:

(a) study or training in fields related to Broadcasting activities and interests;

(b) recovery from illness or injury not of a permanent or disqualifying nature when immediate return to duty would endanger the employee's health or the health of others:

(c) when denial of LWOP would result in severe personal hardship for the employee; or

(d) to accompany a Foreign Service spouse on overseas assignment.

(2) Requests must be submitted on a Request for Personnel Action, SF-52, and be accompanied by a statement signed by the head of the element from which the employee is taking LWOP which guarantees that the employee's position or a substantially similar position will be made available to the employee upon return to duty. The supervisor forwards a memorandum with a recommended decision and any appropriate explanations or comments, along with the SF-52 and statement from the element head, through appropriate channels to the Office of Personnel. If approved, the personnel office issues an SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action.

(3) The date of return to duty from any LWOP of more than 30 calendar days is reported by the organizational unit on an SF-52 to , Personnel. The appropriate personnel office issues an SF-50 recording return to duty.

c. Return to Duty From Leave Without Pay - LWOP is a voluntary absence from duty and pay status. An employee in LWOP status for a specific period does not have the right to be returned to duty before the period of LWOP expires. An employee who wishes to return to duty prior to the expiration of approved LWOP should so inform his or her organizational unit and the employee will be returned to duty as soon as administratively practicable. Depending on the time in the personnel office to adjust the employee's service computation date, career conditional probationary period, supervisory or managerial probationary period, and/or the waiting period for the next within-grade increase. The personnel office advises the employee of the effect of LWOP on these items and benefits such as health insurance, retirement, and leave accrual at the time the LWOP is approved.

615.4 Substituting Annual or Sick Leave for Leave Without Pay - Annual or sick leave, as appropriate, in the amount standing to an employee's credit immediately before a period of leave without pay may be substituted retroactively for such leave without pay taken through administrative error or misunderstanding, e.g., a delayed transfer of leave credit from a previous employing agency or the subsequent discovery of an error in an employee's leave record or service computation date.

616 CONCURRENT LEAVE RIGHTS

An employee returning from military service to Federal employment may receive both terminal leave pay from the Armed Forces component and civilian pay for the period covered by terminal leave from the Armed Forces component.

617 SPECIAL AGENCY RULE IN CONNECTION WITH EXTENDED LEAVE

The official responsible for authorizing or approving leave must notify the Office of Security through established channels as soon as it is known that an employee will be absent from duty or will not perform services for Broadcasting over a period of ninety (90) calendar days or more. Such absence includes annual leave, sick leave, military leave, unauthorized absence, leave without pay, or any combination thereof.

Section 620

ANNUAL AND SICK LEAVE (GENERAL)

621 COVERAGE AND EXCLUSIONS

621.1 Applicability - Annual and sick leave regulations, procedures, and policies apply to all employees except those listed in paragraph 621.2 below. Part-time employees are covered by annual and sick leave regulations only if they have a prearranged duty tour that includes work in each administrative workweek of each pay period.

621.2 Exclusions - These regulations do not apply to the following employees:

- a. employees for whom no regular tour of duty is prescribed;
- b. employees serving without compensation;
- c. Presidential appointees whose rates of basic compensation exceed the pay rate provided for GS-18; and
- d. officers required to be appointed by the President who are excluded from coverage pursuant to USC 6301 (2) (xi) by the Office of Personnel Management on the recommendation of the Director.

622.1 Accrued Leave - Leave which is earned during the current leave year.

622.3 Break in Service - An interval of one or more days during which a person is off the rolls of a Federal agency.

622.4 Contagious Disease - Disease determined by health authorities that would jeopardize the health of others in the office because of the employee's exposure to a contagious disease.

622.5 Leave Day - A day on which an employee would otherwise work and receive pay, exclusive of holidays and nonworkdays established by Federal statute, Executive Order or administrative order.

622.6 Leave Year - A period beginning with the first complete pay period in a calendar year and ending with the day before the first day of the first complete pay period in the following calendar year.

622.7 Lumpsum Payment - The amount payable to an employee at the time of separation for annual leave to his or her credit.

622.8 Medical Certificate - A written statement signed by a registered practicing physician or other practitioner certifying to the incapacitation, examination, or treatment, or to the period of disability while the patient was receiving professional treatment.

622.9 Part-time Employee - A person employed to work regularly a prearranged schedule of 16 to 32 hours per week. (See MOA V-A 602.7).

623 ACCRUAL OF LEAVE DURING PAY PERIOD

623.1 Full Pay Period - Except as provided in paragraph 623.2 below, an employee accrues annual and sick leave only during a full pay period of service. A new employee who enters on duty on the first workday of a pay period is deemed to have served from the beginning of a pay period. An employee who separates after being in a pay status at the completion of the last workday of a pay period is deemed to have served through the end of the pay period.

623.2 Fractional Pay Period - An employee whose service is interrupted by a non-leave-earning period (for example, military furlough) earns leave on a pro rata basis for each fractional pay period within the continuity of his or her service.

623.3 Accrual Reduction Because of Non-Pay Absence - Each time a full-time employee's absences without pay total 80 hours during a leave year, his or her credits for annual and sick leave are reduced by the amount of leave he or she would ordinarily earn during a pay period in pay status.

623.4 Leave Accrual of Part-Time Employees - A part-time employee accrues leave on the basis of the number of hours of actual service in each week not in excess of 40. A part-time employee who completes a full biweekly pay period may carry over from one pay period to the next those hours of service in a pay status that do not equal the number necessary for a minimum leave credit of one hour until sufficient service is rendered to total the hourly credit. However, if a part-time employee is converted to full-time employment and has insufficient service credit to earn the minimum of one hour, the fractional hours of service are lost because of the change from part-time to full-time.

624 LEAVE CHARGES

624.1 Leave Days - Annual and sick leave are charged only on leave days as defined in paragraph 622.5 above.

624.2 Minimum Charge - The minimum charge for annual and sick leave is 15 minutes and additional charges are in multiples thereof.

624.3 Duty During Leave Period - When an employee is charged with annual leave for an unauthorized absence or tardiness, Broadcasting may not require him or her to perform work for any part of the period charged to leave.

625 ADVANCES OF ANNUAL AND SICK LEAVE

An employee may not be advanced annual or sick leave if it is known at the time that he or she will not return to duty. The provisions for advances apply only to employees whose continued employment is contemplated when annual leave is advanced or whose employment will continue in the event of recovery when sick leave is advanced.

626 LIQUIDATING ADVANCED LEAVE

626.1 Procedures - It is in the interest of the Government to permit an employee to liquidate advanced sick leave at the earliest opportunity; therefore, it may be liquidated by subsequently earned sick leave or by a charge against annual leave. An employee may, with the consent of Broadcasting arrange to refund in cash, advanced annual or sick leave, if such an arrangement is mutually agreeable and administratively feasible. (Pay rate applicable to refund is the rate that was in effect during the period in which the advanced leave was taken.)

626.2 Failure To Earn Sufficient Leave - If an employee fails to earn sufficient leave during the leave year to liquidate an advance of annual leave due to leave reduction for excess LWOP, the deficit may be carried forward to the next leave year, or the employee may, at his or her option, refund the salary paid. However, if the deficit is caused by an error in advancing too much annual leave or by any other reason, the employee will be required to refund the overpayment resulting from the unliquidated advance or annual leave. (MOA VII-600 contains policies, regulations, and procedures under which Broadcasting or the General Accounting Office may authorize waivers of refunds, including refunds for overpayment for annual leave.)

627 REFUND FOR UNEARNED LEAVE UPON SEPARATION

627.1 When Required - Except as provided in paragraph 627.2 immediately following, when an employee who is indebted for advanced annual or sick leave is separated, Broadcasting will:

- a. Require the employee to refund the amount paid him/her for the period of leave for which he/she is indebted; or

- b. Deduct that amount from any pay due the employee.

627.2 When Not Required - Refund is not required when an employee:

- a. enters active military service with a right of restoration;
- b. retires for disability;
- c. resigns, voluntarily retires, or is separated because of disability which prevents the employee from returning to duty or continuing in the service, and which is the basis of the separation as determined by Broadcasting on medical evidence acceptable to it; or
- d. dies.

The Director of Personnel, has the authority to waive refund for unearned leave under the provisions of this section.

628 DISPOSITION OF ANNUAL AND SICK LEAVE BALANCES UPON SEPARATION OR APPOINTMENT TO POSITION EXCLUDED FROM LEAVE BENEFITS

628.1 Annual Leave

a. Lump Sum Payments

(1) An employee who leaves the Federal service, whose employment status is changed from one in which he/she earns annual leave to a less than full-time basis with no prearranged duty tour, or who transfers to a position not under a leave system to which annual leave may be transferred is entitled to a lump sum payment for unused annual leave. In addition, an employee who is entering active duty in the armed forces may elect to receive a lump sum payment for unused annual leave, or may elect to have the leave remain in his/her credit for use upon restoration or reemployment following completion of service in the armed forces. See MOA VII 650 for computation of the lump sum payment and deductions.

(2) The beneficiary of an employee who dies in service is entitled to a lump sum payment for the employee's unused annual leave. The normal order of precedence used to determine the beneficiary is shown on the reverse of the duplicate copy of Standard Form 1152, Designation of Beneficiary for Unpaid Compensation of Deceased Federal Employee. An employee who wishes to name as a beneficiary someone who is not on the listing of SF-1152, or who wishes to vary that order may submit a completed SF-1152, to his/her personnel office.

b. Transferring Leave - An employee who transfers to a position in another Federal agency or in the District of Columbia government may obtain information from the other agency as to whether all, some, or none of his/her leave can be transferred.

628.2 Sick Leave

a. An employee separating from the Federal service does not receive a lump sum payment for unused sick leave.

b. The sick leave of an employee who separates from the Federal service, other than by retirement on an immediate annuity, is recredited to his or her account when the employee returns to a Federal government position under the leave system if there is no break in his or her Federal government service in excess of three years. (See 5 CFR 630.502 regarding an employee who separates from the Federal Government to accompany a civilian or uniformed sponsor to an overseas assignment.)

An employee eligible to retire under the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) or Foreign Service Retirement System (FSRS) receives credit for unused sick leave in the retirement benefit. A transfer eligible employee who transfers from CSRS to the Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS) or from FSRS to the Foreign Service Pension System (FSPS), as appropriate receives credit for the lesser amount of accumulated sick leave at date of transfer or the date of retirement. The sick leave will be computed into the annuity using CSRS/FSRS computation rules. All others eligible to retire under FERS or FSPS do not receive any credit for unused sick leave.

629 TERMINAL ANNUAL LEAVE

629.1 Policy - Title 5, USC, 5551(a) provides that an employee who leaves Federal Employment is entitled to be paid a lump sum for all accrued and accumulated annual leave. The Comptroller General has interpreted this provision to prohibit "terminal leave" which would result in greater expense to the U.S. Government. Accordingly, supervisors may not grant extended periods of annual leave (a week or more) in these circumstances. A separation becomes known when an employee has given official notice, either orally or in writing, that he or she will be separating on a particular date.

These restrictions are not intended to prohibit a supervisor from approving a day or two of annual leave to conduct personal business after notification of intent to separate. Office of Personnel approval is required for annual leave of one week or more once a separation date has been established.

Section 630

ANNUAL LEAVE

631 EARNING RATES

631.1 Basis - Annual leave earning rates are based on the total amount of an employee's civilian service for the Federal government and active military service, except that service of retired members of the uniformed services is creditable only for periods that entitle the employee to veteran's preference unless:

a. the retired member was employed in a civilian position on November 30, 1964, and continues to be employed as a civilian without a break in service for more than thirty days; or,

b. retirement from the uniformed service was based on disability:

(1) resulting from injury or disease received in line of duty as a direct result of armed conflict or,

(2) caused by an instrumentality of war and incurred in the line of duty during a period of war.

631.2 "Uniformed Services" as used in paragraph 631.1 immediately above means Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, Public Health Service, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (formerly the Environmental Science Services Administration, Coast & Geodetic Survey). Service that entitles an employee to veteran's preferences means service during wartime or during a campaign or expedition for which a campaign badge (service medal) has been awarded.

631.3 Crediting Civilian Service

a. In general, service that is creditable, or potentially creditable under the Civil Service Retirement System is credited in determining the annual earning rate.

b. Periods of leave without pay (LWOP) or other non-pay status which exceed 6 months in any calendar year are not creditable except for LWOP granted: (1) for military service; (2) during a period when the employee is receiving Employee Compensation benefits for work-connected injury or illness; or (3) under special arrangements covering employment by labor organizations, state or local governments, educational institutions, or public international organizations.

631.4 Full-Time Employees earn annual leave by pay periods and part-time employees earn annual leave on the basis of hours of service as follows:

a. Full-Time Employees

	Earned Each Pay Period (Hours)	Earned Annually (Hours) (Days)
Less than three years service	4	104 13

More than three years, but less than 15 years' service

6 and 4 additional for last pay period of calendar year

Fifteen or more years' service

208 26

b. Part-Time Employees

Hours Earned

Less than three years

One hour for each 20
hours in pay status

More than three years but less than 15 years' service

One hour for each 13
hours in pay status

Fifteen or more years' service

One hour for each 10
hours in pay status

631.5 Responsibility of the Office of Personnel - Personnel is responsible for determining the amount of an employee's service that is creditable for leave earning purposes. The amount of each employee's creditable service is indicated by the Service Computation Date shown on each SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action. Any questions concerning the accuracy of a Service Computation Date should be referred promptly to Personnel to avoid possible loss of leave.

632 MAXIMUM ACCUMULATIONS OF ANNUAL LEAVE

Annual leave not used by an employee during the year in which earned accumulates for use in succeeding years. However, no more than 30 days (240 hours) of accumulated annual leave may be carried over from one leave year to the next with three exceptions.

632.1 Foreign Service Employees - The maximum annual leave carryover for most American Foreign Service personnel serving abroad is 45 days (360 hours). A detailed explanation of the rules on this subject is published in 3 FAM 430.

1632.2 Senior Executive Service - For the period under an appointment to the Senior Executive Service an employee is not subject to limitations on accumulation of annual leave. No more than 720 hours of accumulated annual leave may be carried over from one leave year to the next unless the employee was in the SES from the establishment of the SES and has a personal leave ceiling.

633 LEAVE EARNING ENTITLEMENT

Employees who are appointed to positions for 90 days or more are entitled to earn annual leave upon completion of the first biweekly pay period. If an appointment is for less than 90 days, the employee is not entitled to annual leave until after he or she is employed for a continuous period of 90 days under successive appointments without a break in service. A break in service is one workday or more when the employee is not on the payroll.

634 GRANTING ANNUAL LEAVE

634.1 Policy

a. The purpose of annual leave is to provide every employee with a reasonable amount of time for rest, recreation, travel, meeting emergencies, and the conduct of personal affairs. Accordingly, appropriate action should be taken by supervisory officials to assure that each employee is permitted to take annual leave for these purposes, consistent with the work requirements of the office involved.

b. The approval of vacation periods should reflect the employee's personal preferences, consistent with the work requirements of the unit and the interests of other employees. The vacation schedule for each employee should include a continuous period of sufficient duration to permit adequate rest and relaxation. If the employee has sufficient leave to his or her credit, a period of two consecutive weeks is suggested as a minimum vacation period.

c. There is no official observance of religious holidays except those which may also be Federal legal holidays. When conditions of work permit, approval will be granted for absence from work for those employees who desire to spend certain holy holidays in religious devotion. Such absences may be charged to annual leave, compensatory time, or leave without pay if the employee has no annual leave. With supervisory approval, the employee may elect to work compensatory overtime in order to take time off without charge to leave when personal religious beliefs require the employee to abstain from work. (See MOA V-A 604.)

d. Officials administratively responsible for approving leave may not make their approval of annual leave - requested in advance or on an emergency basis - conditional upon the employee's submitting evidence to substantiate the reason given for requesting leave nor may they direct that such approved annual leave be charged to absence without leave if the employee does not submit such evidence. Under no circumstances may approved annual leave be changed to absence without leave. However, if the supervisor so advises the employee, he/she may defer the decision on a request for emergency annual leave in order to investigate the circumstances surrounding the request.

e. In order to obtain approval of leave, whether in advance or on an emergency basis, an employee must request leave from the appropriate official, usually his or her supervisor or an official designated to approve leave in the absence of the supervisor. If an employee requests leave on an emergency basis, the employee will make a reasonable effort to notify the supervisor as early as possible on the first day of the absence. An absence from duty which is not covered by approved leave or excused absence, or for which leave has been canceled may be recorded as absence without leave.

634.2 Procedures

a. First level supervisors, second level supervisors and higher officials have the authority to grant accrued annual leave upon request by the employee, consistent with office needs and the policies stated in paragraph 634.1a above. The employee's request may be made and approved orally. Written applications for leave (SF-71) are used when required by instructions in MOA VII-500.

b. An employee who is appointed to a position for 90 days or more may be granted advance annual leave, but cannot be advanced more leave than he or she will earn during the remainder of the leave year. An employee whose appointment will expire before the end of the leave year may not be granted more leave than he or she will earn before the expiration of his or her appointment.

c. SF-71, Application for Leave, shall be used to obtain and record approval of an advance of annual leave. (See MOA VII-500 for procedural instructions.)

635 RESTORATION OF ANNUAL LEAVE

635.1 Authority - P.L. 93-181 (5 U.S.C. 6304(d)) and Comptroller General decision #B-201093 of July 15, 1981, authorize the restoration of annual leave by the Office Director:

- a. Because of the exigencies of public business;
- b. Because of sickness;
- c. To correct an administrative error; or
- d. Because of jury duty.

635.2 Procedures

a. In order to receive restoration of annual leave because of the exigencies of the employee's position or because of sickness of the employee, or absence for jury duty, the following conditions must be met:

(1) The leave must have been scheduled and approved in advance in writing by the approving official before the beginning of the third biweekly pay period preceding the end of the leave year. The approving official is the officer in charge who has general responsibility for administration of leave regulations as they pertain to employees under that officer's jurisdiction.

(2) The supervisor or approving official must have canceled the leave in writing because of a specific and defined operational demand of such importance, magnitude, or significance that the employee cannot be excused from duty to take leave. The approving official must determine that a period of absence due to sickness or jury duty occurred at such time late in the leave year or was of such duration that scheduled annual leave could not be rescheduled for use before the end of the year to avoid forfeiture. The inclusive dates of the sickness or jury duty should be included in the request for restoration.

(3) The supervisor must have documented efforts to reschedule the annual leave before the end of the leave year or show that the leave could not be rescheduled. Failure by the approving official to properly schedule or reschedule requested leave constitutes administrative error (CG B-188284 3/7/78).

(4) A copy of the Earnings and Leave Statement received in the new calendar year, showing the actual number of forfeited hours of annual leave, must be submitted with a request for restoration of leave.

b. For employees requesting restoration of leave forfeited because of administrative error, the employee should submit a request in writing, through the Administrative Officer, stating the reasons for the request and requesting an audit of leave records.

c. Documentation required above should be forwarded to the Office of Personnel no later than 90 days after the end of the leave year.

d. The Director of Personnel will approve or disapprove restoration requests.

e. The employee will be advised in writing of the approval or disapproval of restoration of forfeited leave. Restored leave must be used within two calendar years from the date of restoration; or two years from the end of the leave year in which the exigency ended or the employee returned to work after leave because of sickness. If the restored leave has not been used at the end of two years, it will again be forfeited with no possibility of restoration. For regulations regarding restored leave for an extended exigency (i.e., lasting more than 3 years), see 5 CFR 630.309.

f. There is no legal authority to restore annual leave which is forfeited because additional holidays are declared by Executive Order (e.g., the day before or after Christmas).

g. Restored annual leave which is unused and still available will be included in the final lump sum payment if the employee separates or retires.

SICK LEAVE

641 EARNING SICK LEAVE

641.1 Full-Time Employees earn four hours of sick leave for each full pay period of service.

641.2 Part-Time Employees earn one hour of sick leave for each 20 hours of service in a pay status (not to exceed four hours of sick leave for 80 hours of duty in any pay period).

Sick leave not used by an employee during the year in which it is earned accumulates and is available for use in succeeding years, with no limit on the amount of accumulation.

642 RELATED MATERIAL - The use of sick leave during periods of incapacitation due to injury on the job or employment related disease is discussed in V-A 505.

643 GRANTING SICK LEAVE

643.1 Policy

General - Employees may use accrued sick leave for the reasons stated in paragraph 643.2. It is the responsibility of individual employees to exercise good faith in the use of sick leave. Broadcasting will investigate suspected abuse of sick leave and take warranted disciplinary action, which may include removal.

Sick Leave and Outside Employment - An employee who is unable to work because of illness or injury is generally too ill or too injured to work elsewhere. There are, however, rare instances, generally involving extended periods of illness or confinement, when there is acceptable justification for outside employment by an employee while on sick leave, e.g., -- an employee confined at home because of pregnancy or recuperation from illness or injury who engages in telephone solicitation work, or, -- an employee whose disability retirement has been approved and who is engaged in a vocational retraining program that includes on-the-job experience for which compensation is received. In any case, an employee who engages in outside employment or self-employment for remuneration on a day for which sick leave has been requested or approved must notify his or her supervisor. If the supervisor has any question about the propriety of the justification, he or she should consult with the Office of Personnel.

643.2 Purpose - First level supervisors, second level supervisors, and higher officials have the authority to grant accrued sick leave to employees in their respective offices for the following reasons so long as the employee follows proper procedures for requesting leave and provides documentation acceptable to the approving official:

- a. Employee's incapacitation because of illness, injury or pregnancy and confinement;
- b. For emergency medical, dental, or optical examinations or treatment.
- c. When a member of employee's immediate family is afflicted with a contagious disease and requires the employee's care and attention; or
- d. Because of exposure to a contagious disease, the employee's presence at his or her place of duty would jeopardize the health of others.

FAMILY AND MEDICAL LEAVE ACT

5 CFR 6381/6387 - Entitles a full-time or part-time permanent federal employee up to 12 weeks of UNPAID leave, during any 12-month period, for specific family and medical reasons, if the employee has worked for the federal government for twelve months. Twelve months of employment with the federal government need not have been with the same agency. Temporary and intermittent employees fall under Title I of the Act and should contact their appropriate Personnel Management Specialist for more information.

1. An employee may invoke entitlement to the FMLA for the following purposes and may (but not must) use leave as noted instead of leave without pay.

To care for the employee's child (within 12 months) after birth. Annual leave may be used. Sick leave may not be used to care for a well baby.

For absences from work relating to placement of a child with an employee for adoption or foster care. Sick and/or annual leave may be used for adoption. Annual leave may be used for foster care.

To care for the employee's spouse, son or daughter, or parent, who has a serious health condition. Forty to 104 hours of sick leave (depending on the employee's leave balance) under the Family Friendly Act , or annual leave, may be used. Leave transfer may be requested after other leave entitlements have been exhausted.

For a serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform his/her job. Sick and/or annual leave may be used. Leave transfer may be requested if annual and sick leave have been exhausted.

There is no requirement that accrued sick and annual leave must be exhausted before invoking the FMLA and requesting leave without pay. Limited amounts of sick leave may be advanced for appropriate purposes. Restrictions on the use of sick leave are unchanged by the FMLA. An employee may choose to substitute sick leave for leave without pay in those situations (as noted above) where its use would otherwise be permitted by law or regulation. Compensatory time off or credit hours may not be used once the employee has invoked the FMLA.

The entitlement to 12 weeks of unpaid leave under the FMLA may be used in combination with any other entitlement available to the employee. For example, a new mother may invoke the entitlement to 12 weeks of unpaid leave to care for her newborn after using accrued sick leave to recuperate from the birth of the child.

Under some circumstances, employees may take leave intermittently, i.e., taking leave in blocks of time or by reducing a normal weekly or daily work schedule.

2. At the end of the absence:

The employee will be returned to his/her original position or an equivalent position with equivalent pay, benefit, and other employment terms. The absence cannot result in the loss of any benefit that accrued prior to the start of the FMLA leave.

3. Employee Responsibilities:

An employee seeking to use FMLA is required to invoke his or her entitlement by providing a 30-day advance notice to the appropriate supervisor when the need is foreseeable and such notice practicable, or as soon as the need is known.

The entitlement to be absent under the FMLA cannot be invoked retroactively.

An employee must provide supporting documentation to the supervisor in a timely manner from an appropriate health care provider if invoking the FMLA for caring for a family member with a serious health condition or if the employee has a serious health condition. Documentation must also be provided from appropriate local or state agencies for adoption or foster care.

4. Contact:

A Personnel Management Specialist is available to answer employee questions.

Requests for sick leave for non-emergency medical, dental, or optical examination or treatment should be submitted to the appropriate supervisor in advance.

See MOA V-A 691.6c for rules on absences for medical examinations in connection with military service.

643.3 Procedures

a. Application for sick leave

(1) The employee's own certification (preferably on an SF-71, Application for Leave) as to reasons for absence on sick leave is normally acceptable for absences of three workdays or less. Supervisors may, however, with the concurrence of the Office of Personnel, require submission of a medical certificate for such absences if there is reason to believe that the employee is improperly using sick leave.

(2) For periods of sick leave in excess of three workdays, supervisors may require employees to submit an SF-71 Application for Leave. Supervisors also may require that the application be supported by a medical certificate. When required, medical certification must be filed no later than 15 days after return to duty, except when, for reasons acceptable to the Office of Personnel the employee is unable to obtain such a certificate.

(3) When an employee is absent for any of the reasons cited in paragraph 643.2, without prior approval for sick leave, he or she must request approval from his or her supervisor as early as possible on the first day of the absence.

(4) Each supervisor is responsible for exercising reasonable care to prevent abuse of sick leave. In cases where there appears reason to suspect improper use of sick leave, the supervisor may require the employee to prepare and submit as part of his or her application for sick leave, regardless of the number of days or hours of absence involved, a written statement specifying the nature of the indisposition or incapacity causing the absence for which the sick leave is requested. The submission of a note from a physician or practitioner, particularly if only a generalized statement that the employee has been under his or her care, does not automatically entitle the employee to receive sick leave or excuse the supervisor from his or her responsibility. If the supervisor believes further inquiry is necessary, he or she should make such a recommendation through established channels to the Office of Personnel. The Office of Personnel may request that the employee provide additional medical documentation for evaluation by a physician designated by the Office of Personnel. If the employee's request is not sustained by such competent medical advice, the request for sick leave may be disapproved. If the request for sick leave is disapproved, the employee may request that the absence be charged to annual leave. If the circumstances indicate flagrant effort to obtain sick leave improperly or if previous warnings have been ignored, the supervisor may refuse to approve the absence as annual leave and may, after consultation with the Office of Personnel record the absence as "absence without leave." The supervisor may also recommend disciplinary action in accordance with the provisions of the applicable negotiated agreement where appropriate and the administrative disciplinary action procedures of MOA V-A 560.

(5) Sick leave during a period of annual leave should be supported by a medical certificate attached to an SF-71 and must not be for less than one day.

b. Advance of Sick Leave - Approval of requests for advance of sick leave is within the administrative discretion of Broadcasting. The Office of Personnel may approve an advance to an employee of up to 30 days of sick leave, subject to the following conditions:

- (1) The employee's absence results from a serious disability or illness;
- (2) The employee is serving an appointment without time limit or, if one a time-limited appointment, sufficient sick leave can be earned before the expiration of the appointment to liquidate the indebtedness;
- (3) It is expected that the employee will return to duty after the period of sick leave is completed;
- (4) The employee understands that the total advance will be charged to sick leave subsequently earned; and
- (5) The employee's request is accompanied by a medical certificate substantiating the need for the sick leave and by a memorandum from the employee's supervisor recommending the advance.

655 Absence for Paternity Reasons

Section 650

ABSENCE FOR MATERNITY REASONS

651 DEFINITION - Absence for maternity reasons is a period of approved absence for reasons related to pregnancy and confinement. It is chargeable to sick leave or any combination of sick leave, annual leave, and leave without pay. There is no specific type of leave labeled by statute as "maternity leave."

652.1 Employee - The employee should report pregnancy as soon as it is an established fact in order that necessary action, if any, may be taken to safeguard employee's health or improve working conditions, and in order that any necessary staffing adjustments may be planned to compensate for employee's absence. The employee is required to furnish a medical certificate to supervisor if the use of sick leave is contemplated, and to consult with supervisor as to employee's physical ability to perform the job without hazard to employee's health.

652.2 Broadcasting - When an employee reports the pregnancy, the supervisor, dependent upon the judgment of the employee's physician, makes reasonable efforts to reduce or eliminate hazards created by the employee's duties or surroundings. If it is determined by the employee's physician that the duties of the employee require activity or exposure that may be injurious to employee's health, Broadcasting makes a reasonable effort to detail or temporarily reassign employee to other available work for which qualified.

653 PERIOD OF LEAVE

653.1 Length of Absence - The length of absence is to be determined by the employee, physician, and supervisor. If the employee and Broadcasting cannot agree upon a date for the period of leave to begin, and Broadcasting establishes a particular date, Broadcasting must document the reasons for establishing its preferred date. The burden of reasonableness in this regard rests with Broadcasting.

Employees serving under temporary (limited to 1 year or less) appointments may not be granted leave which would extend beyond the expiration date of the appointment.

653.2 Sick Leave - Accumulated sick leave should be used to cover the time required for physical examinations and to cover the period of incapacitation supported by medical certification.

653.3 Annual Leave and Leave Without Pay - Any absence not medically certified as due to incapacitation for the performance of duty, whether it occurs before or after delivery, will be charged to annual leave, if available, or to leave without pay, e.g., if an employee desires a period of adjustment or needs time to make arrangements for the care of the child such leave requirements may be taken care of by the use of available annual leave or leave without pay.

653.4 Advance Leave - Requests for advance leave will be subject to the same regulations governing the granting and use of advance leave generally (see MOA V-A 625, 634.2, and 643.3b).

654 CONTINUED EMPLOYMENT

654.1 Employees Planning To Return to Duty - An employee is entitled to continued employment in original position or a position of like seniority, status, and pay if employee wishes to return to work following delivery and confinement, unless termination is otherwise required by expiration of appointment, by reduction in force, for cause, or for similar reasons unrelated to the maternity absence.

654.2 Employees Not Planning To Return to Duty - An employee not planning to return to work at the end of employee's period of incapacitation should submit resignation at the expiration of the period of incapacitation or employee may be separated at such earlier date as may be required for other reasons, e.g., expiration of appointment or reduction in force, for cause, or for similar reasons unrelated to the maternity absence.

655 ABSENCE FOR PATERNITY REASONS

A male employee may request only annual leave or leave without pay for purposes of assisting or caring for any minor children or the mother of the newborn child while mother is incapacitated for maternity reasons.

Approval of leave for these reasons will be consistent with the policy for granting leave in similar situations. See MOA V-A 630 and 615 on requesting and granting annual leave and leave without pay.

MILITARY LEAVE

662 Eligibility and Accrual Rates

662.1 Eligibility

662.2 Accrual Rate for Full-time Employees

662.3 Accrual Rate for Part-time Employees

662.4 Accrual Rate for Members of the District of Columbia National Guard

662.5 Temporary and Intermittent Employees

663 Absences in Excess of Allowable Days

664 Application for Military Leave

665 Compensation During Period of Military Leave

666 Mandatory Use of Military Leave

Section 660

MILITARY LEAVE

661 POLICY - In accordance with the policy of the Federal government to encourage employees to become members of reserve organizations, it is Broadcasting's policy to grant military leave to employees who are members of reserve organizations for training duty and to members of the District of Columbia National Guard who are ordered to report for parades or encampments.

662.1 Eligibility - Each employee whose appointment is not limited to one year or less and who is a member of the Army National Guard of the U.S., the Army Reserve, the Naval Reserve, the marine Corps Reserve, the Air National Guard of the U.S., the Air Force Reserve, is entitled to leave without loss of pay, time or efficiency rating for active duty or engaging in field or coast defense training under sections 502 through 505 of title 32 of the U.S. Code (5 U.S.C. 6323).

662.2 Accrual Rate for Full-time Employees - Full-time employees accrue military leave at the rate of 15 calendar days per fiscal year and, to the extent that it is not used in a fiscal year, accumulates for use in the succeeding fiscal year until it totals 15 days at the beginning of a fiscal year. In other words, military leave of absence with pay is limited to 15 calendar days plus any prior military leave accrued in the preceding fiscal year, up to a maximum of 30 calendar days in one fiscal year, regardless of the number of training periods in the fiscal year

662.3 Accrual Rate for Part-time Employees - In the case of part-time career employees (16-32 hour tour per week), the rate at which military leave accrues is a percentage of the rate in 662.2 above which is determined by dividing 40 into the number of hours in the regularly scheduled workweek of the employee during the fiscal year.

662.4 Accrual Rate for Members of the District of Columbia National Guard - Members of the District of Columbia National Guard are eligible for unlimited military leave for the purpose of parade or encampment under the provisions of Title 39 of the District of Columbia Code.

662.5 Temporary and Intermittent Employees - Employees with temporary appointments of less than one year, with temporary appointments not to exceed one year, or with intermittent work schedules are not entitled to military leave.

663 ABSENCES IN EXCESS OF ALLOWABLE DAYS

- a. Absence which is not chargeable to military leave may be charged to annual leave. Therefore, employee members of the reserve components identified under paragraph 662.1 above who are called for a period of training or for a period of active duty beyond the allowable period chargeable to military leave may use annual leave and may receive compensation concurrently with pay and allowances for training or active duty beyond such period, or may elect to take leave without pay.
- b. Employee members of the reserve components identified under paragraph 662.1 above who are called to duty by the Federal government, the government of a State or the District of Columbia government to aid in law enforcement during Civil disorders or natural disaster emergencies, are entitled to military leave for up to 22 workdays in a calendar year.

664 APPLICATION FOR MILITARY LEAVE - An Application for military leave is submitted in advance to the official having authority to approve leave for the employee, and must be supported by the original orders (or certified copy) which require the employee to report for training, duty, parade, or encampment. The official administratively responsible for approving leave for an employee is authorized to approve applications for military leave. MOA VII-500 provides instructions for reporting military leave.

665 COMPENSATION DURING PERIOD OF MILITARY LEAVE

- a. An eligible employee is entitled to his or her regular pay, without charge to annual or sick leave, and can also keep any military pay that he or she receives during a period of military leave authorized under paragraph 662.1 above.
- b. An eligible employee is entitled without charge to annual or sick leave, to his or her regular pay, minus the amount of his or her military pay, during a period of military leave authorized under paragraphs 662.4 or 663b above. MOA VII-680 contains procedures established to implement this requirement.

666 MANDATORY USE OF MILITARY LEAVE - The Comptroller General has ruled that an employee eligible for military leave benefits may not elect to use annual leave in lieu of military leave. An employee may use annual leave only if the period of absence exceeds the period for which he or she is eligible for military leave benefits.

COURT LEAVE

671 Definition

671.1 Judicial Proceeding

671.2 Summons

671.3 Official Duty

672 Eligibility

673 Policy Regarding Jury Duty

674 Duration of Court Leave

675 Application for Court Leave

676 Mandatory Use of Court Leave

677 Compensation for Jury or Witness Service

Section 670

COURT LEAVE

671 DEFINITION - Court leave is the authorized absence of an employee without charge to annual leave or loss of pay, to appear in a judicial proceeding:

- a. When summoned as a witness on behalf of a State or local government, the Federal government, or the government of the District of Columbia;

- b. When assigned by his or her agency to testify in an official or unofficial capacity in behalf of the Federal government or the government of the District of Columbia;
- c. When testifying in his or her official capacity or producing official records, whether on behalf of the Federal government, the District of Columbia government, a State or local government, or a private party;
- d. When appearing as a witness in a non-official capacity on behalf of a private party in connection with any judicial proceeding to which the United States, District of Columbia or a State or local government is a party;
- e. To serve as a juror; or
- f. To appear in a court for the purpose of qualifying for jury service, regardless of whether the employee is selected for such service.

671.1 Judicial Proceeding - The term "judicial proceeding" contemplates any action, suit, or other proceeding of a judicial nature (including any condemnation, preliminary, informational, or other such proceeding), but does not include an administrative proceeding. Insofar as court leave for witness service is concerned, all stages (preliminary hearing, inquest, trial or deposition taking) of the proceeding are covered, including hearings and conferences before committing court, magistrate, or commission, grand jury proceedings, coroners' inquests, and hearings and conferences conducted by a prosecuting attorney for the purpose of determining whether an information or charge should be made in a particular case.

671.2 Summons - An employee is entitled to court leave for witness service only if he or she is "summoned" by the court or authority responsible for the conduct of the proceeding; he or she is not entitled to leave if he or she volunteers.

A "Subpoena," however, is not necessarily required; what is intended is that the summons be an official request, invitation, or call, evidenced by an official writing. Also, court leave for witness service (as distinguished from official duty while testifying in official capacity or producing official records) is not available when the service is strictly on behalf of a private party; it must be on behalf of a government.

671.3 Official duty is defined as the time required of employees who are summoned, or assigned by their agencies, to (a) testify (whether in an official or non-official capacity) or produce official records on behalf of the United States Government or that of the district of Columbia, or (b) testify in an official capacity or produce official records on behalf of a State or local government, or a private party.

672 ELIGIBILITY - Court leave may be granted to full-time employees or to part-time employees with prearranged work schedule, but not to intermittent (WAE) employees. An employee on a time-limited temporary appointment may not be granted court leave beyond the expiration date of the appointment.

673 POLICY REGARDING JURY DUTY - Jury duty is a civic responsibility for those citizens qualified to serve. Consequently, requests to excuse employees from jury duty, or to postpone jury duty, will be made only when the public interest would be better served by an employee's staying on the job, i.e., where the services of the employee are absolutely necessary to meet important work deadlines. In such instances, the head of the Office may send to the Office of Personnel a memorandum stating the reasons that justify a request to excuse an employee from jury duty or to postpone the employee's jury service. If the Director, Office of Personnel concurs in the request, he or she will sign an appropriate letter for the employee to present to the court.

674 DURATION OF COURT LEAVE

- a. During the entire period that an employee is under proper summons from a State or Federal court, he or she is under the jurisdiction and control of the court, and will be granted court leave for all workdays until discharged by the court, except as qualified below.
- b. An employee summoned for jury duty for an extended period of time and excused or discharged by the court for a definite or indefinite period in excess of one day, cannot be granted court leave for such excused days. Therefore, he or she must either return to duty or be charged annual leave for such days. Also, in those cases where time and travel permit and where no hardship results, an employee who is excused from jury duty for one day or even a substantial portion of a day is expected time or be charged annual leave.

675 APPLICATION FOR COURT LEAVE

Before court leave may be granted, the employee must submit a true copy of the official summons for jury or witness service to his or her supervisor or other official having authority to approve leave for the employee prior to the beginning of such service; and must also, after jury duty or witness service has been performed, submit a statement from the court of the days of duty or service. The official administratively responsible for approving leave for an employee is authorized to approve court leave. MOA VII-500 provides instructions for reporting court leave.

676 MANDATORY USE OF COURT LEAVE - The Comptroller General has ruled that an employee eligible for court leave may not elect to use annual leave in lieu of court leave.

677 COMPENSATION FOR JURY OR WITNESS SERVICE

- a. An employee on court leave serving as a juror or witness in a Federal court or in a court of the District of Columbia will not receive jury or witness fees.
- b. An employee on court leave serving as a juror or witness in State or local court must remit to Broadcasting, jury or witness fees, exclusive of reimbursement by the court for expenses. MOA VII-680 contains instructions on remitting jury or witness fees.

681 FULL-TIME OR PART-TIME EMPLOYEES - A full time employee or a part-time employee with a prearranged duty tour may be granted not to exceed three workdays of absence without loss of pay or charge to annual leave to make arrangements for or to attend the funeral or memorial service of an immediate relative who died as the result of a wound, disease, or injury incurred while serving as a member of the armed forces in a combat zone. The three days need not be consecutive, but if not, the employee must furnish his or her supervisor satisfactory reasons justifying a grant of funeral leave for non-consecutive days (5 U.S.C. 6326).

682 VETERANS - An employee who is a veteran of any war, campaign or expedition for which a campaign badge has been authorized, or a member of an honor or ceremonial group or organization of such veterans, may be excused from duty without loss of pay or deduction from annual leave for such time as may be necessary, but not in excess of four hours in any one day, to enable him or her to participate as an active pallbearer or as a member of a rifle team or guard of honor in funeral ceremonies for members of the Armed Forces of the United States whose remains are returned from abroad for final interment in the United States (5 U.S.C. 6321) .

Section 690

ABSENCE NOT CHARGED TO LEAVE

691 EXCUSED ABSENCES

An excused absence (often called administrative leave) is an absence from duty administratively authorized without loss of pay or charge to leave. Broadcasting may authorize excused absence when permitted by law, executive order, regulation, or for work-related, civil, or other reasons determined to be in the interest of good administration. An excused absence must be approved by the supervisor who should assure that the absence is for an appropriate purpose and period of time, and is consistent with the work requirements of the office.

Supervisors should consult with the Office of Personnel, for guidance on excused absences for purposes other than those discussed in this section.

691.1 Unavoidable Absence or Tardiness Not in Excess of One Hour - Unavoidable or necessary absence from duty or tardiness not in excess of one hour may be excused by the supervisor for adequate reasons. (This provision relates only to an absence "not in excess of one hour," and not to a fractional hour's absence when the total absence exceeds one hour.) If this privilege is abused, or if the reasons for absence or tardiness are not adequate, the absence may be charged against annual leave or recorded as Absence Without Leave (AWOL).

691.2 Personnel Matters

a. Consultation with Personnel Officers - Leave is not charged for absence from official duty for a reasonable period of time for the purpose of consulting with the Office of Personnel.

b. Civil Service and Foreign Service Examinations - Leave is not charged for absence from official duty for the purpose of taking Civil Service or Foreign Service examinations, if one or more of the following conditions exists:

(1) Broadcasting has requested the examination of the employee in connection with a proposed personnel action;

(2) The examination may lead to career status for the employee, either in his or her present position or in a position to which reassignment is contemplated; or

(3) The employee's supervisor determines that the employee's participation in the examination would be in the interest of Broadcasting.

c. Labor Organization Activities - Rules and procedures governing excused absence of labor organization officers, stewards, and representatives are published in the written agreement between Broadcasting and the labor organization.

d. Physical Examinations - Absence from duty for the purpose of undergoing a physical examination at Broadcasting's request is not charged to leave.

e. Grievances, Adverse Actions, and Appeals - Based on the particular facts in each situation, the Office of Personnel may grant an employee official time without charge to leave, to participate in formal grievance proceedings, prepare and present a reply to a proposed adverse action, or to participate in a formal appeal from a disciplinary action.

691.3 Injury or Illness in Line of Duty

a. Examination or Treatment - An employee injured in performance of duty is not charged leave when absent for examination or outpatient treatment by a physician or facility officially authorized to handle cases of employees injured in the performance of duty. This provision does not apply, however, to additional absence on account of the injury where treatment is not involved. (See MOA V-A 505 for procedures when an employee sustains a work related injury or illness.)

b. Rest, Recuperation or Treatment in Health Units - Leave is not charged for time spent in health units for rest, recuperation, or treatment if such cumulative time does not exceed one hour in a workday. Such time in excess of one hour in a workday will be charged to sick or annual leave.

691.4 Time Zone Dislocation - An employee who is granted a time zone dislocation adjustment period upon arrival at a temporary or permanent duty station is not charged leave for any portion of the adjustment period that falls during his or her normal duty hours. (See MOA IV 630 & 6 FAM 100.)

691.5 Conferences, Meetings, and Conventions - The head of a Office, or Service may authorize an employee in his or her organizational element to attend a meeting of a technical, professional, or scientific organization during working hours without charge to leave, if in the opinion of the Director, Office, or Service head such attendance would be beneficial to Broadcasting. Attendance at meetings of this kind by an employee solely for his or her own benefit or personal advancement, or with negligible benefit to the Broadcasting, must be charged to leave.

691.6 Civil Activities

a. Voting and Registering - Insofar as practicable, without interfering seriously with operations, employees who desire to vote or register in any election or in referendums or on a civil matter in their communities may be excused for a reasonable time for that purpose, subject to the following conditions:

(1) As a general rule, where the polls are not open at least three hours either before or after an employee's regular hours of work, he or she may be granted an amount of excused absence which will permit him or her to report for work three hours after the polls open or leave work three hours before the polls close, whichever requires the lesser amount of time off.

(2) Under exceptional circumstances where the general rule does not permit sufficient time, an employee may be excused for such additional time as may be needed to enable him or her to vote, depending upon the particular circumstances in his or her individual case, but not to exceed a full workday.

(3) If an employee's voting place is beyond normal commuting distance and vote by absentee ballot is not permitted, the employee may be granted sufficient time off in order to be able to make the trip to the voting place to cast his or her ballot. Where more than one day is required to make the trip to the voting place, supervisors should observe a liberal policy in granting the necessary leave for this purpose. Time off in excess of one workday must be charged to annual leave, or to leave without pay if the employee has no available annual leave.

(4) For employees who vote in jurisdictions that require registration in person, time off to register may be granted on substantially the same basis as for voting, except that no such time may be granted if registration can be accomplished on a non-workday and the place of registration is within reasonable one-day round-trip travel distance of the employee's residence.

b. Participation in Civil Defense Activities

(1) Full-time employees selected for assignments in State or local civil defense programs, who have been designated by Broadcasting as available, may be authorized to participate in pre-emergency training programs and test exercises as a part of their regular duties for not more than 40 hours in any one calendar year, in accordance with Executive Order 10529, April 22, 1954.

(2) Employees who participate in such programs may be required to furnish satisfactory evidence from State or local authorities that their participation was specifically requested by a public governmental body or organization established pursuant to and in accordance with a State or District of Columbia civil defense law or regulation.

c. Registration and Examination for Entry into Armed Forces and for Military and Naval Reservists - An employee will be granted not to exceed one day of excused absence (with the provision that the Office of Personnel may approve a longer period of excused absence in unusual cases) with pay and without charge to leave when required to:

(1) Undergo medical examination to determine eligibility for enlistment into the Armed Forces of the United States, or

(2) Undergo a medical examination required to determine eligibility of military or naval reservists for recall to active duty, military training duty, or retention in the reserve component when the examination is not included in an order to report for active duty. If the examination is covered by active duty orders, see MOA V-A 660, Military Leave.

691.7 Blood Donations - With the advance approval of the supervisor, an employee who does not receive pay for donated blood may be granted up to four contiguous hours of time off without charge to leave to donate blood and recuperate from donating blood to the American Red Cross or similar organization, or to donate blood to any government employee needing a blood transfusion. Any approved absence in excess of four hours will be charged to sick leave, annual leave, or leave without pay. If the employee is not accepted as a blood donor, only the time spent at the blood center and going to and from the center are allowed as an excused absence without charge to leave.

691.8 Attending a Funeral of an Immediate Relative Killed in Line of Duty - An employee may be excused with pay and without charge to annual leave to attend the funeral of an immediate family member killed in line of duty with the U.S. Armed Forces. In general, such an excused absence with pay will be limited to eight hours. However, a Director, Office, or Service head or his or her designee may approve a longer period of excused absence when warranted by unusual circumstances. (Note that the more liberal provision of MOA V-A 680 applies only if the veteran's death resulted from a wound, disease, or injury incurred while serving in a combat zone.)

691.9 State Department Federal Credit Union Activities

a. Policy - Based on Comptroller General Decision B-212457 (8/23/84), Broadcasting permits granting reasonable periods of excused absence to employees who serve without compensation on the Board or the Committees of the State Department Federal Credit Union.

b. Guidance - When business permits, supervisors may grant up to three hours of excused absence to members of the Board of Directors for each monthly Board meeting and up to an additional two hours to Executive Committee members for each monthly Committee meeting. Credit committee members meet more frequently -- as often as two or three times a week. For these meetings, up to four hours per week or 12 hours per month of excused absence may be granted. Supervisors may grant excused absence to permit Board and Committee members to participate in ad hoc Credit Union activities, depending on the needs of the office, the nature and urgency of the Credit Union activities, and the frequency of the absences. The recommended periods of absence normally should not exceed 12 hours per month for all credit union activities including travel time to and from meetings. Any absence exceeding one day must be charged to annual leave or leave without pay.

691.10 Foreign Affairs Recreation Association Activities (FARA) - Excused absence may be granted to employees serving without compensation on Boards or Committees of the FARA. Such excused absences may be granted by the supervisor for the same purposes and periods of time as those cited in paragraph 691.9 above.

692 GROUP DISMISSALS

692.1. Coverage

a. Employees

(1) Group dismissals apply to all Broadcasting employees assigned to duty stations in the U.S. except essential employees and experts and consultants.

(2) Federal Wage System employees serving under appointments limited to 90 days or less, unless they have been currently employed for a continuous period of 90 days under one or more appointments without a break in service, may not be compensated for a period of excused absence.

692.2 Definitions

a. Administrative Order - A written order, signed by an authorized official, dismissing or confirming a telephonic authorization to dismiss, specific employees for a specified period of time without charge to leave or loss of pay for managerial reasons or when normal operations are interrupted by emergencies beyond the control of the organization. A written order is not required when employees in Washington are released in accordance with procedures described in paragraph 692.5 below, nor when New York employees are dismissed in accordance with the New York Federal Executive Board Alerting Procedures.

b. Authorizing Officials

(1) The Director, Office of Personnel is authorized to dismiss employees in Washington, and all Broadcasting personnel in the United States for managerial reasons.

(2) The Chief of the New York News Bureau is authorized to inform supervisors of offices in New York of dismissals under the New York Federal Executive Board Alerting Procedures.

(3) The Director, Office of Cuba Broadcasting is authorized to inform supervisors of offices of Radio and TV Marti of dismissals under the Miami Federal Executive Board Procedures.

(4) The manager of each domestic transmitting station and the officer in charge of each domestic field office in the United States (other than as noted in paragraph 692.2b(2) above for those in New York) are authorized to dismiss employees in their respective domestic field offices, after telephone consultation with the Office of Personnel, because of managerial reasons, extreme temperatures or emergencies such as those described in paragraph 692.5 below.

c. Essential Employees - Employees performing services that must continue without interruption regardless of weather conditions or other emergencies cited by public announcements of general dismissals in an area. Essential employees are designated in writing (or orally under special circumstances in Broadcasting in accordance with established policy) by Directors or heads of Offices and Services in Washington and by officers in charge of domestic field offices. Designations identify individual employees or positions as essential and remain in effect until rescinded or amended by the designator cited above.

692.3 Dismissal for Managerial Reasons - Dismissals for managerial reasons include breakdowns of essential services, equipment or facilities, power failure, retooling, or other similar matters. The appropriate authorizing official in paragraph 692.2 above will issue the administrative order for dismissal.

a. Leave - The following procedures will be followed in charging annual or sick leave or leave without pay when an employee is dismissed during work hours:

(1) If the employee is on active duty and is excused, there is no charge to annual or sick leave for the remaining hours of the work shift following dismissal, even if the employee had been scheduled for leave during the period of excused absence.

(2) If the employee is on duty and departs on approved leave after official word is received but before the time set for dismissal, leave is charged only from the time the employee departs until the time set for dismissal.

(3) An employee who departs prior to the official announcement of early dismissal will be charged the appropriate leave for the remainder of the day.

(4) If the employee is absent on approved leave for the entire work shift, the entire absence is charged to annual or sick leave or leave without pay, as applicable.

(5) If an employee who is on leave is scheduled to return from leave after the time of dismissal, leave is charged as was scheduled. If the employee is scheduled to return from leave before the dismissal is announced but does not report, leave is charged for the entire shift. (See paragraph 692.3b(2) below when dismissal is within two hours after end of scheduled leave.)

(6) Earned compensatory time off may be used, as appropriate, in lieu of leave.

b. Uncommon Duty Tours

(1) Employees who are scheduled to report to work after the regular closing time on an early dismissal day or after the time of the authorized early dismissal will be administratively excused from duty that workday, unless the conditions which warranted the dismissal improve to such an extent that operations are resumed.

(2) Supervisors may administratively excuse employees who are scheduled to report for duty within two hours preceding an early dismissal if the early dismissal is announced far enough in advance to so permit.

692.4 Hot or Cold Working Conditions

a. The appropriate authorizing official in paragraph 692.3b above will issue the administrative order for dismissal.

b. Excused absence may be granted if by reasonable standards of judgment the conditions are such as to actually prevent working. The physical requirements of the positions involved as well as the temperatures of the work areas will be considered.

c. When there has been no group dismissal, individual employees affected by unusual temperature levels to the extent that they are incapacitated for duty, or to the extent that continuance on duty would adversely affect their health, may be granted annual or sick leave by the appropriate supervisor. However, employees will be moved if appropriate space is available while the unusual temperature levels continue.

d. Authorized officials shall furnish to the Office of Administration a report on each group dismissal because of extremely hot or cold working conditions. The report must include the number of employees released, the date and hours covered by the dismissal, and other appropriate facts that will assist in studying and correcting problems.

692.5 Hazardous Weather and Other Emergencies in the Washington, D.C. Area

a. Emergencies beyond the control of Broadcasting include snowstorms, floods, hurricanes or other natural disasters; serious disruptions or stoppages of public transportation; air pollution; massive power failure; or civil disturbances that prevent employees from working or reporting for work. In the event that these conditions develop in the Washington area, the following procedures shall apply:

(1) Depending on the severity of conditions that develop prior to the beginning of the workday, there are four plans that the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) may order into effect:

(a) Federal employees should report to work on time. Federal agencies will open on time and employees are expected to report as scheduled.

(b) Federal agencies are open; reasonable tardiness will be excused (delayed arrival). Non-essential employees are expected to report to work on time, but reasonable tardiness will be excused for those employees experiencing commuting delays.

(c) Federal agencies are open; employees may take leave without prior approval (liberal leave). Federal agencies will open on time. Reasonable tardiness will be excused for those employees experiencing commuting delays. Non-essential employees who are prevented from reporting to work because of emergency conditions, or who could expect to have difficulty returning home if they report for work, may take annual leave or LWOP without prior approval, but should notify the supervisor that he/she will not be present for part or all of the day.

(d) Federal agencies are closed today. Non-essential employees are excused from duty without charge to leave.

In some situations, both (b) and (c) above will be announced.

In determining the amount of excused absence to grant an employee who experiences commuting delays, the supervisor should consider such factors as the distance between the employee's residence and place of work, the modes of transportation available to an employee, and efforts made by employees traveling under similar circumstances in getting to work on time.

Employees who were scheduled to be on annual or sick leave are not charged leave when OPM issues subparagraph (d) above. This does not apply to employees on leave without pay pending disability retirement or while in receipt of workers' compensation, on military leave, on suspension, or in a non-pay status on the workday before and after the closure.

OPM's ordered response will be based on the general expectation that Federal employees should be able to cope with difficult driving conditions and minor disruptions of public transport.

b. A general dismissal or closure would not be ordered in instances where highway or other transportation conditions primarily affect a single portion of the metropolitan area.

c. Announcement by the Office of Personnel Management of the leave decision will be made through the personnel office and/or local news media, depending upon the time of day the decision is made. If a hazardous weather situation develops overnight, employees should monitor local radio and television broadcasts for information regarding leave policy before leaving for work.

d. In the unusual event that early dismissal is deemed appropriate, dismissals will be staggered according to a zone plan in order to avoid a crippling effect on area highway and transit systems and to facilitate carpooling. Washington, D.C. and surrounding suburbs have been divided into four zones:

Zone 1 - Areas beyond Montgomery, Prince Georges and Fairfax Counties.

Zone 2 - Those portions of Montgomery, Prince Georges, and Fairfax Counties that lie outside the Beltway.

Zone 3 - Areas inside the Beltway, but outside the District of Columbia.

Zone 4 - District of Columbia.

Upon notification by OPM, non-essential employees residing in Zone 1, the area which is furthest from the center of the city will be dismissed first. Zone 1 residents will be followed by Zones 2, 3, and 4 respectively at 30-minute intervals. Exceptions to the zone dismissal may be made for individual employees on a case-by-case basis to avoid hardships (e.g., when an employee's carpool is dismissed earlier, or when schools are dismissed early and a parent has no alternative form of childcare).

692.7 Excused Absence for Employees on Flextime and Maxiflex Schedules - During periods of group dismissals, employees working schedules under the Flextime or Maxiflex programs will be excused as follows:

a. Early Dismissal During Work Hours

(1) When early dismissal is at a specified time, an employee will be excused at that time regardless of schedule (unless scheduled departure is earlier).

(2) When dismissed for a specific length of time (e.g. one or two hours), an employee may adjust his/her scheduled departure by the amount of excused absence authorized.

b. Delayed Arrival/Liberal Leave If employees are allowed reasonable tardiness or leave without prior approval, and an employee's schedule is predetermined, the employee may be granted a reasonable period of excused absence or leave based on the employee's arrival time. If there is no scheduled arrival time, the normal starting time of the employee's shift will be the basis for determining excused absence for late arrival or liberal leave.

c. Offices are Closed for One Day or Longer - Maxiflex employees may be given a maximum of only eight hours of excused absence a day.

d. Credit Hours Under Maxiflex - An employee under Maxiflex may earn credit hours only after exceeding the basic eight-hour work requirement. If an employee is prevented by a group dismissal from working scheduled credit hours, he/she may substitute annual leave or compensatory time or earn credit hours on another day within the same pay period.

Section 720

GENERAL PROCEDURES

721 PRE-EXIT INTERVIEWS

Each separating employee will have at least one pre-exit interview, except where circumstances surrounding the separation make pre-exit interviews impossible or inappropriate.

721.1 Objectives

a. To retain competent employees.

b. To obtain facts regarding the causes of separation in order to compile information concerning the reasons for separation, and to develop programs to reduce losses of competent employees.

c. To assist employees by furnishing information at the time of separation on Federal Employees Group Life Insurance and Health Benefits, retirement, unemployment compensation, restoration or re-employment rights if applicable, and other benefits.

721.2 Responsibilities

a. Supervisors are responsible for:

(1) Making positive efforts to retain the services of competent employees; and

b. Personnel is responsible for:

(1) Making positive efforts to retain the services of competent employees:

(2) Furnishing pre-separation information on benefits and requirements to all employees; and

(3) Compiling and analyzing reports of separations based on pre-exit interview records.

c. Employees are responsible for:

(1) Notifying Personnel as soon as possible after he/she has set a date to resign or transfer to another Federal Agency.

721.3 Procedures for Employees Separating in Washington

a. Employees - through Administrative Officer notified Personnel of the employees intention to resign.

b. A personnel officer interviews the employee leaving Broadcasting to accept other employment and to determine the employee's reason for leaving.

721.4 Procedures for Employees Stationed Outside Washington - The procedures for employees stationed outside Washington are the same as for employees stationed in Washington, except that:

a. The administrative officer or supervisor interviews the employee.

b. The personnel officer completes the pre-exit interview report from information provided by the administrative officer or supervisor or from his/her own knowledge of the situation. The personnel officer is responsible for obtaining from the administrative officer or supervisor whatever additional information is necessary to complete the pre-exit interview report.

722 FINAL SALARY CLEARANCE

722.1 Purpose - The purpose of the final salary clearance procedure is to assure that employees do not receive final salary payment until:

a. All Government property for which they are responsible has been accounted for.

b. Suitable arrangements have been made to adjust any indebtedness employees may have to Broadcasting.

c. Compliance with Broadcasting security requirements.

722.2 Procedures for Employees in Washington

a. Administrative Officer - The administrative officer completes Part I of the Clearance for Final Salary Payment and gives the form to the employee several days before the employee's last workday. The employee is responsible for obtaining approvals and clearances. The employee gives the form to Personnel at the time of pre-exit processing. Personnel forwards the form to the Budget Office. The Personnel Specialist in the Office of Personnel will provide the Clearance for Final Salary Payment to Engineering employees.

b. Office of Security

(1) The security officer gives the exit security briefing, obtains the employee's Identification Card.

722.3 Procedures for Domestic Employees Stationed Outside of Washington - The procedures are substantially the same as those for domestic employees in Washington, with the following exceptions:

a. The Administrative Office obtains the employee's Identification Card and sends it to the Office of Security in Washington, along with the final clearance papers.

722.4 Procedures for Employees Separating While Away From Duty Station - The following procedures apply to employees who are not at their duty stations at the time of separation:

a. The element head is responsible for obtaining from the employee all Broadcasting property, including the employee's Identification Card.

Section 730

RESIGNATION

732 Notice of Resignation

733 Withdrawal of Resignation

Section 730

RESIGNATION

An employee will not be denied the right to resign although Broadcasting-initiated separation action may be pending. Action will not be taken to require an employee to remain beyond the date specified in his/her resignation.

732 NOTICE OF RESIGNATION

- a. The employee's notice of resignation should be submitted at least two weeks prior to its effective date, and should include the effective date, and the reasons for resigning. A resignation may be submitted to the employee's immediate supervisor, a higher line official, or the Office of Personnel. Resignations submitted to supervisors or other operating officials are promptly forwarded to Personnel.
- b. A written resignation is preferred in all instances to avoid possible misunderstandings. However, failure to submit a resignation in writing does not make the resignation invalid. An oral resignation should be made in the presence of a witness. If an oral resignation is made to a supervisor, administrative officer, or other official outside of Personnel the official involved must prepare a memorandum stating the effective date of the resignation and reasons furnished by the employee, have the memorandum countersigned by a witness, if one was present, and send the memorandum to Personnel, and a copy to the employee concerned.

- c. A resignation is not necessary when an employee leaves Broadcasting to accept employment without a break in service in another Federal agency or in a public international organization or international organization in which the United States Government participates.
- d. Conditional resignations are not accepted by Broadcasting. An employee who prescribes terms and conditions under which he/she will resign is advised that accepting the resignation is acceptance only of the fact of resignation and does not constitute agreement to the terms or conditions proposed by the employee.

733 WITHDRAWAL OF RESIGNATION

A resignation is binding on an employee once he/she submits it. Broadcasting may, however, at its discretion, permit an employee to withdraw his/her resignation at any time before its effective date. When Broadcasting does not permit an employee to withdraw his/her resignation before its effective date, Broadcasting must have a valid reason for denying the withdrawal. Among the reasons that would be valid are a showing that it would cause administrative disruption or that the job has been committed to someone else. A desire to avoid taking adverse action is not a valid reason for denying the withdrawal. Whatever the reason, it must be explained to the employee.

Section 740

SEPARATION - ABANDONMENT OF POSITION

741 DEFINITION

"Separation - Abandonment of Position" is a separation resulting from an employee's abandoning his/her position by quitting his/her post of duty or failing to return to duty after a non-workday or at the expiration of an authorized period of leave.

742 PROCEDURES

- a. The employee's immediate supervisor should determine from the employee, if possible, whether he/she intends to return to duty.
- b. An employee's written statement that he/she does not intend to return to duty is accepted as a resignation and processed accordingly.
- c. If efforts to contact the employee or to determine his/her intentions are unsuccessful, the Office of Personnel issues a Notification of Personnel Action, SF-50, recording the employee's Separation - Abandonment of Position effective on the employee's last day of duty or of approved leave or authorized absence, whichever is later, and sends it to the employee's last known address.

743 EMPLOYEE'S REQUEST TO RETURN

A request to return to duty after Separation-Abandonment of Position by an employee entitled to job protection procedures under Part 752 of the Civil Service Regulations must be reported immediately to Personnel. Personnel is responsible for determining what action to take in response to such a request in consultation with the element head.

REDUCTION IN FORCE

761 GENERAL

761.1 Applicability

This Section applies to all Civil Service personnel except:

- (1) Positions in the Senior Executive Service (see MOA V-A 1140);
- (2) Positions requiring Congressional confirmation or the advice and consent of the United States Senate, of the appointee; and.
- (3) Positions in the United States occupied by non-U.S. citizen employees (GG employees). However, a non-U.S. citizen employee may not be retained in a position for which an equally or better qualified U.S. citizen employee is available because of the citizen employees' release from a competitive level by RIF.

761.2 Authority - These regulations are established pursuant to 5 CFR 351.

761.3 Objectives

a. Reduction in force is the release of employees from a competitive level. A personnel action must be taken under reduction in force procedures when both the action to be taken and the cause of the action meet the criteria outlined in (1) and (2) below. An action that meets one but not both criteria is not a reduction in force action and must be taken under other appropriate authorities.

(1) Reduction in force (RIF) actions are taken in order to release an employee from a competitive level by: separation; furlough for more than 30 days; demotion; or reassignment requiring displacement.

(2) RIF actions may be taken due to: lack of work; shortage of funds; reorganization; the need to make room for an employee exercising re-employment rights or restoration rights; or reclassification of an employee's position due to erosion of duties, if it takes effect after Broadcasting formally announces a RIF to be implemented within 180 days in the same competitive area and before the RIF is completed.

(3) RIF procedures may not be used in response to the following situations:

(a) The termination of a temporary or term promotion or the return of an employee to the position held before the temporary or term promotion or to one of equivalent grade and pay.

(b) A change to lower grade based on the reclassification of an employee's position due to the application of new classification standards or the correction of a classification error.

(c) A change to lower grade based on reclassification of an employee's position due to erosion of duties, unless the circumstances in 761.3a(2) apply.

(d) Placement of an employee serving on an intermittent, part-time, on-call, or seasonal basis in a non-pay and non-duty status in accordance with conditions established at the time of appointment.

b. RIF will be administered in a manner which will effect the necessary reductions in personnel strength with a minimum of disruption to functions and of dislocation to employees. The following are some methods that may be used to accomplish substantial savings and avoid the necessity for a RIF or reduce the number of employees affected. The list is not all-inclusive and does not cover cost-saving techniques unrelated to personnel management. The actions may not be appropriate or even possible in all situations.

(1) Freezing vacancies when reductions in force are anticipated, and assigning employees out of a unit for which RIF is planned, into vacant continuing jobs on a Broadcasting-wide basis.

(2) Detailing employees on a reimbursable basis to other agencies.

(3) Separating temporary employees and re-employed annuitants.

(4) Requesting special authority from OPM to offer voluntary early retirement when Broadcasting may undergo a major RIF which meets OPM requirements.

(5) Meeting with employees eligible for optional or involuntary retirement to explain the benefits.

(6) Making maximum use of the permissible waiver of qualifications in reassignments in RIF.

(7) Giving each employee affected by RIF a personal interview to discuss individual problems and provide special assistance when practicable.

(8) Suspending appointments, promotions, and reassignments to positions at any competitive level in which an employee receives a RIF notice or in which an employee is offered a position based on "bumping" or "retreat" rights, or in anticipation of the issuance of RIF notices.

(9) Making every effort to reassign employees affected by RIF to a reasonable alternative position.

(10) Setting up special programs to assist employees to find jobs in other government agencies or in private employment on an Broadcasting-wide basis.

761.4 Definitions

a. Annual Performance Rating of Record - The official summary rating required annually as specified in MOA V-A 440 and 450.

b. Assignment Right - The right of an employee to be assigned (by bump or retreat) in the second round of competition to a position in a different competitive level held by another employee with lower standing on a retention register. (See 762.4)

c. Bumping - An employee's right of assignment to a position occupied by another employee in a lower subgroup in another competitive level. (See 762.4f.)

d. Competing Employee - Generally an employee in tenure group I, II, or III in either the competitive or excepted service.

e. Competitive Area - The local commuting area of each locality in which Broadcasting has one or more offices is a separate competitive area, such as Washington, D.C., Greenville, N.C., Miami, Florida, and New York City.

f. Competitive Level - A group of positions in the same grade and classification series that have similar duties and other requirements (see 762.1).

g. Furlough - The placement of an employee through RIF procedures in a temporary non-duty and non-pay status for more than 30 days but not more than one year, based on one of the RIF reasons, but not when the non-duty, non-pay status is in accordance with pre-established conditions of employment. (See 766)

h. Grades, Grade-Intervals, and Equivalents - The difference between successive grades in a 1-grade occupation is a grade difference and the difference between successive grades in a 2-grade occupation is a grade-interval difference. Some jobs have a 1-grade progression, i.e., GS-5-6-7; others have a 2-grade progression, i.e., GS-5-7-9-11. Thus, an employee released from a GS-11 position in a 2-grade occupation may bump three grade-intervals lower to GS-5, and retreat three grade-intervals lower to GS-5. An employee released from a GS-9 position in a 1-grade occupation may bump three grades lower to GS-6 and retreat three grades lower to GS-6.

i. Model Rating - The summary rating level assigned most frequently among the actual ratings of record assigned to the employee's position of record within the same competitive area. The ratings of record would be those assigned for the most recently completed appraisal period prior to the date of issuance of reduction in force notices or the cutoff date Broadcasting specifies prior to the issuance of reduction in force notices after which no new ratings will be put on record.

j. Multiple Rating Pattern - Employees within a competitive area who have ratings of record under more than one pattern of summary levels.

For positions not covered by the General Schedule, the normal line of progression is established for each occupational series and grade level and bump and retreat limits are applied. Each multi-grade movement within the normal line of progression is considered a grade interval. The normal line of progression may include grade levels in different pay systems, as determined appropriate. For example, the normal line of progression for a WG-12 is WG-5-8-10-12. In this case, a WG-12 employee in the particular series has bump and retreat rights to positions as low as WG-5. The normal line of progression for a WS-10 is WG-5-8-10-WS-10. In this case, the WS-10 employee has bump and retreat rights to positions as low as WG-5.

k. Notice - An official personal communication addressed to an individual employee announcing that he or she may be or will be affected by a RIF action. A specific notice contains the specific RIF action to be taken. (See 763)

l. Release from Competitive Level - Releasing employees from their competitive level when they are displaced by another employee with superior retention rights, when there are no employees with lower retention rights, or when the competitive level is abolished.

m. Reorganization - The planned elimination, addition, or redistribution of functions or duties in an organization.

n. Representative Rate - The fourth step of the grade for a General Schedule position; the third step of a supervisory (WS) grade under the Federal Wage System, except for single rate pay systems; and the second step for all grades under all other Agency locality wage system schedules. Representative rate is used when reassigning an employee to a different competitive level from a position in a different wage scale. The representative rates to be compared are those in effect on the date specific notices are issued.

o. Retention Register - A list of competing employees within a competitive level who are grouped by tenure, veteran preference, and length of service augmented by performance credit. A separate register is prepared for each competitive level. (See 762.2)

p. Retention Standing - An employee's relative standing on a retention register based on tenure, veteran preference, and length of service augmented by performance credit. Together, these factors determine whether an employee is entitled to compete with other employees for retention and, if so, with whom and with what success.

q. Retreat - The assignment of an employee to a position held by another employee with lower retention standing in the same subgroup but in another competitive level. (See 762.4g.)

r. Rounds of Competition - The different stages of competing for retention. In the first round of competition employees compete to stay in present competitive level. In the second round of competition employees compete for assignment to a position in a different competitive level which involves the least possible reduction in representative rate and for which the employee is qualified.

s. Single Rating Pattern - Employees within a competitive area who have ratings of record under more than one pattern of summary levels.

t. Subgroup Standing - The employee's relative standing on a retention register based on tenure group and veteran preference subgroup. Each tenure group is further divided into Subgroup AD, A and B. Subgroup AD includes veteran preference eligible employees who have a compensable service-connected disability of 30 percent or more; Subgroup A includes each veteran preference eligible employee not included in Subgroup AD; and Subgroup B includes employees not eligible for veteran preference. Within each subgroup employees are listed on a retention register by length of service, augmented by credit for performance, in descending order starting with the earliest service date.

u. Tenure - The period of time an employee may reasonably expect to serve under a current appointment. There are three competitive service tenure groups. The descending order of retention standing is Group I, II and III.

Group I = Career employees.

Group II = Career conditional employees.

Group III = Employees on indefinite, temporary pending establishment of a register, term or status quo appointments; and any other non-status, non-temporary employee.

Excepted service tenure groups are:

Group I - Permanent employees whose appointments carry no restriction or condition such as conditional, indefinite, specific time limit, or trial period.

Group II - Employees serving a trial period; or whose tenure is equivalent to a career conditional appointment in the competitive service.

Group III - Employees whose tenure is without a specific time limit; whose appointments have a specific time limitation of more than one year; or who is currently under a temporary appointment limited to one year but has completed one year of current continuous service.

v. Transfer of Function - The transfer of the performance of a continuing function from one competitive area and its addition to one or more other competitive areas, except when the function involved is virtually identical to functions already being performed in the other competitive area(s) affected; or the movement of the competitive area in which the function is performed to another commuting area. (See 764)

w. Undue Interruption - A degree of interruption that would prevent the completion of required work within the allowable limits of time and quality taking into account the pressures of priorities, deadlines, and other demands. A work program probably would be unduly interrupted if an employee needed more than 90 days after the RIF to successfully perform the critical elements of a position. Lower priority programs might tolerate a longer interruption.

761.5 Responsibilities

a. The Office of Personnel is responsible for coordinating and consulting, as needed, given the Broadcast-wide impact of a RIF, in:

(1) Developing and implementing policies and procedures concerning reductions in force and related personnel functions consistent with appropriate laws and Office of Personnel Management regulations.

(2) Defining and establishing competitive levels and maintaining associated RIF records including retention registers and making them available to employees upon request in accordance with 768a.(2);

(3) Determining qualifications of employees scheduled for release from their competitive levels;

(4) Assisting employees scheduled for separation or demotion in seeking jobs in other government agencies or in private industry;

(5) Negotiating with the exclusive labor organization on the impact and implementation of a reduction in force, and for making available to the representative RIF records including retention registers; and;

(6) Keeping employees informed of RIF regulations and procedures, employee rights and privileges, and ensuring that employees are accorded fair and equitable treatment under the retention preference regulations.

b. Managers and Supervisors are responsible for:

(1) Planning the work program to accomplish the objectives of Broadcasting within available resources;

(2) Determining what positions are required, where they will be located, and when they are to be filled, abolished, or vacated;

(3) Determining when there is a surplus of employees at a particular location;

(4) Advising and working with the personnel office to effect a reduction in personnel with a minimum of disruption to Broadcasting accomplishments and dislocation to employees;

(5) Making use of advance planning and special programs to minimize or reduce the effects of any reduction in force;

(6) Keeping employees informed of the extent of any contemplated RIF; and

(7) Giving appropriate consideration to employees reached for separation by RIF in other organizations when filling positions in their own organizational element.

761.6 RIF Planning

a. The Director is responsible along with , Service Heads, and Office Directors for decisions on management actions which might have an adverse impact on the work-force and for any final decisions which result in a RIF, transfer of function, or similar action. Service Heads, and Office Directors must submit to the Office of Personnel a written notice of reorganization, cut in funds, transfer of functions, or any other contemplated or anticipated management action which would result in an adverse impact on the work-force (i.e., positions abolished, downgraded, and/or employees terminated). The report must be in sufficient detail so that the personnel office can identify employees and positions affected.

b. The Office of Personnel will determine in concert with , Service Heads, or Office Directors whether personnel involved can be reassigned to vacancies in other elements, whether or not to impose a hiring freeze, and how extensive a RIF would be. If it appears that a RIF is inevitable and will affect other organizational elements, the personnel office will immediately inform the other offices and work together in a coordinated team effort through the remainder of the RIF. The personnel office will inform the exclusive representative of the RIF, providing all available information.

762 RETENTION FACTORS

762.1 Competitive Levels - Prior to initiating a RIF, the Office of Personnel will establish competitive levels and assign each position within a competitive area to a competitive level. Employees compete for retention in their competitive levels during the first round of RIF competition.

a. Characteristics of Competitive Levels - A competitive level consists of positions in the competitive area that are in the same grade (or occupational level); in the same classification series; and similar enough in duties, qualification requirements, pay schedules, and working conditions that the incumbent of one position can successfully perform the critical elements of any other position in the level upon assignment to it, without any loss of productivity beyond that normally expected in the orientation of any new but fully qualified employee. Determinations are made by comparing the qualifications required to perform the duties and responsibilities as stated in the official position descriptions, the critical elements, and the standards for fully successful performance of these elements. Determinations are not based on the personal qualifications or performance levels of individual employees.

b. Separate Competitive Levels Required - Positions in the competitive service and positions in the excepted service must be in separate competitive levels. Excepted positions filled under different appointing authorities also must be in different levels. In either the competitive or excepted service, different levels must be established for positions:

(1) Under different pay schedules;

(2) Filled by a supervisor;

- (3) Filled by a management official;
- (4) Filled on a seasonal basis;
- (5) Filled on a part-time basis;
- (6) Filled on a permanent basis;
- (7) Filled on an intermittent basis;
- (8) Filled on an on-call basis; and
- (9) Filled by an employee in a formally designated trainee or developmental program.

c. Employees who are on detail, on paid or unpaid leave, or who have been temporarily promoted will compete at competitive levels established for the positions from which they were detailed, placed on leave, or promoted, respectively.

d. Employees under retained grade and/or pay provisions are placed at competitive levels established for the grade level of the occupied position, not their retained grade or pay. However, employees protected by the provisions of Section 2106 of the Foreign Service Act shall compete at their protected grade level.

(1) Group I in the competitive service includes career employees who are not serving probationary periods. Group I in the excepted service includes employees whose appointments carry no restriction or condition such as conditional, indefinite, specific time limit, or trial period.

(2) Group II in the competitive service includes career-conditional employees. Group II in the excepted service includes employees serving a trial period or whose tenure is equivalent to a career-conditional appointment in the competitive service.

(3) Group III in the competitive service includes all employees serving under indefinite appointments, temporary appointments pending establishment of a register, status quo appointments, term appointments, and any other non-status non-temporary appointments. Group III in the excepted service includes employees whose tenure is indefinite (i.e. without specific time limit), but not actually or potentially permanent, employees whose appointments have a specific time limitation of more than 1 year, and employees who are currently employed under a temporary appointment limited to 1 year or less, but who have completed 1 year of current continuous service under a temporary appointment with no break in service of 1 workday or more.

e. Separate competitive levels will not be established solely upon:

(1) a difference in the number of hours or weeks scheduled to be worked by other-than-full-time employees who would otherwise be in the same competitive level;

(2) a requirement to work changing shifts;

(3) the grade promotion potential of the position or

(4) a difference in the local wage areas in which wage grade positions are located.

762.2 Retention Register

a. Retention registers will be established by the personnel office before any employee is released by RIF. The register must contain the name of every competing employee officially assigned to, or temporarily promoted from, a position in the competitive level, except employees on military duty with restoration rights. Competing employees are those employees in tenure groups I, II, or III. Non-competing employees are listed separately, but on the same document. A separate register is prepared for each competitive level.

b. Registers will reflect each employee's retention standing based on tenure group, subgroup, length of service, and performance credit as described in this MOA.

c. Non-competing employees in the competitive level must be released first; competing employees are released in the order of their retention standing beginning with the lowest.

d. Order on Retention Register - Competing employees are listed on a retention register in the following order:

(1) By tenure group: Group I is first followed by Group II and then Group III.

(2) Within each tenure group, by veteran preference subgroup: Subgroup AD = Preference eligible employees with a service compensable service connected disability of 30% or more; Subgroup A = Employee veterans who are not listed in Subgroup AD; Subgroup B = Employee non-preference eligibles.

(3) Within each subgroup, by years of service which includes performance appraisal credit, beginning with the earliest service date.

e. Creditable Service - Length of service is determined by an employee's service computation date (SCD-RIF) and is the primary basis for ranking employees in a subgroup on a retention register.

f. Credit for Performance - Employees are given additional service credit for annual performance appraisal ratings of record received in accordance with MOA V-A 440 and 450. Additional service credit is based on the last three annual performance ratings of record the employee received during the 4-year period prior to the date of issuance of specific RIF notices. Annual ratings of record are those given at the end of the annual appraisal cycle or given at such other times stipulated in MOA V-A 440 and 450, including annual ratings based on interim ratings or an extended rating period. To provide adequate time to determine employee retention standing, a cutoff date for the acceptance of performance ratings may be established after which no new ratings of record will be used to determine additional service credit.

(a) Missing Ratings - Employees who have not received any rating of record during the 4-year period shall receive credit for performance based on the model rating for the summary level pattern that applied to the employee's official position of record at the time of the RIF. Employees who have received at least one but fewer than three previous ratings of record during the 4-year period shall receive credit for performance on the basis of the value of the actual rating(s) of record divided by the number of actual ratings received. If an employee has received only two actual ratings of record during the period, the value of the ratings is added together and divided by two (and rounded in the case of a fraction to the next higher whole number) to determine the amount of additional service credit. If an employee has received only one actual rating of record during the period, its value is the amount of additional service credit provided.

(b) Single Rating Pattern - If all employees in a RIF competitive area have received ratings of record under a single pattern of summary levels (e.g., a five-level performance appraisal system), the additional service credit provided to employees shall be expressed in additional years of service and shall consist of the mathematical average (rounded in the case of a fraction to the next higher whole number) of the employee's applicable ratings of record on the following basis:

(1) Twenty additional years of service for each performance rating of outstanding (Level 5);

(2) Sixteen additional years of service for each performance rating of exceeds fully successful (Level 4); and

(3) Twelve additional years of service for each performance rating of fully successful or satisfactory (Level 3).

(c) Multiple Rating Patterns - If Broadcasting has employees in a competitive area who have ratings of record under more than one pattern of summary levels (e.g., a five-level performance appraisal system, a three-level performance appraisal system, and/or a pass/fair performance appraisal system), Broadcasting will make a determination as to the amount of additional service credit provided for ratings of record put on record on or after October 1, 1997:

1. Broadcasting will determine the number(s) of years additional service credit for each of the rating patterns within the competitive area.

2. Additional years of service will consist of the mathematical average (rounded in the case of a fraction to the next higher whole number) of the additional service credit that Broadcasting has established for the summary levels of the employee's applicable rating(s) of record.

3. Broadcasting will establish the amount of additional service credit in full years.

4. Broadcasting will establish no additional service credit for summary levels below Level 3 (Fully Successful or Satisfactory).

5. When establishing additional service credit for the summary levels at Level 3 (Fully successful or Satisfactory) and above, Broadcasting will establish at least 12 years, and no more than 20 years, additional service credit for a summary level.

6. Broadcasting will establish the same number of years additional service credit for more than one summary level.

7. Broadcasting will establish the same number of years additional service credit for all ratings of record with the same summary level in the same pattern of summary levels.

8. Broadcasting may establish a different number of years additional service credit for the same summary level in different patterns.

d. Retention Credit Ties

In determining the order of release from a competitive level and in making "retreat" rights determinations, retention credit ties will be broken as follows:

(1) When one employee is already in a continuing position and the competing employee is being moved from his or her position or his or her position is abolished, the employee in the continuing position will remain in the position.

(2) In all other cases, the employee with the longest service in Broadcasting will be ranked above the employee with less service in Broadcasting. Service in the U.S. Information Agency is counted as service.

(3) If a tie still exists, Broadcasting may select any tied employee for release.

e. Date of Retention Standing - An employee's retention standing is determined as of the date he/she is released from a competitive level except that additional service credit for performance is based on ratings received prior to the date of specific RIF notices. Any changes in factors other than performance that occur during the notice period will be taken into account in determining the employee's retention standing.

762.3 Release From Competitive Level

a. Before a competing employee may be released from a competitive level, Broadcasting must first release from the competitive level each employee:

(1) Serving under a specifically limited temporary appointment to a position in that competitive level;

(2) Serving under a term promotion or temporary promotion to a position in that competitive level; and

(3) Who has received a written decision of removal from a position in that competitive level.

b. After all non-competing employees are released from a competitive level, competing employees are selected for release in the order of their retention standing beginning with the employee having the lowest standing. All employees in group III are released before any employee in group II; and all employees in group II are released before any in group I. Within each group, all employees in subgroup B are released before any in subgroup A; and all employees in subgroup A are released before any in subgroup AD. Within each subgroup, employees are released in the order of their service dates beginning with the most recent service date.

c. Exceptions - A competing employee may be released from a competitive level while retaining in that level another competing employee with lower retention standing if the action is authorized as a mandatory, discretionary, or liquidation exception.

(1) Mandatory Exceptions - Certain Group I or II employees who have been re-employed after military service are entitled to retention for either six months or one year after restoration. Each must be retained over other employees in the same subgroup until the end of the retention period. Such an employee can not be separated by RIF action during the retention period following restoration. If such an employee is reached for release from a competitive level, Broadcasting will find another position for the employee. If the employee cannot be retained in a position in the same competitive area, Broadcasting will offer the employee a position in another competitive area if one exists. If the employee refuses all offers and must be separated, the separation is an adverse action rather than a RIF action.

(a) Use of annual leave to reach initial eligibility for retirement or continuance of health benefits. Broadcasting will make a temporary exception to retain an employee who elects to use annual leave to remain on the rolls after the effective date the employee would otherwise have been separated by RIF, in order to establish initial eligibility for immediate retirement and/or to establish initial eligibility to continue health benefits coverage into retirement. The effective date of separation is the date the employee first becomes eligible for immediate retirement, or for continuation of health benefits into retirement, except that an employee may be retained long enough to satisfy both retirement and health benefits requirements.

(2) Discretionary Continuing Exceptions - Continuing exceptions to the regular order of release may be made to keep an employee in a position that no higher standing employee can take over within 90 days and without undue interruption to Broadcasting. This exception may be used:

(a) To avoid undue interruption when at the time of the RIF a special project or assignment has reached a point where the replacement of an employee working on it would delay its completion for more than 90 days;

or

(b) To avoid the interruption or untimely termination of an assignment under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act (IPA). (This exception may be made only to retain an employee whose assignment will last more than 90 days beyond the effective date of the RIF.)

When an employee is retained under a discretionary continuing exception, Broadcasting will provide written notice of the exception and the reason for it to each higher standing employee reached for release from the same retention register.

(3) Discretionary Temporary Exceptions - An exception to the regular order of release may be made for not more than 90 days to retain an employee for 90 days or less after the effective date of release of a higher standing employee to:

(a) Continue an activity without undue interruption;

(b) Avoid the interruption or untimely termination of an assignment under the IPA;

(c) Satisfy a Government obligation to an employee; for example, to delay the effective date of an employee's release long enough to allow a full notice period when he or she is absent from the duty station and cannot receive notice the same day as other employees or when a new notice must be given; or

(d) Benefit an employee when the temporary exception does not adversely affect the rights of any higher standing employee who is released ahead of the lower standing employee, e.g., retaining an employee on sick leave until the sick leave is exhausted or the employee has recovered. The temporary retention of a lower standing employee on sick leave may exceed 90 days but may not exceed the date the employee's sick leave is exhausted. When an employee is retained under a discretionary temporary exception for more than 30 days after the date a higher standing employee is released from the same retention register, Broadcasting will provide written notice to the higher standing employee of the exception, the reason for it, and the date the lower standing employee's retention will end.

(4) Liquidation Exceptions - When Broadcasting abolishes all positions in a competitive area within 90 days, it must release the employees in subgroup order but may release them regardless of their retention standing within a subgroup, except when an employee must be retained under a mandatory exception. Broadcasting may use both discretionary continuing exceptions and discretionary temporary exceptions during a liquidation. When the liquidation provision is used, Broadcasting will inform employees and also give the date the liquidation will be completed.

( e) Record of Exceptions - The reason for any exception to the regular order of release will be recorded on the retention register and the date retention will end is recorded opposite the name of the lower standing employee.

762.4 Assignment Rights - called bump and retreat, constitute the second round of competition when an employee competes for a job in other competitive levels.

a. The right to assignment exists if a tenure group I or II employee in the competitive service is released from his or her competitive level, has a current annual performance rating of record of minimally successful or higher performance, and if a position exists within the employee's present competitive area which:

(1) Will last at least 3 months;

(2) Is a position for which the employee is qualified;

(3) Requires no reduction, or the least reduction, in the applicable representative rate; and

(4) Is held by an employee in a lower retention subgroup (bumping rights) or who has less retention standing and occupies the same position or one essentially identical to a position previously held by the released employee in any Federal Agency retreat rights)

b. Broadcasting may not offer an employee a position with a higher representative rate than the position from which the employee is released. The employee does not have the right to select among specific positions when more than one position is available that would satisfy the employee's assignment rights. When more than one available position will satisfy an employee's assignment right, the employee is entitled to the position with the highest representative rate.

c. An employee is entitled to only one proper offer and is entitled to no further offer when he/she accepts an offer, rejects an offer, or fails to reply to an offer within the time specified, except that Broadcasting will make a better offer if a position with a higher representative rate becomes available on or before the effective date of the RIF. It makes no difference whether the employee has accepted or rejected a previous offer.

d. The employee has no right of assignment to a vacant position. Such assignment may be made at Broadcasting's discretion. However, when Broadcasting fills a vacant position, it will do so in the same competitive area having a representative rate equal to a position to which the employee would be entitled on the basis of bump or retreat rights.

e. An employee in the excepted service does not have assignment rights when the employee is released from his or her competitive level.

f. Bumping Rights - Upon release from a competitive level, an eligible employee is entitled to bump to an available position which requires no reduction, or the least possible reduction, in representative rate when the following conditions are met:

(1) The occupied position is held by an employee in a lower tenure group or in a lower subgroup within the released employee's own tenure group; and

(2) The occupied position is the same grade or no more than three grades or three grade-intervals below the position from which the employee is released.

The requirement that the occupied position be held by an employee in a lower subgroup means:

(a) A subgroup I-AD employee has bumping rights over employees in I-A, I-B, and groups II and III.

(b) A subgroup I-A employee has bumping rights over employees in I-B and groups II and III.

(c) A subgroup I-B employee has bumping rights over employees in groups II and III.

(d) A subgroup II-AD employee has bumping rights over employees in II-A, II-B, and group III.

(e) A subgroup II-A employee has bumping rights over employees in II-B and group III.

(f) A subgroup II-B employee has bumping rights over employees in group III.

g. Retreat Rights - Upon release from a competitive level, an eligible employee in Tenure Group I and II is entitled to retreat to an available position that requires no reduction, or the least possible reduction, in representative rate when the occupied position is:

(1) Held by an employee with a later service date in the same subgroup;

(2) The same grade or no more than three grades or three grade-intervals (or equivalent) below the position from which the employee is released. The position may be up to five grades (or intervals or equivalents) lower if the released employee is a preference eligible with a compensable service-connected disability of 30 percent or more;

(3) The same position or essentially identical to a position previously held by the released employee in any Federal agency; and

(4) Held by an employee with a current annual performance rating no higher than minimally successful (Level 2) when the released employee's rating is minimally successful or lower.

Only employees in Tenure Groups I and II can bump or retreat.

h. Broadcasting may elect to waive qualification requirements such determinations shall be made uniformly and consistently in any single RIF.

The requirement for uniform and consistent application of the discretionary provisions in any one RIF does not mean that all employees affected by the RIF must be treated alike, as long as a reasonable principle is applied objectively and consistently. Broadcasting may elect to allow displacements within the same subgroup in tenure groups I and II. Broadcasting may elect to make a discretionary continuing or temporary exception to assignment rights in accordance with section 762.3.

763 REDUCTION IN FORCE NOTICES

A RIF notice is a personal communication in writing to each individual employee announcing that he or she will be affected by a RIF action. Broadcasting will normally issue specific notices and will avoid the issuance of general notices whenever possible.

763.1 Notice Period

a. Each affected employee will receive a written specific notice at least 60 calendar days prior to the effective date of the RIF. The 60 day notice period begins the day after the employee receives the notice. Neither the date of receipt nor the RIF effective date may be counted in computing the 60 days. Broadcasting will not count a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday as the last day of the notice period.

b. When Broadcasting can not determine all of the individual actions involved in a RIF, it may issue a general RIF notice to provide employees with earlier notice when appropriate and feasible.

763.2 Content of Notice

a. The written notice will contain the following:

- (1) The specific RIF action to be taken;
- (2) The effective date of the action;
- (3) The employee's competitive area, competitive level, subgroup, service date, and the last three annual performance ratings received and credited during the last four years;
- (4) The place where the employee may inspect the regulations and records pertinent to his/her case;
- (5) If applicable, the reasons for retaining a lower standing employee in his/her competitive level under a discretionary exception;
- (6) If applicable, that employees are being separated under liquidation procedures without regard to standing within the subgroup and the date the liquidation will be complete; and
- (7) The employee's right to consideration for re-employment (see 765).
- (8) The employee's appeal or grievance rights (see 769).

b. In addition to the requirements of 763.2 a, a specific written notice of separation will contain the following:

(1) Information concerning the right to re-employment consideration and career transition assistance.

(2) A release to authorize, at his or her option, the release of his or her resume and other relevant employment information for employment referral to State dislocated worker office(s) and potential public or private sector employers.

(3) Information concerning how to apply both for unemployment insurance through the appropriate State program and benefits under the State dislocated worker office(s), as designated or created under Title III of the Job Training Partnership Act.

(4) An estimate of any severance pay to which an employee may be entitled (if eligible).

When 50 or more employees in a competitive area receive separation notices, Broadcasting will provide written notification of the action, at the same time it issues specific notices of separation to employees, to the State dislocated worker office(s), the chief elected official of local government(s) within which these separations will occur, and OPM.

c. The letter will advise the employee that:

(1) He/she is entitled to only one offer;

(2) If the offer is rejected or if he/she fails to respond to the offer, then he/she will be terminated; and

(3) He/she has no right to assignment to a position with either a higher grade or representative rate than his/her current position.

d. The employee will be given 15 calendar days within which to reply in writing whether or not he/she accepts or rejects the offer.

e. An employee is entitled to a new notice and notice period of at least 30 days if Broadcasting decides to take a more severe RIF action than first specified. A new notice period is not required when Broadcasting offers a less severe RIF action than first specified.

f. Whenever possible, Broadcasting will keep the notified employee in a pay status during the notice period. Broadcasting may put the employee on annual leave with or without the employee's consent; in a leave without pay status, with his/her consent; or in a non-pay status without the employee's consent when, in an emergency, Broadcasting lacks work or funds for all or part of the notice period. Under the Merit Systems Protection Board regulations, an employee who believes that he/she has been placed in a non-pay status in violation of controlling regulations may appeal or grieve such action.

CERTIFICATION OF EXPECTED SEPARATION

a. For the purpose of enabling otherwise eligible employees to be considered for eligibility to participate in dislocated worker programs, Broadcasting may issue Certificates of Expected Separation to competing employees who Broadcasting believes, with a reasonable degree of certainty, will be separated from Federal employment by RIF procedures. A Certification of Expected Separation may be issued up to 6 months prior to the effective date of the RIF.

b. This certification may be issued to a competing employee only when Broadcasting determines:

1. There is a good likelihood the employee will be separated;
2. Employment opportunities in the same or similar position in the local commuting area are limited or non-existent;
3. Placement opportunities within the employee's own or other Federal agencies in the local commuting area are limited or nonexistent; and
4. If eligible for optional retirement, the employee has not filed a retirement application or otherwise indicated in writing an intent to retire.

c. A certification will contain the expected date of the RIF, a statement that each factor in b. above has been satisfied, and a description of Job Training Partnership Act programs, the Interagency Career Transition Assistance Program, and the Re-employment Priority List.

764 TRANSFER OF FUNCTION

a. A transfer of function exists if any Broadcast activity is transferred from one competitive area to another, or if the competitive area is moved to another commuting area.

b. When an employee's work transfers he or she is entitled to transfer with it if lack of an opportunity to do so would result in his or her demotion or separation.

c. If Broadcasting decides to transfer the employees with a function, the identified employees are required to transfer. An employee who refuses to transfer may be separated.

d. Broadcasting will determine whether to use RIF procedures in a transfer of function.

e. Broadcasting will provide a specific written notice to each employee affected by a transfer of function at least 60 calendar days prior to the effective date. The notice shall state specifically what action is being taken, the effective date of the action, and what is involved in acceptance or rejection of the offer of transfer. Any rights of appeal and the time limits on such appeals will also be included in the notice. An employee will have at least 30 calendar days in which to accept or reject the offer of transfer.

765 RE-EMPLOYMENT PRIORITY LIST

a. A single re-employment priority list will be established for each commuting area within which a Group I or II employee is separated from competitive service by RIF. Each employee's name is entered on the list as soon as it is known that he/she cannot be retained in his/her competitive area unless he/she has declined assignment under Section 762.3. Each element within the commuting area must refer to the list when hiring. If a qualified former employee is listed, that person must be re-employed in lieu of a new hire unless the person appointed is a qualified 10 point preference eligible, eligible for restoration to duty or re-employment as a preference eligible.

b. To be entered on the RPL, an employee targeted for separation under RIF procedures or who has been separated under RIF procedures, must complete a required application, specifying the conditions under which he or she will accept employment, including grade, occupation, and minimum hours of work per week, in addition to positions at the same representative rate and type of work schedule as the position from which the employee was or will be separated. Registration may take place as soon as a specific notice of separation or a Certification of Expected Separation has been issued. The employee must submit the application within 30 calendar days after the RIF separation date.

c. The name of a Group I employee remains on the re-employment priority list for 2 years from the date he/she was separated. The name of Group II employee remains on the re-employment priority list for 1 year from the date he/she was separated.

766 FURLOUGH

a. Broadcasting must use RIF procedures in placing an employee in a temporary non-duty and no-pay status for more than thirty consecutive days or for more than 22 work days if done on a noncontinuous basis: when the reason is among those described in 761.3a.(1) and (2); when Broadcasting intends within 1 year to recall the employee to duty in the position from which furloughed (the 1 year beginning on the day after the end of the notice period); but not when the non-duty, non-pay status is in accordance with pre-established conditions of employment. (Shorter furloughs are implemented through use of adverse actions, as described in MOA V-A 565.)

b. Broadcasting will not separate an employee through RIF while an employee with lower retention standing in the same competitive level is on furlough.

c. Broadcasting will not fill a position, except by internal placement, when an employee on furlough is qualified and available for a position at the same or lower grade from which furloughed.

d. When Broadcasting recalls employees to duty in the competitive level from which furloughed, it will recall them in the order of their retention standing, beginning with the highest standing employee.

e. If the situation changes and Broadcasting determines a furloughed employee cannot be recalled within the 1-year period, the employee must be separated. If some but not all furloughed employees in a competitive level must be separated, employees are selected for separation by retention standing beginning with the lowest standing employee. A new RIF notice of separation must be given to the furloughed employees at least 30 days prior to separation and at least 30 days prior to the end of the 1-year furlough period. The separation of a furloughed employee is a new RIF action and the required procedures are followed.

f. If a furloughed employee refuses or does not respond to a call to return to duty, the employee is separated by RIF effective on the specified recall date. A new RIF notice of separation is not required. The separation is documented as a RIF separation.

767 RETIREMENT

Broadcasting will counsel employees on entitled benefits including information about retirement, voluntary, optional or discontinued service. The Agency will seek OPM authority for early retirement when appropriate. There will be no coercion to influence an employee's decision to retire.

768 RECORDS

a. The Personnel Office will maintain the current correct records needed to determine the retention standing of Broadcasting competing employees. The retention registers and related records are open for inspection by:

(1) A representative of OPM; and

(2) A Broadcasting employee, who is in receipt of a RIF notice, (or the employee's representative or a labor organization representative) to the extent that the registers and records have a bearing on a specific action taken, or to be taken, against the employee. The employee is entitled to see not only the register and related records for his/her own competitive level, but also for levels in which there are employees who may displace him/her, and for levels into which such employee believes he/she may be entitled to displace.

b. Broadcasting will preserve intact all registers and records relating to a RIF for at least one year from the date a specific RIF notice is issued.

769 APPEALS AND CORRECTIVE ACTION

769.1 Appeal Rights

a. An employee who has been furloughed for more than 30 days, separated, or demoted by a RIF action may appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB), except as provided in paragraph 769.1d below. Before appealing, the employee should review applicable regulations and all the records and registers having a bearing on the RIF action.

b. Appeals must be filed with MSPB during the 20 day period beginning with the day after the effective date of the action being appealed. Appeals are not accepted by MSPB on or before the effective date.

c. The only types of actions which may be appealed are:

(1) Retention of a lower subgroup employee in a job for which the employee affected by RIF considers himself or herself qualified;

(2) Insufficient notice;

(3) Inadequate reasons given, or failure to give reasons, for granting exceptions to normal order of separation under the RIF regulations;

(4) Denial of the employee's right to examine the regulations or inspect the retention registers and related records;

(5) Incorrect competitive area or competitive level;

(6) Improper tenure grouping;

(7) Violation of veterans preference rights (only if the personnel office was previously advised of the employee's entitlement to veterans preference);

(8) Error in establishing the service computation date;

(9) Failure to make a reasonable offer of reassignment or change to lower grade;

(10) Improper determination concerning physical fitness for position change;

(11) Failure to comply with RIF procedures contained herein; and

(12) Improper placement on leave without pay during notice period.

d. Employees in a bargaining unit covered by a negotiated grievance procedure that includes RIF must use the negotiated grievance procedure and may not appeal RIF actions to the MSPB.

769.2 Corrective Action

a. If Broadcasting decides that a RIF action was unjustified or unwarranted and restores an employee to a former or intermediate grade or rate of pay, the corrective action is effective as of the date of the improper RIF action.

b. In adjudicating RIF appeals, MSPB determines whether Broadcasting has correctly applied regulations and policies and directs appropriate corrective action if an error is found. Similarly, corrective action may be required as the result of the adjudication of a grievance under a negotiated grievance procedure. When corrective action is required, Broadcasting will report promptly to the MSPB/recognized Union that the action has been taken.

Section 770

SEPARATION - DISQUALIFICATION

771.1 Definition - Separation - Disqualification is the separation of an employee from a competitive service position during a probationary period, or of an employee from an excepted position during a trial period for one of the following reasons:

- a. Performance or conduct after appointment;
- b. Failure to meet physical requirements for the position or other conditions specified at the time of appointment; or
- c. Receipt of information by Broadcasting which, if known prior to appointment, would have disqualified the individual for employment.

771.2 Related Information

a. Policies and procedures for evaluating the performance and conduct of employees serving probationary or trial periods are published in MOA V-A 450.

b. Procedures for separating an employee on the basis of performance or conduct are published in MOA V-A 560.

772 SEPARATION OF AN EMPLOYEE SERVING A PROBATIONARY OR TRIAL PERIOD FOR CONDUCT BEFORE APPOINTMENT - The following procedures apply to the separation of an employee serving a probationary or trial period based in whole or in part on conduct prior to appointment, such as falsifying an application for employment or other acts which, if known would have disqualified the individual for the appointment:

a. The Office of Personnel gives the employee an advance written notice stating the reasons for the proposed separation, specifically and in detail.

b. The employee is entitled to a reasonable time for filing a written answer to the notice of proposed action and for furnishing affidavits in support of his or her answer. The time to respond will not exceed 15 calendar days unless the employee requests and is granted an extension. The employee has the right to be represented by a person of his or her choosing.

c. If the employee answers, Personnel considers the answer in reaching a decision.

d. Personnel informs the employee in writing of the decision. The answer:

(1) Is delivered to the employee in advance of the effective date.

(2) Informs the employees of the specific reasons on which the decision is based.

(3) Informs the employee of his or her right of appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB).

(4) Informs the employee of the time limit within which an appeal must be submitted to the MSPB.

773 SEPARATION OF AN EMPLOYEE WHO HAS BEEN EMPLOYED FOR MORE THAN ONE YEAR FOR CONDUCT BEFORE APPOINTMENT

a. The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) may instruct Broadcasting to remove or take other disciplinary action against an employee when an official OPM investigator finds that the employee is not qualified or suitable for employment. The following outlines the procedure to be followed.

b. The OPM shall notify the employee in writing of the proposed action and of the charges against him or her. A copy of this notice is sent to the Office of Personnel and the Office of Security . The employee is entitled to 30 full calendar days advance notice and will be retained in an active duty status during the notice period. The employee may reply, both orally and in writing, and furnish affidavits in support of his or her answer. The employee has the right to be represented by a person of his or her choosing. The employee has 15 calendar days from the date of receipt of the notice in which to reply. The OPM shall consider any answer that the employee makes in reaching its decision.

c. In certain actions Broadcasting also may answer the notice of proposed action and has 15 calendar days in which to reply. The OPM shall consider Broadcasting's reply in making its decision. The OPM shall notify the employee and Broadcasting of its decision and of the appeal rights of the employee.

d. The decision shall be in writing, inform the employee of the reasons for the decision, and of the employee's right to appeal. An employee who appeals under this Section is entitled to be retained in an active duty status until action on his or her appeal is completed.

774 APPEALS

a. An employee separated under procedures referred to in paragraph 771.1 above may appeal to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) on the grounds that the separation was based on discrimination because of race, color, religion, age, sex, or improper discrimination because of a physical handicap; or to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) on the grounds of partisan politics, marital status or other prohibited personnel practices.

b. An employee separated under procedures described in paragraphs 772 or 773 above may, in addition to appealing on the ground described in paragraph a. immediately above, appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board on the grounds that the separation was not effected in accordance with the procedures described in paragraphs 772 or 773 above.

c. The appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board shall be in writing and shall set forth the employee's reasons for contesting the decision, with such offer of proof and pertinent documents as he or she is able to submit. The time limit for filing an appeal is 15 days from the date the employee receives the notice of decision. The MSPB may waive this time limit for good cause. An employee who appeals under this Section is entitled to be retained in an active duty status until action on his or her appeal is completed.

EMPLOYEE DEATH

781 RESPONSIBILITIES OF DECEASED EMPLOYEE'S ORGANIZATIONAL UNIT

When an employee dies, the responsibilities of the organizational unit to which the employee was assigned, will depend upon the circumstances of the death -- that is, whether death occurred while the employee was in duty status or under other circumstances.

781.1 Notifying Next of Kin - When death of an employee occurs while he or she is in duty status or in other circumstances which make it necessary to notify a next of kin, the employee's immediate supervisor or the head of the element should personally make the notification. When it is inappropriate or impractical to deliver the message in person, other appropriate means of rapid communication may be used. In either case, the official notifying the next of kin should offer whatever assistance the circumstances warrant. Name and location of next of kin can be obtained from administrative officers and locator cards, the Office of Personnel or the Office of Security.

781.2 Notice Received from Next of Kin - In most cases, when death of an employee occurs away from the job site, the employee's next of kin will contact the latter's immediate supervisor. In such instances, that official should obtain from the informant all pertinent facts concerning the death, including date, place and cause of death. Assurance should be given the informant that Broadcasting is prepared to render assistance appropriate to the circumstances. If the informant is other than the next of kin, his/her name, address and phone number should be noted.

781.3 Notifying the Office of the Director and Office of Personnel - The deceased employee's supervisor or element head should notify the Office of the Director and the Office of Personnel immediately after death occurs or becomes known, furnishing all available facts concerning the death.

781.4 Letter of Condolence - The deceased employee's element should prepare a letter of condolence to the next of kin for the signature of the Director within 24 hours of the death.

781.5 Memorial Services - When circumstances suggest that it is appropriate, the deceased employee's element head should consult with the employee's family on the holding of a memorial service on Broadcasting premises. After receiving the family's agreement, the employee's element head will be responsible for the organizing of a memorial service, including the drafting and distribution of an announcement giving time and location.

The deceased employee's element head is responsible for informing the Director of any scheduled memorial service, whether it is organized in Broadcasting or outside by the family or other parties.

782 RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE OFFICE OF PERSONNEL

782.1 Letter of Sympathy - Upon receipt of notification of the death by the deceased employee's element, the Office of Personnel shall send a letter of condolence to the next of kin, expressing sympathy, offering appropriate assistance in filing for benefits, and stating what information and documentation might be necessary from the next of kin.

782.2 Final Salary Clearance - The Office of Personnel initiates Clearance for Final Salary Payment, and forward it to the deceased employee's element for action. The Office of Personnel shall issue personnel actions and claims for benefits.

FURLOUGHS OF 30 DAYS OR LESS FOR NON-DISCIPLINARY REASONS

791 Introduction

791.1 Applicability

791.2 Authority

791.3 Objectives, Definitions and Policy

792 Procedures

793 Responsibilities

794 Rights and Entitlements During Periods of Furlough

Section 790

FURLOUGHS OF 30 DAYS OR LESS FOR NON-DISCIPLINARY REASONS

791 Introduction

791.1 Applicability -- This section except for statutory limitations (e.g., Presidential appointees), applies to all categories of Domestic employees, i.e., Competitive Service employees, including probationers; employees in temporary limited appointments in the competitive service; non-preference eligible employees in the excepted service; preference eligible employees in the excepted service; other categories of employees not covered by 5 USC 7511; and members of the Senior Executive Service.

PROVISIONS OF THIS REGULATION WHICH CONFLICT WITH PROVISIONS OF ANY NEGOTIATED AGREEMENT BETWEEN BROADCASTING AND LABOR ORGANIZATIONS REPRESENTING EMPLOYEES ARE NOT ENFORCEABLE UNLESS SUCH PROVISIONS HAVE EITHER LAPSED OR CHANGED BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT BETWEEN BROADCASTING AND SUCH LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

791.2 Authority -- 5 USC 3101, 5 USC 7511-13 and 5 CFR 359 and 752 authorize the Director , or designee, to furlough employees in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) .

791.3 Objectives, Definitions and Policies

a. As defined by 5 USC 7511(a)(5), a furlough is the placing of an employee in a temporary non-duty, non-pay status due to shortage of funds, temporary lack of work, or other non-disciplinary reasons.

b. Under these regulations Broadcasting may not furlough employees for more than 30 calendar days or 22 workdays.

c. Broadcasting will resort to furloughs only after exploring other means of meeting its needs and as an alternative to measures which would have a more serious impact on employees.

d. Part-time employees will be furloughed in proportion to their schedule.

e. Employees' rights and entitlements will be protected during periods of furlough to the extent permitted by statute and regulation. (See 794)

f. A reasonable effort will be made to accommodate expressed personal preferences of employees (e.g., a desire to combine leave and furlough into a consecutive period or desire to have some income every pay period) in scheduling any furloughs to the extent they are consistent with work requirements and budgetary constraints.

792 Procedures

a. The Director, or designee, will make the final decision on using furlough and on the extent and duration of furloughs as a means of responding to a shortage of funds, temporary lack of work, or other non-disciplinary reasons.

b. The Director of Personnel will implement the furlough in consultation with affected elements.

c. Employees will be given 30 days' advance written notice stating the specific reasons for the furlough and its duration. The advance notice of a proposed furlough shall include, but is not limited to:

(1) Reason for the furlough;

(2) Maximum length of the furlough (more definite and detailed specifications if known, e.g. the specific dates and length of the furlough);

(3) The basis for selecting a particular employee for furlough if not all employees in his/her competitive level are being furloughed;

(4) Notice as to the place where regulations and records pertinent to the action may be inspected;

(5) Right of employees to respond within 10 workdays to the proposed furlough;

(6) Entitlement to official time to prepare response;

(7) Entitlement to representation; and

(8) Entitlement to request Leave Without Pay (LWOP) in lieu of furlough.

However, in accordance with 5 CFR 752.404(d)(2) the advance written notice and opportunity to answer are not necessary for a furlough without pay due to unforeseeable circumstances, such as lapses of appropriations, sudden breakdowns in equipment, acts of God, or sudden emergencies requiring immediate curtailment of activities. In such cases, employees shall be given as much notice as feasible.

d. Except in the event of unforeseeable circumstances, employees who wish to respond to the notice of proposed furlough have up to ten workdays to do so either orally or in writing to the Director of Personnel or designee, with documentary evidence in support of their answer, if necessary. When an employee gives an oral response, Personnel will maintain a summary of the conversation and provide a copy to the employee.

e. Each employee will be entitled to a reasonable amount (normally up to four hours) of official time to prepare his/her response. Employee representatives also shall be entitled to such a reasonable amount of official time to assist employees in their responses.

f. Employees have a right, in accordance with Federal statute, to representation of their choice, except that in accordance with 5 CFR 752.404(e) the Director of Personnel may disallow the choice of an individual as a representative which would result in a conflict of interest or position, which would conflict with the priority needs of Broadcasting, or which would give rise to unreasonable costs to the Government.

g. Broadcasting's decision will be submitted in writing as soon as reasonably possible. The notice of decision to furlough shall include but is not limited to:

(1) Decision;

(2) Maximum length of furlough (more definite and detailed specifications if known);

(3) Invitation to employees to submit for management's consideration their preferences as to the specific day(s) on which they would prefer to have their furlough scheduled, if appropriate;

(4) Entitlement to request LWOP in lieu of furlough;

(5) Prohibition on unpaid voluntary services;

(6) General information on entitlements listed in paragraph 794a and c through k; and

(7) Unemployment compensation guidelines.

h. Non-bargaining unit employees covered by 5 U.S.C. 7511 or Sub-Parts C and D of 5 CFR 752 may appeal the decision to the Merit Systems Protection Boards (MSPB) after the furlough is initiated. Other employees may grieve the decision to the extent provided by administrative grievance procedures (MOA V-A 540).

793 Responsibilities

a. The Chief of the Labor and Employee Relations Division is the designated proposing official who will sign the notice of proposed furlough.

b. Oral and written responses may be directed to the Director of Personnel who will be responsible for making the final decision in each case.

c. Periods in furlough status will be documented in accordance with established procedures for recording personnel actions.

794 Rights and entitlements during periods of furlough

a. Broadcasting cannot accept the voluntary services of employees in furlough status.

b. Employees on detail or other assignment whose salaries are not paid out of the Salaries and Expenses account are not subject to furlough when the reason for the furlough is a shortage of funds.

c. Employees may engage in outside employment during periods of furlough in accordance with the guidelines in MOA V-A-550.

d. Employees who perform court duty during periods of furlough may retain the court pay.

e. An employee may not be placed on paid leave in lieu of furlough, except in cases of furloughs resulting from a lapse of appropriation. In such cases, employees granted (prior to the lapse) accrued leave to begin prior to or after the lapse may be permitted to use such leave.

f. Employees will not be furloughed on holidays, i.e., will not be involuntarily placed in a non-pay status on a holiday.

g. Enrollment in health plans continues during furlough but employees are liable for payment of their share of the enrollment costs during such periods. Employees' share of enrollment costs will be deducted from any remaining biweekly pay. If such pay is insufficient to pay these costs, employees may pay the costs during or after returning from a furlough by check or payroll deduction. (There is a 365 day limit on enrollment in a non-pay status.)

h. Life insurance coverage remains in effect without cost to the employees while in furlough status. (There is a 12 consecutive month limit on enrollment in a non-pay status.)

i. Retirement contributions during periods of furlough are in proportion to the basic pay of the employee.

j. An aggregate of no more than six months of non-pay/furlough status in a year is creditable service in computing annual leave accrual rates. When a full time employee accumulates 80 hours in non-pay status, including furlough, his/her annual and sick leave balances are reduced by the number of hours accrued in a pay period.

k. For entitlement to within-grade increases, an aggregate of two workweeks in non-pay/furlough status extends the waiting period for steps 2, 3, and 4 of the General Schedule by a like amount; an aggregate of more than four workweeks extends the waiting period for steps 5, 6, and 7 by a like amount; and an amount in excess of six workweeks extends the waiting period for steps 8, 9, and 10 by a like amount. For prevailing rate employees (WG, WL, and WS schedules), an aggregate of more than one workweek in a non-pay/furlough status extends the waiting period for step 2, more than three weeks for step 3, and more than four weeks for steps 4 and 5 extends the waiting period by a like amount. For Wage Board employees under the WB schedule, an aggregate of more than two workweeks in a non-pay/furlough status extends the waiting period for a step increase. Time in excess of these amounts shall extend a waiting period by the excess amount. Time spent in furlough status will count as creditable service for time-in-grade (and time-after-competitive appointment) requirements. Specific information on these and other entitlements may be obtained from the Personnel Office.

809 Terminating Appointments

Section 800

EXPERTS AND CONSULTANTS

801 COVERAGE - This section contains policies, regulations, and procedures for appointing experts and consultants as employees in the excepted service outside of the competitive civil service and classification laws, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, OMB Circular No. A-120, "Guidelines for the use of Advisory and Assistance Services," dated January 4, 1988, and regulations issued by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). The regulations in this section also apply to individual expert and consultant services procured by contract if an employer-employee, rather than an independent contractor relationship is created. An employer-employee relationship that is subject to this section exists when a person is:

- (1) Appointed or employed in the civil service by a Federal officer or employee performing in an official capacity,
- (2) Engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act, and
- (3) Supervised and directed by a Federal official or employee.

Broadcasting also may use the services of experts and consultants under procurement contract/purchase order.

802 APPOINTMENT AUTHORITY AND USE OF EXPERTS AND CONSULTANTS

802.1 Authority

a. 5 U.S.C. 3109 provides that the head of any department or agency, when authorized in an appropriation or other Act, may hire experts and consultants on a temporary basis (not in excess of one year) or on an intermittent basis (no scheduled tour of duty for 130 days or less in a service year) without regard to the civil service and classification laws. This excepted appointment authority imposes the following conditions:

- (1) The positions must be bona fide expert or consultant positions;
- (2) Persons employed must be experts or consultants qualified to perform the duties of the positions;
- (3) The needed services must be of such a nature that Broadcasting can meet the need by temporary (one year or less) or intermittent employment. Broadcasting may not use this authority to fill a continuing full-time job.
- (4) Policy-making and managerial work characteristic of SES positions is not assigned.

b. Appointments under this authority may be made without individual prior approval by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). However, all appointment documents pertaining to experts and consultants are subject to review by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) as part of its general and/or special evaluation of Broadcasting.

802.2 Use of Experts and Consultants

a. The proper use of expert and consultant services is a normal, legitimate, and economical way to improve Broadcasting's decision-making, policy development, or management systems. When essential to the mission of Broadcasting, expert and consultant services may be used to:

- (1) obtain outside points of view to avoid too limited judgment on significant issues;
- (2) obtain advice on developments in industry, university, or foundation research;
- (3) obtain the opinions, special knowledge, or skills of noted experts whose national or international prestige can contribute to the success of important projects;
- (4) enhance the understanding of, and develop alternative solutions to, complex issues;
- (5) support and improve the operation of organizations;
- (6) ensure the more efficient or effective operation of managerial or hardware systems; and
- (7) secure the advisory participation of citizens to develop or implement Government programs that by their nature or by statute call for citizen participation.

b. Examples of improper employment of an expert or a consultant are to: give a particular person temporary or intermittent appointment solely in anticipation of a career-conditional appointment; perform a job that can be done as well by regular employees; perform a full-time continuous job; avoid competitive employment procedures; avoid General Schedule pay limits; or bypass competitive employment procedures; aid in influencing or enacting legislation; or perform work of a policy, decision-making, or managerial nature which is the direct responsibility of Broadcasting officials.

803 DEFINITIONS (5 CFR 304.102)

803.1 An Expert is a person who is specially qualified by education and experience to perform difficult and challenging tasks in a particular field beyond the usual range of achievement of competent persons in that field. An expert is regarded by other persons in the field as an authority or practitioner of unusual competence and skill in a professional, scientific, technical or other activity.

803.2 A Consultant is a person who can provide valuable and pertinent advice generally drawn from a high degree of broad administrative, professional, or technical knowledge or experience. When an agency requires public advisory participation, a consultant also may be a person who is affected by a particular program and can provide useful views from personal experience.

803.3 A Temporary position means employment not to exceed one year. An expert or consultant serving under a temporary appointment may have a full-time, part-time, seasonal, or intermittent work schedule.

803.4 An expert position is one that requires the services of a specialist with skills superior to those of others in the same profession, occupation, or activity to perform work on a temporary and/or intermittent basis assigned by a federal official. For example, a microbial contamination specialist may apply new test methods to identify bacteria on products, a computer scientist may adapt advanced methods to develop a complex software system, or a plate maker may engrave a novel design.

803.5 A consultant position is one that requires providing advice, views, opinions, alternatives, or recommendations on a temporary and/or intermittent basis on issues, problems, or questions presented by a federal official.

803.6 Intermittent Appointment

a. An intermittent appointment is for employment which involves only occasional or irregular services (as distinguished from continuous employment) and is limited to work on projects requiring intermittent services. WHEN AN INTERMITTENT EXPERT OR CONSULTANT WORKS MORE THAN ONE-HALF OF FULL-TIME EMPLOYMENT; i.e., HE OR SHE IS PAID FOR ALL OR ANY PART OF A DAY MORE THAN 130 DAYS IN A SERVICE YEAR, THE EMPLOYMENT AUTOMATICALLY CEASES TO BE INTERMITTENT AND BECOMES TEMPORARY. As such, it is subject to the one-year limitation applicable to temporary appointments and renders the employee subject to all regulations governing temporary appointees. Intermittent appointments can be renewed from year to year.

b. The services of an expert or consultant employed on an intermittent basis may be utilized by more than one element of Broadcasting provided the individual is not paid for the same hours of the same day by more than one element and provided, further, that appropriate appointment documents for work performed for each element are completed.

803.7 A Tour of Duty is a regularly scheduled period of work, either full-time or part-time, with the specific days and hours of duty stipulated. The term refers only to the work schedule and not to the duration of the appointment.

803.8 A Service Year is a 12-month period beginning with the date of initial appointment.

804 RESPONSIBILITIES

804.1 Employing Offices - Offices wishing to employ experts or consultants must:

a. Obtain the approval of the Director of Broadcasting or his/her designee to engage the services of an expert or consultant. The request should be in memorandum form with sufficient information to enable the Director to make a decision.

b. Once the request is approved, the employing office must submit to the Office of Personnel, a detailed justification for the position, including a certification to the effect that such services will not unnecessarily duplicate any previously performed work or services; a description of duties and responsibilities; an estimate of the duration of the appointment; whether the appointment is on a temporary (full-time or part-time) or intermittent basis; if on a temporary basis, the prearranged scheduled days and hours of work per day and entitlement to annual and sick leave; proposed salary rate which is on an hourly basis unless an exception is granted for pay on a daily basis in accordance with subsection 805.1; whether travel expenses for intermittent appointees are authorized; the assurance that the employment is within authorized budget, and a description of and methods for administering, monitoring, and evaluating the work or services to ensure that performance meets the standards and requirements. of Broadcasting. In addition, a request must be accompanied by an SF-171, curriculum vitae, resume, or a description of the appointee's background and qualifications in enough detail to show suitability for the position.

c. Ensure that experts and consultants are used for the purpose for which appointed.

d. Maintain the attendance record of each appointee, pay appointees only for hours actually worked, unless an exception has been granted in accordance with subsection 805.1, submit to Finance the time and attendance card for each pay period that the expert or consultant works, and submit to Personnel a quarterly report certifying the number of days and hours worked and that the appointee is performing only the duties for which appointed.

e. Inform Personnel when a change in the type of appointment is needed (termination, conversion or renewal).

804.2 Certifying Official - The Director of Broadcasting (or his/her designee), as appropriate, is responsible for certifying in a memo to Personnel that:

a. The position is necessary.

b. The position is a "consultant or expert" position as defined by OPM.

c. The work is either temporary or intermittent in nature, as these terms are defined above in subsections 803.3 and 803.6, respectively.

d. Proper methods are in place for administering, monitoring, and evaluating the work or services to ensure that performance meets Broadcasting's standards and requirements.

e. The proposed appointee possesses the kind and level of expertise which will permit him or her to render the services needed by Broadcasting.

f. The proposed salary rate is commensurate with the level of work to be performed and the appointee's qualifications for the work as well as comparable salaries in the private sector.

g. Required documentation is in order.

804.3 The Office of Personnel is responsible for:

a. Assisting and advising employing offices in matters relating to the appointment of experts and consultants.

b. Processing security forms and (Confidential Statement of Employment and Financial Interests), preparing Consultant Certificates and SF-50s, and overseeing all entrance-on-duty procedures.

c. Coordinating with GC, ensures Broadcasting's compliance with all laws and regulations governing employment of experts and consultants.

d. Conducting quarterly reviews of experts and consultants and preparing a record of the quarterly review.

804.4 The Office of the General Counsel (GC) shall review all proposed appointments of experts and consultants to ensure compliance with laws and regulations governing conflicts of interest.

804.5 The Office of Budget shall submit an annual report of experts and consultants costs to the employing offices and to the BBG and the Director of Broadcasting.

805 RATES OF COMPENSATION

805.1 Salary Rates - Experts and consultants on either temporary or intermittent appointments will be compensated only for those hours actually worked. Exceptions to this policy may be approved by the Director of Personnel when necessary. In cases where the exception is made, the remarks on the SF-50 (Notification of Personnel Action) will show "full daily rate authorized for all days on which work is performed." In cases where no exception is made, the remarks on the SF-50 will read "one-eighth of the daily rate authorized for hours of work performed but not to exceed the full daily rate." The appointment document shall clearly stipulate the tour of duty and the method of compensation. Experts and consultants with a regular scheduled tour of duty (i.e., not intermittent) are entitled to sick and annual leave in accordance with chapter 63 of Title 5 of the U.S. Code, and to pay for any holiday occurring on a work day for which they perform no work, provided that workday is part of the basic work week. Experts and consultants employed on an intermittent basis are not entitled to paid holidays. The SF-50 should also indicate whether the appointee is entitled to annual and sick leave or leave without pay (LWOP), if appropriate (see 808.4). The rate to be paid will conform as closely as possible to General Schedule (GS) rates; i.e., the maximum rate payable shall be the hourly rate for the top step of GS-15, as determined by the Director of Broadcasting (or his/her designee), on the basis of the level of difficulty of the work to be done, the qualifications of the appointee, and the availability of such services in the labor market.

805.2 Premium Pay

a. Temporary or Intermittent Appointments - Experts and consultants with either temporary (full-time or part-time) or intermittent appointments under 5 U.S.C. 3109 are not entitled to more than the daily rate (eight times the hourly rate) prescribed in the appointment documents for hours actually worked, regardless of the total number of hours worked in a day or for work outside the employee's tour of duty. For example, if an employee works six days a week, the sixth day is paid at the straight time rather than the overtime rate.

b. Most experts and consultants are exempt from the minimum wage and overtime pay provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) since they perform such services in professional or administrative positions which are exempt from the Act.

c. Unless the appointment document (SF-50) provides that General Schedule increases under 5 U.S.C. 5305 (the annual comparability pay increase) will apply to experts and consultants automatically and without administrative action authorizing a consequent increase under 5 U.S.C. 5307, an expert or consultant is not entitled to a pay increase on the basis of an increase in the General Schedule, or to increases resulting from locality pay.

d. A Civil Service annuitant under the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) or Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS) who provides temporary or intermittent services as an expert or consultant is subject to the daily or hourly set-off provisions. A Foreign Service annuitant under the Foreign Service Retirement and Disability System (FSRDS) and Foreign Service Pension System (FSPS) receives full salary, but is subject to annuity limits in Section 824 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended.

805.3 Unpaid Employment. In the absence of a statute prescribing the amount of compensation to be paid, an expert or consultant may serve without pay. An expert or consultant, appointed under authority of section 3109, must submit to Personnel, a written agreement that waives all rights to compensation for services performed under the appointment. The waiver is retained as a permanent record in the employee's Official Personnel Folder.

806 EMPLOYMENT

806.1 Pre-appointment Review - Each proposed appointment or extension of an existing appointment of an expert or consultant must be reviewed and certified as a correct action by the Director of Broadcasting (or his/her designee). The certification shall be retained among the permanent records in each appointee's Official Personnel Folder.

806.2 Requirements for Appointment

a. Security Investigation - Experts and consultants are subject to the same security requirements as are all other appointees.

b. Qualification Standards - Consistent with the definitions set forth in subsections 803.1 and 803.2, experts and consultants must meet the qualifications standards established for regular employees, as well as the qualifications required in the specialized fields for which they are hired. They will be required to file either an SF-171 (Personnel Qualifications Statement), or an equivalent biographic data sheet prior to approval of their appointment by the Director.

806.3 Political Activity Restrictions - Experts and consultants are subject to the same political activity restrictions as are all Broadcasting employees.

806.4 Statement of Employment and Financial Interests - Experts and consultants, except those appointed to serve as Public Members on Foreign Service Selection Boards, must complete (Confidential Statement of Employment and Financial Interests) for submission to GC. The form should be completed at least ten days prior to the time of appointment or re-appointment and within 30 days of any change in employment or financial interests. (See MOA V-A/V-B 550 for procedural instructions.)

806.5 Conflicts of Interest - See 3 FAM section 620 through 629 and MOA V-A/V-B-550 for pertinent regulations.

806.6 Establishing Files and Records - An official personnel folder shall be established for each appointee, and shall include an Application for Federal Employment (either a complete SF-171 or equivalent biographic data); a Position Description (OF-8) or similar document; a certification by the Director , or designee, that the appointment or extension of appointment is a correct action; an Appointment Affidavit (SF-61); and Notification of Personnel Action (SF-50).

806.7 Re-appointments

a. General Rules - Intermittent appointments may be renewed from year to year; temporary appointments may not. The following are the exceptions to these general rules:

b. Re-appointment to the Same Position - An expert or consultant who served under a temporary appointment (i.e.; service exceeded 130 days) in one service year may be re-appointed the next year to the same position only under unusual and compelling circumstances, and only on a purely intermittent basis. Any such case must include a certification by approving officials that the special circumstances have been reviewed and that the extension of the appointment has been found to be justified and appropriate. When the number of days of intermittent work exceeds 130, the appointment must be terminated.

c. Re-appointment to a Different Position - The fact that an expert or consultant served under a temporary appointment in one service year does not rule out a new appointment the next year to a position having duties and responsibilities that are recognizably different from those of the previous assignment and that cannot be considered a continuation, outgrowth, or extension of that assignment. The basis for the conclusion that the positions are in fact different must be documented in the employee's Official Personnel Folder. However, such re-appointments will be approved by the Director , or designee, only in very exceptional circumstances inasmuch as re-appointments resulting in service for more than two consecutive years on a regular basis, even when different positions are involved, give the appearance of continuing employment and are made only after the Director has given careful consideration to all the circumstances involved. Such a determination will be made a matter of record and will be placed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder.

807 TRAVEL EXPENSES

807.1 Temporary Appointments - Experts and consultants serving under temporary appointments are not reimbursed for expenses for travel between their home or place of business and location of Federal employment; nor do they receive per diem in lieu of subsistence for such travel. They are, however, reimbursed for travel expenses and are entitled to per diem in lieu of subsistence in accordance with Federal Travel Regulations (FTR) when in officially authorized travel status. For additional information on authorized travel expenses and per diem in lieu of subsistence, see MOA-IV-640.

807.2 Intermittent Appointments - Experts and consultants serving under intermittent appointments are eligible for reimbursement for travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, while away from their homes or regular places of business in official travel status, or while proceeding to or from Broadcasting, in accordance with the FTR. For additional information, see MOA-IV-640.

808 BENEFITS AND LEAVE

808.1 Retirement and Social Security - Intermittent or temporary experts and consultants appointed for one year or less are excluded from Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) and Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS) coverage. They are covered by the provisions of the Social Security Act, subject to the following exceptions:

a. An expert or consultant who is not receiving a CSRS or FERS annuity and who is appointed following employment covered by CSRS or FERS either without a break in service, or with a break in service of three calendar days or less, continues to be covered by that system.

b. An expert or consultant who is receiving a Civil Service (CSRS or FERS) annuity is excluded from both Civil Service Retirement (CSRS or FERS) and Social Security coverage during the term of his or her appointment. However, a Civil Service (CSRS or FERS) annuitant is subject to the Medicare hospital insurance portion of the Social Security tax.

c. An expert or consultant who is receiving an annuity under the Foreign Service Retirement and Disability System (FSRDS) or Foreign Service Pension System (FSPS) is subject to full Social Security tax.

808.2 Federal Employees Group Life Insurance - Experts and consultants are excluded from Federal Employees Group Life Insurance coverage subject to the following exception. An expert or consultant serving under a temporary appointment (full-time or part-time) with a prearranged duty tour who is appointed without a break in service, or with a break in service of three calendar days or less, following employment in which he or she was insured, continues to be insured unless he or she executes a waiver of insurance. The expert or consultant can continue life insurance coverage only if there is an expectation that the individual will return to the previous position on a full-time basis.

808.3 Federal Employees Health Benefits - Experts and consultants are excluded from Federal Employees Health Benefits coverage subject to the following exception. An expert or consultant who is not receiving a Civil Service or Foreign Service retirement annuity and who is appointed on a full-time basis or on a part-time basis with a prearranged tour of duty without a break in service, or with a break in service of three calendar days or less, following employment in which he or she was enrolled in a Federal Employees Health Benefits plan, continues to be covered by that plan unless he or she executes an SF-2809 (Health Benefits Registration Form) canceling the enrollment.

808.4 Annual and Sick Leave

a. Temporary Experts and Consultants - Experts and consultants serving under full-time appointments or part-time appointments with a prearranged tour of duty:

(1) Earn and use annual and sick leave on the same basis as other full-time and part-time employees.

(a) Annual leave may be used during the first 90 days of employment, if the appointment is for 90 days or longer. If an appointment is for less than 90 days, the employee is not entitled to annual leave until after being employed for a continuous period of 90 days under successive appointments without a break in service.

(b) Sick leave to the employee's credit at the time of a prior separation from the Federal service is re-credited, provided that the break in service preceding the expert or consultant's appointment is not in excess of three years and subject to the exception that sick leave used in computing the annuity of any expert or consultant who is an annuitant under the Civil Service or Foreign Service Retirement System is not re-credited.

(c) Annual leave, sick leave, or leave without pay, as appropriate, is charged for absences during the regularly scheduled tour of duty.

b. Intermittent Experts and Consultants - Experts and consultants who are appointed on an intermittent basis, that is, with no regular tour of duty prescribed, are not entitled to annual and sick leave benefits.

808.5 Lump-Sum Payment for Unused Annual Leave for Experts and Consultants Who Are Re-employed Annuitants

a. Re-employed Civil Service Annuitants - The lump-sum payment for unused annual leave to be paid to a full-time or part-time consultant or expert who is a re-employed annuitant under CSRS or FERS is not reduced by the amount of his or her annuity.

b. Re-employed Foreign Service Annuitants - The lump-sum payment for unused annual leave to be paid to a full-time or part-time consultant or expert who is an annuitant under the FSRDS or FSPS is not "salary" within the meaning of that term in Section 824 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, and has no effect on annuity payments to which he or she is otherwise entitled.

809 TERMINATING APPOINTMENTS

a. The employing office requests that Personnel terminate the employment of an expert or consultant whose services are no longer needed or whose performance does not meet Broadcasting's standards.

b. Personnel issues a Form SF-50 terminating the appointment of an expert or consultant either upon the expiration of an appointment or when his or her services are no longer needed or when performance does not meet standards.

EMPLOYING NON-U.S. CITIZENS FOR DUTY IN THE UNITED STATES

821 INTRODUCTION

821.1 Purpose - The following material prescribes Broadcasting's policies, responsibilities, and procedures governing the employment in the United States of non-U.S. citizens in positions which require (1) services related to the translation or narration of colloquial speech in foreign languages; (2) the preparation and production of foreign language programs; or (3) the selection, evaluation, editing, writing and adaptation of source material for use in foreign language programming.

821.2 Related Information - MOA V-B 870 prescribes procedures to be followed in overseas recruitment and hiring of non-U.S. citizens for duty in the United States.

821.3 Authority - The United States Information and Educational Exchange Act, P.L. 80-402, as amended, authorizes employment of non-U.S. citizens in the United States for the services described in 821.1 above when equally or better qualified U.S. citizens are not available.

822 POLICY

822.1 Employment and Promotion - Limitations

a. A non-U.S. citizen may be appointed only after reasonable efforts to recruit equally or better qualified U.S. citizens have been made and have been unsuccessful. A non-U.S. citizen may be employed or promoted only if no equally or better qualified U.S. citizen is available to perform the duties of the position. The determination as to whether a non-U.S. citizen is better qualified than a U.S. citizen will be based upon criteria established by Personnel to evaluate the qualifications of both citizens and non-citizens.

b. A non-U.S. citizen applicant will be required to qualify in the appropriate examination(s) and meet all other employment standards that apply to employment of U.S. citizens in such positions.

c. As a matter of Broadcasting policy, non-U.S. citizens will not be employed in or promoted to supervisory positions or positions which involve policy or program decision-making.

(1) Exceptions will be allowed only on an individual basis when the appropriate Office, or Service Head determines, with the concurrence of the Director of Personnel that the unavailability of an equally or better qualified U.S. citizen to perform such supervisory or managerial functions is not only significantly handicapping the ability of the Office, or Service to operate, but also is having an adverse impact on Broadcasting's mission.

(2) It is anticipated that positions for which an exception to the U.S. citizenship requirement would be considered will be graded no higher than the GS-13 grade level.

d. It is the policy of Broadcasting to have the terms of excepted (GG) appointments parallel the conditions of GS employment to the extent possible and practicable.

e. Under no circumstances will non-U.S. citizens be employed in circumvention of Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), Department of Labor, or Department of State regulations.

f. When a non-U.S. citizen employed by Broadcasting becomes a U.S. citizen, the current excepted appointment will be terminated as soon as practicable and the employee may be offered a competitive service appointment if his/her performance and conduct are satisfactory, if he/she is within reach on the appropriate Office of Personnel Management (OPM) register or another legal basis for competitive appointment exists, and if he/she obtains the appropriate clearance of the Office of Security. If the individual is not selected for a competitive service appointment or other appointment under an authority for hiring U.S. citizens, he or she will be separated from Broadcasting.

g. When an equally or better qualified U.S. citizen becomes available to fill a position occupied by a non-U.S. citizen, such U.S. citizen shall be employed as soon as practicable. (See 822.1a)

h. If a non-U.S. citizen is subject to displacement because an equally or better qualified U.S. citizen is available, his/her appointment will be terminated. The displaced non-U.S. citizen may be offered a new appointment to another position for which he/she is qualified if another position is available at the same or a lower grade level. If the position is at a lower grade level, and the higher-level position was held for a minimum of 90-days, the non-U.S. citizen will be placed at the salary level equivalent to his/her current salary, not to exceed the maximum range of the grade (i.e., step 10). If the displaced employee did not occupy the higher-level position for 90 days, salary will be set at step 1 of the grade or, if promoted from that grade, the step held immediately prior to the promotion to the higher-level position. The time spent at the higher level will be creditable for determination of WGI due date.

822.2 Termination - Non U.S.-citizen staff employees serve at the discretion of Broadcasting under the authority of P.L. 80-402, as amended. Accordingly, should such an employee's performance or conduct fall below an acceptable level, or if a need no longer exists for the employee's services, the employee's limited excepted appointment may be terminated at any time by the Director of Personnel. The employee will normally be given at least 30 days' advance notice prior to the effective date of termination.

822.3 Security

a. Official employee identification cards for limited access personnel will be issued by the Office of Security to non-U.S. citizen employees.

b. Non-U.S. citizen employees may not have access to classified material. Oral briefing is permitted on Secret, Confidential, and administratively controlled material, but not on material classified Top Secret.

c. Non-U.S. citizen employees may not be given responsibility for the opening or closing of bar-lock cabinets or safes containing classified or administratively controlled materials.

d. Safe combinations may not be made known to non-U.S. citizen employees.

823 RESPONSIBILITIES

823.1 Office of Personnel - is responsible for:

a. Assuring that a non-U.S. citizen is employed in a position covered by 821.1 of this section and only in the absence of available U.S. citizen candidates who are equally or better qualified than the non-citizen to perform the duties of the position.

b. Assuring that pre-employment processing, including approval of the Office of Security, of a non-U.S. citizen candidate is initiated only if the candidate's employment would be in accordance with the applicable regulations of the Departments of State and Labor and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

c. Taking appropriate action when notified of change in visa or citizenship status of non-U.S. citizen employees.

d. Offering and determining the duration of appointments.

e. Notifying employees of renewal or non-renewal of appointments.

f. Initiating disciplinary action, as necessary.

g. Terminating appointments.

823.2 Non-U.S. Citizen Employees

a. Each non-U.S. citizen employee is responsible for immediately informing the Office of Personnel, of any change in visa or citizenship status.

b. Each non-U.S. citizen employee must consult with Personnel before undertaking any employment outside Broadcasting.

824 CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT

824.1. Conditions applicable to all Non-U.S. Citizen Employees GG)

a. Annual and sick leave, holiday benefits, and premium pay will be accorded to non-U.S. citizen employees (GG appointees) in the same manner as GS employees.

b. Non-U.S. citizen employees are responsible for paying Federal and local taxes as required by law, including Federal, State, District of Columbia or local municipal taxes. Deductions are made from salaries when required by law or executive directive. All non-U.S. citizens on visas other than "J" and "F" will be subject to payroll deductions for Medicare coverage and Social Security taxes when applicable.

824.2 Conditions Applicable to Excepted Appointments (GG)

a. Basic Compensation - The basic compensation of an excepted employee serving in a GG position is the pay rate of the corresponding GS grade and step. Excepted employees serving in GG positions are eligible for within-grade step increases, including Quality Increases.

b. Health Benefits and Life Insurance - A non-citizen employee serving in an excepted (GG) position on an appointment not limited to one year or less, or on an extension of such an appointment, is eligible for coverage under the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program and the Federal Employees Group Life Insurance Program unless the employee is serving on a non-full-time appointment with no pre-arranged work schedule.

c. Retirement Coverage:

(1) A non-citizen employee, who, before January 1, 1984, served on an excepted (GG) appointment not limited to one year or less, or on an extension of such an appointment, is covered by the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS), and a seven percent contribution to the CSRS is withheld from the employee's basic pay. All but "J-1" and "F-1" visa holders also will be covered by Part A Medicare.

(2) A non-citizen employee holding a "J-1" or "F-1" visa who, at any time, served on an excepted (GG) appointment not limited to one year or less, or an extension of such an appointment, is covered by the CSRS and will pay seven percent of basic salary to the CSRS. Such employees are excluded from Medicare coverage. If such an employee initially was covered by CSRS on or after January 1, 1984, and later attains a change in visa status to other than "J-1" or "F-1", his or her coverage under CSRS will cease and will be converted to full Social Security and will contribute 1.3% of basic salary to the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS).

(3) A non-citizen employee holding a visa other than "J-1" or "F-1", hired on or after January 1, 1984, and serving on an excepted (GG) appointment not limited to one year or less, or an extension of such an appointment, is covered by full Social Security and will also contribute 1.3% of basic salary to the Federal Employees Retirement System.

825 EXCHANGE VISITOR PROGRAM G-1-120 (J-1 visa)

825.1 Authority and Reference - Under the authority of the U.S. Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1984, P.L. 80-402, as amended; the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961, P.L. 87-256, as amended; and the Immigration and Naturalization Act (66 Stat. 163), P.L. 414, as amended, the Exchange-Visitor Program G-1-120 (J-1 visa) has been designated by Broadcasting to bring to the United States foreign nationals (and their spouses and dependent children) who are especially qualified to perform as foreign language broadcasters, translators, producers, writers, editors, and for training of foreign broadcasters. Barring special circumstances, such as previous history of Broadcasting employing a non-citizen in a temporary worker's or other non-immigrant visa category, all non-immigrant foreign national employees will be brought to the United States as alien employees of Broadcasting. (8 CFR 214.2 (j); 22 CFR 514.2 and 514.23.)

825.2 Request for Waiver of the Two-Year Home-Country Physical Presence Requirement - A request for a waiver of the two-year home-country physical presence requirement pursuant to Broadcasting's authority as an "interested United States Government Agency" may be submitted to Consular Affairs at the Department of State by the Office of Personnel.

825.3 Criteria for Requests for Waiver

a. After receipt of a request for a waiver of the two-year home-country physical presence requirement, (as described above), GC shall consider the request, along with any other relevant information, and determine the following:

(1) whether the granting of a waiver would be in the public interest; and

(2) whether the exchange visitor's compliance with the two-year home-country physical presence requirement would be clearly detrimental to a program or activity of official interest to Broadcasting.

b. When a decision is made in favor of a request for a waiver of the two-year home-country physical presence requirement, GC will make a recommendation to the Waiver Review Office, Department of State, which will send its recommendation to the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS). The INS has the final authority to issue a waiver.

OFFER OF LONG TERM EMPLOYMENT

825.4 Within the first two years of employment a determination will be made on whether to offer an employee long-term employment. The Office of Personnel will contact the Service Chief six months prior to the end of the first two years of an individual's employment to initiate the review and decision-making process.

In extraordinary cases, Division Chiefs may elect to initiate the review after one year. In the very rare and exceptional case in which a decision on long-term employment cannot be made within the first two years of employment (e.g., employee absent for a prolonged period of time), an employee may be given a new temporary appointment of up to one additional year during which the decision must be made. Such an appointment must be justified by the Division Chief in writing and must have the approval of the Program Director and the concurrence of the Director of Personnel.

The criteria upon which management will base the determination on whether to offer an employee long-term employment are:

Performance by the employee which demonstrates fully his or her fitness and qualifications for continued employment. Normally, such performance is characterized as excellent or as having the potential to perform in an excellent manner;

Conduct by the employee which is fully professional;

Personal and/or character traits (e.g., willingness to accept supervision and cooperate with others and attitude towards work), which warrant continued employment;

Suitability and security standards are fully met by the employee;

Needs of the service, which includes consideration of such factors as:

Availability of other candidates and their relative skill levels;

The benefits of hiring new employees who could be expected to enhance the currency of the language usage, provide fresh understanding of the cultural and political environment of the target area, and/or provide fresh programming ideas.

Programming and staffing needs and anticipated future changes (e.g., increase or decrease in staff levels; changes in types of skills needed) the ability of the employee to meet these needs.

Based on these criteria, the Service Chief will make a recommendation as to whether the employee should or should not be offered long-term employment (and therefore, sponsorship), and forward this recommendation to the Division Chief. The Division Chief will review the recommendation and forward it with his or her own written recommendation and cover sheet to the Visa Coordinator, Office of Personnel, who will forward it to the Director of the Voice of America.

The VOA Director shall determine, with the concurrence of the Director of Personnel, whether to offer an appointment without time limitation and sponsorship. Once a final determination is reached, the employee is notified in writing of the decision. If he/she is not offered an appointment without time limitation, the employee must be advised of his/her opportunity to have the decision reconsidered by the Director of VOA.

825.5 Change in Visa Status

a. After (1) Broadcasting has determined that it is necessary and proper to retain the exchange visitor in its employ for an indeterminate period, a Labor Certification is requested and (2) a favorable recommendation for a waiver has been submitted to the INS, Broadcasting will then petition on behalf of the exchange visitor for the appropriate preference immigrant status. The Office of Personnel is designated to execute such petitions on behalf of Broadcasting.

b. Non-U.S. citizens, regardless of their visa status, are employed under a limited excepted (GG) appointment. Broadcasting's intervention to obtain a change in visa status in no way obligates Broadcasting to employ permanently any non-U.S. citizen.

826 ROTATIONAL ASSIGNMENT (VOICE OF AMERICA ONLY)

826.1 Purpose

a. In order to attract and maintain the optimum overseas audience, VOA must maintain current idiomatic language capability and understanding of the cultural environment of the target areas.

b. In support of the above, broadcasters for selected language services will be assigned to rotational positions within VOA for pre-determined periods in order to:

- (1) enhance the currency of the language service;
- (2) provide the service with fresh understanding of the cultural, social, and political environment of the target area, and
- (3) establish and maintain friendly, mutually beneficial relations with foreign countries and/or radio networks.

826.2 Designation of Rotational Positions

a. VOA Division Chiefs, as appropriate, may recommend to the VOA Program Director, a number of their International Radio Broadcasting (IRB) positions as "rotational," within the existing allotment.

(1) Division Chiefs will recommend designating individual positions as "rotational" as they are vacated.

(2) Positions designated as "rotational" will not be filled by individuals other than on time limited non-renewable appointments.

b. Because of situations which may handicap recruitment in certain overseas areas, rotational assignments will not be appropriate in all VOA language services.

c. "Rotational" positions will be reserved for individuals whose appointments to VOA as IRB's are time limited, with the mutual understanding that at the end of a pre-determined period (of between 13-36 months) their appointment will terminate without renewal.

d. The Office of Personnel will control positions identified by language services as "rotational."

e. In unusual cases, such as where recruitment sources are cut off, the interests of VOA may warrant re-designation of "rotational" positions. In such instances, the Division Chief will submit in writing justification for recommending removal of the "rotational" identifier from the position to the Director of Personnel or designee. Personnel will make a recommendation to the VOA Program Director, whose decision will be final.

826.3 Rotational Assignment - Recruitment

a. Rotational assignments to language service positions will be coordinated through overseas posts as part of agreements with:

- (1) foreign governments
- (2) foreign commercial networks
- (3) individuals

b. The Office of Personnel will work with the VOA Program area divisions in identifying adequate lead time to ensure a "pipeline" recruitment process which supplies a continual flow of candidates for "rotational" positions. Contracts signed in advance will be subject to the successful completion of the required security and medical clearances.

c. Personnel will coordinate all pre-appointment communication with candidates for "rotational" positions regarding conditions of their appointments at VOA. Personnel will secure written acceptance and understanding of the limited nature of the appointment from each candidate before the appointment is effected.

d. Candidates for "rotational" positions must pass the appropriate examinations for civil service employment administered under the auspices of Personnel by examiners and at test sites authorized by Personnel. The exams will be evaluated at VOA before an offer of employment may be made.

e. The Office of Personnel will coordinate with the language services appropriate orientation for individuals at VOA on rotation at least 30 days before their arrival.

826.4 Rotational Assignment - Expiration of Appointment

a. The appointment of a broadcaster in a rotational position may be terminated based on performance, conduct, or needs of the service at any time during the appointment.

b. Approximately 90 days before expiration of a "rotational" appointment, Personnel will remind the incumbent in writing of the impending expiration of the appointment so that he/she may begin preparation for departure.

c. The appointments of employees in the "rotational" program will not be extended. Only in rare circumstances, when the Division Chief has certified in writing that the language service will be seriously impaired by the loss of the employee, will Personnel make a review of the case, and it may recommend to the Program Director that the employee be appointed to a vacant non-rotational position.

Section 840

TEMPORARY EMPLOYMENT OF U.S. CITIZENS AS AUTHORIZED BY PUBLIC LAW 80-402, AS AMENDED

a. Section 801(5), Public Law 80- 402 provides that Broadcasting may ". . . employ persons on a temporary basis without regard to the civil service and classification laws, when such employment is provided for by the pertinent Appropriation Act. . ."

b. Such temporary employment has been provided for in each appropriation act covering the information program since 1949. The amount appropriated for such employment is included in the yearly appropriation act. Thus, the maximum amount Broadcasting may spend collectively in any fiscal year for employment of U.S. citizens domestically and/or overseas on a temporary basis outside the normal Civil Service rules is governed by the appropriation act of the current fiscal year. This includes employment by contract or purchase order.

c. Section 804(1) of Public Law 80-402 provides the same authority for employment of non-U.S. citizens (aliens) without a monetary limitation.

842 DEFINITION - Temporary employment is defined as an appointment limited to a period not to exceed one year.

843 POLICIES

a. Wherever possible, civil service and other established regular processes will be used to appoint persons to fill temporary as well as continuing positions in Broadcasting.

b. The special authority for temporary employment contained in P.L. 80-402 and Broadcasting's Appropriation Act will not be used to evade such established processes, but may be used to appoint persons on a temporary basis whenever the established processes do not meet the requirements of Broadcasting.

c. Broadcasting's authority for temporary employment is unlimited by its own terms with respect to functions that may be performed by appointees thereunder and with respect to circumstances under which appointments may be made. The authority is circumscribed only by the dollar limitation and the requirement that the employment be temporary.

d. In the interests of orderly administration, criteria for temporary employment under Broadcasting's authority are provided in the examples below.

(1) Employment of a person for a temporary period during which civil service eligibility is being established or civil service certification for appointment is being obtained. Such an appointment will not be made unless there is reasonable expectation that the person can establish civil service eligibility for appointment during the period of temporary employment. The person will be terminated if he/she fails to qualify during the period of temporary employment.

(2) Temporary employment of persons qualified to work on urgent projects when priority requirements do not provide sufficient time to follow normal civil service procedures for appointment and regular full-time staff is not available for the work.

(3) Temporary employment of specialist or persons with unusual skills needed on an urgent basis to perform services on priority projects when their qualifications are too highly specialized or unique to be evaluated through normal civil service examinations and qualified regular full-time staff is not available for the work.

(4) Temporary employment of persons to staff short-term projects when persons available through normal civil service processes are not available for temporary employment.

(5) Other circumstances of urgent need and/or unavailability of qualified persons through normal processes, as determined by the Director.

e. No single appointment for any one individual will extend beyond one year.

f. Each specific instance involving use of this temporary employment authority must have the prior approval of the Director or designee.

844 PROCEDURES - In all cases in which it is proposed that this temporary employment authority be used, the following procedures will apply:

844.1 Initial Appointment

a. The head of the organizational element proposing the temporary employment of an individual under this authority will submit to the Director, Office of Personnel a Standard Form 171 or other detailed biographic and qualifications data, together with a complete statement of proposed duties and a statement concerning the individual's specific qualifications for the position.

b. The Director, Office of Personnel will review the case in terms of the policies listed in paragraph 843 and determine if the need can be met through normal civil service processes, either by the use of such processes for the individual proposed, or in obtaining other qualified individuals.

c. If the Director, Office of Personnel determines that a qualified person is not available through established civil service processes, and that the proposed action is in accordance with the policies outlined above, he/she will forward the file to the Director or designee with a recommendation for approval.

d. If the Director, Office of Personnel finds that the policy criteria have not been met, he will recommend disapproval by the Director or designee.

e. Upon approval by the Director or designee, the file will be returned to the Director, Office of Personnel who will advise the requesting official and take steps to initiate necessary clearances and to process the appointment. The nature of action will be "Excepted Appointment (Temporary NTE )", the authority will be "Section 801(5), Public Law 402, 80th Congress," and "(Limitation Funds)" will be entered in the appropriation block after the allotment number.

844.2 Renewal of Appointment

a. More than one temporary appointment for the same person may be approved by the Director or designee, but if the aggregate of such appointments totals more than one year of service, each additional temporary appointment will be reviewed by the Director or designee to determine the necessity for such continued employment.

b. The head of an Office proposing to retain the services of a person employed under this temporary authority beyond one year will submit a justification for the continued employment to the Director of Personnel. The justification must demonstrate clearly the necessity for retaining the employee, must certify that the work to be performed is not of a continuing character and must set a definite time limit, which in no case will exceed one year, during which the temporary work assignment will be completed. The request and justification must be submitted sufficiently in advance of the proposed effective date of the appointment to allow time for consideration of the request and processing of the appointment (if approved) prior to the proposed effective date. The Director, Office of Personnel will review the request and justification in terms of the policies and requirements of this section and submit the request and justification with his or her recommendations to the Director or designee. Upon approval or disapproval by the Director or designee, the Office of Personnel will notify the head of the Office of the decision and process any appointment which is approved.

c. Employment of the same person under a series of temporary appointment which will aggregate more than two years of service will not be approved except in the most exceptional circumstances. Any temporary appointment that will continue the employment of a person for more than two years must have the personal prior approval of the Director.

845 CLASSIFICATION AND COMPENSATION

845.1 General Classification Plan

a. Positions to be filled through use of this authority for temporary employment are not subject to the Classification Act of 1949, as amended, and are allocated to an exempted schedule (GG) and are assigned grade levels patterned after those for Classification-Act positions ,GS-1 through GS-15.

b. Substantially the same standards and guides are used in allocating positions to grade levels in the exempted schedule as are used for Classification-Act positions.

c. Job descriptions are required by Broadcasting for administrative purposes and will be prepared and submitted as for other positions.

845.2 Rates of Pay

- a. Basic Rates of Compensation are the same as those for comparable grades in the general schedule.
- b. Determining Rates of Pay - In general, the rules for determining rates of pay are substantially the same as those for Classification-Act employees (MOA V-A-230).
- c. Within-Grade Increases are not provided by law, but the exempted schedule provides for successive steps within an exempted schedule grade, and within-grade increases may be given, in the same manner as within - grade increases are given to other employees, to persons appointed under this authority who attain eligibility for such increases (MOA V-A-235).
- d. Additional Compensation - Employees appointed under this authority are eligible for overtime, night and holiday pay under the same terms and conditions as other employees (MOA V-A-240).
- e. General Compensation Restrictions - Employees appointed under this authority are subject to the same general compensation restrictions as other employees (MOA V-A-250).

846 CONDITIONS OF SERVICE

- a. In general, persons appointed under this authority serve under the same terms and conditions as other temporary employees of Broadcasting.
- b. They may not be detailed nor permanently transferred or assigned to the work of a position in the competitive service.
- c. They are subject to the performance-rating plan of Broadcasting. (MOA V-A-450).
- d. They are not eligible for Federal Employees Group Life Insurance unless they were appointed without a break in service or after a separation of three days or less, following service in which they were insured (MOA V-A-501).
- e. They are not covered by the Civil Service Retirement Act unless they retain eligibility for coverage by reason of continuous previous service under the Act (MOA V-A-502).
- f. They are covered by Social Security (FICA) unless they are under Civil Service Retirement (MOA V-A-503).
- g. They may be eligible for unemployment compensation benefits if other terms and conditions are met (MOA V-A-504).
- h. They are covered by the Federal Employees Compensation Act (MOA V-A-505).
- i. They are not eligible for Federal Employees Health Benefits unless they were appointed without a break in service or after a separation of three days or less following service in which they were enrolled under the Health Benefits Program (MOA V-A-507).

j. They are subject to rules of conduct (MOA V-A-550).

k. In general, the rules and procedures on discipline apply (MOA V-A-560).

847 HOURS OF DUTY AND LEAVE

a. Temporary appointees under this authority ordinarily will be given a regular tour of duty (full-or-part time) in accordance with the rules and conditions described in MOA V-A-600.

b. Temporary appointees with a regular tour of duty are eligible for annual, sick and other leave benefits described in MOA V-A-600.

848 SEPARATION

a. In general, a temporary employee under this authority may be terminated at any time at the discretion of Broadcasting.

b. The termination of a temporary employee under this authority, upon the expiration of his/her appointment, will be documented on a Notification of Personnel Action, Form SF-50.

c. Upon receipt of notice of the separation or resignation of an employee, or upon expiration of the temporary appointment, the Office of Personnel will take necessary action to complete the separation and issue the Notification of Personnel Action, Form SF-50.

849 RECORDS AND REPORTS - An official personnel folder will be established for each appointee and will include a completed resume or Application for Federal Employment; an OF-8, Position Description, or similar document; an SF-61, Oath of Office; and a copy of each Form SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, issued. Other personnel records and files will be maintained as for other employees.

Title: V-A BAM 848 Phased Retirement Policy

Policy Tracking #: OHR-15-01

Effective Dates: March 4, 2015

Originating Office: Office of Human Resources, x7502

---

(1) Phased Retirement is a human resources tool that allows many retirement-eligible full-time employees to work part-time schedules while beginning to draw retirement benefits. This new tool will enable the Agency to provide unique opportunities to employees while increasing access to the decades of institutional knowledge and experience that they can provide.

(2) Phased Retirement provides benefits to both participating employees and the Agency. It allows an employee who already meets specific age and service requirements to work 50 percent of the time (part-time), and receive 50 percent of his or her annuity while so employed as a precursor to full retirement.

(3) Phased Retirement encourages and promotes the transfer of knowledge and skills from one employee to other staff members through the mentoring or training of the employee(s) who will be filling the positions or taking on the duties of more experienced retiring employee(s) or other learning activities that would allow for the transfer of knowledge and skills from one employee to others.

(b) AUTHORITY & SCOPE:

(1) Authority.

(i) 5 U.S.C. 8336a;

(ii) 5 U.S.C. 8412a;

(iii) Pub. L. 112-141, Section 100121; and

(iv) 5 C.F.R. Part 848.

(2) Scope. This phased retirement policy applies to all offices of the Federal Government supervised by the Broadcasting Board of Governors (collectively, “the Agency”).

(c) POLICY:

(1) Eligibility to participate in phased retirement.

(i) Phased retirement is not an employee entitlement. Agency interests must be served to warrant the Agency’s approval of an application. The Agency has the discretion to approve some, all, or none of the phased retirement applications received from employees. Entry into phased retirement is strictly voluntary on the part of the employee and it requires mutual agreement between the employee and the Agency.

(ii) Only individuals covered under the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) and the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS) are eligible for participation in phased retirement. Individuals covered by a Foreign Service retirement system (FSRDS or FSPS) and are not authorized to participate.

(iii) An individual must have been employed on a full-time basis for not less than the 3-year period preceding the effective date of his or her entry into phased retirement status. Eligibility for phased retirement differs for those employees who are covered under the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) and those under the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS), as follows:

(A) CSRS employees must have at least 30 years of service and have attained at least age 55 or have at least 20 years of service and have attained at least age 60.

(B) FERS employees must have at least 30 years of service and have attained at least their Minimum Retirement Age (MRA), between ages 55-57, or have at least 20 years of service and have attained at least age 60.

(iv) Employees excluded from phased retirement include employees who qualify for retirement under special retirement provisions, e.g., law enforcement officers and firefighters, as specified in 5 CFR § 831.1711.

(v) Members of the Senior Executive Service who otherwise meet the criteria can be considered eligible for participation unless otherwise excluded.

(vi) The Agency may restrict the positions, grades, and/or geographic areas in which employees are eligible for participation in phased retirement.

(2) Time Limitation.

(i) The Agency requires that a specific termination date, not-to-exceed one year from the effective date, be established before it will approve a phased retirement application. An employee may be approved for another period of phased retirement only if prior to the initial termination date, the phased retiree reapplies and obtains a new approval under the same procedures in place for initial approvals. Applications for new approvals should be submitted no later than 30 calendar days prior to the existing termination date. An approval following an initial approval also will contain a termination date not-to-exceed one year from its effective date.

(ii) If a phased retirement reaches its termination date and has not been replaced by a new approval, the employee's phased retirement terminates and he or she is automatically converted to full retirement.

(iii) The total amount of time an employee may serve in phased retirement normally will not exceed two years. Any exceptions must be approved by the Chief Executive Officer/Agency Director in consultation with the Director of OHR and head of the organization involved.

(3) Work Schedule.

(i) Phased retirees must have an established part-time work schedule and may not work on an intermittent basis. The schedule need not have the same number of hours per week within a given pay period (consistent with Agency flexible or compressed work schedules), but the schedule for each biweekly pay period must be half-time, i.e. 40 hours. A phased retiree may participate in the Agency's flexible or compressed work schedule program on the same basis as any other part-time employee.

(ii) A phased retiree may not be assigned work hours in excess of his or her fixed part-time work schedule except under the very limited circumstances described in OPM regulations. For further guidance contact Office of Human Resources (OHR). Any such assignments must be approved in advance, by the head of the office involved in consultation with the Director of OHR, i.e., the Directors of the Voice of America, the Office of Cuba Broadcasting, the Director of the Office of Technology Services and Innovation, or the Chief Executive Officer/Agency Director for offices within the IBB.

(iii) If a phased retiree works an approved flexible work schedule that permits him or her to earn credit hours, those credit hours may be applied to another workday, workweek, or biweekly pay period. Phased retirees are limited to 40 hours of work in each biweekly pay period, except under very limited circumstances. Therefore, any credit hours resulting from work in excess of 40 hours would have to be applied to a future pay period.

(iv) Phased retirees ordinarily will work only the basic hours in their established part-time schedule and thus will not be performing overtime work. However, in the rare case that a phased retiree works in excess of 40 hours per week or 8 hours per day, he or she will be eligible to receive compensatory time off or overtime under the same provisions applicable to other part-time employees and in accordance with law.

(4) Mentoring.

(i) At least 20 percent of a phased retiree's working hours must be expended in mentoring activities.

(ii) Determinations as to which employees receive training, mentoring, or similar learning benefits from a participant in phased retirement must be made in accordance with the principles of equal employment opportunity and any requirements for competition when:

(A) the training would convey a competitive advantage to the employees involved; and

(B) not all interested employees can be given the opportunity to benefit.

For example, if the phased retiree's duties are at a higher grade level than some or all of the employees involved, the opportunity must be competed in accordance with applicable merit promotion policies and procedures.

(iii) The following priorities should be used in considering which employees are mentored or trained by a phased retiree:

- (A) Improve individual performance in current job activities;
- (B) Prepare individuals for immediate Agency needs; and
- (C) Prepare individuals for long-range Agency needs.

Within the context of these priorities, mentoring/training/learning decisions are made on the basis of:

- (A) Relative degree of need for performance in current position;
- (B) Relative potential for advancement;
- (C) Likelihood that the applicant's knowledge, skill, performance, or attitude will be improved by training;
- (D) Ability of the employee to pass on to others what is learned through the training;
- (E) Length of time the organization expects to benefit from employee's new learning;
- (F) Previous opportunities to take advantage of training; and
- (G) Employee's interest and efforts in improving self through training.

(2) Pay and Benefits During Phased Retirement.

(i) Salary and Annuity. An employee electing phased retirement continues to work as an employee of the Federal Government but under a part-time work schedule. At the same time, the employee receives annuity benefit equal to a fraction of the annuity that would have been paid had the employee fully retired. Currently, this means employees will be receiving half of their pay and approximately half of their annuity, because the only working percentage allowable by regulation is 50%.

The example below is for a CSRS employee with 35 years and 9 months of service. CSRS Phased Retirement Income
	Annual	Monthly
Current Salary $68,275 x 50%	$34,137	$2,844.75
Current Annual Annuity $45,296.30 x 50%	$22,648	$1,877.00
Total Employee Income in Phased Retirement	$56,785	$4,731.75

The example below is for a FERS employee with 35 years and 9 months of service. FERS Phased Retirement Income
	Annual	Monthly
Current Annual Salary $68,275 X 50%	$34,137	$2,844.75
Current Annual Annuity $23,868 X 50%	$11,934	$ 994.50
Total Employee Income in Phased Retirement	$46,071	$3,838.75

(ii) Pay. Employees who elect phased retirement continue to work at the currently available working percentage of 50 percent of a full-time work schedule, and their gross pay per pay period will reduce by half. Gross pay from the Agency continues to be subject to the employee's withholdings such as FEHB, FEGLI, FEDVIP, FLTCIP, TSP, Medicare tax, Federal tax, State tax, Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) deductions, Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS) deductions, etc. The FEHB and FEGLI premiums are the same amount that is withheld from an employee working a full-time work schedule.

(iii) Holiday Pay. A phased retiree is treated as a part-time employee for the purposes of holiday pay. A part-time employee is entitled to a paid holiday when the holiday falls on a day when he or she would otherwise be required to work or take leave. If a holiday falls on a non-workday, a part-time employee is not entitled to an "in lieu of" holiday.

(iv) Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB) and Federal Employees Group Life Insurance (FEGLI). For FEHB and FEGLI purposes, an employee in phased retirement status is treated the same as when he or she was working full-time. This means that an employee in phased retirement status will pay the employee share of the FEHB premium as if he or she were a full-time employee, not a part-time employee. If an employee in phased retirement status dies in service, the Basic insurance amount would be their full-time salary rate and, if elected, the Additional Optional life insurance would be a multiple of his or her full-time salary rate.

(v) Leave. An employee in phased retirement status will accrue annual and sick leave in the same manner as other part-time employees. All employees in phased retirement status will have at least 20 years of service and therefore will be accruing leave at the rate of 1 hour of annual leave for each 10 hours in a pay status and 1 hour of sick leave for each 20 hours in a pay status. An employee in phased retirement status with a 50% working percentage who works 40 hours per pay period will earn 4 hours of annual leave and 2 hours of sick leave per pay period.

(vi) Thrift Savings Plan. An employee in phased retirement status will also be able to continue to contribute to the Thrift Savings Plan as an employee. Withdrawal options from the Thrift Savings Plan for separated employees will not be available to the employee during phased retirement status because the employee has not separated from Federal service.

(vii) FERS Annuity Supplement. A FERS Employee in Phased Retirement Status is not eligible for the FERS Annuity Supplement. If applicable, the FERS Annuity Supplement may be paid after an employee in phased retirement status fully retires and begins receiving a composite annuity.

(viii) Employment Status.

(A) Employees in phased retirement status are permanent employees on a part-time work schedule who are also paid an annuity. They do not separate from federal employment in order to participate in phased retirement. They are career federal employees with the same rights as other employees.

(B) Reemployed annuitants are individuals who have separated from federal service for retirement who subsequently return to Federal employment. They continue to receive their full annuity benefit during their reemployment but their salary is offset by the amount of annuity attributable to the period of reemployment. Reemployed annuitants serve at the will of the agency and can be separated from employment at any time.

(ix) Buyout. An employee leaving phased retirement to separate and enter full retirement may be eligible for a VSIP consistent with the agency's VSIP authority and any eligibility criteria in 5 U.S.C. Chapter 35, subchapter II, and 5 CFR part 576.

(x) Voluntary Early Retirement. An employee who accepts an offer of voluntary early retirement is not eligible for phased retirement.

(xi) Disability. An employee in phased retirement status cannot retire on disability. If an employee in phased retirement becomes disabled and would like to retire on disability, the employee would need to request to return to full-time status and then apply for disability retirement.

(3) Phased Retiree Positions and Supplemental Staffing. The Agency cannot back fill a position occupied by an employee participating in phased retirement on a full-time basis because the phased retiree would continue to encumber the current position until fully retired. The Agency could, however, fill the position on a part-time basis so that the total time of both employees equals 80 hours per pay period, or, if funding allows, establish an additional position with a Full-time or Part-Time work schedule.

(d) PROCEDURES AND PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITIES:

(1) Approval Process.

(i) Before submitting an application to participate in the program, employees should also discuss their interest with their supervisor and explore how their phased retirement might serve the organization's interest and what specific responsibilities would be assigned.

(ii) Interested employees should also contact the OHR Benefits section to discuss the rules and benefits of phased retirement and obtain annuity estimates.

(iii) Requests to participate in phased retirement will be evaluated based on the extent to which they serve the Agency's ability to ensure the continuity of Agency operations, preserve important institutional information through mentoring and/or training replacement staff or other learning activities that would allow for the transfer of knowledge and skills from one employee to others during a transition period.

(iv) See Attachment A for an application form, which can also be obtained from OHR.

(v) Applications must be addressed and submitted directly by the employee to the OHR Director and state:

(A) The specific functions and duties to be performed and organizational objectives to be achieved during the requested period of phased retirement; and

(B) The proposed beginning and termination dates of the requested period of phased retirement.

(vi) Applications should also include a completed Phased Employment/Phased Retirement Status Election Form SF-3116.

(vii) Applications will be forwarded by OHR to the employee's immediate supervisor for his/her written recommendation as to whether or not the application should be approved. The recommendation must certify that at least 20 percent of a phased retiree's working hours will be expended in mentoring, training, or other learning activities that promote the transfer of knowledge and skills from one employee to other staff members and address the following criteria that will be used to evaluate applications:

(A) Importance of the functions to be performed by the employee to the organization's and Agency's mission;

(B) Importance to the organization of providing a transition period, including impact of not having a period of transition and why such a transition period is the best available means of avoiding such an adverse impact;

(C) Ability of the organization to accommodate having the individual work on a half-time rather than full-time basis, e.g., will the employee's change in work schedule affect the work unit's ability to meet goals and objectives, can the necessary work be accomplished in 20 hours a week, will operational needs require the employee to work in excess of a 50% work schedule, and can another employee or new hire assume the work?

(D) Employee's willingness and ability to meet the requirements of the responsibilities to be performed as demonstrated by his or her:

(1) demonstrated level of expertise in those functions, including a record of fully successful or better performance in carrying out the functions;

(2) demonstrated conduct and effectiveness in developing and maintaining productive relations with other staff members; and

(3) demonstrated interpersonal and communication skills and other ability needed to transfer their knowledge to others in the form of documentation, briefings, mentoring, training, or other learning activities.

(viii) If a supervisor recommends approval of a phased retirement application, he or she must include, on a separate document to be shared with the employee, a specific description of the organizational objectives to be achieved and the functions and responsibilities to be performed during the period of phased retirement including the person(s) to be trained or mentored or otherwise be recipients of the knowledge being transferred, any proposal to place someone else in the phased retiree's position during the transition, how the supervisor will measure whether objectives are being achieved, and the supervisor's recommended beginning and termination dates of the period of phased retirement. OHR will provide guidance to the supervisor in determining which employees will be mentored, trained, or otherwise be recipients of the knowledge being transferred to ensure consistency with EEO and competitive requirements noted above.

(ix) The immediate supervisor will forward her or his recommendation to the employee's second-level supervisor, who must review the application and state the extent to which he or she agrees with the immediate supervisor's recommendation and include any other relevant comments.

(x) Applications must be recommended for approval or disapproval, in consultation with the OHR Director, by the head of the organization involved, i.e. the Director of the Voice of America, the Director of the Office of Cuba Broadcasting, the Director of the Office of Technology Services and Innovation, or the Chief Executive Officer/Agency Director for other Agency offices within IBB.

(xi) If more applications are received than the Agency can support, the Agency will pursue approval for those that best meet the criteria stated above as determined by the Chief Executive Officer/Agency Director.

(xii) Once approved, the employee and the Agency will sign a written phased retirement agreement containing all the relevant elements discussed above.

(xiii) The Agency will submit Phased Retirement Election forms of employees it supports for participation in the program to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) along with their Retirement Application forms. Employees will be notified as soon as possible of the Agency's and OPM's decision.

(2) Evaluation of Program. Supervisors will review the benefits of phased retirement agreements using the evaluation criteria stated above at the end of each year to determine whether the agreement is benefiting the organization and Agency. The Supervisor will provide a copy of the evaluation and the recommendation as to whether another agreement should be approved to the employee's second-level supervisor for his or her concurrence. A copy of the evaluation will be forwarded to OHR to assist the Agency in determining whether to approve another agreement and in its evaluation of the overall phased retirement program.

(3) Termination of Participation.

(i) Participating employees may terminate their participation in phased retirement at any time. Absent other action, and employee's election to terminate participation in phased retirement will result in the employee being automatically converted to full retirement. However, at the employee's request, with the concurrence of the head of the organization involved in consultation with the OHR Director, i.e. the Director of the Voice of America, the Director of the Office of Cuba Broadcasting, the Director of the Office of Technology Services and Innovation, or the Chief Executive Officer/Agency Director for other Agency offices within IBB, such an employee may be returned to full-time employment (non-retiree) status. Employees may request termination of their participation in the program by submitting Part 2 of the Phased Employment/Phased Retirement Status Election Form SF-3116 to the OHR Director.

(ii) When the termination date of an employee's participation in phased retirement is reached, one of the following four actions will occur. The employee will:

(A) Enter full retirement (This will happen automatically unless one of the actions described in items B, C, or D, below, occurs.);

(B) Return to regular full-time employment with the prior approval of the Agency;

(C) Transfer to another agency as a phased retiree or return to regular employment upon transfer within three days of the expiration date, subject to the gaining agency's approval; or

(D) Enter into a new phased retirement agreement, with a new termination date, with the Agency prior to the expiration date of the current agreement.

(4) Appeals. A decision not to approve an employee's participation in Phased Retirement or to deny an employee's request to return to regular employment is not an appealable adverse action under 5 U.S.C. Chapter 75.

(e) DEFINITIONS:

(1) Phased retiree means a retirement-eligible employee who:

- (i) With the concurrence of Agency officials, enters phased retirement status; and
- (ii) Has not entered full retirement status.

(2) Phased employment means the less-than-full-time employment of a phased retiree.

(3) Phased retirement status means that a phased retiree is concurrently employed in phased employment and eligible to receive a phased retirement annuity.

(4) Phased retirement period means the period beginning on the date on which an individual becomes entitled to receive a phased retirement annuity and ending on the date on which the individual dies or separates from phased employment.

(f) EFFECTIVE DATE AND APPROVAL:

Section 850

RESTRICTIONS ON EMPLOYMENT OF RELATIVES

851 General Policy

852 Definitions

853 Exceptions

854 Relatives Assigned to the Same Office

855 Contracting for Relative's Services

Section 850

RESTRICTIONS ON EMPLOYMENT OF RELATIVES

851 GENERAL POLICY

In order to prevent either the fact or appearance of nepotism that might assist the employment or further the career of any individual related to an Broadcasting employee or official on detail to Broadcasting who is categorized as a "public official", no such public official may appoint, or advocate the appointment, employment, promotion or advancement of his or her relatives.

852 DEFINITIONS

- a. "Public official" for the purpose of this section, is anyone employed by Broadcasting, under any type of appointment, who by law, rule, regulation or delegation has appointment or promotion authority within his or her organization, or authority to recommend employees for appointment or promotion. Thus, any supervisor, regardless of grade level, who has authority to appoint or promote, or to recommend the appointment or promotion of employees under his or her supervision, is a public official. Similarly, a personnel or placement officer who has authority to appoint or promote or to recommend the appointment or promotion of employees is a public official.

- b. "Relative" means father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, first cousin, nephew, niece, husband, wife, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepson, stepdaughter, stepbrother, stepsister, half brother or half sister.
- c. "Advocate" for the purpose of this section means a referral to a subordinate of a relative for employment or advancement consideration. A referral for consideration, in this context, is any action, even though short of an actual recommendation, that reveals an interest in securing or facilitating a person's consideration for appointment, employment, promotion or advancement. Examples of referrals for consideration are the transmittal of an application to a personnel or line official, providing a letter of introduction to an appointing official, or the like.

853 EXCEPTIONS

- a. A relative of a public official employee who is a candidate for appointment to the Career Foreign Service through the competitive examination process may be excepted from this policy. Under such circumstances, a public official may properly reply to a written or oral employment inquiry about the qualifications and suitability of a relative, provided the employee refrains from advocating employment of the relative.
- b. A relative who is a preference eligible if (1) his or her name is within reach for selection from an appropriate certificate of eligibles and (2) an alternative selection cannot be made from the certificate without passing him or her over and selecting a person who is not a preference eligible. Under such circumstances, a public official may properly reply to a written or oral employment inquiry about the qualifications and suitability of a relative who has applied for employment in Broadcasting, provided the employee refrains from advocating employment of the relative.

854 RELATIVES ASSIGNED TO THE SAME OFFICE

When relatives are assigned to the same office, one member of a family may not exercise immediate supervision over another member of the family, nor serve as a rating or reviewing officer on the performance evaluation of a relative, nor have a working relationship which gives the appearance of direction and control over the work or career of a relative.

855 CONTRACTING FOR RELATIVE'S SERVICES

Except in very unusual circumstances it is Broadcasting policy to prohibit contracting with relatives of Broadcasting employees. However, relatives of Broadcasting employees who have unique qualifications, such as proficiency in a language may serve as purchase order vendors in those unique specialties when there is no other source for the service and they have been approved in writing by the Broadcasting Procurement Executive.

MOTOR VEHICLE OPERATORS

861 REGULATIONS AND PROCEDURES

861.1 U.S. Government Regulations and Authorities - As required by the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949. The purpose of these regulations and procedures is to ensure safe operation of Government-owned motor vehicles for official purposes.

861.2 Procedures - Administrative rules and procedures on motor vehicle operations including issuance, renewal, and revocation of U.S. Government Motor Vehicle Operator's Identification Card (Standard Form 46) are published in MOA IV-750. Except as stated in paragraph 862, the Office of Administration will issue, renew, and revoke SF-46s.

862.1 Physical Fitness

a. Personnel is responsible for scheduling medical examinations for candidates being processed for employment as motor vehicle operators, for employees proposed for promotion or reassignment to motor vehicle operator positions, and, upon request by the Office of Administration for employees who are being considered for assignment to operator positions.

b. Personnel is responsible for reviewing the Physical Fitness Inquiry for Motor Vehicle Operators (Standard Form 47) completed by candidates for incidental operator positions and employees whose SF-46s are being renewed.

(1) If the completed SF-47 contains no "yes" answers, Personnel approves the candidate's or employee's physical fitness and informs the Office of Administration.

(2) If the completed SF-47 contains any "yes" answers, Personnel arranges for a medical examination. If the examination is conducted by a private physician, Personnel forwards the report to the Department of State Medical Service or the Public Health Service, as appropriate, and advises the Office of Administration of the medical finding.

862.2 Adverse Action - Personnel is responsible for taking adverse actions when warranted in accordance with the provisions of Section 930.118 of the Office of Personnel Management regulations. Adverse actions will be carried out in accordance with rules in MOA V-A 560. However, when warranted by the facts in a particular case, Personnel may determine that reassignment, disability retirement, or some other non-disciplinary action is appropriate, rather than an adverse action.

863 DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY TO TRANSMITTING STATION MANAGERS - At Broadcasting establishments in the United States the responsibilities of Personnel described in paragraph 862.1 above are delegated to the Transmitting Station Manager subject to notification of the Office of Administration of the actions taken.

RESPONSIBILITIES, POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

?911 PURPOSE AND COVERAGE

The following instructions supplement regulations published in 5 CFR 293 by assigning responsibilities within Broadcasting and prescribing Broadcasting policies and procedures on access to personnel files by managers, supervisors, employers of other federal agencies, and the general public. These instructions apply to files, records and reports on General Schedule, Wage System, and GG personnel, and Senior Executive Service personnel. Instructions applicable to overseas Foreign Service personnel are contained in MOA V-B 900.

912 RESPONSIBILITIES

912.1 The Office of Personnel is responsible for all personnel records, reports, and files, with the exception of those listed in 912.2 and 912.3 below.

912.2 The Office of Security is responsible for maintaining files of investigative reports and all other reports dealing with personnel security and physical security.

912.3 The Financial Office is responsible for leave, retirement, health benefits, and group life insurance records.

913 Contents of Official Personnel Folders (OPF) and Employee Performance Files (EPF) - In accordance with 5 CFR 293, Broadcasting maintains two employee files - the Official Personnel Folder and Employee Performance File.

- a. The Official Personnel Folder is considered the official permanent Government folder. The OPF will contain such documents as the SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action regarding appointments, reassignments, and adverse actions; health benefits and life insurance forms and beneficiary designations; training records; awards; and official travel orders and amendments thereto.
- b. The Employee Performance File is generally a non-permanent record containing Performance Appraisal Reports, and other performance related documents. In addition to the copies maintained in the OPF, copies of records of training and awards will be included in the EPF for merit promotion purposes.
- c. The EPF contains Performance Appraisals for non-SES employees for the most recent three years including the performance plans (requirements and standards) on which they were based. A non-SES employee's Performance Appraisal and supporting documentation pertaining to a recommendation for reduction in grade or removal from employment that is based on unacceptable performance but not effected due to improved performance, will be removed from the EPF after one year of acceptable performance. At least one Performance Appraisal of acceptable performance (See MOA V-A 440 and 450 for definition of acceptable performance) should be in the EPF to document the improved performance.

- d. For SES employees, the EPF contains Performance Appraisals for the most recent five years unless a break in service of more than 30 days occurs.
- e. Action to remove or reduce in grade based on performance is maintained in a separate file and is part of OPM/GOVT.-3, Privacy Act System of Records. However, copies of this material may also be maintained in the EPF.

914 ACCESS TO OFFICIAL PERSONNEL FOLDERS AND EMPLOYEE PERFORMANCE FILES - It is Broadcasting's responsibility to hold the contents of personnel records and files in confidence in accordance with OPM's Privacy Act regulations and to release Official Personnel Folders (OPF) and Employee Performance Files (EPF) or information therein only to the parties, and under the restrictions, set-out below. All persons are required to sign the Access Disclosure Sheet attached to the inside cover of each Official Personnel Folder and Employee Performance File when granted access to those files for any reason, except that employees of the Office of Civil Rights, and the Office of Personnel are not required to sign the Access Disclosure Sheet.

The Official Personnel Folder and Employee Performance File are systems of records as defined by the Privacy Act, and are subject to that Act, and OPM, and Broadcasting regulations implementing the Act. They are part of OPM's Government-wide Privacy Act system of records, "OPM/GOVT.-1, General Personnel Records" and "OPM/GOVT.-2, Employee Performance File System Records."

914.1 Persons Authorized Access to Official Personnel Folders - Without the Consent of the Employee

- a. Director of Broadcasting
- b. Chief of Staff, BBG
- c. Staff members of the Office of Personnel, who work with the files.
- d. Employee's immediate supervisor or higher level supervisors in the chain of command through the element head, but only for such management determinations as may be necessary to carry out legitimate personnel management functions; Selecting Officials in the merit promotion process.
- e. Executive or Administrative Officers, in carrying out required administrative functions but limited to records of employees assigned to their areas of responsibility, and provided the disclosures are made in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.
- f. Attorneys in the Office of the General Counsel (GC); investigative agents of the Office of Security or other federal agencies;

Director, Office of Civil Rights and authorized EEO investigators (not EEO Officers) (OIG) for special inspections approved in writing by the Director or Director of Administration; all of the above as required in the performance of official duties or for specific cases assigned.

- g. Members of the Board of Examiners of the Foreign Service (BEX), but only for those officers applying for entry in the Foreign Service; members of the Foreign Service Grievance Board for those cases referred for action.
- h. Medical officers in the Office of the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Medical Services, Department of State, but limited to "medical records," if any, in the individual's file.
- i. Persons designated by court order or as required by law, but only after consultation with, and approval by the Office of General Counsel.
- j. Such other individuals who may from time to time demonstrate a "need-to-know" as determined by the Director, Office of Personnel and providing the disclosure is in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.

914.2 Persons Authorized Access to Employee Performance File - Without the Consent of the Employee

- a. Persons authorized access to Official Personnel Folders listed in para. 914.1 except "h."
- b. Members of the Performance Review Board and Executive Resources Board.

914.3 Persons Authorized Access to Official Personnel Folders and Employee Performance Files - With Written Consent of the Employee

- a. EEO officers (excluding investigators) and EEO Counselors, in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.
- b. Representative(s) of the employee or former employee, or to any other person who has notarized written consent, and the disclosure is made in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.

914.4 Access by the Individual Employee

- a. Providing the disclosures are made in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant, an employee may have unrestricted access to his or her Official Personnel Folder or Employee Performance File. Employees have a responsibility to ensure that their official personnel records are complete and up-to-date. To this end, employees are encouraged to examine their official personnel records at least once a year.

- b. The employee may not checkout his or her personnel file from the appropriate personnel office file room, nor may the employee remove materials from the file. Any employee requesting access to his or her file, requesting copies of documents therein, or requesting that documents be added or removed from the file, must make such requests through the personnel office. All employee access to individual files must be in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.

915 REQUESTS FOR INFORMATION FROM PERSONNEL RECORDS - Information from an employee's personnel records may not be disclosed to persons other than authorized federal officials without the employee's consent, except that:

- a. Certain facts concerning employment may be given to prospective employers, credit establishments and local or state taxing authorities, when the request is made in writing or in person with proper identification, for legitimate reference checks or confirmation of employment. Information concerning an employee's present and past grade and annual salary (including performance awards or bonuses, incentive awards, meritorious or Distinguished Executive Ranks and allowances and differentials), present and past position titles and occupational series, position descriptions, identification of critical and non-critical job elements, performance standards (not appraisals) so long as they do not reveal an employee's appraisal, and present and past duty stations is public and may be released on request without permission of the employee. In addition to this information, the prospective employer of a government employee or former employee may be provided as a routine use under the Privacy Act the employee's tenure, Civil Service status, and if separated from Broadcasting, the date and nature of action shown on the SF-50.
- b. When an employee is being considered for detail or assignment to another Federal agency or to an international organization, his or her OPF or EPF may be reviewed by an official of that Agency when authorized by the employee in writing.
- c. See MOA III 560 for instructions regarding other requests and reporting of disclosures under the Privacy Act of 1974.

916 MATERIALS SUBMITTED BY EMPLOYEES FOR THEIR OFFICIAL PERSONNEL FOLDERS - An employee may at any time submit material relating to performance and experience for inclusion in his or her OPF and EPF. This may include additional information concerning work or substantive letters of commendation. Rebuttals or statements regarding work performance referred to in performance evaluation reports should be included as part of the performance appraisal report. No material will be included in an employee's file without the knowledge of the employee concerned. Before the material is filed, the employee must sign or initial the document and forward it to his or her servicing personnel officer for inclusion in the file.

Generally, quotes from letters of commendation and appreciation should be incorporated by rating officers in an employee's performance appraisal report. Only the most significant letters, which describe performance going well beyond what is customary and expected of an employee in the normal exercise of duties, should be submitted by employees for inclusion in EPFs. If the material is returned by the personnel officer with the recommendation that it be included in the performance appraisal, the employee should discuss this option with his/her supervisor.

917 DISPOSITION OF RECORDS - When an employee transfers to another Federal agency, terminates, is separated, retires, or dies, the Official Personnel Folder will be reviewed and the permanent records will be forwarded to the transferring agency or the National Personnel Records Center.

- a. For appointees to the Senior Executive Service, performance records less than five years old must be transferred to the gaining agency or forwarded to the NPRC. In cases where an SES employee accepts a Presidential appointment and chooses to continue to be covered by the provisions of SES, Performance Appraisals will be retained for this period of absence from an SES position until the employee accepts a non-SES position or returns to an SES position.
- b. For all other employees, the losing agency will include in the Official Personnel Folder performance ratings of record and the performance plans on which the ratings are based which are 3 years old or less, before transferring to the gaining agency or forwarding to the NPRC. All performance ratings more than 3 years old and other performance related records will be removed by the losing agency.

918 MAINTENANCE OF NON-OFFICIAL PERSONNEL RECORDS

- a. All official, permanent personnel records and files will be kept and maintained by the Office of Personnel. Individual supervisors may retain a copy of the current annual Performance Appraisal on employees supervised as long as the employee remains in the unit. When the employee transfers or terminates, the supervisor's copy of the Performance Appraisal must be destroyed.
- b. Offices are authorized to retain the following non-official personnel records: job descriptions; personnel action forms; service record cards; employee locator cards; letters of commendation and other correspondence; material related to employment, experience, training, special qualifications and skills; salary and leave records; letters of warning and other documentation of disciplinary action. These records are to be maintained and used to prepare requests for personnel actions, to provide convenient access to information about employees in view of the office's physical separation from the Office of Personnel. When the employee separates from Broadcasting or transfers to another Office, these non-official personnel records will be destroyed or forwarded to Personnel for screening and disposal. Any request for information from these records should be referred to the personnel office for response. All records of this nature are subject to the provisions of the Privacy Act.

SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE

1101 AUTHORITY

Title IV of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978 (5 USC 3131) established the Senior Executive Service (SES), effective July 13, 1979, "to ensure that the executive management of the Government of the United States is responsive to the needs, policies and goals of the nation and otherwise is of the highest quality."

1102 POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

1102.1 Appointment and Positions

a. SES appointments cover those positions in GS-16, 17 or 18 of the General Schedule or in Level IV or V of the Executive Schedule, including equivalent positions in other personnel systems, except those in the Foreign Service, which are not required to be filled by an appointment by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and which meet managerial/supervisory criteria at the highest levels in Broadcasting and which the Director has designated as SES positions in accordance with OPM guidelines.

b. SES Positions

(1) Designating Type of SES Position - There are two types of SES positions, career reserved and general. The OPM must approve the change of an established position from career reserved to general, or from general to career reserved; may review designations of Broadcasting career reserved and general positions, and may direct Broadcasting to re-designate positions from general to career reserved if the OPM finds the position was not designated in accordance with OPM guidelines.

(a) Career reserved positions include positions the duties of which involve day-to-day operations, without responsibility for or substantial involvement in the determination or public advocacy of the major controversial policies of the Administration or of Broadcasting or scientific, highly technical or professional positions where the duties and responsibilities of the specific position are such that it must be filled by a career appointee to ensure impartiality or the public's confidence in impartiality, of the Government; or other positions requiring impartiality, or the public's confidence in impartiality as determined by the Director in light of the mission of Broadcasting. Career reserved positions may be filled only by career appointees. The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) establishes a minimum number of career reserved positions in the SES government-wide, and establishes a minimum number for Broadcasting.

(b) General positions means positions other than career reserved positions, and may be responsible for or substantially involved in the determination or public advocacy of the major controversial policies of the Administration or of Broadcasting. General positions may be filled by any of the four types of SES appointments (career, non-career, limited term, or limited emergency).

(2) Establishing SES Positions

(a) The heads of independent services and offices are responsible for submitting requests to establish Senior Executive Service positions to the Office of Personnel. These requests will include: a position description which details the managerial responsibilities and organizational environment which would support classification at the SES level; and a recommendation on whether the position should be designated SES General or SES Career-Reserved.

(b) The Director of Personnel will forward the element's request to the Executive Resources Board (ERB) with a recommendation on whether the position should be established at the SES level and on whether it should be designated SES General or SES Career-Reserved. This recommendation will be supported with a written evaluation statement which compares the responsibilities of the requested position to those of previously established SES positions.

(c) The ERB will consider the request and forward a recommendation to the Director.

(d) The Director will consider the request, indicate approval or disapproval, and return it through the ERB to the Director of Personnel for appropriate action. In the case of approvals, the Director will sign a statement in the remarks section of the Position Description (OF-8) designating the position as SES and indicating whether it is SES General or SES Career-Reserved.

(c.) The qualification standards for each SES position are proposed by the Director or Office Head of the position, reviewed by the Director, Office of Personnel and approved by the Executive Resources Board (ERB), and the Director of Broadcasting.

d. SES Appointments - There are four types of appointments to the Senior Executive Service:

(1) Career Appointments are granted to individuals who are selected for SES positions through the merit staffing process and whose executive qualifications are subsequently approved by a Qualifications Review Board convened by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). A career appointee attains permanent tenure following a one-year probationary period from the date of the initial appointment; may transfer to other government agencies, may be removed from SES for less than Fully Successful performance, but may not be involuntarily reassigned or removed during the first 120 days of the appointment of a new Director or of the SES member's non-career supervisor except as provided in paragraphs 1102.4a and 1102.6c(3) of this Section. Career appointments may be made to both career reserved and general SES positions. Individuals who joined the SES at its inception and those who converted in accordance with Section 2104 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 also received a career appointment but were not required to serve a probationary period.

(2) Non-career Appointments are not made through the merit staffing process, and OPM does not review the managerial qualifications of the appointee, but the appointee must meet the qualifications of the position. There is no time limit on a non-career appointment. Non-career appointments may be made only to general SES positions. The number of non-career appointment authorities is allocated by OPM, but by law, cannot exceed 25 percent of the SES positions in Broadcasting. A non-career appointee does not acquire status within the SES and may be terminated at any time. Appointments may be designated "Non-career (Indefinite)" if the appointee elects to be covered only by the Social Security retirement system rather than by the Civil Service retirement system applicable to new civil service appointees.

(3) Limited Term Appointments are nonrenewable appointments which are made with prior OPM approval for up to three years to a general SES position only. The duties of the position expire at the end of the limited term appointment. Limited term appointments are made without the use of merit staffing procedures; however, the appointee must meet the qualifications requirements for the position. A limited term appointment does not confer status within the Senior Executive Service, and Broadcasting may terminate the appointment at any time. The appointment ends automatically at the end of three years if the appointment has not been terminated earlier.

(4) Limited Emergency Appointments are nonrenewable appointments which are made with prior OPM approval for up to 18 months to a general SES position which must be based on a bona fide, unanticipated, urgent need. Limited emergency appointments are made without the use of merit staffing procedures; however, the appointee must meet the qualifications requirements for the position. A limited emergency appointment does not confer status within the SES, and Broadcasting may terminate the appointment at any time. The appointment ends automatically at the end of 18 months if the appointment has not been terminated earlier.

1102.2 Responsibilities

a. The Director of Broadcasting is responsible for designating Broadcasting positions for staffing by members of the Senior Executive Service, for determining method of filling SES vacancy, for selection of appointee from applicants or reassignment of SES members for SES positions, for selection of SES Candidates, for assigning the rating of record and determining annual bonuses and cash awards for SES members, for nominating SES members for the Presidential rank awards, for disciplining and removing SES members, and for the overall administration and management of Broadcasting's Senior Executive Service.

b. The Executive Resources Board is responsible for advising and making recommendations to the Director on policies, procedures, administration and management including position management of the Senior Executive Service. The Board also reviews and may support or submit its own recommendations to the Director to supplement recommendations of the Performance Review Board.

c. The Performance Review Board is responsible for reviewing the annual Performance Appraisal Report of all SES members, and making recommendations to the Director which are routed through the Executive Resources Board concerning each executive's appraisal and rating and grouping ratings by performance level (Outstanding, Highly Successful, Fully Successful, Minimally Satisfactory and Unsatisfactory). The Board prepares recommendations for performance awards including individual percentages, and rank awards.

d. The Director, Office of Personnel is responsible for receiving OPM approval for SES appointments, for reviewing qualification standards and position descriptions for each SES-designated position, and for ensuring that the laws and OPM regulations affecting the SES are carried out in Broadcasting. The Director, Office of Personnel, will serve as an Advisory Member to the Executive Resources Board.

e. Directors and Office Heads are responsible for setting up qualifications standards for each SES position under their supervision, for submitting qualifications standards to the ERB and the Director for approval, for timely completion and submission to the Performance Review Board (PRB) of the annual performance appraisal of each SES member on their staff (see MOA V-A 1130 on performance appraisal).

1102.3 Basic Compensation, Performance Awards, and Annual Leave

a. Basic compensation for each SES pay level is adjusted annually by the President (see MOA V-A 237.2). The Director will set the pay rate of each member appointed to the SES at one of the basic levels. This pay level may be adjusted not more than once annually by the Director based upon recommendations made by the Executive Resources Board after review of the SES members' annual performance appraisal report or when reassigning an SES member to another SES position. Pay setting upon initial appointment is considered a pay adjustment. Adjustments to basic pay may be made by increasing the pay to a higher SES level, or by decreasing the pay to the next lower level. To be eligible for a performance award, an SES member must be a career appointee and have at least a Fully Successful rating in the most recent rating of record. An SES member also may be nominated for the Meritorious or Distinguished Executive awards (see MOA V-A 1137).

b. The total amount of performance awards paid during a fiscal year may not exceed 3 percent of the aggregate payroll for SES career appointees as of the end of the fiscal year in which the award payments are made. The amount of a performance award paid to an individual career appointee may not be less than 5 percent nor more than 20 percent of the appointee's rate of basic pay as of the end of the performance appraisal period. Broadcasting must submit the proposed distribution of performance awards, the proposed total amount of awards, and the aggregate payroll for SES career appointees as of the end of the fiscal year in which the award payments are made, to OPM for review and approval prior to payment of awards, but after approval by the Director. Only 5 percent of government-wide SES members may receive the rank of Meritorious Executive and receive one-time lump-sum payments of up to $10,000, and only 1% may be designated Distinguished Executive and receive one-time lump sum payments of up to $20,000. No SES member may receive basic pay plus performance awards and rank pay in excess of the pay rate for Executive Level I in effect at the end of the fiscal year but the excess shall be paid as a lump sum at the beginning of the next fiscal year, subject to the same annual limit.

c. An SES member may accumulate and carry over from year to year up to 720 hours annual leave.

d. An SES member who, as of the first day of the first pay period beginning after October 13, 1994, has accumulated annual leave in excess of 720 hours is entitled to retain that leave as a personal leave ceiling. The leave shall be credited to the employee and shall be subject to reduction in the following manner; The credit leave shall exclude - any leave restored to the employee under 5 USC 6304(d); and Any annual leave advanced to the employee under 5 USC 6302(d) that has not yet been earned. Annual leave credited to an employee in excess of 720 shall be subject to reduction until the employee's accumulated leave is equal to or less than 720 hours. USC 6304(c). Broadcasting has notified affected employees and will maintain records on the accumulated leave credited to each employee.

1102.4 Reassignment, Transfer and Sabbaticals of SES Executives

a. Career SES executives may be reassigned to another SES position only upon 15 days advance notice in writing of the reassignment unless the career member agrees in writing to a shorter notice period. No involuntary reassignment of career SES members may be made within 120 days of appointment of a new Director or of a new non-career supervisor of that employee except with respect to:

(1) a disciplinary action which was initiated against the career member prior to the new appointment; or

(2) an Unsatisfactory performance appraisal rating of record.

b. SES members may elect to transfer to another agency but may not be transferred involuntarily.

c. The Director may grant sabbaticals for up to 11 months during any 10-year period for SES career executives for purposes of study or work experience which would contribute to the employee's development and effectiveness to Broadcasting. Employees on sabbatical retain their salary and benefits.

1102.5 Executive Development Programs - Broadcasting has established executive development programs for the development of SES candidates and for the continuing development of SES members (see MOA V-A 1120). It is Broadcasting's policy to enhance its executive management capabilities at the senior level by developing and maintaining a SES group of highly competent, career and non-career managers and executives. SES candidates will be selected through merit selection procedures with review and approval of SES candidates made by the Executive Resources Board. Opportunities will be provided for all SES candidates and members to continue their development through formal training programs and varied work assignments.

1102.6 Removal from the SES, Reduction in Pay

a. Charter Members - If appointed as a career SES member on July 13, 1979, such an employee is a charter member. The executive is not subject to a probationary period, and if the charter SES member is removed from the SES for Unsatisfactory or consistently Minimally Satisfactory performance as an SES member, the executive has the guaranteed right back to a position no lower than GS-15 with permanent retention of his or her SES salary. The salary of a charter member of the SES may never be reduced below the salary at which he or she converted to SES.

b. Non-career and Limited appointees may be removed from the SES or from the federal service at any time. The appointee must be notified in writing prior to the effective date of the removal. Limited emergency, limited term and non-career appointees have no placement rights except as noted in 1111.2c(5) and no appeal rights to the MSPB.

c. Career SES members are entitled to 15 days advance notice in writing if their basic pay is to be reduced. A reduction in basic pay may occur no more frequently than once a year, for no more than one rate at a time. Career SES members may be removed from the SES as follows:

(1) For Misconduct - Career SES members may be removed from the federal service for misconduct, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office, or failure to accept a directed reassignment (see subparagraph (3) below); the executive has appeal rights to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB); and must be given 30 days advance notice.

(2) For Performance - A career appointee shall be either reassigned within the SES, or removed from the Senior Executive Service at the discretion of the Director, for receiving one Unsatisfactory performance appraisal rating of record. The Director shall remove a career appointee from the SES after the executive has received two annual performance appraisal ratings of record of Unsatisfactory within five consecutive years, or if the career appointee has been given two annual performance appraisal ratings of Minimally Satisfactory or lower within three consecutive years, under the performance appraisal system (see MOA V-A 1130). The career executive must be given 30 days' advance notice and shall be entitled to an informal hearing at the MSPB at least 15 days before the effective date of the removal, shall be advised of the basis for the action, and shall be notified of his or her placement rights to a GS position (if any); and when applicable, will be advised of the appointee's eligibility for immediate retirement under 5 USC 8336(h).

(3) A career appointee may not be involuntarily removed within 120 days after appointment of a new Director, or of his or her immediate non-career supervisor who has the authority to remove the career appointee except when:

(a) a disciplinary action was initiated against the career appointee prior to the new appointment; or

(b) the career appointee has received two Unsatisfactory performance ratings of record in any period of five consecutive years or two annual performance ratings of record of Minimally Satisfactory or Unsatisfactory within three consecutive years; or

(c) action had been initiated to remove the career appointee after one Unsatisfactory performance rating of record.

(4) Removal During Probation for Performance - A career SES member who was appointed from a civil service position (career or career conditional or equivalent as determined by OPM) who is removed from the SES during probation is entitled to be placed in a Civil Service position at GS-15 or above of equal tenure to that held at the time of SES appointment for which the employee qualifies.

1103 EXECUTIVE RESOURCES BOARD (ERB)

1103.1 Membership of the ERB - The Executive Resources Board (ERB) will have a chairperson and up to three members who are selected by the Director of Broadcasting and serve until the member's departure from Broadcasting or until membership is terminated by the Director. The Chairperson of the ERB will be appointed by the Director of International Broadcasting. The Director, Office of Personnel will serve as an Advisory Member to the ERB. The ERB for the BBG will have a total of 3 members, all of whom will be current Board members of the BBG.

1103.2 Responsibilities of the ERB - The Board will have broad authority to consider and make recommendations to the Director on all senior level appointments, including conducting the merit staffing process for initial SES career appointments, considering the qualifications of each qualified candidate for an SES position, and making written recommendations to the Director of Broadcasting or the Chairman of the BBG on the eligible candidates and identifying the best qualified candidates. Determinations and recommendations made by the ERB will be by a majority vote of the members.

1104 PERFORMANCE REVIEW BOARD (PRB)

1104.1 Membership of the PRB - For both Broadcasting and the BBG each Performance Review Board (PRB) will be composed of a panel with three or more members, and must have a majority of career SES members. A representative of Personnel will serve as the Executive Secretary to each PRB without voting privileges. The members of the Broadcasting PRB will be selected annually by the Chairperson of the Executive Resources Board (ERB). The members of the BBG (PRB) will be selected annually by the Chairman of the BBG. The names of members for each PRB will be published in the Federal Register.

1104.2 Responsibilities of the PRB - Each PRB is responsible for reviewing the performance appraisals and ratings of SES members; making a written recommendation to the Director and the Chairman concerning each executive's appraisal and rating; grouping ratings by performance level (Outstanding, Highly Successful, Fully Successful, Minimally Satisfactory, and Unsatisfactory); and preparing recommendations for performance awards including percentages and rank awards.

MERIT STAFFING, RECRUITMENT AND APPOINTMENT FOR CAREER SES POSITIONS AND AS SES CANDIDATES

1111 COVERAGE AND POLICY

1111.1 Coverage

a. Procedures in this section of the MOA are for effecting career, non-career, limited term and limited emergency SES appointments.

b. The SES career staffing procedures in paragraph 1115 must be followed when filling SES career reserved positions and when making career appointments to SES general positions.

c. Foreign Service Overseas Specialists who wish to become career members of the Senior Executive Service may apply for SES positions under the competitive staffing procedures (contained in paragraph 1115) but must include in their application a statement indicating their willingness to resign from the Foreign Service and convert to SES and the applicable retirement system.

1111.2 Policy

a. As provided for in 5 U.S.C. 3131, it is the policy of Broadcasting to appoint career executives to fill Senior Executive Service positions to the extent practicable, consistent with effective and efficient implementation of Broadcasting's policies and responsibilities; to enable the Director to reassign senior executives to best accomplish Broadcasting's mission; to protect senior executives from arbitrary or capricious actions; to ensure compliance with all applicable civil service laws, rules and regulations, including those related to equal employment opportunity, political activity, and conflicts of interest; and to maintain a merit personnel system free of prohibited personnel practices.

b. It is also the policy of the Personnel to conduct a systematic search for qualified individuals, including minorities and women, when filling a career SES position.

There is no requirement that the individual be a current employee or have competitive status.

c. The Director will determine whether a vacant SES position is to be filled by reassignment of a SES member, by transfer of an SES member from another Federal Agency, by reinstatement of a former employee or other federal agency SES member, by detail of an SES member, by detail of a non-SES employee to the position for a period not to exceed 120 days, by appointment of a SES candidate, or by using the merit staffing procedure outlined in paragraph 1115 below. Exceptions to merit staffing may be used by the Director under the following circumstances.

(1) Reassignment Within Broadcasting

(a) The voluntary or involuntary reassignment of a career SES member may be made without competition if the SES member meets the established mandatory qualifications standards, and receives at least 15 days notice in writing. As appropriate in his/her judgment, the Director may reassign a career SES member without consulting the Executive Resources Board (ERB). A career SES member normally may not be involuntarily reassigned within 120 days after an appointment of a new Director, or within 120 days after appointment of the career appointee's immediate supervisor who is a non-career appointee.

(b) The Director may adjust the pay level of the SES member at the time of reassignment to reflect the increased level of responsibility of the new position, as long as the member has not received an adjustment within the last 12 months.

(2) Reassignment of Non-career SES Members - Non-career SES members may be reassigned at any time but only to an SES general position.

(3) Detail - A career SES member or a non-SES career employee may be detailed to any SES position in Broadcasting for which he or she meets the mandatory qualifications standards for a period not to exceed 120 days. Details in excess of 120 days should be approved in advance by the ERB. Details in excess of 240 days must be approved by OPM. The detail of a non-SES employee to an SES position should be approved in advance by the ERB. A non-career SES member or a non-career non-SES employee may not be detailed to a career reserved position.

(4) Non-Career SES Appointment The Director may give an individual a non-career SES appointment to an SES general position provided the appointee meets the qualification requirements of the position to which appointed and the appointment does not exceed Broadcasting's allotment for non-career appointments.

(5) Limited Emergency or Limited Term Appointment - The Director may give a non-SES individual a limited emergency or limited term appointment to a general SES position if the appointee meets the qualifications standard for the position and the action has the approval of the ERB. A limited emergency or limited term appointee may not be appointed to, or continue to hold, a position under such an appointment if, within the preceding 48 months, the individual has served more than 36 months, in the aggregate, under any combination of such types of appointment. Use of this authority must be approved on a case-by-case basis by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM). If the individual proposed for this action is currently a employee serving under a career or career-conditional appointment, he or she is entitled upon termination of the SES appointment to be placed in a position comparable to the one held immediately prior to the SES appointment if the SES appointment is terminated for reasons other than misconduct, neglect of duty, or malfeasance.

d. In identifying SES candidates, and whenever possible in filling vacant SES career positions, the merit staffing process will be used and administered so that fair and open competition occurs and the requirements of applicable laws and regulations are met; selection will be made without discrimination for any non-merit reason including religion, age, color, race, sex, national origin, marital status or plans, creed, political affiliation, or physical handicap; veteran preference will not be a factor in filling SES positions.

e. The initial appointment of an SES career appointee will become final only after the individual has served a one year probationary period (with the exceptions noted in 1102.1d-(1)).

1112 RESPONSIBILITIES

1112.1 The Director gives the final approval to policies and procedures governing staffing and appointment to SES positions, selection of SES candidates for executive development, of the method to be used in filling the SES position, and of the individual to be selected for appointment to an SES position.

1112.2 Executive Resources Board (ERB) is actively involved in and is held accountable by the Director for development and implementation of systems relating to the following facets of the SES Merit Staffing Process:

a. approving qualifications standards and evaluation criteria for each SES position as established by the pertinent Director or Office head.

b. establishing selection systems for SES candidates and for SES career appointees.

c. making recommendations in writing to the Director on the selection of SES candidates and the appointment of SES members.

The ERB is also responsible for projection of executive needs, for policies and procedures for the SES candidate selection system, for reviewing applications of those certified for SES positions and providing written recommendations to the Director, and assuring adherence to affirmative action in the merit staffing and SES candidate selection programs.

The ERB may delegate to the Office of Personnel such activities as deemed necessary.

1112.3 Directors and Heads of Offices are responsible for providing positive support to the SES merit staffing plan, anticipating personnel needs and changes on a long-range basis and alerting the Office of Personnel as early as possible, initiating requests for filling vacancies in sufficient time to allow for merit staffing, establishing areas of recruitment, establishing mandatory and desirable qualifications and evaluation criteria for each SES position in their elements, and making recommendations to the ERB concerning candidates for SES appointments.

1112.4 Employees are responsible for keeping aware of SES vacancies and of SES candidate executive development opportunities for which they might meet qualifications requirements and submitting the required forms and information if they are interested in being considered.

1112.5 Director, Office of Personnel is responsible for those functions delegated by the ERB, and for:

- a. advising and assisting officials in carrying out their responsibilities under the SES Merit Staffing Plan;
- b. advising the Director on whether a position should be filled through the Merit Staffing Plan or by means of an exception to the process;
- c. advising Review Panels and training members in the techniques and procedures involved;
- d. assuring the selections meet legal and regulatory requirements, making final commitments, and arranging entrance on duty;
- e. providing OPM with necessary documentation for certification of a potential career SES appointee's executive qualifications;
- f. anticipating personnel changes and turnover that may occur in the work force, and developing long-range preparation for prompt replacements;
- g. handling inquiries on the merit staffing procedures for SES vacancies and SES candidate executive development opportunities;
- h. documenting merit staffing actions in filling vacant SES positions and selecting SES candidates; and
- i. serving as the central coordinating point through which all SES staffing actions are processed.
- j. provides any necessary staff support to the ERB and the Review Panels.

1113 RECRUITMENT SOURCES

1113.1 Reassignment A career or non-career SES member may be non-competitively reassigned to fill a vacant SES position for which the individual meets the qualifications standards except that a non-career SES member can only be reassigned to an SES general position. A limited emergency appointee may be reassigned to an SES general position established to meet a bona fide, unanticipated, urgent need, except that the appointee may not serve in one or more positions in Broadcasting under such appointment in excess of 18 months. A limited term appointee may be reassigned to an SES general position the duties of which will expire at the end of three years or less except that the appointee may not serve in one or more positions in Broadcasting under such appointment in excess of three years. Generally, the ERB reviews the proposed reassignment before the action is taken.

1113.2 Transfer A career or non-career member of the SES may be non-competitively transferred from another Federal Agency to fill a vacant position in Broadcasting for which the individual meets the qualifications standards except that a non-career SES member may transfer only to an SES general position. The ERB reviews the proposed transfer before any action is taken.

1113.3 Detail A career or non-career member of the SES or a non-SES employee may be detailed to an SES position for a period not to exceed 120 days for which he or she meets the mandatory qualifications standards. The ERB must approve any detail in excess of 120 days. A non-career SES member or a non-career non-SES employee may not be detailed to a career reserved position.

1113.4 Reinstatement An individual with SES reinstatement eligibility may be non-competitively selected for any position in the SES, for which the individual meets the qualification standards. SES reinstatement eligibility is limited to career executives who have successfully completed a one year probationary period in the SES or were initially converted to the SES without the requirement of serving a probationary period in the SES, and who have left the SES for reasons other than misconduct, neglect of duty, malfeasance, or less than Fully Successful performance. A career SES member who is appointed by the President to any civil service position outside the SES and who leaves the position for reasons other than misconduct, neglect of duty, or malfeasance, is entitled by law to be reinstated in the SES on the condition that the executive apply to the OPM within ninety (90) days after separation from the Presidential appointment. The ERB reviews the proposed reinstatement before the action is taken.

1113.5 SES Candidate Executive Development Program - An individual who successfully completes the SES Candidate Executive Development Program and obtains the resulting certification of his or her executive qualifications by the OPM's Qualification Review Board may be appointed to an SES position without further competition provided that initial competition into the SES Candidate Executive Development Program was in accordance with OPM merit staffing procedures and executive development requirements. No further ERB review is required prior to appointment.

1114 QUALIFICATIONS STANDARDS AND EVALUATION CRITERIA FOR SES POSITIONS

1114.1 Qualifications Standards

a. Qualifications standards must be established for each SES position. When an existing position is substantially altered or when a new position is established, qualification standards must be developed. While the basic responsibility for developing the standards remains with the Director and through him or her to the ERB, the qualification standards are developed initially by the Director or Office Head and Personnel.

b. There are two types of qualification standards: Mandatory Qualification Standards (those standards of executive/managerial knowledge and technical/professional skills, knowledge and ability required for successful performance of the duties and responsibilities of the SES position); and Desirable Qualification Standards (additional specific job qualification standards which contribute to successful performance in an SES position).

c. The standards must be practical, job related, applied to all applicants equally and impartially, and must test the relative capacity and fitness of the applicant for the position. The standards must be specific enough to allow identification of qualified applicants and also enable qualitative distinctions to be made among that group. The standards are listed in vacancy announcements for SES positions and Executive Development Opportunity Announcements for SES candidates.

d. The standards must be based on a job analysis which identifies the critical elements of the job in terms of duties, responsibilities, and performance expectations (essential factors); the desirable factors that are important to successful performance and the skills, knowledge, abilities and other qualifications which would enable an individual to perform these duties and meet the responsibilities and performance expectations. Both mandatory and desirable qualifications are identified for executive/managerial requirements and professional/technical requirements. The specification of these requirements must be clearly related to the scope and depth of prior experience, rather than a certain number of years of experience, service at a particular grade level, or a minimum educational requirement. The standards may not include any criteria prohibited by law or regulation, e.g., religion, age, color, race, sex, national origin, marital status or plans, creed, or political affiliation.

e. The qualification standards for both career reserved and general positions are not affected by the type of appointment authority used to fill the position.

1114.2 Evaluation Criteria are based on the skills, knowledge, and abilities required for the SES position. Evaluation criteria are established for each position by the Director or Office Head and Personnel. Evaluation criteria are based on the Mandatory and Desirable Qualification Standards and are used by the Review Panel to evaluate applicants.

1115 MERIT STAFFING OF SES POSITIONS

The following merit staffing procedures must be used in filling SES career reserved or general positions unless the Director determines that one of the other appointment sources noted in paragraph 1113 will be utilized. All selections and reassignments must be properly documented.

1115.1 Recruitment - SES vacancies are announced for a minimum of 15 days through published vacancy announcements. The announcement includes information on the position, the SES pay and benefits, the qualification standards (both Mandatory and Desirable) for the position, the evaluation procedures to be used, probationary period required, area of recruitment, how to apply and to request additional information, opening and closing dates, and an equal employment opportunity statement. Personnel will assure, as much as practicable, that all groups of qualified individuals within the area of recruitment are notified of competitive SES vacancies. Personnel forwards copies of vacancy announcements to federal agencies and to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) to allow notification to the general public. The U.S. Employment Service offices are provided with copies for distribution to persons outside the Federal service. The Office of Civil Rights also receives copies of vacancy announcements and ensures distribution to minority and women employees who may be potential applicants.

1115.2 Evaluation of SES Applicants

a. Review by Personnel

(1) Personnel initially reviews all applications for experience indicating mandatory qualifications standards have been met. All applicants meeting the mandatory qualifications standards are referred for further consideration. Personnel notifies applicants who do not meet the established requirements.

SES candidates who meet the technical/professional qualifications of the SES position for which appointment is proposed and have been certified by the OPM Qualification Review Board are automatically referred to the ERB along with the best qualified group for any SES position for which they apply.

(2) If there are 10 or more qualified applicants, Personnel will set up a Review Panel and provide the following documents and information to the Review Panel:

--A list of qualified applicants;

--a current SF-171, "Application for Federal Employment, "OF-612 or resume for each qualified applicant; --the approved Mandatory and Desirable Qualification Standards;

--evaluation criteria based on required skills, knowledge, and abilities;

--each applicant's self-appraisal of management skills, long-range career goals, and qualifications; --appraisals of management skills from current and former supervisors;

--copy of latest performance appraisal report for non-Broadcasting applicants; and --performance files of Broadcasting employee applicants.

(3) If there are nine or fewer qualified applicants, a Review Panel is optional at the discretion of the Director or Office Head. If a Panel is not convened, Personnel will refer all qualified applicants on a Selection Certificate in alphabetical order to the ERB via the Director or Office Head.

b. Review by Review Panel

(1) Purpose and Composition of the Review Panel - The Review Panel is an ad hoc panel convened to review applicants for competitive vacancies and to identify the best-qualified group to be referred for appointment consideration. The Panel is composed of at least one career SES member and at least two other individuals of SES equivalent rank knowledgeable of the position, occupation, organization, etc. The Review Panel membership is approved in writing by the appropriate Director or Office Head.

(2) The Best-Qualified Group - The best-qualified group is that group of applicants identified by the review panel in accordance with the evaluation criteria as possessing superior qualifications for the SES position when compared to other applicants. Generally, the best-qualified group will include five but no more than seven applicants.

(3) Review Process - Each panel member first reviews all of the applicant files independently and determines the highly qualified group and the qualified group. Then the panel members discuss each applicant's qualifications and place each by consensus in either the highly qualified group or the qualified group. The panel may then (a) designate the highly-qualified group as the best-qualified group if it meets the requirements described in paragraph (2) above, or (b) review the highly-qualified group, repeating the review and discussion until an appropriate best-qualified group has been identified.

(4) Selection Certificate and Documentation - The names of the best qualified candidates are placed on a Selection Certificate in alphabetical order. The panel prepares a brief memorandum for each candidate on the Selection Certificate explaining why it made its determination. The panel refers the Selection Certificate together with the explanatory memoranda to the appropriate Director or Office Head.

c. Director or Office Head Action on Selection Certificate - The Director or Office Head considers the qualifications of the candidates certified, makes written recommendations, and forwards the certificate package and recommendations to the ERB for review.

d. Executive Resources Board (ERB) Action on Selection Certificate - The ERB members read the applicant files and may make further qualification inquiries, as required in the judgment of the ERB. The ERB prepares a written recommendation on the final selection to the Director, and forwards its written recommendation, the Certificate and memorandums from the Review Panel and the appropriate Director or Office Head to the Director. When any candidate certified is not recommended by the ERB for selection, the ERB will document its reasons in terms of the qualification standards and include this documentation in its submission to the Director.

1115.3 Selection by the Director - After review of the Selection Certificate and the recommendations, the Director makes the final decision on the selection, and notifies Personnel, through the Chairperson of the ERB, of his or her selection.

1115.4 OPM Approval of Qualifications - Before appointing an individual who is not a current career SES member or who does not have reinstatement eligibility, Personnel must obtain OPM Qualifications Review Board (QRB) approval of the individual's executive/managerial qualifications. The following documents are submitted to the OPM, in triplicate, to obtain their approval: the SF-1390, "Executive Personnel Transaction Form"; a copy of the qualifications standards; an SF-171, OF-612, or resume; a reference or performance appraisal on the candidate; and a brief written evaluation of the proposed appointee's background emphasizing the demonstrated executive experience, participation in an OPM approved SES candidate program, or special or unique qualities which indicate a likelihood of executive success. Non-career appointments do not require OPM approval. SES candidates are submitted for QRB certification upon completion of their candidate program, and do not require additional certification unless an OPM established expiration date has lapsed.

1115.5 Applicant Inquiries - Any applicant may request information concerning the procedures and operations of the Merit Staffing Process. This request must be submitted in writing to Personnel. Upon request, the following information is made available to applicants:

- a. Whether the applicant was placed in the best qualified group or in the qualified group by the Review Panel and during which review process.
- b. Whether he or she was on the Selection Certificate.
- c. The name of the successful applicant.
- d. Full information regarding the nature of the procedures used in recruiting and selecting candidates for the particular position.

1115.6 Merit Staffing Documentation - Personnel is responsible for the maintenance of all records in connection with the Merit Staffing Process. The following documentation will be retained by Personnel.

a. Documentation on qualification standards are retained for the life of the position; if the standards are changed during the life of the position, both the old and the new information is retained. This requirement includes:

(1) Documentation of the job analysis, including the mandatory (critical) and desirable elements of the job and skills, knowledge, abilities, and other qualifications required to perform these elements, and

(2) The qualifications standards for the position.

b. Documentation pertaining to the filling of a competitive vacancy in the SES is retained for a period of two years from the date of appointment. This documentation includes:

- (1) a copy of the vacancy announcement;
- (2) a list of organizations and addresses to which the vacancy announcement was distributed and distribution rationale;
- (3) the initial disqualification of candidates not meeting the Mandatory Qualification Standards;
- (4) the selection procedures applied including the evaluation criteria used by the Review Panel;
- (5) the Review Panel's written evaluation concerning each candidate referred to the ERB, and the recommendation(s) by the appropriate Director or Office Head;
- (6) the written recommendations concerning each candidate made by the ERB to the appointing authority, documentation on the elimination of any candidates by the ERB, and
- (7) any complaints or appeals to the ERB and the ERB's findings.

1115.7 Review and Appeals Procedures

a. Review on grounds of improper procedures:

(1) When an applicant believes that the procedures were not properly applied, he or she first discusses the complaint with Personnel. If an applicant still has a complaint, he or she may submit a written request for review through the Director, of Personnel to the ERB. This appeal must be filed within 15 calendar days of notification of the action taken on the application.

(2) The request for review should briefly state the reason(s) for the request and the procedures which the applicant believes were not sufficiently noted in the evaluation process.

(3) The ERB then reviews the request and the relevant material in the recruitment action. The ERB notifies the applicant of the results of the review. However, it is emphasized that failure to be selected from among a group of properly certified candidates is not a basis for a formal appeal.

b. Appeal on grounds of discrimination or violation of merit principle - Complaints or appeals based on alleged discrimination because of religion, age, color, race, sex, national origin, marital status or plans, creed, political affiliation, or physical handicap are resolved under Broadcasting's equal employment opportunity appeals procedures. Complaints or appeals to the Merit System Protection Board (MSPB) may be appropriate for alleged violation of merit principles.

c. There is no appeal by applicants to OPM for specific evaluation actions taken by the ERB or selection actions taken by the appointing official.

1116 SELECTION OF SES CANDIDATES

1116.1 Recruitment - When the Director determines that there is a need to develop an SES Candidate for future consideration for SES vacancies, the Director will instruct Personnel to initiate competitive recruitment for SES Candidates. Personnel will distribute an Executive Development Opportunity Announcement throughout the Government for a period of 30 days. All Federal employees GS-15 and higher and Foreign Service equivalent (FS-1) are eligible to apply. Applicants submit an SF-171, OF-612, or resume, a self appraisal of management skills, a memorandum from the applicant describing his or her long range career goals and how the applicant meets the mandatory requirements of the position advertised, and the names of three current and/or former supervisors who have knowledge of the applicant's background.

The Executive Development Opportunity Announcement will include information on the SES Candidate Executive Development Program, will list the mandatory and desirable qualifications for the SES target positions, will include the evaluation and the selection procedures to be followed, as well as the area of recruitment, opening and closing dates, and an equal employment opportunity statement. Personnel will assure, as much as practicable, that all groups of qualified individuals within the area of recruitment are notified of the SES candidate opportunity.

A copy of each Executive Development Opportunity Announcement will be sent to the Office of Civil Rights to ensure distribution to minority and women employees who may be potential applicants. Copies will also be sent to federal agencies and to the appropriate OPM SES Officer to allow notification to the federal employees.

1116.2 Evaluation of Applicants for the SES Candidate Program

a. Personnel will screen the applications and determine that all the required forms have been submitted and that the applicant meets the mandatory qualifications, both managerial and technical, of the SES position.

If there are ten or more fully qualified applicants Personnel will set up a Review Panel. The Review Panel will consist of three senior officials who do not supervise the target position . Personnel will provide the panel with the following materials for each applicant: the SF-171, OF-612, or resume, the self-appraisal of management skills, each applicant's memorandum describing his or her long range career goals and how he or she meets the mandatory requirements, appraisals from three current and/or former supervisors of each applicant's management skills, and the Official Personnel Folder containing performance appraisals for employees.

If there are nine or less fully qualified applicants, the applicants' files are referred directly to the ERB. No review panel will be convened.

b. If there are ten or more fully qualified applicants the Review Panel will determine the best qualified group in the manner discussed in paragraph 1115.2b(2) and (3) above.

c. The names of the best qualified applicants as determined by the Review Panel will be placed on a Selection Certificate in alphabetical order and given to the Executive Resources Board (ERB). The Review Panel will also prepare a brief memorandum on each applicant appearing on the Selection Certificate explaining why the applicant was included on the certificate.

d. Executive Resources Board (ERB) may personally interview each of the applicants on the selection certificate, as required in the judgment of the ERB, and will prepare written recommendations of the final selection to the Director.

1116.3 Selection - The Director will make the final decision on selection after reviewing the Selection Certificate and the written recommendations of the ERB, and will notify the Director, of Personnel through the Chairperson of the ERB, of the final selection.

1116.4 Notification and Documentation by Personnel - Director of Personnel will notify the successful applicant of his or her selection as an SES candidate, and will inform all other applicants of the results of the process.

1116.5 Designation As An SES Candidate - Each successful applicant will receive a letter from the Director of Personnel advising of his or her selection as an SES candidate. A copy of the letter will be placed in the SES candidate's Official Personnel Folder. The letter will inform the SES candidate of his or her SES advisor and advise the SES candidate of the requirement to complete an Individual Development Plan. The SES candidate's immediate supervisor will also receive a copy of the letter.

Section 1120

SES EXECUTIVE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS

1121 POLICY

- a. It is Broadcasting's policy to enhance its executive management capabilities at the senior level by developing and maintaining an SES group of highly competent, career and non-career managers and executives. After being competitively selected, opportunities will be provided for all SES candidates and SES members to continue their development through formal training programs and varied work assignments.
- b. The Executive Development Program will focus primarily upon work related experience designed to continue the development of senior executives, and to develop SES candidates so they are capable of assuming executive duties and responsibilities upon appointment to an SES position.

- c. The Executive Development Program is designed to meet organizational needs for managerial improvement and increased work performance; to help SES members keep up-to-date in professional, technical, managerial, social, economic and political areas; to meet the individual needs of SES members for intellectual and personal growth and development and to participate in Office of Personnel Management (OPM) or White House sponsored special programs and activities for SES members.
- d. The Executive Development Plan for SES candidates will include enrollment in the Office of Personnel Management's (OPM) Senior Executive Service Candidate Development Program, preparation of an Individual Development Plan (IDP), and assignment of an advisor/mentor to oversee the progress of each participant.
- e. One method of executive development for career SES members is the granting of up to an eleven month sabbatical for an SES career member. The Executive Resources Board (ERB) will act on executive sabbaticals approved by the Director, Office of Personnel.

1122 RESPONSIBILITIES

1122.1 The Executive Resources Board (ERB) is responsible for the overall planning and management of the Executive Development Program for SES members and for SES candidates, assigning an SES advisor to each participant in the SES Candidate Executive Development Program, for reviewing and approving the Individual Development Plan for each SES member and SES candidate before it is implemented, for making the final decision on releasing unsuccessful candidates from the SES Candidate Executive Development Program, for approving the successful completion of the SES Candidate Executive Development Program, and authorizing certification of those candidates who have successfully completed the program, for approving executive sabbaticals, and for reviewing and evaluating the Executive Development Program on an annual basis and incorporating evaluation results into planning for future program operations.

1122.2 Director, Office of Personnel is the Coordinator with the OPM for SES candidate executive development, will advise career SES members and their supervisors of available formal training, OPM or White House sponsored special programs or activities, and of other development opportunities that become available during the course of the year; recommend career SES members for executive sabbaticals; evaluate the progress of participants in the SES Candidate Executive Development Program and keep the ERB informed of progress; recommend to the ERB the release of participants from the SES Candidate Executive Development Program whose progress is not satisfactory, recommend the ERB approve the successful completion of the Executive Development Program by individual SES candidates and request ERB authorization to request Qualification Review Board Certification from the OPM for individuals who have successfully completed the SES Candidate Executive Development Program, and receive OPM certification by its Qualification Review Board for successful SES candidates.

1122.3 SES Members Who Are Advisors of SES Candidates are responsible for assisting his or her SES candidate in preparing an Individual Development Plan (IDP), for meeting quarterly with the SES candidate and submitting reports to the Chairperson of the ERB and the Director of Personnel on the progress of the SES candidate.

1123 EXECUTIVE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM FOR SES CANDIDATES

- a. Each SES candidate will receive formal training through the Office of Personnel Management's SES Candidate Development Program, and developmental assignments. Within 30 days after notification of selection as an SES candidate, the employee will complete his or her Individual Development Plan (IDP) in conjunction with his or her supervisor and the SES member assigned to the Candidate as advisor. Upon approval of the IDP by the Executive Resources Board (ERB), the SES candidate will proceed with implementation of the training outlined in the IDP, which will be designed to develop the managerial competencies required in the target SES position. The IDP will identify the development needed by the SES candidate and describe how developmental assignments and management education will be used to meet the development needs of the SES candidate.
- b. The OPM program for SES candidates will consist of a three-week Executive Development Seminar at one of OPM's seminar centers, and four one-week seminars. The three-week seminar will provide participants an expanded view of the executive role and the external forces and realities impacting on their programs and themselves. The one-week seminars will include presentations by key legislative, top administration, and state or local officials as well as representatives from the private sector and academia, and will provide an awareness of broad program issues and policies important to Federal executives in general.
- c. Each SES candidate will complete at least six months of developmental work assignments during the 18 months of the training program. Each SES candidate will be given at least two developmental work assignments, one of which must be outside Broadcasting. Developmental work assignments could include assignment to an overseas position for a short period of time, to a Congressional oversight or appropriation committee or subcommittee, to a task force or to Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty or Radio Free Asia , an assignment which provides exposure to program and management issues which cut across Broadcasting lines. Each SES candidate will include suggested developmental assignments in his or her IDP, and at least two assignments will be approved or set up by the ERB.
- d. The progress of each SES candidate will be monitored periodically during the Executive Development Program. At least quarterly, the SES candidate will meet with his or her SES advisor. The SES advisor will discuss progress of the candidate with the Director of Personnel. The Director of Personnel will provide the ERB with periodic reports on SES candidates.

- e. SES candidates who do not demonstrate sufficient progress during the Executive Development Program, as determined by the SES advisor and the Director of Personnel will be removed from the program with the approval of the Executive Resources Board, (ERB). The Director of Personnel will recommend removal to the ERB. Upon approval of the ERB, the SES candidate will be notified in writing that he or she has been removed from the program. A copy of the removal letter will be placed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder.
- f. SES candidates who complete the Executive Development Program will be certified by the OPM Qualification Review Board. The OPM Qualification Review Board will certify the SES candidate's executive qualifications. When certified, the SES candidate may be appointed to SES managerial positions without further merit selection process for executive qualifications (further competition based on technical qualifications may be required).

The Director of Personnel will request approval from the ERB to get OPM certification of the SES candidate's managerial competency when the SES candidate has completed the Executive Development Program. Only the Office of Personnel may request approval from the OPM Qualification Review Board.

Section 1130

PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT SYSTEM FOR SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE

1131 GENERAL

1131.1 Applicability - These regulations apply to all officers who are members of the Senior Executive Service (SES) as defined in paragraph (2) of Section 3132(a) of Title 5, U.S. Code. 1131.2 Authority - These regulations are established pursuant to Chapter 43 of Title 5, U.S. Code, and 5, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 430.

1131.3 Implementation - The performance appraisal provisions of this section are implemented with the rating period beginning July 1, 2001.

1131.4 Objectives - The objectives of the performance management system for senior executives are to:

- a. Expect excellence in senior executive performance and hold executives accountable for results;
- b. Provide for the establishment and communication of individual and organizational goals and expectations that are consistent with the goals and performance expectations in the agency's strategic planning initiatives;
- c. Provide for the systematic evaluation of senior executive performance using measures that balance organizational results with customer, employee or other perspectives;
- d. Provide for the accurate evaluation of employee performance on the basis of specific performance elements and requirements;
- e. Provide for on-going communication of goals and expectations and periodic reviews of employee's performance;
- f. Help employees recognize their strengths and weaknesses and initiate steps to assist employees who are rated below the Fully Successful level to improve their level of performance;
- g. Ensure that employees recognize that the performance appraisal system is both fair and equitable;
- h. Use performance results as a basis for pay, awards, development, retention, removal or to make other personnel decisions relating to senior executives; and
- i. Prohibit the forced distribution of levels of ratings for senior executives.

1131.5 Definitions

- a. Annual Summary Rating - The overall rating level that an appointing authority assigns at the end of the appraisal period after considering the Performance Review Board's recommendations. This is the official rating.
- b. Appointing Authority - The Director, International Broadcasting Bureau (IBB) or his/her designee is the Appointing Authority for IBB employees. The Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) is the Appointing Authority for BBG staff senior executives.
- c. Appraisal Period - The established period of time for which a senior executive's performance will be appraised and rated. The annual appraisal period for SES executives is July 1 to June 30 (unless the appraisal period is extended in accordance with Section 1134.1 below).

d. Balanced Measures - An approach to performance measurement that balances organizational results with the perspectives of distinct groups, including customers and employees.

e. Critical Element - A key component of an executive's work that contributes to organizational goals and results and is so important that unsatisfactory performance of the element would make the executive's overall job performance unsatisfactory. At least two critical elements must be established for all employees covered by this plan.

f. Initial Summary Rating - An overall rating level the supervisor derives from appraising the senior executive's performance during the appraisal period and forwards to the Performance Review Board.

g. Performance - The accomplishment of the work described in the senior executive's performance plan.

h. Performance Appraisal Process - The review and evaluation of a senior executive's performance against performance elements and requirements.

i. Performance Management System - The framework of policies and practices established by an agency for planning, monitoring, developing, evaluating, and rewarding both individual and organizational performance and for using resulting performance information in making personnel decisions.

j. Performance Requirement - A statement of the performance expected for a critical element. (This was formerly defined as performance standard. It may also be known as performance expectations.)

k. Periodic Progress Review - A review of the senior executive's progress in meeting the performance requirements. At least one progress review is required during the performance appraisal cycle. A progress review is not a performance rating.

l. Re-certification - A process completed every three years whereby it is determined if a SES career appointee has demonstrated the excellence needed to meet the goals of the Senior Executive Service as set forth in 5 USC 3131.

m. Senior Executive Performance Plan - The written summary of work the senior executive is expected to accomplish during the appraisal period and the requirements against which performance will be evaluated. The plan addresses all critical elements established for the senior executive.

n. Strategic Planning Initiatives - Agency strategic plans, annual performance plans, organizational workplans and other related initiatives.

1131.6 Administrative Responsibilities

a. Performance Review Board (PRB)

(1) The Performance Review Board (PRB) is responsible for advising and making written recommendations to the Director, IBB and the Broadcasting

Board of Governors through the Executive Resources Board (ERB) concerning executive performance appraisals and ratings; preparing recommendations for performance awards and individual percentages to be awarded, and rank awards; and for making recommendations on re-certification for SES career appointees. (See also Section 1137.)

(2) The PRB will be composed of a panel with three or more members. A representative of Personnel will serve as Executive Secretary to the PRB without voting privileges. The members will be selected by the Director, IBB (for IBB senior executives) and the Chairman of the BBG (for BBG senior executives). The names of members will be published in the Federal Register. Appointment to the PRB will be done in a manner to ensure consistency, stability, and objectivity in reviewing performance appraisals.

(3) When appraising a career appointee's performance or recommending a career appointee for a performance award, more than one-half of the PRB members must be SES career appointees.

b. Executive Resources Board (ERB) - The Executive Resources Board (ERB) is responsible for reviewing and supporting the PRB recommendations or making its own supplementary written recommendations, as appropriate, to the IBB Director and the BBG Chairman concerning performance awards and individual percentages to be awarded, and rank awards. The ERB's recommendations will not alter, nor be substituted for, those of the PRB. (See also Section 1137.) The ERB is also responsible for advising and making recommendations on individual members' pay adjustments and removal from the SES.

c. The IBB Director and the BBG Chairman are responsible for assigning the annual summary rating for SES members, for determining the annual bonuses and cash awards for SES members, for nominating SES members for the Presidential rank awards, and for the overall management and administration of the Senior Executive Service.

d. Office Directors, along with the IBB Director, are responsible for ensuring those employees under their supervision complete performance elements and requirements, mid-year reviews, and appraisals in accordance with these regulations and guidelines.

e. Rating and Reviewing Officers and Rated Employees are responsible for ensuring that performance elements and requirements, mid-year reviews, and appraisals are completed in accordance with these guidelines and that the appropriate deadlines are met for completion and submission of SES performance ratings.

f. Office of Personnel - The Director, Office of Personnel is responsible for:

(1) Developing the performance management system including re-certification, for the Senior Executive Service, including regulations, forms and instructions;

(2) Administering the SES performance management system and re-certification process by informing management and employees about the objectives, policies, and procedures of the appraisal system and ensuring compliance by monitoring submissions;

(3) Periodically evaluating the effectiveness of the performance management system and making appropriate modifications;

(4) Providing training and counseling to employees and supervisors regarding performance management and appraisals; and

(5) Assisting Rating Officers in obtaining appraisals of the performance of employees detailed or assigned to other agencies or to international organizations.

1132 OVERVIEW OF SES PERFORMANCE APPRAISAL SYSTEM

1132.1 Appraisals of Performance in the Senior Executive Service shall be based on both individual and organizational performance, taking into account such factors as:

a. Results achieved in accordance with the Government Performance and Results Act of 1993;

b. Customer satisfaction and employee perspectives;

c. The effectiveness, productivity, and performance quality of the employees for whom the senior executive is responsible;

d. Meeting affirmative action, equal employment opportunity and diversity goals and complying with the merit system principles set forth in section 2301 of title 5, United States Code;

e. Strong and effective leadership;

f. Facilitating a positive workplace that fosters diversity, innovation, initiative, open and honest communication and teamwork among employees and peers;

g. Planning and assigning work, delegating responsibilities, providing guidance, motivating employees and developing their potential, utilizing efficient management, administrative, and personnel practices;

h. Providing timely, fair, complete, and useful performance appraisals on subordinates and taking steps to reward or improve employee performance; and

i. Other indicators of the effectiveness, productivity and performance quality of the employees for whom the senior executive is responsible.

1132.2 Planning and Communicating Performance

a. Identifying Performance Elements and Establishing Performance Requirements

(1) Each senior executive must have a performance plan that describes the individual and organizational expectations for the appraisal period and sets the requirements against which performance will be evaluated. The performance plan must be consistent with the goals and performance expectations in the agency's strategic planning initiatives.

(2) Supervisors must develop performance plans in consultation with senior executives. Performance elements and requirements must be verbally communicated to the Rated Employee on or before the beginning of each rating period, and must be prepared on the performance appraisal form, with a copy provided to the Rated Employee, normally within 30 days of the beginning of the appraisal period. Subsequent revisions become effective upon decision by the Rating Officer after consultation with the Rated Employee.

b. Performance Elements

(1) Performance plans must describe only the critical elements of the senior executive's work. A minimum of two critical elements must be established for each SES position. Performance plans for all senior executives must include the critical performance element that is included as Element Number One (1) on the Performance Appraisal Report form.

(2) To ensure a common understanding of the expected performance, substantive participation by the Rated Employee in the establishment of performance elements and requirements is required. The Rated Employee may participate by providing draft performance elements and requirements, commenting on draft elements and requirements, meeting with the Rating Officer to discuss and develop performance elements and requirements, or any other appropriate means. However, the Rating Officer, as supervisor, prevails in the event of a disagreement concerning performance elements and requirements ultimately established.

c. Performance Requirements

(1) The purposes of performance requirements are to give Rated Employees guidance on what they are expected to do; provide a benchmark against which the Rating Officers can make objective assessments of performance; and increase understanding between the Rating Officer and Rated Employee of the basis on which the appraisal will be made.

(2) At a minimum, a performance requirement must be developed at the Fully Successful level for each performance element. Performance requirements at other rating levels are encouraged but not required. These are the standards against which the senior executive's performance will be appraised. The absence of a written performance requirement does not preclude the assignment of a rating at that level. The requirements established at the Fully Successful level should reflect the consequences of the work outcome to the organization and its mission, and permit the accurate evaluation of job performance. Requirements should be realistic and reasonable.

1132.3 Monitoring Performance

a. Rating Officers must monitor each senior executive's performance during the appraisal period and provide feedback to the senior executive on progress in accomplishing the performance elements and requirements described in the performance plan. Supervisors must provide advice and assistance to senior executives on how to improve their performance.

b. Rating Officers and Rated Employees are encouraged to review and discuss the Rated Employee's performance throughout the rating period. Rating Officers and Rated Employees must hold at least one progress review during the rating period, preferably at the mid-point. At a minimum, senior executives must be informed about how well they are performing against performance requirements. During this discussion, modifications of performance elements and/or performance requirements may be made. Any modifications of performance elements and requirements must be documented in writing and incorporated into the final performance appraisal form. The dates of all discussions also should be indicated on the appraisal form.

1132.4 Appraising Performance

a. At the end of the appraisal period, the Rating Officer must assign a level of achievement on the performance appraisal form for each performance element, unless the employee has had no opportunity to demonstrate performance on the element.

b. The Rating Officer must record the level of achievement on the performance appraisal form. A narrative justification is required for all Outstanding levels of achievement, which clearly describes the extent to, and manner in which the employee exceeded the established requirement. No narrative justification is required at the Fully Successful or Highly Successful levels, provided that the previously established requirements clearly describe the expectations of the assigned level.

If a Highly Successful level of achievement is assigned to an individual element having only a Fully Successful established requirement, a narrative justification is required. A narrative description of performance must be provided at all levels upon the employee's request.

c. Levels of Achievement - There are five levels of achievement for each performance element from which the Rating Official may choose:

(1) Outstanding - Performance of rare high quality which clearly and consistently far exceeds the Fully Successful requirement to an outstanding degree in terms of such factors as meeting goals and exhibiting leadership, as well as quality, quantity, timeliness and extent of supervision required, or exceeds the Highly Successful requirement if one is provided.

(2) Highly Successful - Performance of unusually good quality which clearly and consistently exceeds the Fully Successful requirement to a significant degree in terms of such factors as meeting goals and exhibiting leadership, as well as quality, quantity, timeliness and extent of supervision required, or meets the Highly Successful requirement if one is provided.

(3) Fully Successful - Performance, which clearly and consistently meets the Fully Successful requirement in terms of such factors as meeting goals and exhibiting leadership, as well as quality, quantity, timeliness, and extent of supervision, required.

(4) Minimally Satisfactory - Performance of poor quality which falls noticeably below the Fully Successful requirement in terms of such factors as meeting goals and exhibiting leadership, as well as quality, quantity, timeliness and/or extent of supervision required, or meets the Minimally Satisfactory requirement if one is provided.

(5) Unsatisfactory - Performance of very poor quality which is unacceptable and falls well below the Fully Successful requirement in terms of such factors meeting goals and exhibiting leadership, as well as quality, quantity, timeliness, and/or extent of supervision required, or falls short of the Minimally Satisfactory requirement if one is provided.

d. Initial Summary Rating - The Rating Officer must also assign a summary rating of the Rated Employee's overall performance, which is the written initial summary rating. Summary adjectival ratings are limited to the five outlined below and may not be modified.

(1) Outstanding - For a summary rating of Outstanding, an employee's performance must have been rated as Outstanding on all elements.

(2) Highly Successful - Except as noted, for a summary rating of Highly Successful, the employee's performance on all elements must have been rated as at least Highly Successful. A summary rating of Highly Successful still may be appropriate if performance on one but not more than one element is rated Fully Successful, provided performance on other elements is rated at least Highly Successful and the Rating Officer concludes that (a) the element was relatively less important than other elements and (b) required only a small portion of the time of the employee and (c) that performance on that element was offset by performance on two or more other elements.

(3) Fully Successful - For a summary rating of Fully Successful, the employee's performance on all elements must have been rated as at least Fully Successful.

(4) Minimally Satisfactory - A summary rating of Minimally Satisfactory is appropriate if the employee's performance has been rated as Minimally Satisfactory on one or more elements.

(5) Unsatisfactory - A summary rating of Unsatisfactory is required if the employee's performance on one or more elements has been rated as Unsatisfactory.

e. Higher Level Approvals

Directors may require review and approval of their subordinate managers' proposed ratings for overall reasonableness, difficulty and strictness of application, consistency between organizations and consistency with organizational performance, and to ensure that only those employees whose performance exceeds normal expectations are rated at levels above Fully Successful.

f. Rated Employees

(1) After the Rating Officer has completed the initial summary rating and signed the performance appraisal form, the Rating Officer will give the Rated Employee the initial summary rating and will notify the employee of his/her right to respond in writing and to request a higher level review before the rating becomes final.

(2) Rated Employees are encouraged to provide written comments in the Rated Employee section of the performance appraisal form and to respond to the initial summary rating. The Rated Employee signs the form and returns it to the Rating Officer with his or her comments for transmittal to the Reviewing Officer, if one is requested, and to the PRB. Completion of this section should not automatically be construed as a rebuttal of the performance appraisal.

(3) The Rated Employee may also request a higher level review, unless there is no one at a higher level, prior to review of the Performance Review Board (PRB). The Rated Employee's response must be provided to both the official making the higher level review and the PRB.

g. Reviewing Officers

(1) Except as stated in 1132.4e, no Reviewing Officer will be required for SES ratings except in cases where the Rated Employee requests a review. In those cases the Reviewing Officer normally will be the Rating Officer's supervisor.

(2) If there is a Reviewing Officer, the Rating Officer and the Rated Employee must receive a copy of the Reviewing Officer's comments and recommendations after the Reviewing Officer has completed his/her section of the performance appraisal form. The Rated Employee may then add additional comments. The Reviewing Officer and Rated Employee's comments will become part of the record and will be included in the materials sent to the PRB.

(3) After the review is completed, the performance appraisal form will be transmitted to the Performance Review Board through the Director of Personnel.

1132.5 Performance Review Board - The Performance Review Board must review the initial summary rating, the senior executive's response to the initial rating, and the higher level official's comments, if any. It can conduct further review or investigation as it finds necessary, and, by a majority, must make a written recommendation to the appointing authority about each senior executive's annual summary rating. The Performance Review Board then forwards the appraisal form and written recommendations to the appropriate appointing authority (IBB Director or BBG Chairman).

1132.6 Annual Summary Rating - After considering any PRB recommendations, the appropriate appointing authority assigns in writing the annual summary rating of the senior executive's performance. This rating is the official rating.

1133 DESIGNATION OF RATING AND REVIEWING OFFICERS

a. The Rating Officer must be the Rated Employee's supervisor, except under very unusual circumstances that must be fully explained.

b. No Reviewing Officer will normally be required, except as noted in 1132.4e. or in cases where the Rated Employee requests a review. In such cases, the Reviewing Officer will usually be the Rating Officer's supervisor.

c. If a question arises concerning who shall serve as the Rating or Reviewing Officer, the Associate Director for Management shall decide, after coordination with the Director, IBB.

1134 PREPARATION OF PERFORMANCE RATINGS

1134.1 Appraisal Periods

a. Annual Appraisals - Annual appraisals cover the period July 1 through June 30 of each year, unless the rating period is extended in accordance with paragraph 1134.1d. below. They must be prepared and submitted through the Office of Personnel to the Performance Review Board no later than September 1 of each year. An annual appraisal period may be terminated in accordance with paragraph b(3) below.

b. Duration of Appraisal

(1) Any employee assigned to a SES position must receive at least one written annual summary rating. Such a rating must be prepared at the end of the appraisal period and cover a minimum of 90 calendar days under the same performance elements and requirements.

(2) Interim and transferred ratings given during an appraisal period shall not supersede an annual summary rating assigned for a previous rating period.

(3) Except as provided in (1) above, a performance appraisal period may be terminated in any case where an adequate basis exists on which to appraise and rate a senior executive's performance.

c. Interim Ratings

(1) Interim ratings must be prepared for any period of assignment that covers at least 90 calendar days but less than a full rating year. Interim ratings must be prepared upon the departure of a Rating Officer or when an executive changes positions if he or she has served for the minimum appraisal period. However, by law, no performance appraisal may be prepared for a career SES appointee within 120 calendar days after the beginning of a new Presidential administration. Interim ratings must be considered in determining the next annual summary rating.

(2) If the Rated Employee has received one or more SES interim ratings during the annual rating period, including appraisal information or ratings from other Federal agencies, such ratings must be considered in determining the employee's initial summary rating at the end of the rating period. The following factors should be considered in making this determination:

(a) Relative difficulty of the performance elements and requirements in both the current and previous position(s);]

(b) Performance of the employee throughout the appraisal period and any recent improvement or deterioration in performance; and

(c) Length of time covered by the interim rating(s).

d. Extensions of Appraisal Periods - If the Rated Employee has not been in his or her current SES position for at least 90 calendar days or if a new Rating Officer has been assigned within the last 90 calendar days and no interim SES ratings were received, the rating period must be extended to provide a minimum appraisal period on which an annual summary rating can be prepared. If the Rated Employee received at least one interim SES rating covering the minimum 90 day appraisal period, the Rating Officer may prepare an annual summary rating based on the interim rating(s). The appraisal period generally can not be extended beyond September 30 to provide an annual summary rating to be used as a basis for performance pay purposes.

e. Performance on Details and Temporary Assignments Within BBG/IBB - When senior executives are detailed or temporarily reassigned and the detail or temporary assignment is expected to last 90 calendar days or longer, the gaining organization must provide the senior executive with written critical elements and performance requirements. The gaining organization must appraise the senior executive's performance in writing. This appraisal must be considered in deriving a senior executive's next annual summary rating.

f. Performance on Details Outside BBG/IBB - When senior executives are detailed outside of BBG/IBB, the Rating Officer must make a reasonable effort to obtain appraisal information from the outside organization, which shall be considered in deriving the executive's next annual summary rating.

(1) If an executive has served in BBG/IBB for at least 90 calendar days, the executive must be rated. The rating shall take into consideration appraisal information obtained from the borrowing organization.

(2) If an executive has not served in BBG/IBB for 90 calendar days, but has served for the minimum appraisal period outside the organization, the

g. Transfer of Rating - If a SES employee moves to a new agency or to a new organizational element within BBG/IBB, at any time during the appraisal period, his or her current annual summary rating must be transferred as described in MOA V-A 910. In addition, the losing supervisor must prepare an interim rating if the employee has served for the minimum appraisal period in the position he or she is vacating. This rating is not considered to be the initial summary rating. The transferred rating must be considered by the gaining supervisor or Agency when deriving the next initial summary rating.

1134.2 Format of Performance Ratings - All performance ratings must be prepared on the current SES Performance Appraisal Form (IBB-0006).

1134.3 Confidentiality and Disclosure of Performance Ratings - Performance appraisals must be treated confidentially, consistent with the Privacy Act. Access to appraisals is restricted to persons who have a legitimate need to know. (See MOA V-A 910.)

1134.4 Inadmissible Comments - A number of factors must not be included in the performance rating by any of the participants in the rating process (Rating Officer, Reviewing Officer or Rated Employee) in any part of the report:

a. Reference to race, color, religion, sex (except for title of address, first names or personal pronouns), national origin, age, political affiliation, marital status, or reference to spouse or family.

b. Mention of the specific nature of a disability or medical problem, such as a physical handicap, alcoholism, or drug abuse. Alcoholism and drug abuse, including efforts at rehabilitation, are considered medical problems to be diagnosed only by medical personnel and should not be specifically discussed in any performance rating. Reference may be made to a disability or medical problem only to the extent that it affects job performance.

c. Mention of initiation or participation in grievance procedures.

NOTE: This list does not include all inadmissible comments. The Office of Personnel should be consulted in questionable situations.

1135 SUBMISSION AND DISPOSITION OF PERFORMANCE APPRAISAL RATING FORMS

a. No more than three copies of the Performance Appraisal Form may be prepared. The original copy of the completed form with the initial summary rating must be submitted by the Rating Officer or Reviewing Officer, as appropriate, to the Performance Review Board, through the Director or Personnel. The Rated Employee must receive a copy of the initial summary rating. The Rating Officer retains a copy. All copies must show the signatures of all parties.

b. Under the Privacy Act, the retention by the originating office of a copy of the initial summary rating will be restricted to those circumstances outlined in MOA V-A 900.

c. After the annual summary rating is assigned by the appropriate appointing official (IBB Director or BBG Chairman), the original copy of the completed rating will be placed in the employee's official performance file and will be retained there for five years. The Executive Secretary to the PRB will send a copy of this completed performance appraisal rating form to the Rated Employee.

d. If an employee moves to another Federal agency at any time during the appraisal period, the performance ratings of record of the past five years and the most current performance plan must be transferred to the gaining agency. If an employee has served a minimal appraisal period, an interim rating must be prepared on the same form as the most current performance plan. This interim rating must be taken into consideration by the gaining agency when determining the next annual summary rating.

1136 USE OF PERFORMANCE APPRAISALS

The performance appraisals should be used as a basis for the following:

a. Career Development and Training - Appraisals of performance often highlight a need for further development, either through classroom or on-the-job training, to improve employee effectiveness. Supervisors and employees should follow normal procedures to request training.

b. Retention, Reassignment, or Removal

(1) An annual summary rating of Fully Successful or above shall provide the basis for retention in the Senior Executive Service.

(2) An annual summary rating of Unsatisfactory must result in reassignment within the SES, and may result in removal from SES.

(3) Any Senior Executive who receives two Unsatisfactory annual summary ratings in any period of five consecutive years must be removed from the SES.

(4) Any Senior Executive who twice in any period of three consecutive years receives an annual summary rating of Minimally Satisfactory or Unsatisfactory must be removed from the Senior Executive Service.

(5) If an annual summary rating is below the Fully Successful level, efforts will be made to assist the employee in improving his/her performance including formal, and/or on-the-job training, counseling, and/or closer supervision:

c. Performance Awards - Any career appointee receiving an annual summary rating of at least Fully Successful may be given a performance award.

d. Adjusting Base Pay - Performance appraisals may be used as a basis in recommending base pay adjustments.

1137 PERFORMANCE AND RANK AWARDS

1137.1 Performance Awards

a. Authority - To encourage and reward excellence in performance by career appointees in the Senior Executive Service, 5 USC. 5384 authorizes the Director to make lump sum cash payments to deserving executives.

b. Guidelines and Limitations

(1) Only career appointees in the SES as of the end of the rating period, regular or extended, are eligible for consideration for performance awards. The executive's most recent annual summary rating must have been Fully Successful or higher.

(2) The total amount of performance awards paid during a fiscal year may not exceed (a) ten percent of the aggregate career SES basic pay as of the end of the fiscal year prior to the fiscal year in which the award payments are made, or (b) twenty percent of the average annual rates of basic pay to career SES appointees at the end of the fiscal year prior to the fiscal year in which the award payments are made.

(3) The performance award will be a lump-sum payment in addition to, but not part of, basic pay. It must be at least 5% but may not exceed 20% of the executive's basic SES pay as of the end of the performance appraisal period.

(4) The total of an employee's basic salary and performance or rank awards and any other payments listed in 5 CFR 530.202 may not in any one calendar year exceed the pay rate then payable for Executive Level I. However, the amount in excess of that limit shall be paid to that individual in a lump sum at the beginning of the following calendar year, subject to the same annual limit.

c. Procedure - See paragraph 1137.3.

d. Documentation - Records of approved performance awards will be placed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder, with a copy in the Employee's Performance File.

1137.2 Presidential Rank Awards

a. Authority - To recognize prolonged, high quality accomplishment by members of the Senior Executive Service, 5 USC 4507 authorizes the President to approve the awarding of ranks and accompanying stipends to a select number of senior executives who hold career appointments in the SES. Presidential Rank Awards are reserved for career senior executives who have a record of achievement that is recognized throughout the agency and/or is acknowledged on a national or international level. In reaching the pinnacle of achievement, rank award recipients will also have inspired their employees and earned their customers' respect. Balanced measures (i.e. high performance in GPRA goal attainment, customer satisfaction, and employee perspectives) are key in evaluating executive accomplishments. Nominees must have a minimum of three years career service at the SES or equivalent level.

b. Types of Awards - Two types of awards are available:

(1) Meritorious Executive - For sustained accomplishment. This award includes a lump-sum payment of 20 percent of the executive's base salary, subject to the total remuneration limitation (see 1137.1 b.).

(2) Distinguished Executive - For sustained extraordinary accomplishment. This award includes a lump-sum payment of 35 percent of the executive's base salary, subject to the total remuneration limitation (see 1137.1 b.).

1137.3 Procedures for Determining Performance Awards, Rank Award Nominations, and Related Personnel Matters with regard to SES Members

Step 1 - Rating Officers

Complete SES performance appraisals and forward to the Office of Personnel by September 1 for transmittal to the Performance Review Board.

Step 2 - Overall Funding Level

The IBB Director and the BBG Chairman, based upon recommendations of the Office of Personnel, the BBG, and the Budget Office, determine the amount of money available to fund performance awards for the applicable fiscal year. The maximum number of performance awards will be determined year by year, subject to budget restraints, but in no case can exceed statutory budget limits.

Step 3 - Performance Review Board (PRB)

Recommendations of the PRB will be determined by a majority vote of the members of the PRB. The PRB:

a. Reviews initial summary ratings and any recommendations, conducts further reviews or investigations as it finds necessary, and makes a written recommendation concerning each executive's initial summary rating;

b. Prepares recommendations to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman for performance awards and individual percentages to be awarded;

c. Prepares recommendations to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman on rank awards; and

d. Forwards all recommendations and appraisals to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman through the Executive Resources Board.

Recommendations on individual performance ratings will be made on the appraisal form. When reviewing a performance rating on a career SES member, the majority of PRB members must be career SES. The supervisor who made the initial summary rating may not participate in the PRB consideration of the SES member's performance. However, the supervisor may be called upon to appear before the PRB during its review of the rating. When reviewing the performance appraisal of a member of the PRB, that member may not participate. PRB members cannot review their own appraisals or those of their supervisors.

Step 4 - Executive Resources Board (ERB)

a. Recommends pay adjustments (subject to OPM limitation of one per year).

b. Prepares recommendations to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman for performance awards and individual percentages to be awarded;

c. Supports PRB recommendations or prepares its own recommendations to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman to supplement those of the PRB for:

- (1) Performance awards and individual percentages to be awarded; and
- (2) Rank awards.

d. Forwards all materials to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman.

Step 5 - The IBB Director or BBG Chairman (as appropriate)

a. Assigns the annual summary rating.

b. Approves, disapproves, raises or lowers recommended performance awards.

c. Approves, disapproves, raises or lowers rank award nominations.

d. As appropriate in his/her judgment, may adjust pay, approve performance awards, and nominate for rank awards other than those recommended by either the PRB or the ERB.

e. Approves or disapproves recommendations for pay adjustments, reassignments, or removal from SES.

Step 6 - Advising OPM

The IBB Office of Personnel shall submit the distribution of performance awards, the total amount of awards, and the aggregate payroll figures to OPM no later than 14 days after the performance awards are approved.

1137.4 Incentive Awards

All appointees in the SES are eligible for consideration for a cash incentive award if by his or her suggestion, invention, or other personal effort they contribute to the efficiency, economy or other improvement of Government operations or special act or service in the public interest in connection with or related to their official employment. Normally, non-career appointees will not be granted cash awards, to avoid the appearance of political favoritism. Members of the SES are excluded from eligibility for lump sum cash awards for sustained superior job performance under the incentive awards program for overall job performance, but may be granted an incentive award for a special act or service, invention, or suggestion. Incentive awards should not be used to supplement or circumvent performance awards.

1138 PERIODIC EVALUATION OF THE SES PERFORMANCE APPRAISAL PROGRAM

The SES performance appraisal program will be evaluated by the Office of Personnel at least annually to monitor its effectiveness in meeting the purposes set forth in Section 1131.4 of this plan, and so that any appropriate adjustments and improvements can be initiated. Evaluation will cover performance appraisal and awards described in this plan.

1139 RE-CERTIFICATION

1139.1 Applicability - SES career employees who have been continuously employed in the SES for 156 weeks preceding the end of the re-certification period are subject to re-certification.

1139.2 Authority - Section 506 of the Ethics Reform Act of 1989 (P.L. 101-194); Title 5 USC 3393a; 5 CFR 213, 317, 359, 842.

1139.3 Implementation - Re-certification was implemented in 1991. Subsequent re-certification will take place every third calendar year thereafter.

1139.4 Objective - Re-certification ensures that the performance of career appointees demonstrates the excellence needed to meet the goals of the Senior Executive Service.

1139.5 Plan - See Attachment A.

1139.6 Process

Step 1 - The SES career executive completes name, title, organization, pay rate, the appointee's annual ratings of record for the last three years, and other information in Part I of the Re-Certification form. The annual summary ratings for the three previous rating years, ending on June 30 of the current rating year, will be considered for re-certification.

Step 2 - Part II of the Re-certification form describes criteria for re-certification and is provided for review by the supervisor, the Performance Review Board, and the IBB Director or BBG Chairman.

Step 3 - The supervisor makes a recommendation in Part III and returns the form to the appointee.

Step 4 - The senior executive acknowledges receipt, signs and dates Part IV.

Step 5 - The supervisor forwards the Re-Certification form to the PRB through the Office of Personnel.

Step 6 - The PRB makes its recommendations for re-certification and pay adjustments in Part V. The PRB Chairperson signs Part V.

Step 7 - The PRB forwards its recommendation to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman.

Step 8 - The IBB Director or BBG Chairman indicates in Part VI the recertification determination and a determination on pay adjustment. The form is returned to the Office of Personnel for action.

Attachment A

SUBJECT: SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE RE-CERTIFICATION PLAN

A. Authority

Under Sec. 506 of the Ethics Reform Act of 1989 (Public Law 101-194), Senior Executive Service (SES) career appointees are subject to re-certification by their agencies. [Title 5 USC 3393a] [5 CFR 213, 317, 359, 842]

B. Purpose

SES re-certification ensures that the performance of career appointees demonstrates the excellence needed to meet the goals of the Senior Executive Service.

C. Relationship to Annual Performance Appraisal Process

The SES re-certification process and the annual performance appraisal process are complementary but separate. While the annual appraisal looks at how well the executive has met the specific requirements for his or her position for the year, the re-certification process looks at the executive's performance over a period of three years. At the highest levels of Government management occupied by SES members, it often is not possible to fully judge the performance of an individual in as short a time span as one year since the impact of an executive's activities may not show up until a later time.

D. Applicability

1. SES career employees who have been continuously employed in the SES for 156 weeks preceding the end of the re-certification period are subject to re-certification. This period includes any service as a SES non-career or limited appointee. It also includes service in any agency.
2. One or more breaks in SES service of a total of 6 months or less do not interrupt the 156 weeks of continuous employment.
3. SES career appointees who are on extended assignment or absence from their positions at the time of re-certification are subject to re-certification as long as they are officially occupying a SES position at the end of the re-certification period as a career appointee and meet the 156 week length of service requirement.
4. This re-certification plan does not apply to SES non-career appointees, SES limited appointees, or former SES career appointees who took Presidential appointments at Executive Level V or higher with Senate confirmation and elected to retain SES benefits.

E. Re-certification Period

1. The initial re-certification period ended on June 30, 1991, coincident with the end of the annual performance appraisal period. Subsequent re-certification shall take place every third calendar year thereafter. June 30 shall serve as the date for calculating the 156-week employment period.

2. If an individual is re-certified in another agency and then transfers to BBG/IBB during the calendar year, the individual is not subject to re-certification.

3. If an individual transfer from another agency during the calendar year and no re-certification decision was made in that agency, a re-certification decision must be made by BBG/IBB. All necessary relevant information on the executive's performance during the re-certification period, in addition to performance appraisals completed, will be requested of the executive's previous agency.

F. Standard for Re-certification

1. The career appointee must perform at the level of excellence expected of a senior executive. Excellence means that the executive has demonstrated over the re-certification period that he or she has achieved excellence in:

a. Planning for, substantially advancing, and attaining individual and organizational goals and objectives that are consistent with the goals and performance expectations in the agency's strategic planning initiatives and that required a sustained superior effort;

b. Taking specific initiatives that advanced a major policy and/or significantly improved delivery of services;

c. Taking the necessary actions to ensure the achievement of a quality product in a timely manner; and

d. Making significant technical, scientific, or professional contributions.

2. Also, if applicable to the responsibilities of the senior executive, excellence is demonstrated by:

a. Achieving substantial savings in the execution of programs under his or her direction;

b. Maintaining the high quality and effectiveness of programs under his or her direction with reduced resources; and/or

c. Providing strong leadership to enhance the development, utilization and achievements of subordinate personnel, including achievement of equal employment opportunity goals.

G. Re-certification Recommendation and Determination Procedures

1. Recommendation by the Supervising Official

a. Prior to making a recommendation, supervising officials request a written statement of accomplishments from the executive in relation to the standard for re-certification.

b. The supervising official of the career appointee shall submit to the Performance Review Board, a recommendation whether the career appointee's performance justifies re-certification as a senior executive (form provided). The recommendation shall be based on the executive's overall performance during the re-certification period in relation to the standard for re-certification in paragraph F, including consideration of such factors as the following:

(1) The appointee's SES performance ratings for the three (3) preceding years. SES career appointees do not necessarily have to have received annual summary ratings above Fully Successful to be re-certified, nor do Fully Successful annual summary ratings guarantee re-certification.

(2) Any award or other recognition received by the appointee. These include awards from both inside the government (e.g. Presidential rank awards and superior accomplishment incentive awards) and outside the government. Awards recognizing performance over a period of years that are received during the re-certification period should be considered, even though some of the achievements recognized may have occurred before the re-certification period. Also to be considered are awards received after the re-certification period, but before the re-certification determination, if the award recognizes performance that took place during the re-certification period.

(3) Any developmental activities of the appointee. These include professional, educational, or self-developmental activities. Supervising officials should consider funding availability and the stage of the executive's career, that is, long term executive vs. newly appointed executive, when evaluating the extent to which an executive participates in developmental activities.

(4) Other relevant qualitative factors which include significant accomplishments on task forces or boards outside of program responsibilities; reputation in field of expertise as reflected by speaking engagements and publications; SES pay increases when they are specifically related to performance.

c. The factors identified above should be used as a measure of whether the standard for re-certification has been met in relation to the written performance elements for the career appointee's senior executive position. Supervising officials may not make a recommendation solely on the basis of performance ratings.

d. If there is no current immediate supervisor of 90 calendar days or longer, the next level supervisor will make the determination if he/she meets the 90-day criteria. If there is no second level supervisor, the Associate Director for Management will make the determination.

If none of the above meet the 90-day criteria, the re-certification recommendation will be delayed until a supervisor has acted in that capacity for 90 days. If such a delay would result in deferring the re-certification decision beyond the calendar year in which it is required by statute and regulation, the current supervisor shall attempt to contact the appointee's previous supervisors who served in that capacity during the three (3) year re-certification period, and make a determination based on their input.

e. If the supervising official recommends re-certification, no written justification is required. However, a recommendation proposing conditional re-certification or no re-certification shall include a narrative justification. The narrative should specify those aspects of the standard for re-certification cited in paragraph F that have not been met. Supervising officials should contact Office of Personnel for technical advice and assistance prior to preparing such a narrative.

f. The appointee shall be given a copy of the recommendation. He/she shall be requested to acknowledge receipt of the form, and advised of the right to submit to the Performance Review Board (PRB), a statement of accomplishments and other documentation giving evidence of the quality of the appointee's performance in relation to the standards set forth in paragraph F. The statement of accomplishments provided to the PRB may be the same as that provided in paragraph a. above, or amended at the executive's discretion.

g. The re-certification form and any appropriate written documentation (i.e. the executive's statement of accomplishments if provided to the supervising official; a narrative justification for a recommendation other than to re-certify) shall be forwarded to and reviewed by the Performance Review Board when the annual performance appraisal review is completed.

2. Recommendation by the Performance Review Board

a. More than one-half of the members of the Board shall consist of SES career appointees. Board members may not take part in any deliberations or actions regarding recommendations on their own re-certification.

b. After receiving the recommendation of the supervising official and any information provided by the career appointee under paragraph G-1-a, the Board shall submit to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman a recommendation whether the appointee should be re-certified, conditionally re-certified, or not re-certified.

c. If the PRB needs more information to make its recommendation, it may request additional documentation from the supervising official or request that he/she appear before the Board.

d. If the Board proposes to recommend conditional re-certification or no re-certification, the appointee shall:

(1) be notified in writing, specifying the Board's rationale, in sufficient detail, for its proposed recommendation. (If the PRB chooses to use the same rationale as provided by the supervising official, it need only indicate its concurrence on the supervising official's justification.); and

(2) have the opportunity to appear before the Board prior to the forwarding of the recommendation to the IBB Director or BBG Chairman. The appointee shall be given 5 days advance notice of the proposed scheduled appearance. If the appointee requests, he/she may be given a reasonable amount of official time to prepare for his or her appearance.

e. If the Board recommends re-certification, it may also recommend that the appointee's rate of basic pay be increased to a higher ES pay rate. If the Board recommends conditional re-certification, it may also recommend that the appointee's rate of basic pay be reduced to the next lower ES pay rate. The IBB Director or BBG Chairman will consider the recommendations for pay level increases or decreases of both the PRB in the re-certification process as well as the ERB in the performance appraisal process. The PRB recommendations may be documented on the re-certification determination form, but will be considered at the same time as the ERB recommendations (i.e. during the performance appraisal process).

f. In addition to its recommendation, the Board shall provide the IBB Director or BBG Chairman with the recommendation from the supervising official and any information received from the appointee under 1-a, 2-c or 2-d of this paragraph.

g. A copy of the re-certification determination form reflecting the Board's final recommendation shall be forwarded to the appointee.

3. Determination by the IBB Director or BBG Chairman

a. The IBB Director or BBG Chairman shall determine whether the appointee shall be re-certified, conditionally re-certified, or not re-certified.

b. If the IBB Director or BBG Chairman determines that the appointee's performance warrants re-certification, he/she will record the decision on the re-certification determination form along with the appropriate annotation if a positive pay rate change is decided upon.

c. Written reasons must be provided for any recommendation or decision to conditionally re-certify or to not re-certify a career appointee. The reasons must be specific enough so that the executive will be able to understand why the action was taken and adequate to support a case if the executive appeals a removal action. The IBB Director or BBG Chairman may concur with the PRB and the supervising official without providing additional reasons if he or she agrees with the reasons provided.

d. If a decision to conditionally re-certify or not re-certify is being considered and the executive has not had an opportunity for a personal appearance because all previous deliberations have considered only a recommendation to re-certify, the Director or BBG Chairman will provide the executive an opportunity to make a presentation in writing and/or in person before taking further action.

e. Determinations will not be based on a prescribed distribution of how many or what percentage of executives will be re-certified, conditionally re-certified, or not re-certified.

H. Re-certification Determinations

1. Decision to Re-certify

a. If the Director or BBG Chairman determines that the appointee's performance warrants re-certification, the appointee shall continue in the SES.

b. The appointee's rate of basic pay may not be reduced at the time of re-certification.

c. If the decision is made to increase the appointee's rate of basic pay, the statutory restriction that a SES member's pay level may be changed only once in a 12 month period remains applicable.

2. Decision to Conditionally Re-certify

a. If the IBB Director or BBG Chairman determines that the appointee's performance warrants conditional re-certification, the appointee:

(1) Shall be notified in writing and provided the completed re-certification determination form and necessary supporting documentation.

(2) Shall remain a career appointee in the SES.

(3) Shall be subject to continuing close review of the appointee's performance by the supervising official in coordination with the Executive Resources Board (ERB).

(4) Shall be subject to a performance improvement plan developed by the supervising official, subject to the approval of the ERB, and provided to the appointee within 30 days of his/her notification of conditional re-certification. The performance improvement plan should include a description of the deficiencies in the executive's performance, what constitutes satisfactory completion of the plan, a statement of the support and assistance to be provided by the supervising official, and any training initiatives planned. It shall conform to performance requirements the executive is required to attain during the period. Periodic progress review discussions shall be held and documented.

(5) May be reduced to the next lower ES pay rate, if the Director or BBG Chairman so determines, once 12 months have elapsed since the appointee's last pay adjustment.

(6) May not appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board, as the law does not provide such a right.

b. At the end of the 12 months following conditional re-certification, the agency shall make a new re-certification determination. The process for making the new determination shall be the same as for the initial re-certification decision, including review and recommendation by a Performance Review Board.

(1) The individual shall be retained in the SES if re-certified, and shall have any reduction in ES pay level made under paragraph H-2-a-(5) restored as of the beginning of the first pay period following re-certification when 12 months have elapsed since the pay reduction.

(2) The individual shall be removed from the SES if not re-certified at the end of the 12-month period following the conditional re-certification.

3. Decision Not to Re-certify

a. If the IBB Director or BBG Chairman determines that the appointee's performance does not warrant re-certification or conditional re-certification, the appointee shall be removed from the SES in accordance with 5 CFR 359 and MOA V-A 1140.

b. The appointee shall be notified in writing before the effective date of the action. If the appointee has completed the SES probationary period, or was not required to serve a probationary period, the notice shall be at least 30 calendar days before the effective date of the removal from the SES. c. The notice shall include the completed re-certification determination form and advise the appointee of:

(1) The basis for the action.

(2) The appointee's placement rights provided under 5 CFR 359.701-705. The position to which the appointee will be assigned shall be identified either in the advance notice or in a supplementary notice issued no later than 10 calendar days before the effective date of the action.

(3) The appointee's right to appeal to the Merit Systems Protection Board, including the time limit for appeal, the office to which an appeal should be sent, and that there is no provision for a stay in the removal action pending the appeal process.

(4) The effective date of the removal from the SES.

(5) When applicable, the appointee's eligibility for immediate discontinued service retirement, in lieu of placement rights, with no annuity reduction based on age (CSRS) and eligibility for an annuity supplement regardless of age (FERS).

d. Removal from the SES as a result of not being re-certified may not be made effective within 120 days after:

(1) The appointment of a new agency head; or

(2) The appointment of the career appointee's most immediate supervisor who is a non-career appointee and has the authority to remove the career appointee.

I. Re-certification Plan Consultation, Approval, and Distribution

1. In accordance with regulations, BBG/IBB developed the re-certification procedures described in this plan in consultation with its SES career appointees.

2. This plan is approved by the Office of Personnel Management.

3. Copies of the approved plan, and any subsequent changes, will be provided to all SES appointees.

J. Training

Before the beginning of each re-certification determination process, executives who supervise career SES appointees, and PRB members, will be given training on the objectives and procedures of the re-certification process. Also, during this same time period, the Office of Personnel will inform SES career appointees about the re-certification plan provisions.

K. Records

Re-certification documentation shall be maintained in the appointee's Employee Performance Folder (EPF) for 5 years from the date of the re-certification determination. (If an individual is conditionally re-certified, documentation for the final re-certification determination shall be maintained for 5 years from the date of the conditional re-certification.) EPF's shall be maintained in accordance with provisions in the SES Performance Appraisal Plan. Information contained in the EPF is protected under the provisions of the Privacy Act.

L. Reports and Evaluation

IBB will report to the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) such information, and take such corrective action as OPM may direct as a result of its oversight and evaluation responsibilities.

II. Standard for Re-certification

The career appointee must perform at the level of excellence expected of a senior executive. Excellence means that the executive had demonstrated over the re-certification period that he or she has achieved excellence in:

a. Planning for, substantially advancing, and attaining individual and organizational goals and objectives that are consistent with the goals and performance expectations in the agency's strategic planning initiatives and that required a sustained superior effort.

- b. Taking specific initiatives that advanced a major policy and/or significantly improved delivery of services.
- c. Taking the necessary actions to ensure the achievement of a quality product in a timely manner.
- d. Making significant technical, scientific, or professional contributions.

Also, if applicable to the responsibilities of the senior executive, excellence is demonstrated by:

- a. Achieving substantial savings in the execution of programs under his or her direction.
- b. Maintaining the high quality and effectiveness of programs under his or her direction with reduced resources.
- c. Providing strong leadership to enhance the development, utilization and achievements of subordinate personnel, including achievement of equal employment opportunity goals.

The following recommendations/decisions are based on an assessment of the executive's overall Performance during the re-certification period in relation to the above Standard for Re-certification stipulated in law, regulation, and agency written procedures and include consideration of the executive's performance ratings, awards and other recognition, developmental activities, and other relevant factors related to performance during the period.

PART V-A PERSONNEL (DOMESTIC), A1100 SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE
Section 1140

REMOVAL FROM THE SENIOR EXECUTIVE SERVICE

1141 GENERAL

1141.1 Applicability - The following regulations and procedures apply to all career appointees in the Senior Executive Service (SES) except a re-employed annuitant holding any type of appointment under the SES.

1141.2 Authority - These regulations and procedures are established pursuant to Subchapter V of Chapter 35 of title 5, United States Code and Title 5, Code of Federal Regulations, Part 359.

1141.3 Restrictions - The following restrictions apply to removals from the SES except under a reduction-in-force.

A career appointee may not be removed involuntarily within 120 days after appointment of a new Director, or of his or her immediate non-career supervisor who has the authority to remove the career appointee except when:

- a. a disciplinary action was initiated against the career appointee prior to the new appointment; or
- b. the career appointee has received two Unsatisfactory performance ratings of record in any period of five consecutive years or two annual performance ratings of record of Minimally Satisfactory or Unsatisfactory within three consecutive years; or
- c. action had been initiated to remove the career appointee after one Unsatisfactory performance rating of record.

1141.4 Definitions

a. Career appointee - An individual in a SES position whose appointment to the position or previous appointment to another SES position was based on approval by the OPM of the executive qualifications of such individual. Individuals who joined the SES at its inception, and those who converted in accordance with Section 2104 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 are also career appointees although serving a probationary period or approval by OPM of qualifications was not required.

b. Final Rating - The rating of record assigned by the Director after considering the recommendations of the Performance Review Board (PRB) in accordance with MOA V-A 1130.

c. Formal Rating - A written record of the appraisal of each critical and non-critical requirement and the assignment of an overall summary rating level in accordance with MOA V-A 1130.

d. Less than Fully Successful Rating - A final rating of Minimally Satisfactory or Unsatisfactory.

e. Probation/Probationary Period - The one year probation required by 5 USC 3393(d) upon initial career appointment to the SES.

f. Reduction in Force - The elimination or modification of a position due to a reorganization, a lack of funds or curtailment of work, or any other factor which may result in the release of an employee from his/her competitive level.

g. Unacceptable Performance - Performance which falls below the Fully Successful level of performance.

1141.5 Responsibilities

a. The Director or BBG Chairman is responsible for:

- (1) making all decisions on removal from the SES.
- (2) determining whether a reduction in force (RIF) is necessary, the specific jobs to be abolished, and the effective date of the RIF;
- (3) approving placement offers or separation actions for surplus and displaced SES appointees; and
- (4) certifying to the Director, OPM, when no suitable vacancy exists for an SES appointee released from his/her competitive level and for whom OPM is then obligated to make placement efforts.

b. The Executive Resources Board (ERB) is responsible for:

- (1) Reviewing and making recommendations on all removal proposals forwarded for decision by the Director; and

(2) ensuring that removal actions are conducted in accordance with OPM regulations and policies.

c. The Director of Personnel, is responsible for:

(1) preparing retention registers;

(2) preparing for consideration by the ERB and the Director or BBG Chairman formal proposals on all removal-related matters, based on recommendations from Service/Office heads, including whether to eliminate SES positions, directed reassignments, transfer of function, RIF and/or referral for OPM placement of incumbents;

(3) providing staff support for conducting a RIF; and

(4) notifying SES appointees in writing of any proposed removal action.

1142 REMOVAL OF CAREER APPOINTEES DURING PROBATION

1142.1 Exclusions

The following are excluded from coverage under this section:

a. Removal when the action is initiated by Special Counsel under 5 USC 1206 (g); or

b. Removal when the appointee was covered under 5 USC 7512 for adverse action purposes immediately prior to appointment in the SES (see 5 CFR 752 and MOA V-A 560).

1142.2 Removal During Probation for Less Than Fully Successful Performance

a. A career appointee serving in a probationary period may be removed from the SES at the discretion of the Director, for unacceptable performance at any time during the probationary period. Unacceptable performance is performance which falls below the Fully Successful level. Such a removal action need not be based on a final rating. If, however, removal is based on a formal rating, the rating must be prepared to satisfy all requirements of the SES performance appraisal system described in MOA V-A 1130, including an opportunity for a higher level review and review and recommendation by the Performance Review Board (PRB).

b. The Director of Personnel will provide the appointee with written notification prior to the effective date of the action. The notification must state:

(1) Broadcasting's conclusions as to the inadequacies of the appointee's performance;

(2) Whether the appointee has placement rights in accordance with Section 1146 on Guaranteed Placement and, if so, identify the position to which the appointee will be assigned; and

(3) Show the effective date of the action.

c. A career SES appointee who was appointed from a civil service position (career or career conditional or equivalent as determined by OPM) who is removed from the SES during probation, except for misconduct, is entitled to be placed in a Civil Service position at GS-15 or above of equal tenure to that held at the time of SES appointment for which the employee qualifies. Affected employees may be eligible for discontinued service retirement if they meet minimum requirements.

1142.3 Removal During Probation for Conduct

a. A career SES member may be removed from the federal service during the probationary period for misconduct, neglect of duty, malfeasance, or failure to accept a directed reassignment or to accompany a position in a transfer of function.

b. The Director of Personnel will provide written notification to the appointee at least one day prior to the effective date of the action. The notification shall state:

(1) The basis for the removal action (including the act(s) of misconduct, neglect of duty, or malfeasance if those factors are involved); and

(2) Show the effective date of the action.

1142.4 Removal During Probation for Conditions Arising Before SES Appointment

a. A career SES member may be removed from the SES during the probationary period for an action based on conditions arising before the SES appointment.

b. The Director of Personnel will provide advanced written notification to the appointee stating the specific reasons for the proposed removal. The SES appointee will be given a reasonable period of time (not to exceed 30 days) to reply.

c. The Director of Personnel will provide the SES appointee with final written notification of Broadcasting's decision stating the reasons for the action and the effective date. This notification will be given to the SES appointee at or before the time the action will be made effective.

1142.5 Exceptions to Restrictions

a. In addition to exceptions cited in 1141.3, removal from the SES under Sections 1142.3 and 1142.4 may be made effective within 120 days after the appointment of a new Director or of a new non-career supervisor of the probationary appointee in the following situations:

(1) A disciplinary action when there is a reasonable cause to believe that the career SES appointee has committed a crime for which a sentence of imprisonment can be imposed; or

(2) A disciplinary action when the circumstances are such that retention of the career SES appointee may pose a threat to the appointee or others; may result in loss of or damage to Government property; or may otherwise jeopardize legitimate Government interests.

b. When Broadcasting invokes an exception to the 120-day restriction, under (1) or (2) above, Broadcasting shall include in the notice to the career SES appointee the reason(s) for invoking the exception and give the appointee a reasonable period of time, not less than 7 days, to respond regarding the propriety of the use of the exception. Additionally, Broadcasting will give the appointee written notice of decision on the propriety of the use of the exception at or before the time the action will be effective. The appointee may be placed in a non-duty status with pay for such time as necessary to effect the action.

1142.6 Appeals

Removal actions under Section 1142.2 through 1142.4 are not appealable to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB).

1143 REMOVAL OF CAREER APPOINTEES FOR LESS THAN FULLY SUCCESSFUL EXECUTIVE PERFORMANCE

The Director or BBG Chairman will remove a career appointee from the SES after an appointee has received two final ratings of Unsatisfactory within five (5) consecutive years, or the appointee has been given two final ratings of less than Fully Successful within three (3) consecutive years. (See MOA V-A 1130.)

A career appointee shall be either reassigned within the SES, or removed from the SES at the discretion of the Director or BBG Chairman for receiving one Unsatisfactory performance appraisal rating of record.

1143.1 Procedures - The Director of Personnel will provide the career appointee with written notification at least 30 calendar days before the effective date of the action. The notification will advise the appointee of:

- a. The basis for the action;
- b. The appointee's placement rights in accordance with Section 1146 (Guaranteed Placement) the position to which the appointee will be assigned shall be identified either in this advance notice or in a supplementary notice to be issued no later than 10 calendar days before the effective date of the action;
- c. The appointee's right to request an informal hearing from the MSPB;
- d. The effective date of the removal action; and
- e. When applicable, the appointee's eligibility for immediate retirement (see 5 USC 8336(h)).

1143.2 Informal Hearing - A career appointee being removed from the SES is entitled, upon request, to an informal hearing before an official designated by the MSPB. The appointee must submit such a request directly to the MSPB. This request may be made at any time after the appointee has received the notice but must be made no later than 15 days before the effective date of the action. Broadcasting will not delay the removal action because of the granting of an informal hearing.

1143.3 Appeals - A removal action of a career SES appointee for less than Fully Successful performance is not appealable to the MSPB under 5 USC 7701.

1144 REMOVAL OF NON-PROBATIONARY CAREER APPOINTEES FOR CONDUCT

Career SES appointees may be removed from the federal service for misconduct, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office, or failure to accept a directed reassignment; the appointee has appeal rights to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB); and must be given 30 days advance notice.

Removal for conditions arising before appointment to the SES is subject to regulations for taking an adverse action under the SES.

An appointee removed for conduct has no entitlement to a position outside the SES.

1145 REMOVAL OF CAREER APPOINTEES AS A RESULT OF REDUCTION IN FORCE (RIF)

It is Broadcasting's policy that when an SES position must be eliminated, or so modified that it no longer warrants being included in the SES, every attempt will be made to reassign the incumbent to another SES position within the same competitive area in Broadcasting before instituting reduction in force procedures. Further, in accordance with 5 USC 3395, Broadcasting's reduction in force procedures will be competitive, and retention determinations will be based primarily on current performance.

1145.1 Competitive Procedures

During a period of budgetary constraint, reorganization, etc., it may be necessary to abolish SES positions, and effect a reduction in force. Before initiating a reduction in force, Broadcasting will establish a retention register of all career SES appointees including appointees serving a probationary period. The last three final ratings of record, all Presidential Rank Awards, and length of service in the SES will determine who will be released in a RIF. SES career appointees will be ranked and will appear on the register in order of retention. Ranking does not determine which SES positions will be abolished. It is a means of retaining employees in the SES who have demonstrated, through performance, the ability to achieve the goals of Broadcasting at the executive level.

1145.2 Ranking

a. Credit for Performance - Performance in the SES will be the primary basis for ranking employees on a retention register. Performance in non-SES positions will not be credited for retention purposes. An SES career appointee will be given credit for the last three annual SES ratings of record received during the three year period prior to the date of issuance of specific reduction in force notices. The value assigned to each annual performance rating of record will be:

(1) Forty points for a performance rating of Outstanding (Level 5) in the most recent rating year. Thirty points for a performance rating of Outstanding for the second year and twenty points for a performance rating of Outstanding for the third year.

(2) Twenty five points for a performance rating of Exceeds Fully Successful (Level 4) in the most recent rating year. Twenty points for a performance rating of Exceeds Fully Successful for the second year and fifteen points for a rating of Exceeds Fully Successful for the third year.

(3) Twelve points for a performance rating of Fully Successful or Satisfactory (Level 3) in the most recent rating year. Ten points for a Fully Successful rating for the second year and eight points for a Fully Successful rating for the third year.

(4) Zero points for each performance rating of Minimally Successful.

Performance ratings that were due before the date of specific RIF notices but were not officially approved by the Director until on or after the date of the notices will not be used to determine service credit. If a rating is missing, the value of the most recent SES rating will be assigned. If a career appointee has not received three annual SES ratings of record during the three-year period or has not been in the SES for a three-year period, credit will be given for an assumed rating(s) of Fully Successful (Level 3) to bring the career appointee's ratings up to three. If a career appointee had more than three annual ratings during the three-year period, the most recent ratings will be used.

Section 653 of the FY-99 Omnibus Appropriations Legislation provides protection to career executives involuntarily separated due to RIF or transfer of function. Such executives may use annual leave to remain on the rolls, if the time in a pay status would enable the executive to qualify for discontinued service retirement, or qualify for health benefits in retirement.

b. Rank Awards - An SES career appointee awarded a Presidential Rank Award prior to the date of issuance of specific reduction in force notices will receive a credit of fifteen points for the Meritorious Executive and twenty points for the Distinguished Executive which will be added to performance.

c. Performance Awards - An SES career appointee who was awarded performance pay in the three years prior to the issuance of specific reduction in force notices will receive a credit of five points for each year in which it was awarded. Credit will be based on the three most recent years in which Broadcasting awarded performance pay, even if this period does not coincide with the period of performance appraisals in 1145.2a.

d. Service in the SES - Length of service in the SES is calculated from date of career SES appointment (including probationary period), rounded up or down to whole years, to date of establishment of register. A maximum of 20 points, two points for each year up to ten, will be added.

f. Ranking is determined by totaling points from performance ratings, Presidential Rank Awards, performance pay, and service in the SES. Each SES career appointee will be placed on the retention register in numerical order as a result of this ranking. Ties will be broken by length of service in the SES, and then by service computation date. A career appointee who has completed the probationary period will be retained over an appointee who has not completed the probationary period if they both have the same score.

1145.3 Placement of Non-Probationary Career Appointees

a. Placement within the SES in Broadcasting:

(1) An SES career appointee who has completed the probationary period, or was not required to serve a probationary period, and who is identified for RIF, must be offered any vacant SES position in Broadcasting for which the appointee meets the minimum technical qualification requirements. If there is more than one vacant position, the Director will decide which position to offer the appointee. If there are no non-probationary SES appointees qualified for a vacant SES position, a probationary SES appointee may be placed in it. If there is no vacant SES position within Broadcasting for which the employee qualifies, the career appointee will be subject to the procedures in (2) below.

(2) An employee whose position has been abolished has the right to displace another SES career appointee who is ranked lower on the retention register and occupies a position for which the individual can meet the minimum technical qualifications. If there is more than one such position, the employee with the lowest retention standing will be released from the SES. A career appointee who displaces another is subject to displacement him or herself if other positions are also identified for abolishment.

b. OPM Priority Placement in the SES - Based upon certification from the Director that an SES position is not available, OPM will attempt to place the SES career appointee who has completed probation for a 45-day period beginning the day the certification is acknowledged by OPM. Should an SES vacancy occur within Broadcasting during this 45-day period for which the SES career appointee is qualified, the vacant position will be offered to the affected career appointee.

(1) OPM Referrals - OPM may formally refer a career appointee to other agencies for a specific SES vacancy or general priority consideration. This referral will not be a part of the regular competitive staffing process. The appointee must be considered non-competitively by the agency for an SES appointment.

(2) Agency Response

(a) Any objection by the agency to the qualifications of the appointee must be based on the professional/technical qualifications in the standard for the position. An agency may not object to a referral because the individual lacks agency-specific experience if the referral is otherwise qualified.

(b) In order to expedite placement of affected career appointees, agencies shall respond to an OPM referral within the time period prescribed by OPM.

(c) If an agency fails to place a referred career appointee in an SES position because of objection to the appointee's qualifications or because of any other reason, the agency response must be in writing and must be signed by the agency head.

(d) If an agency fails to provide bona fide priority consideration, OPM may order appropriate corrective action.

(e) If a career appointee declines a reasonable offer of placement, Broadcasting may remove the appointee from the SES.

c. Placement other than in the SES - See Section 1146.

1145.4 Reduction in Force Notices

A RIF notice is a personal communication in writing to each individual SES career appointee announcing that he or she will be affected by a RIF action. Broadcasting will normally issue specific notices and will avoid the issuance of general notices whenever possible.

a. Notice Period - Each affected career appointee will receive a written specific notice prior to the effective date of the RIF. Non-probationary appointees must receive the notice at least 45 calendar days prior to the effective date.

b. Content of Notice - The written notice will contain the following:

(1) The specific RIF action to be taken;

(2) The effective date of the action;

(3) The appointee's placement rights within Broadcasting and through OPM if any (see 1146); and

(4) The appointee's appeal rights including the time limit for appeal and the location of the MSPB office to which an appeal should be sent.

1145.5 Appeals

A career appointee may appeal to the MSPB as to whether the RIF complies with Broadcasting's competitive procedures as defined in 1145.1 and 1145.2.

1145.6 Records

The Personnel Office will maintain current records needed to determine the retention standing of Broadcasting's competing employees.

a. The retention registers and related records are open for inspection by a Broadcasting appointee, who is in receipt of a RIF notice, to the extent that they have a bearing on the appointee's situation.

b. Broadcasting will preserve intact all registers and records relating to a RIF for at least two years from the effective date of the action.

1146 GUARANTEED PLACEMENT

The SES career appointee, probationary or non-probationary, affected by a removal for performance action or a RIF action will be placed by Broadcasting in an appropriate position within Broadcasting, or through transfer to an appropriate position in another agency. Any transfer will be mutually acceptable to the appointee and the gaining agency. Such placement will not cause the separation or reduction in grade of any other employee.

1146.1 Placement Rights

a. A career appointee removed for performance reasons or as a result of a RIF action will be placed in a vacant civil service position that is:

(1) a continuing position at the GS-15 or above, or equivalent, that will last at least three months; and

(2) a position for which the appointee meets the qualifications requirements.

b. A probationary appointee, or a non-probationary appointee who at the time of appointment to the SES held a career or career-conditional appointment or an appointment of equivalent tenure in the excepted service (see exclusions in 5 CFR 359.701) is entitled to be placed in a position of tenure equivalent to that held at the time of appointment to the SES. This requirement does not apply, if:

(1) Broadcasting does not have such a position available for which the appointee meets the qualifications requirements; or

(2) Appointee is willing to accept a position having a different tenure.

1146.2 Pay Retention

A career SES appointee removed for performance reasons or resulting from a RIF is entitled to receive basic pay at the highest of:

a. the rate of basic pay in effect for the position in which the appointee is being placed;

b. the rate of basic pay currently in effect for the position that the appointee held in the civil service immediately before being appointed to the SES; or

c. the rate of basic pay in effect for the appointee immediately before removal from the SES.

Future pay adjustments for those appointees receiving basic pay under b. or c. above will be executed in accordance with 5 USC 3594(c)(2).

PART V-B PERSONNEL (FOREIGN SERVICE), 000 INTRODUCTION
Section 000

PLAN FOR PART V-B

001 PURPOSE AND AUTHORITY

Part V-B of the Manual of Operations and Administration (MOA) sets forth the policies and procedures for administration of the personnel systems applicable to Broadcasting employees overseas. Personnel administration, as provided in this part of the MOA, is carried out under the applicable laws of the United States, principally those contained in title 5 of the United States Code and in the Foreign Service Act of 1980 (22 U.S.C. 3901et seq.), and implementing Executive Orders, regulations, and directives.

002 CONTENT

MOA V-B Personnel (Overseas) will supplement statutes and regulatory materials by assigning responsibilities within Broadcasting and by establishing regulations, policies, and procedures on matters not covered by statute or regulation and on matters over which statute and regulation give regulatory authority to the BBG. Those regulations, policies, and procedures which apply to both domestic and Foreign Service personnel will be issued separately for inclusion in V-A Personnel (Domestic) and V-B Personnel (Overseas).

004 EFFECT OF DEPARTMENT OF STATE'S FOREIGN AFFAIRS MANUAL (FAM)

Regulations which have been adopted jointly by the Department of State (and which also include other foreign affairs agencies) are contained in the Department of State's Foreign Affairs Manual, Volume 3. Cross references are made to these uniform regulations in Part V-B of Broadcasting's Manual. On all other subjects, the regulations and procedures appearing in Part V-A and V-B of the MOA apply to Broadcasting personnel rather than the material contained in 3 FAM.

PART V-B PERSONNEL (FOREIGN SERVICE), 100 PERSONNEL POLICIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Section 110

PERSONNEL POLICIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

111 General Personnel Policies

112 Responsibilities

112.1 Supervisors and Managers

112.2 Employees

Section 110

PERSONNEL POLICIES AND RESPONSIBILITIES

a. The objective of the Foreign Service personnel system is to recruit, employ, retain and develop qualified employees who are: aware of the principles, history, and culture of the United States; informed of current concerns and trends in American life. They should also be generally knowledgeable of other nations; affairs, attitudes, cultures, and languages; technically qualified in their area of specialty; and available to service throughout the world as the needs of the Service dictate.

b. Applicants of all backgrounds are recruited from all areas of the country, and the best qualified are selected for employment on the basis of merit, fitness for the work, and willingness to serve anywhere in the world. Employees are selected without regard to race, color, sex, political affiliation, religion, age, national origin, handicapping condition or marital status.

c. All candidates, prior to employment, are subject to a full field security investigation as required by Executive Order 10450 and to a medical examination which will determine their physical fitness for overseas duty (see Section 330).

d. To encourage officers to become language proficient, certain VOA Overseas Specialist officers will receive within-class salary increases for obtaining proficiency in certain languages. (See Section 430)

e. Foreign Service employees will be assigned to positions in the U.S. and overseas under an open assignments system. Under this system employees will be provided with listing of vacancies. Employees will indicate preferences for particular positions and assignments will be made in accordance with employees' preferences, abilities, experience and qualifications; position requirements; and the needs of the Service (See Section 410).

f. Compensation and benefits for Foreign Service employees reflect the unique nature and demands of Foreign Service assignments and working environment and include such specialized provisions as living quarters, allowances, hardship differential, danger pay, home leave and special health and retirement programs. (See MOA V-B Chapters 200 and 500 and 3 FAM 200, 400, and 600.)

g. Foreign Service Overseas Specialists are considered for promotion by Annual Selection Boards in accordance with precepts negotiated with the exclusive bargaining agent, using performance evaluation reports prepared by the employee's supervisor and reviewed by the supervisor's supervisor (see Sections 450 and 460).

h. Foreign Service Officers will generally serve at least one tour of duty in the U.S. during each period of 15 years that they are members of the Foreign Service. Foreign Service employees may not be assigned to duty within the U.S. for any period exceeding eight years unless the Director of Broadcasting approves an extension under special circumstances. (See Section 410.)

i. Training and development opportunities are provided to employees in order to enhance their skills and their knowledge of current developments in American culture and society as well as in relevant professional fields, U.S. Government and Broadcasting policies and procedures (see Section 420).

j. The Office of Personnel will conduct an employee-management relations program, and administer the Foreign Service Grievance System for the resolution of Foreign Service employee complaints and grievances. Employees are free to seek adjustment of any complaint or grievance without fear of interference, coercion, discrimination or reprisal. Employees against whom disciplinary action, separation, or selection out actions are initiated are given all rights prescribed by law, Executive Order, Government regulations, and policies and procedures which have been negotiated with the exclusive bargaining unit. (See MOA V-B Paragraph 513 and 3 FAM 660)

k. Appropriate recognition to employees who make substantial contributions to the efficiency, economy or other improvements in operations and programs is given through the incentive awards program. (See Section 570)

l. Broadcasting acknowledges the great value and unique contributions of its Foreign Service National employees and will recognize and use their skills and talents in carrying out programs overseas in accordance with local law, and regulation (see 3 FAM 900).

m. When reductions in the work force are required for budgetary or other reasons, such reductions will be made by attrition whenever possible. Selection out and reduction in force procedures are only used as last alternatives. If and when reduction in force is necessary, it will be accomplished in an orderly and systematic manner with all employees given fair and equitable treatment in accordance with applicable laws and regulations. Every reasonable effort is made to reassign any employee who might otherwise be separated by reduction in force procedures. (See Sections 797 and 740)

112 RESPONSIBILITIES

112.1 Supervisors and Managers are responsible for sound and effective personnel management by: informing employees of personnel policies and procedures; assuring that position descriptions are accurate and up-to-date and that employees are aware of the duties and responsibilities of their positions; making the most effective use of the skills and abilities of employees; assisting employees in improving their work performance and in developing their potential skills through training; preparing candid and fair performance evaluation reports in a timely manner; recognizing outstanding achievement or sustained excellence; recommending prompt and appropriate disciplinary action whenever employee's performance or personal conduct are not satisfactory; and ensuring that employee questions, complains or grievances receive prompt and impartial consideration.

112.2 Employees are responsible for maintaining the high standards of conduct, performance, integrity, reliability and prudence necessary to retain the confidence of the public (both American and foreign) in order to promote and protect the national security of the United States. Employees are also responsible for: carrying out their assigned duties and responsibilities to the best of their abilities; making themselves available for worldwide assignment as the needs of the Service dictate; cooperating with supervisors and colleagues in the efficient conduct of business; pursuing training opportunities provided by Broadcasting-sponsored programs; and complying with all laws, Executive Orders, regulations and rules affecting employment with Broadcasting. (See MOA V-B Section 550 and 3 FAM 620 and 622)

DELEGATION OF PERSONNEL AUTHORITY

121 Personnel Authorities Vested in the Director - Director is authorized to approve any type of personnel transaction concerning the Senior Foreign Service, Foreign Service Specialists, and Foreign Service National employee.

a. Executive Order 10477, as amended, and Executive Order 12048 of March 27, 1978, issued pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1977 and Public Law 96-465 which authorizes the Director to exercise certain authorities available by law to the Secretary of State, or under any other provision of law pertaining specifically, or generally applicable, to the Senior Foreign Service, Foreign Service Specialists, and Foreign Service National Employees, including the authority to prescribe regulations, not inconsistent with applicable laws, incident to the exercise of such authority.

b. Section 804 (1) of the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948, as amended (22 U.S.C. 1474), which authorizes the Director to employ persons on a temporary basis, and aliens within the United States for translation and adaptation in a foreign language or the preparation and production of foreign language programs when suitably qualified U.S. citizens are not available, without regard to Civil Service and classification laws.

c. Annual Authorization and Appropriation Acts which from time to time give the Director certain authorities with respect to Foreign Service personnel.

d. The Foreign Affairs Reform and Restructuring Act of 1998.

122 DELEGATIONS OF AUTHORITY

122.1 General Authority to Delegate - Under the Foreign Affairs Reform and Restructuring Act of 1998 and U. S. Code 22, Section 6204, the Director may delegate to subordinate officials authority to take final action on matters pertaining to the employment, direction and general administration of personnel as well as any of the powers conferred by the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948, as amended, the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961, as amended, and the Foreign Service Act of 1980.

122.2 Delegations of Authority to Officials in Washington - Pursuant to the provisions of paragraph 122.1 above authority to take final action on Broadcasting personnel matters has been delegated by the Director of International Broadcasting to the Director, Office of Personnel. These authorities may be redelegated in writing to appropriate officers in Broadcasting and are as follows:

- a. To approve any type of personnel transaction.
- b. To classify positions through Counselor under the Foreign Service Act of 1980.
- c. To request or conduct locality wage surveys and approve wage schedules.
- d. To make certifications of insurance status required under the Federal Employees Insurance program upon separation of an employee.
- e. To administer the oath of office, and any other oath in connection with employment, to new appointees.
- f. To publish advertisements for recruitment of personnel in newspapers when such publication is not prohibited by any applicable law or regulation.

g. To prescribe regulations governing the conduct of employees, in relation to the duties, functions, and obligations of employees of the Foreign Service and the administration of the Foreign Service, and to approve certain described outside activities of employees under the provisions of the Employee Responsibilities and Conduct Regulations (3 FAM 620).

h. To conduct training and development programs, employee-management relations programs, and to administer systems for the resolution of employee grievances.

i. To administer Incentive Awards, Quality or Meritorious Service Increases, and Employee Suggestion Program.

j. To sustain the denial of or grant the within-class increase to Foreign Service Overseas Specialist employees who appeal recommendations by the Selection Board that within-class increases be denied.

k. To restore forfeited annual leave in accordance with PL 93-181, and to certify specific positions to receive the special allowance provided by PL 97-92.

l. To administer the performance evaluation system as required by Sections 602 and 603 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 and to amend, explain, supplement or remove material in an employee's Official Personnel Folder, including evaluation reports, where it is determined that such action is justified to correct an error or remove or prevent an injustice.

m. To establish and to administer the promotion system for Foreign Service Overseas Specialist employees, to establish precepts for Selection Boards, and to administer promotion and other recommendations made by Selection Boards.

n. To review the list of Foreign Service Overseas Specialist employees who meet the criteria for selection out for performance and for selection out for time-in-class, and remove the names from the list for instances when the Selection Board has made an error, when the evaluation report contains technical errors or inadequate records, or for compassionate or compelling reasons; and to make decisions to select out.

o. To prescribe regulations for separating employees for unsatisfactory performance of duties or for such other cause as will promote the efficiency of the Service, and to propose or to decide disciplinary action for Foreign Service employees.

p. To approve waivers of medical clearance requirements for assignment of Foreign Service employees.

q. Promulgate jointly with other foreign affairs agencies regulations governing personnel (including employee-management relations), travel or transportation or financial allowance matters.

r. To approve travel, transportation of effects, home leave, consultation in the U.S., to grant home service transfer allowances, separate maintenance allowances, educational travel, dependent care grants for spouses, to grant travel per diem or subsistence expenses connected with employee assignment, detail, or temporary duty.

122.3 Delegations of Authority to Officials Overseas - Pursuant to the provisions of paragraph 122.1 above, authority to take final action on personnel matters has been delegated by the Director of International Broadcasting to Broadcasting officials overseas as follows:

a. To Officers in Charge of Transmitting Stations, Affiliate/Marketing Offices and Correspondent Bureaus - Officers in charge of Radio Transmitting Stations, Affiliate/Marketing Offices and Correspondent Bureaus are delegated the authorities listed below with respect to American and FSN employees (including employees of other agencies on formal detail to Broadcasting) serving under their jurisdiction. (See paragraph 123.3 for redelegation of such authorities.)

(1) To authorize and approve travel for purposes of performing temporary duty within the geographic area for which the officer in charge is responsible for. The geographic "area" refers to the country in which the station, Affiliate Offices, or correspondent bureau is located. For correspondents, travel outside the area of assignment may be authorized by the Director of VOA Programs.

(2) IBB radio transmitting station managers may authorize travel outside of their geographic area for rest and recuperation (R&R) and emergency visitation travel of American employees and their eligible family members in accordance with 3FAM.

All other travel that is outside of their country of assignment (except R&R and emergency travel) requires the approval of the Deputy for Engineering Operations. Approval for travel outside the country of assignment must be obtained in advance by email addressed to the Deputy, Engineering Operations Directorate (E/O).

123 GENERAL CONDITIONS

123.1 Authorities Delegated to Officials in Washington - The following conditions apply to the delegations of authority to officials in Washington described in paragraph 122.2:

a. The delegations of authority are subject to all applicable provisions of law, and to all instructions, regulations and directives which are in effect, or which may be issued hereafter by Broadcasting, or by any other Government agency having jurisdiction.

A signed copy of each delegation of authority shall be filed in the Office of the General Counsel and with the Records Management Staff.

b. No redelegation of authority can be made unless specifically authorized by law, and by the terms of the delegation.

c. The officers in line of command above the officer to whom authority is delegated shall have the same authority as that contained in the written delegation.

d. An officer acting during the extended absence of a principal to whom authority has been delegated shall have the full authority of that principal in accordance with the following:

(1) A Deputy, Assistant, or other responsible officer formally designated by official personnel action or by official job description or in an Announcement automatically becomes Acting Chief and may exercise authorities of the Chief during his or her absence.

(2) A Deputy, Assistant, or other responsible officer, not included in (1) above, may exercise authorities of the principal when designated in writing by the principal, or by superior authority.

123.2 Authorities Delegated to Officials Overseas - The delegations of authority described in paragraphs 122.3 are subject to the conditions specified in paragraph 123.1a, c and d above.

123.3 Redelegations of Authority by Officials Overseas

a. General

(1) No redelegation of authority can be made unless specifically authorized by law, and by the terms of the delegations.

(2) All formal documents recording action taken with respect to personnel under authorities described in paragraph 122.3 must be signed by an official properly designated. No signing power on such documents may be exercised by non-Broadcasting officials.

b. Officers in Charge of Transmitting Stations, the Affiliate/Marketing Offices and Correspondent Bureaus - The authorities described in paragraph 122.3a may also be redelegated in writing to any officer immediately subordinate to the officer in charge to whom he or she regularly delegates comparable authority under appropriate circumstances.

226 -229 Unassigned

Section 220

CLASSIFICATION OF AMERICAN POSITIONS IN OVERSEAS ESTABLISHMENTS

221 PURPOSE - The classification plan for American overseas positions is designed to provide uniformity in worldwide classification and flexibility for responding at each post; to provide a specific standard for assessing grades of all overseas positions; to achieve an appropriate balance between senior and junior positions and a balanced grade structure for all overseas positions; and to comply with the requirements of Section 501 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended.

222 RESPONSIBILITIES

22.1 The Director Responsibility for classification of positions has been delegated by the Director of International Broadcasting to the Director, Office of Personnel.

222.2 The Director of Personnel is responsible for approving reorganizations or changes in overseas staffing structures which affect more than one position, before any positions may be reclassified or staffed.

222.3 Coding of Position Description

a. Post Code (Block 2) is the six-digit organizational code, that is, the computer code for the post.

b. Classification Code (Block 3)- The first 3 numbers denote the specialty (occupational code) of the position.

c. Position Title (Block 4) denotes the title of the position.

d. Position Grade (Block 5) is the position pay plan and class.

e. Position Number (Block 6) The letter denotes the position designation, A for Overseas Specialist and is followed by a four-digit number which is a computer code which identifies the type of position.

f. Blocks 7 and 8 - The Office of Personnel initials and dates the position description in these blocks, and completes blocks 2 through 6.

225 CLASSIFICATION ACTION

225.1 Policy

a. Classification of regional positions, VOA Bureaus, Overseas Specialist positions (such as Radio Engineers and Facilities Maintenance and other specialized positions) is determined by the Office of Personnel in accordance with the duties and responsibilities of the position. The position classification is from established OPM classification standards, by evaluation of the standard for the appropriate specialty, by cross-comparison of related position standards and similar positions, and by recognition of the additional elements which contribute to the level of difficulty of performing the work overseas and the special conditions which affect performance at overseas posts.

225.2 Procedures - Copies of position descriptions should be maintained in the headquarters element and in the Office of Personnel.

TITLE 5-B

HUMAN RESOURCES (FOREIGN SERVICE)

PART 230 – RATES OF PAY

231 Coverage - This Part provides the basic rules for determining the rates of basic pay for BBG Foreign Service Specialists and members of the Senior Foreign Service.

232 Authority - The policies and procedures prescribed in this Section are issued under the authorities contained in the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, and under 5 CFR 531.

233 Definitions - The words and terms used herein are defined as follows:

233.1 Rate of Basic Pay (or Compensation) - is the rate of pay fixed by law or administrative action for a salary class held by a Foreign Service employee before any deductions. The rate of basic pay is the salary fixed by section 403 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, or the salary fixed incident to an assignment under section 503 of the Act. Basic pay excludes overtime pay, extra pay for night or holiday work, allowances, differentials, and foreign language incentive payments.

233.2 Equivalent Increase - is an increase or increases in an employee's rate of basic pay equal to or greater than the difference between the rate of basic pay for the salary class and step occupied by the employee and the rate of basic pay for the next higher step of that class. Within-class increases are equivalent increases in pay. The following, among others, are not equivalent increases.

- a. An increase in basic pay under Federal statute, if so provided.
- b. An increase made for the specific purpose of correcting a previous pay-setting error.
- c. Payment of a foreign or a territorial post differential, cost of living allowance, danger pay, special incentive differential, or any other allowance.
- d. A meritorious service increase.
- e. A foreign language incentive payment or within-class increase.

233.3 Existing Rate - is the rate of basic pay received immediately prior to the effective date of a transfer, promotion, demotion, or step increase. (See 5 CFR Part 531)

233.4 Highest Previous Rate - is the highest rate of basic pay previously paid to a person while employed in a position in a branch of the Federal Government (executive, legislative, or judicial), a mixed ownership corporation (e.g., the US Postal Service or Postal Rate Commission), or the government of the District of Columbia (only if first employed by the DC Government prior to October 1, 1987). The highest previous rate must be based on a regular tour of duty at such rate: (1) under an appointment not limited to 90 days or less or (2) for a continuous period of 90 days under one or more appointments without a break in service. If such highest previous rate was earned in a General Schedule or Foreign Service position, it will be increased by any subsequent amendments to the General Schedule or Foreign Service pay schedules. (See 5 CFR Part 531)

233.5 Maximum Rate - is the maximum step rate of basic pay payable for a Foreign Service salary class. The Foreign Service Schedule is available on the US Office of Personnel Management website (OPM.gov).

234 Determining Rates of Pay

234.1 Rates of Basic Pay - The rates of basic pay for employees subject to the Foreign Service Act of 1980, are governed by the salary levels for the respective classes established under that Act.

234.2 When Payable - Basic pay is paid for time worked and for authorized paid absence (e.g., on holidays and for periods of paid leave, compensatory time off, excused absence, or transit time (see 3 FAM 3463) during an employee's regular basic workweek.

234.3 Beginning and Termination Date of Salary

a. Beginning Date – Salary begins on the effective date of appointment, but no salary may be paid until an oath of office has been administered and, when applicable, until SF-61, Appointment Affidavit, and SF-61B, Declaration of Appointee, have been filed. Upon taking the oath of office, and completing all other pre-employment requirements, the employee is entitled to salary from the effective date of employment. (See BAM 5-B 340)

b. Termination Date – Salary terminates on the effective date of service separation established in accordance with BAM 5-B 700.

234.4 New Appointees - The basic salary of Foreign Service appointees will be at the minimum prescribed for the salary class to which appointed, except that:

a. The entrance salary of an appointee who has had previous Federal employment will ordinarily be set at the lowest scheduled rate of basic pay within the rate range of the salary class to which appointed that is no lower than the appointee's highest previous rate. If the highest previous rate falls between two scheduled rates of the class, the appointee may be given the higher rate. If a Foreign Service appointee's previous Federal employment was of such a nature that the skills and abilities from the previous position cannot be transferred to the category to which appointment is being made, the entrance salary may be set at a rate less than the individual's highest previous rate, but no less than the minimum salary rate of the class to which appointed.

b. A Foreign Service appointee may be given a rate of the class to which appointed that is above the minimum when the Director of the Office of Human Resources (OHR), taking into account the appointee's technical and professional qualifications, experience, and the technical and professional requirements of the Service, determines the higher rate to be appropriate.

234.5 Promotion to a Higher Class

a. Any member of the Foreign Service at class 2 or below promoted to the next higher salary class will receive basic pay at the lowest rate of such higher class that exceeds his or her existing rate of basic pay by not less than the amount of a two-step increase within the class from which he or she is promoted. At the time of the promotion, the employee promoted may also be given any higher scheduled rate for his or her class that does not exceed his or her highest previous rate if the OHR Director determines such an additional increase is warranted based on the employee's technical and professional qualifications, performance in the Foreign Service, and the needs of the Service.

b. Any member of the Foreign Service, on promotion into the Senior Foreign Service shall, subject to applicable limits on SFS pay, have his or her SFS pay set at the higher of (1) the minimum pay rate established for the SFS class or (2) a pay rate 6% above the pay rate (including locality pay, but subject to any applicable pay cap) the employee would receive if assigned to Washington, DC at the time of the promotion.

c. The Director of IBB may direct that an employee being promoted, have his or her pay set at the step of the new class that will provide the rate of pay necessary to provide relief on the basis of a grievance or an order by the Foreign Service Grievance Board or a court or administrative body having jurisdiction over the matter.

234.6 Change to a Lower Class

a. An employee who is changed to a lower class (except a change to a lower class by demotion after reduction-in-force referred to in b below) may be paid at the minimum pay rate of the class, or at any scheduled rate of the class that does not exceed his or her highest previous rate. If his or her highest previous rate falls between two scheduled rates of the new class, he or she may be given the higher rate.

b. When an employee is changed to a lower class as a result of a reduction in force action, any reduction in basic pay, to the extent possible, will be kept to the minimum.

234.7 Corrections

a. If, due to a change to a lower class, an employee is placed in a lower rate of pay (paragraphs 234.6a or b above) than the one for which he or she may be eligible, and there is evidence the action was taken in error, the error may be corrected retroactively.

b. If, due to a change to a lower class, an employee is placed in a lower rate of pay than the one for which he or she may be eligible because of limited funds, his or her rate of pay may not be increased later on account of funds becoming available.

234.8 Responsibility for Determining Rates of Pay - The Director of OHR is responsible for making final determinations on rates of pay.

235 Within-Class Increases

235.1 Definition

a. A within-class increase is an advancement to the next higher step within the scheduled rates of a salary class based on length of service, performance rating requirements, and compliance with standards required by law, or for remedial purposes as law, or for remedial purposes as described below.

b. An "equivalent increase in pay" means any increase in pay resulting from: (1) a promotion to a higher class; (2) a regularly scheduled within-class step increase; or (3) one or more salary adjustments that were (a) made since the last equivalent increase in pay, (b) resulted from conversion from one pay system to another, and (c) resulted in a pay increase equal to or greater than the amount of a within-class increase for the class to which the officer was appointed.

c. A remedial within-class increase is a salary increase to provide redress when the Foreign Service Grievance Board or a court or administrative body having jurisdiction over the matter finds that such an increase is justified to correct an error or an injustice which has adversely affected an employee of the Foreign Service.

235.2 Eligibility - Pursuant to section 406 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, a Foreign Service employee shall be advanced to the next higher salary step in his or her class at the beginning of the first pay period following completion of 52 calendar weeks of service in steps 1 through 9, and following 104 calendar weeks of service in steps 10 through 13, provided that the employee's performance meets the standards required for the efficient conduct of the work of the Service. Time in an LWOP status is creditable service in the computation of a waiting period for a within-class salary step increase. All Foreign Service employees shall be deemed to meet the performance requirements for a within-class increase except those identified and listed by the most recent Selection Board and approved by the Director of OHR, in accordance with BAM 5-B, Part 460, Exhibit 460C – Precepts for the Foreign Service Specialist Selection Boards (Class 1 and Below).

235.3 Within-Class Increases for Language Proficiency

a. Upon Entrance into the Foreign Service - A Career Candidate in classes 6 through 4 or an Overseas Specialist Candidate in classes 8 through 6 who enters the Service with language proficiency will be paid a higher entrance salary if, within 30 days of entrance on duty in Washington, the employee has achieved the prescribed National Foreign Affairs Training Center (hereinafter referred to as the Institute) tested rating in a primary, primary-alternate, or secondary language at a Foreign Service post. Entrance on duty within-class increases will not be granted for competence in language when competence in that language was a requirement for employment. Employees serving on non-career limited appointments (e.g., Civil Service employees on excursion tours) are not eligible to receive entrance on duty within-class increases.

b. In Incentive Languages - The languages for which training or proficiency incentives will be paid are identified from time to time by BBG according to needs.

235.4 Delay Beyond Effective Date - A within-class salary increase is effective retroactively to the date it was properly due in cases where:

a. Such increase is delayed beyond its proper effective date solely through administrative error, delay, or oversight; or

b. Such increase is withheld because of an adverse finding of a Selection Board which was based on information later learned to be incomplete or false, and the Director, OHR, revokes the adverse finding; or

c. Such increase is found justified by the Foreign Service Grievance Board or a court or administrative body having jurisdiction over the matter.

235.5 Denial of Within-Class Salary Increase Based Upon a Recommendation of a Selection Board

a. Criteria for Denial - Before a within-class increase will be denied, the following must occur:

(1) The most recent Selection Board must have recommended the denial, and

(2) The Director, OHR, must sustain the recommendation of the Selection Board.

b. Initial Notification - The Director, OHR, will notify those officers whom the Selection Board has recommended be denied within-class salary increases. The notification shall include:

(1) A copy of the Selection Board's memorandum setting forth the reasons for its recommendation; and

(2) Notice that the employee is entitled to reasonable time from receipt of the notification to comment to the Director, OHR, or designee, orally, or in writing, or both, on the reasons why the employee feels the Selection Board's recommendation should not be sustained. The time to respond will not exceed 15 calendar days (or 30 calendar days if the employee is overseas) from the date of the receipt of the notice from the Director, OHR.

c. Decision of the Director, OHR

(1) If the employee responds, the Director, OHR, will consider the response in reaching the decision whether or not to sustain the recommendation of the Selection Board and deny the within-class salary increase.

(2) When the employee requests an opportunity to respond orally, the Director, OHR, or designee, shall hear the employee's response. A designee shall have the authority to recommend a decision on the matter to the Director, OHR. The right of an employee to respond includes reasonable opportunity to make any oral representation which the employee believes might sway the final decision in the case, and the right to a representative of his or her own choosing, but does not include the right of a formal hearing that is adversarial in nature.

(3) The Director, OHR, will provide the employee with written notice of the final decision within 60 calendar days from the date of receipt of the employee's written and/or oral response.

d. Official Documentation - If the decision of the Director, OHR, is to deny the within-class salary increase, a copy of the decision and a copy of the Selection Board's recommendation will become a part of the employee's administrative file.

e. Appeals - The employee may appeal denial through the Foreign Service Grievance procedure (see 3 FAM 4400).

235.6 Denial of Increase in the Public Interest - The Director, OHR, may deny the granting of a within-class salary increase to any Foreign Service employee if it is determined such action to be in the public interest. The appeals procedure outlined in paragraph 235.5 will apply in such cases.

235.7 Notification of the Granting of Within-Class Salary Increases - The Office of Human Resources will process and distribute a Notification of Personnel Action (SF-50), for all employees who receive within-class salary increases.

[For BBG FS employees, MSIs are handled under the Agency's incentive award program.]

237 Adjustment of Basic Pay Rates of SFS Members, Performance Awards, and Presidential Rank Awards

237.1 Eligibility - All BBG members of the Foreign Service (career, career-candidate, and non-career appointees) who have been promoted to a class in the Senior Foreign Service (SFS) shall receive an increase in basic pay upon promotion to the SFS as provided in this section. Presidential appointees and other Members of the Service not currently being paid under the SFS basic pay scale or being paid at an extraordinary rate will be eligible for FE basic pay level adjustments, but no adjustment in actual pay will occur during the period of such status. A Presidential appointee whose appointment terminates or who subsequently elects SFS benefits will be assigned and paid at that FE basic pay level which would have been received if the member had been continuously paid under the SFS basic pay scale. Similarly, any other Members of the Service not being paid at their regular FE basic pay level will be assigned and paid at that FE basic pay level which would have been received if the Members had been continuously paid under the SFS basic pay scale.

237.2 Decisions on SFS Pay Adjustments, Performance Awards, and Presidential Rank Awards

a. Decisions on percentages and/or amounts for SFS members' basic pay adjustments and performance awards will be based on each executive's performance, contributions to the mission, unique qualifications significant to the Agency's performance, and the executive's scope and level of responsibilities using the following charts as a guide along with current pay level and budgetary considerations. Decisions on the number of pay adjustments, the amount or percentage of these adjustments, the number of performance awards and the amount or percentage of these awards, and on the number of Presidential Rank Awards nominations will be made by the BBG or its designee. Decisions on which individuals receive such adjustments, awards and/or nominations will be based on Selection Board rankings in accordance with the Precepts for the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board.

b. Eligible executives are placed in Terciles 1, 2, or 3 based on whether their basic rates of pay fall into the top, middle, or lowest third of the authorized SFS pay range for their Class, respectively.

c. Basic Pay Increases

Rating	Tercile 1	Tercile 2	Tercile 3
Rated Excellent or Better	0.0% up to ESI + 6.5%	0.0% up to ESI + 5.5%	0.0% up to ESI + 4.5%
Not Rated Excellent or Better	0.0% up to ESI + 4.0%	0.0% up to ESI + 3.5%	0.0% up to ESI + 2.5%

Executives are eligible to be considered for the ESI plus an additional increase. ESI is the percentage increase in Executive Schedule pay rates.

d. Basic Pay Ranges

Basic pay for Executives in the Minister Counselor Class (FE-MC) ranges from the minimum rate of basic pay for a Senior Level position under 5 USC 5376 to 107 percent of the Basic Pay Rate for Executive Level III.

Basic pay for Executives in the Counselor Class (FE-OC) ranges from the minimum rate of basic pay for a Senior Level position under 5 USC 5376 to 102 percent of the Basic Pay Rate for Executive Level III.

e. Performance Awards

Rating	Tercile 1	Tercile 2	Tercile 3
---------------	------------------	------------------	------------------

Rated Excellent or Better	0.0% or 5%-7%	0.0% or 5%-11%	0.0% or 5%-15%
Not Rated Excellent or Better	0.0% or 5%	0.0% or 5%-7%	0.0% or 5%-9%

f. Effective Date - An approved increase in FE basic pay rate will be effective at the beginning of the first pay period following the decision to grant the adjustment.

g. Administration - The Office of Human Resources will be responsible for administering increases in FE basic pay levels.

h. Deferral of FE Salary Level Increases

(1) At the time an officer becomes eligible for an FE salary level increase in accordance with the provisions of 237.2, the Director, Office of Human Resources, may order the temporary deferral of the increase if, in the OHR Director's opinion, such increase would be inconsistent with the National interest or the efficiency of the Service. Such reasons must be based upon:

(a) Issues of loyalty, security, misconduct, suitability, or malfeasance; or

(b) Indications that information available to the officer's supervisory rating official or in the Official Performance File of the officer regarding the member's performance have been significantly inaccurate or incomplete.

(2) The Director, Office of Human Resources, will promptly inform the officer concerned in writing of the action taken and will initiate, pursue, or monitor such inquiry, investigation, or proceeding as appropriate to the issue giving rise to the deferral. The officer will be given an opportunity to submit whatever information or documents the officer believes are pertinent to the case. Upon disposition or resolution of the issue, the Director will:

(a) Determine that there is no basis for denying the increase in FE basic pay level and request that the necessary administrative action be initiated to increase the officer's FE basic pay level effective as of the date the increase would have been effective if not deferred; or

(b) Determine, on the basis of grounds specified in subsections 237.2h(1) (a) and (b) to deny the officer an FE basic pay level increase.

(3) However, in cases where an officer is to be separated from the Service under Sections 610 or 611 of the Act, the temporary deferral of the FE basic pay level increase in effect during the separation proceedings will be made permanent.

237.3 Denial of FE Salary Level Increases

a. Basis for Denial - Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 237.2h(2), an FE basic pay level increase will not be authorized should a Selection Board have recommended, based on performance during the period of eligibility, that a member be denied such an increase.

b. Criteria for Selection Board Recommendation - A Selection Board should consider recommending that an member under review be denied an FE basic pay level increase if, in the Board's judgment, the officer has been performing, during the period since appointed to the current FE level, below the standard of performance expected of Members of the same class. The Board may take into account not only evaluation material in the performance file related to the period in question, but also any relevant secondary material such as letters of reprimand or suspension that are included in the file. The Selection Board should also consider recommending denial of a basic pay increase in any case in which it determines the officer's performance is marginal in relation to other members of the same class and specialty. Whenever a Selection Board recommends denial of a basic pay increase, it will prepare a statement explaining the reasons for its recommendation, a copy of which will be sent to the officer concerned but not made part of the performance file.

237.4 Reduction in Basic Pay Levels - A Selection Board should consider recommending to the BBG or its designee a reduction in basic pay whenever the Selection Board has low-ranked or found an officer to be performing below the standard of his or her class. A recommendation for reduction in basic pay level must be based on a determination that the level and quality of the officer's performance over the most recent two-year period that the officer has been at the current FE level has been significantly below the performance of other members of the same class and basic pay level. Any such recommendation must be supported by a statement explaining the Board's reasons for the recommendation and a copy of the statement must be sent to the officer concerned. An officer may not be recommended for a reduction in basic pay level if he or she has been at the current Class level less than two years as of the date the Selection Board convened. No reduction of basic pay level will be made below the lowest basic pay level established for the officer's class. A Selection Board's recommendation for reduction in basic pay level will be effective on the same date as other BBG decisions on pay adjustments.

237.5 Frequency of Basic Pay Adjustments

Generally, a member's rate of basic pay will not be adjusted more than once during a 12-month period, except that an increase in pay equivalent to the minimum amount necessary to ensure that the member's rate of basic pay does not fall below the minimum rate will not count against this restriction. A pay adjustment resulting from a pay-setting action upon promotion into or within the SFS is considered a pay adjustment for this purpose.

Section 250

GENERAL COMPENSATION PROVISIONS AND RESTRICTIONS

251 GENERAL PROVISIONS

251.1 Initial Rates of Pay - The regulations for determining initial rates of pay for appointment to the Foreign Service are included in MOA V-B 230.

251.2 Salary Schedules (Per Annum Rates) - The salary schedules for Foreign Service Overseas specialists are published in 4 FAM 545.

252 LOCAL COMPENSATION PROVISIONS

252.1 Payment in Local Currency - In order to utilize as fully as possible any foreign credits which may be available for use at an overseas establishment, every effort should be made to encourage employees to take as much of their salaries in local currency as they need and can use for their personal expenses (see 3 FAM 221.4).

252.2 Exemption From Foreign Laws - With reference to foreign laws relative to social insurance and contracts of employment, the Department of State maintains that one government cannot impose on another sovereign state any obligation in this respect and, therefore, such laws are inapplicable to Foreign Service employees of Broadcasting. This fact shall be made clear to employees serving abroad (see 3 FAM 212).

253 DUAL COMPENSATION

253.1 General - 5 U.S.C. 5531.5537 prescribes (1) prohibitions on Federal employees receiving basic pay from more than one position, and (2) restrictions on the retired or retainer pay of members of the uniformed services (defined in 253.3a) during periods when they are employed as civilians by Federal agencies.

253.2 Pay From More Than One Position

a. Except as provided for in b. below, an employee is not entitled to receive basic pay from more than one position for more than an aggregate of 40 hours in one calendar week (Sunday through Saturday). The restriction applies to "receiving compensation," not to employment per se. Therefore, an employee who is in a non-pay status (such as leave without pay) during an entire week is not precluded from other Federal employment during that week.

b. Statutory and regulatory exceptions are provided for:

-- Compensation on a when-actually-employed (WAE) basis received from more than one consultant or expert position if such compensation is not received for the same hours of the day.

-- Compensation consisting of fees paid on other than a time basis.

-- Compensation received for employment under emergency conditions relating to health, safety, protection of life or property, or national emergency. Examples of such conditions are fire, earthquake, flood or other disaster, civil disorder, or threat to the national security.

-- Compensation for part-time or intermittent employment

-- Compensation in any position which requires the knowledge and use of one or more foreign languages.

c. Requests for Exceptions - An element's request for an exception to the limitation in a. above and in addition to the general exception in b. above must establish to the satisfaction of the Director, Office of Personnel that personal services otherwise cannot be readily obtained for the position in question. The request must describe the special circumstances which prevent the element from obtaining the required services except by utilizing current Federal employees. Requests should be directed from the Director or Office Head to the Director, Office of Personnel.

253.3 Reduction in Military Retire or Retainer Pay

a. Coverage - The restrictions in b. below are applicable to employees who are members or former members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and the Public Health Service.

b. Effect of Restrictions

(1) In accordance with 5 U.S.C. 5532(b), such employees are entitled to the full pay of their positions, but will receive only the first $2,000 of their retired or retainer pay plus one-half of any amount in excess of $2,000 may be adjusted from time to time, by appropriate percentages, in direct proportion to cost-of-living increases in the retired or retainer pay.

(2) 5 U.S.C. 5532(c) stipulates that an employee's retired or retainer pay when added to salaries received from their civilian positions may not exceed the pay from Executive Level V. The retired or retainer pay is to be reduced when the combined pay exceeds this limit. This restriction does not apply to (a) those who are employed by the U.S. Government as of January 11, 1979, and who are entitled to military retired or retainer pay, but will not receive such pay until they meet any applicable age requirement; and (b) those who were appointed in the Federal Government prior to January 11, 1979.

c. Exceptions

(1) The retired or retainer pay will not be reduced if the pay is computed, in whole or in part, based on disability:

(a) Resulting from injury or disease received in line of duty as a direct result of armed conflict; or

(b) Caused by an instrumentality of war and incurred in line of duty during a period of war as defined by sections 101 and 301 of title 38 U.S. Code.

(2) The retired or retainer pay will not be reduced during the first 30 days of temporary or intermittent civilian employment. This exception may cover no more than 30 days of employment in any one fiscal year.

(3) The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) has the authority to make exceptions to the restrictions in 253.6(b) for a period of five years from January 11, 1979.

254 INJURY COMPENSATION - Under the provisions of 5 U.S.C. 8116, an employee receiving injury compensation may not draw salary from his or her Federal position for the same period of time. However, the employee may receive salary for services performed for which he or she has not been paid. If a lump-sum settlement is paid to the employee for injuries in the line of duty, no other compensation for Federal employment may be received until the expiration of time specified by the Office of Workers' Compensation Programs when authorizing the lump-sum payment (see 3 FAM 689).

255 WITHHOLDING COMPENSATION - When an overseas employee is in arrears to the U.S. Government, his or her compensation shall be withheld in accordance with the provisions of 4 FAM 484 and 550, if the employee is pay-rolled overseas by a Department of State Fiscal Servicing Office, and in accordance with MOA VII 660, if the employee is being pay-rolled by Broadcasting's Financial Operations, Office of Budget.

256 VOLUNTARY SERVICE - Voluntary Service is service furnished to the Government on the initiative of the person rendering the service without the formal request or agreement of the Government. Under Section 3679, Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), the acceptance of voluntary service is prohibited "except in cases of emergency involving the safety of human life or the protection of property." The emergency must be sudden and unforeseen and must constitute an imminent threat to the safety of human life or the protection of property. Claims for compensation for such service in an emergency should be submitted to Financial Operations, Office of Budget, for transmission to the General Accounting Office for adjudication.

257 COMPENSATION DURING MILITARY LEAVE - An employee who is a Reserve of the armed forces or a member of the National Guard is entitled to receive compensation for his or her position concurrently with pay and allowances while on military leave for training or active duty (5 U.S.C. 6323).

Section 260

ALLOWANCES AND DIFFERENTIALS

261 APPLICABLE REGULATIONS AND COVERAGE

Regulations published in the Foreign Affairs Manual (3 FAM 300) of the Department of State apply jointly to Foreign Service personnel of Broadcasting, the Department of State, and other participating foreign affairs agencies. However, because of certain procedural differences, it is necessary to supplement the uniform regulations with Broadcasting regulations. Thus, in addition to the Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas) and 3 FAM 300, the regulations contained in this Section are applicable to Broadcasting Foreign Service personnel on career, career candidate or non-career limited appointments.

a. Foreign Service employees who are citizens of the United States are eligible to receive allowances authorized by the provisions of the Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas), 3 FAM 300, and as supplemented by these regulations. Personnel of other government agencies or departments on detail to Broadcasting are considered Broadcasting personnel for allowance purposes and are granted allowances accordingly.

b. Regional officers will be under the control of the post of residence for allowances and differentials.

c. Post of assignment of personnel assigned to more than one overseas post shall be the residence post as shown on the SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action.

d. Broadcasting officers-in-charge of Transmitting Stations, VOA Correspondent Bureaus, and Marketing Offices are authorized to grant, revise, or terminate allowances for representation, temporary lodging, quarters, post and supplementary post allowances, education allowance, and post differential in accordance with standardized allowance regulations for American employees. (See MOA V-B 122.3 for Delegations of Authority to officials overseas.) Approval of the Foreign Service Personnel Officer, Office of Personnel is required for employees requesting payment of these allowances in Washington, D. C.

262 QUARTERS ALLOWANCES

Quarters allowances are intended to reimburse an employee for substantially all of his or her costs for either temporary or residence quarters whenever Government-owned or Government-leased quarters are not provided. Quarters allowances are granted pursuant to 5 USC 5922 and 5923, and officers-in-charge have the authority to grant, revise, or terminate them. The temporary lodging allowance and the living quarters allowance are never payable simultaneously to an employee for the same period of time. See Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas), Chapter 100, for details on advance payments. Form SF-1190 (Foreign Allowances Application, Grant, and Report) is used to request both types of quarters allowance.

262.1 Temporary Lodging Allowance - Is an allowance granted to an employee for the reasonable cost of temporary quarters incurred by the employee and his or her family for a period not in excess of:

(1) three months after first arrival at a new post in a foreign area or a period ending with the occupation of residence (permanent) quarters, if earlier; and

(2) one month immediately preceding final departure from the post subsequent to the necessary vacating of residence quarters.

The maximum rates for temporary lodging allowances cover average costs of adequate, but not elaborate or unnecessarily expensive, accommodations in a hotel, pension, or other transient-type quarters at the post, including lodging, heat, light, fuel, water and obligatory service charges. Costs of food and meals are excluded. Maximum rates for individual posts are shown in Standardized Regulations Section 920, and are determined by post classification (Sections 061 and 920) and family status. (Examples are shown in Section 930.) See Chapter 120 of the Standardized Regulations for details on payment. Payment of actual costs not to exceed the prescribed amount may be paid in advance if required by the lessor, or biweekly with regular salary payments upon submission of evidence of daily costs at post.

262.2 Living Quarters Allowance - Is an allowance granted to an employee for the annual cost of suitable, adequate living quarters for the employee and his or her family, if government quarters are not provided. The allowance is designed to cover substantially all of the employee's normal costs for rent, heat, light, fuel, gas, electricity, water, taxes levied by the local government and required by local law or custom to be paid by the lessee, insurance required by law or custom to be incurred by landlord and paid by lessee. See Section 130 of the Standardized Regulations for details on granting and payment, and Sections 920 and 932 for determination of rate. Form SF-1190 is filed annually, to claim this allowance, and must be supported by receipts. MOA VII-820 provides regulations for advance payments. The allowance varies with post, employee grade and family size, and may be paid in advance or biweekly with regular salary payments.

263 COST OF LIVING ALLOWANCES

Cost of living allowances are intended to reimburse an employee for certain excess costs, exclusive of any quarters costs, which result from being officially stationed in a foreign area. Such allowances include:

263.1 Post Allowance - An allowance granted to an employee officially stationed at a post where the cost of living, exclusive of living quarters and schooling costs, is substantially higher than in Washington, D. C. See Chapter 220 of the Standardized Regulations for procedures used in granting, determination and termination of this allowance. Post allowances vary by post, employee salary, and family size, and payment is approved by the Broadcasting officer-in-charge, as appropriate, and paid biweekly automatically with the salary payment.

263.2 Supplementary Post Allowance - Is a form of post allowance granted to an employee at post to defray extraordinary subsistence costs when occupying temporary non-housekeeping quarters during periods up to three months after first arrival at a new post and up to one month preceding final departure from the post. See Chapter 230 of Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas) for conditions governing eligibility, and Section 920 for determination of rate. This allowance is payable for employee and dependents and is paid upon submission of Form SF-1190 with evidence of daily costs at post, upon approval by the Broadcasting officer-in-charge, as appropriate.

263.3 Foreign Transfer Allowance - Is an allowance for extraordinary, necessary, and reasonable expenses, not otherwise compensated for, incurred by an employee incident to establishing himself or herself at a post of assignment in a foreign area, including costs incurred in the United States prior to departure for an overseas post. The allowance is composed of three elements.

a. A lump sum miscellaneous expense portion to assist with certain extraordinary costs, such as:

(1) disconnecting and connecting appliances, equipment, and utilities;

(2) converting appliances for operation on available utilities;

(3) cutting and fitting rugs, draperies, and curtains moved from one residence to another;

(4) utility fees or deposits; automobile registration, driver's license, and similar fees;

(5) personal cable and telephone costs attributable to the relocation of the employee and his or her family which are not intended to be reimbursed by per diem.

b. An amount of $350 or the equivalent of one week's pay, whichever is less, for a single employee and $700 or the equivalent of two weeks' pay, whichever is less, for an employee with family, may be paid without receipts or itemizing. Any additional claim must be supported by receipts for the entire claim.

c. A lump sum wardrobe expense portion to offset a part of clothing cost of transfer across two climatic zones (that is from zone 1 to 3 or 3 to 1).

d. A subsistence expense portion for lodging, meals, (including tips), laundry, cleaning, and pressing expenses in temporary quarters for employee and each member of family for up to ten days before final departure from a post in the United States to post in a foreign area, beginning not more than 30 days after they have vacated residence quarters.

e. The maximum allowable amount is determined by family size and United States locality (Section 942.1 of Standardized Regulations) and is claimed by submission of Form SF-1190 at post with receipts attached for lodging and laundry/cleaning expenses, to the Embassy Administrative Officer upon approval of the officer-in-charge, as appropriate. See Section 240 of the Standardized Regulations for further details on the foreign transfer allowance and MOA VII-821 for procedures for advance payment.

263.4 Home Service Transfer Allowance - Is an allowance for extraordinary, necessary, and reasonable expenses, not otherwise compensated for, incurred by an employee incident to establishing himself or herself at a post of assignment in the United States or in any territory or possession of the United States or the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico following transfer from a post in a foreign area, or when the officer is not entitled to be reimbursed under any other provision of law, for relocation expenses while on assignment to a public or private nonprofit organization. The employee must certify in writing that, following the effective date of transfer, he or she will complete 12 months of U. S. Government service. The home service transfer allowance is composed of three elements:

a. A miscellaneous expense portion identical to that provided by the foreign transfer allowance (see paragraph 263.3);

b. A wardrobe expense portion for two-zone transfers only;

c. A temporary lodging portion designed to offset costs of meals, laundry and dry cleaning of clothes and lodging in a hotel, pension, or other transient-type quarters, including obligatory service charges, for employee and his or her family, up to a total of 60 calendar days. Up to 60 additional days may be authorized by the Director of Personnel when there are compelling reasons beyond the control of the employee. The amount paid is either the employee's daily expenses for allowable items or the maximum prescribed rate per paragraph 942.2 of the Standardized Regulations, whichever is less.

(1) Time limits for application for this allowance and details on the conditions, payment, and amount of the allowance are contained in Paragraph 252 of the Standardized Regulations; Broadcasting procedures for advance payment are in MOA VII-821.

(2) In accordance with Section 250 of the Standardized Regulations, the Director of Personnel, is authorized to grant home service transfer allowances up to 60 days and to revise or terminate grants for the allowance, to determine whether a house or apartment is occupied on a temporary basis, and to obtain employee's certification of intent to serve 12 months in the U. S. Government following the effective date of transfer.

(3) An employee transferred from an overseas post to Washington or to another location in the United States in lieu of the Washington, may apply for a home service transfer allowance by completing Form SF-1190, with receipts or other documents to support his or her claim for the temporary lodging portion, to the Office of Personnel.

(4) The Foreign Service Personnel Officer, Office of Personnel, is responsible for assuring that:

(a) the certification statement required under Section 077.32c(2), Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas), is signed by the employee in Part 26, "Remarks", on all Forms SF-1190;

(b) the completed forms are carefully reviewed to assure that the employee is eligible to receive the home service transfer allowance claimed;

(c) the employee signs Part 27, "Employee's Statement," and that the applicable sections of Part 29 of the form have been completed.

(5) The Foreign Service Personnel Officer forwards the original and one copy of the form with necessary receipts to the Financial Operations, for processing. See MOA VII-821 for Broadcasting procedures for advance payment.

(6) The relocation expenses may be reimbursed incident to household moves necessitated by an assignment to a public or private nonprofit organization when an officer is not entitled to be reimbursed under any other provision of law. Relocation expenses authorized are subsistence expenses of the employee and immediate family for a period of up to 60 days while occupying temporary quarters. Procedures outlined in (1) through (5) above should be used in applying for this allowance.

263.5 Separate Maintenance Allowance

Is an allowance to assist an employee who is compelled or authorized, by reason of dangerous, notably unhealthy, or excessively adverse living conditions at his/her post of assignment in a foreign area, or for the convenience of the Government or who requests such an allowance because of special needs or hardship involving the employee or the employee's spouse or one or more dependents to meet the additional expense of maintaining his/her dependents elsewhere than at such post. Section 260 of the Standardized Regulations provides details on conditions not warranting a separate maintenance allowance, periods of time, beginning and termination of grant, determination of rate, and methods of payment. The rates of the allowance are determined in accordance with paragraph 267.1 of the Standardized Regulations.

a. The Director of Personnel is authorized to grant, revise, terminate or disapprove separate maintenance allowances in accordance with Section 260 of the Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas) to eligible employees of Broadcasting and to other employees paid from Broadcasting funds.

b. The employee prepares the application on Form SF-1190 as prescribed in 3 FAM 315.4 and submits it to the Office of Personnel. The Director signs the approved application, (Part 29). Only the original of Form SF-1190 need be signed provided that, in lieu of signature, the authorizing officer's name and title appear on all copies and that they bear the following wording: "True copy of the signed original." Personnel distributes the approved applications for separate maintenance allowance.

263.6 Education Allowance - Is an allowance to assist an employee in meeting extraordinary and necessary expenses in providing adequate elementary and secondary education for his or her children incurred because of service in a foreign area. This allowance is designed to assist in defraying costs necessary to obtain educational services which are ordinarily provided without charge by the public schools in the United States, plus the costs of room and board and periodic transportation where adequate schools are not available at the employee's foreign post. Rates of education allowance for "school at post," "school away from post," and "home study" are contained in Section 920 of the Standardized Regulations. Education allowances may be paid in advance, either by lump sum or by installments, upon submission of Form SF-1190. An education allowance shall not be paid for a child in the United States:

a. who has a natural or adoptive parent or step-parent residing in the United States (except where the employee establishes that the parent residing in the United States is divested of legal custody of the child or is mentally or physically unfit to care for the child or the step-parent is estranged from the employee); or

b. on whose behalf a separate maintenance allowance is being paid; or

c. for the 12-month period immediately following his/her arrival in the U.S. under educational travel authority nor for any period thereafter during which he/she continues to be educated in the United States. See Section 270 of the Standardized Regulations for details.

263.7 Educational Travel - Is one round trip in a 12 month period to a school or undergraduate college in the United States for secondary education (in lieu of an education allowance) and for college education for a dependent of the employee. The first educational travel trip must originate outside the United States except as provided in paragraph 284 of the Standardized Regulations. Subsequent round trips may originate in the United States. Normally, secondary educational travel is authorized for children up to age 20 (before 21st birthday) and for college education up to age 22 (before 23rd birthday), except that the age limit may be extended by one additional year for each year of military service. For travel from the post to the United States, the child must spend 14 consecutive days outside the United States prior to departure on the educational travel (except when the child's transportation abroad within the 14 days was not at Government expense). Travel from the United States to the post shall not be authorized when the employee's transfer to the United States or travel from home leave will occur within 30 days of the scheduled departure date of the child for the post. The following is the procedure for processing requests:

a. Submit requests for authorization for educational travel to or from the United States to Broadcasting by cable through the PER Channel, Attention: Broadcasting (personnel), as a TMTWO, with the following information:

(1) Child's name and date of birth;

(2) Purpose of the requested travel (secondary or college education). Give the grade or academic year that the child will be commencing at the school;

(3) Name and location (city and state) of the school the child will be or is attending;

(4) In the case of travel to the United States, the length of time the child has been continuously abroad;

(5) In the case of return travel to post, advise:

(a) Whether employee plans to commence travel for home leave or transfer to a post in the United States within 30 days from the date of the child's departure for the post;

(b) A mailing address and telephone number so that the dependent may be contacted regarding medical examinations, travel arrangements, passports, etc.

(6) Estimated date of departure and estimated date of arrival.

b. Upon receipt of a request for educational travel for secondary or college education, Personnel determines eligibility and the employee's administrative officer issues the travel order.

c. To be eligible for educational travel, a child must be enrolled as a full-time student during the current school year. Educational travel may be authorized for dependents to attend summer school, if full-time. Educational travel may not be authorized for dependents on leave of absence from a college or university or for dependents to audit courses not for degree credit.

d. Educational travel orders for a dependent or an employee of Broadcasting can only be issued in Washington.

e. The post must submit a TMFIVE and a TMEIGHT upon the departure and arrival of each dependent traveling on educational travel orders.

f. Dependents under age 21 are required to have a valid medical clearance for travel from the United States to the post.

g. A child 21 years or older, who proceeds to the employee's post under an educational travel authorization, may not be returned to the United States on the employee's home leave, transfer, or separation order nor perform any travel at Government expense under the provisions of 6 FAM 126.3.

263.8 Dependent Care Grants for Family Members During Orientation, Language, and Functional Training 3 FAM 824.6 outlines the conditions, criteria and procedures for providing orientation, language, and functional training for members of the families of Foreign Service employees. Accordingly, to facilitate attendance by family members of employees at orientation, language, functional and any other approved training, Broadcasting is authorized to make grants (by advance payments or by reimbursement) for dependent care (baby sitting expenses) incurred in conjunction with such attendance. Training will consist of at least 10 but not more than 30 class hours per week, exclusive of language laboratory or other self-study hours. No such grant may exceed the amount actually expended for incurred cost. In the event that a dependent's training is canceled or discontinued after an advance of money for dependent care has been made, the employee shall refund the balance of the advance within fifteen (15) days of cancellation or discontinuance of training. Grants and reimbursements may be made to employee's family members for:

a. training provided by FSI, such as regular full-time, early morning, part-time, or specially arranged language classes, area studies or language and area familiarization courses, the workshop or re-entry study programs for Foreign Service families or any other applicable courses at FSI;

b. language training at other institutions as may be approved in advance by the Chief, Training and Development Division. To apply for the dependent care grant, a family member must submit Form DS-755 (Request for Training) to the Chief, Training and Development Division who must approve the training before the training begins. Application for the grant should be submitted on, Application for Dependent Care/Training Grant. Reimbursement should be claimed by submitting Form Certification for Dependent Care/Training Grant, to the Chief, Training and Development Division, Office of Personnel.

264 REPRESENTATION ALLOWANCE

The general guidelines and allowable expenditures contained in 3 FAM 341.1, 342.2, and 344, and Chapter 300 of the Standardized Regulations, are to be followed in the use of representation allowance funds by employees of Broadcasting assigned to posts in foreign areas. Authority to approve expenditures of Broadcasting appropriated representation allowance funds is delegated to the Broadcasting Officer at the overseas installation within the limits of the funds made available to him or her.

264.1 Planning, Control, and Distribution of Funds

a. Responsibilities - The officer-in-charge is responsible for developing a representation program. Broadcasting makes funds available to the officer in a lump sum. Obtaining optimum benefit from the use of available funds is of importance to Broadcasting. Each of these officials must assume personal control of the direction of representation activities and the use of representation funds available to him/her.

b. Distribution of Funds - Allotments by Broadcasting covering representation allowances provide funds under a specific activity code. Upon receipt of the annual allotment, the officer distributes representation allowance funds within the amount allotted.

c. Limitation on Representation Allowances - Reimbursable expenditures for representation activities in a fiscal year cannot exceed the limitations fixed by the Congress in Broadcasting's appropriation for that year. Overseas installations cannot obligate money for representation allowances that are in excess of the amount allotted to them for that specific purpose. Over-obligation or over-expenditure will result in a violation of law (see MOA VI-114.3g).

264.2 Vouchering Expenditures - Detailed instructions for preparing vouchers covering representation allowance expenditures are contained in MOA VII-914. All allowable expenditures for official representation should be vouchered even though reimbursement may not be claimed or payment may not be made because of lack of funds or for other reasons.

264.3 Record of Expenditures

a. General - . These records are used by Broadcasting to support periodic reports of obligations and expenditures, annual budget estimates, requests for increased allotment, and other reports as may be required.

b. Federal Income Tax Deduction Certification for Non-Reimbursed Official Expenses

(1) Responsibility of Certifying Officer - In accordance with instructions of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS Publication 516, "Tax Information for United States Government Civilian Employees Stationed Abroad"), an employee of the Foreign Service is allowed a deduction for representation and official residence expenses in excess of his or her allowances or other payments received under the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, if these excess expenses are supported by a certificate certifying that such expenses were incurred for the benefit of the United States and that they would be properly reimbursable under the terms of the Act if Broadcasting had sufficient funds for such reimbursements. The certification on behalf of Broadcasting is made by the certifying officer for the post where such non-reimbursed expenses are being claimed. (The credit does not include the five percent of salary deducted for normal housekeeping costs.)

(2) Types of Expenditures to be Certified - Certifications by the post will cover the two types of expenditures which would have been reimbursed under the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, and Chapters 300 and 400 of the Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas), i.e., Representation Allowances, had sufficient funds been available. Other expenses which are ordinary and necessary in the performance of duties as an officer or employee in the Foreign Service will be justified by the officer or employee in accordance with guidelines given in Internal Revenue Service Publication 463, "Travel Entertainment and Gift Expenses." Such expenses will not be certified by the certifying officer.

(3) Request for Certification of Out-of-Pocket Expenditures - Requests for certification of expenditures are based on administratively approved vouchers submitted as though the voucher were to be certified for payment. The vouchers should contain sufficient data to enable the certifying officer to identify the representation or other official expenses claimed. The certifying officer will identify the vouchers as "no pay" and retain them to support the tax deduction certificate to be issued. At the close of each calendar year, or at the time of an employee's departure from the post, the certifying officer will prepare a certification as to amounts claimed and not reimbursed which represent properly allowable expenses and send the certificate to the employee. The following format is suggested:

"Dear :

This certifies that during calendar year (or other period) while you were assigned to you incurred, for the benefit of the United States, the following properly reimbursable expenses for which you were not reimbursed because of insufficient funds.

Sincerely yours,

Authorized Certifying Officer"

(4) Expenses Reimbursed Subsequent to Certification - In those instances where, subsequent to the preparation of the certification made in accordance with paragraph (3) above, an employee is reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenditures, it is the responsibility of the employee to give recognition to such reimbursement when filing a subsequent or amended tax return. Employees are reminded that any deductions claimed or certified to as appropriate for tax purposes are subject to investigation and challenge by the Internal Revenue Service.

(5) Availability of Internal Revenue Service Publications - Internal Revenue Service publications are available in the consular section of the post or from any Internal Revenue Service office.

264.4 Allowable and Non-allowable Expenses

a. Allowable expenses include expenditures to promote United States national interests, to promote United States economic interests, and for commemorative and ceremonial requirements in furtherance of United States foreign policy objectives.

b. Non-allowable expenses

(1) The hire, purchase, operation, or repair of any motor-propelled, passenger-carrying vehicle, including aircraft;

(2) Expenses of printing and engraving;

(3) Printing of Christmas cards or other types of greeting cards;

(4) Compensation for cost of living, quarters expenses, or for assignment under difficult environmental conditions, including expenses of recreation and entertainment solely for employees of the United States and their families;

(5) Membership fees or dues in any society, club, or association which cannot be paid out of appropriated funds unless:

(a) The membership in the name of an individual employee can be classified as "institutional" because it meets all of the following criteria:

--The membership is "transferable," in the sense that the name is easily changeable to the name of the original member/employee's successor in office;

--The membership is essential to the operation of Broadcasting; and

--The membership dues are tantamount to a charge for a real, tangible benefit; or

(b) The expenditure would be for "library membership" in an organization which would allow the employee to receive publications available to members only, or allow the employee to purchase generally available publications at a reduced rate.

265 POST DIFFERENTIAL

A post differential is additional compensation of 10, 15, 20, or 25 percent over basic salary compensation which is granted for service at places in foreign areas where conditions of environment differ substantially from environmental conditions in the continental United States and warrant additional compensation as a recruitment and retention incentive. Post differential is established when the place involves extraordinarily difficult living conditions, excessive physical hardship, or notably unhealthy conditions. Living costs are not considered. The post differential percentage for eligible posts is listed in Section 920 of the Standardized Regulations. Paragraph 510 of the Standardized Regulations details eligibility and basis for post differential. Payment of differential is approved by the officer-in-charge and automatically paid with the biweekly salary payments at eligible posts, and is subject to federal income tax deductions.

266 TRAVEL PER DIEM ALLOWANCE

A travel per diem allowance is provided to employees and eligible dependents for daily expenses while traveling on official business for the Government away from the employee's designated duty post. The type of reimbursement (actual subsistence or per diem) is included in the travel authorization or in an amendment thereto. The rate of expense is determined in accordance with Federal Travel Regulations and Broadcasting travel policy.

a. Rates for Overseas Cities are set by the Department of State and published in Section 925 of the Standardized Regulations.

b. Rates for Cities in the United States Reimbursement are based on the amount the traveler pays for lodging plus a fixed allowance for meals and incidental expenses (M&IE), the total not to exceed a rate set by locality. The system applies to travel in the conterminous United States only.

267 PAYMENT DURING EVACUATION AND TO MISSING EMPLOYEES

267.1 Payments During Evacuation - Chapter 600 of the Standardized Regulations describes the entitlement coverage, rate, and amount of advance payment for employees and their dependents who are ordered to be evacuated from assigned posts of duty.

267.2 Payment to Missing Employees

5 U.S.C. 5562 entitles an American employee who is in a missing status to receive or have credited to his or her account pay and allowances. Missing status means an employee who is missing in action, interned in a foreign country, captured, beleaguered, or besieged by a hostile force, or detained in a foreign country against his or her will, but does not include an employee who is officially determined to be absent from post of duty without authority. See Subchapter VII of Title 5 of the United States Code, Section 5561 through 5568.

268 GENERAL ALLOWANCE REPORTING REQUIREMENT

Under the administrative support arrangements with the Department of State, allowance reporting is done by the Department for Broadcasting establishments located at diplomatic missions and consular establishments. The head of each overseas establishment should examine and comment on such reports when prepared for submission to the Department.

GENERAL

301 COVERAGE - Chapter 300 contains policies, instructions, and procedures for recruitment, examination, selection, and appointment of persons to the Foreign Service for Overseas Specialist positions.

a. Appointment of Overseas Specialist Candidates in specialties such as radio engineer ,facility maintenance, and VOA correspondent is described in V-B 360.

b. Employment of Foreign Service National Employees is described in 3 FAM 900.

c. Part-time, Intermittent, Temporary (PIT) employment is described in 3 FAM 120.

d. Appointments to the FSN/American Family Member Program is described in 3 FAM 122.8.

302 AUTHORITIES - Certain legal and regulatory requirements authorize and restrict activities in recruitment, examination, selection, and appointment of Foreign Service personnel. The major authorities and restrictive provisions are cited briefly below:

302.1 Foreign Service Act of 1980 provides the basic authorities for the employment and retention of Foreign Service personnel; requires that Broadcasting's Foreign Service personnel system be compatible with other agencies' Foreign Service personnel systems; establishes a Senior Foreign Service; provides that, before receiving a career appointment in the Service, an individual must first serve under a limited appointment as a career candidate for a trial period of service; limits the duration of a limited appointment; and gives the Director the same range of authority with respect to members of Broadcasting's Foreign Service as the Secretary of State except where authority is otherwise specifically vested in the Secretary of State.

302.2 The Foreign Affairs Reform and Restructuring Act of 1998 established Broadcasting as a separate entity and enables the Director to exercise personnel authorities normally available to heads of departments and agencies. It authorizes the President to delegate to the Director of Broadcasting ,personnel and other authorities that were available to the Secretary of State.

302.3 Executive Order 10450 of April 27, 1953, as amended, and 5 CFR 731 and 754 sets forth security requirements for Government employment and prescribes responsibilities for the conduct of security investigations.

302.4 Section 2108 (1) and (2) of Title 5 of the U.S. Code defines veteran and disabled veterans and applicants in those categories shall be given affirmative consideration in the selection of applicants for appointment.

a. It is Broadcasting policy to fill all positions with the best qualified persons obtainable and to conduct its recruitment, examination, selection, and appointment activities in such a manner as will:

(1) Ensure a continuing supply of highly qualified candidates who are representative of the American people, aware of the principles and history of the United States, generally informed of current concerns and trends in American life, knowledgeable of the affairs, cultures, and languages of other countries, and available for worldwide assignment.

(2) Ensure that beneficial and effective relations are maintained with the public.

(3) Ensure that fair, equitable, and consistent treatment and consideration is afforded all applicants for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, handicapping condition, marital status, political affiliation, membership in or activity on behalf of employee organizations, or initiation of or participation in grievance procedures of an applicant.

(4) Ensure that the spirit and intent of all pertinent laws, rules, and regulations governing recruitment, examination, selection, and appointment of personnel are strictly observed.

b. Employees are selected according to the nature of the work for which they are considered, through appropriate written and oral examinations, and through the evaluation of qualifications and experience.

c. Broadcasting develops and maintains qualifications standards for various types of positions.

304 BOARD OF EXAMINERS FOR THE FOREIGN SERVICE (BEX)

304.1 Functions - The Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service develops and supervises the administration of examinations given to applicants for appointment as Foreign Service career candidates in accordance with Section 211 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980.

305 NON-COMPETITIVE INTERCHANGE BETWEEN FOREIGN SERVICE AND CIVIL SERVICE

305.1 Authority - Under the provisions of Executive Order 11219, as amended, present or former career members of the Foreign Service may be appointed on a non-competitive basis to the Civil Service. The President has authorized the Office of Personnel management by this order to waive the requirement for competitive examination and appointment for such career Foreign Service personnel. (For details on noncompetitive appointment see MOA V-A 315 which contain specific information on eligibility requirements, qualifying service, time limits and status, and creditable service.)

306 EMPLOYMENT OF FOREIGN SERVICE ANNUITANTS

306.1 Recall to the Service - When the Director determines that the needs of the Service so require, the Director may recall any retiree career member of the Foreign Service to duty in the same personnel category that the member was serving at the time of retirement. A retired member may be recalled in any salary class or rate that is appropriate in light of the individual's qualifications and experience. However, a retired career member of the Senior Foreign Service may not be recalled to a salary class higher than the one in which the member was serving at the time of retirement unless re-appointed at a higher class by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Any annuitant recalled to the Service is entitled to the full salary of the class in which serving in lieu of his/her annuity. During such service, the recalled annuitant will contribute to the Foreign Service Retirement and Disability Fund in accordance with 3 FAM 671.4-1. (See 3 FAM 673.4-7 for annuity payable upon subsequent separation.)

306.2 Recovered Disability Annuitants

a. Time Limit on Applications - Disability annuitants may apply for reinstatement or re-appointment in the Service within one year from the date of determination of recovery, pursuant to 3 FAM 672.3-7. Such application is by letter to the Director, Office of Personnel. The application is accompanied by a resume of pertinent experience acquired since separation.

b. Reinstatement or Re-appointment - Upon application, a recovered disability annuitant shall be reinstated in the class in which he or she was serving at the time of retirement. However, taking into consideration the annuitant's qualifications and experience and the present class of his or her contemporaries in the Service, the Director may recommend to the President that the annuitant, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, re-appoint a recovered annuitant to a higher class than the one in which he or she was serving at the time of retirement.

306.3 Employment in a U.S. Government Agency - Any employee retired from the Service and receiving an annuity under the provisions of the Foreign Service Retirement and Disability System who is re-employed in the Federal Government, in any appointive position either on a part-time or full-time basis, is entitled to receive the salary of the position in which he or she is serving plus as much of his or her annuity which when combined with such salary does not exceed (during any calendar year) the basic salary he or she was receiving on the date of retirement. If salary during any calendar year exceeds salary at the time of retirement the person shall be entitled to receive the salary of the position, but no annuity shall be payable. Broadcasting will send a notice to the Department of State of any such re-employment information and will pay the employee the salary of the position in which he or she is serving. Any overpayment shall be recovered by withholding the amount involved from the salary payable to such re-employed employee or from any other monies including his or her annuity.

Section 310

TYPES OF FOREIGN SERVICE APPOINTMENTS

311 AUTHORITY

311.1 Career Appointments - Section 303 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 authorizes the Director to appoint career members of the Service (other than Presidential appointments). Employees covered by this regulation are called Foreign Service Overseas Specialists to distinguish them, among other reasons, from the Presidential appointees employed by the U. S. Department of State.

311.2 Limited Appointments - Section 303 of the Act authorizes the Director to appoint members of the Service on limited appointments as (1) career candidates for a trial period of service prescribed by the Director, or (2) as non-career employees. In accordance with Section 309 of the Act, a limited appointment may not exceed five years in duration, and may not be renewed. A limited appointment for a period of one year or less is a temporary appointment.

312 Overseas Specialists are employees who are worldwide available and serve both abroad and in the United States in specialist positions such as Executive Officer, engineering and technical positions at VOA Transmitting stations, VOA correspondents, which are part of an overseas United States rotational assignment system. For further information on personnel and position designations, see MOA V-B 130.

313 CAREER APPOINTMENTS

313.1 Senior Foreign Service (SFS) - Career appointments to the Senior Foreign Service are through promotion of FS Class 1 Overseas specialists based on the recommendations of Selection Boards or following a trial period of service as SFS Candidates based on the recommendations of the selection boards and nominations to the President by the Director. Appointment is made to one of the three SFS classes: Career Minister, Minister-Counselor or Counselor. In accordance with Section 305(b) of the F.S. Act of 1980, no less than 95% of the members of the Senior Foreign Service will be career members. (See MOA V-B Chapter 1100).

314 OVERSEAS SPECIALIST LIMITED (CAREER CANDIDATE) APPOINTMENTS - Overseas Specialist career candidates are appointed by the Director for a period not to exceed five years. An applicant will not be appointed unless an overseas position has been identified for which no current Overseas Specialist is available for assignment and a need for the individual in the Foreign Service has been certified by the Director, Office of Personnel. Before the end of the fifth year, Specialist Candidates must qualify and be recommended by the appropriate selection board for career appointment as Overseas Specialists or their appointment shall be terminated. Overseas Specialist career candidates are distinguished for administrative purposes as follows:

314.1 SFS Candidates are appointed for a period of five years upon the nomination of the Director, Office of Personnel (based on criteria negotiated with the exclusive representative) and certification of need, and the recommendation of the Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service. Following appointment to an SFS position, a trial period of four years (not less than half of which must be served abroad) will be required prior to a recommendation by the Selection Board to the Director, Office of Personnel. The limited appointments of SFS candidates not recommended for career status will be terminated no later than the last month of the limited appointment. It is anticipated that career candidate appointments to the SFS as an Overseas Specialist will be offered on a very limited basis to allow staffing of the small number of SFS specialist positions through promotion of F.S. Class 1 career Overseas Specialists. (See MOA V-B 460 and 1100.)

314.2 Specialist Candidates are appointed for a period of four years (extendible to five) or need for services, whichever is less, at the F.S. Class determined in the examination process based upon the individual's qualifications and previous experience. The purpose of this trial period is to allow Broadcasting to evaluate and assess the Candidate's abilities and future potential prior to offering tenure as an Overseas Specialist. The appointment may be extended up to an additional two years, but it must be terminated at the end of the fifth year. After three years, but before five, the Specialist Candidate must receive career appointment based on a positive tenuring determination by a Selection Board, or the limited appointment will be terminated (see also MOA V-B 360).

315 LIMITED (NON-CAREER) APPOINTMENTS - Limited non-career appointments to specialist positions are made by the Director of Personnel. These employees do not compete for promotion. Non-career employees appointed for a period of one year or less are given temporary appointments.

316 TEMPORARY APPOINTMENTS - A limited appointment for a period of one year or less is called a temporary appointment. Examples of employees serving under this type of appointment are re-employed annuitants hired for special projects lasting one year or less; part-time, intermittent, temporary (PIT) appointees and American Family members appointed to FSN positions (see MOA V-B 390)*.

317 FOREIGN SERVICE NATIONAL EMPLOYEES (FSN) - See Uniform Regulations in 3 FAM 900.

324 Travel for Recruitment Purposes

324.1 Travel of Applicants to Broadcasting

Section 320

RECRUITMENT

321 GENERAL - Recruitment is the process of developing sources of applicants, screening applications from candidates who meet Broadcasting's qualifications standards, and the selection and processing of qualified personnel for appointment to the Foreign Service. All personnel responsible for developing, screening, and selecting applicants will ensure that applicable laws, regulations, and policies and procedures governing recruitment of Foreign Service personnel are properly followed.

322 RESPONSIBILITIES

322.1 Office of Personnel is responsible for:

- a. Planning and administering a recruitment and source development program.
- b. Determining that applicants meet the minimum requirements and qualifications for Foreign Service appointment and arranging BEX examinations for Overseas Specialists, and processing the necessary paperwork for employment.
- c. Maintaining a list of applicants who have successfully completed the examination process and have been approved by BEX for appointment as Specialist Career Candidates and sending letters of offer to applicants when there is certified need for the candidate and an overseas position has been identified.
- d. Determining when applicants will be hired and to which positions they will be assigned upon appointment;
- e. Sending letters of offer to employees;
- f. Processing the necessary paper-work for their appointments;
- g. Certifying the eligibility of all Specialist Candidates for the final tenuring determination by the appropriate Board.

322.3 Employees should refer applicants and/or their applications to the Office of Personnel for appropriate action. Operating officials and employees should refrain from unduly encouraging applicants, and will in no case make actual appointment commitments. (See V-B 850)

322.4 The Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service (BEX) is responsible for:

- a. Conducting the examination process for applicants for Foreign Service appointments;
- b. Recommending the class to which applicants may be appointed;
- c. Determining that applicants meet all qualifications and requirements for overseas service;

323 RESTRICTIONS ON RECRUITMENT ACTIVITIES

323.1 Use of Commercial Employment Agencies Prohibited - Broadcasting is prohibited from using commercial employment offices as a recruitment source if the offices charge a fee for placement in Federal employment.

323.2 Discrimination Prohibited - Recruitment activities of Broadcasting must be conducted without discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, handicapping condition, marital status, or political affiliation.

324 TRAVEL FOR RECRUITMENT PURPOSES

324.1 Travel of Applicants - The Director of Engineering and the Chief, VOA News Division may approve issuance of round-trip invitational travel orders to bring applicants to Washington, D.C., at Government expense when it is determined that this is in the interest of the Foreign Service.

REQUIREMENTS FOR FOREIGN SERVICE APPOINTMENT

332 Assignment Availability

333 Physical Requirements

334 Security Investigation and Suitability Considerations

334.1 Security Investigation

334.2 Suitability Considerations

Section 330

REQUIREMENTS FOR FOREIGN SERVICE APPOINTMENT

331 BASIC REQUIREMENTS FOR EMPLOYMENT

a. All applicants for F.S. employment must be citizens of the United States and at least 21 years of age. On the date of appointment, new F.S. appointees must be no more than 60 years of age (i.e., applicants may be appointed in the last month of their 60th year). Individuals seeking F.S. employment with Broadcasting are advised that the time period from initial application to actual appointment is lengthy, often lasting several months to a year before the examination processes are completed and all requirements for F.S. appointment are met.

b. In the course of the examining process, a decision must be reached that the applicant is qualified for the work of the Foreign Service. This decision will be based on an evaluation of such factors as employment history, pertinence and quality of experience, education and training, language ability and aptitude, and other requirements established by Broadcasting for the specific kind of work for which the applicant is being considered.

332 ASSIGNMENT AVAILABILITY

Applicants must be willing to accept assignments to any foreign post. Persons who limit their availability to specific locations will not be considered for employment. This requirement does not apply to persons employed for specialized positions whose appointments and assignments are limited with respect to time or to specific posts or countries.

333 PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS

Applicants and dependents who will reside with them on overseas assignment must successfully pass the required medical examination and be physically fit to perform in the Foreign Service on a worldwide basis. Pre-employment medical examinations of the employee and his or her dependents are mandatory (see 3 FAM 684). The medical examination is designed to determine the presence of any physical, neurological, or mental condition of such a nature as to make it unlikely that the applicant or his/her dependent would be able to function on a worldwide basis. The medical examination will be conducted either by medical officers of the Armed Forces, the Public Health Service, the Department of State, or, by private physicians. The Department of State Medical Director will determine, on the basis of the report of the physician(s) who conducted the examination, whether the applicant and the applicant's dependents have met the required medical standards for Foreign Service appointment. If requested by the applicant, Broadcasting's Medical Review Committee will review the case of any applicant or dependent who has been denied medical clearance for appointment and will determine by majority vote whether the applicant should be recommended for appointment despite the medical disqualification. A medical clearance waiver may be granted by the Director, Office of Personnel depending on the nature of the medical recommendation (see MOA V-B 523).

334 SECURITY INVESTIGATION AND SUITABILITY CONSIDERATIONS

334.1 Security Investigation - Applicants are subject to a full field investigation as required by Executive Order 10450 prior to employment.

334.2 Suitability Considerations - In the course of the examining process, a decision will be reached as to the applicant's suitability for service in the Foreign Service. (See 3 FAM 622, Suitability Guidelines for Appointment and Continued Employment.)

Section 340

APPOINTMENT PROCEDURES

341 OFFERS OF APPOINTMENT

341.1 Responsibility - The Director, Office of Personnel is the only official delegated authority to make offers of employment to applicants approved for appointment. An offer of employment is made by letter over the signature of the Director, Office of Personnel. A letter offering employment will be prepared and will include the following:

- a. Type of appointment, class, step, salary, pay basis, nature of appointment, competitive category (if applicable), retirement system, life insurance, and whether appointee will compete for promotion.
- b. Date to report for work, where and whom to report for duty.
- c. A statement of any limitations on appointment or special circumstances surrounding the appointment.
- d. Information on travel, transportation of effects, and per diem, where applicable.

341.2 Travel Authorizations for New Appointees

- a. Authorization for Official Travel, for travel of persons to Washington, D.C., for initial assignment or training.

342 FORMS TO BE COMPLETED

342.1 Prior to Appointment - The following forms are enclosed with the offer of employment to applicant and must be completed and returned to the Office of Personnel before he or she reports for duty:

- a. Residence and Dependency Report (OF-126) is used as a basis for determining point of origin and designation in the United States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or the possessions of the United States in connection with travel at Government expense (see 6 FAM 125), and to determine the eligibility of dependents for Foreign Service medical benefits (see 3 FAM 680). It must be executed by all Foreign Service employees at time of appointment, upon any change in residence, upon change in number of dependents, and before separation. Inasmuch as residence at time of appointment, legal residence, home leave address, and residence upon separation may differ, space is provided on OF-126, Residence and Dependency Report, for each.

(1) Residence Report

(a) Legal Residence - List residence (city and state) which is claimed as a legal residence. Normally, such residence will remain the same as the one listed at the time of appointment unless definite steps have been taken to meet the requirements of an alternate State. The legal residence as shown on OF-126 is used when nominations are submitted to the President for promotion of a Foreign Service career member, when a title or a commission is granted, and in certain circumstances, when nominations are submitted for appointment.

(b) Home Leave Residence - The street address, city, and state where the employee anticipates spending home leave must be shown. When a new location is requested, there should be a showing of definite family ties or other substantial interests rather than merely a desire to visit a particular location and/or individual or for travel and personal convenience.

(c) Residence for Service Separation - On OF-126, Residence and Dependency Report, list residence in block 8 (street address, if known; city and State) to which travel and shipment of effects are to be authorized upon separation from the Service. The designation should be a U.S. location at which the employee expects to reside or be employed after separation. If death occurs during employment, the separation residence is designated by the next-of-kin in accordance with 6 FAM 125.6-1. (NOTE: OF-126, last revised January 1975, reverse of form incorrectly printed previous law. 6 FAM 126.5-1, revised November 14, 1973 prevails.)

(2) Dependency Information - Only those dependents, other than spouse, who will travel at Government expense and reside with the employee are listed on OF-126. Dependents, other than spouse and unmarried children under 21 years of age, must be members of the employee's family as defined in 6 FAM 117. Justification for claiming the dependency of each must be given on the reverse of OF-126. It is important that the dependency information be current at all times to ensure proper coverage under the medical program and the accuracy of travel orders. Any gain or loss in dependency status must be promptly reported.

b. Acceptance of Appointment and Declaration of Appointee (SF-61B).

c. Statement of Prior Federal Civilian and Military Service (SF-144) and certificate of military reserve status, if applicable.

d. Federal Employees Health Benefits Program booklet (SF-2809-A), brochures, and registration form (SF-2809).

e. Federal Employees Group Life Insurance Program booklet (SF-2817-A), Election, Declination and Waiver form (SF-2817), and Designation of Beneficiary (SF-2823).

f. Self-Identification of Medical Disability (SF-256), Personal Health Certificate (DS-1635) and Race and National Origin Identification (SF-181).

g. Request for Travel Authorization and Bid Forms for storage of effects, if applicable.

h. Designation of Beneficiary form for retirement system; OF-137 for Foreign Service employees, and SF-2808 for Civil Service employees.

i. Designation of Beneficiary, Unpaid Compensation of Deceased Civilian Employee (SF-1152).

j. Certificate of Non-Residence in the District of Columbia (D-4A) and Certificate of Temporary Duty or Travel Status in Washington, D.C. Applicable federal and state withholding tax forms. A copy of the uniform regulations on employee responsibilities and conduct is also sent to applicant.

342.2 Upon Entrance on Duty - All new appointees to the Foreign Service report for work to the Office of Personnel, and complete the following forms:

a. Appointment Affidavit (SF-61) comprises the oath of office required by 5 U.S.C. 3331, affidavit as to striking against the Federal Government required by 5 U.S.C. 3333, and affidavit as to the purchase and sale of office required by 5 U.S.C. 3332. The execution of the SF-61 is required before salary may be paid to any employee.

(1) Execution - SF-61, Appointment Affidavit must be executed upon appointment to the Foreign Service, upon being commissioned by the President as a Foreign Service career member, as a Consular Officer, or as a Secretary in the Diplomatic Service of the United States of America.

a. Foreign Service Personnel Locator Card showing persons to be notified in case of emergency.

b. Employees wanting to pay a deposit or redeposit for prior Federal service (civilian or military) not covered by retirement contributions should contact their retirement office. Employee will be furnished OF-141, Application for Service Credit, if covered by Foreign Service Retirement and Disability System, or SF-2803, Application to Make Deposit or Redeposit, if covered by the Civil Service Retirement System.

c. Request for identification and security orientation materials.

342.3 Documents Given to New Employee

a. A copy of the SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action. The effective date of appointment will be noted on the SF-50 and determined in accordance with Section 343. Any applicable remarks (such as limitations on the appointment, statements regarding probationary period, etc.) will be shown on the SF-50.

b. Copies of the Broadcasting/Union agreement concerning the precepts for the annual Selection Boards, instructions on the preparation of Officer Evaluation Reports (OERs), open assignment and tour of duty guidelines, and the grievance procedures. In addition, the employee will be given a copy of the comprehensive Broadcasting/AFSA Foreign Service agreement.

343 DETERMINATION OF EFFECTIVE DATE OF APPOINTMENT

343.1 Appointment by the President - Appointment as a Foreign Service Officer, Counselor, is effective the beginning of the first pay period following attestation by the President.

343.2 Appointment from Outside the Service - The Foreign Service appointment of a person from outside the Foreign Service is effective on the earliest of the following dates:

a. The day before the appointee reports for duty if the appointee enters on official travel status for the purpose of proceeding to his or her post of duty or place of temporary detail (see 6 FAM 131.1-2 for mode of travel authorized upon appointment);

b. The date of appointee enters on duty in connection with appointment;
or

c. The date immediately following the day on which the appointee's prior U.S. Government appointment was terminated.

343.3 Appointment from Within the Service - The appointment is effective on the date the employee enters on the duties of the new position in accordance with instructions given in the appointment letter and the SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, without a break in service.

Section 360

EXAMINATION, SELECTION, AND APPOINTMENT FOR OVERSEAS SPECIALIST POSITIONS

361 GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS - Members of Broadcasting's Foreign Service appointed as Overseas Specialists serve on rotational U.S. overseas

assignments as Administrative Officers; VOA Correspondents, Radio Engineers and Facility Maintenance Specialists. Appointees serve a trial period of service as Specialist Candidates under Foreign Service limited appointments for a period not to exceed five years. Appointments are made to F.S. classes 8 through 1. Specialist Candidates are given career appointments as Overseas Specialists based on the recommendations of Specialist Selection Boards.

362 ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS - All applicants must be citizens of the United States, and must be at least 21 years of age and no more than 60 years of age at the time of appointment. The 21-year age requirement may be waived Director, Office of Personnel when he or she determines that the applicant's services are urgently needed. All applicants must be available for worldwide assignments to positions in their occupational category.

363 SOURCES OF APPLICANTS - Qualified civil service employees in Broadcasting are a significant source for Overseas Specialist Candidates. When qualifications are otherwise equal, such employees will be given priority consideration over outside applicants when applying for the Overseas Specialist Candidate program.

364 EXAMINATION PROCESS

364.1 Applicant Review - Applications from both Broadcasting employees and outside applicants are sent to the Office of Personnel. Applications should include a current SF-171 or resume; Personal Qualifications Statement; Employment; a 1,000 word autobiographical statement which should include mention of the qualifications the applicant would bring to the job and reasons for desiring to work for Broadcasting and a statement affirming willingness and capacity to serve at any post worldwide. Applications will receive preliminary screening to ensure that they are no more than 60 years of age and are citizens of the U.S. Civil Service applicants must also have had at least three years of Federal government experience with career status and occupy a position at the GS-11 level (or equivalent) or above (GS-10 for Electronic Technicians). Upon receipt of the application, a Qualifications Evaluation Panel will evaluate the applicant's qualifications including his/her performance and administrative files (or equivalents), and other background or factors which may be related to the work performed by an Overseas Specialist Officer in the relevant specialty.

364.2 BEX Examination

a. Applicants who are passed on by the QEP to the Board of Examiners (BEX) will be examined orally by the Board. The Board panel conducting the examination will be comprised of two Broadcasting Overseas Specialists and a BEX Deputy Examiner. The Office of Personnel may elect to serve as a member of the panel in place of one of the two Broadcasting overseas specialists.

b. The panel will examine each applicant through questioning and discussion. Hypothetical problem-solving exercises, a writing exercise and an in-basket test may also be required. It will also recommend an entry level for appointment. If an applicant is unsuccessful in the examination, his or her application will be processed no further. An unsuccessful applicant may apply again in 12 months. If an applicant is successful, his or her name will be added to the appropriate Overseas Specialist Register once medical and security clearances have been completed for a period of 18 months, or completion of current tour of duty overseas, whichever is longer. Inclusion on the register does not guarantee eventual assignment and appointment as an Overseas Specialist Candidate.

365 APPOINTMENT AS AN OVERSEAS SPECIALIST CANDIDATE - SELECTION PROCESS

When the Office of Personnel identifies an overseas vacancy which cannot be filled from the existing ranks of Overseas Specialists, applicants on the Overseas Specialist register will be considered for the assignment. Any applicant selected from the register who refuses an assignment offer will be dropped from the register and precluded from reapplying for lateral entry for a period of seven years.

a. All applicants selected as Overseas Specialist Candidates will be given limited appointments of four years at the Foreign Service class determined in the examination process and based on previous experience. (Extension of the appointment for a fifth year is possible upon the recommendation of a Selection Board or under other unusual circumstances.)

(1) Civil service employees selected as Overseas Specialist Candidates will be appointed only if the element to which they are currently assigned is willing to affirm in writing that a position at the appropriate level will be made available for the employee should the candidacy end unsuccessfully. Civil service applicants will be appointed as Overseas Specialist Candidates on or about the date of their departure for post of assignment or upon assumption of an assignment.

(2) Outside applicants selected as Overseas Specialist Candidates will be appointed and assigned at the time of entry on duty.

b. Candidates will receive the appropriate orientation and training necessary to begin overseas service. Under some circumstances a Candidate may be assigned to a complement position in Washington for orientation purposes for up to 12 months. Before such an assignment can be made, however, an initial overseas assignment must also be identified. Broadcasting may also assign a Candidate to a U.S. based position for an initial assignment of up to 24 months when the Candidate will spend the majority of his or her time traveling overseas and will, except for the U.S. basing, be fully functioning as an Overseas Specialist.

c. Specialist Candidates will be evaluated on Form BB-1125 in accordance with procedures outlined in MOA V-B 450 and will compete for promotion annually with other officers in the same specialty and class level. Specialist Candidates at the Class 1 level are ineligible for promotion into the Senior Foreign Service.

d. An Overseas Specialist candidacy may be terminated at any time for unsatisfactory performance (see MOA V-B 746) or for such cause as will promote the efficiency of the Foreign Service (see 3 FAM 760).

366 CAREER APPOINTMENT AS AN OVERSEAS SPECIALIST

366.1 Policy - In accordance with Section 306(b) of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, the decision to offer an Overseas Specialist Candidate a career appointment will be based on the recommendation of an annual Selection Board which reviews all employees, tenured and untenured, in the Candidate's occupational category and class level.

366.2 Eligibility - Overseas Specialist Candidates who have performed at least two years of overseas service will be eligible for review for tenuring by the third annual Selection Board to convene during the period of the Candidate's appointment. Candidates serving an initial tour in the U.S. but spending the majority of their service functioning as an Overseas Specialist Candidate shall also be eligible for consideration by the third annual Selection Board. Candidates serving an initial tour in the U.S. but spending the majority of the time working overseas will be credited with up to one year's overseas service, but no more than half of the time based in the U.S.

366.3 Procedures for Selection Board Review

a. The Annual Overseas Specialist Selection Board will be provided with a list, verified by the Office of Personnel, of Overseas Specialist Candidates who have met the eligibility requirements for career tenuring consideration mentioned in Section 366.2. The Selection Boards will also be provided with tenuring precepts agreed to with the exclusive representative.

b. The third annual Selection Board to convene during the period of the Candidate's appointment will review the official performance file of an eligible Specialist Candidate and following established precepts, will determine whether he or she should be recommended for career appointment as an Overseas Specialist. Recommendations by the Boards will be based on the Candidate's demonstrated aptitude and fitness for a career in the Foreign Service in their occupational specialties. No quota or numerical limit is placed on the number of positive career status decisions that can be made by Selection Boards.

c. Specialist Candidates recommended for career status by the Selection Boards will be given Foreign Service career appointments as Overseas Specialists, to take effect within one month of the Board's recommendation.

d. Specialist Candidates not recommended for career status in the first review may be reviewed by the next Board to convene if the initial Board so recommends. Specialist Candidates not recommended for career status after a second Board review will be separated from the Service at the expiration of their limited appointment. Such Candidates may be separated at an earlier date if so recommended by the Board and approved by the Director, Office of Personnel. Candidates with reinstatement rights to Civil Service status may exercise those rights in lieu of separation.

367 RE-APPOINTMENT OF CAREER OVERSEAS SPECIALISTS

Pursuant to Section 308(b) of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, the Director may re-appoint to the Service a former career Overseas Specialist. (For re-employment of retired career Overseas Specialists, see MOA V-B 308.)

367.1 Requirements for Re-appointment

a. On the date of application, each applicant must be a citizen of the United States.

b. No applicant will be considered who has previously been separated from the Foreign Service pursuant to Sections 608 or 610 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 (or the predecessor Sections 637 or 638 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended), or who resigned or retired in lieu of selection out or separation for cause.

NOTE: This requirement will not apply where it has been determined by the Foreign Service Grievance Board under 3 FAM 660 or by the Director, Office of Personnel, that the separation or the resignation or retirement in lieu of selection out or separation for cause was wrongful; where re-appointment is determined by the Director, Office of Personnel, as an appropriate means to settle a grievance or complaint of a former career Overseas Specialist on a mutually satisfactory basis; or where re-appointment is the indicated redress in a proceeding under 3 FAM 130, "Equal Employment Opportunity."

367.2 Application - Applications are submitted by letter addressed to the Director, Office of Personnel and must include SF-171, or resume and a brief description of work and other experience since resignation from the Foreign Service.

367.3 Medical Examination and Security Investigation - Qualified re-appointment applicants and their dependents who will accompany them overseas will be given a physical examination. A security investigation will also be conducted. The re-appointment action is subject to completion of a satisfactory security investigation and satisfactory medical examination of the applicant and dependents.

367.4 Re-appointment Action - No applicant will be appointed until an overseas assignment has been identified. Once an overseas assignment has been certified for appointment by the Director of Personnel on the basis of Service need, a letter of offer will be sent to the applicant indicating the terms of his/her re-appointment as a career Overseas Specialist.

Section 380

PART-TIME, INTERMITTENT, TEMPORARY (PIT) PROGRAM

381 PURPOSE - The purpose of the Part-time, Intermittent, Temporary Program (PIT) is to give overseas installations additional flexibility in utilizing human resources during the absence of a regular American career or career candidate employee who is on home leave, R&R, or during a gap between the assignment of career employees; to perform special short-term duties to fill in during critical or heavy workload periods such as during a presidential visit or a major conference; or to perform other duties on a temporary basis under a part-time, full-time or intermittent appointment. Both U.S. citizen dependents of USG employees and non-dependent U.S. citizens residing overseas are eligible to participate. However, preferential consideration shall be given to U.S. citizen dependents of USG employees in order to provide maximum employment opportunities for them. Appointments under this program normally shall be for one year or less, except that under justifiable circumstances they may be extended. PIT positions are chargeable either to Broadcasting's Washington held American Salary Account or to the overseas installation's GOE and require a special position slot authorized by the Office of Personnel in consultation with the Office of Budget upon request from the element head.

381.1 Authority - Sections 309, 311, 403, and 407 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, grant the authority to the Director, or his/her designee, to make temporary resident appointments to positions overseas.

381.2 Definitions

a. As used in these regulations, all PIT appointments are Foreign Service, non-career, limited to a period of one year or less, renewable only with prior approval from Washington. They may fall under any of the following categories of employment:

(1) Full-time -- the 40-hour period within an administrative workweek in which an employee is required to be on duty regularly.

(2) Part-time -- employment in which a regular tour of duty of less than 40 hours in each administrative workweek has been established in advance.

(3) Intermittent -- employment which involves occasional or irregular services (as distinguished from continuous employment) of less than full-time where a regular tour of duty has not been established in advance.

b. U.S. citizen -- a native-born or naturalized U.S. citizen over 18 years of age who is either a dependent of a USG employee assigned at an overseas installation or who is a non-dependent residing in the country where the Broadcasting office is located. In making a selection, American dependents of USG employees will be given preference over non-dependents. Dependents of Broadcasting employees may be employed in the overseas element where their sponsor is employed only in rare and unusual circumstances and only with the approval of the Director of Personnel and the Washington element head.

c. Salary -- Employees hired under this program may be paid under the eight salary classes described in section 403 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended.

382 PROGRAM ADMINISTRATION

a. Establish and Cancel Positions - PIT positions shall not be established to avoid the need for full-time career positions. They are temporary positions for one year or less which may be renewed with prior approval from the Office of Personnel, with the concurrence of the element head.

(1) Posts shall submit written justification for the request to their respective Office Director and the Office of Personnel. The request shall also indicate the exact duration of the position and a complete description of duties.

(3) Positions are terminated on expiration of the time period initially authorized by Washington. The Director of Personnel must approve any position extension following submission of justification. Under no condition will a PIT appointment or position be funded longer than one year without prior approval from the Director of Personnel.

(4) Appointments may be terminated sooner if the services of the appointee are no longer required, if the appointee fails to perform the duties satisfactorily, or if there is misconduct on his or her part. Posts will issue an SF-50 (Notification of Personnel Action) on the expiration date of the appointment or at the actual termination of the appointment, whichever is earlier.

b. Position Classification - The Office of Personnel will set the grade of the position and inform the appropriate office of the decision. Once selection has been made, the post is required to submit a copy of selectee's SF-171 or resume and any previous SF-50's, or cable pertinent data, to enable the Office of Personnel to assign proper step and salary based on previous U.S. Government service. (See paragraph 382(d) on compensation for further details.)

d. Compensation

(1) The grade and salary of each position will be based on the Foreign Service Schedule. Salary rates for the grade structure of PIT appointees are adjusted at the same time adjustments are made under the Pay Comparability System (5 U.S.C. 5301) for the Foreign Service. PIT appointees are paid in U.S. dollars.

(2) Salary received is subject to Federal withholding tax, social security tax, Medicare, and any other taxes required by U.S. Federal and state laws or regulations.

(3) The salary of a PIT appointee will normally be set at step 1 of the grade. However, Personnel may take into consideration the appointee's highest previous rate when determining the rate at which the individual is to be appointed. Their consideration will be based upon a properly documented U.S. Government personnel action (posts must submit proper documentation to Personnel prior to the effective date of appointment) indicating that the appointee served at least 90 consecutive days in the same or closely related occupational series. Appointees who do not have a properly documented USG personnel action will be set at step one of the grade of the position.

(4) In some circumstances, a within-grade increase must be granted upon appointment or during the duration of the appointment. If there is not a break in service of more than 52 weeks, prior civilian Federal service including service abroad as an FSN/AFM employee, as a PIT employee, or under a Foreign Service limited appointment of more than one year shall count toward the waiting period for advancement to the next higher step. The previous regular hours worked abroad under one of these programs, for which there is a record of satisfactory or better performance, shall count as creditable service for step purposes on the basis of 2087 hours equating to one year's work. Hours worked under an intermittent appointment are not creditable for computation of within grade increase eligibility. However, service under an intermittent appointment is creditable for non-competitive appointment to competitive positions upon return to the U.S., in compliance with Executive Order 12362. The maximum period that may be counted is one year unless, after taking into consideration the highest previous rate, the appointment would be to steps 10 through 13 of the Foreign Service Schedule. In that case, the maximum period that may be counted is two years. (For further information on waiting period, see MOA V-B 235.)

(5) Form SF-50 is issued by the post to authorize within-grade increases.

(6) Premium compensation as outlined in 3 FAM 230, including over-time pay and regular compensatory time off, is authorized.

383 RECRUITMENT AND EMPLOYMENT REQUIREMENTS

383.1 Recruitment Requirements

a. PIT positions must be advertised throughout the overseas mission for at least two weeks so that U.S. citizens at post have the opportunity to apply for the position. Announcements should include the basic requirements for the position as described in the position description; grade and salary; whether full-time, part-time, or intermittent; duration of appointment; and any other conditions which might limit eligibility for applicants.

b. Employment committees must be established to review applications systematically: to screen out unqualified applicants; to identify the best qualified candidates; and to make recommendations for final hiring to the head of the Broadcasting office. The employment committee may include representatives from participating agencies, the administrative or personnel officer, and the office in which the selectee would work. Applicants must submit Forms SF-171 (Application for Federal Employment) or resumes and any other documentation the Employment Committee may require to identify the best qualified applicant.

383.2 Employment Requirements

a. Applicants must be U.S. citizens residing at post. Non-U.S. citizens who are dependents of USG employees at post are not eligible for this program but may apply for Foreign Service National positions according to 3 FAM 920.

b. Status as a veteran or disabled veteran shall be considered an affirmative factor required by Section 301(c) of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended.

c. The same medical examination is required as established under post policy for FSN employees if the applicant is not covered as a dependent under the Department of State's medical program.

d. Applicants are subject to security investigation and clearance.

e. Applicants are subject to queries by posts to enable posts to determine qualifications or skills proficiency needed to meet the position's requirements.

383.3 Nepotism - The following steps shall be taken to prevent nepotism (5 U.S.C. 3110) and the appearance of or actual conflict of interest in the employment process:

a. Selection of applicants must be based solely on their qualifications to meet the requirements of the position;

b. Selection or recommendation for selection must be made by an official who does not have family members among the applicants;

c. All employees must refrain from any action which can be construed as recommending particular candidates;

d. Written records must be kept on each step of the employment process including recruitment announcement, list of applicants and qualifications, and the basis for selection. These records may be destroyed after 3 years; and

e. One member of a family may not exercise immediate supervision over another member of the family, nor serve as a rating or reviewing officer for the performance evaluation of a relative, nor have a working relationship which gives the appearance of direction and control over the work or career of a relative. (MOA V-B 854)

384 APPOINTMENT PROCEDURES

a. Posts may take action to appoint a PIT applicant only after:

(1) receiving approval to establish a PIT position from the Office of Personnel (see Section 382.1);

(2) receiving notification from Personnel of the appropriate grade and salary level for the position;

(3) advertising the position for at least two weeks;

(4) appropriate review by the post's employment committee;

(5) satisfactory completion of preemployment medical examination, if required; and

(6) the requisite approval of the Office of Security.

b. Documentation

(1) The following forms need to be completed: (a) SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action; (b) SF-61, Appointment Affidavit; (c) SF-61B, Declaration of Appointee; and (d) SF-144, Statement of Prior Federal and Military Service.

(2) A copy of the document approving the appointment and giving grade, step and salary to be paid appointee should be attached to the SF-50 and sent to the payroll office to support the action.

c. Official Personnel Folders - Upon appointment, the post Personnel Office establishes an OPF or, in the case of an employee who has had prior USG service, shall request the OPF from the Office of Personnel. The OPF is maintained at post until the employee's separation. At that time, the post sends the OPF to the Office of Personnel, where it will be held for one year. If the employee receives another appointment within one year's time, the OPF is transferred to the post of the new appointment. Otherwise, the OPF is transferred to the National Personnel Records Center in St. Louis after one year. All requests for previously established OPF's should be made directly to the Office of Personnel. (In all cases, the current or most recent employing agency is responsible for maintaining and retiring the Official Personnel Folder (OPF) of a PIT employee by that Agency's established procedures.)

d. Applicable Regulations - The provisions of 3 FAM Sections 621, 622, 628, 630, 640, 660 and MOA V-B 513 are also applicable to PIT appointments and/or appointees.

385 PERFORMANCE EVALUATION

Performance of U.S. citizens employed abroad on a PIT appointment will be evaluated on form JF-57, Performance Appraisal Report, consistent with the instructions on the form. The report should be prepared in an original with one copy. The original should be placed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder and the employee receives the copy. In accordance with Executive Order 12362, to qualify for non-competitive appointment to competitive positions upon return to the U.S., PIT appointees must have been rated at the fully successful or better or equivalent level after January 1, 1984. (A "satisfactory" or better rating suffices for the period January 1, 1980 through December 31, 1983).

386 BENEFITS

a. PIT appointments do not qualify the appointee for coverage under the Foreign or Civil Service retirement systems, Federal Group Life Insurance (FGLI), Federal Employee Health Benefits Program (FEHBP), participation in the State Department's Medical Program (except as stated in paragraph d below), or any benefits contained in the local compensation plan at post. If the PIT appointee has previously served in Federal civilian appointments with retirement or insurance coverage and has not had a break in service of 3 days or more from such an appointment, coverage under the previous retirement and/or insurance may be continued during the PIT appointment.

b. PIT appointments do not affect any benefits the appointee is currently authorized or entitled to as a dependent of a U.S. government employee.

c. Leave benefits of 3 FAM Sections 420, 430, 440, 460, 465, and 470 are authorized for full-time or part-time appointees.

d. Immunizations and use of the post health unit facilities are authorized.

e. Compensation for disability or death resulting from work injuries or compensation for medical services and other benefits for work injuries may be applicable under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (5 U.S.C. 8101 et seq.).

387 SECURITY CLEARANCES - The scope of investigative processing for PIT appointees is determined by the Office of Security. When an applicant is selected, but prior to appointment, the following information must be submitted to the Office of Personnel.

a. For a dependent whose sponsor (USG employee) holds current security clearance, cable:

(1) full name (including maiden name and any other names used, if applicable),

(2) position title and grade,

(3) date and place of birth,

(4) Social Security Number,

(5) last U.S. address,

(6) date and place of naturalization, and petition and naturalization certificate numbers if applicant is not a native born U.S. citizen,

(7) same information about the sponsor (the USG employee),

(8) sponsor's employing agency,

(9) identity and location of the office or agency holding the sponsor's security clearance. Security's minimum investigation is National Agency Check (NAC) and confirmation of sponsor's security clearance.

b. If sponsor has never been investigated or if applicant is not a dependent of a USG employee, the following documents must be sent to the Office of Personnel for transmittal to Security. No security clearance can be granted until investigation is completed.

(1) One copy of SF-171, or resume, Personal Qualifications Statement.

(2) 3 copies of SF-86, Security Investigation Data for Sensitive Positions (original and three legible copies, typed, original and at least two copies dated and signed by applicant, with all items completed in compliance with instructions on form).

(3) 2 copies of Form FD-258 - Fingerprint Chart -- at least two originals with fingerprints taken in compliance with instructions on back of form. Each chart must be signed by applicant in upper left corner; do not crease or fold the charts.

(4) 3 copies of Foreign Residence Data Form (very important if applicable, especially if the applicant has resided in foreign countries during the past five years).

(5) 3 copies of Form PD-70, Metropolitan Police Department, Washington, D.C., Criminal History Request, (original and two copies dated and signed by any applicant who has resided, attended school or been employed in the Washington, D.C. Metropolitan Area during the past ten years).

(6) 3 copies of Authority for Release of Record Information. Non-critical sensitive clearance giving access up to and including SECRET is granted for one year. Heads of offices overseas are responsible for ensuring that PIT appointees not have access beyond SECRET. If extension is required, Security must be notified 30 days in advance. Clearance will be revalidated for the duration of the extension approved by the element office or the Office of Personnel. The Office of Personnel will notify the post of the security clearance. Questions on security matters about the program and security clearances should be referred to the Office of Security through the Office of Personnel.

ASSIGNMENTS AND TRANSFER

411 GENERAL

411.1 Objectives - The objectives of the Open Assignments Process and Tour of Duty guidelines are to achieve the most effective staffing of its overseas and domestic Foreign Service positions within budgetary constraints, consistent with the requirements of proper personnel management and varying program and workload needs; and to afford Foreign Service Overseas Specialists greater opportunity to participate in the assignment process and in their career development. The Open Assignments process and tour of duty guidelines apply to all members of the Overseas Specialists corps.

411.2 Policy

a. It is the policy of Broadcasting to provide equal opportunity in employment without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, handicapping condition, marital status or political affiliation. Furthermore, in making selections for overseas assignments and in all other cases concerning positions abroad, U.S. laws and not the policies of a foreign country regarding these factors will be observed.

b. It is the policy of Broadcasting to provide information on assignment openings on a timely basis through the Open Assignments procedure. Management reserves the right, however, to fill positions without prior advertisement when circumstances warrant such action, as determined by management.

c. As a condition of employment in the Foreign Service, employees are required to accept assignments on a worldwide basis at management's discretion. Officers are expected to serve in greater hardship and hardship as well as in non-hardship posts. Consideration is given to the following factors in the assignment and transfer of individual employees:

- (1) Employee's experience and training.

(2) Employee's long-range career development interests and preferences.

(3) Employee's personal grade, with preference being given to qualified officers at the grade of the position over those above or below that grade.

(4) Family status, educational needs of children and availability of suitable housing.

(5) Health limitations on employees and family members.

(6) Personal concerns of a compassionate nature.

(7) Prior service, particularly at hardship installations. Officers who have served in a succession of hardship or greater hardship posts will be given special consideration when bidding on positions at non-hardship posts.

(8) Opportunity to serve in more than one geographic area.

d. Management, in exercising its right to assign employees, will consider all of the assignment preferences an employee has formally indicated as well as others for which management may consider the employee qualified.

e. Before an employee is assigned to a position for which he/she has not expressed a preference, management will seek employee comment on factors 1-8 above concerning said assignment and those comments will be considered.

411.3 Responsibilities for Assignments

a. The Office of Personnel is responsible for:

(1) Assigning and transferring Foreign Service Overseas Specialist employees and coordinating such actions with the offices of the element involved.

(2) Assuring that, to the extent practicable, transfers between overseas posts, and transfers to positions in the United States, will be planned to coincide with home leave. Decisions regarding assignments and transfers normally will be made in advance of home leave eligibility so that the overseas posts may adequately plan post operations and employees may arrange personal affairs in advance of actual departures.

(3) Planning assignments and transfers to ensure a reasonable sharing of service at non-differential and differential posts, with consideration being given to the need for specialized abilities, such as language training and competence, and that employees do not serve too short or too long a period of time in a particular country or area.

(4) Planning assignments of new employees to positions that will give full and fair opportunity for training and development and, during the probationary period of service, checking on the progress of each new employee to determine qualifications and suitability for continued employment.

b. Overseas Posts

(1) Upon arrival of a new employee on his or her initial overseas assignment, or upon arrival abroad of an employee who has completed an assignment in the United States, the receiving post will request that Broadcasting forward authority to establish a pay card. Normally, the request will be made a part of the TMEIGHT "Remarks" section of Form FS-471, Travel Message.

(2) The post of assignment and the Washington element is responsible for the training and development of employees so that abilities and skills are used to the mutual benefit of the individual and the program.

c. Domestic Offices

(1) The heads of Offices are responsible for planning staffing requirements to enable assignment of Foreign Service Overseas Specialists to positions in organizational elements of Broadcasting.

(2) A Foreign Service Overseas Specialist scheduled for assignment in the United States will be assigned in accordance with procedures outlined in Section 412 to a position suitable to meet the rotational needs of Foreign Service personnel or to one in which the duties and responsibilities are such that overseas experience is a qualification which will contribute to effective performance.

411.4 Terms of Employment While on Assignment to Positions in the United States

a. Foreign Service employees assigned to positions in the United States routinely will be assigned for a period of two years. The employee must apply for positions and undertake training which will permit assignment overseas at the end of two years. Requests for one year extensions will be considered by management. Extensions beyond eight years must be approved by the Director of Broadcasting. All periods above mentioned shall include time spent on Leave Without Pay.

b. Assignments or extensions of assignments for medical, emergency, or temporary reasons are limited to the duration of the circumstances necessitating such assignment or extension.

c. Assignments for training, or to alleviate temporary personal problems, or to use the time of the employee while awaiting an overseas assignment or reassignment will be for the time required to complete the purpose of the assignment.

d. Overseas Specialists assigned to positions in the United States will continue to receive within-class salary increases, if eligible.

e. Overseas Specialists assigned to positions in the United States are considered for promotion in accordance with established Foreign Service promotion regulations.

411.5 Designation of Foreign Service Positions in the United States

a. Section 501 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, authorizes the Director to designate positions in Broadcasting to be occupied by members of the Foreign Service.

b. Positions in the United States are staffed with Foreign Service Overseas Specialist officers if Broadcasting determines the functions of the position can best be performed with experience abroad or to provide opportunities for rotation of members of the Foreign Service from assignments abroad to assignments in the U.S.; or to provide training for future assignments abroad.

c. Overseas Specialist officers may be assigned to positions above or below their personal grade according to the needs of Broadcasting.

411.6 Assignments to, International Organizations, and Other Bodies (Pearson Assignments) - In accordance with Section 503 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, the Director may assign a member of the Service for duty: in a non-Foreign Service (including Senior Executive Service) position in Broadcasting, the Department of State or another agency, or with an international organization, international commission, or other international body; with a domestic or international trade, labor, agricultural, scientific, or other conference, congress, or gathering; for special instruction, training, or orientation at or which a public or private organization; and in the United States (or in its territories or possessions or in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico), with a State or local government, a public or private nonprofit organization (including an educational institution), or with a Member or office of the Congress. These assignments will normally be for one or two years but in any event may not exceed four years of continuous service unless the Director approves an extension because of special circumstances.

412 OPEN ASSIGNMENTS PROCEDURES

412.1 Office of Personnel Responsibilities

a. Each overseas installation and organizational element in the U.S. will be provided with the following materials:

(1) A quarterly comprehensive list of all Foreign Service Overseas Specialist positions - both overseas and in the U.S. - previously projected and advertised as vacant but not yet filled, as well as a projection one year in advance of vacant positions and of the beginning of language and other training required for subsequent projected vacancies. Positions will be advertised chronologically by the month in which they open or the month in which required preparatory training begins, whichever is earlier. The job title, post, position grade, language requirements, other required skills and training, Tour of Duty options and other pertinent information will be included. The list will be transmitted overseas and distributed to all elements in the U.S. by expeditious means.

(2) A biweekly announcement of confirmed assignments, unanticipated vacancies, and changes and cancellations of earlier announcements. Advertisements of vacancies will contain the same information as the comprehensive list, and this announcement will be distributed by similar means. Confirmed assignments will also be announced in TUNE IN.

(3) A staffing pattern of all overseas positions will be sent to each installation. Annual updates will be issued.

(4) Standard reply forms will be furnished to all establishments at the time of distribution of vacancy lists, accompanied by instructions for completing the form. Every response need not be on official forms. It is mandatory, however, that all information required on the forms be transmitted. Telegraphic response is discouraged unless it has been specifically requested in order to fill an immediate vacancy. Personnel will acknowledge receipt of each employee's submission of assignment preferences.

b. Broadcasting is committed to making the Open Assignment vacancy list as accurate a reflection of projected needs as possible. It is understood, however, that Broadcasting will not always be able to retain or fill a position, replace an incumbent or adhere to the advertised timetable.

c. Notification to employees selected for an assignment will be made as soon as possible after the selection occurs. List of confirmed assignments will be transmitted biweekly to the field and distributed in the U.S. by expeditious means and will appear in TUNE IN and in other announcements.

412.2 Employee Responsibilities - Employees are responsible for submitting assignment preferences in a timely fashion to the Office of Personnel. Employees must bid on five or more positions in two or more geographic areas, including at least one hardship (or greater hardship post) if available among the vacancies advertised.

Exceptions to the above are as follows:

(a) employees currently serving at greater hardship posts are not required to bid on hardship or greater hardship posts for follow-on assignments;

(b) employees bidding on positions announced eight months or more before the end of their tours of duty need not bid on five post simultaneously, although that number is expected in the aggregate eight months before the employee's scheduled departure;

(c) employees may bid on immediate openings without satisfying other criteria;

(d) employees due a U.S. assignment (i.e. those who have served overseas six to eight years or more) are expected to bid on Washington or other

U.S. position. However, bids on overseas positions will also be considered if the bidding conditions outlined above are satisfied.

412.3 Tandem Assignments - Married couples who wish to have their tandem status considered as factor in assignments and training must apprise Personnel before each assignment process begins. They should also indicate the status, location and transfer eligibility of tandem spouses who are employed by other foreign affairs agencies; whether leave without pay will be sought by one of the spouses; and/or which spouse's assignment should be given priority. If tandem officers do not designate who should receive priority, the Office of Personnel will designate the senior in grade of the two for priority treatment.

412.4 Assignments

a. Completed forms or other correspondence indicating assignment preferences should be transmitted promptly to the Office of Personnel, since the assignment process begins well in advance of the date on which the position opens or training begins. However, except for immediate vacancies for which there is a one to two week deadline and telegraphic response is advisable, the decision-making process does not begin until positions have been posted for two months. Applications for all positions will continue to be accepted so long as the positions have not been filled.

b. Personnel will acknowledge receipt of preferences in writing and will provide the officer with information as to the status of his or her bids, as appropriate. It should be noted that management, in exercising its right to assign employees, will consider all of the assignment preferences an employee has formally requested as well as others for which management may consider the employee qualified. Employees should continue a dialogue with Personnel and the element throughout the assignment process.

c. When the bidding period on an announced position has closed, the bids will be evaluated in terms of appropriateness of grade, timing, experience, qualifications, and career enhancement. Personnel and the element will then jointly consider and evaluate all bidders, and decide jointly on the nominee, whose name will then be submitted for discussion and approval to a panel consisting of the Foreign Service Personnel Officer, Director of Personnel, and shall include at least one Foreign Service officer (preferably an Overseas Specialist). The remaining members shall be Foreign Service officers assigned to Broadcasting or other career employees of the Broadcasting element responsible for the position. Assignments for all Specialist positions will be made by the Director of Personnel.

d. Appeals of assignments may be made by employees assigned to positions for which they did not bid. Appeals must be made in writing within 10 days of receipt of notification of assignment and should be mailed or cabled to the Office of Personnel. The appeal should address the eight factors out-lined in Section 411.2 as well as any other justification for a change in the assignment. Alternative assignment preferences should also be included. The Office of Personnel will consider the appeal and respond to the officer in a timely manner.

412.5 Career Enhancement and Planning - The Office of Personnel will develop a prototype career pattern based on available historical evidence and future projections to serve as a counseling tool in the assignment process. The prototype will depict a typical career sequence culminating with retirement as an F0-1 as well as variants representing faster and slower progression leading, respectively, to entry into the Senior Foreign Service, and early retirement or resignation. The prototype will be developed to allow employees to compare their own progression to the prototype. It is understood that this prototype will serve as a guideline for planning but that it does not represent a binding obligation on the part of Broadcasting.

413 TOUR OF DUTY GUIDELINES

413.1 Purpose - Guidelines have been established for the length of an assignment as it relates to the living and working conditions of an overseas establishment. In addition, the Tour of Duty Guidelines provide the framework and uniformity necessary to enable accurate projections of vacancies and thus allow the Open Assignments policy to operate.

413.2 Definition

a. A tour of duty is defined as the total amount of time between arrival at an installation for duty and transfer to another installation. A change of assignment at that installation may affect the length of the tour but will not be considered a separate tour. A transfer eligibility date (TED) signals the projected end of a designated tour of duty.

b. A tour of duty may be one of the following basic patterns: (1) 24 months/HLT; (2) 18 months/HLRT/18 months; (3) 36 months with two R&Rs; (4) 18 months/HLRT/24 months or vice versa with R&R in the 24 month period.

413.3 Committees on Tour of Duty Exceptions - Requests for the overseas or domestic tours of duty for all Overseas Specialist positions will be decided on a case-by-case basis by the Open Assignments Panel.

413.4 Overseas Tours

a. Normal consecutive time overseas will average 6-8 years with a maximum of 12 years, depending on Broadcasting needs. Requests for U.S. assignment by an employee with less than six consecutive years overseas will be considered on a case by case basis with both Broadcasting and employee requirements being taken into consideration.

b. Tours of duty for Broadcasting Overseas Specialist positions are:

(1) All VOA Regional correspondent tours are three years.

(2) All Engineering Transmitter Site tours are:

Three years - Germany, Spain, Bangkok, Greece, Morocco, Kuwait, and Botswana

Two years - Belize, Udorn, the Philippines, Sri Lanka, and Sao Tome.

c. The tours of duty lengths are established to meet Broadcasting's staffing needs. They do not affect the hardship or greater hardship designations established by the Department of State allowances section for pay purposes.

413.5 Domestic Tours

a. Purpose - Foreign Service personnel are rotated into positions in the United States so as to:

- (1) Staff certain positions that require overseas experience for effective performance.
- (2) Have the overseas viewpoint represented in an organizational element.
- (3) Ensure that employees do not spend their entire career outside the United States.
- (4) Expose employees to American life and update them with Washington organization and thinking.
- (5) Enhance career development and training of officers and employees.
- (6) Meet the provisions of Section 504(b) of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, which, consistent with the needs of the service, seeks to have each career Foreign Service employee assigned to duty within the United States at least once during each period of 15 years that the employee is in the Foreign Service. Periods of duty in the United States of not more than six months will be counted as temporary details and not as assignments.

b. Policy

- (1) Employees normally will be assigned to positions in the United States after completing six to eight years of service overseas since appointment or last assignment in the United States.
- (2) The tour of duty for assignments to the United States is normally two years. Tours of duty longer than four years are rarely authorized and then only for the needs of the service, for lack of medical clearance or when an appropriate overseas assignment is not available. Members of the Foreign Service wishing to request a tour of duty of more than four years because of highly unusual personal circumstances which may merit such an extension must send a written request fully documenting those circumstances to the Director, Office of Personnel. No member of the Foreign Service may be assigned to duty in the United States for any period of continuous service exceeding eight years unless the Director of Broadcasting approves an extension of the eight year limitation.

c. Exceptions - Irrespective of the time spent abroad, employees may be assigned to positions in the United States:

(1) When the health of the employee, or his or her family, may be in jeopardy;

(2) When reductions are made in overseas complements;

(3) When necessary to fill a key domestic position on an urgent priority basis;

(4) When necessary for disciplinary reasons;

(5) When an employee has been declared "persona non grata" by a foreign government;

(6) When the transfer of an employee is requested by a chief of mission;

(7) When an employee is unable to complete a tour of duty before mandatory retirement.

413.6 Extensions and Curtailments of Tours of Duty

a. Broadcasting reserves the right to initiate curtailments or extensions of transfer eligibility dates to cope with program exigencies, to provide for over-laps, to minimize gaps, to take into account the timing of school openings and closings, or for other reasons which Broadcasting finds compelling.

b. In accordance with Open Assignment policies, any request for extension, either in the U.S. or at a hardship or greater hardship post, should be submitted to the Office of Personnel at least 6 months prior to the transfer eligibility date.

413.7 Fiscal Responsibility - Broadcasting has a fiscal responsibility to minimize travel cost by maintaining a reasonable ratio of home leave travel to number of months service abroad. The ratio for a 24/HLT tour of duty, one home leave trip for 24 months of service; 18/HLRT/18 tour of duty, one home leave round trip and one home leave transfer for 36 months of service; for a 48/HLRT/HLT tour of duty, one home leave round trip within six months of the mid-point in the tour and one home leave transfer 48 months after initial arrival at post; time spent on home leave which does not exceed 60 days does not add to or otherwise affect the tour of duty.

414 HOME LEAVE GUIDELINES

a. Broadcasting management may order to the continental United States, its territories and possessions, on statutory leave of absence (home leave) any employee of the Foreign Service, who is a citizen of the United States, upon completion of 18 months of continuous service overseas and shall so order as soon as possible after completion of three years of such service.

b. Departure for home leave/transfer will generally coincide with an employee's transfer eligibility date, but may occur earlier or later in accordance with needs, and/or acceptable employee requests. Such requests should be justified and be in memorandum or cable form, accompanied by post comments. These should be addressed to the Office of Personnel. After consultation with the Element, the Personnel Officer may approve early departure requests up to two months early for 36/HLT tours; and up to one month early for 18/HLRT/18/HLT. Requests for departure earlier than indicated above must also include the employee's intention to accept a longer tour of duty in a successive post in order to maintain a reasonable ratio between months of duty and home leave travel. All requests for departure earlier than two months must be approved by the Open Assignments Panel. Employees who have taken R&R since their last home leave of more than 60 days must indicate whether a curtailed tour would affect their eligibility for R&R (see 3 FAM 698 and MOA V-B 413.2(b).) If necessary, such employees should include a request for waiver of repayment of R&R costs. This does not apply if the employee's home leave was less than 60 days.

c. Within the constraints of Broadcasting needs it is policy to permit an employee to take the full home leave which has been earned in the most recent assignment prior to beginning another tour of duty abroad. However, in accordance with General Accounting Office (GAO) regulations, when the ongoing assignment is in the United States, home leave must normally be limited to no more than 15 days.

c. For additional guidelines on home leave, refer to 3 FAM 454.

415 DETAILS OF FOREIGN SERVICE EMPLOYEES

415.1 Details to Overseas Posts - In accordance with MOA V-B 122.3 and 6 FAM 121.2, with the concurrence of headquarters, heads of overseas establishments have been delegated authority to authorize or approve temporary duty travel so that employees may be detailed to other installations abroad. The limitations of this authority are set forth in the delegations.

415.2 Temporary Details to Domestic Positions

a. Details to the Washington for consultation, training, and other temporary duty purposes are authorized by the element head.

415.3 Details to Other Agencies - Employees may be detailed for a maximum of four years to other agencies on a reimbursable or non-reimbursable basis when such details are of sufficient value to the Government, Broadcasting, or the employee to offset loss of services during the period of detail. (See Section 411.8). In general, details to other agencies (except details to the White House) will be made only on a reimbursable basis.

415.4 Details of Department of State Employees to Broadcasting

a. Procedures

(1) Broadcasting may request, or the Department of State may propose, the detail of Foreign Service employees to specific work assignments to Broadcasting positions in the United States. When requested or proposed, the Department will inform Broadcasting of Foreign Service employees available for detail.

(2) If the employee is to be assigned to a Broadcasting position, the Office of Personnel will submit a written request for the detail.

(3) The request will specify the position to be filled, the desired effective date, and the estimated period of the detail. Normally, the period of such details will not be less than two years nor more than four. Details may be extended beyond the initial period upon mutual agreement of Broadcasting and the Department.

(4) The Department will notify the requesting officer of approval or disapproval of the proposed detail. On approval, a personnel action will be prepared and transfer communications dispatched by the Department in accordance with standard practices for Foreign Service transfers. Copies of personnel transactions and transfer communications pertaining to Department of State Foreign Service employees detailed to Broadcasting will be supplied to Personnel for its records. During the period of detail, such employees will be under administrative supervision of Broadcasting.

b. Termination of Details

(1) The requesting officer will notify the Department of his/her desire either to extend or terminate individual details at least 90 days prior to the end of the agreed period. The Department will assume responsibility for the employee at the agreed termination date so that Broadcasting may fill the vacated position.

(2) When termination of a detail is requested prior to the termination of the agreed period by either Broadcasting or the Department, the requesting agency will notify the other agency at least 90 days in advance of the proposed termination date if practicable.

415.5 Details of Employees to the Department of State - The provisions of 415.4 apply in reverse when Broadcasting employees are detailed to the Department of State. The Office of Personnel will negotiate details for Broadcasting employees to be assigned to Department of State positions overseas or in the U.S. All assignments are subject to approval by the Director of Broadcasting.

415.6 Pearson Amendment Details

a. In accordance with Section 503 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 and MOA V-B 411.8, the Director may (with the concurrence of the organization concerned) assign members of the Service to duty in the United States (or any territory or possession of the United States or in the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico), with a State or local government, a public or private non-profit organization (including an educational institution), or with a member or office of the Congress.

b. Pearson Amendment positions will be identified and advertised in the Open Assignments Vacancy list. Positions will be identified in accordance with the intent of Section 503 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, to provide opportunities for Foreign Service officers to keep themselves informed of current concerns and trends in American life. The Assignments Panel will make final assignment decisions on respective Pearson Amendment Assignment details.

c. Details under this section will usually run for one year, with the possibility to extend for a maximum of four years if approved by the Director of Personnel. Such extensions will be dependent upon the approval of the participant and sponsoring organization and the needs of the Service.

d. These details are partially reimbursable and Broadcasting will routinely seek a minimum reimbursement of $8,000 from the sponsoring organization.

e. Officer Evaluation Reports on detailees will be prepared by sponsoring organization supervisors and submitted directly to the Office of Personnel.

f. Any member of the Service on or due a domestic assignment may request consideration for this program. Interested members should contact the Office of Personnel to discuss details of the program. Members may submit their own suggestions for Pearson Assignment details.

416 NON-REIMBURSABLE DETAILS - All non-reimbursable details, except those listed in "a" below, of Broadcasting employees to other departments or agencies must be approved in advance by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB).

a. Non-reimbursable details do not require advance Office of Management and Budget approval in the following instances:

(1) Where Broadcasting is jointly engaged in an activity (including ad hoc task forces) of direct concern to the missions of the agencies involved.

(2) When authorized interagency exchanges of career employees for training or orientation are involved.

3) Where emergency circumstances (such as natural disaster) requires interagency pooling of employees.

(4) Where specialized consultation or the expertise of individual employees is furnished on a short-term basis, not to exceed 30 days.

417 WASHINGTON CONSULTATION FOR FIELD PERSONNEL

417.1 Authorization

a. When appropriate, Foreign Service employees returning to the United States on home leave, prior to another overseas assignment, are scheduled by Broadcasting for a period of consultation in Washington in order to report to Broadcasting officials on situations at the post from which he or she is returning, to obtain briefing on a new country assignment, to discuss career development, when necessary, to obtain required medical clearances.

b. Foreign Service personnel will not normally be authorized consultation in Washington prior to home leave when they are on transfer orders to a position in the United States. Time for medical examinations, when needed, and any necessary consultation with Broadcasting officials will be provided immediately after the employee reports for duty in Washington.

417.2 Length of Consultation

a. All Broadcasting employees:

On home leave and return to same post - three days;

On home leave and transfer to a new post - three days.

b. Additional Time for Medical Examinations - When travel authorizations for home leave and return or home leave and transfer to a new overseas post are issued, provision will be made for two additional days of consultation in Washington, D.C. for the purpose of obtaining a medical examination. Travel authorizations will carry the proviso: "Plus two additional days if a medical examination is to be obtained in Washington, D.C."

e. Exceptions - The length of consultation time to be authorized in paragraphs a and b above will normally be the periods authorized. Broadcasting may increase or decrease the authorized consultation time whenever special circumstances warrant.

417.3 Responsibilities

a. Elements have primary responsibility for consultation planning.

b. Offices should not request an appointment with a returning employee unless there is specific business to discuss with him or her that cannot be handled otherwise.

c. Overseas Posts

(1) Upon receipt of a travel message (TMONE or TMFOUR) the employee should notify the element with which offices and officials he or she wishes to confer during consultation. The employee should discuss consultation with his or her Washington element supervisor who may also suggest any special consultations, training or contacts that is felt will be useful to the employee involved.

(2) The employee must indicate the specific date on which he or she will report to Washington to begin his or her consultation. Since employees' schedule of appointments may be keyed to their arrival in Washington, they will be expected to arrive in Washington on the date indicated in the TMTWO message. If a definite arrival date has not been established at the time the TMTWO travel message is forwarded employees must notify the element as soon as a definite date is established. Employees must also notify the element of any subsequent changes.

Section 420

TRAINING

421 PURPOSE - Sound management principles provide that every employee should be assisted in the systematic development of his or her skills and talents consistent with Broadcasting needs. To this end, Broadcasting develops, sponsors, and conducts programs of education and training. Such programs are carried out through the Training and Development Division, Office of Personnel, and the element head of the overseas establishment.

422 POLICY - Planning and execution of development of Foreign Service personnel involves an individually tailored combination of work assignments, formal training or education, on-the-job training, and self-development. It is Broadcasting policy:

a. To provide systematic training and/or education for Foreign Service Personnel consistent with the needs of the Service and requirements of Broadcasting, both immediate and long-range.

b. To encourage and facilitate self-development, by providing executive and managerial training, and by providing advanced professional studies, seminars, and colloquiums.

c. To provide equal opportunity to all employees without regard to race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, handicapping condition, marital status, or political affiliation. Training facilities that discriminate because of race, color, sex, age, religion, national origin, handicapping condition, marital status, or political affiliation will not be used.

423 Responsibility for Foreign National Employee Training - The Training and Development Division and the element head of the overseas establishment- is responsible for training Foreign Service National employees for coordinating and/or conducting all training and orientation programs for FSN employees; for assisting in identifying their training needs and developing plans to meet those needs through; regional and U.S. training; for counseling and advising FSN employees on education and training opportunities including those oriented toward self-improvement;

424. Employees - are responsible for keeping aware and pursuing training opportunities provided by Broadcasting-sponsored programs.

Section 430

FOREIGN LANGUAGE POLICY

431.1 Training - It is Broadcasting policy to provide language training to the extent feasible, to all Foreign Service employees and their spouses who desire it, who are required to have command of a foreign language (S/3/ R-3) or desire some facility in the language of their assigned duty post. Such training is normally provided before departure for post of assignment. In providing such training, Broadcasting will use the courses offered by the National Foreign Affairs Training Center

(NFATC), the resources of Broadcasting and other government organizations and, when recommended, outside training facilities. Language training may also be provided to employees and spouses at overseas posts within the facilities of the NFATC post language program or as authorized by the Washington element and the Training Division. Language training will normally be given first priority for use of the resources allocated to training programs. (See also MOA V-B 425.5)

431.2 Regulations - Regulations published in the Foreign Affairs Manual (3 FAM 870) of the Department of State apply jointly to Foreign Service personnel of Broadcasting and the Department of State. In accordance with 3 FAM 871.2-2, the following regulations supplement 3 FAM 870.

432 LANGUAGE-DESIGNATED POSITIONS

432.1 Designation of Positions

The Office of Personnel will designate language essential positions for Broadcasting in consultation with the News Division, the Office of Engineering and the Affiliates/Marketing Offices.

432.2 Review of Language-Designated Positions

a. At least once a year, Personnel will review all overseas positions to determine whether any changes should be made in designated positions as a result of recommendations initiated by element offices .

b. Except in most unusual circumstances ad hoc requests for changes will be deferred until the following annual review.

432.3 Staffing of Language-Designated Positions

a. Incumbents of language-designated positions are required by Section 702 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 to have a useful knowledge of the language of the post at the level indicated in the position profile. A tested proficiency at the required level attained not more than five years before the assumption of the duties of the position, is required of an officer assigned to a language-designated position. Officers who do not possess proficiency in the required language will receive intensive language training before assuming their duties. If the training period is not feasible because of the needs of the service, Chief, News Division (B/VOA/X) will request a waiver of the language requirement. It is the policy of Broadcasting to ensure that its overseas positions are filled by language-qualified officers, if possible, and that these qualifications are satisfied prior to arrival at post.

b. Broadcasting management will make every reasonable effort to select candidates for assignment to language-designated positions in sufficient time to permit them to receive language training if they lack proficiency in the required language.

432.4 Exceptions to Language Requirements - A waiver is required to cover each instance when an exception is made to fill a language-designated position with an officer who does not have the required level of proficiency. All waivers must be requested by the Chief, News Division and approved by the Foreign Service Personnel Officer and the Director of Personnel.

a. Hard Language Waivers - When an officer is assigned to a language-designated position following the normally prescribed period of training in a hard language (usually 44 weeks) which is designed to produce no more than a tested S-2/R-2 capability, the Chief, News Division will request a waiver of the language requirement, if necessary. The waiver will specify that the officer is required to continue to study the language upon arrival at post at Agency expense and to be tested by a certified NFATC examiner at the earliest opportunity, or no later than his/her next Agency consultation. A copy of the waiver will be filed in the officer's administrative file, and a copy will be given to the officer so he/she will understand the conditions under which the assignment is made.

432.5 Language Testing - Every officer encumbering a language designated position whose language proficiency rating does not meet the requirement of the position or whose proficiency score expires prior to the end of tour of duty must arrange to take a language proficiency test at the National Foreign Affairs Training Center (NFATC) during periods of home leave and consultation. Officers should also arrange to be tested at NFATC upon completion of a tour of duty in a language designated position, regardless of proficiency score expiration date. Proficiency scores of S-3+/R-3+ or lower expire five years from the date of testing; for the purpose of qualifying for language designated positions, officers with an NFATC-tested score of S-4/R-4 or better need not retest. (For NFATC-tested scores required to qualify for language bonus monetary payments for proficiency in incentive languages while serving at incentive language posts, see paragraph 433.2 below.)

432.6 Language Training for Adult Dependents - It is policy to provide language training for eligible adult family members who want training, subject to the availability of funds. If it is not possible for the spouse, or other adult dependent, to receive language training in Washington, it is policy to provide for instruction at post. Dependents may participate in a post's language program on the same basis as employees, with the exception that when limitations on post language program funds make it necessary for a post to choose between providing instruction for employees or for dependents, priority shall be given to employees. Broadcasting employees and their dependents have access to post language programs, subject to the availability of funds, to the same extent as employees of other elements of the Mission and their dependents.

433 LANGUAGE INCENTIVES

Special monetary or other incentives are authorized by Section 704(b)(3) of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 to encourage Foreign Service employees to acquire or retain proficiency in foreign languages. The languages for which training or proficiency incentives will be paid are Arabic, Russian, and Chinese. (The list of incentive languages will be reviewed on an annual basis, or as needed.) Training of employees in incentive languages will be approved on the basis of need. The forms of bonuses awarded eligible language-proficient employees are outlined below (See 3 FAM 873 for complete details.)

433.1 Within-Class Salary Increases

a. For Language Proficient Entrants Only (See also 3 FAM 873.3) - Broadcasting Correspondent Overseas Specialist Candidates Class 6 through 4 who attain a National Foreign Affairs Training Center (NFATC) certified proficiency in any language noted above within 30 days of entrance on duty will be paid a higher entrance salary retroactive to the date of entrance on duty. The number of within-class salary increases added to the initial entrance salary is based on the language category and level of tested proficiency in accordance with 3 FAM 873.3c. If the employee qualifies in more than one language, a maximum of five within-class increases may be granted. Employees serving on non-career limited appointments (e.g. Civil Service employees on excursion tours) are not eligible to receive entrance on duty within-class step increases. (See 3 FAM 873.3a)

433.2 In-Service Language Bonus Payment

a. Eligibility Criteria - Foreign Service employees with a S-3/R-3 or S-4/R-4 or higher proficiency in an incentive language are eligible for an In-Service Language bonus payment while serving in a language-designated position (LDP) during an initial tour of duty at an incentive language post. Employees serving any subsequent tour of duty, whether consecutive or not, at any post using the same incentive language, need not encumber a language designated position (LDP) to remain eligible for the In-Service Language Bonus payment, provided the language test score is current. For the purpose of determining whether an employee is entitled to a language bonus, NFATC test scores have the following periods of validity (See 3 FAM 873.5b):

Tested Proficiency Duration of Validity

S-3+/R-3+ or below 5 years

S-4/R-4 No further tests required if two test scores of S-4/R-4 were received at least two years apart;

S-5/R-5 No further tests in that language is required.

The In-Service Language Bonus payment supersedes the 10% and 15% bonus monetary payments for language proficiency.)

b. Monetary Payment Levels - Employees meeting the above criteria are eligible for an In-Service Language Bonus payment of $3,500 (for 44 week languages) or $5,000 (for 88 week languages), per annum, for achieving a proficiency level of S-3/R-3, or S-4/R-4 or better. The In-Service Language bonus payment will be paid bi-weekly for the duration of the officer's tour at an incentive language post. Payment will be effective at the beginning of the first full pay period after the employee's arrival at post and upon receipt of NFATC certification. The incentive language bonus payment is not affected by the statutory pay cap (5 U.S.C. 5308) but it is subject to federal income taxation.

c. Initiating Monetary Payments

(1) Employees are responsible for promptly notifying the post's administrative officer of their eligibility for an In-Service Language bonus.

(2) The National Foreign Affairs Training Center (NFATC) is responsible for promptly furnishing to the Office of Personnel, a copy of the officer's test results. Personnel will certify language scores and promptly notify post.

(3) The post administrative officer is responsible for notifying the appropriate payroll office, by the most expeditious means, usually telegraphically, to initiate payment of the In-Service Language Bonus.

(4) In cases of direct transfer of an eligible employee to a post where a language is currently on the incentive language list, the Training Division will notify NFATC to cable the employee's test scores to that post. The post's administrative officer will notify the appropriate payroll office to initiate payment of the In-Service Language Bonus payment.

d. Terminating Monetary Payments - See 3 FAM 873.5g for instructions on how to terminate monetary payments.

TITLE 5-B
HUMAN RESOURCES (FOREIGN SERVICE)

PART 450 - PERFORMANCE EVALUATION

451 General

451.1 Coverage - These regulations apply to all Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) Foreign Service Specialist employees and Civil Service employees serving on excursion tours overseas in Foreign Service Specialist positions.

451.2 Authority

a. Sections 603 and 604 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 authorize BBG to prescribe regulations for maintaining records of "the character, ability, conduct, quality of work, industry, experience, dependability, usefulness, and general performance of members of the Service. "The Director, Office of Human Resources (OHR), is delegated the authority to administer these regulations.

b. The Agreement on Delinquent Foreign Service Specialist Officer Evaluation reports between the American Foreign Service Association (AFSA) and BBG is contained in Exhibit 450A.

451.3 Objectives - The objectives of the performance evaluation program are to enhance employee performance and to provide a just and equitable basis for promotions, career tenure, within-class salary increases, performance pay, assignments, training, separations, and disciplinary actions by:

- a. Providing for a periodic written evaluation of employees' performance and potential;
- b. Ensuring that employees understand and participate in the formulation of work requirements and priorities established at the beginning of each rating period;
- c. Establishing a constructive dialogue between rating officials and employees throughout each rating period;
- d. Helping employees recognize their strengths and weaknesses and, if appropriate, initiating steps to correct any performance deficiencies; and
- e. Ensuring fair treatment of all employees.

451.4 Nature of Reports - Form IBB-1125, Officer Evaluation Report (OER), will be used for all members of the Foreign Service (whether assigned overseas or in the U.S.), except that Form IBB-1191 will be used for those who are members of the Senior Foreign Service.

a. Employees in long-term training (such as language training, university studies, Executive Seminar, Congressional Fellowship, or the National War colleges) will be evaluated in a format to be determined by the OHR Training and Development Division.

b. Employees detailed to other government agencies or to public or private nonprofit organizations should be evaluated on the appropriate regular rating form. Where that is not feasible, evaluations in memorandum form may be substituted with the prior approval of the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer.

451.5 Official Personnel Folder (OPF)

a. Contents - The Official Personnel Folder (OPF) of Foreign Service Specialist employees is in two parts: The Administrative File, which contains personnel actions and related documentation, and the Performance File, which contains Officer Evaluation Reports (OERs) for the most recent five years. In addition to the OERs, the Performance File contains notices of language proficiency, language training reports, certificates of completion of training courses, meritorious, quality, honor, and cash award nominations and certificates, Professional Experience Profiles, and certain disciplinary documents. (see BAM 5-B, Part 900).

b. Amendment or Removal of Material - The Director, OHR, is authorized to amend, explain, supplement, delete, or remove material in an employee's OPF, including evaluation reports, when it is determined that such action is justified in order to correct an error or to remove or prevent an injustice. Any such action must be explained in writing and the employee concerned must be informed.

451.6 Administrative Responsibilities

a. The Office of Human Resources (OHR) is responsible for the development and administration of the performance evaluation program for Foreign Service Specialist employees.

- (1) Developing performance evaluation systems, regulations, forms, and instructions;
- (2) Informing management and employees about procedures and requirements;
- (3) Ensuring compliance by monitoring the submission of ratings;
- (4) Reviewing evaluative material prior to its incorporation into the Performance File portion of the OPF;
- (5) Administering the program relating to delinquent reports; and
- (6) Resolving questions on designation of proper rating or reviewing officers when posed by element management.

- b. The OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer is responsible for providing counseling concerning performance evaluation to Foreign Service personnel.
- c. The Training and Development Division, OHR/T, is responsible for providing training, as appropriate, in the various facets of performance evaluation and for obtaining training reports for officers assigned for training for any period of two months or longer.
- d. Heads of Offices and Services and Heads of Establishments Overseas are responsible for:
  - (1) Ensuring that work requirements and priorities are established at the beginning of each rating period, evaluating performance requirements for uniformity among positions, and making modifications to performance plans as necessary;
  - (2) Designating Rating and Reviewing Officers, as appropriate;
  - (3) Encouraging discussions between Rating and Rated Officers concerning performance;
  - (4) Encouraging frankness and candor in all performance evaluations;
  - (5) Obtaining evaluations from Rating and Reviewing Officers or Rated Officers and ensuring (timely) compliance with evaluation schedules;
  - (6) Informing the Office of Human Resources of Rating and Reviewing Officers and Rated Officers responsible for delinquent submission of OERs; and
  - (7) Ensuring that reporting and record-keeping requirements are met.

451.7 Use of Reports

- a. Basis for Review of Duties and Performance Requirements - The evaluation process provides an opportunity for Rating and Rated Officers to discuss the duties and performance requirements of the position, as well as the Rated Officer's performance.
- b. Basis for Promotions, Assignments, Training, Withholding Within-Class Salary Increases, Limited Career Extensions (LCEs), and Selection-Out - Evaluation reports are used in identifying and selecting Officers for assignment, training, and (through the Selection Board process) promotion, withholding of within-class increases, and selection-out.
- c. Basis for Tenuring Decisions - Evaluation reports are used by annual Foreign Service Specialist Selection Boards in considering career candidates for career tenure.
- d. Basis for Performance Awards (SFS) and Presidential Awards (SFS) - Evaluation reports will serve as a basis for Performance Awards (SFS) and Presidential Awards (SFS).

451.8 Disclosure of Reports - The contents of the Foreign Service OPF are protected by the Privacy Act (5 USC 552a) and section 604 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980. Rules governing access to the Agency's personnel records are contained in BAM 5-B Part 900.

452.1 Procedure and Requirements

- a. At the beginning of each rating period, it is essential to establish who will be the Rating and Reviewing Officers for the performance evaluation of each Rated Officer. The appropriate Element or Office Head will ensure that each Foreign Service Officer shall have a Rating and Reviewing Officer and ensure that regular and interim ratings are prepared.
- b. The Rating Officer must be the Rated Officer's immediate supervisor, except under unusual circumstances, which must be fully explained on the OER form. If conditions require the preparation of the report by someone other than the supervisor, the circumstances shall be explained on the OER form and Rated Officer/Rating Officer relationship clearly described.
- c. The Reviewing Officer will usually be the next ranking supervisor at post or in the Agency sufficiently knowledgeable of the Rated Officer's performance and the relationship between the Rating and Rated Officers to carry out the review responsibilities effectively. In cases where there is no officer senior to the rating officer to carry out the reviewing function, the circumstances must be explained on the rating form. Reviewing Officers should acquaint themselves with the work of officers whose ratings they review and develop personal knowledge of their performance to the extent practicable.

452.2 Questions About Rating or Reviewing Officer Designations - If questions arise regarding the proper designation of a rating or reviewing officer, they may be referred to OHR for resolution.

453 Responsibilities of Rating, Reviewing, and Rated Officers

453.1 General Responsibilities

- a. Objectivity in evaluations is achieved only if there is an understanding between the supervisor and subordinate about the requirements of the position.
  - (1) The Rating and Rated Officers should formulate jointly a statement of work requirements for the Rated Officer during the first 45 days of the beginning of the rating period (e.g., within 45 days after the arrival on duty of either officer).
  - (2) Supervisors are expected to review performance with subordinates at least once during the rating period, preferably mid-way during the period. Ideally, performance should be reviewed continuously during the period.
  - (3) After the Rating and Rated Officers have completed the first section of the report (Work Requirements) and the oral mid-period review has taken place, the final section is prepared in the following sequence: Rating Officer, Reviewing Officer, and Rated Officer.

- b. When evaluating an employee's performance, the Rating, Reviewing, and Rated Officers will focus their comments on the work requirements section. When possible, the Rating Officer should request the Rated Officer's views of the work performance and the problems faced before preparing the OER in draft.
- c. Reports on employees who serve more than one supervisor should reflect the views of all supervisors; these views should be solicited by the Rating Officer.
- d. Rating and Reviewing Officers may hold general discussions of the employee's overall performance. However, the Rating and Reviewing Officers should prepare their respective sections of the OER independently.
- e. Before preparing an OER, the Precepts of the most recent Selection Board should be reviewed for indications of the standards against which officers are judged.
- f. Officer Evaluation Reports must be frank and candid, stressing both the positive and negative aspects of the Rated Officer's performance and potential. Officers should understand that candid OERs that stress and document both strengths and weaknesses are preferred over bland reports that provide no specific information either to the Rated Officer or the Selection Board.

Evaluation reports will be shared in draft by the Reviewing Officer with a senior career official designated by the Director of OHR prior to the report being forwarded to the Rated Officer. This senior official will review the draft rating for consistency in the candid evaluation of Rated Officers across the specialty with regard to reports addressing both the positive and less desirable aspects of the Rated Officer's performance and potential and enabling the Selection Boards to make judgments on the extent to which specialists have developed and maintained the specific skills required of the specialty and to make the necessary distinctions between officers. The senior official will provide related guidance on the draft report to the Rating and Reviewing Officers for their consideration in completing their portions of the evaluation report.

- g. All officers are responsible for ensuring that the appropriate deadlines are met for completion and submission of Officer Evaluation Reports.
- h. All Rating Officers are responsible for ensuring that Officer and Career Candidate Evaluation Reports are prepared on the correct forms and that all instructions are followed.

453.2 Responsibilities of Rating Officers - In addition to the responsibilities outlined in paragraph 453.1 above, Rating Officers are responsible for:

- a. Ensuring that subordinates have a clear understanding of their work requirements and priorities.

b. Discussing, on a periodic basis throughout the rating period or at least twice, the Rated Officers' strengths and weaknesses and ways to improve their performance and increase their opportunities for career advancement. (This includes the formal requirement of an oral mid-period discussion of performance with the Rated Officer, which is certified on the rating form.) Such discussions are particularly important with respect to criticisms of employees' performance. Any shortcomings finally noted in a Rated Officer's OER should not come as a year-end surprise.

c. Recognizing superior performance.

d. Advising employees whose performance is seriously weak or unsatisfactory, possibly due to personal or medical problems, of special counseling and/or medical services which are available to assist the employee.

e. Discussing fully and frankly the contents of the OER with the Rated Officer in draft form where circumstances permit.

f. Submitting the completed OER(s) to the correct Element office by the required deadlines.

453.3 Responsibilities of Reviewing Officers - In addition to those responsibilities outlined in paragraph 453.1 above, Reviewing Officers are responsible for:

a. Reporting their evaluations of employees based on personal observations, to the extent practicable. They must take measures to become familiar enough with the work of rated officers to make independent observations.

b. Ensuring that Rating Officers are familiar with the performance evaluation program and are applying uniform rating standards to Rated Officers.

c. Ensuring that the work requirements of positions are fair and reasonable in relation to other positions at the Rated Officer's post or in the Office or Service.

453.4 Responsibilities of Rated Officers - In addition to the responsibilities outlined in paragraph 453.1 above, Rated Officers are responsible for:

a. Participating with the Rating Officer in the formulation of the statement of work requirements and priorities to the extent necessary to ensure understanding by both parties of what constitutes satisfactory performance.

b. Participating in a mid-period discussion of his or her performance with the Rating Officer. Initiating the discussion if the Rating Officer fails to do so.

c. Including in the Rated Officer's section of the OER his or her views of the job performance. This should be done in a timely manner to ensure that the evaluation reaches Washington before the deadline.

d. Signing the OER form to acknowledge receipt of the report after receiving the completed rating.

(1) The Rated Officer's signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with the rating and does not preclude rebuttal by the employee or the filing of a grievance concerning the contents of the OER (3 FAM 4400).

(2) Rated officers who refuse to sign and submit their OERs are vulnerable to disciplinary action (3 FAM 4300).

454 Preparation of Reports

454.1 Report Periods

a. Regular Reports

(1) Regular reports cover the period May 16 of one year through May 15 of the following year or any rating period of three months or longer that ends on May 15.

(a) References to events that occurred before or after to the period being rated may not be included in the OER.

(b) Evaluation reports that cover periods after May 15 of any year will not be available to the Selection Board that convenes for that year.

(2) Regular reports must be prepared and submitted in time to arrive in the appropriate Office or Element in Washington no later than July 15. (See paragraph 455.2 below concerning this and other deadlines.)

b. Interim Reports

(1) Interim reports must be prepared for any period of assignment that covers at least three months but less than a full rating year.

(a) For periods of three to five full months (i.e., 90 through 149 days) the completion of Part II-C (Form IBB - 1191) or Part II-D (Form IBB - 1125) is not required.

(b) Interim reports covering a period of less than three months will not be accepted, except in the very unusual situation where an officer has been in a series of assignments that all lasted less than three months. Under these special circumstances, OHR will accept one interim report that covers the longest single period during the rating year.

(c) Leave (including home leave when returning to the same post and position) is not subtracted from the rating period when calculating the length of the rating period to determine whether an OER is required.

(2) Interim reports must be prepared:

(a) upon the departure of a Rating or Rated Officer.

(b) when there is a significant change in a Rated Officer's duties, even when the Rated Officer remains at the same post and continues to be supervised by the same Rating Officer.

(3) Interim reports must be prepared in sufficient time to permit completion by the Rated Officer before the departure of either officer and must be received in the appropriate Office or Element in Washington no later than 30 days after departure of either officer from the post or a change in duties at the post (See paragraph 455.2 below concerning this and other deadlines).

454.2 Format of Reports - the following OER forms must be used:

a. Regular Reports - Officer Evaluation Report Form IBB-1125 must be used for all Foreign Service Specialists at class 1 and below, including employees on excursion tours. Form IBB-1191 must be used for members of the Senior Foreign Service.

b. Interim Reports - For All Specialist Officers - Interim reports for a rating period of three full months to five full months (e.g., 90 through 149 days) will be prepared on the appropriate OER Form. When the period covered is less than five months (150 days), Section II-D, Future Assignments, should be omitted.

c. Prohibition of Memoranda - Normally, a memorandum covering an employee's performance will not be accepted.

454.3 Confidentiality of Reports - OERs must be handled in a way to protect their confidentiality consistent with the Privacy Act of 1974, which restricts the dissemination of certain information concerning individual employees.

454.4 Limitation on Comments - In the narrative portions of the OER, comments must be limited to the space provided for each topic, except in the Rated Officer's section, where continuation sheets are permitted.

454.5 Inadmissible Comments - A number of factors must not be included in the report by any of the participants in the rating process (Rating Officer, Reviewing Officer, or Rated Officer). Reports containing inadmissible comments will be returned to the responsible officer for correction.

The following subjects are inadmissible in all parts of the report and in evaluative materials submitted for inclusion in the Performance File and cannot be mentioned either in direct or indirect comments.

a. Race, color, religion, sex (does not extend to use of Mr., Mrs., Ms., first names, or personal pronouns), sexual orientation, national origin, age (including references to "young," "old timer," “approaching retirement”, etc.), disability, and reasonable accommodation for disability;

b. Rankings, recommendations, or results of past Selection Boards, including any impending selection out or termination of appointment;

c. Physical characteristics and personal qualities that do not affect performance or potential;

d. Marital status or plans and references to spouse or family member, including references to social activities or the ability of a spouse or family member to represent the United States;

e. Retirement, resignation, or other separation plans;

f. Participation in job sharing or telecommuting;

g. Grievance, equal employment opportunity, or Merit Systems Protection Board proceedings;

h. Method of entry into the Service;

i. Names of private U.S. citizens;

j. Participation or non-participation in unions or other employee organizations or activities;

k. Ratings for earlier periods prepared by other supervisors;

l. Reluctance to work voluntary overtime;

m. Leave record, except for references to unauthorized absence;

n. Letters of Reprimand;

o. Recommendations or comments for or against promotion, performance pay award, Presidential Rank Award, career status, and Limited Career Extensions;

p. Specific identification of or details of a physical handicap or medical problem (including alcoholism, drug abuse, or rehabilitation efforts), except that (a) general reference may be made to confirmed knowledge of a medical problem to the extent it affects job performance and (b) rated officers may discuss their own health problems in specific terms if rating or reviewing officers have made reference to such problems or to explain or clarify adverse comments in a report;

q. Comments on efforts to enter the Senior Foreign Service or to obtain career status or for appointment as a Specialist.

r. Negative or pejorative discussion of the performance of another identifiable employee to which that employee is not privy and has no opportunity for rebuttal. For example, the Rating Officer may not state that the Rated Officer "quickly brought order out of the chaos left by her predecessor."

- s. References to events and/or performance before or after the rating period.
- t. References to previous ratings, except to note trends in performance that continued in the current year. Remarks such as "see OER dated June, 1981" or "All that I have to say about Mr. A has been said in the OER I prepared for the previous rating period" are inadmissible.
- u. Verbatim repetitions from previous OERs (except in Parts I-A and I-B, where such statements are permitted if applicable, but not encouraged).
- v. Outside activities which are not relevant to performance or post effectiveness.
- w. References to other documents. e.g., cables, memos, etc., which are not part of the officer's Performance File. The Rating Officer may, however, properly include quotes from such documents, if the documents are properly identified.
- x. References to the class of the position held by the employee, e.g., "Mr. Doe is an FP-3 officer in an FP-2 position."

455 Submission and Disposition of Reports

455.1 Submission of Reports

- a. No more than three copies of the Officer Evaluation Report (OER) may be prepared. Only the original copy of the OER should be submitted. The Rated Officer must receive a copy of the OER.
- b. The completed OER must be submitted by the Rating Officer directly to the appropriate Office or Element office. Only the original copy of the OER will be placed in the Performance File except under fully explained circumstances acceptable to the officer concerned.
- c. Completed ratings are forwarded by the receiving Office or Element to OHR for placement in Performance Files.

455.2 Deadlines for Submission of Officer Evaluation Reports

a. Regular Reports

- (1) July 15 is the due date for all Foreign Service Specialist OERs covering a full rating year (including reports for members of the Senior Foreign Service). OERs not completed by all three officers (Rating, Reviewing, and Rated) and received by OHR by August 1 will be considered delinquent (see also paragraph 456 below).
- (2) The following schedule must be observed:

(a) By COB July 1 the Rating Officer must complete the Rating Officer's section and must forward the OER to the Reviewing Officer.

(b) By COB July 10 the Reviewing Officer must complete the Reviewing Officer's section and must forward the OER to the Rated Officer.

(c) The Rated Officer must complete the Rated Officer's section and must forward the OER to the Rating Officer in sufficient time so that the report will not be considered delinquent.

b. Interim Reports are due in Washington within 30 days after the departure of a Rated or Rating Officer, or a significant change in the Rated Officer's duties. Reports not completed by all three officers and received in OHR by August 1 will be considered delinquent (see also paragraph 456 below).

455.3 Reporting and Record-Keeping Requirements

a. Post Responsibilities

(1) By July 10 overseas posts must advise the appropriate Element office, with the status of the OER (full year or interim) for each officer for whom an OER is required including the date and means by which the completed OER was sent, along with the registry or tracking number.

(2) If an OER has not been submitted, the post must so indicate and provide an explanation identifying the officer accountable for the delinquency.

b. Element Responsibilities

(1) Elements are responsible for tracking OERs and assuring that all ratings for element foreign service personnel are completed and received in the Element Office within the prescribed deadlines.

(2) No later than July 20 and August 5, each Element will report to OHR the status of ratings as of July 15 and August 1.

(a) Status reports must include: the name of the Rated Officer; the dates of the rating period; the dates the rating was completed by the Rating, Reviewing, and Rated Officers; and, for overseas reports, the date and means by which the report was sent, along with the registry or tracking number.

(b) If an OER has not been received by August 1, the Element must determine and identify the Rating, Reviewing, or Rated Officer responsible for the delinquency.

(3) Completed ratings are to be forwarded to OHR.

(4) Element heads are personally responsible for seeing that these duties are carried out.

455.4 Disposition of Reports

- a. Only three copies of an OER may be prepared.
  - b. The original copy of the OER must be submitted for placement in the employee's Performance File. A duplicate copy of the OER must be given to the Rated Officer. Both copies must be signed.
  - c. In accordance with BAM 5-B Part 900, the third copy of the OER will not be kept in the post personnel folder, but will be maintained and kept by the Rating Officer.
- (1) A copy of the current OER prepared on employees assigned to that post may be kept only by the employee's supervisor (the Rating Officer) to allow the Rating Officer a convenient method of comparing current performance with the officer's prior rating.
- (2) When a new OER is completed, the copy of the previous report will be destroyed. If either Rated or Rating Officer is reassigned or departs the post, the OER will be destroyed immediately.
- (3) Performance files kept by the supervisors will be kept under appropriate safeguards and access is restricted to the Rating and Rated Officers.

456 Delinquent Reports and Criticisms of Evaluation Reports by Selection Boards (Deficient Reports)

456.1 Purpose - Each employee is entitled to have a current and properly prepared Officer Evaluation Report in his or her file for review by the Selection Board. The sanctions for delinquent and deficient reports reflect the basic view that Rating and Reviewing Officers should not themselves be promoted if, by being dilatory in the preparation of OERs on their subordinates, they have compromised promotion opportunities of their subordinates.

456.2 Definition of Delinquency

- a. Paragraph 455.2 above outlines specific deadlines for the submission of regular and interim reports. Rating and Reviewing Officers who do not meet these deadlines will be considered responsible for any delinquency in the filing of an OER.
- b. As required by paragraph 455.3 above, Element offices must identify the Rating, Reviewing, or Rated Officer responsible for the delinquency of an OER.

456.3 Delinquency Procedures - The procedures to be followed concerning delinquent reports are outlined in the Agreement on Delinquent Foreign Service Specialist Officer Evaluation reports contained in Exhibit 450A.

456.4 Definition of a Deficient Report

a. The Selection Boards have the authority to cite Rating and Reviewing Officers who merit criticism for the deficient quality of ratings/reviews prepared by them for the most current rating period reviewed by the Boards.

b. Deficiencies include such things as:

(1) Rating fails to tell the Board whether the Rated Officer possesses the necessary core skills for a sustained career in the foreign service.

(2) Rating contains overly general phrases regarding the quality of the Rated Officer's performance without any amplification or supporting documentation.

(3) Rating contains insufficient examples of significant accomplishments. Thus the Board is unable to assess the quality of the Rated Officer's performance.

(4) Rating lacks qualitative assessments and judgments of how the Rated Officer performed, supported by well-drawn examples.

(5) Rating is unclear about whether the Rated Officer accomplished the stated work requirements.

(6) Reviewing statement adds nothing of substance.

456.5 Deficient Evaluation Report Procedures - The procedures to be followed concerning deficient evaluation reports are given in Exhibit 450A. The cited officer's current supervisor will receive notification of the Board criticism the first time a deficiency is cited. (The supervisor is encouraged to use this notice constructively in assisting the employee to improve his/her writing skills.) If the employee receives a second consecutive Board criticism the memorandum will again be submitted to the supervisor and submitted to the employee to provide an opportunity for rebuttal. Both the memorandum and the employee rebuttal will be placed in the employee's performance file for a two-year period from the date of the second consecutive memorandum from the Board. (Refer to Exhibit 450A)

457 *Unassigned*

458 *Unassigned*

459 Rebuttals and Appeals

459.1 Discussion with Rating or Reviewing Officer - An employee who wishes to rebut or appeal an OER should, in most instances, first discuss it with the Rating or Reviewing Officer, as appropriate.

a. If the officer agrees to revise the evaluation, the appropriate changes shall be made on all copies.

b. Revisions cannot be made after the annual Selection Board has convened and reviewed the evaluation, except through the Foreign Service Grievance Procedures (3 FAM 4400).

459.2 Use of Rated Officer's Section - An employee who fails to obtain satisfaction after a discussion with the Rating or Reviewing Officer may use the Rated Officer's section of the evaluation to refute statements in the record which the employee considers to be based on incomplete data or on limited observation or to be unfair. In completing the Rated Officer's section, the employee must comply with the evaluation instructions and regulations.

459.3 Election to Appeal - An employee who chooses to appeal any section of the evaluation must follow the Foreign Service Grievance Procedures, as outlined in 3 FAM 4400.

459.4 Certification of Receipt of Evaluation - In all cases, Rated Officers must sign the statement on the appropriate page of the evaluation form to document that he or she has received a copy of the report. The Rated Officer's signature does not necessarily indicate agreement with the report and does not preclude rebuttal by the employee or the filing of a grievance.

EXHIBIT 450A - Agreement on Delinquent Foreign Service Specialist Officer Evaluation Reports

a. Purpose - It is the purpose of the Agency and the Union to ensure that all employees are treated equally and fairly in the promotion process. To this end, each employee is entitled to have a current and properly prepared Evaluation Report in his or her file for review by the Selection Boards. The following procedures provide specific guidelines for the timely preparation of Officer Evaluation Reports (OERs) and prescribe sanctions for Rating and Reviewing Officers who do not abide by the guidelines.

b. Rating and Reviewing Officer Responsibilities

(1) Deadlines for Full Year Reports:

(a) July 15 is the due date for receipt of all Foreign Service Overseas Specialist OERs covering a full rating year (5/16-5/15). OERs not completed by all three officers and received in the appropriate BBG element office by August 1 will be considered delinquent. However, Rating or Reviewing Officers who have more than 15 evaluations to write and have extenuating circumstances that keep them from meeting the July 15 deadline, may request an extension to the deadline by contacting the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer before July 8.

(b) The following schedule will be observed:

- By COB July 1 the Rating Officer must complete his or her portion and forward the OER to the Reviewing Officer.
- By COB July 10 the Reviewing Officer must complete his or her portion and forward the OER to the Rated Officer.

(2) Deadlines for Interim Reports:

(a) Interim reports are due in Washington within 30 calendar days after the departure of a Rated or Rating Officer, or a significant change in the Rated Officer's duties.

These reports should be prepared in sufficient time to permit completion by all parties prior to the departure of the officer, or as soon thereafter as possible.

(b) Delinquencies and penalties will apply to interim reports covering periods of six months or longer that do not make the August 1 deadline.

(3) Rating or Reviewing Officers who do not meet the deadlines described in Section (1)(b) above will be considered responsible for any delinquency in the filing of the OER.

c. Post Responsibilities

- (1) All OERs must be sent registered air pouch or by express mail (USPS or commercial) to the appropriate element.
- (2) By July 10 overseas posts must advise the appropriate element of the status of the OER (full year or interim) for each officer for whom an OER is required including the date and means by which the completed OER was sent, along with the registry or tracking number.
- (3) If an OER has not been submitted, the post must so indicate and provide an explanation identifying the officer accountable for the delinquency.

d. Element and OHR Responsibilities

- (1) Elements are responsible for assuring that all ratings are completed and received in OHR within the prescribed deadlines.
- (2) The Directors of the Elements or Offices involved are responsible for seeing that these duties are carried out.

e. Sanctions

- (1) As soon as possible after August 1, OHR will inform each Rating and Reviewing Officer (by registered email or memorandum) who is considered responsible for a delinquent OER that:
  - (a) The officer is considered responsible for one or more delinquent reports;
  - (b) The officer has the opportunity to submit a written statement to OHR no later than October 1, explaining any circumstances which might justify the delinquency;
  - (c) The explanation submitted by the officer will be reviewed by the Director of OHR to determine whether the delinquency should be excused;
  - (d) If the delinquency is not excused by the Director of OHR, a memorandum of Delinquency will be placed in the responsible Officer's Performance File (with the Officer's explanation attached) for a period of five years;
  - (e) The Selection Board Panels will be instructed in the Precepts to consider the memorandum in evaluating officer performance as follows:

Delinquent Reports

“Some officer's files may contain memoranda indicating that an officer is responsible for more delinquent OERs prepared on subordinates. If the officer has submitted an explanation for the delinquency, which should be attached to the memorandum, the Panel must evaluate the explanation and determine the appropriate weight to be given the delinquency. If the Panel is persuaded by the explanation that the delinquency was unavoidable (such as serious illness on the part of the Rating/Reviewing Officer or other extenuating circumstances clearly outside the officer's control), the Panel should not allow the delinquency to prejudice the officer's ranking. However, should the Panel find the explanation unsatisfactory, this finding must be considered adversely in evaluating the officer's managerial ability and fulfillment of his/her supervisory responsibilities.”

(f) The Director of OHR will place a Memorandum of Delinquency in the Performance File of any Rating or Reviewing Officer determined to be inexcusably responsible for a delinquency. The steps indicated in section A above will be followed. The Director, OHR, may place a letter of Reprimand in the Personnel File of any civil service employee who is inexcusably delinquent in the preparation and/or submission of an OER on a Foreign Service Specialist subordinate. More stringent disciplinary action may be taken in extreme cases of delinquency such as those involving a pattern of inexcusable delinquencies, in accordance with applicable disciplinary procedures.

NOTE: If the Director of OHR is aware of circumstances which warrant the excusal of a delinquency, he or she may excuse the delinquency without requesting an explanation from the officer.

EXHIBIT 450B - Instructions for the Preparation of Officer Evaluation Reports (OERs) for Foreign Service Specialists, Using Form IBB-1125

Introduction

The Officer Evaluation Report (OER) is one of the most important management tools the Agency has. The OER includes a description of the Rated Officer's work requirements and priorities. It provides a means of feedback to the Rated Officer, and outlines the criteria by which that officer will be appraised.

In addition, the OER is used by the Foreign Service Selection Boards in making recommendations for promotion, selection-out for performance, denial of within class increases, meritorious step increases, and the like. It also assists the Agency in the career development and training of Foreign Service personnel and serves as the basis for the Overseas Specialist Selection Board decisions to deny or grant career tenure to Overseas Specialist career candidates.

Personnel Covered

Officer Evaluation Report Form IBB-1125 (3/2004) must be used for all IBB employees designated Overseas Specialists (whether assigned overseas or in the U.S.) except for those who are members of the Senior Foreign Service. Form IBB-1125 will also be used for employees who are covered under a Foreign Service (Non-Career) Limited Appointment.

General Information

The Rating Officer must be the Rated Officer's supervisor, except under unusual circumstances. If the question of who shall rate the member arises, the appropriate Office Director and the Office of Human Resources shall decide. If conditions require the preparation of the report by someone other than the supervisor, the circumstances shall be explained on the report and the Rated Officer and Rating Officer relationship clearly described.

The Reviewing Officer will usually be the Rating Officer's supervisor. In cases where there is no officer senior to the Rating Officer with sufficient knowledge of the employee's performance to carry out the reviewing function, the circumstances must be explained in the OER. Reviewing Officers should acquaint themselves with employees whose ratings they review and develop personal knowledge of their performance.

BAM 5-B 450, Performance Evaluation, contains all the necessary information on when to prepare reports, where to send them, designation of Rating and Reviewing Officers, inadmissible comments, etc. The parties should be familiar with these requirements.

Written comments in any evaluation report may not extend beyond the space allowed unless the instructions to the evaluation report expressly authorize extensions. Only the Rated Officer may use extension sheets. To make the form as easy to read as possible, we strongly recommend that all parties leave white space in the narratives, i.e., stay within the boundaries provided, have normal spacing between lines in the texts, and indent paragraphs. Narratives may not exceed the space provided for it under each heading or section. Also, use a standard type face that is no smaller than 11 pitch.

You may reproduce additional OER forms or access the form via the BBG Intranet site.

How to Complete the Form

Prior to completing the work objectives and again when preparing the discussion of performance, the Rating Officer should review the criteria for promotion and tenuring found in the Precepts. The Precepts are policy statements about what constitutes positive and desirable performance by members of the Foreign Service.

Officer's Position

The Rating Officer should describe briefly the position of the Rated Officer, state precisely where the position fits in the organization, and indicate the number and type of personnel (American and Foreign Nationals) supervised. If the Rating and Rated Officers are not at the same post, the Rating Officer must state the distance between the posts and indicate the amount of time the Rating Officer actually observes the Rated Officer in a work situation.

Work Requirements and Priorities

The Rating and Rated Officer should formulate jointly the statement of work requirements during the first 45 days of the rating period (or within 45 days after arrival on duty of either officer). The views of the Rating Officer, as supervisor, prevail in the event of any disagreements. Work requirements may be modified or amended throughout the rating period.

This section should indicate clearly the specific responsibilities and assignments the Rated Officer is expected to perform during the rating year in priority order and should be sufficiently explicit to convey the extent of the officer's responsibilities and scope of work. Names of organizations or other entities should be spelled out.

Periodic Reviews

While frequent discussion of the Rated Officer's progress in meeting the Work Requirements in Section I of the OER is desirable, only one formal review is required mid-way through the rating period. This discussion should be documented on page 4 of the OER.

The primary intent of the mid-period review is to assure, to the extent possible, that the Rated Officer is apprised of how well, he/she is meeting the established work requirements. Discussions between the Rating and Rated Officers should address specific areas of accomplishment and those areas in which the Rated Officer should improve. Any critical judgments which are made in the OER should not come as a surprise to the Rated Officer.

Performance Factors

The Rating Officer must check the most appropriate adjective in each category after carefully reading the definitions of the factors listed on the form. If there has not been sufficient opportunity to observe performance, enter I/O (insufficiently observed). If the factor is not applicable to the Rated Officer's work, enter N/A (not applicable). If the Rated Officer is a supervisor, then the Rating Officer must provide a rating for all categories. The boxes checked in this section must be consistent with the overall rating given. Any discrepancy must be addressed in the Discussion of Work Performance as explained in the instructions section titled "General Appraisal." The rating on Factor 1, Job Knowledge, should reflect the degree to which the Rated Officer has demonstrated possession of the skills and abilities required by his or her specialty.

Discussion of Work Performance

Prior to completing the form, the Rating Officer should review the criteria in the Precepts for promotion and tenure. These criteria are policy statements about what constitutes positive and desirable performance by members of the Foreign Service and, conversely, what is considered undesirable performance.

The Rating Officer should prepare this section with a close eye to the work requirements and priorities set out in Section I, so that it is possible to judge the Rated Officer's relative success in terms of meeting them. If practical, the narrative should refer to the work requirements and priorities by the number they were given in Section I of the OER.

The Rating Officer must make a qualitative statement about the Rated Officer's work during the rating period, supporting this assessment with specific examples of accomplishments and shortcomings, and any efforts to improve in the areas which were discussed during the mid-period review. A list of tasks performed is not acceptable as a substitution for an evaluation of how work requirements and priorities were carried out and met. The narrative must support the General Appraisal rating and the Performance Factor ratings. The narrative should address the degree to which the Rated Officer has demonstrated possession of the skills and abilities required by his or her specialty.

The Rating Officer should describe any special conditions of the work environment that affected accomplishment of the objectives during the rating period.

General Appraisal

Section II-C provides for a general overall appraisal rating by checking the statement that most closely describes the Rated Officer's overall performance during the rating period. The Rating Officer must check the most appropriate statement. The statements may not be modified in any way. The general appraisal selected must be supported by the performance factors in Section A and the narrative discussion of work performance in Section B. If there is any apparent discrepancy between the performance factors in Section A and the General Appraisal in Section C, the narrative must specifically explain this discrepancy.

Recommendations for Future Assignments

The Rating Officer should indicate what position(s) he/she believes the Rated Officer may be qualified to fill in five years. Suggestions can include specific courses, or the general areas of training and/or experience needed to assist the officer, and should explain specifically why the recommendation was made and how the officer and/or Agency will benefit. This section should not be completed when the rating period covered is less than five months (150 days).

Reviewing Officer's Comments

The Reviewing Officer must take measure from the beginning of the rating period (or when he/she assumes the position that entails the review responsibility) to become familiar with the performance of the Rated Officer and make independent observations. While the Reviewing Officer may hold general discussions with the Rating Officer on the Rated Officer's over-all performance, the Reviewing Officer statement must not be prepared in collaboration with the Rating Officer (or vice versa). If there cannot be a Reviewing Officer's Statement, the reasons for no statement must be indicated on the OER under this section.

The Reviewing Officer should address the degree to which the Rated Officer has demonstrated possession of the skills and abilities required by his or her specialty.

Evaluation reports will be shared in draft by the Reviewing Officer with a senior career official designated by the Director of OHR prior to the report being forwarded to the Rated Officer. This senior official will review the draft rating for consistency in the candid evaluation of rated officers across the specialty with regard to reports addressing both the positive and less desirable aspects of the Rated Officer's performance and potential and enabling the Selection Boards to make judgments on the extent to which specialists have developed and maintained the specific skills required of the specialty and to make the necessary distinctions between officers. The senior official will provide related guidance on the draft report to the Rating and Reviewing Officers for their consideration in completing their portions of the evaluation report.

Rated Officer's Comments

This section permits the Rated Officer to provide additional insights into his/her performance, particularly in areas not mentioned elsewhere in the OER. The Rated Officer should summarize major accomplishments and any special problems or circumstances encountered in meeting the work requirements, and indicate progress towards improving areas discussed during the mid-period review. The Rated Officer may also comment on the frequency, content, and usefulness of discussion with the Rating Officer during the rating period.

Completion of this section is particularly important in instances where no Reviewing Officer statement was prepared. Rated Officer's comments should not automatically be construed as a rebuttal of the OER. Rated Officers are reminded that they must sign page 5 of the Report, to acknowledge receipt of the OER, even if they do not provide any Rated Officer's comments. The Rated Officer's signature does not indicate agreement with the rating and does not preclude rebuttal and/or filing a grievance concerning the contents of the OER. A Rated Officer who does not sign and/or submit the OER to the Office of Human Resources is subject to disciplinary action (3 FAM 4300).

Informal Checklist

As the Rating, Reviewing, and Rated Officers complete their sections, they should review the OER to assure that it conforms to the instructions. In addition, all officers should informally check to make sure that the following have been done:

- ___ Rating is typed on IBB-1125 (3/2004)
- ___ Agency's time frame was met (i.e., evaluation report was not delinquent).
- ___ Form typed in 11 or 12 point readable font.
- ___ OER is free of inadmissible comments.
- ___ The narrative addresses all critical and non-critical elements and provides specific Examples reflective of the level recommended.
- ___ Box marked in the general appraisal is supported by the performance factors in Section A and the narrative discussion of work performance in Section B.
- ___ OER provides a candid assessment of the Rated Officer's work.
- ___ Rating Officer signed pages 1, 3, and 4.
- ___ Reviewing Officer signed page 4 or a statement of circumstances must be explained on the OER.
- ___ Rated Officer signed pages 1, 4, and 5.

TITLE 5-B

HUMAN RESOURCES (FOREIGN SERVICE)

PART 460 - PROMOTIONS

461 General

461.1 Coverage - This section applies to the promotion of Foreign Service Specialists in Class 1 and below and members of the Senior Foreign Service (SFS), including Career Candidates. This section does not apply to:

- a. Members of the Foreign Service with non-career appointments,
- b. Foreign Service National Employees. (See 3 FAM 7570)
- c. PIT employees;

461.2 Authority

- a. The regulations relating to promotion of these employees of the Foreign Service are prescribed under authority of sections 302, 303, 305, 404-406, and 601-608 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980.
- b. The promotion process is also governed by the provisions of the Selection Board Safeguard and Establishment and Composition agreements between the American Foreign Service Association and the Broadcasting Board of Governors, International Broadcasting Bureau. These agreements are contained in Exhibits to this Section (Exhibits 460A and 460B for class 1 and below and Exhibits 460D and 460E for Senior Foreign Service) and are supplemented by the provisions of this Section and an annual notification detailing the Precepts for the International Broadcasting Bureau Specialist Selection Boards.

461.3 Promotion Policy - All employees will be compared and judged solely on merit with absolute fairness and justice. In particular, no employee will be discriminated against, directly or indirectly, for reasons of race, color, religion, sex, age, marital status, national origin, disability, reasonable accommodation for disability, sexual orientation, or means of entry into the service.

461.4 Determination of Number of Promotions

- a. The Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau (in consultation, as applicable, with the VOA Director or Director of Engineering and Technical Services) annually determines the number of promotions of members of the Foreign Service and extensions of career appointments (LCEs) reviewed by the selection boards taking into account such factors as vacancies, availability of funds, estimated attrition, projected needs of the Service, and the need for retention of expertise and experience.

b. Decisions by the Director of IBB (in consultation, as applicable, with the VOA Director or Director of Engineering and Technical Services) on the number of promotion opportunities will be based upon a systematic, long-term projection of personnel flows and needs designed to provide:

- (1) A regular, predictable flow of new officers into the Service;
- (2) Effective career development patterns to meet Service needs; and
- (3) A regular, predictable flow of talent upward through the ranks and into the SFS.

c. The number of promotions shall be determined for each class and competition category prior to the submission of findings and recommendations by the responsible selection board. A copy of the list of promotion numbers determined will be escrowed in accordance with the applicable provisions of the Safeguard Agreement at Exhibit 460A.

461.5 Eligibility of Re-appointed FSOs - A Foreign Service Officer re-appointed to the Service after voluntary separation resumes previous status with regard to consideration by Selection Boards if re-appointed to the same class as the one from which separated. Re-appointment means being granted a new career appointment.

461.6 Retroactive Promotion - The Director may retroactively promote a member of the Foreign Service or promote a Class 1 officer into the SFS where:

- a. The promotion delay was occasioned by the removal of the member's name from an earlier list of nominations prepared for submission to the Director; or
- b. The promotion is made to comply with a recommendation or order of the Foreign Service Grievance Board, an Equal Employment Opportunity Appeals Examiner, the Special Counsel, or the Merit Systems Protection Board; or to correct an administrative error; and
- c. Prospective promotion alone would not constitute a fair and adequate remedy to the adversely affected member.

461.7 Exclusions From the Promotion List - The Director, Office of Human Resources, may defer promotion or remove from the promotion list any of the following:

- a. Any employee separated, or pending separation, prior to the date promotions become effective;
- b. Any employee otherwise eligible to have his or her name included on the promotion list, but who is subject to investigation or proceedings by the Office of Security or the Director, Office of Human Resources, involving loyalty, security, misconduct, or malfeasance.

c. When the reason for deferral from a promotion list has been resolved in favor of the employee, the affected employee will be promoted, in accordance with BAM 5-B 461.7 above, retroactive to the effective date of the promotion list from which the employee's name was initially excluded.

d. If the reason for exclusion continues to exist at the time the next Selection Board convenes, the officer will be reviewed in his/her current class in the normal manner.

462 Foreign Service Selection Boards - General Background

462.1 Coverage - Members of the Senior Foreign Service and all employees on the Foreign Service schedule, are considered by annual Selection Boards, except Specialists in Classes 5 and below who are administratively promoted in accordance with BAM 5-B 466.

462.2 Policy - The Director, Office of Human Resources, will convene Selection Boards to evaluate the performance of eligible Foreign Service Specialists and Senior Foreign Service employees.

462.3 Precepts - The Precepts establish the scope, organization, and responsibilities of the Foreign Service Selection Boards and describe the criteria to be used by the Selection Boards in reaching their determinations. The Selection Boards will review the Performance File of eligible members of the Foreign Service to identify members for promotion, performance awards, salary adjustments, and limited career extensions as well as identifying those subject to separation proceedings for unsatisfactory or non-competitive performance.

Precepts are also policy statements of what constitutes positive and desirable performance by career members of the Foreign Service and should serve as a guide in establishing annual work goals or, on the negative side, what is considered unacceptable performance.

462.4 Composition of the Boards

a. The Foreign Service Selection Boards shall be composed of at least three members, including a public member.

Public Members - Each public member shall, so far as possible, meet the following qualifications:

(1) Have gained prominence in a profession, in business, in labor, or in a non-governmental organization or institution serviced by, or having an interest in, the Foreign Service;

(2) Not be employed in the Federal Service; and

(3) Have some overseas experience.

The Chairperson of the Selection Boards shall be the senior-level BBG career employee.

In determining the composition of the Selection Boards, the Agency will seek to insure that there is a substantial representation of women and members of minority groups.

All Selection Board members shall be approved by the Director of IBB (in consultation, as applicable, with the Directors of VOA and Engineering and Technical Services) and names of proposed Selection Board members shall be provided to the exclusive representative, if any, for comment.

c. Specific composition of each Board Panel is provided for in the Agreements for the Establishment and Composition of Selection Boards at Exhibit 460B (for Class 1 and below) and Exhibit 460E (for Senior Foreign Service).

462.5 Basis for Selection Board Review

a. Each Selection Board panel will base its decisions only on the performance file, which includes the Professional Experience Profile maintained on each specialist. Recommendations and rankings by Selection Boards shall be based on records of ability, conduct, quality of work, industry, experience, dependability, usefulness, and general performance of members of the Service. The performance file may also include commendations, reports of language test scores, awards, reprimands, and other disciplinary actions.

b. Overseas Service Requirement - Overseas service means serving overseas in a regular assignment. It does not include travel normally associated with domestic assignments such as inspection or Director trips.

463 Senior Foreign Service (SFS) Selection Board

463.1 Coverage - This section applies to career members of the Senior Foreign Service (SFS) and to Class 1 employees. The SFS is comprised of three classes: Career Minister (CM), Minister-Counselor (MC), and Counselor (OC).

463.2 Policy - The following policies, subject to the provisions of the Foreign Service Promotion Safeguards Agreement (Exhibit 460A), apply specifically to promotion into and within the Senior Foreign Service.

a. SFS Specialists will be reviewed by the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board. Specialists in Class 1 will be reviewed for promotion into the SFS by the annual Specialist Selection Board.

b. BBG will nominate to the President those career members of the SFS who should be promoted to a higher class and those career members of the Service who should be promoted into the SFS. BBG's nominations will be in accordance with the recommendations of the annual Selection Board.

c. Career members of the Foreign Service shall be promoted into the SFS by appointment of the President, by and with the consent of the Senate, to the class of Counselor.

463.3 Specialist Selection Board Panels

The Specialist Selection Board Panels will consider for promotion into the Senior Foreign Service all Class 1 specialists. Promotion opportunities to the Counselor level for specialists are extremely limited and may not exist in some years in certain specialty categories. However, only specialists who have applied for entry into the SFS may be promoted into the SFS. Those specialists who have not applied will be removed from the rank-order promotion list.

463.4 Limited Career Extensions (LCEs) (See also BAM 5-B 742.3)

a. Prior to the convening of the Selection Board, BBG will determine the number of LCEs to be authorized in the Specialist categories by specialty. The determination will be made in conjunction with the determination of annual promotion opportunities based on the need for expertise and experience in the Service and the need to provide a regular and predictable flow of talent through the ranks.

b. LCEs are distributed in accordance with the rank-ordered recommendations of the Selection Board Panels. The Panels will make their recommendations in accordance with the Precepts governing the Boards. Names may be removed from a Board LCE rank-order list only under the conditions and procedures established regarding removal of names from promotion lists.

c. Criteria for Board Review - (See BAM 5-B 742.3)

d. Notwithstanding Time-In-Class, Time-in-Service, and LCE limits otherwise applicable, career members who have reached the mandatory retirement age of 65 will be retired in accordance with the provisions of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 and BBG regulations.

463.5 Effecting Promotions of Senior Foreign Service Members

a. The effective date of appointment for Senior Foreign Service members promoted into a higher class and for Class 1 officers promoted into the Senior Foreign Service at the Counselor class is the beginning of the first pay period following confirmation by the Senate and attestation of the nominations list by the President, unless the President specifies another date.

b. If the President's nomination occurs during a recess of the Senate, the Foreign Service Officer receives the basic pay rate of the class to which nominated from the date of the President's nomination to the end of the next session.

(1) If the Senate rejects or fails to act on the appointment, the officer, unless he/she has become liable to selection-out, is automatically reinstated to the class from which nominated at the basic pay the officer was receiving prior to the nomination.

(2) Simultaneously, an action will be processed reflecting any basic pay increases to which the officer would otherwise have been entitled, provided that the officer's performance has met the required standard of the class.

(3) Such reinstatement is effective from the date of the rejection of the nomination, or, in the event of failure of the Senate to act on the nomination during the session following the officer's nomination, from the termination of that session.

464 Senior Foreign Service Performance Pay

464.1 Coverage - This section applies to members of the Senior Foreign Service in the class of Counselor, who serve under career appointments, Limited Career Extensions, Senior Career Candidate appointments, or limited appointments with re-employment rights under Section 310 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 as career appointees in the Senior Executive Service. By law, members who served on Presidential appointments are not eligible while serving on the Presidential appointment.

464.2 Authority

a. Section 405 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 authorizes the award of performance pay to members of the Senior Foreign Service. It also authorizes the Secretary of State to recommend to the President, on the basis of recommendations of an Inter-Agency Selection Board, those members who merit Presidential Rank Awards for distinguished or meritorious service.

b. Sections 602 and 2103 of the Act also provide for eligibility, competition, and award of performance pay.

c. PL 97-377 sets the ceiling on the number of awards and a basic pay ceiling on individual awards.

d. The Precepts for the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board describe the Selection Board's responsibility for recommending Senior Foreign Service Members for Agency performance awards.

e. The provisions of agreements between the exclusive employee representative, and BBG are contained in each year's issuance, detailing the precepts for SFS performance pay, and are supplemented by the provisions of this Section.

f. Agency Performance Award and Presidential Rank Award determinations will be made in accordance with the provisions of BAM 5-B 237.2.

464.3 Types of Awards - Performance Pay includes two types of awards:

a. Agency Performance Awards are conferred on the basis of performance during the most recent rating period. These individual performance awards may not exceed 20% of basic pay and are subject to the limits on total number of awards established by law or the Office of Personnel Management regarding performance bonuses for members of the Senior Executive Service.

b. Presidential Rank Awards are conferred on the basis of recommendations by an Inter-Agency Selection Board to the Secretary of State reviewing SFS members nominated by the Foreign Affairs Agencies. By law, the Secretary of State submits the final recommendations to the President for action. Presidential awards consist of the Distinguished Service Award for sustained extraordinary accomplishment, which carries a payment of 35% of base pay; and the Meritorious Service Award for sustained superior accomplishment, which carries a cash stipend of up to 20% of base pay.

464.4 Eligibility for Awards - To be eligible for Performance Pay, an SFS career officer or career candidate must have been:

- a. Evaluated for a minimum period of 120 days or more during the most recent rating cycle;
- b. A member of the SFS at the end of the most recent rating cycle; and
- c. Evaluated on the Officer Evaluation Report Form, IBB-1191, in compliance with BAM 5-B 454.2.
- d. Those who served on a Presidential appointment during the rating year are not eligible for Performance Pay.

464.5 Performance Pay Criteria

- a. Recommendations for Performance Pay awards shall be based on the following criteria:
  - (1) The relative value of the member's achievement to the accomplishment of the Department's mission;
  - (2) The degree of difficulty inherent in successful achievement by the member;
  - (3) The extent to which achievement was characterized by strong executive leadership and significant contributions in the formulation of agency policies and programming;
  - (4) Effective supervision and development of subordinates;
  - (5) Participation in outreach or "community service" activities that contribute to employee welfare and strengthen the Department as an institution, such as recruiting (e.g., duty on the Board of Examiners or as Diplomat in Residence), mentoring, and Selection Board work;
  - (6) Evidence that an employee actively promotes leadership and management training at the organizational unit level. Enhances that training and applies the principles of leadership and management training of foster organizational improvement;
  - (7) The extent of demonstrated highly developed functional, foreign language, and area expertise;

(8) Achievements in the areas of cost reduction, efficiency, quality of work, productivity, and timeliness to the end of improving Foreign Service managerial flexibility and effectiveness;

(9) Meeting affirmative action goals and achievements of equal opportunity requirements;

(10) Achievements in the identification, correction, and control of waste, fraud, and mismanagement; and

(11) Evidence of effective performance management and evaluation as demonstrated by timely submission of employee evaluation reports.

Failure to manage classified material and information properly should be regarded as a serious impediment to the recommendation of performance pay.

b. Members considered for nomination for Presidential Rank Awards, in addition to being judged by the criteria above, must have consistently demonstrated sustained accomplishment at a superior or extraordinary level as a member of the Senior Foreign Service, or in equivalent grades, for at least three annual rating cycles, as well as exhibiting qualities of integrity and creativity, and have maintained a high degree of public trust. Evidence of significant sustained accomplishment may be found in:

(1) Significant contributions to the national interest in the field of foreign affairs including public diplomacy and international trade and development; or, for SFS members on detail, in areas of foreign or domestic policy;

(2) Managerial accomplishments in cooperative efforts with other foreign affairs agencies, with other Federal agencies, other U.S. Government entities, and/or with the private sector; and/or

(3) Achievements of agency wide importance in policy, technical, program, and/or human or material resource terms.

464.6 Performance Pay Procedures

a. Policy - The Director, Office of Human Resources, will ask the Annual SFS Selection Board to review the performance of each candidate eligible for agency performance awards and Presidential Rank Awards and, on the basis of the evaluation material in the performance files, rank order those whom it deems deserving of performance pay awards prior to making any other determination.

b. Determination of Number of Performance Awards - BBG will determine the number of awards to be authorized within the limits prescribed by law before the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board meets and the numbers will be placed in escrow. Upon receipt of the Selection Board's recommendations, BBG will determine the amount of the awards in accordance with the tercile charts included in BAM 5-B 237.

c. Basis for Selection Board Review - See paragraphs 462.3 and 462.4 above.

d. Submission of Board's Findings and Recommendations - Each Panel's findings will be forwarded to the Director, Office of Human Resources, under a transmittal letter signed by Panel Members. The Panel's report will include rank-order lists of all Members recommended for performance pay awards.

464.7 Effecting Performance Pay

a. The envelope containing number of awards will be opened in the presence of the Director, OHR, and the Exclusive Representative. The Director, OHR, will forward the Panel's findings to the BBG once he/she has annotated the findings to indicate the number of performance pay opportunities. The full number of awards authorized will be paid subject to any applicable statutory limits. Names may be removed from a Panel performance pay rank-order list only under the conditions and procedures established regarding removal of names from promotion lists (see paragraph 461.9 above).

b. BBG will, at the earliest administratively feasible date following its receipt of the Panel's findings, pay the Agency performance awards and publish the alphabetical list of award recipients in accordance with the Panel's findings.

464.8 SFS Selection Board Procedure for Presidential Rank Awards

a. The Annual SFS Selection Board Panel will recommend which Senior Foreign Service Members should be nominated for Presidential Rank awards after they have completed their deliberations on nominations for Agency performance awards. The Director, OHR, will advise the panel in advance of their deliberations of the number of nominations they may make by class.

b. The Panels will review the records of all eligible SFS members together as directed above in paragraph 464.5, and recommend which Senior Foreign Service Members should be considered for Presidential Rank Awards.

c. Panels will prepare a statement of justification to support their recommendations.

464.9 Payment of Presidential Rank Awards

Presidential Rank Awards will be paid to all recipients named by the President in the amounts indicated as soon as feasible, subject to the applicable legal limitations.

465 Foreign Service Specialist Selection Boards

465.1 Coverage

a. This applies to career members of the Foreign Service and Career Candidates in Class 1 through Class 4.

b. This does not apply to Specialists at Classes 5 and below, who are administratively promoted in accordance with BAM 5-B 466.

465.2 Policy - The following policies apply specifically to the promotion of employees covered by BAM 5-B 465 and supplement the general policies in BAM 5-B 461 and 462.

a. Members of the Foreign Service covered by this paragraph will be promoted by approval of the Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau, in accordance with the recommendations and rankings of annual Selection Boards, to a higher class in the Foreign Service Schedule.

b. Career members in Classes 2 through 4, will be considered for promotion by functional specialty and class by the selection boards.

c. Career members of Class 1 will be considered for promotion with other Specialists in their class and specialty by the selection boards in accordance with the precepts, which have been negotiated with the exclusive representative.

d. Promotion into the SFS will be on the basis of merit and the needs of the Service. The precepts will emphasize performance which demonstrates the executive leadership qualities, strong policy formulation capabilities, and highly developed functional and area expertise, which are required by the Senior Foreign Service.

465.3 Promotion Procedures

a. Preparing Promotion Lists

Subject to the provisions of the Foreign Service Promotion Safeguards Agreement (Exhibit 460A):

(1) The Director of IBB, in consultation, as applicable, with the Directors of VOA or Engineering and Technical Services, will determine the number of promotion opportunities for each class and specialty category before the Selection Boards convene. A list of opportunities for each Board will be placed in escrow in a repository agreed on by International Broadcasting Bureau and the exclusive representative until after the Selection Boards have completed their deliberations.

(2) Following submission of all the Selection Board Panels' rank-order lists for promotion of Specialists, the list of the predetermined numbers of promotions shall be retrieved. Employees to be promoted will be taken from the rank-order lists, in order, beginning with the highest ranking and continuing until the limit of promotion opportunities is reached.

(3) The Director, Office of Human Resources, will exclude from the promotion list any employee falling within the criteria of paragraph 461.8 above.

b. Approval of the Promotion List - The Director, Office of Human Resources, sends the final list of Foreign Service promotions for Specialists to the Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau for approval.

465.4 Effective Date of Promotions

The effective date of promotions is the beginning of the first pay period following approval by the Director.

465.5 Notice of Promotion Action

Officers whose names appear on the promotion list are informed by announcement as soon as the Director approves the list.

466 Administrative Promotion of Foreign Service Specialists Based on Satisfactory Performance

466.1 Policy - Career Candidates and career members of the Foreign Service will be promoted administratively by the Director, Office of Human Resources, up to the Class 4 level if their overall performance is at the 'satisfactory to excellent' or higher level and thus demonstrates possession of the skills required at the higher-class level. (A list of these skills is included in Exhibit 460C - Precepts for the Annual Foreign Service Specialist Selection Board (Class 1 and Below)).

466.2 Consideration for Promotion - The Director, Office of Human Resources, will consider specialists in Class 5 for promotion to Class 4 following completion of 18 months in class in his/her current specialty. Specialists recommended for promotion will be promoted effective the beginning of the first pay period following completion of the required time in class.

466.3 Procedures

a. At the time the specialist completes 16 months in class in his/her current specialty as an FP-05, the Office of Human Resources will inform the specialist's supervisor of the specialist's eligibility for promotion and will inquire whether the specialist's current performance meets the criteria set forth in paragraph 466.1 above.

- (1) The supervisor will reply in writing (by e-mail or other means if overseas).
- (2) The supervisor's recommendation shall be forwarded through the appropriate Office Director for his or her concurrence.
- (3) The supervisor must state the reasons that justify a recommendation that the specialist not be promoted.
- (4) The specialist has the option of commenting on the reply giving his or her view of the recommendation and may grieve in accordance with the provisions of 3 FAM 4400.

b. On the basis of the supervisor's recommendation, and any pertinent evaluative material (such as Officer Evaluation Reports or training reports) covering earlier periods while in present class, the Director, Office of Human Resources, will either:

(1) Initiate a personnel action to promote the specialist; or

(2) Deny the promotion. The Director, Office of Human Resources, will notify the specialist that the promotion has been denied.

(a) The specialist will be advised that his or her performance will be monitored for improvement over a period of six months, after which time the specialist will again be considered for promotion.

(b) If the specialist becomes eligible for a within-class increase during the six-month period, the Director, Office of Human Resources, shall direct that the increase be denied if overall performance is below the "uniformly satisfactory" level. An unsatisfactory rating at the completion of this six-month period may lead to separation of the specialist (see BAM 5-B 745).

(c) The administrative promotion of any otherwise eligible specialist under the provisions of this section who is subject to investigation or proceedings involving loyalty, security, misconduct, or malfeasance will be delayed until the Director, Office of Human Resources, has determined that the reason for the investigation or proceeding has been favorably resolved.

(d) Specialists administratively promoted to Class 4 will be eligible for consideration for promotion to Class 3 by the first Annual Foreign Service Specialist Selection Board to meet after they have been in Class 4 for one year.

EXHIBIT 460A

Foreign Service Specialist Selection Board Safeguard Agreement (Class 1 and Below)

In order to maintain a high degree of confidence in the integrity of the Selection Board process, the International Broadcasting Bureau and the American Foreign Service Association (AFSA) set forth their agreement on the following provisions concerning the Selection Board process:

(1) Selection Boards will submit:

- (a) rank order lists of officers recommended for promotion, limited career extensions, and performance pay;
  - (b) alphabetical lists of officers not recommended for promotion, limited career extensions, and performance pay;
  - (c) alphabetical lists of officers identified as having failed to maintain the standards of their class and relative performance; and;
  - (d) alphabetical lists of officers whose next within-class increase should be denied.
  - (e) memoranda informing officers that their performance is perceived as marginal.
  - (f) letters of low ranking.
  - (g) deficiencies in the officers file.
  - (h) recommendations on the training any member reviewed.
  - (i) recommendations concerning policies and procedures for subsequent Boards and improvements to the performance evaluation system, except that if a Board has no recommendations to make, it shall so state.
  - (j) a list of rating and reviewing officers who merit commendation or criticism for the quality of the evaluation reports they prepared in the most recent rating period or, if there is none, then a statement that no rating or reviewing officer merited commendation or criticism. In each case where an officer is criticized, the Board shall prepare a written statement citing deficiencies.
- (2) Except as provided in paragraph (5), below, after a Selection Board has submitted a rank-order list to the Director, Office of Human Resources (OHR), no alteration shall be made in the order of the names on the list and, without the consent of the individual concerned, no names falling within the promotion zone or names falling within the LCE zone shall be excluded from the promotion or LCE list except for one of the following reasons: death, retirement, or resignation or separation from the Service. Promotion of persons whose names fall within the promotion zone will be deferred if they have:

- (a) a promotion limitation due to lack of language proficiency or
- (b) been referred to the Office of Security, the Office of the Inspector General, or the OHR Director on the grounds that the individual is the subject of investigation or proceedings involving loyalty, security, suitability, misconduct, or malfeasance. Promotion of these officers will be processed in accordance with published Agency promotion regulations.

No name will be removed from the performance pay list because of death or retirement after the end of the rating period.

In each such case any employee still in the Service whose name has been excluded or deferred shall be officially notified in writing of the particulars. The Agency shall notify AFSA of the numbers (but not names) of individuals excluded and the reasons for such exclusions. Such information shall be held in complete confidence.

(3) Except as provided herein, no person whose name was rank-ordered by the Selection Board but whose name did not fall within the promotion zone shall have his/her name placed on a promotion list. The names of persons falling into the following categories may be placed on a promotion list:

- (a) any person recommended for promotion by the Director in accordance with a recommendation of the Foreign Service Grievance Board, or by an equal employment opportunity appeals examiner; or
- (b) any person whose name had previously been deferred in accordance with paragraph (2) of the agreement and the reason for that deferral has ceased to exist; or
- (c) any person who is the next highest individual on the rank-order list and therefore moves into the promotion zone as the result of the proper exclusion from the promotion list of another name from within the zone in accordance with paragraph (2) of this agreement.

The Agency will notify AFSA of the numbers of individuals placed on a promotion list in accordance with each of the exceptions, and the rationale for each addition.

(4) The Agency shall predetermine the numbers of promotion opportunities by class and specialty and predetermine the numbers of limited career extensions by class and specialty. A memorandum setting forth these predetermined numbers shall be placed in an envelope by the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer for the Selection Boards.

Upon the convening of the Selection Boards, the envelope containing the predetermined numbers applicable to the officers concerned shall be sealed by the Agency and signed by a representative of each party. Each sealed and signed envelope shall be deposited in a locked safe in the custody of the OHR Director. After each Selection Board Panel has submitted their respective list of recommended promotions, the Panel may - upon request and in the presence of an AFSA representative - be advised of the number of promotion opportunities.

Following submission of all the Selection Board rank-order lists, the envelope containing the predetermined numbers applicable to the officers on the list shall be retrieved in the joint presence of AFSA and Agency representatives who shall proceed to inspect the memorandum setting forth the predetermined numbers. The parties recognize that changes of circumstances may dictate changes in these numbers. In the case of any discrepancy between the predetermined numbers and the final number of promotions in any class, the OHR Director shall provide AFSA with a briefing which fully explains the discrepancy and the number of officers affected before the promotion lists are made public. Both parties agree on the need to treat with appropriate discretion matters of a sensitive nature which may be disclosed during the briefing.

(5) The OHR Director may accept the rank-order lists of the Selection Boards or return them for review if he or she questions adherence of any Board to established Agency procedures or conformity of any list to the Precepts. In each such case, the OHR Director shall give the Selection Board chairperson his or her written reasons for returning the rank-order lists and shall provide, in confidence, a copy of his or her statement of reasons to AFSA.

(6) In the event that members of Selection Boards have reason to question whether the above provisions have been followed, they should address their inquiry in writing to the OHR Director. A copy of the inquiry and the reply shall be provided to AFSA in confidence.

(7) Either party may publish the contents of this agreement.

(8) An individual's grievance concerning the application or interpretation of the Agency's practices, policies, or regulations based on this agreement may be resolved by the filing of a grievance under the Foreign Service Grievance Procedure.

EXHIBIT 460B

Agreement for the Establishment and Composition of Selection Boards (Class 1 and Below)

SECTION I

In recognition of the fact that the Selection Board process involves personnel policies and procedures of vital importance to both the Agency and the officers in the Foreign Service, it is agreed that the following procedures shall be adopted by the Agency with respect to the establishment of its Foreign Service Specialist Boards.

a. Except under extraordinary circumstances, the Agency shall submit to AFSA a copy of the proposed precepts not less than ninety (90) days before the Selection Board is scheduled to convene. In the event that extraordinary circumstances preclude a timely submission to AFSA, the Agency shall make such submission to AFSA together with a detailed explanation of the circumstances that precluded their timely submission. The Agency and AFSA shall consult promptly on such proposed precepts.

b. The Agency shall make every reasonable effort to submit to AFSA, as early as practicable, but generally not less than sixty (60) days before the Selection Board is to convene, a list of all potential Foreign Service and public sector candidates for membership thereon. If this is not possible, the Agency will indicate to AFSA the reasons for the delay. The list presented by the Agency shall be held in confidence by AFSA, but it is understood that AFSA is free to make discreet inquiries with respect to individuals whose names appear on the list.

c. AFSA, within thirty (30) days of its receipt of the list referred to in subparagraph (b), shall submit to the Agency, in writing and in confidence, any views and comments on the potential Selection Board candidates. Such views and comments may include AFSA's judgment as to which Selection Board Panel a proposed candidate may qualify for assignment. Management shall take into account and hold confidential such views expressed by AFSA when determining actual membership of such Panels. If, however, AFSA should comment adversely on a candidate from another agency, the Agency may send a copy of AFSA's comments to the management of that agency. The final decision with respect to the membership of the Board rests with the Agency.

d. The obligation of confidentiality imposed on the Agency and AFSA by this agreement shall terminate upon the publication of the designated names of the Board members by the Agency.

SECTION II

With respect to the composition of the Foreign Service Specialist Selection Board organized to review Specialists for promotion, the Agency and AFSA agree to the following:

a. Each Selection Board Panel (Classes 1 and below) shall be composed of three members: (1) a career member of the Agency's Foreign Service who is familiar with the work of the specialties involved and who serves at a class above the highest class of the officers to be reviewed by the Panel*; (2) a career member of the Agency's Civil Service or Senior Executive Service who is familiar with the work of the specialties involved and who serves at a grade or SES level equivalent to a class above that of the officers to be reviewed by the Panel; and (3) a public member.

*The Agency will make best efforts to ensure that a qualified member of the Foreign Service is available for a Panel. However, if no qualified career member of the Agency's Foreign Service is available for service on a Panel, the Agency will substitute a qualified career member of its Civil Service or Senior Executive Service for that Panel, provided that the Agency notifies AFSA of the need for such a substitution at least one month prior to the convening of the Panel and AFSA is allowed to review the proposed panel member in accordance with paragraph c of Section I, above.

b. The Panels are configured as follows:

Panel	Occupational Code	Functional Specialty
Panel A	330	VOA News Foreign Correspondents
Panel B-1	505	Radio Engineers (Technical)
Panel B-2	512	Facility Supervisors

The Chairperson of each Panel shall be appointed by the Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau in consultation, as applicable, with the VOA Director or the Director of Engineering and Technical Services.

c. In determining the composition of the Selection Board, the Agency will seek to ensure that, within the scope of discretion accorded to it in this agreement, there is substantial representation of women and members of minority groups.

EXHIBIT 460C

Precepts for the Foreign Service Specialist Selection Boards (Class 1 and Below)

PART I

A. Statement of Purpose

Precepts set forth the rules guiding the Selection Board for Foreign Service Specialists (Classes 1 and below) in identifying employees qualified for promotion, ranking them by their relative merit, performance awards, limited career extensions as well as identifying those subject to separation proceedings for unsatisfactory or non-competitive performance.

Precepts are also policy statements of what constitutes positive and desirable performance by members of the Foreign Service and should serve as a guide in establishing annual work goals or, on the negative side, what is considered unacceptable performance. Specialists and their rating officers should, therefore, be familiar with the Precepts. The performance criteria can be used as general guidance for discussions on the performance of their duties and the development of their careers.

OATH OF OFFICE FOR MEMBERS OF BOARDS

"I _____, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will, without prejudice or partiality, perform faithfully and to the best of my ability the duties imposed on me as a member of a Selection Board; that I will preserve the confidential character of the personnel records used by the Board; that I will adhere to the instructions in the Precepts; and that I will not reveal to any unauthorized person information concerning the deliberations, findings, and recommendations of the Board."

B. Coverage and Eligibility

Except as indicated below, the Selection Board will review the performance of career and career candidate members of the Foreign Service Specialists in Classes 1 and below.

1. The Selection Board will not consider specialists who, at the time the Board convenes, have received a definitive notice of separation. In addition, the Board will not consider specialists whose effective date of retirement, resignation, or separation occurs during the time the Board is in session. (Those whose effective date of retirement, resignation, or separation occurs following the Board's adjournment will be considered.)
2. The OHR Director will exclude from any resulting promotion list the name of any specialist pending separation or any officer under investigation or proceedings involving loyalty, security, misconduct, or malfeasance.

C. Scope and Organization

1. The Board will consider Career members of the Foreign Service at the Class FP-01 level for promotion into the Senior Foreign Service (SFS). Promotion into the SFS is the highest class attainable by a specialist. Promotion should be recommended only for those specialists who possess strong policy formulation capabilities, outstanding executive leadership qualities, ability, and personal characteristics for service in key executive and policy positions.
2. The Board will identify those Foreign Service specialists with limited or career tenure in classes FP-1 through FP-4 who should be promoted to the next higher class based on their performance by class and specialty.

PART II - General Directives

A. Major Responsibilities

1. To identify and rank-order specialists who, by their demonstrated performance and evidence of potential at higher levels of responsibility in their functional specialty, merit recommendation for promotion into the Senior Foreign Service or to the next higher class within their functional specialty.
2. To identify specialists with limited career tenure who, by their demonstrated performance and potential, merit recommendation for career status.
3. To identify specialists who, on the basis of performance growth potential, have failed to meet the standard of their class and specialty, and should be selected-out or separated or whose limited appointment should be terminated. A statement must be prepared for each officer explaining why the officer has been so identified.
4. To identify specialists whose performance during last evaluation report period warrants denial of next within-class salary increase or a letter of low ranking.
5. To make recommendations for improvement of the Agency's policies and procedures for performance evaluations and Selection Board operations.
6. To make recommendations for Limited Career Extensions within the limits set by management. See Addendum A for specific background and procedures.

B. Factors to be Considered

1. General

- a. The two most important factors to be considered by the Board in rank-ordering specialists are performance and potential. (For guidance see pertinent factors in B. 2 and 3.)

b. In evaluating the records of specialists, the Board should place emphasis on the most recent reports of performance. For this purpose, the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer will provide the Panels with evaluation reports for the preceding five years and explanation of any gaps.

c. IBB encourages and seeks candid and constructive criticism in evaluation reports. Such criticism should be weighed carefully by the Board against the specialist's overall performance and efforts to improve on the areas in question and should not automatically preclude the Board from recommending an officer for promotion.

Unfavorable comments by only one Rating or Reviewing Officer sharply at variance with those of other Rating and Reviewing Officers should not be given undue weight.

2. Performance

In considering performance, emphasis should be placed on:

a. The extent to which the specialist has developed and maintained the skills required of the specialty (see addendum B for specific skills and abilities);

b. The extent to which the specialist has achieved the Agency's strategic goals and performance objectives;

c. The documented evidence of innovative and/or creative ideas that have served or can reasonably be expected to serve the national interest;

d. The documented and/or demonstrated evidence of supervisory, resource management, programmatic creativity or other administrative abilities and potential for executive leadership, if applicable; and

e. Demonstrated ability to contribute to efforts of the work team and to understand the importance of advancing post/mission goals.

f. The extent to which the specialist has developed and maintained the skills required of the specialty (see addendum B for specific skills and abilities). However, weight should be given to performance outside the primary specialist category since these assignments serve the interests of the Agency as well as the broad development interests of the member.

g. The extent to which an individual has demonstrated the experience and capability to perform the duties and responsibilities required at a higher class.

3. Potential

In evaluating potential, positive weight should be given to documented, sustained high-level performance in a position recognizably more complex or demanding than that to which a specialist of this level would usually be assigned. The Board should also consider the specialist's overall experience in the specialty; as it, together with performance, indicates the ability to perform higher-level responsibilities.

4. Training

The selection of a specialist for training represents an investment in the future of the Service and constitutes an endorsement of the specialist's potential for development. The Board should ensure that specialists in extended training are given the same consideration as specialists elsewhere. Outstanding performance in long-term training assignments should be considered equal to outstanding performance in any other position. Independent efforts at cultural and professional self-improvement, particularly on the specialist's own time, also should be given special consideration when there is a direct and documented relationship to BBG activities.

5. Seniority in Class

While overall experience should be considered, the length of time a specialist has been in the same or comparable class should not be either a positive or a negative factor in recommending promotion.

6. Language Proficiency

The Board should give positive weight to specialists who have improved, independently, their competence in any language, but give additional positive weight to those who improved their competence in languages that are relevant to their specialty or assignment.

7. Assignment to Other Agencies

In order to broaden specialists' experience, the Agency has sought to make assignments to private institutions and other agencies and departments. Such assignments are considered as a normal phase in career development. Performance of specialists on such assignments should be evaluated on the same basis as that of specialists on assignments to Agency positions.

8. Short-Term Assignments

The fact that a specialist has had a series of short-term assignments during the rating period is generally the result of Agency need, not a reflection of the specialist's skills. Performance effectiveness during these assignments must be evaluated on the same basis as if a specialist had been assigned to a single position.

9. Leave Without Pay

When Agency staffing needs permit, and tour of duty requirements are satisfied, specialists may be granted leave without pay (LWOP) to broaden their skills through academic programs, temporary activities in the private sector, or through other activities which are relevant to IBB requirements. Specialists who are on or have been on LWOP for such pursuits should be given due consideration by the Board.

10. Absence

A specialist's authorized absences for extended periods due to illness, military service, or similar reasons should not be a negative factor in the considerations of the Board. The Board should focus on evaluations for those periods when the specialist was on duty as well as any evaluative material on activities during off-duty periods that seem relevant to a specialist's performance and growth potential. Specialists are encouraged to submit concise statements on relevant experience. Boards are advised that the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act provides that members called to military service are entitled to "the additional seniority and rights and benefits that such person would have attained if the person had remained continuously employed" at the Agency. In light of this mandate, Boards are instructed to weigh carefully and consider military evaluation reports and award nominations provided by a member in connection with the period of time during which such member was on active military duty. In this regard, Boards should review carefully any statement submitted by a member concerning the relevance of their military service to their work in the Foreign Service.

11. Delinquent Reports

Some specialist's files may contain memoranda indicating that a specialist is responsible for one or more delinquent OERs prepared on subordinates. If the specialist has submitted an explanation for the delinquency, which should be attached to the memorandum, the Board must evaluate the explanation and determine the appropriate weight to be given the delinquency. If the Board is persuaded by the explanation that the delinquency was unavoidable (such as serious illness on the part of the Rating/Reviewing Officer or other extenuating circumstances clearly outside the specialist's control), the Panel should not allow the delinquency to prejudice the specialist's ranking. However, should the Board find the explanation unsatisfactory, this finding must be considered adversely in evaluating the specialist's managerial ability and fulfillment of his/her supervisory responsibilities.

12. Policy Dissent

While Foreign Service employees are expected to support U.S. policy publicly, the Agency encourages willingness to express and rationally defend views internally that differ from current policies and programs. Officers are entirely free to submit dissenting views on policy questions without fear of reprisal or other penalty by Agency officials. Selection Board Panels should give positive weight to officers who constructively state their dissent.

13. Equality of Consideration

The Board will evaluate all officers equitably, solely on the basis of relative merit. In particular, they will not advantage or disadvantage any officer, directly or indirectly, for reasons of: race, color, religion, sex, age, or national origin; marital status or marital plans; physical handicap; means of entry into the Foreign Service; political affiliation, membership in or activity in behalf of any labor organizations or other lawful employee organization; or initiation of or participation in grievance or EEO procedures.

While not required by Civil Rights Statutes, the Agency is committed to treating employees equally, without regard to marital status, political affiliation, sexual orientation, or other factors that do not affect performance or efficiency. Personal qualities should be considered only to the extent to which they affect a specialist's performance or potential.

The Board should also discount any apparent bias or unfairness, either conscious or unconscious, including stereotypes, group assumptions, and sexist or ethnic comments. Members will ignore any "inadmissible" information or exercise their authority to bring to the attention of the OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer "inadmissible comments" for the purpose of having the comments removed. The complete list of "inadmissible comments" in BAM 5-B 454.5 will be provided to the Board.

The Board should report to the OHR Director or the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer for appropriate action, evidence that any of the above factors have influenced an Officer's performance evaluation.

The OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer will advise the exclusive representative concerning the number of such cases, the nature of the irregularity and the action taken to correct the record; advise the officers concerned; and admonish the responsible parties.

C. Non-Germane Considerations

Some information that appears in OERs or may be deduced should not be taken into consideration:

1. Position Grade

The Board should discount the grade of the position that an officer occupied during a particular rating period or whether the position is permanent, temporary, complement, over-complement, etc. Rather, the Board should assess the difficulty of an officer's position based on the statement of Work Requirements and the narrative descriptions of performance in the OER.

2. Seniority in Class

The Agency sets minimum periods of time-in-class before officers are eligible for promotion. Beyond that, the Board should base its decisions on officers' performance records, and whether the officer has clearly demonstrated the required skills and abilities for their specialty and effectiveness over a sufficient period of time to demonstrate these qualities and characteristics of the officer, and not draw any conclusions from how long they have been in their current class.

3. Personal Factors

Medical problems, personal qualities, and physical characteristics should not be considered unless they clearly affect performance or potential. Please refer to BAM 5-B 454.5 for a complete listing of inadmissible comments.

D. Briefing Material and Documents for Evaluating Performance

1. Staff from the Office of Human Resources (OHR) will brief the Board on procedures. The exclusive representative will be invited to attend this general briefing. Questions on the Selection Board's work should be addressed only to the OHR Director or the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer, who will coordinate responses.
2. Each Board member will be provided with a briefing book containing:
  - a. A set of these Precepts;
  - b. Each officer's performance file;
  - c. Instructions for preparation of the Officer Evaluation Report (OER) form;
  - d. A copy of relevant segments of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 and related regulations covering the performance evaluation and promotion system (BAM 5-B 450 and 460); and
  - e. A list by class and specialty of all specialists to be reviewed by the Board.
3. As deemed appropriate by the OHR Director, individual panels may be briefed on the specific nature of individual specialties; related Agency organizations, operations, and goals; the technical, managerial, or administrative demands of the various positions involved; and similar relevant facts. The briefing in no way will discuss the performance of any specialist.
4. Each Board panel will base its decisions only on the performance file (which includes the Professional Experience Profile maintained on each specialist, and may include military evaluation reports received during periods of time the officer was on active duty).
5. Board members will not seek or receive any information pertaining to the health, security suitability, assignability, or reputation of a specialist under consideration, or any written material not part of the Performance File.
6. Board members are not authorized to bring additional information on specialists under review to the attention of Board members.
7. It is imperative that Board members heed their oath of office and adhere to the instructions contained in the Precepts. Failure to observe these requirements may result in disciplinary action or the penalties of the Privacy Act. In addition, Board members should report to the OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer any attempt to provide them with information other than that authorized by these Precepts.

E. Recommendation for Career Status

1. A decision by a Selection Board Panel to recommend an officer for career status should be determined by:

- a. The extent to which the specialist has clearly developed and maintained the skills required of the specialty (see attached skills and abilities lists by specialty);
- b. Whether the specialist's oral and written communication skills are adequate to meet the needs of the specialty;
- c. Whether the specialist has demonstrated the ability to work harmoniously with superiors, peers, and subordinates in a Foreign Service environment;
- d. Whether the specialist has demonstrated tact and sensitivity in dealing with Foreign National Employees and host country nationals;
- e. The extent to which the specialist has achieved the Agency's strategic goals and performance objectives;
- f. The extent to which the specialist has demonstrated evidence of successful managerial, leadership, resource management, and programmatic creativity or accomplishments indicative of executive excellence.
- g. Whether the specialist has demonstrated evidence of supervisory and administrative abilities to promote a flexible, creative, and productive work environment for subordinate staff;
- h. The extent to which the specialist has adapted successfully to Foreign Service life and the rigors of overseas service;
- i. Whether the specialist has exhibited sensitivity to EEO concerns and fairness in dealing with people of other races, religions, etc.; and
- j. Whether the specialist has developed and demonstrated sound organizational skills and personal work habits, such as the ability to plan and organize assigned work effectively, to establish priorities and meet deadlines, to effectively manage programs, resources, and special events, and to follow up on completed tasks.

2. A Board Panel should not recommend a specialist for career status if the specialist is found to have significant deficiencies in the skills and abilities required by the specialty involved, or in one or more of the above areas, which, in the Board's view, make the specialist unsuitable for a career in the Foreign Service. The Panel may elect to defer a candidate for one year.

F. Failure to Meet Standards of the Class

Failure to meet the standards of the class means that an officer's performance displays significant deficiencies, which should no longer be expected, given the level to which the officer has been promoted and the number of years the officer has had to develop professional competence. The Selection Board is required to identify specialists whose performance fails to meet the standard of their class and specialty or the standard required for the efficient conduct of the Service. (Refer to Part II, Section C.3.) These officers will be informed of the Board's conclusions so that they can take positive steps to address the shortcomings cited. In the case of serious or persistent deficiencies, the Board's conclusions may also lead to denial of basic pay adjustments or even mandatory retirement. Career specialists may be selected-out if they fail to meet the standards of their class. See BAM 5-B 743.

1. Causes for identifying a specialist include:

- a. Weakness and/or demonstrated poor motivation in developing and maintaining those skills and abilities required for the specialist's specialty;
- b. Marginal productivity in terms of established reasonable goals;
- c. Documented recurrent weakness in carrying out major assigned tasks;
- d. Professional deficiencies in terms of continuing development of required communication skills;
- e. Consistent lack of ability in dealing with people in a way that stimulates confidence and supports Agency objectives (where applicable to the specialist's specialty and assignment);
- f. Lack of knowledge and ability to explain and promote the achievements of American foreign policy (where applicable to the employee's specialty and assignment);
- g. Weakness in the development of an understanding of American society, its values and those domestic issues which contribute to the formation of American foreign policy (where applicable to the employee's specialty and assignment);
- h. Weakness in the development and maintenance of language proficiency and understanding of a foreign culture (where applicable to the employee's specialty and assignment);
- i. Failure to demonstrate effective organizational skills and personal work habits such as the ability to plan and organize assigned work effectively, to establish priorities, or to follow-up and complete tasks.
- j. Well documented recurrences in more than one assignment of situations in which the Specialist has not worked cooperatively and effectively with supervisors, colleagues, and subordinates;
- k. Difficulties in meeting job requirements; and
- l. Documented finding by the Agency of prejudiced or discriminatory conduct.

2. While potential for success at a higher level of responsibility is a vital factor in considering specialists for promotion, lack of potential is not per se sufficient grounds for finding that a specialist failed to meet the standards of the class or the standard required for the efficient conduct of the service.

G. Denial of Within-Class Salary Increases

Section 406 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 provides for within-class salary increases for specialists whose services meet the standards required for the efficient conduct of the work of his or her salary class.

A decision to deny a specialist the next regular within-class salary increase will be based on the Board's decision that the specialist's services during the most recent rating period did not meet the standard required for the efficient conduct of the work of the Service.

The relative ranking assigned by a Board Panel will not determine whether a specialist should be denied the next regular within-class salary increase, but serious consideration should be given to denial of an increase when a recommendation for selection-out, separation, or termination of or denial of renewal of appointment is made.

1. Reasons for such a finding may include, but are not limited to:

- a. A low rate of productivity;
- b. Lack of initiative or resourcefulness in carrying out assigned duties;
- c. Consistently poor judgment;
- d. Serious weakness in meeting supervisory responsibilities during the most recent rating period;
or
- e. Documented finding by the Agency of prejudiced or discriminatory conduct.

2. In any case in which a specialist is recommended for denial of a within-class salary increase, a separate statement of reasons shall be prepared by the Panel and furnished to the specialist by the Office of Human Resources, in accordance with procedures outlined in BAM 5-B 235.5.

H. Submission of Findings and Recommendations - Each of the following instructions must be completed before each Board Panel is dismissed:

1. The Panel will prepare a rank-order list by class and specialty of those specialists who, on the basis of their performance and growth potential, are recommended for promotion into the Senior Foreign Service, where applicable, or to the next higher class.

2. The Panel will prepare an alphabetical list by class and specialty of specialists with limited tenure who, on the basis of their performance and growth potential are recommended for career status.

3. The Panel will prepare an alphabetical list by class and specialty of specialists with limited tenure, who are deferred from career status for one year.

For each such specialist, the panel will prepare a written statement in support of each recommendation in sufficient substantive detail to permit the specialist and the Agency to review the specific reasons for the Panel's determination. The specialist concerned will be provided with a copy of the statement, under a cover letter from the Director of Human Resources (M/H), but neither will become a part of the specialist's performance file.

4. The Panel will prepare an alphabetical list of specialists who have failed to meet the standards of their class and specialty and whom the Panel recommends for selection-out or whose unsatisfactory performance warrants termination of appointment:

a. For each such specialist, the Panel will prepare a memorandum in sufficient substantive detail to permit the specialist and the Agency to understand the specific reasons for the, Panel's determination. The memorandum must refer to the standards established in these Precepts for the competitive evaluation of specialists and to those elements of the specialist's performance which form the basis for the Panel's determination. If the Panel found inadmissible material in the specialist's file, the memorandum should state that the material was disregarded in ranking the specialist. (The Panels have authority to bring "inadmissible comments" to the attention of the OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer for removal.

b. These findings will be utilized for consideration of the retirement for relative performance of specialists with career tenure or the termination or non-renewal of appointment of those with limited tenure. The Panel's findings will be furnished to the employee concerned, but will not become a part of the employee's performance file for future Selection Boards. However, the findings will be supplied to the Foreign Service Grievance Board as appropriate.

5. Each Board Panel will prepare an alphabetical list of the remaining specialists who, on the basis of their performance and/or lack of growth potential, are not recommended for promotion to the next higher class at this time.

6. Each Board Panel will prepare a list of specialists whose overall performance during the most recent rating period is considered by the Panel to not meet the standards required for the efficient conduct of the work of the service, and who are therefore recommended for denial of their next regular within-class salary increase. The Panel will prepare a written statement in support of each recommendation in sufficient substantive detail to permit the specialist and the Agency to perceive the specific reasons for the Panel's determination. The specialist concerned will be provided with a copy of the statement, but the letter will not become a part of the specialist's performance file. The letter will become a part of the specialist's administrative file if the denial is sustained (BAM 5-B 235.5 contains procedures for denial of a within-class salary increase upon recommendation of the Panel).

7. There may be certain specialists who are not now recommended for retirement for relative performance, termination or non-renewal of appointment, or denial of within-class increase, but whose performance is considered by the Board to be marginal either individually or in relation to other members of the same class and specialty. At the Board's discretion, it may write such specialists a low ranking letter informing them that the Board perceived their performance as marginal. Such a letter must be fully documented and justified by the Board in each specialist's case and may not be based on such secondary considerations as relatively recent promotion, type or pattern of assignments, less extensively documented successful performance, or disciplinary matters that are not performance related. The low ranking letter will state that failure to improve performance could lead to the specialist's separation from the Service. A copy of each such letter will be sent to the specialist but will not become a part of the specialist's performance file.
8. If cases where a specialist's file may not be documented to the extent desired by the Board Panel, the Panel will refer to BAM 5-B 456 and Exhibit 450A for guidance and procedures concerning deficient evaluation reports.
9. Each Board Panel is requested to make specific recommendations or suggestions with respect to training or assignment regarding any employee when, in its judgment, such recommendation will improve the specialist's future utilization in the Service.
10. Each Board Panel may prepare recommendations concerning the policies and procedures for subsequent Boards, and improvements to the performance evaluation system, a copy of which will be provided to the OHR Director and to the exclusive representative.
11. Recommendations and statements prepared by the Board in accordance with subparagraphs 6, 7, and 8, will be furnished to the specialist by the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer.
12. Each Board's findings and recommendations will be submitted in original only to the OHR Director under cover of a transmittal letter signed by the Chairperson and members.

I. Approval of Findings

The OHR Director may accept each Board's findings and recommendations or, as set forth in paragraph (5) of the Promotion Safeguards Agreement, may return any or all of them for review if there are questions concerning procedures or conformance with the Precepts. In each case, the OHR Director will give the Selection Board Chairperson written reasons for returning the rank-order lists.

J. Adjournment of the Board

The work of each Selection Board Panel will be concluded when the Board Panel has been adjourned by the OHR Director.

ADDENDUM A

FOREIGN SERVICE OVERSEAS SPECIALIST SELECTION BOARD (Class 1 and Below)

LIMITED CAREER EXTENSIONS

1. Purpose

The panels of the Foreign Service Specialist Selection Board will consider eligible specialists for Limited Career Extensions (LCEs). This addendum sets forth the procedure and criteria for identifying specialists for LCEs.

2. Background and Procedures

a. General

The 1980 Foreign Service Act authorizes the Director of the International Broadcasting Bureau to grant Limited Career Extensions (LCEs) to career Overseas Specialists who are in the highest salary class (below Senior Foreign Service) of their respective occupational specialties or to Specialists in lower classes based on a very limited number of promotion opportunities or the staffing needs of lower classes.

The Director of IBB determines the number of LCEs to be authorized in each specialty by class. That determination is made in conjunction with the determination of annual promotion opportunities based on the need for expertise and experience in the Specialist Corps, on the one hand, and the need to provide a regular and predictable flow of talent through the ranks on the other.

LCEs are distributed in accordance with the recommendations of Selection Board Panels which shall be made as provided in these Precepts. LCEs will be three (3) years in duration during which the specialists extended will enjoy full career status including consideration for promotion and performance pay, if eligible, and the possibility of further LCEs up to mandatory retirement age.

Members in their last year of time-in-class who are not extended will be retired in accordance with the provisions of BAM 5-B 742.

b. Selection Board Procedures

Once each panel has completed its consideration of specialists in a competition category for promotion and possible selection out or low ranking, the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer will advise each panel whether any LCEs have been authorized for any of the specialties reviewed by the panel. Panels will not be informed of the number of LCEs that have been authorized.

If LCEs have been authorized, the panel will be given the names of all career members in the specialty who are eligible but who were not recommended or did not rank high enough to be reached for promotion. The panels will review the last ten years of performance records, and professional experience profiles of all specialists by specialty and, in accordance with the criteria in paragraph “c” below, will recommend officers they deem qualified for a Limited Career Extension and rank them in order of merit.

If a Panel has recommended for Limited Career Extension an aggregate number of specialists less than the number of LCE opportunities set aside in escrow prior to the convening of the Board, the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer will advise the Panel that there are additional LCEs authorized. The Panel may then reopen its deliberations. Panels may be advised at this point of the number of additional LCEs authorized. The Panels may identify additional members as qualified for extension.

The Panels will rank the specialists so identified in order of merit in addition to those members previously recommended for a LCE. Panels must base such recommendations solely on the LCE criteria set forth in the Precepts without regard to the number of LCEs available.

LCEs will be granted by the Agency strictly in the rank order recommended by each Panel. Names may be removed from a Panel LCE rank-order list only under established conditions and procedures. (Refer to Part I Section B for specific details).

c. Criteria

In reviewing specialists for extension, the panels will apply the same performance criteria as are applicable to consideration of Specialists for promotion. However, recognizing that specialists extended generally will serve in their present class, the panels will consider primarily the quality of performance, past experience, and potential for continued successful service in the specialist’s present class.

In considering specialists for extension on a specialty-wide basis by class, the Board should give weight to evidence of accomplishment and competency demonstrating the development and/or maintenance of the skills required by the specialty. The Board also should give credit to evidence of knowledge and recorded achievements in leadership and management as applicable to the needs of the specialty. In addition, since world-wide availability is of critical importance in agency staffing, the Board may give positive consideration to officers who have demonstrated their availability for overseas service.

Equal credit is to be given to performance whether completed in a funded position or not; the measure of accomplishment is demonstrated capability and evaluated performance of responsibilities, not the type of position occupied. Should a period of performance not be rated by an evaluation report, the Board should not discount the officer's overall standing in any way.

d. Non-rates

Panels must review and reach a decision with regard to any specialist for whom periods of performance over the most recent five years are covered completely or in part by evaluation or training reports or justification explaining any unevaluated period of performance. Only with the concurrence of the Office of Human Resources that a file is insufficiently documented may a panel not rate a member. The Office of Human Resources expects such situations to occur rarely.

Whenever it is determined that a specialist must be non-rated for LCE consideration, the time-in-class of the officer non-rated will be extended by one year to permit a subsequent review for promotion and extension by the next session of the Selection Board. Each panel will prepare a statement justifying the non-rate decision in each case, a copy of which will be sent to the non-rated specialist.

Senior Foreign Service Selection Board Safeguard Agreement

In order to maintain a high degree of confidence in the integrity of the Selection Board process, the Broadcasting Board of Governors (BBG) and the American Foreign Service Association (AFSA) set forth their agreement on the following provisions concerning the Selection Board process:

- (1) For each Senior Foreign Service (SFS) class and specialty, Selection Boards will submit:
  - (a) rank-order lists of officers recommended for promotion and limited career extension;
  - (b) rank-order lists of officers recommended for Agency performance awards. Officers will be ranked separately by tercile in accordance with BAM 5-B 237;
  - (c) rank-order lists of all officers eligible for a basic pay adjustment. Officers will be ranked separately by tercile in accordance with BAM 5-B 237;
  - (d) rank-order lists of officers recommended for Presidential Rank Awards;
  - (e) alphabetical lists of officers not recommended for promotion and limited career extensions;
  - (f) alphabetical lists of officers who rank in the low rank zone. These lists will be submitted without composite scores;
  - (g) alphabetical lists of officers identified as having failed to maintain the standards of their class; and
  - (h) alphabetical lists of officers who should be denied a basic pay adjustment or reduced in basic pay.
- (2) Except as provided in paragraph (8), after a Selection Board has submitted a rank-order list to the Director, Office of Human Resources (OHR), no alteration shall be made in the order of the names on the list and, without the consent of the individual concerned, no names falling within the promotion zone, names falling within the LCE zone, names falling within the performance award zone, or names ranked for basic pay adjustment shall be excluded from these lists except for one of the following reasons: death, retirement, resignation, or separation from the Service. A promotion of a person whose name falls within the promotion zone will be deferred if he or she has:
  - (a) a promotion limitation due to lack of language proficiency or

(b) been referred to the Office of Security, the Office of the Inspector General, or to the OHR Director on the grounds that the individual is the subject of investigation or proceedings involving loyalty, security, suitability, misconduct, or malfeasance. Promotion of these officers will be processed in accordance with published Agency promotion regulations. No name will be removed from the basic pay adjustment or performance award list because of death or retirement after the end of the rating period.

In each such case, any employee still in the Service whose name has been excluded or deferred shall be officially notified in writing of the particulars. The Agency shall notify AFSA of the numbers (but not names) of individuals excluded and the reasons for such exclusions. Such information shall be held in complete confidence.

(3) Except as provided herein, no person whose name was rank-ordered for promotion by the Selection Board but whose name did not fall within the promotion zone shall have his/her name placed on a promotion list. The names of persons falling into the following categories may be placed on a promotion list:

(a) any person recommended for promotion by the BBG in accordance with a recommendation of the Foreign Service Grievance Board, or by an equal employment opportunity appeals examiner; or

(b) any person whose name had previously been deferred in accordance with paragraph (2) of the agreement and the reason for that deferral has ceased to exist; or

(c) any person who is the next highest individual on the rank-order list and therefore moves into the promotion zone as the result of the proper exclusion from the promotion list of another name from within the zone in accordance with paragraph (2) of this agreement.

The Agency will notify AFSA of the numbers of individuals placed on a promotion list in accordance with each of the exceptions and the rationale for each addition.

(4) The number of promotions to Career Minister is at the discretion of the BBG, though the BBG must respect the rank-order of recommendations by the Selection Board.

(5) The number of promotions BBG expects to recommend or make to Minister Counselor and below shall be established by class and specialty at the time of the convening of the Selection Boards. The Agency shall predetermine the numbers of promotion opportunities and limited career extensions by class and specialty. A memorandum setting forth these predetermined numbers shall be placed in an envelope by the Executive Secretary for the Selection Boards.

(6) The Agency shall predetermine the available numbers of Agency performance awards by class and specialty and by pay tercile within each class and specialty. A memorandum setting forth these predetermined numbers shall be placed in an envelope by the Executive Secretary for the Selection Boards.

(7) Upon the convening of the Selection Boards, the envelope or envelopes containing the predetermined numbers described in paragraphs (5) and (6) above shall be sealed by the Agency and signed by a representative of each party. Each sealed and signed envelope shall be deposited in a locked safe in the custody of the OHR Director. After each Selection Board Panel has submitted its respective list of recommended promotions, the Panel may, upon request by and in the presence of an AFSA representative, be advised of the number of promotion opportunities.

Following submission of all the Selection Board rank-order lists, the envelope(s) containing the predetermined numbers described in paragraphs (5) and (6) above shall be retrieved in the joint presence of AFSA and Agency representatives who shall proceed to inspect the memorandum(s). The parties recognize that changes of circumstances may dictate changes in these numbers. In the case of any discrepancy between the predetermined numbers and the final number of promotions in any class, the OHR Director shall brief AFSA, fully explaining the discrepancy and the number of officers affected, before the promotion lists are made public. Both parties agree on the need to treat with appropriate discretion matters of a sensitive nature that may be disclosed during the briefing.

(8) The OHR Director may accept the rank-order lists of the Selection Boards or return them for review if he or she questions adherence of any Board to established Agency procedures or conformity of any list to the Precepts. In each such case, the OHR Director shall give the Selection Board chairperson his or her written reasons for returning the rank-order lists and shall provide, in confidence, a copy of such statement of reasons to AFSA. The OHR Director also may defer or deny a basic pay increase or performance award in accordance with the provisions of BAM 5-B 237.2(h) or 237.3.

(9) Following the submission of all the Selection Board's rank-order lists, BBG will make individual Agency performance awards within the SFS Tercile ranges contained in BAM 5-B 237. No officer will receive an Agency performance award of a higher percentage of basic pay than an officer rank-ordered above him or her.

(10) Following the submission of all the Selection Board's rank-order lists, BBG will make basic pay adjustments for each eligible officer in accordance with the Tercile ranges contained in BAM 5-B 237. No officer will receive a basic pay adjustment of a higher percentage of basic pay than an officer rank-ordered above him or her.

An officer whose promotion into or within the Senior Foreign Service was effective within the 12 months immediately preceding the convening of the Selection Board will be ineligible to receive a basic pay increase.

(11) In the event that members of Selection Boards have reason to question whether the above provisions have been followed, they should address their inquiry in writing to the OHR Director. A copy of the inquiry and the reply shall be provided to AFSA in confidence.

(12) Either party may publish the contents of this agreement.

(13) An individual's grievance concerning the application or interpretation of the Agency's practices, policies, or regulations based on this agreement may be resolved by the filing of a grievance under the Foreign Service Grievance Procedure.

Senior Foreign Service Agreement for the Establishment and Composition of Selection Boards

SECTION I

In recognition of the fact that the Selection Board process involves personnel policies and procedures of vital importance to both the Agency and the Senior Foreign Service officers, it is agreed that the following procedures shall be adopted by the Agency with respect to the establishment of its Senior Foreign Service Selection Boards.

a. Except under extraordinary circumstances, the Agency shall submit to AFSA a copy of the proposed precepts not less than ninety (90) days before the Selection Board is scheduled to convene. In the event that extraordinary circumstances preclude a timely submission to AFSA, the Agency shall make such submission to AFSA together with a detailed explanation of the circumstances that precluded their timely submission. The Agency and AFSA shall consult promptly on such proposed precepts.

b. The Agency shall make every reasonable effort to submit to AFSA, as early as practicable, but generally not less than sixty (60) days before the Selection Board is to convene, a list of all potential Foreign Service and public sector candidates for membership thereon. If this is not possible, the Agency will indicate to AFSA the reasons for the delay. The list presented by the Agency shall be held in confidence by AFSA, but it is understood that AFSA is free to make discreet inquiries with respect to individuals whose names appear on the list.

c. AFSA, within thirty (30) days of its receipt of the list referred to in subparagraph (b), shall submit to the Agency in writing and in confidence any views and comments on the potential Selection Board candidates. Such views and comments may include AFSA's judgment as to which Selection Board Panel a proposed candidate may qualify for assignment. Management shall take into account and hold confidential such views expressed by AFSA when determining actual membership of such Panels. If, however, AFSA should comment adversely on a candidate from another agency, the Agency may send a copy of AFSA's comments to the management of that agency. The final decision with respect to the membership of the Board rests with Management.

d. The obligation of confidentiality imposed on the Agency and AFSA by this agreement shall terminate upon the publication of the designated names of the Board members by the Agency.

SECTION II

With respect to the composition of the Senior Foreign Service Selection Boards, the Agency and AFSA agree to the following:

- a. The Senior Foreign Service Panel (promotion from Counselor to Minister-Counselor and SFS basic pay adjustments and Agency performance awards) shall be composed of three members: a Senior Foreign Service Officer at the Minister-Counselor level or higher from State or AID, a career member of the Agency's Senior Executive Service (if there is no eligible Agency employee available at the Minister-Counselor level), and a public member.
- b. In determining the composition of the Selection Board, the Agency will seek to insure that, within the scope of discretion accorded to it in this agreement, there is substantial representation of women and members of minority groups.

EXHIBIT 460F

Precepts for the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board

PART I

PURPOSE - This Exhibit contains the approved Precepts for the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board as agreed upon by BBG Management and AFSA. These precepts prescribe the criteria, rules, and procedures for Senior Foreign Service Selection Board Panels in recommending and ranking employees for promotion to the Minister-Counselor (MC) class, performance awards, and limited career extensions beyond five years from the effective date of promotion into the Minister-Counselor (MC) class; ranking specialists who are eligible for basic pay adjustments; identifying non-competitive or unsatisfactory performance; and related functions more fully described in Part II.

These Precepts are also policy statements of what constitutes positive and desirable performance by members of the Senior Foreign Service and should serve as a guide in establishing annual work goals or, on the negative side, what is considered unacceptable performance. Specialists and their rating officers should, therefore, be familiar with the Precepts. The performance criteria can be used as general guidance for discussions on the performance of their duties and the development of their careers.

OATH OF OFFICE FOR MEMBERS OF BOARDS - "I, [name] do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will, without prejudice or partiality, perform faithfully and to the best of my ability the duties imposed on me as a member of a Selection Board; that I will preserve the confidential character of personnel records used by the Board; that I will adhere to the instructions in the Precepts; and that I will not reveal to any unauthorized person information concerning the deliberations, findings, and recommendations of the Board."

COVERAGE AND ELIGIBILITY

1. The Senior Foreign Service Selection Board will review the performance of career and career candidate members of the Senior Foreign Service.
2. The Selection Board will not consider specialists who, at the time the Board convenes, have received a definitive notice of separation. In addition, the Board will not consider specialists whose effective date of retirement, resignation, or separation occurs during the time the Board is in session. (Those whose effective date of retirement, resignation, or separation occurs following the Board's adjournment will be considered.)
3. The Director, Office of Human Resources (OHR), will exclude from any resulting promotion list the name of any specialist pending separation and any officer under investigation or proceedings involving loyalty, security, misconduct, or malfeasance.

SCOPE AND ORGANIZATION

1. One of the major objectives of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 was establishing a Senior Foreign Service (SFS) characterized by strong policy formulation capabilities, outstanding executive leadership qualities, and highly developed functional, foreign language, and area expertise. Members of BBG's Senior Foreign Service serve in highly demanding and sensitive positions in the Agency, both overseas and in the United States.

In general, to be promoted within the Senior Foreign Service, an officer must have successfully completed several diverse and increasingly responsible assignments, both overseas and in the U.S. and have demonstrated:

- (a) strong proficiency in most, if not all, of the core Senior Foreign Service Skills. (Refer to Addendum B)
  - (b) success in melding and drawing on these core skills in developing and implementing BBG programs which serve U.S. foreign policy objectives;
  - (c) success in managing and leading major facilities, resources, and staff to achieve the Agency's strategic goals and performance objectives.
  - (d) continuing development of core Senior Foreign Service Skills to achieve success in meeting annual work requirements. Attainment and continuing development of these skills is essential to realizing executive potential. Persistent weakness in any core skill area will normally preclude advancement and/or retention in the SFS.
2. The Board will consider Career members of the Senior Foreign Service for promotion to the class of Minister-Counselor. Promotion into this class is the highest class attainable by a specialist. Promotion should be recommended only for those specialists who possess exceptional experience, ability, and personal characteristics for service in key executive positions.

PART II

GENERAL DIRECTIVES

A. MAJOR RESPONSIBILITIES

- 1. To identify and rank-order specialists who, by their demonstrated performance and evidence of potential at higher levels of responsibility in their functional specialty, merit recommendation for promotion within the Senior Foreign Service.
- 2. To identify and rank order specialists who, because of their superior accomplishments during the last evaluation report period, warrant an Agency performance award or a Presidential Rank Award.
- 3. To rank order all specialists who are eligible for a basic pay adjustment.

4. To identify specialists with limited career tenure who, by their demonstrated performance and potential, merit recommendation for career status.
5. To identify specialists who, on the basis of performance growth potential, have failed to meet the standard of their class and specialty, and should be selected-out or separated or whose limited appointment should be terminated. A statement must be prepared for each officer explaining why the officer has been so identified.
6. To identify specialists whose performance during the last evaluation report period does not warrant a basic pay adjustment.
7. To make recommendations for improvement of the Agency's policies and procedures for performance evaluations and Selection Board operations.
8. To make recommendations for Limited Career Extensions within the limits set by management. See Addendum A for specific background and procedures.

B. FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED

1. GENERAL

- (a) The two most important factors to be considered by the Board in rank-ordering specialists are performance and potential. (For guidance see pertinent factors in B. 2 and 3.)
- (b) In evaluating the records of specialists, the Board should place emphasis on the most recent reports of performance. For this purpose, the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer will provide the Panels with evaluation reports for the preceding five years and explanations of any gaps. Evaluation reports for the period subsequent to the end of the current rating cycle in which the current Selection Board is based will not be made available to the Board.
- (c) The Agency encourages and seeks candid and constructive criticism in evaluation reports. Such criticism should be weighed carefully by the Board against the specialist's overall performance and efforts to improve on the areas in question and should not automatically preclude the Board from recommending an officer for promotion.

Unfavorable comments by only one Rating or Reviewing Officer sharply at variance with those of other Rating and Reviewing Officers should not be given undue weight.

2. PERFORMANCE

In considering performance, emphasis should be placed on:

- a. The extent to which the specialist has developed and maintained the skills required of the specialty (see Addendum B for specific skills and abilities);
  - b. The extent to which the specialist has achieved the Agency's strategic goals and performance objectives;
  - c. The documented evidence of innovative and/or creative ideas that have served or can reasonably be expected to serve the national interest;
  - d. The documented and/or demonstrated evidence of successful managerial, leadership, resource management, and programmatic creativity or related accomplishments;
  - e. Demonstrated ability to contribute to the efforts of work teams and to understand the importance of advancing post/mission goals; and
  - f. The extent to which the specialist has developed and maintained the skills required of the specialty (see Addendum B for specific skills and abilities). However, weight should be given to performance outside the primary specialist category that relates to the skills required by a Senior Foreign Service Officer since these assignments serve the interests of the Agency as well as the broad developmental interests of the member.
3. POTENTIAL - In evaluating potential, positive weight should be given to documented, sustained high-level performance in a position recognizably more complex or demanding than that to which a specialist of this level would usually be assigned. The Board should also consider the specialist's overall experience in the specialty; as it, together with performance, indicates the ability to perform higher-level responsibilities.
4. TRAINING - The selection of a specialist for training represents an investment in the future of the Service and constitutes an endorsement of the specialist's potential for development. The Board should ensure that specialists in extended training are given the same consideration as specialists elsewhere. Outstanding performance in long-term training assignments should be considered equal to outstanding performance in any other position. Independent efforts at cultural and professional self-improvement, particularly on the specialist's own time, also should be given special consideration when there is a direct and documented relationship to BBG activities.
5. SENIORITY IN CLASS - While overall experience should be considered, the length of time a specialist has been in the same or comparable class should not be either a positive or a negative factor in recommending promotion or other benefit.
6. LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY - The Board should give positive weight to specialists who have improved, independently, their competence in any language, but give additional positive weight to those who improved their competence in languages that are relevant to their specialty or assignment.

7. ASSIGNMENT TO OTHER AGENCIES - In order to broaden specialists' experience, the Agency has sought to make assignments to private institutions and other agencies and departments. Such assignments are considered as a normal phase in career development. Performance of specialists on such assignments should be evaluated on the same basis as that of specialists on assignments to Agency positions.

8. SHORT-TERM ASSIGNMENTS - The fact that a specialist has had a series of short-term assignments during the rating period is generally the result of Agency need, not a reflection of the specialist's skills. Performance effectiveness during these assignments must be evaluated on the same basis as that of a specialist who had been assigned to a single position.

9. LEAVE WITHOUT PAY - When Agency staffing needs permit, and tour of duty requirements are satisfied, specialists may be granted leave without pay (LWOP) to broaden their skills through academic programs, temporary activities in the private sector, or through other activities that are relevant to BBG requirements. Specialists who are on or have been on LWOP for such pursuits should be given due consideration by the Board.

10. ABSENCE - A specialist's authorized absences for extended periods due to illness, military service, or similar reasons should not be a negative factor in the considerations of the Board. The Board should focus on evaluations for those periods when the specialist was on duty as well as any evaluative material on activities during off-duty periods that seems relevant to a specialist's performance and growth potential. Specialists are encouraged to submit concise statements on relevant experience. Boards are advised that the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act provides that members called to military service are entitled to "the additional seniority and rights and benefits that such person would have attained if the person had remained continuously employed" at the Agency. In light of this mandate, Boards are instructed to weigh carefully and consider military evaluation reports and award nominations provided by a member in connection with the period of time during which such member was on active military duty. In this regard, Boards should review carefully any statement submitted by a member concerning the relevance of their military service to their work in the Foreign Service.

11. DELINQUENT REPORTS - Some specialists' files may contain memoranda indicating that a specialist is responsible for one or more delinquent OERs prepared on subordinates. If the specialist has submitted an explanation for delinquency, which should be attached to the memorandum, the Board must evaluate the explanation and determine the appropriate weight to be given the delinquency. If the Board is persuaded by the explanation that the delinquency was unavoidable (such as serious illness on the part of the Rating/Reviewing Officer or other extenuating circumstances clearly outside the specialist's control), the Panel should not allow the delinquency to prejudice the specialist's ranking. However, should the Board find the explanation unsatisfactory, this finding must be considered adversely in evaluating the specialist's managerial ability and fulfillment of his/her supervisory responsibilities.

12. POLICY DISSENT - While Foreign Service employees are expected to support U.S. policy publicly, the Agency encourages willingness to express and rationally defend views internally that differ from current policies and programs. Officers are entirely free to submit dissenting views on policy questions without fear of reprisal or other penalty by Agency officials.

Selection Board Panels should give positive weight to officers who constructively state their dissent.

13. EQUALITY OF CONSIDERATION - The Board will evaluate all officers equitably, solely on the basis of relative merit. In particular, they will not advantage or disadvantage any officer, directly or indirectly, for reasons of: race, color, religion, sex, age, or national origin; marital status or marital plans; physical handicap; means of entry into the Foreign Service; political affiliation; membership in or activity in behalf of any labor organization or other lawful employee organization; or initiation of or participation in grievance or EEO procedures.

While not required by Civil Rights Statutes, the Agency is committed to treating employees equally, without regard to marital status, political affiliation, sexual orientation, or other factors that do not affect performance or efficiency. Personal qualities should be considered only to the extent to which they affect a specialist's performance or potential.

The Board should also discount any apparent bias or unfairness, either conscious or unconscious, including stereotypes, group assumptions, and sexist or ethnic comments. Members will ignore any "inadmissible" information or exercise their authority to bring to the attention of the OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer "inadmissible comments" for the purpose of having the comments removed. The complete list of "inadmissible comments" in BAM 5-B 454.5 will be provided to the Board.

The Board should report to the OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer, for appropriate action, evidence that any of the above factors have influenced an Officer's performance evaluation.

The OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer will advise the exclusive representative concerning the number of such cases, the nature of the irregularity, and the action taken to correct the record; advise the officers concerned; and admonish the responsible parties.

C. NON-GERMANE CONSIDERATIONS

Some information that appears in OERs or may be deduced should not be taken into consideration:

1. POSITION GRADE - The Board should discount the grade of the position that an officer occupied during a particular rating period or whether the position is permanent, temporary, complement, over-complement, etc. Rather, the Board should assess the difficulty of an officer's position based on the Statement of Work Requirements and the narrative description of performance in the OER.

2. SENIORITY IN CLASS - The Agency sets minimum periods of time-in-class before officers are eligible for promotion. Beyond that, the Board should base its decisions on officers' performance records and not draw any conclusions from how long they have been in their current class.

3. PERSONAL FACTORS - Medical problems, personal qualities, and physical characteristics should not be considered unless they clearly affect performance or potential. Please refer to BAM 5-B 454.5 for a complete listing of inadmissible comments.

D. BRIEFING MATERIAL AND DOCUMENTS FOR EVALUATING PERFORMANCE

1. Staff from the Office of Human Resources (OHR) will brief the Board on procedures. The exclusive representative will be invited to attend this general briefing. Questions on the Selection Board's work should be addressed only to the OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer, who will coordinate responses.

2. Each Board member will be provided with a briefing book containing:

a) A set of these Precepts;

b) Each officer's performance file;

c) Instructions for preparation of the Officer Evaluation Report (OER) form;

d) A copy of regulations covering the performance evaluation and promotion system (BAM 5-B 450 and 460); and

e) A list by class and specialty and pay tercile of all specialists to be reviewed by the Board.

3. As deemed appropriate by the OHR Director individual panels may be briefed on the specific nature of individual specialties; related Agency organizations, operations, and goals; the technical, managerial, or administrative demands of the various positions involved; and similar relevant facts. The briefing in no way will discuss the performance of any specialist.

4. Each Board panel will base its decisions only on the performance file (which includes the Professional Experience Profile maintained on each specialist and may include a military evaluation for periods of time during which the officer was recalled to active duty).

5. Board members will not seek or receive any information pertaining to the health, security, suitability, assignability, or reputation of a specialist under consideration, or any written material not part of the Performance File.

6. Board members are not authorized to bring additional information on specialists under review to the attention of Board members.

7. It is imperative that Board members heed their oath of office and adhere to the instructions contained in the Precepts. Failure to observe these requirements may result in disciplinary action or the penalties of the Privacy Act. In addition, Board members should report to the OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer any attempt to provide them with information other than that authorized by these Precepts.

E. RECOMMENDATION FOR CAREER STATUS

1. A decision by a Selection Board Panel to recommend an officer for career status should be determined by:

- a. The extent to which the specialist has developed and maintained the skills required of the specialty (see attached skills and abilities lists by specialty);
- b. Whether the specialist's oral and written communication skills are adequate to meet the needs of the specialty;
- c. Whether the specialist has demonstrated the ability to work harmoniously with superiors, peers, and subordinates in a Foreign Service environment;
- d. Whether the specialist has demonstrated tact and sensitivity in dealing with Foreign National Employees and host country nationals;
- e. The extent to which the officer has achieved the Agency's strategic goals and performance objectives;
- f. The extent to which the officer has demonstrated evidence of successful managerial, leadership, resource management, and programmatic creativity or accomplishments indicative of executive excellence;
- g. Whether the specialist has demonstrated evidence of supervisory and administrative abilities to promote a flexible, creative, and productive work environment for subordinate staff;
- h. The extent to which the specialist has adapted successfully to Foreign Service life and the rigors of overseas service.
- i. Whether the specialist has exhibited sensitivity to EEO concerns and fairness in dealing with people of other races, religions, etc.; and
- j. Whether the specialist has developed and demonstrated sound organizational skills and personal work habits, such as the ability to plan and organize assigned work effectively, to establish priorities and meet deadlines, to effectively manage programs, resources, and special events, and to follow up on completed tasks.

2. A Board Panel should not recommend a specialist for career status if the specialist is found to have significant deficiencies in one or more of the above areas, which in the Board's view make the specialist unsuitable for a career in the Foreign Service. The panel may elect to defer a candidate for one year.

F. FAILURE TO MEET STANDARDS OF THE CLASS

Failure to meet the standards of the class means that an officer's performance displays serious deficiencies, which should no longer be expected, given the level to which the officer has been promoted and the number of years the officer has had to develop professional competence. The Selection Board is required to identify specialists whose performance fails to meet the standard of their class and specialty or the standard required for the efficient conduct of the Service. (Refer to Part II, Section C.3.) These officers will be informed of the Board's conclusions so that they can take positive steps to address the shortcomings cited. In the case of serious or persistent deficiencies, the Board's conclusions may also lead to denial of basic pay adjustments or even mandatory retirement. Career specialists may be selected-out if they fail to meet the standards of their class. See BAM 5-B 743.

1. Causes for so identifying a specialist are:

- a. Weakness and/or demonstrated poor motivation in developing and maintaining those basic skills required for the specialist's specialty;
- b. Marginal productivity in terms of established reasonable goals;
- c. Documented consistent weakness in carrying out major assigned tasks;
- d. Professional deficiencies in terms of continuing development of required communication skills;
- e. Consistent lack of ability in dealing with people in a way that stimulates confidence and supports U.S. objectives (where applicable to the specialist's specialty and assignment);
- f. Lack of knowledge and ability to explain and promote the achievements of American foreign policy (where applicable to the employee's specialty and assignment);
- g. Weakness in the development of an understanding of American society, its values, and those domestic issues which contribute to the formation of American foreign policy (where applicable to the employee's specialty and assignment);
- h. Weakness in the development and maintenance of language proficiency and understanding of a foreign culture (where applicable to the employee's specialty and assignment);
- i. Failure to demonstrate sound organizational skills and personal work habits such as the ability to plan and organize assigned work effectively, to establish priorities, or to follow-up and complete tasks;
- j. Well-documented recurrences in more than one assignment of situations in which the Specialist has not worked cooperatively and effectively with supervisors, colleagues, and/or subordinates;
- k. Difficulties in meeting job requirements; and

1. Documented finding by the Agency of prejudiced or discriminatory conduct.
2. While potential for greater usefulness is a vital factor in considering specialists for promotion, lack of potential is not per se sufficient grounds for finding that a specialist failed to meet the standards of the class or the standard required for the efficient conduct of the service.

G. SFS BASIC PAY ADJUSTMENTS

1. BACKGROUND (REFER to BAM 5-B 237)

Senior Foreign Service members' salaries are set within the ranges below:

The range of basic pay for officers in the Minister Counselor Class is from the pay rate of a GS-15 Step 1 to 107 percent of the basic pay rate for Executive Level III.

The range of basic pay for officers in the Counselor Class is from the pay rate of a GS-15 Step 1 to 102 percent of the basic pay rate for Executive Level III.

2. RECOMMENDATION OF DENIAL OF BASIC PAY ADJUSTMENT OR REDUCTION IN BASIC PAY

A Selection Board panel should consider recommending that an officer's performance during the last evaluation report period does not warrant a pay adjustment if it finds that the officer has been performing below the standard of performance expected of officers in the same class. The Panel should also consider recommending that an officer's performance during the last evaluation report period does not warrant a pay adjustment when it determines the officer's performance is marginal in relation to other members of the same class and specialty.

Whenever a panel recommends that an officer's performance during the last evaluation report period does not warrant a pay adjustment or warrants a reduction in basic pay in accordance with BAM 5-B 237, it must prepare a statement explaining its reasons for its recommendation. A copy of this statement will be provided to the officer in question. The statement will also be placed in the officer's administrative file to support the action; but it will not be made part of the officer's performance file.

Reasons for such a finding may include, but are not limited to:

- a. A low rate of productivity;
  - b. Lack of initiative or resourcefulness in carrying out assigned duties;
  - c. Consistently poor judgment;
  - d. Serious weakness in meeting supervisory responsibilities during the most recent rating period;
- or

e. Documented finding by the Agency of prejudiced or discriminatory conduct.

In any case in which such a recommendation is made, a separate statement of reasons shall be prepared by the Panel and furnished to the specialist by the Office of Human Resources, in accordance with procedures outlined in BAM 5-B 235.6.

H. SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE PERFORMANCE AWARDS

(Detailed regulations on SFS performance awards may be found in BAM 5-B 237.)

1. Agency performance awards are conferred on the basis of performance during the most recent rating period. These individual performance awards may not exceed 20 percent of base salary and are subject to the limits on total number of awards established by law or the U.S. Office of Personnel Management regarding performance bonuses for members of the Senior Executive Service.

2. Presidential awards are conferred on the basis of recommendations by an Inter-agency Selection Board to the Secretary of State reviewing SFS members nominated by the Foreign Affairs Agencies. By law, the Secretary of State submits the final recommendations to the President for action. The Presidential awards consist of the Distinguished Service Award for sustained extraordinary accomplishment, which carries a payment of 35% of base pay; and the Meritorious Service Award for sustained superior accomplishment, which carries a cash payment of up to 20% of base pay.

3. Awards shall not be recommended:

- Solely as a consolation for not receiving a promotion;
- As a reward for long service which would not otherwise merit such an award; or
- As a reward for working overtime.

If the individual already received a cash award for performance during the most recent rating period, the Panel must provide adequate justification for recommending a performance award.

4. Any recommendation by the Panel must be fully justified and submitted in writing to the OHR Director who will review the recommendations for adequacy and compliance with the requirements of BAM 5-A 570 (a copy of which will be provided to each panel).

I. SUBMISSION OF FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Each of the following instructions must be completed before each Board Panel is dismissed:

1. The Panel will prepare a rank-order list by class and specialty of those specialists who, on the basis of their performance and growth potential, are recommended for promotion within the Senior Foreign Service.
2. The Panel will prepare a rank-order list by class, specialty, and tercile (see BAM 5-B 237) of all eligible officers on the basis of their performance during the last evaluation report period for the purpose of determining basic pay adjustments.
3. The Panel will prepare a rank-order list by class, specialty, and pay tercile (see BAM 5-B 237) of those officers who, on the basis of their performance during the last evaluation report period, are recommended for an Agency performance award.
4. The Panel will prepare a rank-order list by class and specialty of those officers who, on the basis of their performance during the last evaluation report period, are recommended for a Presidential Rank Award.
5. The Panel will prepare an alphabetical list by class and specialty of specialists with limited tenure who, on the basis of their performance and growth potential are recommended for career status.
6. The Panel will prepare an alphabetical list by class and specialty of specialists with limited tenure, who are deferred from career status for one year.

The panel will prepare a written statement in support of each recommendation in sufficient substantive detail to permit the specialist and the Agency to review the specific reasons for the Panel's determination. The specialist concerned will be provided with a copy of the statement, under a cover letter from the OHR Director but neither will become part of the specialist's performance file.

7. Each Board panel will prepare an alphabetical list of specialists who have failed to meet the standards of their class and specialty and whom the Panel recommends for selection-out or whose unsatisfactory performance warrants termination of appointment.
  - a. For each such specialist, the Panel will prepare a memorandum in sufficient substantive detail to permit the specialist and the Agency to understand the specific reasons for the Panel's determination. The memorandum must refer to the standards established in these Precepts for the competitive evaluation of specialists and to those elements of the specialist's performance that form the basis for the Panel's determination. If the Panel found inadmissible material in the specialist's file, the memorandum should state that the material was disregarded in ranking the specialist. (The Panels have authority to bring "inadmissible comments" to the attention of the OHR Director or OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer for removal.)
  - b. These findings will be utilized for consideration of the retirement for relative performance of specialists with career tenure or the termination or non-renewal of appointment of those with limited tenure. The Panel's findings will be furnished to the employee concerned, but will not become a part of the employee's performance file for future Selection Boards. However, the findings will be supplied to the Foreign Service Grievance Board as appropriate.

8. Each Board Panel will prepare an alphabetical list of the remaining specialists who, on the basis of their performance and/or lack of growth potential, are not recommended for promotion to the next higher class at this time.

9. Each Board Panel will prepare a list of specialists whose overall performance during the most recent rating period is considered by the Panel not to meet the standards required for the efficient conduct of the work of the service, and, therefore, does not warrant a basic pay adjustment or warrants a reduction in basic pay. The Panel will prepare a written statement in support of each recommendation in sufficient substantive detail to permit the specialist and the Agency to perceive the specific reasons for the Panel's determination. The specialist concerned will be provided with a copy of the statement, but the letter will not become a part of the specialist's administrative file.

10. There may be certain specialists who are not now recommended for retirement for relative performance or termination or non-renewal of appointment but whose performance is considered by the Board to be marginal in relation to other members of the same class and specialty. At the Board's discretion, it may write such specialists a memorandum informing them that the Board perceived their performance as marginal. Such memoranda must be fully documented and justified by the Board in each specialist's case. A copy of each such memorandum will be sent to the specialist concerned but will not become a part of the specialist's performance file.

11. In cases where a specialist's file may not be documented to the extent desired by the Board Panel, the Panel will refer to BAM 5-B 456 and BAM 5-B Exhibit 450A for guidance and procedures concerning deficient evaluation reports.

12. Each Board Panel is requested to make specific recommendations or suggestions with respect to training or assignment regarding any employee when, in its judgment, such recommendation will improve the specialist's future utilization in the Service.

13. Each Board Panel may prepare recommendations concerning the policies and procedures for subsequent Boards, and improvements to the performance evaluation system, a copy of which will be provided to the Office of Human Resources and to the exclusive representative.

14. Recommendations and statements prepared by the Board in accordance with subparagraphs 6, 7, and 9, will be furnished to the specialist by the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer.

15. Each Board's findings and recommendations will be submitted in original only to the OHR Director under cover of a transmittal letter signed by the Chairperson and members.

J. APPROVAL OF FINDINGS

The OHR Director may accept each Board's findings and recommendations or, as set forth in paragraph (8) of the Promotion Safeguards Agreement (BAM 5-B 460 Exhibit D), may return any or all of them for review if there are questions concerning procedures or conformance with the Precepts. In each case, the OHR Director will give the Selection Board Chairperson written reasons for returning the rank-order lists.

K. ADJOURNMENT OF THE BOARD

The work of each Selection Board panel will be concluded when the Board Panel has been adjourned by the Director, Office of Human Resources.

ADDENDUM A

SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE SELECTION BOARD

LIMITED CAREER EXTENSIONS

PURPOSE - The panel of the Senior Foreign Service (SFS) Selection Board will consider eligible specialists for Limited Career Extensions (LCEs). This addendum sets forth the procedure and criteria for identifying specialists for LCEs.

BACKGROUND AND PROCEDURES

a. General

The 1980 Foreign Service Act authorizes the Broadcasting Board of Governors to grant Limited Career Extensions (LCEs) to career Senior Foreign Service members who are in their last year of time-in-class (TIC).

The Director of IBB determines the number of LCEs to be authorized in each specialty by class. That determination is made in conjunction with the determination of annual promotion opportunities based on the need for expertise and experience in the Senior Foreign Service and, on the other hand, the need to provide a regular and predictable flow of talent through the ranks and into the SFS.

LCEs are distributed in accordance with the recommendations of Selection Board Panels which shall be made as provided in these Precepts. LCEs will be three (3) years in duration, during which the specialists extended will enjoy full career status including consideration for promotion and performance pay, if eligible, and the possibility of further LCEs up to mandatory retirement age.

b. Selection Board Procedures

Once the panel has completed its consideration of specialists in a competition category for promotion and possible selection out or low ranking, the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer will advise each panel whether any LCEs have been authorized for any of the specialists reviewed by the panel. Panels will not be informed of the number of LCEs that have been authorized.

If LCEs have been authorized, the panel will be given the names of all career members in the specialty who are eligible but who were not recommended or did not rank high enough to be reached for promotion. The panels will review the last ten years of performance records, and professional experience profiles of all specialists by specialty and, in accordance with the criteria in paragraph "c" below, will recommend officers they deem qualified for a Limited Career Extension and rank them in order of merit.

If a Panel has recommended for Limited Career Extension an aggregate number of specialists less than the number of LCE opportunities set aside in escrow prior to the convening of the Board, the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer will advise the Panel that there are additional LCEs authorized. The Panel may then reopen its deliberations. Panels may be advised at this point of the number of additional LCEs authorized. The Panels may identify additional members as qualified for extension.

The Panel will rank the specialists so identified in order of merit in addition to those members previously recommended for an LCE. The panel must base such recommendations solely on the LCE criteria set forth in the Precepts without regard to the number of LCEs available.

LCEs will be granted by the Agency strictly in the rank order recommended by each Panel. Names may be removed from a Panel LCE rank-order list only under the same conditions and procedures established for removing names from promotion rank-order lists. (Refer to Part I of these Precepts.)

c. Criteria

In reviewing specialists for extension, the panels will apply the same performance criteria as are applicable to consideration of specialists for promotion. However, recognizing that specialists extended generally will serve in present class, the panels will consider primarily the quality of performance, past experience, and potential for continued successful service in the specialist's present class.

In considering specialists for extension on a specialty-wide basis by class, the Board should give weight to evidence of accomplishment and competency demonstrating the development and/or maintenance of the skills required by the specialty. The Board also should give credit to evidence of knowledge and recorded achievements in leadership and management as applicable to the needs of the specialty.

In addition, since worldwide availability is of critical importance in agency staffing, the Board may give positive consideration to officers who have demonstrated their availability for overseas service.

Equal credit is to be given to performance whether completed in a funded position or not; the measure of accomplishment is demonstrated capability and evaluated performance of responsibilities, not the type of position occupied. Should a period of performance not be rated by an evaluation report, the Board should not discount the officer's overall standing in any way.

d. Non-rates

The Panel must review and reach a decision with regard to any specialist for whom periods of performance over the most recent five years are covered completely or in part by evaluation or training reports or justification explaining any unevaluated period of performance. Only with the concurrence of the Office of Human Resources that a file is insufficiently documented may a panel not rate a member. The Office of Human Resources expects such situations to occur rarely.

Whenever it is determined that a specialist must be non-rated for LCE consideration, the time-in-class of the officer non-rated will be extended by one year to permit a subsequent review for promotion and extension by the next session of the Selection Board. The panel will prepare a statement justifying the non-rate decision in each case, a copy of which will be sent to the non-rated specialist.

ADDENDUM B

SKILLS AND ABILITIES FOR SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE

To plan and implement effective Agency programs, SFS members must understand the context in which the Agency operates and be able to relate Agency functions to broad U.S. foreign policy objectives.

Demonstrated ability to provide strong leadership to enhance the development, achievement, and effective use of subordinate personnel; carry out a performance appraisal program characterized by regular feedback and timely, objective, and candid evaluation reports; and achieve equal employment opportunity goals.

Demonstrated ability to achieve the Agency's strategic goals and performance objectives.

Must have a strong command of the specialized knowledge required by their specialty as well as the general operations, resources, and management policies of the Agency and other foreign affairs agencies.

Demonstrated ability to communicate effectively with influential members of host country audiences on a wide range of Agency programming themes. Skill in presenting ideas and-enlisting support within the Agency, overseas missions, and the larger foreign affairs community.

Demonstrated ability to produce quality work products, achieve performance goals in a timely and economical manner, and maintain high quality and effective programs even with reduced resources.

Demonstrated ability to anticipate future requirements, plan and establish priorities, and organize and administer complex programs related to the achievement of major foreign policy objectives.

Demonstrated ability and skill in interpersonal relations including: sensitivity to the views and perspectives of others and willingness to take them into account; tact and diplomacy to make a point strongly but inoffensively; sensitivity to the needs and aspirations of subordinates; and skill in building bridges between those of different views and perspectives.

PART V-B PERSONNEL (FOREIGN SERVICE), 400 SUPERVISORY EMPLOYEE RELATIONS

Section 470

MILITARY STATUS OF EMPLOYEE-RESERVISTS

471 Certification

471.1 Determining Essentiality

471.2 Handling Individual Requests for Certification

471 CERTIFICATION - The Departments of the Navy and Air Force require that all reservists in the employ of the Federal Government secure a certification from their employing agency of their immediate availability if full or partial mobilization should be declared. The Department of the Army requires such certification from the individual reservist.

471.1 Determining Essentiality

a. Employee-reservists occupying key positions will be certified as "essential". Key positions are limited to those positions which are deemed necessary to carry out the functions of Government directly concerned with maintaining the security of the nation and which also involve serious difficulty of replacement because of a scarcity of available qualified personnel and which require extended periods of training or specialized experience for effective performance of duties.

b. The Office of Personnel will consult with the employee-reservist's immediate supervisor to determine the essentiality of the employee without waiting for a specific request for certification from a military establishment. Personnel will maintain a record of cases on which certification of essentiality has been made and will make annual reports to the Department of Defense on the status of employee-reservists.

c. As changes in assignment occur that may affect an employee-reservist's essentiality or availability, the Office of Personnel will consult with the employee's new supervisor for a redetermination.

d. New appointees who are members of the military reserve will be so identified as promptly as possible after entrance on duty.

e. Each employee-reservist will be informed by Personnel concerning his or her essentiality. A determination of "essential" may result in an employee's removal from the Ready Reserve.

471.2 Handling Individual Requests for Certification

a. When an employee-reservist receives a request from a military establishment for certification of availability, the employee will forward the request promptly to the Director, Office of Personnel. The Director, Office of Personnel will approve or disapprove the request on the basis of the employee's element's determination regarding the employee's essentiality.

b. If the employee receives a request to certify his or her own availability, the employee will consult with the Office of Personnel and be guided by its determination regarding essentiality.

Section 520

MEDICAL AND HEALTH PROGRAM

521 AUTHORITY - The Medical and Health Program for Foreign Service employees and their dependents who accompany them to posts of assignment outside the United States is administered under arrangement with the Department of State in accordance with uniform regulations published in the Foreign Affairs Manual (3 FAM ). 3 FAM 1900 applies to all Foreign Service personnel who are assigned on a rotational basis to positions overseas and in the United States. The following notes internal Agency procedures to be followed in granting medical clearances or waivers of clearances.

522 MEDICAL EXAMINATIONS

522.1 Pre-Employment - All candidates for appointment with the Foreign Service and their dependents (as defined by 3 FAM 1900) who are to accompany them to the overseas post of assignment are required to complete the medical examination prescribed by the regulations (3 FAM 1900) before appointment action may be completed. Medical fitness requirements are, of necessity, more rigorous than for most other professions. In general, any medical condition is disqualifying if it would unduly restrict overseas assignability on a worldwide basis; constitute an unnecessary or significant risk to the life or limb of the applicant, dependents, or fellow employees; or be of such a nature as to require medical support not readily available at overseas posts. Generally, medical conditions which require frequent observation and examination or prolonged treatment, which may be aggravated by certain geographic or climatic conditions or which may require excessive time lost from duty or premature separation from the Foreign Service, are found to be disqualifying. (See V-B 523 for Waivers). Medical exams in the United States will normally be conducted by the medical facilities of the Department of State, of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Public Health Service, or other United States Government agency. Under certain circumstances, a private physician or clinic may be used (see 3 FAM 1900). Examinations in locations other than the Department of State Medical Facility are given according to instructions in FS-435, Guidelines for the Examining Physician. Personnel issues the authorization for applicants to take the medical exam, results of which must be analyzed by the Department of State Medical Division, and a medical clearance issued for applicant and his or her dependents prior to appointment.

522.2 During Employment - Foreign Service employees and their dependents (as defined in 3 FAM 1900) are required to take the prescribed medical examination prior to departure for a post and upon return to the United States for assignment, separation, or home leave. It is the responsibility of each employee to obtain the required medical clearance, or waiver, for himself or herself and each dependent prior to proceeding abroad. While abroad, the employee is also responsible for avoiding any personal or official activities which would violate any imposed medical limitation. Employees are responsible for obtaining medical clearances in accordance with procedures outlined in 3 FAM 1900. Notices of the medical clearances are forwarded by the Department of State Medical Division to the Office of Personnel for inclusion in the employee's Official Personnel Folder.

522.3 Upon Separation, Retirement, or Death - Employees who are separating or retiring from the Service should arrange for medical examinations for themselves and eligible dependents who had ever accompanied the employee abroad, at least 30 days prior to separation. If the required medical examination is not completed by the separation date or initiated with M/MED 30 days prior to separation, the employee and dependents will be required to complete form DS-1689, Waiver of Medical Claim, for future medical services, unless M/MED determines that the delay was no fault of the employee. Medical clearances, or waivers, must be submitted to the Office of Personnel for separating and retiring employees. Within 60 days after the death of an employee, dependents will be asked to complete the medical examination or submit form DS-1689, Waiver of Medical Claim. If the medical examination is not completed within 90 days following the employee's death, all future medical claims by dependents are automatically waived unless the Medical Director, Department of State, determines that the delay was no fault of the dependent. The Office of Personnel will process the medical claim and/or medical examination for dependents of deceased employees.

522.4 Special Examinations - The Director, Office of Personnel may request the Medical Director to order a special medical examination for either an employee or dependent(s) whenever the question of transfer, continuation of an assignment, or eligibility for retirement is raised because of health reasons. A special examination may also be required before return to duty of an employee who has been absent because of illness or injury.

523 WAIVER OF MEDICAL CLEARANCE - Broadcasting will convene a Medical Waiver Committee which reviews any cases of medical disqualification referred to it. The Committee reviews the files of outside Foreign Service applicants, of Civil Service employees who are applying for Foreign Service appointments/assignments, and of Foreign Service employees. After consultation with the appropriate medical officer at STATE/MED/M, the Committee makes recommendations to the Director, Office of Personnel who may waive the medical clearance requirement for employment applicants and their dependents and employees and their dependents under the circumstances set forth in 3 FAM 1900). Applicants or employees who wish to apply for waivers should address their requests to the Director, Office of Personnel.

Please refer to MOA V-A 570 for the Broadcasting Awards Program. Since Broadcasting's overseas employees are few in number, the award program is handled out of the Office of Personnel in Washington, D. C.

571.1 Documenting and Routing Nominations for Foreign Service Nationals

a. The immediate supervisor prepares a nomination for submission to the office head. Nominations must be descriptive of the duties performed by the nominee and must include concrete evidence of exceptional achievement, initiative and skill. Where applicable, the recommendation should be signed by at least two officers in the line of supervision.

b. Nominations for honor awards and Special Achievement Cash Awards for special acts are submitted on Form DS-1577 in six copies, through supervisory channels to the Executive Secretary of the Awards Committee for review and recommendation to the Awards Committee.

c. Nominations for Meritorious Step Increases and Sustained Superior Performance Cash Awards are submitted on plain white paper in six copies, through supervisory channels to the Executive Secretary of the Awards Committee for review by the committee.

571.2. Effective Date - Step increases become effective at the beginning of the first pay period following the date of approval by the head of the Washington element.

571.3 Relationship to Regular Within-Grade and Within-Class Increases Meritorious Service or Meritorious Step Increases are in addition to regular within-grade increases and are not considered to be equivalent increases in compensation. An employee who receives a Meritorious Service or Meritorious Step Increase does not start a new waiting period to meet the time requirements for a regular within-grade increase. No employee may receive more than one Meritorious Service or Meritorious Step Increase during any 52 week period.

571.4 Informing Employees - In accordance with the requirements of Executive Order 11073, listings of approved awards are published periodically in TUNE IN.

Section 590

591 PURPOSE

This section provides regulations and procedures for the filing, control of, and public access to financial disclosure reports which certain prospective or present employees are required by law to prepare and to submit for review.

592 BACKGROUND

The Ethics in Government Act of 1978 requires certain employees to prepare a comprehensive report on their financial situation to be reviewed for possible conflicts of interest by the Ethics Officer, who is the designated official, and in specified cases by officials of the Office of Government Ethics. By law, these reports must be available for public inspection and copies must be provided on request. The Act also imposes significant new restrictions on post-employment contacts between former employees and Broadcasting.

593 DEFINITIONS

a. "Designated official" means the official designated by the Director of Broadcasting to administer the provisions of the Act. (see paragraph 595.1).

b. "Covered employee" means an employee including a special Government employee, whose position is classified at GS or GM-16 or higher, and a member of the Senior Foreign Service. It also includes individuals appointed to positions by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate; employees in positions which are of a confidential or policy-making character, unless their positions have been excluded by regulations issued by the Director, Office of Government Ethics; and certain others described in the Office of Personnel Management Regulations governing Executive Personnel Financial Disclosure Requirements.

c. "Special Government employee" means an officer or employee who is retained, designated, appointed, or employed to perform, with or without compensation, for not to exceed 130 days during any period of 365 consecutive days, temporary duties either on a full-time or intermittent basis.

d. "Government-wide regulations" means regulations heretofore or hereafter issued by the Office of Personnel management (OPM), and specifically the regulations published in the Federal Register on March 25, 1980.

e. "The Act: means the Ethics in government Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-521; 92 Stat. 1824-1885; approved on October 26, 1978), as amended.

594 PROCEDURES

594.1 Financial Disclosure Statement - There is at present one financial Disclosure Statement Form (Standard Form 278 Revised). It may be used:

a. By employees filing annual statements and termination of employment statements under the Act; and

b. By newly appointed or elected officials and, at the time of nomination, by those persons nominated by the President to positions requiring the advice and consent of the Senate, who must file statements under the Act (see paragraph 593b).

594.2 Filing Requirements - A covered employee must prepare a financial disclosure report on the appropriate standard form issued by the Office of Personnel Management and file it as follows:

a. An individual who assumes a position covered by the Act must file a completed Standard Form 278 within 30 days of assuming the positions (e.g., a GS-15 promoted to GS or GM-16) unless the individual:

(1) has left another covered position within 30 days prior to assuming the new position; or

(2) has already filed a report in connection with a nomination or as a candidate for the position.

b. An individual who occupies a covered position and performs the duties of that position for more than 60 days during any calendar year must file a completed Standard Form 278 on or before May 15 of each succeeding calendar year. The reports filed on or before May 15 are to include information for the preceding calendar year.

c. An individual whose employment in a covered position terminates must file a completed Standard Form 278 unless the individual has accepted employment in another covered position. The report required by this paragraph covers the preceding calendar year, unless the May 15 report covering that year has been filed, plus the period of the current year up to the individual's termination from employment.

594.3 Effective Dates and Deadline for Submission of the Financial Disclosure Statements All Statements must be submitted to the General Counsel no later than May 15 of each year. Except as otherwise specifically provided in this section, and except for officers assigned overseas who must file by June 15.

594.4 Contents of Completed Reports

a. Each covered employee should read the Information Sheet on the Standard Form to assure it is the Form appropriate to the circumstances of the employee and to understand the information which is required to be included. Employees with questions are referred in the first instance to the Government-wide regulations or to the instructions to Standard Form 278. Any questions still unanswered should be referred to the General Counsel.

b. Each covered employee is instructed to include the employee's grade or class in the block entitled "Position for which filing" on page 1 of Standard Form 278.

c. Under Schedule C of the Financial Disclosure Statement, an officer need not identify or disclose gifts that were offered and accepted as part of a publicly recognized representational function (e.g., diplomatic dinner or reception). These are more properly covered by the Foreign Gifts Act (5 USC 7342) and are excluded from coverage under these regulations.

595 RESPONSIBILITIES

595.1 Office of the General Counsel - The General Counsel provides advice to the Ethics Officer who serves as the designated official to administer the provisions of the Act.

595.2 Heads of Offices, and Services

On March 1 of each year, the head of each Office, or Service is requested to designate a subordinate officer who will:

(1) identify the covered employees, i.e., every employee who must file a Financial Disclosure Statement (Standard Form 278) by reason of the employee's personal class in the Foreign Service or of the position which the employee occupies in the Civil Service;

(2) distribute the Financial Disclosure Statements to these employees

(3) request each covered employee to fill out the Financial Disclosure Statement;

(4) obtain a current job description for each covered employee and identify the employee to whom the description relates;

(5) request missing information from an employee who has filed an incomplete Statement; and

(6) forward the job descriptions and the completed Statements to the Ethics Officer no later than May 15, (June 15 in the case of officers assigned overseas) with certification that all employees have complied. IT IS MOST IMPORTANT THAT JOB DESCRIPTIONS ACCOMPANY THE COMPLETED STATEMENTS. It is the responsibility of the designated subordinate officer to ensure that the job descriptions are forwarded to the Ethics Officer.

As an aid in identifying covered employees, the Office of Personnel, acting through the Transactions Staff, will provide to each Office Director, a list of employees whose incumbency in a civil service position or whose personal foreign service rank subjects them to the reporting obligations. In Offices having an Administrative Officer, that Officer is normally assigned this responsibility.

In case of doubt whether an employee is obligated to submit a Statement, the officer required to obtain the Statement from the employee should consult the Ethics Officer.

The name and location of each officer who fails or refuses to submit a Financial Disclosure Statement should be provided to the Office of the General Counsel, together with a narrative statement of the efforts made by the Office to obtain the officer's compliance with the obligation.

595.3 Detailed Employees - All covered detailed employees will file completed Financial Disclosure Statements with the Designated Ethics Official of the agency to which they are detailed.

595.4 Overseas Program Support Employees - Program Support Elements will be responsible for obtaining job descriptions for and Financial Disclosure Statements from their employees abroad as well as from those in the United States. (For example, the designated Broadcasting officer will be responsible for obtaining job descriptions for and the Statements from covered employees at all Broadcasting overseas establishments.)

595.5 Presidential Appointment of Principal Officers - The General Counsel shall obtain the completed Financial Disclosure Statement (Standard Form 278) of proposed Presidential appointees.

595.6 Separated Employees - The heads of Offices or Services will obtain the last applicable job descriptions and Financial Disclosure Statements for employees who, immediately before separation were employed in a covered position.

The completed Statement and job description pertaining to a covered employee who has been separated will be forwarded within thirty (30) days after separation to the Ethics Officer. Periodically, the Director, Office of Personnel will provide the Ethics Officer with a list of employees who have been separated. The Ethics Officer will check the list against the Statements of separated employees on file and notify the Director, Office of Personnel of any former employees who have not filed Statements. The Director, Office of Personnel, acting through the appropriate Office, Service, or the Retirement Division in the Office of Personnel will notify any such former employees of the requirement to file the Statements and of applicable penalties.

596 PENALTY FOR FAILURE TO FILE OR FALSIFYING REPORTS

The Attorney General may bring a civil action in any United States District Court with jurisdiction against any individual who knowingly and willfully falsifies or who knowingly or willfully fails to file or to report any information required by the Act. The court in which such action is brought may assess against such individual a civil penalty not to exceed $5,000.

597 RIGHTS OF THE EMPLOYEES

a. Steps to Determine the Existence of the Obligation to Report - When the Ethics Officer has been informed by the Office Director that an employee has failed or refuses to submit a complete Statement, an Assistant General Counsel shall communicate to the employee the reasons for which the obligation has been applied to the employee, and the obligation incumbent on the General Counsel:

(1) to refer to the Attorney General the name of any individual who, the General Counsel has reason to believe, has knowingly and willfully falsified or knowingly or willfully failed to file or to report any information required to be reported; or

(2) to recommend that disciplinary action be taken against the employee.

The Ethics Officer shall notify the employee in writing that the decision to refer the employee's name to the Attorney General as well as to take any appropriate disciplinary action in accordance with applicable law or regulation is under consideration and that the employee is required within ten (10) working days of receipt of the written notice to submit the completed Statement or to furnish any evidence or arguments before further action is taken.

After receipt of the employee's reply or where no reply has been submitted, the Assistant General Counsel shall review the entire available record, decide whether to accept the employee's argument, or to recommend to the General Counsel that the employee's name be referred to the Attorney General or that disciplinary action be taken (or both) and notify the employee in writing of the decision and the reasons for it.

The Assistant General Counsel shall not discuss the proposed decision with the General Counsel or Deputy General Counsel while the decision is pending.

b. Appeal - An employee may appeal a decision of an Assistant General Counsel:

(1) that the employee must submit a complete Financial Disclosure Statement;

(2) that specific information is required to be submitted;

(3) that the required information has not been submitted;

(4) that a conflict of interest exists; or

(5) proposing to refer the employee's name to the Attorney General.

The appeal directed to the General Counsel through the Ethics Officer shall be in writing, and shall be sent within then (10) working days after an employee receives written notice of the decision to be appealed. This appeal shall not preclude any other appeal provided by law or regulation of the Office of Personnel Management or of the Office of Government Ethics.

The General Counsel or the Deputy General Counsel shall decide the appeal on the written record and notify the employee in writing of the decision and of the reasons for it.

On written request, the Office of Administration will make available to the Public the filed job descriptions and completed Financial Disclosure Statements. If a job description is not attached to a Statement which has been requested for inspection, an Assistant General Counsel will obtain the job description for an overseas position from the appropriate Office. A record shall be kept of each person who inspects or requests a copy of a particular Statement and of the date on which inspection took place or the document was furnished. The Director, Office of Administration, will post prominently at the place where Statements are inspected by the public, and will attach to the Statements furnished, a notice describing the penalties for misuse of the Financial Disclosure Statements or of their contents. The Director, office of Administration, will dispose of Financial Disclosure Statements on file in accordance with section 734.603 (b) & (c) of the OPM Government-wide Regulations.

The General Counsel or the Deputy General Counsel shall be responsible for review of Statements filed by Presidential nominees to the positions of Associate Director or above and of the Statements which are subjects of appeals by employees.

All referrals to the Attorney General or to the Director of the office of Government Ethics shall be by the General Counsel.

610.1 Definition - Telecommuting is a program which gives employees the opportunity to work part of their work schedule at an alternate work site, either at home or at a telecenter. In this circular, the term "alternate work site" will refer to working at home. Broadcasting cannot consider renting telecenter space at this time due to budget limitations.

610.2 Authority - Presidential Memorandum of July 11, 1994 and June 21, 1996.

610.3 Coverage - All employees, Civil Service and Foreign Service, full-time and part-time, in the U.S. and overseas, may be considered for participation in telecommuting.

The work requirements of some organizations or overseas environments may not be compatible with telecommuting practices. Further, overseas employees are subject to approval by the marketing office chief, transmitting station chief, or correspondent bureau chief. Approving officials overseas and in the U.S. must determine the extent to which the telecommuting policy can be implemented consistent with Broadcasting needs and available resources.

610.4 Background - In 1990, the President's Council on Management Improvement established the Federal Flexible Workplace Pilot Project (Flexiplace), which was co-directed by the Office of Personnel Management and the General Services Administration. In President Clinton's 1993 Climate Change Action Plan, he called for the Department of Transportation to develop a telecommuting program aimed at decreasing greenhouse emissions through reduced vehicle trips, energy consumption, and auto emissions. On July 21, 1994 and June 21, 1996, President Clinton issued Presidential Memorandums directing Executive Departments and Agencies to support the expansion of flexible family-friendly work arrangements, including the increase of telecommuters throughout the Federal Government.

610.5 How Telecommuting Works - An employee may volunteer to work at an alternate work site. If the supervisor agrees that the work of the position is such that at least part of it may be accomplished outside the office, the employee and supervisor establish a written agreement, signed by both, which provides guidelines and requirements for telecommuting. The employee works one or two days at the alternate work site each week and spends the remainder of the workweek in the office.

a. The Telecommuter - There is no entitlement, or right, to telecommuting, nor can an employee be forced to telecommute. The employee who telecommutes must be a self-starter, dependable and highly motivated, and must be in a position which is adaptable to telecommuting. An employee who is on leave restriction or has less than a Fully Successful performance appraisal rating of record should not be considered for telecommuting.

b. Supervising Telecommuting - All telecommuting situations must be approved by the appropriate supervisor. Upon an employee's request to telecommute, a supervisor must evaluate the duties of the position and decide if all or some of them may be achieved outside the office setting and the impact on other employees. Telecommuting should be used in a way which will not place an additional burden on employees who are staffing the office. Technological support and resources may also be a consideration.

The supervisor is responsible for certifying time and attendance records including periods of telecommuting. A degree of trust is required, and the supervisor may choose to manage by results (i.e., based on projects successfully completed). However, a supervisor may also manage by asking the employee to keep a journal of tasks completed and telephone calls made, or to check in via E-Mail or telephone, or through some other method.

A 90-day test period is recommended. The supervisor and the telecommuter should keep detailed records on successful and timely completion of work done at home, impact on the office, and any other factors relevant to the experience. At the end of the 90 days, the supervisor should assess the test period, and decide on continuation of telecommuting.

Telecommuting may be terminated at any time if there is a change in duties or workplace conditions; or the performance of the telecommuter or the office has been adversely affected. The supervisor must give the employee reasonable advance notice, two weeks if possible.

Telecommuting may also be terminated if the telecommuter does not abide by the telecommuting agreement and Broadcasting policy. Advance notice of the end of the telecommuting may be given, but is not required under these circumstances.

c. The Telecommuting Agreement - Prior to establishing a formal agreement, an employee interested in telecommuting should prepare a proposal for the supervisor outlining an individual telecommuting plan tailored to the employee's job, his/her needs, and the needs of the office. It should include: duties of the position which can be performed at home; materials and equipment which would be required to perform those duties; equipment which will be provided by the employee; hours and days which the employee would prefer to work; how to minimize any impact on coworkers; and any other information that would be useful to the supervisor in making a decision.

A written agreement must be established and signed by the supervisor and the telecommuter before a telecommuting situation begins. Such an agreement is additional protection if the telecommuter experiences an accident or injury at the alternate work site. The agreement will cover a variety of issues such as: the exact duty station (e.g., home address); the identification of the types of assignments to be done at the alternate work site; taking leave on a telecommuting day; responsibility for equipment and security; and liability and injury on the job.

d. Work Performed At The Alternate Work Site - There is no single definition for work which can be performed outside the office. Although many jobs can be adapted to a telecommuting situation, there are some which cannot be accomplished outside the office. Ultimately, this is the decision of the supervisor or team leader.

To telecommute, the position must include work which is portable and able to be performed effectively outside the office; job tasks should be measurable or primarily project oriented; the work done at the alternate work site must not be classified.

e. Work Schedules - The supervisor and telecommuter must decide on the frequency of regular telecommuting days, which days of the week, and if the work hours will be fixed or flexible (Maxiflex, Flextime, or compressed work schedule). Most telecommuters will work at an alternate work site for a maximum of one or two days each week on a regular basis. As much as possible, work-hours should parallel those worked in the office so that the telecommuter may be available by phone to coworkers and customers. In general, overtime work should be reserved for days an employee is in the office. The telecommuting agreement must stipulate these factors. If there are permanent changes, the telecommuter should be given adequate notice, usually 30 days, and the agreement must be amended accordingly.

Intermittent telecommuting also may be utilized to complete special projects that require uninterrupted periods of concentration. For example, an employee may be permitted to work at home for an entire workweek to write a script or complete performance appraisals. In all situations, the supervisor's advance approval of any telecommuting schedule must be obtained.

It may be necessary for a supervisor to require the presence of an employee in the office on a day normally scheduled for telecommuting. Normally an employee is notified of such a change in advance, but sometimes advance notice is not always feasible when the circumstances are beyond the supervisor's control. Employees must be flexible in these situations.

f. Leave And Administrative Dismissal - Regulations and procedures for requesting annual and sick leave or leave without pay are found in MOA V-A 600 and apply to days worked in the office as well as telecommuting days.

The ability to work (and the nature of any impediments) whether at the alternate work site or at the official duty station, determines when an employee may be excused from duty. During emergencies such as inclement weather or transportation disruptions which affect the employee's ability to commute to the official duty station, a supervisor may permit employees to temporarily telecommute or allow a participating telecommuter to telecommute on an unscheduled day. The employee must be able to perform work tasks at the alternate work site and provide a work product or evidence of tasks completed. There may not be sufficient work to fill an eight-hour day workday. If not, the employee should request an appropriate type and amount OF leave for part of the day.

610.6 Worker's Compensation - Telecommuting employees are covered by the Federal Tort Claims Act of the Federal Employees Compensation Act (FECA) and can qualify for continuation of pay or workers' compensation for on-the-job injury or occupational illness. Completing injury report forms, notification of the supervisor, and other requirements adhered to in the traditional office setting must also be followed at an alternate work site.

610.7 Telecommunications And Equipment - Employees who telecommute at home will be responsible for providing the necessary equipment to do so. This may include computers, software, printers, fax machines, additional telephone lines, modems, diskettes, and related supplies. The employee is also responsible for repair and maintenance of personal equipment.

a. Equipment on Loan - Office Heads may determine that excess equipment such as computers and printers within their offices can be lent to employees for use at home. All such equipment must be properly charged out in accordance with procedures found in MOA IV, Part 710 and 720, and ownership and control of hardware, software, and data remain with the U.S. Government. The equipment must be used only by the employee and only for official business. The employee will be responsible for transporting to, and installing the equipment at home (training may be provided at the office) and returning the equipment to the office for needed repairs. If government-owned equipment is damaged through negligence or by a non-employee, the employee is liable for the cost of the repairs or replacement of the equipment.

b. Telephone Calls - Long distance business telephone calls made from the home may be reimbursed with the supervisor's approval when the employee provides a copy of the telephone bill and identifies the business party called. At the supervisor's request, additional justification may be required. If an employee's residence is outside the local calling area of the office, he/she will be responsible for the expense of any long-distance calls to the office when telecommuting.

610.8 Security - Classified material may not be taken to alternate work sites, nor may it be accessed through the computer. A telecommuter must properly safeguard material and data which are subject to the Privacy Act or are otherwise considered sensitive. Such material may only be used at home with the supervisor's approval.

The designated alternate work site must have adequate physical or environmental security measures in place (e.g., door locks, passwords, etc.) to protect equipment from being accessed by unauthorized individuals. In addition, telecommuters must take appropriate actions to safeguard against computer viruses. Anti-virus software should be installed on the computer and software should be scanned for viruses.

Dial-up telecommunications access to U.S. Government computers presents special security concerns. A combination of physical controls, unique user identifiers, passwords, terminal identifiers, access control software, and strict adherence to security procedures is required to protect the information from unauthorized access.

610.9 Family Responsibilities - Telecommuting is not a substitute for child care or elder care. An employee must make other arrangements for a dependent in the home who requires care. However, it may decrease child care costs by reducing commuting time or reducing the need for before or after-school care. To the extent that they are controllable, other family responsibilities should not interfere with an employee working at home.

610.10 Telecommuting Committee/Coordinator - offices may establish a telecommuting committee or coordinator to provide guidance on telecommuting issues, assist in the development of work-at-home plans, provide training, ensure that appropriate safeguards on office materials and data have been implemented, and assess telecommuting within the element and prepare findings for the Office head and/or management.

EXHIBIT 610 - TELECOMMUTING HANDBOOK

PURPOSE

This Telecommuting Handbook provides information and guidelines on telecommuting for managers and employees.

SCOPE

This handbook applies to all domestic and overseas offices of Broadcasting and is intended to serve as a flexible guide to enable elements to develop effective telecommuting arrangements. Organizational needs may vary. Offices may need to adjust their telecommuting programs, within the parameters outlined in this guidance, to suit their specific requirements.

Overseas posts should use this guidance insofar as it can be accommodated within any plan approved by the of the Office Director. Correspondent bureau chiefs, or transmitting station chiefs will determine in coordination with the appropriate element if telecommuting can be accommodated at any overseas sites.

DEFINITIONS

Telecommuting is a program which gives employees the opportunity to work part of their tour of duty at an alternate work site. It is also known as flexiplace, flexiwork, telework, and work-at-home.

An alternate work site is a specific room or area in an employee's residence or telecommuting center (telecenter) which is used to perform work assignments.

Portable work includes those tasks that can be completed, in whole or in part, outside of an employee's official duty station within an 8-hour work day.

BACKGROUND

In March 1990, then President George Bush introduced his Statement of National Transportation Policy by saying:

"Sometimes the best transportation policy means not moving people, but moving their work...a trend known as telecommuting. Millions have already found their productivity increases when they work nearer the people they're actually working for -- their families at home...Think of it as commuting to work at the speed of light."

Telecommuting in the Federal Government started as a pilot program in 1990. The President's Council on Management Improvement (PCMI), in cooperation with the Office of Personnel Management and the General Services Administration, established The Federal Flexible Workplace Pilot Project (Flexiplace). The nationwide program was established to improve the Federal Government's ability to recruit and retain capable employees, to improve employee quality of life, and to reduce Federal operating costs.

Flexiplace was designed to test the feasibility and use of specific alternate workplace arrangements. These arrangements included allowing Federal employees to work at their homes or at satellite work centers. The terms telecommuting and work-at-home refer to paid employment away from the traditional workplace. Telecommuting implies the use of communications technology (computers, modems, fax machines, telephones, voice mail, etc.) to connect the employee to the official duty station (Demers, 1994). Programs such as work-at-home may include the use of technology but may have guidelines that differ somewhat from those used for telecenter arrangements.

Further Federal impetus to telecommuting came in President Clinton's 1993 Climate Change Action Plan. The plan underscored America's commitment to protecting the global environment by taking immediate actions to reduce greenhouse gas emissions to 1990 levels by the year 2000. Action #21 in the plan called for the Department of Transportation (DOT) to develop a telecommuting program aimed at decreasing greenhouse gas emissions through reduced vehicle trips, energy consumption, and auto emissions.

On March 1, 1994, Transportation Secretary Pena issued a directive to top-level DOT management to identify potential candidates for telecommuting programs in Los Angeles and Washington, D.C. On April 1, 1994, DOT issued a formal department policy on telecommuting.

On July 11, 1994, President Clinton, in support of a recommendation of the National Performance Review, issued a memorandum in which he directed the heads of Executive Departments and Agencies to "establish a program to encourage and support the expansion of flexible family-friendly work arrangements, including: job sharing; career part-time employment; alternate work schedules; telecommuting and satellite work locations...." On June 21, 1996, President Clinton reaffirmed his strong commitment to support family members in the Federal workplace by directing executive agencies to expand their family-friendly programs, to the extent feasible, to provide opportunities to telecommute.

BENEFITS

Telecommuting is designed to benefit employees, management, and society.

Management Benefits

- o Improves employee productivity, effectiveness, and morale.
- o Improves communications between supervisors and employees.
- o Retains skilled employees.
- o Decreases absenteeism.

Employee Benefits

- o Allows the employee to become more productive and creative by providing a more relaxed working environment with fewer interruptions.
- o Reduces stressful commuting time.
- o Increases flexibility to coordinate work schedules with personal and family priorities.
- o Improves employee's organizational skills.
- o Gives the employee more control over his/her life.
- o Reduces costs for transportation, parking, and food.
- o Boosts morale and increases job satisfaction.
- o Improves communications with his/her supervisor.
- o Increases motivation.

Societal Benefits

- o Reduces commuting trips and traffic congestion.
- o Reduces air pollution and conserves transportation fuels (energy conservation).
- o Lessens the wear and tear on cars and roads.
- o Improves employment opportunities for the disabled and mobility restricted.
- o Reduces problems associated with "latch-key" children.

PARTICIPATION IN A TELECOMMUTING PLAN

Before volunteering to be considered for telecommuting, employees must evaluate their jobs and their life-style requirements to determine if both are well-suited for telecommuting (see Attachment, Application for Participation in Telecommuting Program). The work tasks within a job, not a job title, determine suitability for telecommuting. Also critical are the employee's work history and personal characteristics. A history of reliable and responsible discharge of work duties, an ability to establish priorities and manage time, and a proven track record of personal motivation are measures of successful telecommuters.

Once the employee has volunteered and received approval to telecommute, sufficient time should be allowed to iron out any wrinkles or to overcome any obstacles to success. Participating supervisors and employees are encouraged to remain in the program for at least 90 days to provide a fair test of the telecommuting arrangement.

Telecommuting is an employee privilege, not an employee right. After an employee has identified work tasks which may be suitable for telecommuting, the supervisor has to determine if the position is suitable for off-site work. The supervisor also must evaluate the content of the work to be performed off-site and the past performance of the employee. Because this telecommuting arrangement is a supervisory work option, the employee does not have an automatic right to continue participation in the event of a change of supervisor.

If the employee is selected to participate in the program, the supervisor and employee will sign the Telecommuting Work Agreement (see attachment) to ensure that both parties fully understand program policies and procedures. The supervisor and the employee must establish appropriate arrangements for the employee to follow when working off-site. The overall interests of the office must take precedence. A supervisor may require an employee to be on-site on a regular off-site day if the needs of the office require this. In addition, one person's off-site work should not adversely affect the performance of other employees. Telecommuting should not put a burden on staff remaining in the office. Not only should an equitable distribution of workload be maintained, but methods should be instituted to ensure that office employees do not have to handle the telecommuter's work. Employees must complete the Telecommuting Program Safety Checklist and Employee Self-Certification (see Attachment).

The supervisor has the right to end participation of an employee in the program if the employee's performance declines or if the program fails to benefit organizational needs. Whenever possible, the supervisor should provide at least two weeks advance notice of cancellation of an employee's participation in the program. The supervisor also should include the reasons for cancellation.

RESPONSIBILITIES

Supervisors Will:

- o Evaluate employee requests to participate in the program. Consider the employees' responsibilities, work tasks, and potential for successful participation in the program.
- o Develop performance work plans as needed for work performed away from the official duty station.
- o Complete and sign the telecommuting agreement.
- o Assign appropriate work to be performed at the alternate duty station.
- o Determine how the quantity and quality of work will be measured and evaluated.
- o Periodically evaluate the telecommuting program.
- o Request approval to use excess computers or other government-owned equipment for telecommuting.

Employees approved for participation in the program will:

- o Complete and sign the telecommuting agreement.
- o Observe agreed-upon hours of work in accordance with established policies.
- o Observe policies for requesting leave.
- o Provide all necessary equipment to work at home unless government equipment can be provided.
- o Protect loaned U.S. Government equipment and use it for official purposes only.
- o Assist in evaluating telecommuting programs.

Telecommuting Program Coordinator

Each Office may establish a mechanism to assist participation in the telecommuting program. This could be a Telecommuting Committee, a Telecommuting Program Coordinator, or a combination of the two. This committee or program coordinator also could be responsible for evaluating the impact of the program on the efficiency and effectiveness of work operations in the respective element.

Telecommuting Program Coordinator duties may include but are not limited to:

- o Providing orientation materials and briefings on telecommuting policies and procedures.
- o Ensuring that all participating supervisors and employees are aware of their responsibilities to measure and report performance and time and attendance accurately.
- o Providing information on the proper safeguarding of information, papers, diskettes, etc.
- o Coordinating inventory records and providing assistance on the maintenance and use of borrowed U.S. Government property and equipment.
- o Providing evaluation materials to the participating individuals and supervisors and co-workers of the telecommuters.
- o Assessing the telecommuting program.

CRITERIA FOR PARTICIPATION

Several criteria play in the selection of those allowed to participate in the telecommuting program: the nature of the work performed and the characteristics of the employee and supervisor.

Identifying a Position Suitable for Telecommuting

Careful examination of tasks to be performed at an alternate work site is key to a successful telecommuting program. Supervisors must determine whether some or all of an employee's duties are portable and may be performed at the alternate work site, and whether the goals of the office can be achieved without causing hardship for staff remaining in the office. Supervisors and employees must discuss their expectations of how work will be performed and evaluated. In addition, employees must recognize that standards of conduct apply at the alternate work site.

Telecommuting positions will have at least some of the following characteristics: work activities can be performed effectively outside the office; job tasks are easily quantifiable or primarily project oriented; an essential component of responsibility consists of reading/analytical tasks --e.g., evaluating proposals and reviews, making funding decisions, and conducting research; contact with other employees and service clientele is predictable; most work handled is not classified; the technology needed to perform the job is currently available; cyclical work does not present a problem; security of data, including sensitive, non-classified, privacy act concerns, etc. can be adequately ensured.

After deciding that a certain job contains sufficient portable work tasks, supervisors need to explore other considerations:

- o Contact Requirements - Is a significant percentage of the job devoted to "face-to-face" contact with other employees, the public, or internal agency staff? Can contact be readjusted to allow for telephone or computer communications or can such contact be conducted only when the employee is at the conventional office?

o Reference Materials Requirements - To what extent does the job require access to photocopiers, fax machines, or other specialized equipment? Can access needs be grouped and scheduled for days when the employee is in the conventional office?

o Travel Requirements - Does the job involve field work? Can trips begin or end at the alternate work site rather than the main office? Can paperwork be done at the alternate work site?

o Information Security Requirements - Does the employee rely primarily on sensitive or classified documents to perform work tasks?

Identifying A Successful Telecommuter

An employee who succeeds as a telecommuter is a self-starter, can function independently; has demonstrated dependability and discipline; is highly motivated; can deal with isolation for one or two days a week; has the ability to establish priorities and manage his/her own time; has a history of reliable and responsible discharge of work duties; has a full understanding of the operations of the organization; has the trust of his/her supervisor; has overall performance evaluations equivalent to fully successful or higher; can satisfy adequate alternate work site requirements; and can assure security of U.S. Government information and property at the alternate work site.

Supervising a Telecommuter

The supervisor of a telecommuter should be progressive and supportive of the telecommuting concept and should be willing to attempt to work through any problems or obstacles that may occur. He/She should be comfortable with evaluating work performance in a manner compatible with telecommuting, i.e., measuring performance by results and without direct observation; and must be an effective communicator and be able to define tasks and expectations clearly.

TELECOMMUTING WORK AGREEMENTS

Each participant must sign the Telecommuting Work Agreement (See attachment). This document constitutes an agreement between the employee and the supervisor on the terms and conditions of participating in the telecommuting program.

WORK SCHEDULES

Telecommuting work schedules should parallel those followed at the official duty station. The Telecommuting Work Agreement will specify the employee's work schedule and tour of duty. Generally, up to two days per week will be scheduled outside of the office. This will ensure that the employee is available in the office during the week for face-to-face meetings, access to facilities, etc. Furthermore, successful programs have shown employees need to spend at least part of the week in the office to minimize isolation and communication problems, to facilitate integration of the employee with those in the office, and to ease the supervisor's adjustment.

Intermittent use of telecommuting also is permissible. For example, to complete a special project, an employee may require a block of uninterrupted time. Agency supervisors have the authority to allow an employee to telecommute for a reasonable length of time to complete the project. The supervisor must evaluate the best means for the organization to meet its needs. Allowing an employee to telecommute beyond two days per week may provide that means.

A regular schedule makes it easier to stay in touch with colleagues and to be available to clients. Supervisors must approve telecommuting schedules in advance so that employee's time and attendance can be properly certified and to preclude any liability for premium or overtime pay. Absences from the alternative work site (e.g., to attend meetings) must be coordinated with the supervisor at the earliest time practicable.

Periodic adjustments are permitted, as needed, to achieve a schedule suiting employee and organizational requirements. Developing fixed times during the day for supervisor/employee telephone conversations may be helpful to ensure optimum communication.

Care must be taken not to approve any schedule that is inconsistent with provisions of an applicable negotiated labor agreement.

To reduce employee isolation, supervisors should ensure that telecommuters feel part of the team by keeping them aware of activities in the office while they are off-site; holding staff meetings on days when everyone is present at the official duty station; considering them equally with other employees in selection for special projects, etc. Employees should not be disadvantaged regarding performance appraisals, awards, or any other employee/employer matter because they are telecommuting.

DUTIES

Changes to position descriptions will not normally be required. Supervisors should carefully specify the employee's official duties in their work requirements and priorities on the Performance Appraisal Report form. The supervisor and employee must reach an agreement on which of those duties can be performed off-site.

Critical elements and performance standards must have clearly defined performance requirements that are measurable and results oriented. The standards must provide a reasonable basis for measuring performance. Explicit and objective norms for work output should be based on experience with those required and sustained at the official duty station. Work output should be monitored through scheduled and required progress reports. The supervisor and employee should establish objective measures of quantity and quality.

An increase in an employee's effort or productivity may not occur if an employee is already performing at a highly successful or outstanding performance level. Standards of performance must be fair and consistent with those expected of employees at the official duty station.

TIME AND ATTENDANCE

Hours of Duty: Employees may work standard schedules or follow alternate work schedules depending upon the agreement between the employee and the supervisor. The supervisor and employee select the telecommuting day(s). The supervisor will evaluate each circumstance on a case-by-case basis. Completely unstructured arrangements are not permitted.

Overseas staff follow established hours. Regular and flextime tours of duty in the U.S. are permitted as follows:

Regular - five 8-hour days, and a 45 minute non-paid lunch period.

Flextime - five 8-hour days, and a non-paid lunch period of 45 minutes each day.

Maxiflex - includes flexible arrival and departure, the option of earning credit hours to take a day off as often as every other week, and a non-paid lunch period of 45 minutes each day.

Compressed Work Schedules - includes two types of fixed schedules--the 5/4-9 schedule which is eight nine-hour days, one eight-hour day, and one day off; and the 4-10 schedule of four ten-hour days each week.

Leave and Overtime: The policies for requesting annual leave, sick leave, or leave without pay are the same for working on or off-site. The employee is responsible for requesting leave in advance from the supervisor and for keeping the timekeeper informed of leave usage.

A supervisor may approve overtime or credit hours if needed in extraordinary circumstances. The existing rules governing overtime in Title 5 USC and the Fair Labor Standards Act apply to telecommuting arrangements. Because the supervisor is responsible for regulating and controlling the use of overtime, the supervisor must approve all overtime in advance and be satisfied that more than eight hours in a day were worked.

With prior supervisory approval, the employee will be compensated for overtime work in accordance with applicable law, regulations, and policies. The employee understands that the supervisor will not certify unapproved overtime work.

Certification and Control of Time and Attendance: A high level of trust between the supervisor and employee is essential. Federal policy and procedures governing certification of time and attendance require agencies with employees working at remote sites to provide reasonable assurance that they are working when scheduled. Reasonable assurance may include occasional telephone calls between the offices and the telecommuter; evaluation of work output for the time spent; a log of work completed; or telephone calls or e-mail transmissions from the telecommuter to the timekeeper of starting and ending times of each telecommuting day. Supervisors must report time and attendance to ensure that employees are paid only for work performed and that absences from scheduled tours of duty are accounted for correctly.

Administrative Leave, Dismissals, Emergency Closings: Although a variety of circumstances may affect individual situations, the principles governing administrative leave, dismissals, and emergency closings remain unchanged.

The ability to work (and the nature of any impediments), whether at the alternate work site or at the official duty station, are factors considered when determining when an employee may be excused from duty. For example, if the employee is working at the alternate work site, and the main office closes, the telecommuter should continue working at the alternate work site. However, if the employee's electricity fails while working at the alternate work site, the supervisor may grant administrative leave or direct the employee to report to work, depending on which action is more appropriate given the circumstances, i.e., number of hours remaining in the employee's work day and the distance the employee commutes.

When an employee knows in advance of a situation that would preclude working at the alternate work site, the employee should either report to the official duty station or request leave.

Emergency Situations: Local emergency situations such as transportation disruptions, natural disasters, or inclement weather may adversely affect an employee's ability to commute to the official duty station. In such an event, a supervisor has the authority to grant temporary telecommuting arrangements for affected employees or to allow a participating telecommuting employee to telecommute on an unscheduled telecommuting day. The employees must be able to perform work tasks at the alternate work site station. In these circumstances, the supervisor may allow an employee to telecommute for a portion of the work day and to take appropriate leave for any remaining time.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION

Telecommuting employees are covered by the Federal Tort Claims Act of the Federal Employees Compensation Act (FECA) and can qualify for continuation of pay or workers' compensation for on-the-job injury or occupational illness. Employees, in all situations, bear responsibility for informing their immediate supervisors of injuries at the earliest time possible. They also must provide details to the Department of Labor when filing a claim. The supervisor's signature on the request for compensation attests only to what the supervisor can reasonably know, whether the event occurred at a conventional work site or at an alternative work site during official duty. Even under normal circumstances, supervisors are often not present when an employee sustains an injury.

Supervisors must ensure that claims of this type are brought to the attention of the personnel office:

- o employees should contact the Compensation and Benefits Division, Room 1543, Cohen Building, Telephone: (202) 619-3117.

The supervisor also must require the employee to designate one area in the employee's residence as the official work station and to specify the location in the Telecommuting Work Agreement.

EMPLOYEE COMPENSATION

Duty Station: For pay purposes, the "official duty station" is the employee's Federal office in Washington, D.C., field office, or assigned overseas post.

Locality Pay or Special Salary Rates: The employee's official duty station serves as the basis for determining any special salary rates or locality pay.

Premium Pay: MOA V-A 240 and 600 apply to overtime, night differential, Sunday and holiday pay for Civil Service employees (and noncommissioned foreign service employees) whether work is accomplished at the conventional or alternate work site. Official work schedules determine entitlement to premium pay.

FACILITIES

Work Space: An employee participating in the telecommuting program should have a designated work space or work station at the alternate work site for performance of telecommuting duties. Requirements will vary and depend on the nature of the work and the equipment needed to perform the work. At a minimum, an employee should be able to communicate easily by telephone with the supervisor during the telecommuting day.

Employees are responsible for ensuring that their alternate work sites are clean, free of obstructions and hazardous materials, and meet relevant building codes. Therefore, each participating employee must sign the Telecommuting Program Safety Checklist and Employee Self-Certification (see attachment).

Utility Expenses: Broadcasting will not pay for a telecommuter's utility costs at his/her personal residence. Potential savings to the employee resulting from reduced commuting, meals, etc. may offset any incidental increase in utility expenses. Exceptions apply only where the personal expense directly benefits the U.S. Government, e.g., business-related long distance calls on the employee's personal phone.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND EQUIPMENT

Management will review each participant's application to assess equipment requirements and costs. Some telecommuters may be able to perform assignments with minimal technological support while others may have assignments requiring extensive telecommunication capability. Participation in the telecommuting program may be contingent on equipment costs if considerable equipment is needed to accomplish portable work tasks and is not available with existing government equipment.

The policy on proper use of the internet is applicable to telecommuters.

Telephones: Employees must provide basic telephone service, modem, fax machines, and any other telephone equipment necessary for telecommuting. GSA regulation 41 CFR, 101-7i allows for reimbursement of long distance telephone expenses incurred as a result of official duties on SF-1164 (Claim for Reimbursement for Expenditures for Official Business), if approved by the employee's supervisor and accompanied by a copy of the telephone bill. If an employee's residence is outside the local calling area of the office, he/she will be responsible for the expense of any long-distance calls to the office when telecommuting.

Employee Personal Property: Employees who telecommute will be responsible for providing the necessary equipment at home to do so. This may include computers, software, printers, fax machines, additional telephone lines, modems, diskettes, and related supplies. The employee is also responsible for repair and maintenance of personal equipment.

Government-Owned Equipment: Office Heads may determine that excess equipment such as computers and printers exists within their offices and can be loaned to employees for use at home. All such equipment must be properly charged out in accordance with procedures found in MOA IV, Part 710 and 720, and ownership and control of hardware, software, and data remain with the U.S. Government. The equipment must be used for official business only and may not be used by family members or others.

The employee will be responsible for transporting to and installing the loaned equipment at home (training may be provided at the office), and for returning the equipment to the office for needed repairs. The employee must notify his/her supervisor immediately following a malfunction of U.S. Government-owned equipment. If repairs are extensive, the employee may be asked to report to the official duty station until equipment is usable. If government-loaned equipment is unsecured and consequently damaged by non-employees (for example, by dependents of the employee), employees will be held liable for the repair or replacement of the equipment, software, etc., to the same extent they are presently held liable when loaned equipment is damaged because of their negligence. (See Manual of Operations and Administration, Part IV, Section 712.5.)

Reference Materials: Employees are responsible for identifying the tools they will need while working at their alternate work sites. If an office has a limited number of reference books, publications or other tools normally used in the job, the telecommuter must provide his/her own copies. Computer Security: Although classified documents and information may not be kept or used at alternate work sites, telecommuters still need to pay close attention to security procedures and precautions at their alternate work sites to protect sensitive information.

Supervisors must be confident that the designated work space or work station of the employee has adequate physical or environmental security measures in place to protect the equipment from damage or from being accessed by unauthorized individuals. This can be accomplished by having the employee specifically identify the proposed work area and certify in writing the security measures that will be used. Telecommuters should use good judgment in safeguarding equipment and information at their alternate work sites. This includes covering sensitive information when approached by visitors.

Dial-up telecommunication access to computers throughout the U.S. Government presents special security concerns. In Broadcasting facilities, precautions have been taken to avoid unwanted access. However, home computers are susceptible, so telecommuters must use physical controls, unique user identifiers, passwords, terminal identifiers, access control software, and strict adherence to security procedures to protect the information from unauthorized access. Computer support personnel can provide further details.

Employees need to be aware that telephones, particularly cordless and cellular telephones, represent a security vulnerability because conversations can be easily intercepted. Normal home telephones cannot be used to discuss classified information. A standard "corded" telephone must be used for sensitive conversations.

To safeguard against computer viruses, computer support personnel should be consulted regarding applicable software and its licensing. Periodically, anti-virus software must be updated, so telecommuters must see that this is done on home computers.

Telecommuters must follow property management procedures for their accountable property including computers, whether owned or borrowed, to ensure an immediately retrievable inventory and physical location identification of equipment and software.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

Privacy Act, Sensitive, or Classified Data: Proper use and handling of sensitive data and records subject to the Privacy Act are decided by supervisors who permit employees to telecommute. Off-site access to sensitive data may be permitted only if ADP/Security officials certify the adequacy of the security for such access. Classified data may not be removed from an employee's official duty station.

Records subject to the Privacy Act must be maintained and protected in accordance with Broadcasting and government-wide regulations. Sensitive non-classified data may not be disclosed to anyone except to those who are authorized access to such information to perform their duties. Offices allowing employees access to records subject to the Privacy Act from a remote work site must maintain appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to ensure the confidentiality, integrity, and availability of the records.

Dependent Care Costs: Studies show that working at home and child care are not compatible. Young children create too many distractions for the parent working at home. Telecommuting is not intended to serve as a substitute for child care, but it may decrease child care costs because the telecommuter's commuting time is reduced or the need for before and after school day care is reduced or eliminated.

The employee is responsible for ensuring that a proper work environment is maintained. For example, dependent care arrangements must be made so as to not interfere with the work, personal disruptions such as non-business telephone calls and visitors must be kept to a minimum, and employees and their families must understand that the home office is a space set aside for the employee to work. Family or other responsibilities must not interfere (to the extent they are controllable) with work time at the alternate work site.

Tax Benefits: Generally, an employee who uses a portion of his or her home as an alternate work site does not qualify for any Federal tax deductions. However, employees should consult their tax advisors or the Internal Revenue Service for information on tax laws and interpretations that address their specific circumstances.

Pitfalls to Avoid: Many of the common pitfalls and traps that new telecommuting employees and their supervisors may encounter have already been identified. Fortunately, ways to avoid these situations also have been developed. The following are examples of some of the common troublesome situations and ways to create a "win/win" telecommuting environment.

CREATING A WIN/WIN TELECOMMUTING ENVIRONMENT

SITUATION    ALTERNATIVES

Managers are concerned about the employee's ability to retrieve files from a remote work site.

- o Notify the supervisor a day or two ahead of the telecommuting day of the work to be accomplished at the alternate work site and if any office or shared files are needed.
- o Work closely with administrative professionals to ensure that files are well organized, indexed, and easily retrievable. Needed items could then be sent by facsimile or E-Mail to the telecommuter.
- o Increase the use of the Local Area Network (LAN) to support and streamline file access.
- o Transfer hard copy items to diskettes.

Managers plan important meetings during scheduled telecommuting days.

- o Set up a conference call.
- o Plan one day per week when all employees will be present at the official duty station.

Managers and employees do not have a clear understanding of work expectations.

- o Define work expectations, deadlines, and reporting procedures jointly and in advance to avoid misunderstanding.
- o Establish performance goals and objectives together.
- o Review completed tasks on a weekly or bi-weekly basis, either in person or in an E-Mail report.

Co-workers don't know when the employee will be in the office. There is a general sense that the employee is "never around."

- o Post a schedule when employees are telecommuting and when they are out, e.g., on approved leave, in training, or at meetings.

Co-workers are not able to contact the employee (and are sometimes actively discouraged). Staff are unclear on how or when to contact the employee, and some staff are reluctant to call employees "at home" on their telecommuting days.

- o Provide staff with the telephone number of each telecommuter.
- o Encourage staff to call employees on their telecommuting days.

Supervisors should set an example by calling employees on their telecommuting work days and by insisting that others continue to transact business with employees at their alternate work sites.

- o Refrain from use of term "working at home."

SITUATION    ALTERNATIVES

Employees are reluctant to leave the phone on their telecommuting days, even to use the restroom or take a break, because someone who called might think they are not working.

- o Use answering machines to take messages during absences and follow up with callers immediately upon return to the alternate work site.
- o Let administrative staff know of any extended absences, including lunch-break.

Employees run into technical problems with their computers, and no one is available to assist them.

- o Establish procedures for call-in troubleshooting with the organization's computer staff.

Telecommuting is joked about as "goofing off." Telecommuting days are referred to by co-workers as days off.

- o Explain or distribute information on the benefits of telecommuting to other staff members.
- o Use faxes or E-Mail on the computer to share or edit written material with colleagues.
- o Make visible the work products that the telecommuting employee produces while working off-site.
- o Discuss telecommuting during staff meetings.

Employee feels a sense of isolation and loss of interaction with co-workers.

- o Encourage active communication through E-Mail, voice mail, and telephone contact between telecommuters and office staff.

Employees are distracted or have difficulty establishing a disciplined work routine at their alternate work site.

- o Keep the office separate from the living area by placing it in a separate room as far removed from the living area as possible.
- o Keep a definite schedule of work time and personal time and stick to it.

The organization incurs additional expenses associated with the provision of equipment and services such as telephone charges for computer connections and long-distance calls.

- o Weigh additional costs against current and projected organizational needs.
- o Factor in potential recruitment savings, savings in training funds, and other "bottom line" savings to the organization.

TELECOMMUTING WORK AGREEMENT

This document constitutes an agreement between Broadcasting and (Name of employee) on the terms and conditions of participating in the Telecommuting Program.

EMPLOYEE PARTICIPATION

1. The employee volunteers to participate in the program and agrees to follow all applicable policies and procedures.

2. The employee recognizes that the telecommuting arrangement is not an employee benefit but an additional means for Broadcasting to accomplish work objectives.

3. The employee agrees to a one-year term of participation beginning (month/day/year) and ending ( month/day/year), with a 90 day probationary period.

Participation in the program may extend beyond the initial first year if agreeable to the employee and supervisor. In such a case, the employee and supervisor must review and update the terms of the agreement as necessary.

OFFICIAL DUTIES

4. The supervisor and employee must clearly identify tasks to be performed at the alternate work site and include only those duties carried out at the official duty station. No personal business, dependent care, or home repairs may be conducted at the alternate work site during work hours. Broadcasting standards of conduct apply to each employee at the alternate work site.

DUTY STATION

5. All pay, salary, benefits, leave, and travel entitlement are based on the employee's official duty station in (city, county) and will not change as a result of this telecommuting arrangement. The employee will continue in pay status while working at the alternate work site.

Alternate work site address:

Alternate work site telephone:

WORK SCHEDULE AND TOUR OF DUTY

6. The employee will work at the alternate work site on (day(s) of the week) from to (duty hours).

The employee agrees to work an 8-hour and 45-minute day unless the supervisor and employee specify otherwise. (Tour of duty includes a non-paid 45-minute meal period during which the employee will be excused from duty.)

7. The supervisor may grant additional telecommuting days in instances of inclement weather or other emergency situations if the employee can specify portable tasks to accomplish at the alternate work site.

8. If the employee's physical presence is required at the official duty station on a scheduled telecommuting day, the employee agrees to return to the official duty station when requested. The time remaining in the employee's work day, the distance the employee would have to commute to return to the official duty station, and rush hour constraints will be considered by the supervisor before making the request.

9. The employee may select a different telecommuting day during the work week if the supervisor approves.

LEAVE AND OVERTIME

10. The employee agrees to follow established procedures for requesting and obtaining approval for leave.

11. A supervisor may approve overtime or credit hours if needed. The supervisor must approve all overtime in advance. The employee will be compensated for overtime work in accordance with applicable law, regulations, and policies. The employee understands that the supervisor will not accept the results of unapproved overtime work.

TIME AND ATTENDANCE

12. The employee must be available at his/her alternate work site during established work hours. The employee agrees to apprise appropriate administrative personnel of any extended absence from the alternate work site, including lunch breaks, during the scheduled work day.

13. The employee's supervisor and timekeeper will maintain copies of the employee's telecommuting schedule.

The employee's timekeeper will record the employee's starting and ending times for each telecommuting day based on (telephone calls) (e-mail transmissions) (describe other method).

The supervisor will certify biweekly the hours worked by the employee at the official duty station and at the alternate work site based on (describe pre-established method) .

EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES

14. The employee will use personal equipment to complete official duty tasks at the alternate work site. The employee agrees to install, service, and maintain any personal equipment used.

Borrowing of U.S. Government equipment by employees is subject to Office approval, availability of equipment, and completion of all requisite property pass documentation. The employee agrees to use borrowed U.S. Government equipment for official purposes only. The following equipment has been issued to Ms./Mr. :

15. With appropriate supervisory approval, Broadcasting will provide or reimburse employees for all necessary office supplies, business-based long-distance telephone calls, and other expenses incurred while conducting business for the U.S. Government as provided by statute and implementing regulations. The supervisor has the authority to limit costs incurred.

The U.S. Government is not responsible for any operating costs that are associated with the employee's use of the alternate work site at a personal residence (e.g., home maintenance, insurance, utilities, etc.).

SECURITY

16. The employee agrees to protect all borrowed U.S. Government equipment from possible theft and environmental damage in compliance with applicable regulations.

17. The employee agrees to safeguard all equipment and information used to perform official duties.

18. The employee agrees to neither use nor store classified documents (hard copy or electronic) at the alternate work site.

19. The employee agrees to protect Federal records from unauthorized disclosure or damage and to comply with the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 USC 552a.

LIABILITY AND INJURY COMPENSATION

20. The U.S. Government is not liable for damages to an employee's personal or real property while the employee is working at the approved alternate work site except as provided by the Federal Tort Claims Act or the Military Personnel and Civilian Employees Claims Act.

21. The employee is covered under the Federal Employee's Compensation Act if injured while performing duties at the official duty station or alternate work site. The employee agrees to notify the supervisor immediately of any accident or injury that occurs at the alternate work site. The supervisor must investigate all injury reports immediately following notification.

WORK AREA AND WORK SITE INSPECTION

22. The employee agrees to designate one area in the home as the official alternate work site. By completing the Safety Checklist and Employee Self-Certification, the employee certifies that the alternate work site area is adequate for performance of official duties and meets applicable building and safety codes. This includes but is not limited to: ensuring that the electrical system is adequate for use of U.S. Government equipment; ensuring a smoke detector is present and working; and safeguarding U.S. Government equipment and records.

WORK ASSIGNMENTS AND EMPLOYEE PERFORMANCE

23. The employee must have a fully successful or higher performance rating to participate or continue in the telecommuting program.

24. The employee will meet with the supervisor to receive assignments and to review completed work as necessary or appropriate. All assigned work will be completed in accordance with guidelines and standards in the employee's performance plan and according to procedures agreed to by the supervisor and employee. The supervisor may require regular progress reports from the employee to assist in judging performance. A decline in performance may be grounds for canceling employee participation in the program.

25. The employee agrees to limit performance of duties to the official duty station or to the approved alternate work site. Failure to comply with this provision may result in loss of pay, removal from the telecommuting program, or other disciplinary action.

CANCELLATION

26. After notice to the supervisor, the employee may resume working his/her regular schedule at the official duty station. After notice to the employee, the supervisor may instruct the employee to resume working his/her regular schedule at the official duty station.

OTHER

27. Broadcasting maintains the right to take appropriate disciplinary or adverse action against an employee who fails to comply with the provisions of this agreement.

Signature indicates that the parties understand and agree to follow the terms and conditions stated in this Telecommuting Work Agreement.

Section 680

DISPOSITION OF LEAVE BALANCES (3 FAM 490)

681 TRANSFER BETWEEN AGENCIES - see 3 FAM 491

681.1 Transfer of Annual Leave Balances - see 3 FAM 491.1

681.2 Transfer of Sick Leave Balances - see 3 FAM 491.2

681.3 Transfer of Home Leave Balances - see 3 FAM 491.3

681.4 Transfer to Another Government Agency - The Payroll and Leave Liaison officer, is responsible for completing SF-1150, Record of leave Transferred, for employees assigned to Washington, D.C. and for submitting a copy to the Office of Personnel for filing on the right-hand side of the employee's Official Personnel Folder (OPF) before the folder is released to the employing agency. If the employee was assigned overseas immediately prior to transfer, the element will be responsible for obtaining annual, sick and leave-without-pay data from the overseas post, and certifying leave balances by memo to the Payroll and Leave Liaison officer who completes and forwards the SF-1150 to Personnel for inclusion in the OPF prior to release of the OPF to the employing agency. Information on leave data is obtained from the employee's individual leave record which is forwarded to the Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer by the overseas post as soon as the employee relinquishes duties at the post to transfer to the other agency.

681.5 Transfer From Another Government Agency - When the employee's Official Personnel Folder is received from the previous employing agency, Personnel will advise the Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer and the appropriate domestic timekeeper of annual, sick and leave-without-pay charges or credits. If the employee entered on duty abroad, the element will advise the post of leave charges and credits. Leave data are obtained from the SF-1150, Record of Leave Transferred, prepared by the previous employing agency and filed in the employee's Official Personnel Folder.

682 SEPARATIONS FROM THE FEDERAL SERVICE

682.1 Lump-Sum Payments for Annual Leave Balances (see 3 FAM 492.1)

682.2 Approval of Lump-Sum Payments - Authorization by the Office of Personnel Services is required for all lump-sum payments for annual leave for American employees separating from the Service. The separation Notification of Personnel Action (SF-50) establishes the effective date of separation and includes in the "Remarks" block a statement as to whether lump-sum payment is authorized.

682.3 Payment of Lump-Sum Payments - The Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer is responsible for computing lump-sum payments for separated employees, both domestic and overseas, as authorized on the SF-50. Forms required for clearance for final salary payment (see MOA V-B-707 and 708) should be submitted so that the lump-sum payment may be effected.

682.4 Indebtedness for Unearned Annual or Sick Leave - See 3 FAM 492.3.

683 RE-EMPLOYMENT AFTER SEPARATION FROM THE FEDERAL SERVICE - See 3 FAM 493

683.1 Recredit of Annual Leave After Refund of Lump-Sum Payment Upon Re-employment - See 3 FAM 493.2

683.2 Recredit of Home Leave - See 3 FAM 493.1 and 491.3

683.3 Recredit of Sick Leave Upon Re-employment - See 3 FAM 493.3

683.4 Re-employed Civil Service Annuitants - See 3 FAM 493.4

683.5 Responsibilities

a. Office of Personnel

(1) Office of Personnel is responsible for making the determinations required by paragraphs 3 FAM 493.1 and 3 FAM 493.3, and will notify the Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer of any refund of lump-sum payment required.

(2) The Office of Personnel will remove the SF-1150 prepared by a previous agency from the employee's official personnel folder and forward it to the Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer if the employee is appointed in the United States. (However, a record of any creditable home leave balance will be retained in Budget and Finance. If the employee was appointed abroad, the element will advise the post of leave charges and credits.

b. Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer - The officer will arrange to obtain any required refunds of lump-sum payments from employees appointed in the United States and will instruct the Regional Finance Center to do so from employees appointed abroad.

684 DISPOSITION OF LEAVE BALANCES IN CONNECTION WITH ACTIVE MILITARY SERVICE

684.1 Upon Entering Active Military Service - See 3 FAM 494.1

684.2 Upon Restoration After Active Military Service - See 3 FAM 494.2

684.3 Responsibilities

a. Office of Personnel - When an employee leaves the Foreign Service to enter active military service, Personnel will determine from the employee prior to separation whether he or she elects to receive lump-sum payment or have annual leave remain to his or her credit. When the employee is not returning to Washington before entrance on active military duty, the post will obtain this information and forward it to Personnel. Personnel will have the employee's leave account noted properly and will take action to arrange for lump-sum payment when requested, in accordance with paragraph 682.2. When an employee who separated to enter active military service is re-employed, Personnel will obtain any necessary documentation to support the recredit of annual or sick leave, and will arrange to have the employee's leave account adjusted accordingly.

b. Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer- is responsible for computing lump-sum payment when requested by the employee, in accordance with paragraph 682.3.

685 DISPOSITION OF LEAVE BALANCES IN CONNECTION WITH TRANSFER TO AN INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION UNDER PUBLIC LAW 85-795 - See 3 FAM 495 and MOA V-B-712.

686 RESTORATION OF LEAVE BALANCES AFTER APPEAL - See 3 FAM 496

687 DISPOSITION OF LEAVE BALANCES UPON DEATH - See FAM 497

687.1 Payment for Annual Leave - Survivors are entitled to pay for all accumulated and accrued annual leave which such employee had to his or her credit at the time of death.

687.2 Designation of Beneficiary to Receive Payment - Beneficiaries may be designated by the employee on Standard Form 1152, Designation of Beneficiary - Unpaid Compensation of Deceased Civilian Employees, or by a suitable witnessed written statement signed by the employee.

When no beneficiary has been designated, or when no designated beneficiary is living at the time of death of the employee, payment for annual leave is made in the following order of precedence:

- a. To the widow or widower.
- b. If neither of the above, to the child or children in equal shares, with the share of any deceased child distributed among the descendants of that child.
- c. If none of the above, to the parents in equal shares or the entire amount to the surviving parent.
- d. If none of the above, to the executor of the estate of the descendant.
- e. If none of the above, to the next of kin under the laws of the State in which the descendant was domiciled.

687.3 Filing Claim for Payment - The Retirement Division, will assist persons in filing claims for payment of leave of a deceased employee. (For other information regarding death claims, see MOA V-B 750).

688 TRANSFER BETWEEN DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN SERVICES

a. The Domestic and Foreign Services are under the same leave system, except that employees in the Foreign Service earn home leave while on assignment abroad. No lump-sum payments are made upon transfer between the services. Annual and sick leave accounts are transferred with the employee.

b. FS employees may carry over a higher annual leave balance (360 for FS overseas employees while stationed outside the U.S.). See 3 FAM 431.6.

LEAVE RECORDS AND REPORTS

691 FOREIGN SERVICE LEAVE RECORD CARD, OF-202

691.1 Use

a. OF-202, Leave Record Card, is prescribed for use as the official leave record for all Foreign Service American employees and local employees except those assigned to Washington.

b. Leave Record Cards are kept on a leave-year basis. Normally only one Leave Record Card for each Foreign Service American employee will be maintained which will be the official record of all leave earned, taken, advanced, and accumulated by the employee during a leave year. Additional Leave Record Cards may be authorized to record the use of restored annual leave (see 4 FAM 537).

691.2 Preparing and Posting OF-202

a. The post of assignment and/or a Regional Finance Center will prepare leave cards immediately at the beginning of each leave year for each Foreign Service employee on the staff. Cards will be prepared also at such time as employees are appointed locally. The appropriate office will post the top line of leave cards for Foreign Service employees when they leave the United States for an overseas assignment and forward the cards with a copy of the TM Eight to the appropriate Administrative Officer for completing and forwarding to the employee's post of assignment (see par. 693d.).

b. Follow the instructions below in filling out the Leave Record Card:

(1) Front

(a) Post on each employee's card his/her name, employee number, post/organization, social security number, whether U.S. or local employee, date of entrance on duty in the Foreign Service, service computation date, the leave year, and date on which pay period ends.

(b) Post annual, sick, and home leave Balance Forwarded: from previous leave year. Deficit balance of sick leave as a result of advance leave is posted in red.

Example:

For an employee who has exhausted all accumulated and accrued sick leave and is advanced 30 days (240 hours) of sick leave, the 240 hours will be entered in the sick leave "Balance" column in red. Each subsequent pay period in which sick leave is earned, the deficit will be reduced by 4 hours.

(c) As leave accrues and is charged, post accruals and charges in the appropriate spaces as reflected on time and attendance reports (see 3 FAM 431, 442.1, and 943.2).

(d) Post home leave accrual monthly and show the number of days accrued and date of accrual. See 3 FAM 453.4. The timekeeper posts home leave taken opposite the pay period in which taken. Home leave is charged in multiples of one day. See 3 FAM 455.1.

(e) Post the pay period number in which compensatory time is worked and taken, and period in which leave without pay is taken.

(f) Identify compensatory time forfeited or converted to paid overtime by showing the number of hours involved followed by the appropriate letter F or P (i.e., 13F would represent 13 hours of compensatory time forfeited).

(g) The employee's annual leave accrual rate will change at the beginning of the first pay period commencing after completion of 3 years or 15 years of service. Enter the expected 3-year or 15-year anniversary date. When an accrual of 80 or more hours of absence without pay is reached in a leave year, charges against annual and sick leave must be made at the rate of 4, 6, or 8 hours of annual and 4 hours of sick leave, for each 80 hours of absence without pay. Absence in a non-pay status totaling less than 80 hours is not carried forward at the beginning of a new leave year. The total deductions in sick and annual leave credits on account of non-pay status in any one leave year cannot exceed the leave accrual recorded during such periods of absence without pay. Make entries of leave deduction resulting from absence without pay in red.

(2) Back

(a) Enter post of assignment and date of initial arrival at post. This date will not be changed if an employee returns to the same post after home leave. For employees appointed at the post, enter the effective date of appointment as reflected on the SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action.

(b) Enter date of arrival abroad (for computing continuous service abroad for home leave eligibility in accordance with 3 FAM 452.2). Leave at personal expense without authorized transit time in the United States, its territories, or possessions, requires an adjustment of the date of arrival abroad for home leave purposes by the number of calendar days falling within such period of leave. (See 3 FAM 452.2-5).

(c) Show home leaving earning rate in days per year. See 3 FAM 453.2.

691.3 Transfer of OF-202 Between Overseas Posts

a. If the employee is transferred to another post during the leave year, post the OF-202 through the date of departure. The date of departure will be noted on the front of the card, and the card will be certified through that date. (See par. 693b when last day of duty at post is other than end of pay period.)

(1) OF-202 is retained by the losing post until requested by the receiving post.

(2) Leave records maintained by a Regional Finance Center will be completed in accordance with paragraph 691.2a, above, and mailed to the employee's next post.

b. Before an employee departs from his/her overseas post for transfer to another overseas post, he/she must request prior approval from Washington for any leave he/she intends to take en route. This information is necessary for preparing travel orders and notifying new post of expected arrival date.

691.4 Disposition of OF-202 of Separated Employees

a. If an employee is separated from the Foreign Service, post the OF-202 through the employee's last day of duty at the post, note the date of departure on the front of the card, and certify the card through that date.

b. Transmit the Leave Record Card to Washington by Office Memorandum within 48 hours after the employee's last day of duty status. See MOA V-B 682.4 and 691.7.

691.5 Disposition of OF-202 (All Others)

a. At the end of each leave year complete the OF-202 and transfer the pertinent information to OF-202A, Leave Summary. Forms OF-202 will be retained by the preparing post for five years before destruction in order to furnish any detailed information required by Broadcasting or other posts.

b. In separation cases, where lump-sum and final salary payment is made from Washington, the OF-202 or the equivalent computer leave record will be transmitted to Washington in lieu of the OF-202A.

691.6 Disposition of OF-202A - At the end of each year prepare the OF-202A, Leave Summary, for each American Foreign Service employee. This report provides a summary of the leave data for the full year, including service at another post. In those instances where the leave records are maintained by a data processing center, such as RMC Paris, an automated leave summary report is prepared in an identical, or equivalent, format. The preparing post transmits completed Forms OF-202A to the appropriate element as soon after the end of the leave year as is practicable. Forms OF-202A for personnel on leave in the United States at the end of the leave year will be held by the preparing post until such personnel return, then forwarded to Washington. Such Forms OF-202A should be transmitted not later than April 1 of the next calendar year.

691.7 Leave Reports on Separation

a. Employees Separating During or Immediately Following Assignments Abroad -The appropriate element will obtain OF-202 as provided in paragraph 691.4 and will forward it to the Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer, who will upon completion of audit and payment of any lump-sum payment due, will prepare SF-1150, Record of Leave Data, in duplicate. The original will be forwarded to Personnel for filing with the personnel actions in the employee's administrative file, and the duplicate will be retained in the Office of Budget and Finance.

b. Employees Separating during or Immediately Following Assignments in the United States - Immediately following payment of any lump-sum payment due, the Payroll and Leave Liaison Officer will prepare SF-1150, Record of Leave Data, in duplicate, reflecting annual leave, sick leave, and leave without pay data. The original will be forwarded to Personnel for filing with the personnel actions in the employee's administrative file, and the duplicate will be retained in the Office of Budget and Finance.

692 TIME AND ATTENDANCE REPORTS FOR FOREIGN SERVICE AMERICAN EMPLOYEES

692.1 For Employees on Duty at Overseas Posts - Instructions for time and attendance reporting at overseas posts are contained in MOA VII-960.

692.2 For Employees on Duty in the United States - Time and attendance reports for Foreign Service American employees on duty in the United States and being pay-rolled by the Washington payroll office (including those assigned to positions in the domestic service, in training, on medical or administrative orders, or awaiting assignment) will be reported in accordance with applicable instructions (MOA VII-500).

a. Employees Assigned or Detailed to Positions in the Domestic Service - The organizational units to which employees are assigned are responsible for preparing and submitting the time and attendance report.

b. Employees in Training and Not Otherwise Assigned or Detailed to a Domestic Position - The Training and Development Division, Office of Personnel is responsible for preparing and submitting the time and attendance report.

c. Employees Not in Training and Not Assigned or Detailed to Domestic Positions - The Foreign Personnel Officer, Office of Personnel is responsible for preparing and submitting the time and attendance report.

d. Employees Departing Washington - When an employee pay-rolled in Washington departs for a foreign post, this fact will be noted on the final time and attendance report.

693 RECORDS OF ATTENDANCE AND LEAVE EN ROUTE TO AND FROM THE UNITED STATES - Records of attendance and leave of Foreign Service employees for periods of travel to and from the United States for leave, transfer, separation, and other travel purposes are maintained in the following manner:

a. Before an employee departs from his/her overseas post for leave, transfer, or separation travel to the United States, the employee must request prior approval from the element for any annual leave he/she intends to take en route.

b. When a Foreign Service employee who has been pay-rolled in Washington departs from Washington for an overseas assignment, the element will certify to the employee's post of assignment, the status of the employee's leave balances as of close of the pay period preceding his/her departure.

c. If the employee wishes to request leave en route from the United States to his/her overseas post, the employee should complete Request for Leave En Route, in duplicate, and submit it to the appropriate element for approval. Approved forms serve as the basis for posting the employee's Leave Record Card upon completion of travel at an overseas post. One copy of the form is attached to the Leave Record Card and sent to the overseas post and one copy is retained in the employee's leave file in Washington.

SECTION 700

RETIREMENT AND SEPARATION

701 COVERAGE

Chapter 700 contains policies, regulations and procedures that apply to the retirement or separation of Foreign Service employees (not former FAS Domestic Specialists) through transfer, resignation, voluntary retirement, disability retirement, death, termination for cause (disciplinary action), mandatory retirement for age, mandatory retirement for expiration of time-in-class, retirement based on relative performance, or termination for expiration of a limited appointment.

702 DEFINITIONS

702.1 "Separation" refers to the removal of an employee from Broadcasting rolls because of transfer to another government agency, resignation, death, termination or expiration of a limited appointment, or misconduct. It does not refer to leave without pay, suspension, furlough or movement between the Foreign Service and the Civil Service within Broadcasting.

702.2 "Retirement" refers to the removal of an employee from the rolls due to voluntary retirement, disability retirement, mandatory retirement at age 65, retirement for expiration of time-in-class, or retirement based on relative performance (not meeting the standards of performance for the class).

703 FIXING THE EFFECTIVE DATE OF RETIREMENT OR SEPARATION

703.1 General Rules - Sufficient time should be allowed for appropriate action by the Office of Personnel to process retirement or separation actions and for necessary advance notice to the employee required by law, regulation or Broadcasting policy. The effective date may be a non-workday whenever such action would be of benefit to the employee. Where negotiations with other agencies or organizations are necessary to establish the effective date, such negotiations will be the responsibility of the appropriate Personnel Officer. The MOA and 3 FAM (as indicated in paragraph 703.2 below) should be consulted whenever an effective date for retirement or separation is being determined.

703.2 Effective Dates Determined by Nature of Retirement or Separation

a. Transfer to another federal agency - See MOA V-B 711.2 and paragraph 703.3 below;

- b. Resignation - See MOA V-B 727 and paragraph 703.3 below;
- c. Death - See MOA V-B 730;
- d. Termination or expiration of a limited appointment - See MOA V-B 746.4 and paragraph 703.3 below;
- e. Disciplinary action - See 3 FAM 760;
- f. Retirement or separation for expiration of time-in-class - See MOA V-B 742.5 and V-B 742.7 - An employee who will be overseas at the time of his or her scheduled retirement will be allowed to return for consultation or reassignment in the U.S. 60 days in advance of the effective date of that retirement.
- g. Retirement or separation based on relative performance - See MOA V-B 743.6 and V-B 744.9 (if applicable).
- h. Disability retirement - See MOA V-B 792 (3 FAM 672.3-5 for Foreign Service retirement and MOA V-A 502 and 3 FAM 675 (Appendix A, page 45) for Civil Service retirement).
- i. Retirement - See MOA V-B 780 (3 FAM 672.1-3 for Foreign Service retirement and MOA V-A 502 and 3 FAM 675 (Appendix A, page 31) for Civil Service retirement.)

703.3 Determining Effective Dates When Transit Time or Leave-Without-Pay (LWOP) are Involved

- a. When transit time is used and LWOP has not been granted, the effective date of separation or retirement is the close of business on the last day of the allowable period of transit time to the employee's place of residence.
- b. When LWOP is granted but transit time is not used, the effective separation or retirement date is the close of business on the last day of the period of LWOP.
- c. When transit time and LWOP are both involved, the effective date of separation or retirement is the close of business on the last day of the period of LWOP or the last day of the allowable period of transit time to the place of residence, whichever is later.

704 GRANTING OF LEAVE OR TRANSIT TIME PRIOR TO RETIREMENT OR SEPARATION

704.1 Granting of Annual Leave - Generally, annual leave will not be granted immediately before separation from the Service except where it is necessary for an employee to use annual leave to his or her credit for which lump-sum payment cannot be made. (See 3 FAM 432.8 for specifics).

704.2 Granting of Sick Leave - Employees who are ill or disabled may be granted all current accrued and accumulated sick leave due them. If an ill or disabled employee resigns while on leave, his or her leave-with pay status shall terminate not later than the end of the payroll period current when the notification is received in the appropriate Office of Personnel. (See 3 FAM 444 for specifics and exceptions).

704.3 Determining Allowable Period of Transit Time - Transit time is allowable when travel commences on the first workday following relinquishment of duty or, when leave is granted, not later than the expiration date of approved leave. (See 6 FAM 131.1c for type and mode of travel allowable).

704.4 Home Leave - Home leave will be granted only when it is planned that the employee will complete another tour of duty abroad, either immediately or upon completion of assignment in the U.S. therefore employee separating shall not be entitled to home leave.

705 ELIGIBILITY FOR TRAVEL AT GOVERNMENT EXPENSE

705.1 Criteria - Broadcasting will authorize travel and shipment of effects to the point designated by the employee on Optional Form 126 (Residence and Dependency Report) if any one of the following conditions is met:

- a. If an employee voluntarily retires or is mandatorily retired or separated from the Foreign Service while serving at an overseas post; or
- b. If a resigning employee on his or her first assignment overseas has completed at least two years of that assignment and has not taken home leave within 12 months of the effective date of resignation; or
- c. If a resigning employee on his or her second or subsequent assignment overseas has completed at least one year of that assignment, and has not taken home leave within 12 months of the effective date of resignation; or
- d. If a resigning employee who has had an assignment overseas and is:
  - (1) on home leave;
  - (2) on consultation in the United States; or
  - (3) assigned in the U.S. and has been so assigned for at least six months; or
- e. If an employee who has not served overseas and has traveled at government expense to a first assignment in the U.S. and has completed two years of that assignment and retires, or is separated involuntarily from the Foreign Service or has had five years of continuous service in the Foreign Service; or
- f. If an employee not meeting the conditions in (e) above was appointed to the Foreign Service or converted from the Civil Service to the Foreign Service at any Broadcasting location in the U.S. and was transferred to one or more other locations in the U.S. and served at these locations until retired or separated and providing that he or she retires or is separated involuntarily.

705.2 Crediting Other Federal Service - Service overseas for other agencies of the Federal government (including the Armed Forces) immediately preceding appointment in the Foreign Service (for purposes of return travel and shipment of effects) counts toward the service requirements specified in paragraph 705.1 above, provided the employee has served overseas at least six months in the Foreign Service.

705.3 Waiver of Service Requirements - The service requirements specified in paragraph 705.1 above may be waived by the Director, Office of Personnel, when acceptance of a resignation is determined to be in the interest of the Government.

705.4 When Travel and Shipment of Effects are Not Authorized - Travel and shipment of effects will not be authorized for an employee ineligible under paragraph 705.1 above or for an employee who was appointed to the Foreign Service or converted from the Civil Service to Foreign Service (FR, FS, FP, FO or FE) at any Agency location in the U.S. and served at the same location until retirement or separation. This policy will apply regardless of previous service overseas with Broadcasting or another Federal agency prior to attaining the Civil Service status from which he or she was converted into the Foreign Service.

705.5 Travel Authorizations - Travel authorizations for Foreign Service employees who are eligible for travel at government expense in connection with a retirement or separation are issued by Broadcasting. Procedures and regulations for authorizing and paying travel expenses for Foreign Service employees are contained in 6 FAM 100.

706 NOTICE TO EMPLOYEES

The substance and timing of retirement and separation notices to employees will be determined largely by the nature of the retirement or separation itself. Specific requirements are listed in the sections of the MOA and 3 FAM covering the spectrum of retirements and separations (see listing in paragraph 703.2 above. An employee who is not notified of a retirement or separation action until after the proposed effective date and who therefore continues to work beyond that date, is entitled to compensation for services actually rendered until he or she receives the proper notice.

707 AMENDING RETIREMENT OR SEPARATION ACTIONS

The nature of a retirement or separation action may be amended after the action has become effective only if subsequent review or investigation results in a positive finding that the original nature of the action was in error or unjustified and provided that all required procedures have been complied with. If new evidence is uncovered after the action has become effective which alters the original decision in the case, or if the reasons or circumstances surrounding the retirement or separation should be amended, this should be indicated under "Remarks" and/or "Nature of Action" on the SF-50.

708 PRE-EXIT INTERVIEWS

Any employee retiring or separating voluntarily should have at least one pre-exit interview conducted by the employee's supervisor or Office of Personnel.

708.1 Objective of the Interview

- a. To retain competent employees through adjustments where feasible.
- b. To obtain facts regarding the causes of retirement or separation in order to develop corrective programs and reduce future losses of competent employees.
- c. To assist employees by providing information on insurance, health benefits, retirement, unemployment compensation, restoration or reinstatement rights (if applicable).

709 FINAL SALARY CLEARANCE

No employee will receive a final salary payment or annual leave lump-sum payment after retirement or separation until final clearance is completed. This clearance is to ensure that all government property, including diplomatic or official passports, is accounted for; that suitable arrangements have been made to clear any indebtedness to Broadcasting; and that security requirements have been met.

709.1 Employees Overseas - Employees stationed overseas must have their administrative officer (or other responsible official at post) complete and submit forms DS-8, Final Salary Clearance, DS-8A, Administrative Clearance for Separation, and OF-109, Separation Statement (with ID card), to the appropriate personnel office. The telegraphic TMFIVE message also must be sent to the appropriate personnel office immediately after the employee's departure from post.

709.2 Employees in the U. S. - Employees stationed in the U.S. must complete Clearance for Final Salary Payment and relinquish the ID card along with form OF-109, Separation Statement to the Office of Security.

The personnel office will review form Clearance for Final Salary Payment to ensure proper clearances have been obtained and then forward the form for final salary and annual leave lump-sum payment, if applicable. 709.3 Forms to be Issued to All Foreign Service Employees - The following forms are issued when an employee separates or retires:

- a. SF-8, Notice to Federal Employees About Unemployment Insurance;
- b. SF-2819, Notice of Conversion Privilege (for employees ineligible to continue FEGLI coverage who wish to convert their insurance to a private policy) or, SF-2821, Certification of Life Insurance Status (for employees who will continue FEGLI coverage into retirement);
- c. SF-2810, Notice of Change in Health Benefits Enrollment (notifies employee of conversion privilege or continuing coverage);

d. OF-138, Application for Refund of Retirement Contributions (for employees ineligible for retirement) must be executed by the employee if he or she desires a refund of the contributions made to the Foreign Service Retirement Fund or a signed statement from the employee of his or her intent to leave the Foreign Service retirement contributions in the retirement fund and apply for a deferred annuity three months before reaching age 60. The SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, should show the appropriate statement in the remarks column.

NOTE: Employees with more than five years of service may wish to consult with the Retirement Section concerning the advantages or disadvantages of leaving retirement contributions in the Fund.

- 712.7 Right of Appeal From Failure to Re-employ

Section 710

SEPARATION BY TRANSFER

711 TRANSFER TO ANOTHER UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AGENCY

711.1 Nature of Personnel Action

a. When a Foreign Service employee moves, without a break in service of one full day, to a non-temporary Foreign Service or competitive Civil Service appointment in another United States government agency, the nature of action will be "Separation-Transfer". An employee is not required to resign when transferring to another agency under these conditions.

b. When an employee resigns to accept an appointment in another government agency with a break in service, the nature of action will be "Separation (or "Resignation) - appointment in (name of Agency)." An employee may either resign or be separated when accepting employment in another agency under these conditions.

c. If the employee is eligible for travel at government expense in connection with a resignation (MOA V-B 705), the employee may be permitted to resign, and transportation will be authorized when it is in the best interests of the Government (if not already authorized under Section V-B 705). The action is then processed as a resignation (MOA V-B-720).

711.2 Establishing Effective Date of Separation - Guidelines in MOA V-B-703 will be used in establishing the effective date of separation. Negotiation between agencies regarding establishment of the effective date is the responsibility of the Personnel Officers.

711.3 Pre-Departure Procedures - Procedures outlined in MOA V-B 708 will be followed when an employee transfers to another government agency. In addition, the Personnel Officer will ensure that the employee makes application for a refund of Foreign Service Retirement Contributions when the employee is resigning from the Foreign Service.

711.4 Re-employment Rights - Unless specifically required by law, employees transferring from Broadcasting will not be granted re-employment rights.

712 TRANSFER TO PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

712.1 Authority - Sections 3343 and 3581 through 3584 of Title 5 of the United States Code authorizes details and transfers of Federal employees for service with public international organizations.

712.2 Policy - Whenever it is in Broadcasting's interest to do so, it is Broadcasting's policy to make eligible employees available for detail or transfer to public international organizations in which the United States Government participates. Each case will be decided on its merits taking into consideration the problems created by the loss of such employee's services, filling the position, the necessary training to be given the replacement, the advantages to the employee's career development and benefits to Broadcasting.

712.3 Eligibility for Transfer - All Career Foreign Service employees are eligible for transfer to public international organizations.

712.4 Rights and Benefits Upon Transfer

a. Retirement, Health Benefits, and Group Life Insurance - A transferred employee is deemed to remain a Broadcasting employee for retirement, health benefits, and group life insurance purposes. At the time of consent to the transfer, the employee will be notified in writing, by the Office of Personnel, of the procedures to be followed in order to retain coverage. The employee will acknowledge receipt, in writing, and state whether he or she wishes to retain coverage by continuing required employee payments.

b. Equalization Allowance - Upon his or her re-employment or death during the transfer, an employee is entitled to be paid an amount equal to the difference between the pay, allowances, post differential and other monetary benefits paid by the international organization and those paid by Broadcasting had he or she been detailed to the international organization.

c. Leave - The employee may elect to retain to his or her credit all accrued annual leave which would otherwise be liquidated by a lump-sum payment. On the request of an employee at any time prior to re-employment with Broadcasting, payment will be made for all of the leave retained. In any case in which an employee receives a lump-sum payment and re-employment occurs within six months following the date of transfer the employee must refund the amount of the lump-sum payment. (Also see 3 FAM 495.)

The employee will have reccredited to the home leave account all unused home leave which he or she had to his or her credit prior to transfer to the international organization. Upon re-employment, the sick leave account of the employee will be restored by credit, minus any charge to its status at the time he or she left the Federal service; and the period of separation will be considered creditable service for all appropriate Federal employment purposes, e.g., toward completion of the waiting period required for a periodic step increase and toward the years of service required in connection with the accrual of annual leave.

d. Pay - The employee will receive the rate of basic compensation to which he or she would be entitled had he or she remained in the Federal service.

e. Consideration for Promotion - Whether on detail or transferred, the employee will be considered for all promotions for which he or she would be considered were he or she not absent. A promotion effected during the detail or transfer is effective on the date it would have been made if the employee were not absent.

712.5 Procedures for Effecting Transfer

Upon written request by an international organization for the services of an employee, the Director of Personnel, may authorize the transfer for any period not to exceed four years. When the Director of Personnel determines it to be in the national interest, a period of employment by transfer may be extended. Refusal by the Director to authorize the transfer or extension of a transfer is not reviewable or appealable outside Broadcasting. Consent to the transfer will be given in writing to the international organization, with a copy to the employee. The effective date of the transfer will be established by mutual agreement between Broadcasting and the international organization. The employee will be furnished a statement of his or her leave account upon separation for transfer. The SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, effecting the employee's separation for transfer, will identify the public international organization to which he or she transfers and include a clear statement of the period during which he or she has re-employment rights under Section 3582 of Title 5, United States Code, and the legal and regulatory conditions of re-employment.

712.6 Re-employment Rights - A transferred employee is entitled to be re-employed in his or her former position or one of like seniority, status, and pay within 30 days of receipt of his or her application for re-employment if he or she meets the following conditions:

- a. He or she is separated voluntarily or involuntarily within his or her term of employment with the international organization;
- b. He or she applies for re-employment not later than 90 days after separation.

An employee may apply for re-employment either before or after separation by the international organization. If before separation, the 30-day period begins either with the date of the application or 30 days before the employee's date of separation, whichever is later.

712.7 Right of Appeal From Failure to Re-employ - If Broadcasting fails to issue a decision on re-employment to the employee within 30 days from application for re-employment, the employee is entitled to appeal the failure of Broadcasting to the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) within a reasonable time thereafter.

The decision of the MSPB is final, and Broadcasting must comply with the recommendations of the MSPB for corrective action. A proper appeal filed prior to the death of an appellant will be processed to completion and adjudicated. As necessary, a corrective action in such an appeal may provide for amendment of Broadcasting's records to show a retroactive restoration and continuance on the rolls to the date of death.

Section 720

RESIGNATION

721 DEFINITION - Separation by resignation is the separation of an employee from the rolls of Broadcasting at the employee's written or oral request.

722 POLICY - No employee will be denied the right to resign at any time nor be coerced to resign when action is pending to separate him or her for any reason. A resignation is binding once submitted in writing by an employee or after 24 hours when it has been submitted orally. The Director, Office of Personnel may, however, permit an employee to withdraw his or her resignation at any time before its effective date.

In all cases of resignation, the Office of Personnel or the overseas post will advise the employee of all benefits available to him or her as a result of Federal employment and assist him or her, as necessary, to apply for such benefits.

723 NOTICE OF RESIGNATION

a. Notice of resignation should be given at least two weeks prior to the effective date and should include the reason for resigning. When an employee submits a resignation while overseas, he or she should give the maximum possible notice to enable Broadcasting to secure a replacement.

b. A written resignation is preferred in all instances to avoid possible misunderstandings. However, failure to submit a written resignation does not make the resignation invalid.

c. When a resignation is submitted orally, the Office of Personnel will confirm the fact of the resignation by appropriate written response. Such response is not essential to the final consummation of the resignation.

d. A written resignation is required and must show the reason for resignation when an employee resigns under the following circumstances:

(1) To enter on active duty in the armed forces;

(2) After receiving notice of separation in reduction-in-force action;

(3) After receiving an offer of reassignment or demotion in lieu of separation for reduction-in-force.

e. An employee is not required to resign when separating from Broadcasting to transfer to another government agency without a break in service.

f. Conditional resignations are not accepted by Broadcasting. If an employee describes terms and conditions under which he or she will resign, the employee should be advised that the acceptance of the resignation will be an acknowledgment of the resignation and not an agreement to specified terms or conditions. In such a case, the employee may be allowed to withdraw the conditional resignation and resubmit an unconditional resignation.

724 SUBMITTING RESIGNATIONS

724.1 While in the United States - An employee who resigns while on duty in Washington or on leave in the United States will address the resignation to the Director, Office of Personnel.

724.2 Overseas - - A Foreign Service American employee who gives notice of resignation while overseas will address the resignation to the Director, Office of Personnel, and submit it through the head of the element's overseas establishment. The Chief of the overseas establishment also should notify the Office of Personnel as soon as he or she has been informed of an employee's intention to resign.

725 ACCEPTANCE AND WITHDRAWAL OF RESIGNATION - Since a resignation is a voluntary action on the part of the employee and Broadcasting has no right to reject it, the submission of a written resignation is regarded as a completed act on the employee's part and the employee may not withdraw the resignation unless the withdrawal is agreed to by the Director, Office of Personnel. If the Director, Office of Personnel does not permit a withdrawal, an explanation of the reason for denial must be provided the employee. Some reasons for denial would include anticipated administrative disruption caused by acceptance of the withdrawal; completed assignment of a replacement for the employee; indication that the resignation was submitted to avoid an overseas assignment; departure of the employee from an overseas assignment and subsequent travel. In the case of an oral resignation the employee will have a subsequent 24-hour period in which to withdraw the resignation. Absent a withdrawal of that oral resignation within 24 hours, Broadcasting will regard the resignation as a completed act on the employee's part and the employee may not withdraw the resignation unless the withdrawal is agreed to by the Director, Office of Personnel.

726 EFFECTIVE DATE OF RESIGNATION

726.1 When Neither Transit Time Nor Leave Without Pay is Involved - The effective date of separation is:

- a. The last day of active work status (last day of duty) including any authorized consultation in Washington, when leave is not granted.
- b. The last day of authorized sick leave, if resigning because of illness.
- c. The last day of authorized annual leave. When granting annual leave prior to separation, refer to 3 FAM 432.8 and 3 FAM 492.1.
- d. The last day of the current pay period, if the resignation is submitted while the employee is on leave with pay.

726.2 When Transit Time or Leave Without Pay is Involved - See MOA V-B 703.

727 PROCEDURES - Instructions and procedures that apply to all types of separations, including resignations, are contained in MOA V-B 701 - 709.

- a. If an employee resigns while preparation is being made to bring charges against him or her or while action is pending to separate the employee for reasons reflecting upon his or her suitability for further government employment, such circumstances must be noted on appropriate copies of the Notification of Personnel Action (SF-50).
- b. Employees who submit a resignation because of ill health and are eligible to apply for disability retirement will be so advised by the personnel office, and will be given the necessary assistance in filing an application by the Retirement Division. (See MOA V-B 502 and 780).

c. The element is responsible for requesting the issuance of the travel authorization for an eligible employee who resigns/separates.

SECTION 730

DEATH IN SERVICE

731 REPORTING PROCEDURES - In the event of death of an American employee or employee dependent overseas, the notification procedures set forth in 6 FAM 697 will be followed. In addition to the actions to be taken as enumerated under 3 FAM 784.1, form DS-8, Fiscal Clearance for Final Salary Payment, and form DS-8A, Administrative Clearance for Separation (see MOA V-B 709), will be initiated by the head of the overseas establishment, his or her designee, or the post administrative or personnel officer.

732 RESPONSIBILITY IN CASES OF DEATH OVERSEAS

732.1 Travel Authorization - The element is responsible for requesting and ensuring that authorization is issued immediately for any authorized expenses in connection with preparation and shipment of remains and travel and transportation of family and effects upon the death of an employee (see 6 FAM 126.5).

732.2 Notifying Next of Kin - While it is preferable that either the appropriate element Director or Director, Office of Personnel notify next of kin in case of employee death at an overseas establishment, in the absence of action by those officials, a Personnel Specialist will be responsible for such notification. The officer notifying the next of kin should offer whatever assistance the circumstances warrant. In the event that the notice of death arrives in Washington after the close of normal duty hours, Broadcast Operations will notify the Director, Office of Personnel. This officer will notify the next of kin and assist in issuing an emergency travel authorization. The Personnel Director will be responsible for notifying the Broadcasting Director, and/or the Director of VOA.

732.3 Letter of Condolence - An officer designated by the Director of Personnel, will promptly prepare a letter of condolence for the signature of the Broadcasting Director addressed to the next of kin. A letter also should be drafted for the signature of the Director, Office of Personnel and addressed to the next of kin.

732.4 Follow-up Action - The Office of Personnel will prepare a Notification of Personnel Action, form SF-50, using the date of death as the effective date of separation and will provide necessary assistance in payment of the deceased employee's unpaid compensation, retirement and health benefits, and Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance, etc.

733 BROADCASTING RESPONSIBILITY IN CASES OF DEATH IN THE U.S. - In the event a Foreign Service employee dies while he or she is assigned to a Office or service element in the U.S., the Personnel Officer, working with Retirement Division will be responsible for the immediate notification of next of kin and letters of condolence. The Retirement Division will issue personnel actions and claims for benefits. If the deceased employee was unassigned or in travel status, the Personnel Officer will assume those responsibilities and coordinate action with the Retirement Division. The Retirement Division will initiate and process the Clearance for Final Salary Payment. Forms DS-8 and DS-8A are not used if an employee dies in the U.S.

734 ORGANIZATION OF MEMORIAL SERVICES

When circumstances suggest that it is appropriate, the deceased employee's element head should consult with the employee's family on the holding of a memorial service on Broadcasting premises. After receiving the family's agreement, the element head will be responsible for organizing a memorial service, including the drafting and distribution of an announcement giving time and location. The deceased employee's element head is responsible for informing the Director of Broadcasting of any scheduled memorial service, whether it is organized in Broadcasting or outside by the family or other parties.

HUMAN RESOURCES (FOREIGN SERVICE)

PART 740 - MANDATORY RETIREMENT

741 Authority and Definitions

741.1 Authority - These regulations relate to mandatory retirement of members of the Foreign Service and are authorized by Sections 607-609, 806, 811, 812, 813, 2102, 2103 and 2106 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 (hereinafter referred to as the Act).

Authority to administer these sections of the Act is delegated to the Director, Office of Human Resources.

741.2 Definitions -

a. Ranking - means that a Selection Board has reviewed the officer's file and placed the officer's name on a numerical rank order list or an alphabetical list (in the case of those not recommended for promotion or those identified as having failed to meet the standards of their class and specialty).

b. Annual Selection Boards - means Boards convened annually to consider Foreign Service employees for such matters as promotion, tenure, failure to meet the standards of class, and limited career extensions, as provided in the applicable Precepts. To accommodate change in the rating cycle or delays in publishing of Board Precepts the annual Boards may be held twice in one calendar year. In such cases, each session of the Board is considered as one annual Board.

c. Time-in-class (TIC) - means time in a single salary class.

d. Time-in-Service (TIS) - means time in a combination of salary classes, computed from the date of entry into the Foreign Service.

742 Kinds of Mandatory Retirement

There are three categories of mandatory retirement for Foreign Service employees:

- a. Mandatory retirement for age;
- b. Mandatory retirement based on TIC or TIS limitations;
- c. Mandatory retirement based on relative performance.

742.1 Mandatory Retirement for Age - Career members of the Service shall be retired at the end of the month in which they reach age 65, except as otherwise provided by law or as specified below:

- a. An officer who would be retired for age who has not accumulated five years of creditable service towards retirement will have the effective date of retirement postponed until the end of the month in which five years of such creditable service is accumulated; and
- b. An officer whose mandatory retirement is postponed will not be eligible for consideration by Selection Boards during the period of postponement.

742.2 Mandatory Retirement for Expiration of Time-in-Class (TIC) or Time-in-Service (TIS) Limitations

a. Unless granted a limited career extension (LCE) as provided in paragraph 742.3d, a postponement in the retirement date as specified in paragraphs 742.6 and 742.8, career members of the Foreign Service shall be retired under Section 607 of the Act for exceeding maximum TIC or TIS limitations as follows:

(1) Career members of the Senior Foreign Service

(a) The following are the maximum TIC periods for each Senior Foreign Service class:

Counselor - 7 years from date promoted into the Senior Foreign Service.

(2) Foreign Service Specialists (Not members of the SFS)

(a) Foreign Service Specialists who held career appointments on or before February 15, 1981, in Classes FP-6 through FP-1, are subject to both the TIS limit of 25 years in these Classes since their date of career appointment and the TIC limit of 15 years in any one salary class after their date of career appointment. TIC begins on the date of career appointment or date promoted into class if the employee is already a career Specialist. However, in accordance with Section 2106(c) of the Act, this provision will not operate to extend any previously applicable time-in-class limit.

(b) Foreign Service Specialists who received career appointments at the level of FP-5 or above after February 15, 1981, will be subject to the TIS limits as given in Exhibit 740A and the TIC limit of 15 years in any one salary class after career appointment. TIC begins on the date of career appointment or date promoted into class if the employee is already a career Specialist.

(c) A specialist who has requested consideration for promotion into the SFS may subsequently withdraw that request, but will continue to be subject to mandatory retirement for expiration of TIC or TIS limits unless the request was cancelled prior to the convening of the first Selection Board after the request was made. A request that is cancelled prior to the first Selection Board review may be resubmitted at a future date. However, a specialist who withdraws a request after the first Board has convened may not resubmit it or be considered again for promotion into the SFS.

(3) Specialists Requesting Promotion into the SFS - Specialists at class FP-1 who request consideration in writing for promotion into the Senior Foreign Service and are considered for promotion by the Specialist Selection Board up to the expiration of their applicable TIC or TIS limits, as described in paragraph 742.2a, unless they withdraw their request. If they withdraw their request, then 742.2a(c) above applies.

b. Exception. Notwithstanding the provisions paragraph 742.2a, above, mandatory retirement for Time in Class (TIC) or Time in Service (TIS) will not apply to VOA News Foreign Correspondents who were tenured career members of the Foreign Service as of October 1, 2006.

c. Computations

(1) When calculating TIC, the beginning date is the date that the employee received a career appointment or was promoted into the employee's current class if already a career employee on that date and the class is covered by either the TIC or TIS limit.

(2) When calculating the TIS limit, the beginning date is the date that the employee received a career appointment or was promoted into the lowest class covered by the TIS limit if already a career employee on that date. Time spent on a limited reserve or Foreign Service Staff appointment is excluded.

d. Annuity Exception - Notwithstanding the TIC and TIS limits established elsewhere in MOA Section 740, a tenured career member of the Service at the FP-2 level or below, who is not eligible for voluntary retirement under Section 811 of the Act, or who is not qualified for an immediate annuity under Section 609 of the Act, will not be retired until the officer is eligible for an immediate annuity. The TIC or TIS limits of such an officer will expire at the end of the month in which the TIC or TIS date occurs. However, the member will remain on the rolls until the end of the month in which the member becomes eligible for an immediate annuity, or a later postponed retirement date as provided in paragraph 742.6b. During the postponement period (from the date the employee's TIC or TIS expired until the date the employee is eligible for voluntary retirement) the employee is not eligible for further promotion consideration or within-class increases.

e. Time-in-Class/Time-in-Service Calculation - The calculation of maximum TIC or TIS under paragraph 742.2 shall include all periods of performance in relevant class or classes except:

(1) Periods of separation from the Service;

(2) Periods of leave without pay in excess of three months;

(3) Periods during which a member has been seconded to international agencies with re-employment rights.

- (4) Periods of sabbatical leave not to exceed 11 months for members of the Senior Foreign Service;
- (5) Periods for which a Selection Board has non-rated a member of the Service on grounds of insufficient performance data;
- (6) Periods for which the Director, Office of Human Resources (OHR), determines that the member should be non-rated to correct denial of opportunity for promotional consideration resulting from inadequate or incorrect performance data or administrative error;
- (7) Periods which are non-rated by direction of the Foreign Service Grievance Board, the Merit Systems Protection Board, the FLRA, the Courts, the EEO Examiner, or the Labor Relations Staff; and
- (8) Periods when an officer is called to active military service.

f. Time-in-Class/Time-in-Service Extensions for Language Training.

- (1) Periods of full-time, long-term hard language training (i.e., language training for which 44 weeks or more of study is the normal training period) or a combination of Area Studies and language training shall extend the officer's TIC/TIS as follows:
  - (a) Upon successful completion of training, the period not included in the TIC calculation will be one year if the time spent in training was from nine to thirteen months; and two years if the time spent in training was fourteen months or more. The period not included in the TIC/TIS calculation due to training in any single language will not exceed two years regardless of the time actually spent in training.
  - (b) This provision does not apply to refresher courses for officers who have previously scored S-3/R-3 or better in the language. However, it would apply to a training program aimed specifically at raising existing proficiency to the S-4/R-4 level, subject to the two-year limit described in paragraph (a), above.
  - (c) The Office of Human Resources (OHR), Training and Development Division, will certify in writing to the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer that a specialist has successfully completed training and is eligible for TIC/TIS recalculation. OHR will provide the officer with a copy of the certification.

742.3 Limited Career Extensions

- a. General - Limited Career Extensions (LCEs) may be offered to any career officer in the Senior Foreign Service whose maximum TIC under paragraphs 742.2a or 742.2f is expiring or to Specialists who are in the highest salary class (below Senior Foreign Service) of their respective occupational specialties or to Specialists in lower classes based on a very limited number of promotion opportunities or the staffing needs of lower classes provided that the IBB Director has determined that in general, the needs of the Service require that LCEs be granted. NO LCE WILL EXTEND AN OFFICER BEYOND THE AGE OF MANDATORY RETIREMENT.

b. Duration - LCEs will be 3 years in duration during which the officers receiving LCEs will be eligible for consideration for promotion, and performance pay -- if a member of the Senior Foreign Service -- and, if otherwise eligible, the possibility of further LCEs up to mandatory retirement age.

Members in their last year of TIC who are not granted an LCE will be retired in accordance with the provisions of BAM 5-B 740.

c. Determination of Numbers - Prior to the convening of the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board and the Specialist Selection Board, the IBB Director will determine the number of LCEs to be authorized in each class and in the Specialist categories by specialty. The determination will be made in conjunction with the determination of annual promotion opportunities based on the need:

- for expertise and experience in the SFS or in the specialty; and
- to provide a regular and predictable flow of talent through the ranks and into the SFS.

These numbers will be placed in a sealed envelope prior to the convening of the Specialist Selection Board and the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board and placed in escrow in accordance with the applicable provisions of the Foreign Service Promotion Safeguard Agreements (BAM 5-B, Exhibits 460A and 460D).

d. Selection Board Procedures

(1) LCEs are distributed in accordance with the rank-ordered recommendations of the Senior Foreign Service Selection Board and Foreign Service Specialist Selection Board Panels which shall be made in accordance with the Precepts governing the Boards and the Agreement on Composition of the Selection Boards.

(2) After each Panel of the Board has completed its consideration of officers in its respective competition category for promotion and possible selection, OHR will advise the Panel whether any LCEs have been authorized and, if so, will provide the Panels with the names of all career members in the category who are in their last year of time in class but were either not recommended for promotion or not within reach for promotion even though recommended. The Panel will not be given the names of those employees who withdrew from consideration in accordance with the provisions of Exhibit 740C.

(3) If a Panel recommends fewer members than authorized, OHR will notify the Panel of the number authorized and ask the Panel to reopen its consideration of members for extension. Upon such further review the Panel may identify additional members as qualified for extension. The officers so identified will be precisely ranked in order of merit with those previously recommended for an LCE.

(4) LCEs will be granted by the Agency strictly in the rank order recommended by the Selection Board Panel. Names may be removed from a Panel LCE rank-ordered list only under the conditions and procedures established regarding removal of names from promotion lists (BAM 5-B 460) and Promotion Safeguards Agreement, BAM 5-B Exhibit 460A).

e. LCE Review Categories

(1) Members of the SFS will be considered for extension by class in the following competition category:

(a) Counselor - All Specialist officers in the Class of Counselor by Specialty.

(2) Overseas Specialists in the highest salary class for their specialty will be considered for extension by specialty.

f. Criteria for SFS Board Review

(1) The SFS Selection Board panels will consider quality of performance and potential for continued outstanding service in class.

(2) The panels should also give weight to evidence of accomplishment and competency demonstrating the capability to carry out executive responsibilities.

(3) The panels should give particular credit to evidence of knowledge and recorded achievements in leadership and management, as applicable.

(4) In addition, the panels will review and consider the availability for overseas duty of each officer, particularly those who have been serving in the United States in excess of four consecutive years.

(5) Equal credit is to be given to performance whether completed in a funded position or not; the measure of the accomplishment is demonstrated capability and evaluated performance of responsibilities, not the type of position occupied.

(6) Should a period of performance not be rated by an evaluation report, the panels should not discount the officer's overall standing in any way.

h. Criteria for Review of Foreign Service Specialists - Class 1 or Below

(1) The Foreign Service Specialist Selection Board panels will apply the same performance criteria as are applicable for promotion. However, recognizing that specialists extended generally will serve in present class, the panels will consider primarily the quality of performance, experience, and potential for continued successful service in the specialist's present class.

(2) In considering specialists for extension on a specialty-wide basis by class, the panel should give weight to evidence of accomplishment and competency demonstrating the development and/or maintenance of the skills required by the specialty. The panel also should give appropriate credit to evidence of knowledge and recorded achievements in leadership and management, as applicable.

(3) In addition, since worldwide availability is of critical importance in agency staffing, the panel may give positive consideration to specialists who have demonstrated their availability for overseas service.

(4) Equal credit is to be given to performance whether completed in a funded position or not; the measure of accomplishment is demonstrated capability and evaluated performance of responsibilities, not the type of position occupied. Should a period of performance not be rated by an evaluation report, the panel should not discount the specialist's overall standing in any way.

i. Non-rates

(1) The Board must review and reach a decision with regard to any employee for whom periods of performance over the most recent five years are covered completely or in part by evaluation or training reports or justification explaining any unevaluated period of performance.

(2) Only with the concurrence of the Office of Human Resources that a file is insufficiently documented may the Board not rate a member.

(3) Whenever it is determined that an employee must be non-rated for LCE consideration, the time-in-class of the employee non-rated will be extended one year to permit a subsequent review for promotion and extension by the next session of the Selection Board.

(4) The Board must prepare a statement justifying the non-rate decision in each case, a copy of which will be forwarded to the non-rated employee.

742.4 Effective Date of Retirement for TIC or TIS

a. Members of the Service who are retired for expiration of TIC or TIS shall have the effective date of their retirement set by the OHR Director within six months after the expiration of the TIC or TIS limit.

b. The Office of Human Resources will notify a member of the Service in writing as soon as the effective date of retirement has been set under subsection (a) above. To the maximum extent possible, such members shall be given at least 30 days' notice of retirement.

742.5 Notification of Proposed Retirement for Expiration of TIC or TIS - The OHR Director will notify officers who have met the preceding criteria of retirement for TIC of the following information:

a. That the retirement of the officer for expiration of TIC or TIS limits is in accordance with Section 607 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, and implementing regulations issued thereunder;

b. The date on which the officer will be retired;

c. The time limits for filing (60 working days) an appeal and warning that failure to appeal the decision within the prescribed time limits will remove the officer's case from the jurisdiction of the Grievance Board;

742.6 Postponement of the Effective Date of Retirement - Except as indicated below, the effective date of retirement will be within six months after the expiration date of the time-in-class limit. Also see paragraph 742.5.

a. If an officer reaches a maximum TIC or TIS limit while serving in a position to which appointment was made by the President, the officer's retirement from the Foreign Service becomes effective upon completion of service in such a position.

b. FP-2 Officers who are not eligible for voluntary retirement upon the expiration of the maximum TIC or TIS limit applicable to their class will not be retired until they attain eligibility to apply for voluntary retirement.

c. The OHR Director may postpone the effective date of retirement of an officer for up to one year in rare instances of personal circumstances of critical need. Even in such rare cases, extensions will be limited to no more than one year. Extensions will not be granted to accommodate personal convenience or to fill recurring vacancies which are the result of normal tour rotation.

d. If the Officer seeks relief against the proposed retirement in initiating action under the Foreign Service grievance procedures (3 FAM 4400) prior to retirement, the effective date of retirement shall be postponed pending a final decision on the appeal.

e. The records of any officers who have been designated for retirement by the OHR Director, or whose effective date of retirement is postponed, will not be reviewed by Selection Boards which convene during the intervening period, nor will such officers receive a within-class salary increase during this period.

742.7 Appeals of Retirement for TIC or TIS - An officer may appeal retirement for expiration of time-in-class limits within 60 days of receipt of the notification of retirement from the OHR Director. Appeals may be made to the Labor and Employee Relations Division only if the retirement is alleged to be contrary to laws or regulations or predicated upon alleged inaccuracy, omission, error, or falsely prejudicial character of information in any part of the official personnel record of the officer.

742.8 Career Transition Program - The Career Transition Program (hereinafter referred to as the Program) is a concentrated learning experience based on individual and group counseling. It is designed for employees seeking post-retirement employment, and consists of three phases: (1) assistance in self-analysis and appraisal of skills and aspirations, and resume preparation; (2) developing job-finding strategies; and (3) assistance in conducting a second career search.

a. Eligibility Criteria - Only tenured Foreign Service employees within one year of involuntary separation/retirement directly resulting from the Selection Board process, or those employees who face mandatory retirement due to age (65) are eligible for this Program. This specifically includes those employees notified of separation based on expiration of time-in-class/time-in-service limits, or on relative performance, even if they opt to retire prior to their separation date. Voluntary retirees may only be enrolled on a space-available basis, as an annuitant, and within one year following retirement.

(1) Eligible employees assigned to the U. S., when notified of pending separation, may participate in the Program while in pay status for up to 30 calendar days.

(2) Eligible employees assigned overseas, when notified of pending separation, may participate in the program while in pay status for up to 60 calendar days.

b. Program Responsibilities

(1) The State Department's Career Transition Center (PER/RCT/CTR) provides the work facilities and the counseling services; and

(2) Will certify time and attendance for Program participation.

c. Program Procedures

(1) Those eligible employees notified of pending separation under TIC, TIS, or relative performance will be accepted into the Program in accordance with the following requirements:

(a) They respond to an offer of participation within 60 days after receiving notice of their pending separation; and

(b) Submit a retirement application and execute a retirement agreement prior to being accepted for participation in the Program (see Exhibit 740B).

(c) The separation/ retirement date of employees who participate in the Program will be no later than the conclusion of the 30 or 60-days in a pay status, as appropriate. For employees mandatorily retired for age, the retirement date will be no later than the end of the month in which the employee reaches age 65.

(d) In accordance with BAM 5-B 742.6(c), 743.6b(3), and 3 FAM 4400, an employee has sixty (60) calendar days from the date of receipt of the notification of retirement from the OHR Director to file an appeal against the proposed retirement. Failure to appeal the decision within the prescribed time limits will remove the officer's case from the jurisdiction of the Grievance Board.

(e) Section 742.7(4) states that "if an officer seeks relief against the proposed retirement in initiating action under the Foreign Service grievance procedures prior to retirement, the effective date of retirement shall be postponed pending a final decision on the appeal." If an officer who elects to participate in the Program initiates action prior to beginning the Program, his/her participation will continue as scheduled; however, the effective date of retirement will be held in abeyance pending a final decision on the appeal. If an officer files a grievance regarding any matter other than an appeal against his/her proposed retirement, it will not impact upon his or her participation in the Program nor will he or she be eligible to receive the postponement in accordance with section 742.7(4).

(f) When approved to participate in the Program, employees serving overseas will be reassigned to Washington by direct transfer. Neither transfer allowances nor per diem are authorized for participants. The timing of the direct transfer of an employee serving overseas and subsequent start of the Program will be coordinated by the OHR Foreign Service Personnel Officer. Based on the needs of the Agency, the OHR Director may extend the pending separation date for a short period.

(g) The participant may continue to use the Program for up to 1 year after retirement, if accepted into the program before retirement.

d. Job Bank - The Career Transition Center (PER/RCT/CTR) will maintain a register of job opportunities appropriate to the skills of those who have registered with it.

743 Mandatory Retirement Based on Relative Performance

Career members of the Service shall be retired for failure to meet the standards of performance for the class in which they serve or for relative performance (Section 608 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980).

743.1 Retirement Criteria - Foreign Service Specialists - A Foreign Service Specialist in Classes 1 through 8 or a Career Foreign Service Specialist member of the Senior Foreign Service may be retired for performance when:

a. A Selection Board indicates that the officer has not met the standard of his or her class, documenting that finding in a memorandum outlining in substantive detail specific reasons for the conclusion and the OHR Director has conducted an administrative review of the Board's finding and determines that the officer has failed to meet the standards of performance for his or her class and refers the file to a Performance Standards Board (PSB); or

b. The officer receives two or more of either or a combination of letters of low ranking or denials of a Within-Class Increase (WCI) from two Selection Boards within any five-year period and the Performance Standards Board (PSB) designates the officer for selection-out. (See paragraph 743.6.) A letter of low ranking is an indication to the officer and the Agency of problem areas or inadequacies in needed skills, performance, and/or potential, as described in 5-B 460, Exhibit 460B. Referral to a PSB for selection-out under this provision must be documented by specific examples of performance from the most recent five years and shall draw on material from more than one rating period. A majority of the Selection Board members must concur in such a referral.

743.2 Administrative Review by the Director, Office of Human Resources (OHR) - Upon receipt of notification by the Selection Board that a Foreign Service Specialist has been identified as not meeting the standards of his or her class, the OHR Director will conduct an administrative review of the findings and advisory statements of the Selection Boards and will decide whether to initiate retirement proceedings against the officer.

a. The OHR Director may decide that the officer has not met the criteria for mandatory retirement when:

(1) clear and substantial error is found either with respect to a Selection Board's procedure (such as a failure to apply the precepts properly), or with respect to technical aspects of the officer's performance file (such as inadmissible material, inadequate records, or mistakes in a Selection Board's statement of reasons for finding an officer does not meet the standards of the class) or

(2) Compassionate considerations are compelling (such as the serious illness of the officer).

b. If the OHR Director decides not to initiate retirement proceedings, notification of the administrative review and identification for retirement may be withheld from the officer under certain compassionate circumstances, e.g., the officer's imminent retirement.

c. If the OHR Director does find that the officer has met the criteria for mandatory retirement and initiates retirement proceedings, the affected officer will be notified by letter of the proposed action. The letter shall include:

(1) As applicable, copies of letters of low ranking, denials of WCI, and findings and statements of the Selection Boards or Performance Standards Board;

(2) Notice that the officer is entitled to reasonable time from receipt of the notification to respond to the proposed retirement with a personal appearance before the Director, Office of Human Resources or designee, or in writing, or both, to show cause why he or she should not be retired. The response time will not exceed 20 calendar days for officers assigned in the United States nor 60 days for officers assigned overseas;

(3) Notice that the officer has the right to be represented by counsel or by any other representative of the officer's own choosing at any stage of the mandatory retirement process;

(4) Notice that the officer will be provided a reasonable amount of official time to prepare and to present his or her response to the proposed retirement; and

(5) Notice that the officer's next within-class increase is suspended pending the OHR Director's final decision on the selection-out recommendation of the Board.

743.3 Final Decision of the Director, Office of Human Resources

- a. If the officer responds to the notification of proposed retirement the OHR Director will consider the response in reaching the decision whether or not to retire the officer.
- b. When the officer requests an opportunity to respond through a personal appearance, the Director, Office of Human Resources, or designee, shall hear the officer's response. A designee shall have authority to recommend a decision on the matter to the OHR Director. The right of an officer to respond during a personal appearance includes reasonable opportunity to make any oral representations that the officer believes might sway the final decision in the case, but does not include the right to a formal hearing that is adversarial in nature.
- c. The OHR Director will provide the officer with written notice of the final decision within 90 calendar days from the date of receipt of the officer's response. If the decision is that the officer be retired, the notice will also include the following information:
  - (1) That the retirement of the officer will be in accordance with Section 608 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, and implementing regulations issued thereunder;
  - (2) The date on which the officer will be retired;
  - (3) The officer's alternative and mutually exclusive rights to appeal the decision of the Director, Office of Human Resources either to the Foreign Service Grievance Board (3 FAM 4400 ), or to the IBB Director and copies of the regulations governing both procedures;
  - (4) That a formal hearing to review the merits of the decision may take place before either the Special Review Board or the Foreign Service Grievance Board, but not before both;
  - (5) The time limit (60 calendar days from date of receipt) for filing an appeal and warning that failure to appeal the decision within the prescribed time limits will remove the officer's case from the jurisdiction of both procedures;
  - (6) That the officer is not eligible for any further within class increase;
  - (7) That the officer's appeal of retirement will not bar any existing right to retire voluntarily at any time prior to the effective date of retirement.

743.4 Effective Date of Retirement for Relative Performance

- a. Determining Effective Date - Except as indicated below, the effective date of retirement will be within 90 days of the date of official notification of the final decision of the Director, Office of Human Resources, that the officer will be retired under paragraph 743.1.
- b. Postponement of Effective Date
  - (1) The Director, Office of Human Resources may, in special circumstances, postpone the effective date of retirement for relative performance of an officer upon determination that such action is in the public interest. No such extension may exceed one year.

(2) The records of any officers who have been designated for retirement by the Director, Office of Human Resources, or whose effective date of retirement is postponed will not be reviewed by any Selection Board which convenes during the intervening period, nor will such officers receive a within-class salary increase during this period.

(3) If the officer elects to make a timely appeal of selection out prior to separation, the effective date of selection out shall be postponed pending a final decision on the appeal. Any officer may appeal selection out for failure to meet the prescribed standard of performance of the officer's class to the Foreign Service Grievance Board. (See paragraph 743.3c) The time limit for filing an appeal with the Board is 60 calendar days from the date of receipt of the final decision of the Director, Office of Human Resources.

743.5 Date of Mandatory Retirement

If the Foreign Service Grievance Board sustains the decision of the Director, Office of Human Resources, to select out the officer, the date of separation shall be sixty (60) days from the date of the Board's written opinion.

743.6 Referral to the Performance Standards Board

a. Review by the Performance Standards Board

(1) All career members of the Service who have received two or more of either or a combination of letters of low ranking or denials of WCIs from two Selection Boards within any five-year period shall be referred to a Performance Standards Board (PSB).

(2) For each member specifically referred to a PSB by the OHR Director under Paragraph 743.1(a), the OHR Director shall prepare a summary statement supplementing the referral to assist the PSB in evaluating the member's overall career record, including the member's strengths and positive accomplishments as documented by the Selection Board. Such summary statement and copies of applicable low ranking letters and/or denials of WCIs will be referred to the PSB.

(3) For each member referred to a PSB under either Paragraph 743.1(a) or (b), the PSB shall prepare a written statement supporting its final decision to either recommend separation or deny separation.

b. Review by the Director of IBB - The Director of IBB may, on the basis of a recommendation by OHR, determine that for compelling medical or compassionate reasons, a member should not be referred to the PSB. In this event, the individual will be considered as having been "non-rated" by the Selection Board and the records will be so annotated in accordance with the precepts, but the member will not be granted any additional period of time-in-class or time-in-service, unless awarded through a grievance.

c. Membership of the Performance Standards Board

- (1) The Performance Standards Board will be appointed by the Director of the IBB.
- (2) The PSB will consist of at least three members, who shall be career members of the Foreign Service or Civil Service above the level of the members who are being reviewed. The members will be knowledgeable of the requirements of the specialties involved.

d. Review and Notification by the Director, Office of Human Resources

- (1) The PSB's findings will be reviewed by the OHR Director for consistency with governing policies.
- (2) The OHR Director will notify members of PSB determinations to select-out the member when the Director finds such determination to be consistent with policy. This notice will include a specific date set for retirement, a copy of the PSB's written statements justifying its findings, and notice of the opportunity to appeal the determination to the Director of IBB within 20 days of this notification or to file a grievance, but not both.

743.7 Procedural Precepts for the Performance Standards Boards

a. Performance Standards Boards (PSBs) will be guided by the following standards of performance to be met by career members of the Service.

- (1) The wide variety of both Foreign Service functions and working conditions precludes defining specific and fixed class standards embracing precise requirements. Therefore, the performance standards are expressed in broad terms. In general, PSBs shall weigh heavily documented shortcomings in one or more skills, abilities, or areas of knowledge that are pertinent to the occupational category of the member reviewed. PSBs shall also take into account failure to overcome these shortcomings after they have been brought to the attention of the member. A member's failure to meet the standards of a class may manifest itself in relative or comparative shortcomings in necessary skills, abilities, or areas of knowledge in comparison with other members in the same class and occupational category.
- (2) In judging the relative performance of a member under review, each PSB will give particular weight to documented shortcomings in those areas of quality, competency, and responsibility as set forth in the most recent Selection Board precepts and the following.
  - (a) Reluctance to accept responsibility.
  - (b) Failure to carry out properly assigned tasks within a reasonable time.
  - (c) Low productivity or work poorly done.
  - (d) Extent to which the specialist has developed and maintained the skills required of the Specialty

- (e) Failure to adapt to the office environment or to a foreign culture.
- (f) Refusal to accept or carry out legitimate directives from properly authorized officials.
- (g) A pattern of failure to safeguard properly classified material and information.
- (h) Inability to work effectively and cooperatively with supervisors, colleagues, teammates, or subordinates.
- (i) A lack of EEO sensitivity.
- (j) Indifference/failure to carry out supervisory and /or administrative responsibilities.

(3) Each PSB will review a sufficient number of Official Performance Folders of other members in the class and occupational category of the member under consideration to ensure that it has a reliable measure of the character and quality of performance in the relevant category. The Board will review no fewer than 10 Official Performance Folders in each case as a representative sample picked at random from the appropriate category, unless the class and occupational category includes fewer than 10 members. In this instance, the PSB will review the files of all other members of the class and category of the member under review. Each PSB will then determine, in reviewing the record of the member under review in light of the criteria in subparagraphs a (1) and a (2) of this section, whether the member under review has failed to meet the standards of performance while in present class.

(4) To justify a designation of selection-out, a PSB need not conclude that the member's performance was unsatisfactory per se or that the member's utility to the Service is marginal in an absolute sense. Rather, its duty is to examine the records of the member under review and related material, in comparison with other records reviewed, and to designate for selection-out those whose performance (evaluated in terms of assigned duties, goals, and work requirements) or whose deficiencies in work-related personal qualities or professional skills indicate that they have not met the standards of performance for their class.

(5) A PSB shall not consider any of the following:

- (a) The time remaining before a member arrives at what may be mandatory retirement either for age or time-in-class/time-in service; or
  - (b) A member's age, sex, national origin, religion, race, color, sexual orientation, or disability.
- (6) A PSB should not penalize unfairly a member who has received an honest, candid, or constructively critical report and shall review the member's prior rankings in present class for balanced consideration.

(7) A designation of selection-out ordinarily will not be based solely on the reports of a single rater. The Board should be able to identify some or all of the critical shortcomings among the reports of more than one rater. Where a Board's decision rests predominantly on the reports of one rater, the Board must consider whether there is any indication of unfair, negative bias by the rater.

b. The decisions of a Board respecting selection-out will be by majority vote and must be documented by written statements justifying the PSB's findings.

c. Proscriptions against outside inquiry.

(1) Prohibition against obtaining other information.

(a) A PSB will refer questions about its work only to the Office of Human Resources (M/H).

(b) PSB members will have available only the member's Official Personnel Folder and the materials specified in paragraph 743.6a(2) of this Section. They will neither seek nor receive, from any source, any other information (including but not limited to information regarding health, suitability, assignability, or reputation of any member of the Service under consideration).

(c) Should any unauthorized information referred to in paragraph (b) above come to the attention of a Board member, that Board member will report this in writing to M/H.

(2) Personal knowledge of Board members.

(a) PSB members cannot rely upon or relay to other Board members personal knowledge of a member under consideration.

(b) When a PSB member believes that he or she may be unable to render a fair and unbiased judgment of a career member, that PSB member shall state that fact in writing and will be excused from further consideration of the member. That PSB member shall continue to participate in the other activities of the PSB and shall not be required to state a reason for not participating in the consideration of a particular career member.

(c) A PSB member who was the career member's rater or reviewer while the career member was in present class will be excused from participating in making a decision only if the career member being reviewed so requests.

d. Oath of Office. All Board members will adhere to the following oath:

"I [Name] do solemnly (swear/affirm) that I will perform the duties of a member of a Performance Standards Board faithfully and to the best of my ability; that I will adhere to the Precepts and apply them without prejudice or partiality; and that I will not reveal to unauthorized persons any information concerning the personnel records used or the deliberations and recommendations of the Board."

e. Expiration. These precepts shall be extended from year to year and continue in force in their present form until modified or replaced after BBG or the employee representative organization gives notice in writing to the other of its intention to propose modifications.

744 Retirement Benefits

Officers retired under paragraphs 742 and 743 above will receive retirement benefits in accordance with Section 806 of the Act, except those officers in classes FO/FP 9 through 2 who are retired under 5-B 740 and who are not then eligible for voluntary retirement under Section 811 of the Act, and shall receive benefits under Section 609(b) of the Act.

745 Termination of Specialist Candidate Appointments for Unsatisfactory Performance

745.1 Authority - Under the provisions of Section 611 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 the appointments of Specialist Candidates may be terminated at any time, except for reason of misconduct in which case the provisions of Section 610 of the Act shall apply (see 3 FAM 760 for Separation for Cause.)

745.2 Policy

a. The purpose of the Specialist Candidate programs is to permit on-the-job evaluation of an individual's propensity and capability for effective service as a Foreign Service Specialist. That judgment normally will be made by a Specialist Selection Board (see BAM 5-B 450). However, in exceptional cases, a Candidate may prove unable to perform currently assigned duties satisfactorily prior to the Selection Board review. In such circumstances, it serves the interest of neither the Service nor the individual to retain the Candidate for the full term of the limited appointment. The Director, Office of Human Resources, may terminate the Candidate's appointment at any time the Candidate's performance is determined to be less than satisfactory. (See also 3 FAM 660).

b. Career Candidates are administratively promoted to the Class 4 level by the Director, Office of Human Resources, on the basis of satisfactory performance (see BAM 5-B 467). A Career Candidate who is not recommended for promotion by his or her supervisor at the time of eligibility for promotion is given six months' time in which to improve his or her performance. If, upon expiration of that period, the Career Candidate's performance is still determined to be unsatisfactory, the Career Candidate may be separated on the basis of unsatisfactory performance.

c. Specialist Candidates compete for promotion by the annual Specialist Selection Boards with other officers in the same occupational category and at the same class level. If a Specialist Candidate is cited for failure to meet the performance standards of his or her class by a Selection Board, the Specialist candidacy may be terminated.

745.3 Action by the Director, Office of Human Resources

a. Upon being advised that the Career Candidate's performance continues to be unsatisfactory or upon notification by the Selection Board that a Specialist Candidate has been cited for failure to meet the standards of his or her class, the Director, Office of Human Resources will conduct such further review or inquiry regarding the Candidate's performance as he or she may deem appropriate. All material considered by the OHR Director will be made available to the Candidate. The Candidate will be notified in writing of the intent to terminate his or her appointment and will be granted 10 working days from the date of receipt of the notification in which to respond to the finding. This period may be extended for good cause by the OHR Director.

b. Upon receipt of the Candidate's response or upon expiration of the notification period, whichever comes first, the OHR Director will again review all relevant material on file regarding the Candidate's performance and will either:

(1) Notify the Candidate that the finding of unsatisfactory performance has been reversed, and initiate action to effect any promotion or within-class increase that may be appropriate and timely;

(2) Issue a formal notification to the Candidate that his or her appointment will be terminated under the provisions of Section 611 of the Act and the effective date of the retirement. (Any Candidate who has reinstatement rights to a career or Foreign Service or General Schedule appointment position may exercise those rights in lieu of retirement); or

(3) Withhold judgment regarding possible action under (1) or (2) above for a specified period of time for further on-the-job observation. During that additional period the OHR Director may direct that the Candidate's within-class increase be denied, or direct a special monitoring of the Candidate's performance, which may include preparation of Officer Evaluation Reports at more frequent intervals than otherwise prescribed (see BAM 5-B 450). Upon expiration of the period, the OHR Director will re-address the question in light of overall performance history at that date.

745.4 Effective Date - The appointment will be terminated no less than 30 calendar days following date of final notice from the OHR Director (not counting needed travel time to return to the United States from overseas). Under special circumstances to be determined by the OHR Director, the effective date may be extended for a period not to exceed an additional 30 calendar days.

RETIREMENT AGREEMENT FORM

I, [name], hereby acknowledge that I have exercised the option to enter and participate in the Career Transition Program which is described in BAM 5-B 742 which I have read and understand. I further understand and accept the requirement that I submit my retirement application, which I have attached to this agreement, as a condition for participating in the Program. I have done so, setting my date of retirement to be [date].

I further acknowledge and accept without limitation or exception, upon entrance into the Career Transition Program, the obligation to reimburse the organization the amount of base salary for the period of participation in the Career Transition Program should I voluntarily withdraw any retirement application, except as provided for in BAM 5-B 742.

I enter into this agreement of my own free will and accord and not upon any promises or assurances other than those contained in BAM 5-B 742, which I have read thoroughly.

Withdrawal from Consideration for Limited Career Extension

Career Foreign Service Specialists who are in their last year of Time-in-Class (TIC) or Time-in-Service (TIS) and are eligible for Limited Career Extension (LCE), may elect not to be considered for an LCE. Consideration for an LCE is automatic unless the specialist executes and election to opt out of consideration. Regardless of the election, the specialist will still receive consideration for promotion.

Approximately six months before the appropriate Selection Board meets to consider the specialist for an LCE, the Foreign Service Personnel Officer (OHR) will send to each eligible specialist written notice that the specialist is subject to mandatory retirement due to TIC or TIS in the next calendar year and will be considered for an LCE unless the specialist elects otherwise.

A specialist wishing to decline to compete for an LCE must do so in writing (e.g., memorandum or email) addressed to the Foreign Service Personnel Officer (OHR) no later than 30 days before the convening of the Selection Board for the year in which the specialist would otherwise be considered for an LCE. An email must be followed by a signed and dated memorandum sent either in hard copy or pdf image and received no later than 10 days before the convening of the Board. If no election is submitted, the specialist will be considered automatically for an LCE. Below is a format for such an election.

MEMORANDUM FOR: OHR – Foreign Service Personnel Officer

FROM: [Organizational Symbol], [Name of Specialist], [Occupational Category and Class], [Post of Assignment]

SUBJECT: Withdrawal from Consideration for a Limited Career Extension

As a specialist whose time-in-class or time-in-service will expire in [specify calendar year], I request that my name be removed from consideration for a Limited Career Extension (LCE) by the [insert year of the next Selection Board to meet] Selection Board scheduled to convene on [insert date Board is scheduled to convene].

I understand that removal of my name from LCE consideration will not affect my promotion prospects this year, i.e., I will be considered for promotion to the next higher class by the Board.

Section 750

FURLOUGHS OF 30 DAYS OR LESS

751 APPLICABILITY

This section applies to all categories of Foreign Service employees.

752 PROVISIONS

752.1 Authority - 22 USC 4105(a), Sections 205 and 206 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 and Broadcasting's inherent authority.

752.2 Objectives, Definitions and Policies

- a. A furlough is the placing of an employee in a temporary non-duty, non-pay status due to shortage of funds or other non-disciplinary reasons.
- b. Under these regulations Broadcasting may not furlough employees for more than 30 calendar days or 22 workdays.
- c. Before actually initiating a furlough, Broadcasting will explore other means of responding to the need for a furlough.
- d. Broadcasting will seek to have the burden of any furlough equitably shared by employees so long as doing so does not interfere with appropriations or the effective and efficient management of programs, operations, and resources.
- e. Part-time employees will be furloughed in proportion to their schedule.
- f. Employees' rights and entitlements will be protected during periods of furlough to the extent permitted by statute and regulation. (See paragraph 752.3 below).
- g. A reasonable effort will be made to accommodate expressed personal preferences of employees (e.g., a desire to combine leave and furlough into a consecutive period or desire to have some income every pay period) in scheduling any furloughs to the extent they are consistent with work requirements and budgetary constraints.

752.3 Procedures

- a. The Director of Broadcasting, or designee, will make the final decision on using furlough and on the extent and duration of furloughs as a means of responding to a shortage of funds or other non-disciplinary reasons.
- b. The Director of Personnel will implement the furlough in consultation with affected elements.
- c. Employees will be given 30 days' advance written notice by letter or telegram or other means stating the specific reasons for the furlough and its duration. The advance notice of a proposed furlough shall include, but is not limited to:
  - (1) Reason for the furlough;
  - (2) Maximum length of the furlough (more definite and detailed specifications if known, e.g. the specific dates and length of the furlough);
  - (3) The basis for selecting a particular employee for furlough if not all employees are being furloughed;
  - (4) Notice as to the place where regulations and records pertinent to the action may be inspected;

(5) Right of employees to respond within 10 workdays to the proposed furlough;

(6) Entitlement to official time to prepare response;

(7) Entitlement to representation;

(8) Entitlement to request Leave Without Pay (LWOP) in lieu of furlough.

However, the advance written notice and opportunity to answer are not necessary for a furlough without pay due to unforeseeable circumstances, such as lapses of appropriations, sudden breakdowns in equipment, acts of God, or sudden emergencies requiring immediate curtailment of activities. In such cases, employees shall be given as much notice as feasible.

d. Except in the event of unforeseeable circumstances, employees who wish to respond to the notice of proposed furlough have up to ten workdays to do so either orally or in writing to the Director of Personnel with documentary evidence in support of their answer, if necessary. When an employee gives an oral response, Personnel will maintain a summary of the conversation and provide a copy to the employee.

e. Each employee will be entitled to a reasonable amount (normally up to four hours) of official time to prepare his/her response. Employee representatives also shall be entitled to such a reasonable amount of official time to assist employees in their responses.

f. Employees have a right to representation of their choice, except that the Director of Personnel may disallow the choice of an individual as a representative which would result in a conflict of interest or position, which would conflict with the priority needs of Broadcasting, or which would give rise to unreasonable costs to the Government.

g. Broadcasting's decision will be submitted in writing as soon as reasonably possible. The notice of decision to furlough shall include but is not limited to:

(1) Decision;

(2) Maximum length of furlough (more definite and detailed specifications if known);

(3) Invitation to employees to submit for management's consideration their preferences as to the specific day(s) on which they would prefer to have their furloughs scheduled, if appropriate;

(4) Entitlement to request LWOP in lieu of furlough;

(5) Prohibition on unpaid voluntary services;

(6) General information on entitlements listed in paragraphs 752.5a and 752.5c through k. below;

(7) Unemployment compensation guidelines.

h. Employees may appeal the decision to the Foreign Service Grievance Board after the furlough is initiated.

752.4 Responsibilities

a. The Chief, Personnel Operations Division is the designated proposing official who will sign the notice of proposed furlough.

b. Oral and written responses may be directed to the Director of Personnel or designee, who will be responsible for making the final decision in each case.

c. Periods in furlough status will be documented in accordance with established procedures for recording personnel actions.

752.5 Rights and Entitlements During Periods of Furlough

a. Employees in a furlough status cannot be required to perform official duties regardless of whether they are assigned to a domestic or overseas position, nor can Broadcasting accept the voluntary services of employees in furlough status.

b. Employees on detail or other assignment whose salaries are not paid out of Broadcasting's Salaries and Expenses account are not subject to furlough when the reason for the furlough is a shortage of funds.

c. Employees may engage in outside employment during periods of furlough in accordance with the guidelines in 3 FAM 620 and Part 10 of Title 22 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

d. Employees who perform court duty during periods of furlough may retain the court pay.

e. An employee may not be placed on paid leave in lieu of furlough, except in cases of furloughs resulting from a lapse of appropriation. In such cases, employees granted (prior to the lapse) accrued leave to begin prior to or after the lapse may be permitted to use such leave.

f. Employees will not be furloughed on holidays, i.e., will not be involuntarily placed in a non-pay status on a holiday.

g. Enrollment in health plans continues during furlough but employees are liable for payment of their share of the enrollment costs during such periods. Employees' share of enrollment costs will be deducted from any remaining biweekly pay. If such pay is insufficient to pay these costs, employees may pay the costs during or after returning from a furlough by check or payroll deduction. (There is a 365 day limit on enrollment in a non-pay status.)

h. Life insurance coverage remains in effect without cost to the employees while in furlough status. (There is a 12 consecutive month limit on enrollment in a non-pay status.)

i. Retirement contributions during periods of furlough are in proportion to the basic pay of the employee.

j. An aggregate of no more than six months of non-pay/furlough status in a year is creditable service in computing annual leave accrual rates. When a full time employee accumulates 80 hours in non-pay status, including furlough, his/her annual and sick leave balances are reduced by the number of hours accrued in a pay period.

k. Entitlement to within-class increases remains unchanged by time in a furlough status.

752.6 Furlough and Time-in-Class Calculations - Time spent in furlough status will count towards time-in-class calculations.

752.7 Time Limited Appointments - Time-limited appointments will not be extended by the number of days in furlough status, nor may such an appointment be extended beyond the five-year maximum.

753 INFORMATION

Specific information on these and other entitlements may be obtained from the Office of Personnel.

Section 790

OTHER TYPES OF SEPARATIONS

791 TERMINATION UPON EXPIRATION OF APPOINTMENT

791.1 Temporary Employees

a. A temporary employee will be terminated on a date specified in the personnel action effecting his or her appointment, when the need no longer exists for his or her services, or after a year of employment, whichever occurs first. (When charges of misconduct are initiated, the procedures prescribed in 3 FAM 760 must be followed.)

b. Such person may be extended or re-appointed subject to the availability of funds and the continued need for his or her services.

791.2 Limited Appointment Employees - An employee with a time-limited Foreign Service appointment may be terminated on a date specified in the personnel action effecting his or her appointment, or when the program for which the employee was appointed expires, or when the need no longer exists for the employee's services, whichever occurs first. Also see V-B 300-310. (When charges of misconduct are initiated, the procedures prescribed in 3 FAM 760 must be followed.)

791.3 Responsibilities and Procedures

a. The Office of Personnel is responsible for determining the expiration dates of appointments and taking prompt action to terminate the appointment or to re-appoint the employee.

b. If the employee's appointment is to be terminated, Personnel will give the employee reasonable notice, and is responsible for issuing the Notification of Personnel Action, SF-50, and taking other necessary action to complete the separation.

c. General procedures and instructions which apply to all types of separations are contained in MOA V-B 700.

792 SEPARATION - DISABILITY

792.1 Definition - "Separation - Disability" is the separation of an employee whose mental or physical condition renders him or her incapable of performing the duties of his or her position and who is ineligible for disability retirement, or who, after being advised by Broadcasting that he or she is eligible to apply for disability retirement, refuses to do so. The term includes "separation - legal incompetence."

792.2 Policy - Employees will be separated because of disability only if they are not eligible for or refuse to apply for retirement when it has been determined by State Department Medical Services (M/MED) that, for physical or mental reasons, they cannot be assigned to any Foreign Service position in the field in which they can perform satisfactorily without being a hazard to themselves or others.

792.3 Procedures

a. Whenever it becomes apparent that an employee has become physically or mentally incapable of performing the duties of his or her position, the supervisor in Washington or the head of the overseas establishment should, time permitting, prepare a written statement of facts and circumstances and forward such statement to the Office of Personnel. Personnel will arrange for a medical examination at State Department Medical Services (M/MED). If the employee suddenly becomes physically or mentally incapacitated to the extent that he or she is a hazard to himself or herself, or others, the employee should be placed on sick leave, with or without his or her consent.

b. Separation will not be effective as long as the employee is receiving compensation (3 FAM 689) or while an application for disability retirement is pending (MOA V-B 780). If the employee refuses to apply for disability retirement, separation procedures will be initiated by Personnel in consultation with the retirement staff. The procedures in 3 FAM 767 will be followed. Where there remains unused sick leave to the employee's credit, the effective date of separation will be extended to permit use of sick leave.

c. After the final decision on separation has been made by the Director of Personnel in writing, the Foreign Service Personnel Advisor is responsible for processing separations for disability; for issuing the Notification of Personnel Action, SF-50; for requesting issuance of travel orders if travel is authorized, and for taking other necessary action to complete the separation.

793 SEPARATIONS IN THE INTERESTS OF NATIONAL SECURITY

Policies and procedures for separating employees in the interests of national security are covered in MOA VIII 200.

794 SEPARATION - ABANDONMENT OF POSITION

794.1 Definition - "Abandonment of Position" is separation, other than resignation, as a result of an employee's act in abandoning his or her position by failing to report for duty or return to duty at the expiration of an authorized period of leave.

794.2 Policy - It is Broadcasting policy to consider action toward separation of an employee who appears to have abandoned his or her position as a disciplinary action in accordance with separation procedures outlined in 3 FAM . However, timely receipt of a statement from an employee that he or she does not intend to return to duty may be considered as a resignation, be so accepted, and processed. If the employee does not intend to return to duty and does not submit a resignation, or if the supervisor, the head of the overseas establishment, or the Office of Personnel is unable to contact the employee, Personnel will prefer charges against the employee for abandonment of position. If this is done, the procedural steps in 3 FAM with respect to separation for cause will be followed.

795 SEPARATION - DISQUALIFICATION

795.1 Definition - Disqualification is the separation of an employee or disqualification of an applicant for any of the reasons noted in 3 FAM.

795.2 Applicability - 3 FAM provides guidelines in deciding on an applicant's suitability for appointment in the Foreign Service, taking disciplinary action in regard to an employee, or deciding on an employee's continued employment in the Foreign Service.

795.3 Procedures

a. 3 FAM will be used in determining an applicant's suitability for appointment in the Foreign Service.

b. When an employee fails to meet the conduct standards outlined in 3 FAM and it is determined that disciplinary action, or separation will occur, procedures outlined in 3 FAM will be followed.

796 SEPARATION FOR MILITARY SERVICE

796.1 Introduction - An employee who leaves to enter active military service or to undertake preparatory training sponsored by the armed forces and followed by active military duty is generally entitled to a number of benefits.

796.2 Procedures

a. An employee who plans to leave to enter the armed forces, other than for a short period to be covered by military leave (see 3 FAM 461) should contact the Office of Personnel to get information about his or her rights, benefits, and options on retirement, leave, etc. and on rules and procedures governing restoration to Broadcasting following completion of active military service.

b. Supervisors, executive and administrative officers, and other operating officials who learn that an employee is leaving or has left to enter active military service or training preparatory to active military service must inform the Office of Personnel so that applicable statutes and regulations may be implemented.

796.3 Transportation - An employee who leaves upon being called to active military duty from a reserve component of the Armed Forces of the United States is entitled to transportation at Government expense, including travel for him or herself and dependents, and transportation of household and personal effects, from the post of assignment to residence of record, regardless of the length of tour of duty abroad, under the terms and conditions governing involuntary separation from the Service.

An employee who is eligible for return travel and transportation to the United States, either for the purpose of home leave or resignation, and who desires to return to the United States for the purpose of volunteering for military duty, may request appropriate travel orders.

An employee who is not eligible for return travel and transportation to the United States, and who desires to return to the United States for the purpose of volunteering for military duty, may do so at his or her own expense.

An employee may be given up to 45 working days absence from post for the purpose of volunteering for military duty. If accepted, the employee could then apply for travel orders authorizing the travel of dependents and the transportation of effects.

796.4 Pre-Exit Interview and Final Salary Clearances - The pre-exit interview, in addition to the information normally included (MOA V-B 707), should specifically include information on the disposition of leave balances (see 3 FAM 494). Procedures for the final salary clearance are outlined in MOA V-B 708.

796.5 Military Restoration Rights - Military restoration rights means the right to be re-employed in his or her former status and class; to any within-class increases in salary which would have been received had he or she served continuously in the position occupied prior to active military duty, to be retained for one year in the Service except that he or she may be separated for cause within that period (MOA V-B 770); to be recredited with any unused annual and sick leave at time he or she entered active military duty (3 FAM 694.2); to receive service credit for retirement purposes for time spent on active military duty; and to travel with per diem for self and family, and transportation of effects from place of residence to post of assignment.

a. Eligibility After Serving in the Armed Forces - An employee called into the Armed Forces for service and training of three consecutive months or more is entitled to restoration rights provided he or she receives a certificate of satisfactory completion of service and training, makes application for re-employment within ninety days after being relieved from such service or training, or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year, and is medically qualified to serve abroad.

b. Eligibility After Enlistment or Call to Active Duty - An employee who enlisted or was ordered or called to active duty is entitled to restoration rights provided the total of any services performed by him or her does not exceed four years (plus any period of additional service imposed pursuant to law); is released from service under honorable conditions and makes application for re-employment within ninety days after release; or is released from hospitalization which continued after discharge for a period of not more than one year and is medically qualified to serve abroad.

c. Eligibility of Reservists or National Guard After Active Duty - An employee, who, as a reservist or National Guard member, was ordered to active duty for training of three consecutive months or more, is entitled to restoration rights provided he or she:

(1) satisfactorily completed such service;

(2) makes application within 31 days after release from active duty for training, or discharge from hospitalization incident to such duty, or one year after scheduled release from training, whichever is earlier.

d. Time Limit for Restoration - Restoration must be made as soon as possible, and in no event later than 30 days after the employee's application is received in Personnel.

e. Physical Qualifications - A returning employee who is not medically qualified to serve abroad, because of disability sustained during active military duty, but who is qualified to perform the duties of any other position in Broadcasting, will be restored to such other position in such a way as to provide him or her like seniority status and pay, or the nearest approximation thereof consistent with the circumstances in the case.

f. Class Promotion Policy - Upon re-employment after military leave or military furlough, Foreign Service employees will receive the same consideration for promotion that they would have received if they had been serving during the period of military service in the position last held before entering active military duty. Selection boards will give consideration to the quality of experience acquired in military service and its applicability to the work of the Foreign Service, and to the class reached by contemporaries having comparable prior service records of performance in the Foreign Service. Employees serving on active military duty are encouraged to furnish Broadcasting, for inclusion in their records, material describing the nature and quality of their military experience.

797 REDUCTION IN THE RANKS OF FP OVERSEAS SPECIALIST EMPLOYEES will be carried out in accordance with the Foreign Service Reduction-in-Force regulations negotiated with AFSA in 1995.

Section 850

RESTRICTIONS ON EMPLOYMENT OF RELATIVES

851 General Policy

852 Definitions

853 Exceptions

854 Relatives Assigned to the Same Post

855 Contracting for Relative's Services

Section 850

RESTRICTIONS ON EMPLOYMENT OF RELATIVES

851 GENERAL POLICY

In order to prevent either the fact or appearance of nepotism that might assist the employment or further the career of any individual related to a Broadcasting employee or official on detail to Broadcasting who is categorized as a "public official", no such public official may appoint, or advocate the appointment, employment, promotion or advancement of his or her relatives.

852 DEFINITIONS

a. "Public official" for the purpose of this section, is anyone employed by Broadcasting, under any type of appointment, who by law, rule, regulation or delegation has appointment or promotion authority within his or her organization, or authority to recommend employees for appointment or promotion. Thus, any supervisor, regardless of grade level, who has authority to appoint or promote, or to recommend the appointment or promotion of employees under his or her supervision, is a public official. Similarly, a personnel or placement officer who has authority to appoint or promote or to recommend the appointment or promotion of employees is a public official.

b. "Relative" means father, mother, son, daughter, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, first cousin, nephew, niece, husband, wife, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepson, stepdaughter, stepbrother, stepsister, half brother or half sister.

c. "Advocate" for the purpose of this section means a referral to a subordinate of relative for employment or advancement consideration. A referral for consideration, in this context, is any action, even though short of an actual recommendation, that reveals an interest in securing or facilitating a person's consideration for appointment, employment, promotion or advancement. Examples of referrals for consideration are the transmittal of an application to a personnel or line official, providing a letter of introduction to an appointing official, or the like.

853 EXCEPTIONS

a. Except as noted in paragraph 854 below, these regulations exempt relatives of Foreign Service employees assigned abroad who apply for employment under the Part-time-Intermittent-Temporary (PIT), or American Family Member (FSN/AFM).

b. Relatives of Foreign Service Employees who are candidates for appointment to the Career Foreign Service through the competitive examination process. Under such circumstances, a public official may properly reply to a written or oral employment inquiry about the qualifications and suitability of a relative, provided the employee refrains from advocating employment of the relative.

854 EMPLOYEES ASSIGNED TO THE SAME POST

When relatives are employed at the same overseas post or domestic installation, one member of a family may not exercise immediate supervision over another member of the family, nor serve as a rating or reviewing officer for the performance evaluation of a relative, nor have a working relationship which gives the appearance of direction and control over the work or career of a relative.

855 CONTRACTING FOR RELATIVE'S SERVICES

Except in very unusual circumstances it is Broadcasting's policy to prohibit contracting with relatives of employees. However, relatives of employees who have unique qualifications, may serve as purchase order vendors in those unique specialties when there is no other source for the service and they have been approved in writing by the Director, Office of Contracts. In any event, such purchase order vendors may not receive payment from Broadcasting under such contracts in excess of $10,000 per fiscal year.

PROCUREMENT OF SERVICES BY CONTRACT

881 PURPOSE - This Section supplements instructions published in the Overseas Procurement Handbook for obtaining personal and non-personal services at overseas establishments by contract.

882 PROCEDURES

882.1 Non-U.S. Citizens

a. Use Notification of Personnel Action, Form DS-1032, to record an appointment or extension of appointment of a non-(U.S.) citizen by personal service contract for duty at an overseas establishment.

b. Include Foreign Service National employees appointed by personal service contract in the monthly Report on Employment (Form FS-468) submitted to Broadcasting.

c. Congress imposes no monetary limit on Broadcasting for personal and non-personal services contracts for non-U.S. citizens. However, overseas establishments must follow procedures outlined in the Overseas Procurement Handbook when issuing such contracts or purchase orders.

882.2 U.S. Citizens (including American Family Members):

- a. Section 801(5) of Public Law 80-402 provides that Broadcasting may employ persons on a temporary basis without regard to the civil service and classification laws (i.e., on personal services contracts) when such employment is provided for by the pertinent Appropriation Act.
- b. Employment of U.S. citizens under personal services contracts or purchase offers is subject to procedures outlined in the Overseas Procurement Handbook, and personal services contracts are also subject to the monetary limitation noted in 882.2a.
- c. See MOA-V-B-309 for other methods of employing American Family Members.

Section 900

PERSONNEL RECORDS, FILES AND REPORTS

901 AUTHORITY, PURPOSE, AND COVERAGE

901.1 Section 603 (a) of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 provides the authority for the keeping of personnel records which describe the character, ability, conduct, language, competence, quality of work, industry, experience, dependability, usefulness and general performance of members of the Foreign Service. Such records may include, but are not limited to, performance evaluation reports of supervisors and records of commendations, awards, reprimands and other disciplinary actions.

901.2 Instructions - The following instructions apply to files, records and reports on all Foreign Service employees.

902 RESPONSIBILITIES

902.1 The Office of Personnel is responsible for all personnel records, files, and reports with the exception of those listed in paragraphs 902.2, 902.3 and 902.4 below.

902.2 The Office of Security is responsible for maintaining files of investigative reports and all other reports dealing with personnel security and physical security.

902.3 Financial Operations, Office of Budget is responsible for leave, retirement, health benefits, and group life insurance records. Payroll servicing offices at Regional Finance Centers (RFC) in Paris, Bangkok, and the Charleston Finance Center are responsible for leave, retirement, health benefits, and group life insurance records for Foreign Service employees assigned to overseas installations. Upon transfer to Washington or to another post, records will be transferred to the pertinent RFC or to the Office of Budget.

903 ACCESS TO OFFICIAL PERSONNEL FOLDERS

It is the policy of Broadcasting to hold the contents of personnel records and files in confidence and to release Official Personnel Folders or information therein only to such parties, and under the restrictions, outlined below. All persons are required to sign the "Access Disclosure Sheet: attached to the inside cover of each Official Personnel Folder and Officer Performance File when granted access to those files for any reasons, excepting that employees of the Office of Equal Employment Opportunity; labor Relations Staff and staff members of Personnel are not required to sign for accesses made for official purposes.

903.1 Persons Authorized Access to Official Personnel Folders (includes "Performance Files" of Foreign Service Personnel) Without the Consent of the Employee

- a. Director of Broadcasting
- b. Director for VOA.
- c. Principal officers (division level) of Broadcasting
- d. An Employee's immediate supervisor or higher level supervisors in the chain of command through the element head, but only for such management determinations as may be necessary to carry out legitimate personnel management functions.
- e. Executive or Administrative officers, in carrying out required administrative functions, but limited to records of employees assigned to their areas of responsibility, and provided the disclosures are made in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.
- f. Attorneys in the Office of the General Counsel; investigative agents of Security or other Federal agencies; Director, Office of Civil Rights and authorized EEO investigators (not EEO Officers and Counselors); (Office of the Inspector General (OIG)); all of the above as required in the performance of official duties or for specific cases assigned.
- g. Members of the Board of Examiners of the Foreign Service (BEX), but only for those officers applying for lateral entry in the Foreign Service; members of the Foreign Service Grievance Board, for those cases referred for action; members of Foreign Service Selection Boards; members of Merit Promotion Panels.
- h. Members of the Open Assignments Panel.
- i. To a representative of a committee or subcommittee of either House of Congress, or a joint committee thereof, on official request.
- j. Persons designated by court order or as required by law, but only after consultation with, and approval by, the Office of the General Counsel.

903.2 Persons Authorized Access to Official Personnel Folders Only With Written Consent of the Employee

- a. EEO officers (excluding investigators) and EEO Counselors, in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.

b. Representative(s) of the employee or former employee, or to any other person who has notarized written consent, providing that certain documents are first removed from folder before disclosure (BEX test material or medical data), and that the disclosure is made in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.

903.3 Access by the Individual Employee

a. Providing the disclosures are made in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant an employee may have unrestricted access to his or her Official Personnel Folder. Employees have a responsibility to ensure that their official personnel records are complete and up-to-date. To this end, employees are encouraged to examine their official personnel records at least once a year.

b. The employee may not check out his or her personnel file from the Personnel Office, nor may the employee remove materials from the file. Any employee requesting access to his or her file, requesting copies of documents therein, or requesting that documents be added or removed from the file, must make such requests through the personnel office. All employee access to individual files must be made in the presence of a personnel officer or personnel assistant.

904 REQUESTS FOR INFORMATION FROM PERSONNEL RECORDS

Information from an employee's personnel records may not be disclosed to persons other than authorized federal officials without the employee's consent, except that:

a. Certain facts concerning employment may be given to prospective employers, credit establishments when the request is made in writing or in person with proper identifications, or legitimate reference checks or confirmation of employment. Information concerning an employee's present and past grade and salary, present and past position titles, occupational series length of service, and duty station is public and may be released on request without permission of the employee. In addition to this information, the prospective employer of a government employee or former employee may be provided as a routine use under the Privacy Act the employee's tenure, and if separated from Broadcasting, the date and the nature of action shown on the SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action.

b. When an employee is being considered for detail or assignment to another Federal agency or to an international organization, his or her Official Personnel Folder may be reviewed by an official of that Agency when authorized by the employee. The employee should submit written authorization to the Office of Personnel.

c. See MOA III 560 for instructions regarding requests under the Privacy Act of 1974.

905 CONTENTS OF OFFICIAL PERSONNEL FOLDERS

Two files will be maintained for Foreign Service personnel.

905.1 The Administrative File is considered the official, permanent Government folder. This portion of the file will be forwarded to another Government agency if the employee transfers. The administrative file will contain such documents as the SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action regarding transfers, reassignments, details; health benefits and life insurance forms and beneficiary designations; official travel orders and amendments thereto, and Residence and Dependency Reports.

905.2 The Performance File is a file containing Officer Evaluation Reports (OERs), and other performance-related documents. The Performance File will contain Officer Evaluation Reports for the most recent five years. It is this file that is forwarded to the Selection Board and used to evaluate the employee for promotion and/or retention in the Service. OERs previous to the past five years will be kept in a separate folder in the official file room and will be subject to access regulations as noted in paragraph 903 of this section. In addition to the annual and interim Officer Evaluation Reports, the Performance File contains notices of language proficiency; language training reports; certificates of completion of training courses; meritorious, quality, honor and cash award nominations and certificates, Professional Experience Profile, and certain disciplinary documents. The Performance File is not forwarded to another agency (except to the Department of State) if the employee transfers.

906 MATERIALS SUBMITTED BY EMPLOYEES FOR THEIR OFFICIAL PERSONNEL FOLDERS

906.1 Type of Material - Rebuttals or Statements regarding work performance referred to in Officer Evaluation Reports must be included on the report form within the space allocated, and not submitted as a separate document.

906.2 Criteria for Inclusion - Only the following materials may be included in an employee's performance file:

- a. Letter of commendation or appreciation relating to performance which exceeds the service which an employee is normally expected to perform or which brings out specific aspects of distinctly creditable performance; and,
- b. commendation letters from members of Congress or high level executive officials which will assist in the comparative evaluation of the employee's performance.
- c. Materials that would be more appropriately covered in an Officer Evaluation Report (OER) such as routine commendation or thank-you letters should be held until the next OER is prepared and then quoted in whole or in part in the OER by the rating officer to illustrate pertinent aspects of the Rated Officer's performance.

906.3 Employee's Acknowledgment of Material

- a. Regardless of the source of the material submitted, no letter, memorandum or certificate will be included in an employee's Performance

File without the knowledge of the employee concerned. Before the material is filed, the employee must acknowledge receipt of a copy, and have the opportunity to comment. In some circumstances, awards materials, OER, and disciplinary documents may be placed in the file without the employee's written acknowledgment. Employees should sign all materials that they forward for inclusion in their Performance Files. If forwarded by another individual, Personnel will send the document to the employee for the employee to sign the document.

b. Notarized Materials - Suitably notarized materials should be returned by officers to Personnel for incorporation into their Official Personnel Folders.

c. Submission of Materials - An employee should submit materials, after employee has signed or initialed them, for incorporation into the employee's Official Personnel Folder. If such material does not meet the criteria described above, the material will be returned to the employee with a letter of explanation from Personnel.

907 DISPOSITION OF OFFICIAL PERSONNEL FOLDERS

Upon separation, termination, retirement, or death of an employee, the administrative portion of the Official Personnel Folder (OPF) will be sent to the National Personnel Records Center, GSA Civilian Personnel, St. Louis, Missouri. If the employee is transferring to another Government agency, the administrative file will be forwarded to that agency. The Performance File will be kept in the file room for one year, and if the employee does not return to Broadcasting, the file will be forwarded to the Federal Records Center in Suitland, Maryland.

908 PERSONNEL RECORDS MAINTAINED BY OVERSEAS POSTS

908.1 Requirements - Broadcasting requires each of its overseas establishments to maintain an administrative personnel folder for each American employee assigned to the establishment. The official personnel records of all American employees except as noted below in 908.2 are maintained in the Washington Offices of Broadcasting and constitute the legal records of their employment. The personnel records maintained at the overseas establishment are for administrative convenience in facilitating field personnel administration.

908.2 Personnel Records for Non-Career American Citizens Employed Under the Resident Secretary, PIT, or FSN/AFM Program - Upon appointment, the Personnel Office establishes an OPF or, in the case of an employee who has had prior service, shall request the OPF from Personnel or from the appropriate personnel records office in the case of previous appointments with other agencies. The OPF is maintained at post until the employee's permanent departure from post. At that time, the post will send the OPF to Personnel where it will be held for one year. If the employee receives another appointment within one year's time, the OPF will be transferred to the post of the new appointment. Otherwise, the OPF is transferred to the National Personnel Records Center in St. Louis after one year has elapsed. All requests for previously established OPF's should be made directly to the Office of Personnel.

908.3 Responsibilities - Under the administrative support arrangement with the Department of State, administrative staffs of the Department maintain the personnel records for Broadcasting.

908.4 Content

a. Records Maintained on Right Side of Post Personnel Folder - The right side of the post personnel folder for American employees will contain copies of documents which relate to the employee's service record, or which constitute a record of a formal action. The right side of the folder will contain such documents as:

- (1) Copies of applications for employment, if available.
- (2) Post copies of Form SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action.
- (3) Any notices relating to security clearances.
- (4) Cryptographic clearance, if any.
- (5) Correspondence relating to medical reports or examinations.
- (6) Employee's accounts or certification of accounts, if applicable.
- (7) Employee's social security number.
- (8) Bond information, if applicable.
- (9) Copies of travel orders, including travel messages.
- (10) Records of security violations, and related correspondence.

b. Records Maintained on Left Side of Post Personnel Folder - The left side of the post personnel folder will contain copies of other documents which have only transitory value and which are not a significant part of the employee's service record, such as:

- (1) Copies of correspondence or forms requesting action which, when completed, are documented and recorded through filing of copies of documents of approval or disapproval on the right side of the folder.
- (2) Any correspondence pertaining to the employee that has temporary administrative usefulness, such as applications for passes, licenses, Foreign Office recognition of assignment, etc.
- (3) Copies of official letters of commendation or reprimand.

c. Official Records Maintained by Broadcasting - Except as noted in 908.2, official copies of personnel document relating to an employee's record of employment with the Government are not to be included in the post personnel folder of an American employee. Such documents are to be forwarded to the Office of Personnel for inclusion in the Official Personnel Folder.

d. Officer Evaluation Reports will not be kept in the overseas establishment personnel folder, but will be maintained and kept by the Rating Officer. A copy of the current OER prepared on employees assigned to the office may be kept only by the employee's supervisor (the rating officer) to allow the rating officer a convenient method of comparing current performance with the officer's prior rating. When a new OER is completed, the previous report will be destroyed. If either rated or rating officer is reassigned or separated, the OER will be destroyed immediately. Performance files kept by supervisors will be kept under appropriate safeguards and access is restricted to the rating and rated officers. These procedures do not apply to the categories of employees covered in paragraph 908.2.

908.5 Access to Personnel Folders - personnel records are subject to the same restrictions as described in paragraph 903.

908.6 Disposition of Folders - The personnel folder will be retained for three years after the departure of an officer from that post. After three years, the post folder will be destroyed.

909 PERSONNEL REPORTS

909.1 Required From Overseas Establishments

a. Monthly Report on Foreign National Employment Non (U.S.) Citizens - (Form FS-468). Under administrative support agreements with the Department of State, monthly reports on foreign national employment are prepared and cabled by the close of the third workday of each month by the administrative staff of the Embassy to the Office of Personnel in accordance with instructions contained 3 FAM 928.1a. The reports should also include the number of U.S. citizens (American family members) employed under FSN appointments, and as Temporary appointments for PIT positions. (Include the number of hours if part-time, and days worked each month if intermittent).

909.2 Prepared in Washington - The U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM) require Broadcasting to submit the following reports concerning federal civilian employment and payrolls for the use of the President, the Congress, OPM, other federal agencies, and the public. Personnel is responsible for compiling and preparing these reports in accordance with instructions issued by OPM. The following is a partial listing of the types of reports submitted:

a. Monthly Report of Federal Civilian Employment includes the total number of civilian officers and employees who are paid salaries, wages or fees for personal services. The report includes distribution of employment by geographic location and by types of employment and also includes totals of each type of accession and separation.

b. Annual Report on Incentive Awards Program submits data on the operation of the Incentive Award Program. The report is prepared by the Executive Secretary of the Incentive Awards Committee.

c. Annual Report on Geographic Distribution of Employment is submitted no later than February 20 every two years and shows the number of employees working in specified geographic locations as of December 31.

- 102.12 Paper Reduction Act, 1995
- 102.13 Federal Managers' Financial Integrity Act of 1982 (FMFIA),
- 102.14 Chief Financial Officers Act of 1990 (CFO Act)
- 102.15 Government Performance and Results Act of 1993 (GPRA)
- 102.16 Government Management Reform Act of 1994 (GMRA)
- 102.17 Federal Financial Management Improvement Act of 1996 (FFMIA)
- 102.18 Reports Consolidation Act of 2000

103 RESPONSIBILITIES

103.1 Overall Responsibilities

a Primary Responsibilities – The CFO has two primary sets of responsibilities:

(1) to coordinate the development of resource requirements to enable the BBG to present integrated resource submissions to the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and to the Congress; to assist Office heads in developing policies, plans, and programs to achieve policy goals; to support BBG's strategic and performance planning; and to oversee the management of the funds and ensure that the distribution of the funds enable the BBG's operations to achieve its policy objectives.

(2) to report directly to the Executive Director and the Board regarding financial and budgetary management matters; to oversee all financial and budgetary management activities relating to the BBG programs and operations; to develop and maintain an integrated agency accounting and financial management system; to direct and manage BBG's financial management, budget, and strategic management personnel, activities, and operations; and to monitor the financial execution of the budget in relation to actual expenditures.

b Delegated Responsibilities – To carry out these responsibilities the following functions have been delegated:

(1) to the Budget Director

- Budget presentation, ascertaining the availability of funds, obtaining apportionment, and issuing allotments to program offices.
- Issuing and implementing policies, regulations, and procedures to provide for the effective and efficient administrative control of funds available to the BBG.
- Responsible for investigating, reporting, and following up on Anti-deficiency Act violations. Primary responsibility for investigating a possible violation is delegated to the Director, Office of Budget with the Director, Office of Financial Operations providing support and assistance. Responsibility for reporting and follow up of violations has been delegated to the Director, Office of Financial Operations.

(2) to the Director of Financial Operations

- Establishing and maintaining a financial management system that supports the fund control system. The financial management system will provide a system of accounts and records necessary to assure that obligations and disbursement do not exceed: amounts appropriated, apportioned, allotted, or otherwise limited by internal classification or limitations; the balances in trust funds; and reimbursements earned. The system shall provide managers of funds timely status of funds information in order that they may prevent the obligation of funds in excess of allotments.
- Maintaining an electronic travel system in accordance with the Federal Travel Regulations.
- Ensuring the accurate processing and recording of employee salaries and benefits.
- Preparing and submitting financial statements in accordance with rules and regulations promulgated by the Department of Treasury, Office of Management and Budget, Federal Accounting Standards Advisory Board, and any other entity with authority for federal financial reporting.
- Managing an effective means of disbursing payments to vendors and other federal agencies providing services to the BBG.

(3) to the Director of Strategic Management

- Implementation of the BBG's strategic and performance planning processes
- Establishing and maintaining the agency's strategic management system.

103.2 Policy Responsibilities – The CFO's policy responsibilities are to:

a Establish effective financial management policies and management controls, including integrating budget execution and accounting functions, and leveraging the use of electronic technologies (e-government);

b Support the BBG's strategic and performance planning activities in coordination with the Executive Director and the Board;

c Direct the development of strategic planning and budget formulation processes linked to resource management;

d Assist office heads in developing policies, plans, and programs to achieve policy goals;

e Direct, manage, and provide policy guidance and oversight of BBG financial, budget, and strategic management personnel, activities, and operations including:

(1) Developing annual financial plans;

(2) Formulating budget estimates for future year operations

(3) Directing and guiding recruitment, selection and training of personnel to carry out agency financial, budget, and strategic management; and

(4) Managing agency financial management systems design or enhancement projects.

f Mandate BBG-wide data and reporting format requirements for financial management systems;

g Ensure that BBG is in compliance with the requirements of applicable federal regulations, Executive Orders, and OMB circulars; and h Review all major legislative and other programmatic proposals and provide advice to the Executive Director and the Board.

103.3 Program Responsibilities – The CFO's program responsibilities are to:

- a Ensure the establishment of effective general and financial management practices;
- b Project, request, and allocate the appropriated and reimbursed resources necessary for BBG to achieve its objectives;
- c Direct the planning, development, and conduct of BBG's budget process, the preparation of budget requests for consideration by OMB and the Congress, and issuance of the financial allotments that to the various offices of BBG;
- d Make resource allocation recommendations and determinations and monitor resource utilization to assure consistency with Presidential priorities and legislative mandates;
- e Propose and review legislative strategies for acquiring and maintaining an appropriate level of resources for BBG;
- f Prepare witnesses at OMB and Congressional hearings on BBG's budget and financial management matters;
- g Direct the planning, development, and conduct of BBG's strategic management process, including the preparation of strategic plans, performance plans, and performance measures to ensure compliance with the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA) of 1993;
- h Monitor the financial execution of BBG's budget submission and prepare and submit quarterly reports to the Executive Director and the Board;
- i Prepare and transmit annually a Performance and Accountability Report (PAR) to the Director of the OMB;
- j Manage directly and/or monitor, evaluate, and approve the design, budget development, implementation, operation, and enhancement of BBG's accounting and financial management systems;
- k Ensure that program information systems provide financial and programmatic data on a reliable, consistent, and timely basis to BBG's financial management systems;
- l Ensure adequate systems to produce useful, reliable, and timely financial and related programmatic information;
- m Evaluate the installation and operation of accounting and financial management systems and other information systems that provide financial, budget, and/or program performance data;
- n Develop financial and programmatic performance indicators for inclusion in budget and financial systems and financial reports and statements; and
- o Clear the design of other information systems that provide financial and/or program performance data used in financial statements to ensure CFO needs are met.

104 ORGANIZATION – The Office of the CFO consists the CFO, supported by three Offices responsible for Budget, Financial Operations, and Strategic Management as shown in the organization chart below:

104.1 Office of Budget – The Office of Budget is responsible for preparing, monitoring, and executing the BBG budget and appropriations received. The Office of Budget also allocates funds to the offices and maintains fund control over these allotments. It coordinates with the Office of Strategic Management to develop and monitor the BBG's performance budget.

104.2 Office of Financial Operations – The Office of Financial Operations is responsible for financial operations within BBG. Financial Operations entails oversight of payments, payroll, accounts receivable, and the core financial system, maintenance of the General Ledger, and liaison with servicing agencies. Financial Operations also manages the electronic travel system and Travel Service Center and facilitates the annual audit of the agency's financial statements.

104.3 Office of Strategic Management – The Office of Strategic Management is responsible for assisting BBG offices in developing performance plans in support of the BBG's Strategic Plan, identifying performance measurements, and collecting performance data. It also works with the Office of Budget to collect the information needed to prepare the performance budget.

105 PERFORMANCE AND ACCOUNTABILITY REPORT

105.1 Requirement – The Accountability of Tax Dollars Act of 2002 requires BBG to prepare audited financial statements. The CFO is responsible for preparing the financial section of the annual Performance and Accountability Report (PAR) and coordinates with BBG elements to prepare the Program Performance section. The CFO has overall responsibility for the preparation and submission of the PAR.

105.2 Reference – OMB Circular 136 establishes a central point of reference for all Federal financial reporting guidance for Executive Branch departments, agencies, and entities required to submit audited financial statements, interim financial statements, and Performance and Accountability Reports (PARs) under the Chief Financial Officers (CFO) Act of 1990 and the Accountability of Tax Dollars Act (ATDA) of 2002. Section 4 of the Circular provides Federal Financial Reporting policy and references the relevant bulletins and memoranda for the specific guidance; Section 5 provides contact information for inquiries.

105.3 Combined Reporting – Under the Reports Consolidation Act of 2000 (P.L. 106-531), agencies are permitted to submit combined reports in implementing statutory requirements for financial and performance management reporting to improve the efficiency of Executive Branch performance. These reports are combined in the PAR, which consists of the Annual Performance Report required by the Government Performance and Results Act with annual financial statements and other reports, such as agencies' assurances on internal controls, accountability reports by agency heads, and the Inspector General's assessments of the agency's most serious management and performance challenges. PARs provide financial and performance information that enables the President, the Congress, and the public to assess the performance of an agency relative to its mission and to demonstrate accountability.

105.4 Submission – BBG is required to submit its PAR to OMB and the Congress no later than 45 days after the end of the fiscal year, i.e., November 15. Unaudited interim financial statements must be provided to OMB 21 days after the end of each quarter of the fiscal year.

106 INTERACTION WITH SERVICE PROVIDERS – BBG may use other Federal Agencies to provide financial management services on a reimbursable basis, e.g., accounting system and payroll services. In these cases, the CFO defines the requirements to be met and negotiates an interagency agreement with the service provider. The CFO then monitors the delivery of the services and provides on-going guidance throughout the term of the agreement.

TITLE 6

PART 300 – STRATEGIC MANAGEMENT

SECTIONS

301	Scope
302	Authorities
302.1	Government Performance and Results Act of 1993
302.2	Other References
303	Definitions and Model
304	Responsibilities
305	Key External Reporting Dates

301 SCOPE – The purpose of this part of the BAM is to present the strategic management function and processes within the CFO's office. The Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA) of 1993, Office of Management and Budget (OMB) directives (OMB Circular A-11), OMB performance assessments, and internal processes essential to budget and performance integration require the measurement of BBG's achievement of its performance goals and the cost of achieving these goals.

302 AUTHORITIES

302.1 Government Performance and Results Act of 1993

a Purpose – Congress passed the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA) to improve the federal programs' definition of program goals and information on program performance. Congress determined that U.S. policymaking, spending decisions, and program oversight were handicapped by the lack of attention to program performance and results. Congress also determined that waste and inefficiency in Federal programs undermined the federal government's ability to address public needs.

b Requirements – The GPRA requires each agency to develop a:

- (1) Strategic plan that covers a 5 year period and is to be updated every 3 years,
- (2) Annual performance plan (APP) that establishes performance goals for each program activity that are objective, quantifiable, and measurable for each fiscal year. The APP must establish performance indicators to be used in measuring or assessing the achievement of program goals and provide a basis for comparing actual program results to the established program goals. OMB Circular A-11, Section 200 requires that a performance budget be submitted in lieu of the APP. The performance budget includes all statutorily required information in the APP.
- (3) Annual program performance report (APPR) provides the status of the agency's achievement of the program goals using the performance indicators. OMB Circular A-11, Section 230, requires the combining of the APPR with the financial statement and accountability report.

c Access – The GPRA of 1993 can be accessed on the Internet at http://frwebgate.access.gpo.gov/cgi-bin/getdoc.cgi?dbname=103\_cong\_bills&docid=f:s20enr.txt.pdf

303 DEFINITIONS AND MODEL

303.1 Definitions from the GPRA and OMB Circular A-11 are listed to aid in the understanding of the many requirements of strategic and performance management. The order of definitions is placed in a logical sequence versus an alphabetical sequence.

a Strategic Plan – contains the agency mission statement, one or more strategic goals; a description of the means and strategies to achieve the goals; a description of the relationship between the annual program performance goals to the agency's strategic goal framework; identification of key factors affecting achievement of the strategic goal; and a description of program evaluations used to prepare the strategic plan and schedule of future evaluations.

b Mission Statement – a mission statement is brief, defines the basic purpose of the agency, and corresponds directly with the agency's core programs and activities. An agency's program goals should flow from the mission statement.

c Strategic goal – a statement of aim or purpose included in a strategic plan that defines how an agency will carry out a major segment of its mission over a period of time. The goal is expressed in a manner that allows a future assessment to be made of whether the goal was or is being achieved.

d Performance budget – required by OMB Circular A-11, Section 220. The performance budget replaces the annual performance plan (APP) required in the GPRA and must meet the statutory requirements of the APP. The performance budget clearly links performance goals with costs for achieving a target level of performance by including the following components:

- performance goals to define the level of performance to be achieved by a program activity;
- expresses such goals in an objective, quantifiable, and measurable way;
- briefly describes the operational processes, skills and technology, human capital, information, or other resources required to meet the performance goals.

e Performance goal – a target level of performance within a specified time or period expressed as a tangible, measurable outcome, against which actual achievement can be compared, including a goal expressed as a quantitative standard, value, or rate. A performance goal is comprised of a performance measure with targets and timeframes.

f Performance measure – indicators, statistics, or metrics used to gauge program performance. Typically, program performance measures include outcome, output, and efficiency measures. Collectively, these measures convey a comprehensive story regarding what products and services agencies provide, how well they do so, and with what result.

g Program activity – a specific activity or projects listed in the program and financial schedules of the annual budget.

h Program evaluation – an assessment through objective measurement and systematic analysis of the manner and extent to which Federal programs achieve intended objectives.

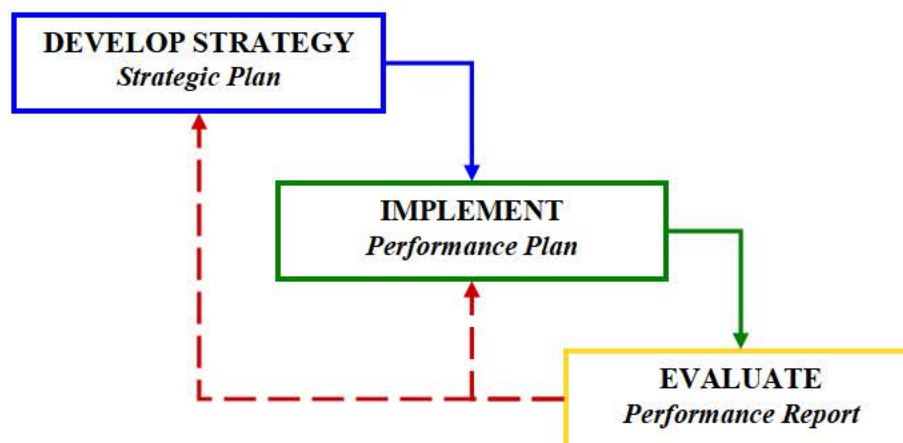

i Target – a quantity or otherwise measurable characteristic that conveys how well and by when a program must accomplish a performance measure.

j Outcome – the intended result, effect, or consequence that will occur from carrying out a program or activity. With respect to programs, an outcome is an event or condition that is external to the program or activity and is of direct importance to the intended beneficiaries and/or public.

k Output – the level of activity or effort that will be provided over a period of time or by a specific date, including a description of the characteristics (e.g., timeliness) establish as standards for the activity. With respect to programs, outputs refer to the internal activities of a program (i.e., the products and services delivered). Outputs should support or lead to outcomes, just as annual goals should link logically to long-term goals.

l Efficiency measure – a description of the level of program executed or activities implemented for a given input. Efficiency is measured to achieve results while avoiding wasted resources, time, or money. Efficiency can be defined simply as the ratio of the outcome or output to the input of any program.

303.2 STRATEGIC MANAGEMENT MODEL – The implementation of the GPRA is based on a cycle of phases that are interdependent and evolving. Once the Strategic Plan is developed, implementation of the Performance Plan occurs and upon completion of the Performance Report, feedback goes to both the Strategic Planning process and the Performance Planning Process in terms of goals met or not met and the need to stay on course or reassess the goals, as shown in the following diagram.

a Develop Strategy – Strategic Plan

- Mission Statement – defines the purpose of the agency.
- Implementation Strategies – define how the agency will meet its mission with a long-term vision and strategic direction.
- Performance Objectives – are operational objectives that will be monitored for progress in reaching the strategic goals.

b Implement – Performance Plan

- Performance Budget – provides an annual plan identifying performance goals for each performance objective and the resources to be used to achieve these goals.

c Evaluate – Performance Report

- Program Reviews – performed annually by Office of Performance Review to evaluate the effectiveness and efficiency of IBB broadcasting.

- Language Service Reviews – annual review performed as required by Congress to determine if the BBG programs are reaching the correct audiences.
- OMB performance assessments
- Performance and Accountability Report – annual report of the status of BBG's efforts to meet of its goals using the performance indicators in the performance budget and the resources expended to achieve these results by activity/program.
- Survey results, such as the OPM's Federal Human Capital Survey, Capital Planning process, BBG administered project and program assessments, and other measurement tools.

304 RESPONSIBILITIES – Within the BBG, responsibility for implementing and carrying out GPRA requirements is divided between the Broadcasting Board of Governors, the Office of the Chief Financial Officer (CFO), and the program offices.

304.1 Strategic Plan Development – The Office of Strategic Planning and Performance Management develops the Strategic Plan under the direction of the Broadcasting Board of Governors. The CFO's Strategic Management Office (SMO) works with that office to implement the Plan. The SMO also works with individual offices and activities within the BBG to develop a strategic plan with performance goals and targets for each organizational unit that supports the BBG's Strategic Plan and goals.

304.2 Development of Performance Budget – The SMO works with the Office of Budget and the individual program offices and activities to prepare the performance budget. SMO provides guidance and assists the program offices and activities to identify their performance indicators in support of the agency's goals and the resources assigned to these efforts. This information is submitted to the CFO to prepare the BBG budget submission.

304.3 Preparation of Annual Performance Report – The SMO coordinates with each of the BBG program offices and activities to develop the annual performance report. Information on the achievement of performance goals, measurements by the indicators in the plan, and resources used to achieve the results are provided by the individual components. This data is compiled into the annual BBG performance report that is presented as part of the Performance and Accountability Report prepared by the CFO.

304.4 Technical Assistance and Training – The SMO is responsible for providing assistance to BBG offices and activities on the GPRA, PAR, and other strategic management requirements. It issues information and provides assistance to BBG offices and activities to implement these strategic management initiatives. It works with the offices and activities to meet the requirements of the GPRA and the BBG's Strategic Planning process. The SMO also performs reviews and special projects related to long-term planning or performance to improve on the BBG's Strategic Planning.

401 Scope

This instruction describes the objectives and responsibilities of the Office of the Chief Financial Officer (CFO) to:

- a. Maintain effective financial management programs and systems
- b. Conduct a continuous program to improve financial operations and systems and to identify more efficient methods of operations regarding budgeting, accounting, financial reporting, and auditing
- c. Respond to management needs at the various levels of the Agency

d. Be responsive to the financial reporting and other requirements of both the Executive and the Legislative branches

402 Authorities

402.1 The United States Information and Education Exchange Act of 1948, as amended (22 U.S.C. 1431, et seq.), the U.S. International Broadcasting Act of 1994, as amended (22 U.S.C. 6201, et seq.) and the Foreign Affairs Consolidation Act of 1998 (Public Law 105-277), establishes the Broadcasting Board of Governors as an arm of the Executive Branch, providing for its organization, functions, and administrative authority;

402.2 The Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (generally 40 U.S.C. Title 1, and 41 U.S.C. 251) requires agencies to maintain adequate inventory control, accountability, and management systems for property under their control;

402.3 Budget and Accounting Procedures Act of 1950, as amended (31 U.S.C. 3512), establishes the congressional policy on the purposes and need for an adequate accounting system and financial reporting. This Act sets forth the responsibilities of each Executive Agency, the Comptroller General, the Office of Management and Budget, and the Treasury Department for the implementation of these policies;

402.4 31 U.S.C. 1501 sets forth the criteria that govern the recording, documentation and reporting of financial transactions as obligations;

402.5 The Federal Managers Financial Integrity Act of 1982 (P.L. 97-255), as codified in 31 U.S.C. 3512(b) and (c) require that internal accounting and administrative controls of each Executive Agency shall be established in accordance with standards prescribed by the Comptroller General, and shall provide reasonable assurances that:

- a. obligations and costs are in compliance with applicable law;
- b. funds, property, and assets are safeguarded against waste, loss, unauthorized use, or misappropriation; and,
- c. revenue and expenditures applicable to agency operations are properly recorded and accounted for to permit the preparation of accurate and reliable financial and statistical reports and to maintain accountability over the assets.

402.6 Prompt Payment Act of 1982, as amended (31 U.S.C. Secs. 3901 et seq.) requires Executive departments and agencies to make payments on time (no sooner than 30 days after receipt), to pay interest penalties when payments are late, and to take discounts only when payments are made on or before the discount date. These laws provide for timely payment, better relationships with contractors, improved competition for Government business, and reduced costs to the Government for property and services;

402.7 The Anti-Deficiency Act (31 U.S.C. 1341, 1514 and 1517), provides that obligations and/or expenditures not exceed amounts appropriated or apportioned, or amounts allotted for administrative control;

402.8 Chief Financial Officers Act of 1990, Public Law 101-576 (31 U.S.C. 901-903), established Chief Financial Officers (CFOs) with broad authorities over financial management for Executive Departments and Agencies. It requires the preparation and audit of financial statements for revolving funds, trust funds and commercial activities administered by government agencies. CFOs must submit annual reports on the status of financial management within their organizations as well as a five-year financial management plan to improve financial policies, personnel and systems;

402.9 Cash Management Improvement Act of 1990, as amended (31 U.S.C. 3335 and 31 U.S.C. 6501 and 6503) governs the timely disbursement of Federal funds. Each agency's payments to other agencies are subject to interest if not paid within prompt payment deadlines;

402.10 Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, Public Law 101-508 (2 U.S.C. 661) established requirements to measure more accurately the costs of Federal credit programs;

402.11 Debt Collection Procedures Act of 1990, Public Law 101-647 (28 U.S.C. 3001-3015, 3101-3105) provided the Department of Justice with enhanced debt litigation capability, including standard Federal civil procedures for recovering judgments on debt and obtaining pro-judgment remedies;

402.12 31 U.S.C. 1552, 1553, 1555 and 1557 set rules for determining the availability of appropriation and fund balances and established the procedures for closing appropriation and fund accounts. These sections limit expenditures from appropriation accounts to five years from the date of the original appropriation;

402.13 The Government Performance and Results Act of 1993, Public Law 103-62 (5 U.S.C. 306) requires agencies to develop 5-year strategic plans that describe the mission, goals, and objectives of the agency as well as the strategies for accomplishing the plan. Pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 1115 and 1116, agencies are required to submit an annual performance plan and an annual performance report, respectively;

402.14 The Government Management Reform Act of 1994 streamlines management controls in agencies' reporting to Congress through OMB;

402.15 The Federal Financial Management Act of 1994, at section 405 (31 U.S.C. 3515) requires agencies covered by the CFO Act to prepare annual, agency wide financial statements. In addition, this Act, at section 402 (31 U.S.C. 3332) requires Federal payments to be made electronically;

402.16 The Federal Financial Management Improvement Act of 1996, Public Law 104-208, Secs. 801-808 (31 U.S.C. 3512 note) requires U.S. Government agencies to use the Standard General Ledger, prepare financial statements in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, and to ensure financial management systems meet specified standards;

402.17 The Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996, Public Law 104-134 (31 U.S.C. Secs. 3701, 3711, 3716, and 3720A) authorizes and requires actions to maximize collections of delinquent debts, minimize costs of collection, reduce losses, and inform the public of these procedures;

402.18 The Reports Consolidation Act of 2000, Public Law 106-531, at section 3(a) (31 U.S.C. 3516) authorizes the consolidation of financial and performance management reports into a single report. This action will provide financial and performance management information in a more meaningful and useful format for the President, Congress, and the public; and 402.19 The Improper Payments Information Act of 2002, Public Law 107-300, requires Federal agencies to provide for estimates of improper payments and report on actions to reduce them.

403 Implementation and Responsibility for Financial Management

Implementation procedures of the Agency's financial management policy, including the application of its accounting principles and standards are published in Title 7. As needed, supplemental instructions may be issued to meet special circumstances or to address processes associated with specific automated systems.

404 Basic Financial Management Objectives

404.1 Internal management should employ an integrated financial management system, including an accounting system that provides useful financial data to effectively, efficiently, and economically fulfill the requirements below.

404.2 Internal management requirements for financial information regarding the day-to-day operations and for planning, programming, budgeting, performance evaluation, and reporting.

404.3 External requirements prescribed by:

- a. legislation;
- b. the Office of Management and Budget;
- c. Department of the Treasury; and,
- d. other control agencies.

404.4 The Agency's financial management program provides for:

- a. Alignment of the Agency's organization and staff facilities to provide for the most effective conduct of the Agency's financial management;
- b. An effective accrual basis accounting system;
- c. A fully integrated financial system to record, track, and reconcile all balance sheet accounts;
- d. Cost-based budgeting practices effectively integrated with the accounts to provide adequate support, as required, for budget requests;
- e. Simplification of appropriation and allotment structures and development of the most effective methods of control of appropriations, funds, obligations, expenditures, and costs;
- f. Consistency of classifications used for planning, programming, budgeting, accounting reporting, and synchronization with the Agency's organization structure;
- g. Effective internal management control, including internal auditing;
- h. Integration of accounting and reporting with the requirements of the budget process and the central accounting and reporting to the Department of the Treasury;
- i. Development of accurate and useful Agency reports on fiscal status, financial results of operations, and cost of performance of assigned functions for internal and external use; and,
- j. Education of personnel in effective maintenance and maximum utilization of these management tools to effect economy in Agency operations.

Broadcasting Board of Governors International Broadcasting Bureau

Effective Date: 6/29/12

Series: Broadcasting Administrative Manual

Part 600: Grants and Other Financial Assistance

Section 610: Partnership Policy

Originating Office: IBB Administrative and Secretariat Operations

PURPOSE: This chapter includes the Broadcasting Board of Governors policy, guidelines, and procedures for the development, use, and continuing assessment of partnerships to carry out the BBG's mission.

SCOPE: The policy and guidelines in this chapter apply to all of the BBG's Federal Government entities, the IBB, VOA and OCB and their activities. This partnership policy does not apply to interactions with RFE/RL, RFA, or MBN, as the relationship with these parties is shaped by their grant agreements.

DEFINITIONS: The following are definitions of terms as they are used in this chapter.

- A. Partner refers to individuals, organizations, and other entities interacting in a relationship with the BBG to achieve a common goal in support of the Agency's mission. Contractors and grantees are not partners unless a partnership agreement separate from the grant or procurement contract is in place.
- B. A partnership is a voluntary and mutually beneficial collaborative working relationship between the BBG and one or more non-BBG partners formed to achieve or to assist in moving toward a common goal. Partners can provide resources (e.g. funds, time, knowledge, equipment) that assist the BBG in accomplishing its objectives. Likewise, BBG, within the confines of applicable law, may provide resources to a partnership. Partnerships are governed by well-defined written agreements, but do not include grants or contracts and will not be used in place of a contract or a grant. Partnerships with Federal agencies shall be accomplished through the use of an inter-agency agreement.

APPLICABLE LAWS AND REGULATIONS

- A. Gift Acceptance Authority (22 U.S.C. §2697)
- B. Acceptance of Travel Benefits from Non-Federal Entities for Official Travel (31 U.S.C. § 1353)
- C. "Other Transactions" Authority (22 U.S.C. § 1437)

D. Grant Making Authority (22 U.S.C. § 1472)

E. Advertising and Other Receipt Authority

F. Authorities Facilitating International Partnerships

POLICY: It is the policy of the BBG to use partnerships, when appropriate, to enhance the ability of the BBG to carry out its mission and achieve its objectives. Any such partnership shall be consistent with the integrity, impartiality, and credibility of the Agency and its programs and activities and shall be conducted in full compliance with applicable laws and other authorities, including ethics statutes and regulations. All such partnerships involving Federal funds or resources shall ensure that editorial control of resulting programming is exercised by the BBG Federal entity involved, e.g., VOA or OCB. Partnerships will not be used to circumvent the procurement or grant process. Partnerships may only be negotiated by Agency employees. All partnerships must be approved by the IBB Director or, in his or her absence, the IBB Deputy Director.

Objectives of Partnerships: While observing all laws and federal requirements, BBG's partnerships shall satisfy at least one of the following without simultaneously substantially negatively impacting any of the following objectives:

- A. Enhance the Agency's capacity to complete and provide mission-related projects, products, and services.
- B. Provide added resources to the extent permitted by Federal law and regulation, e.g. funds, time, knowledge, equipment, or services to achieve mission-related objectives.
- C. Increase BBG's mission-related effectiveness.
- D. Improve technology available to the BBG.
- E. Enhance BBG's credibility and reputation.
- F. Contribute to a public purpose within the Agency's mission.

Many of the objectives that can be accomplished through a partnership with outside individuals and organizations are essentially the same as those for procurement contracts or grants. Therefore, it is essential that the appropriate vehicle be used, whether it is a partnership, grant or procurement contract. Employees in doubt as to what instrument to use shall seek guidance from the Office of Contracts before proceeding.

Partnership Instruments: The BBG has the following instruments for entering into a partnership agreement. They involve a mutual exchange of ideas, information, and services. Some partnerships may involve funding and in-kind donations; others will solely be based upon shared interests. These distinctions help determine the appropriate instrument to use.

- A. Memoranda of Understanding
- B. Memoranda of Agreement
- C. Co-Sponsorship of an Event

Related Instruments: While not partnership agreements, the following instruments are tools that the Agency may use in the context of a partnership relationship. This list is not exhaustive.

- A. No Cost Contract
- B. License Agreement
- C. Affiliation Agreement
- D. Interagency Agreement
- E. Gift (Unconditional or Conditional)

Unsolicited and Solicited Partnerships: Unsolicited & solicited partnership proposals from non-profit and profit entities may be submitted continuously for partnerships with the BBG, and will be reviewed using the same criteria and process. Potential partners must include in their proposals how their partnering will interact with the BBG's mission. The partner(s) must be substantially involved in the project. The review committee will submit a recommendation to the IBB Director as to whether BBG should enter a partnership. The IBB Director, or in his/her absence the IBB Deputy Director, will make the final decision whether or not to enter into a partnership.

Who can be partners with the Broadcasting Board of Governors

Almost any individual, organization, entity, or state, local, or federal government agency can be a partner with the BBG, and its elements — VOA and OCB. When contemplating a partnership with a particular entity, the agency activity interested in entering into a partnership must identify legal authority both to support the proposed partnership activity and to determine whether there are any limitations on the agency activity's ability to enter into the partnership with that potential partner. Such limitations include whether the terms of a potential partnership, or entering a partnership with a particular partner, would violate ethics laws and regulations or create an improper appearance for the Agency. An improper appearance arises when a reasonable person could believe that a partnership demonstrates favoritism, Government endorsement of an individual or organization, or any other violation of ethics laws and regulations, regardless of whether there was an actual violation. Determining the agency's legal authority to enter a partnership and the ethical implications of entering partnerships with particular partners must be done on a case-by-case basis. The Agency's Office of General Counsel can help with this process.

Agency activities shall also check proposed partners against the Excluded Parties List System (EPLS) (<https://www.epls.gov/>). The EPLS includes information regarding entities debarred, suspended, proposed for debarment, excluded or disqualified under the non-procurement common rule, or otherwise declared ineligible from receiving Federal contracts, certain subcontracts, and certain Federal assistance and benefits.

Agency elements and offices also must fully consider the ethical implications of a proposed partnership. For example, agencies generally may not accept benefits from "prohibited sources." Prohibited sources can include those who: 1) have business relationships with the agency; and 2) are in litigation with the agency. The Agency's Ethics Office can assist offices in identifying prohibited sources and other ethical considerations related that may arise in the context of partnership proposals.

APPROVAL OF PARTNERSHIPS

A. Request Process

1. Partnership Requests must:
  - a. identify the proposed partners;
  - b. describe the partnership instrument to be used;
  - c. address all Standards for Partnership Requests listed in Part C below; and
  - d. describe the expected benefits and potential risks of the partnership.
2. All requests must be reviewed and approved prior to any agreement with organizations, individuals or other entities outside of the BBG. Elements shall consult with the offices affected by the development of these proposals and gain their concurrence prior to submission of the request.
3. Requests that have specific technological requirements must be cleared by the Directors of the Offices of Technology, Services and Innovation (TSI) and the Office of Digital and Design Innovation (ODDI) for consistency with BBG's existing and planned technology. The requestor shall receive written approval by the Directors of TSI and ODDI prior to the submission of the request to the Secretariat.
4. The Office of Security (SEC) must also be consulted by the requestor prior to submitting the request, if there are due diligence issues needing further investigation, e.g., soundness and reputation of a potential partner.
5. Requests must be submitted in writing to the Secretariat. Once completed, the requestor will submit the formal memo to the Secretariat, who will submit the request to the review committee. The Secretariat will ensure that the required documentation is received before submitting the package to the review committee.

B. Approval Process

1. The formal memo must be cleared by all supervisors in the requester's chain of command, including the director of the entity submitting the request (e.g. VOA Director) prior to submission of the request.

2. A review committee comprised of a representative(s) from the Office of Contracts (CON), the Chief Financial Officer (CFO), the Office of General Counsel (GC), the Office of Strategy and Development (to review proposals relative to BBG's strategic plans and objectives) and the Director of the Program Office (PO), will meet as needed to review initial drafts and proposals of partnership agreements, to ensure that the document is in compliance with the Agency's mission. When the final draft of the partnership agreement has been cleared by the review committee, the proposed partnership shall be sent to the IBB Chief of Staff with the review committee's recommendation. The proposed partnership must be approved by the IBB Director. The IBB Director's authority will NOT be delegated to any other office, but may be delegated to the IBB Deputy Director if the IBB Director is not available.

C. Standards for Partnership Requests (Things to Consider)

1. Partnerships must enhance the ability of the BBG to carry out its mission and achieve its objectives.
2. Partnerships must be consistent with the integrity, impartiality, and credibility of the Agency and its programs and activities, strategic plan, and governing principles.
3. Editorial control of any resulting programming must be exercised by the BBG element involved.
4. Partnerships cannot involve favoritism or improper relationships or endorsements.
5. Partnerships must be in the public interest.
6. Partnerships should be beneficial to both partners.
7. The noncommercial character of BBG programming must be protected and preserved.
8. Partnerships must be clean of bias and not give the appearance of bias.
9. The partnership is in the best interest of the Government. Competition should be used as much as possible.
10. There can be no conflict of interest for the BBG and the BBG employees involved.
11. Any use of funds is appropriate.
12. The processes involved must be transparent to the public, competitors, etc.
13. The BBG must have the authority to engage in the partnership.
14. Costs of partnerships in terms of funds, time and resources must be warranted by the benefits.
15. Partnerships must be in full compliance with applicable laws and other authorities, including ethics statutes and regulations.

IMPLEMENTATION

- A. All partnerships will be reviewed at least annually to assess their resulting benefits and whether, in accordance with the criteria for approval listed above, they should be continued, terminated, or modified. These determinations shall be made by the officials of the organization who participated in the initial review committee, or their replacements.

- B. The correct instrument will be used in implementing partnerships, in compliance with applicable laws, statutory authorities, and Agency policies and guidelines. (Consult Title 9 of the BAM for guidance on procurement contracts, grants and cooperative agreements.)

DOCUMENTATION

- A. A written record of all partnerships shall be maintained by the BBG Secretariat. Documentation must include approved requests for partnerships and implementing instruments, and results of annual assessments.

RESPONSIBILITIES

- A. The Director of IBB, or the IBB Deputy Director (if the IBB Director is unavailable), is responsible for:
  - 1. Establishing BBG's policy, guidelines, and procedures for the use of partnerships.
  - 2. Exercising approval authority for all partnerships.
  - 3. Ensuring Agency compliance with this policy.
- B. IBB Chief of Staff is responsible for:
  - 1. Coordinating the review and implementation of partnership proposals, termination of partnership proposals and annual assessments of existing partnerships.
  - 2. Ensuring that employees are appropriately trained to develop and maintain effective partnerships.
  - 3. Notifying Public Affairs of approved partnerships.
- C. Heads of Elements (VOA, OCB, and IBB Offices) are responsible for:
  - 1. The development and use of partnerships to assist the BBG in carrying out its mission and achieving its objectives.
  - 2. Assisting the Chief of Staff to ensure that employees are appropriately trained to develop and maintain effective partnerships.
  - 3. Ensuring appropriate coordination among offices of the development, approval, implementation, and annual assessment of partnerships.
  - 4. Reviewing all partnerships proposed by units within their element prior to forwarding to the proposal to Secretariat.
  - 5. Assessing existing partnerships in accordance with this policy and providing recommendations regarding renewal to the review committee.
- D. The GC, CFO, and the Directors of the Office of Contracts, Technology, Services and Innovation (TSI), Office of Human Resources and The Office of Digital and Design Innovation (ODDI) are responsible for:
  - 1. Supporting the development, review, and implementation of partnerships and annual assessments of existing partnerships.
  - 2. Supporting other appropriate units to ensure employees are appropriately trained to develop and maintain effective partnerships.

TERMINATION

- A. Termination of a partnership may only be approved by the IBB Director, or the IBB Deputy Director if the IBB Director is not available, and must:
1. Include a report submitted with the termination request on the status of the partnership. The report should include justification for termination, and the proposal for the partnership termination.
  2. Be coordinated in consultation with the original review committee.

ETHICAL CONSIDERATIONS

Federal employees interacting closely with non-federal entities must have a firm grasp of Federal ethics laws and regulations, especially if the interaction involves the exchange of money, use of official government resources, or acceptance of gifts or support from non-government sources. Running afoul of ethics rules not only places employees at personal risk of civil and criminal penalties, but may bring unwanted negative publicity and jeopardize the agency's ability to attain its goals and accomplish its mission as well. There are many Federal ethics laws and regulations and their practical application is highly dependent on the unique facts and circumstances of each situation, so it is not possible to replace personalized ethical advice with general outlines or handouts. Nevertheless, there are a few broad topics in the arena of partnerships that all employees must pay close attention to.

Conflicts of Interest: Federal employees are prohibited from taking any action, which can include making recommendations or providing advice, on an official government matter that could affect a person or organization in which the employee has a financial interest. Employees should never be involved in negotiating for or participating in a partnership with a person or organization they have financial or personal connections to.

Acceptance of Gifts: Federal employees are restricted from accepting gifts offered because of their official position or from prohibited sources. Since prohibited sources include any person or organization seeking to do business with the Federal government, employees should be extremely cautious about accepting gifts from potential or current partners.

Appearance of Government Endorsement or Sanction: Federal employees are prohibited from using their official position, title, or authority in any manner that creates the appearance of government endorsement of any non-government organization or individual. This prohibition extends to agencies as well, and employees involved in negotiating or participating in partnerships must be equally vigilant against creating appearances of agency endorsement as they must against personal endorsement.

Improper Use of Government Resources: Government resources are to be used for official purposes only. While the use of government resources in the course of a partnership with a non-federal entity can serve official purposes, employees should exercise sufficient oversight over government resources to ensure they are properly accounted for and not used inappropriately.

These examples are intended to illustrate some of the challenges employees might encounter while negotiating for or participating in partnerships. Because of the complexity of the rules involved, employees are encouraged to contact the agency's Ethics Office in the Office of General Counsel prior to their getting involved in a partnership with a non-federal entity, or whenever they have questions or concerns. The Ethics Office can be reached at 202-203-4550 or ethics@bbg.gov, and more detailed guidance is available on demand on the agency's Ethics website at <http://inside.bbg.gov/offices/ethics/default.aspx>.

PART VII OFFICE OF THE CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER, PAYROLL, TIME & ATTENDANCE & LEAVE ACCOUNTING

SECTION 9 PAYROLL, TIME AND ATTENDANCE, AND LEAVE ACCOUNTING

MOA UPDATE: The policy with the most recent date takes precedence over policies in other sections of the existing and new MOA that have older dates. The Office of Financial Operations is responsible for maintaining this section of the MOA. Provide notice of any errors or changes needed to the CFO.

1. GENERAL POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

1. General

Information common to all topics covered in Section 9, such as scope and applicability, relevant authorities, applicable internal controls, and definitions of commonly used terms is found in Section 9.2.2 through 9.2.5. The general policies and procedures covered in Section 9, Payroll, Time and Attendance, and Leave Accounting, apply to all components of BBG.

2. GENERAL POLICY

- a. It is the policy of BBG to pay employees on a biweekly basis 12 days after the end of the pay period, in accordance with applicable law and regulations and generally accepted accounting procedures.
- b. BBG will issue an Earnings and Leave Statement (ELS) to each employee, domestically or abroad, on a biweekly basis. The employee is responsible for verifying the accuracy and correctness of the ELS and reporting any errors in a timely manner to the timekeeper and/or supervisor.
- c. Salaries and allowances of U.S. citizens paid through the civilian payroll service provider are paid in U.S. dollars while Foreign Service Nationals (FSNs) and American citizens (AMCITs) paid through the FSN Payroll System are paid in the currency of the country in which employed except as otherwise authorized by Section 9.5.6.2.
- d. BBG will use electronic funds transfer to make payroll disbursements to employees.
- e. BBG, in conjunction with the payroll service provider, will report each U.S. citizen's or permanent resident alien's earnings and deductions to the Internal Revenue Service, state tax authorities, and/or Social Security Administration and will issue a W-2 Statement to the individual annually.

1. Scope

1. Description and Purpose

Section 9 contains the regulatory information and procedures applicable to the areas of payroll, tax reporting and Foreign Service Retirement deductions and contributions. It includes information on maintaining daily attendance and leave records, computing, vouchering and paying salaries to U.S. citizen employees, Foreign Service National employees, AMCITS, and tax reporting.

2. Organization and Layout

The organization of Section 9 reflects the various functions that comprise the areas of payroll and tax reporting. Section 9 is organized as follows:

a. Section 9.2, General Policies and Procedures—provides information common to all topics covered in this chapter such as scope and applicability, the authorities, the automated payroll systems used, definitions of common terms, the standard forms used, and the internal controls applicable;

b. Section 9.3, Attendance and Leave—provides information on timekeeping functions including the maintenance of time and attendance, and leave records, and responsibilities associated with such maintenance and reporting requirements of the time and attendance, and leave records;

c. Section 9.4, Pay and Allowances Computation—provides information on the different types of compensation, rules related to the computation of gross pay and allowances, and accounting and reporting of the computed compensations;

d. Section 9.5, Payroll Deductions, Contributions, and Adjustments—provides information on the mandatory and voluntary employee deductions and other adjustments to be computed and withheld from the employee's compensation and the rules related to such withholdings, any salary overpayments made, and waivers of collection of such overpayments; and

e. Section 9.6, Vouching and Payment of Salaries and Allowances—describes the basis of vouchering, personnel to be vouchered, method of vouchering, and the time and method of paying salaries, benefits, and allowances.

f. Section 9.7, Payroll Service Center---describes the key duties the Payroll Service Center, Office of Financial Operations performs as liaison between BBG and the payroll service provider.

g. Section 9.8, Salary Offsets---describes the procedures utilized by the Payroll Service Center implementing BBG regulations for collecting Federal indebtedness from employees.

h. Section 9.9, Waiver of Overpayments---describes the procedures utilized by the agency to process employee requests for waiver of overpayments.

3. Applicability

a. Section 9 is the single, authoritative, and comprehensive source for BBG's guidance and should be referenced on all matters relating to payroll processing, tax reporting, and Foreign Service retirement deductions and contributions. It is intended for use both at posts abroad and domestically by BBG bureaus and offices.

b. Unless otherwise stated, references made to the BBG refer to worldwide operations of the BBG.

2. Definitions

1. Definitions of Documents, Processes, and Actions

- a. Administrative Workweek—The administrative workweek of BBG is the calendar week -Sunday through Saturday - and each day is the 24-hour period from midnight to midnight, the Office of Human Resources approves a different "administrative workweek" or "day" to facilitate work scheduling for employees whose daily duty tours begin before and end after midnight. (See MOA V-A Section 601.2.b and 5CFR610)
- b. Allotment of Pay—An authorization by an employee for a recurring payroll deduction from salary or wages due, in a specified dollar amount, to be paid to a designated person or organization.
- c. Allowance—Allowance refers to money or equivalent value, furnished or made available, in addition to prescribed rates of pay, to cover such items as housing expenses, educational expenses, or travel.
- d. AMCIT—A U.S. citizen who is not a family member of a U.S. Government employee who is hired at post of residence into an FSN position and whose compensation and benefits are prescribed by a local compensation plan and paid through the FSN Payroll System (Foreign Service Act section 311(c) (1)).
- e. Awards—Non-monetary and monetary awards originate from a personnel action and can involve payroll processing. Non-monetary awards, such as Time-Off awards (TOAs), can involve payroll by adding hours of leave to an employee's balance and expire after one year. TOAs cannot be converted to cash and can be granted to an individual or member of a group. Monetary awards, which include group incentive awards, suggestion awards, performance-based cash awards, special act or service awards, and Presidential Rank awards involve payments to the employee, are subject to taxation, and are reported as income for tax reporting purposes. A variation of the special act award is the On-The-Spot (OTS) award, which can be for a gross-up amount. An exception to the rule of awards originating from a personnel action are those for informal recognition awards that may be given to reward performance that otherwise might not merit an award such as cash, time-off, or an honorary award.
- f. Basic pay—As defined in 5 CFR 531.203. The rate of basic pay means the rate of pay fixed by law or administrative action for the position held by a GS employee before any deductions, including a GS rate, a LEO special base rate, a special rate, a locality rate, a retained rate, but exclusive of additional pay of any other kind.
- g. Basic Workweek— See MOA V-A Section 601.2. The basic workweek consists of five consecutive work days appropriate to the needs of each work unit, or as the FSN local compensation plan directs.
- h. Basic Workday - See MOA V-A Section 601.2. BBG's officially established basic workday for full-time employees consists of eight consecutive hours with 45 minutes for lunch.
- i. Beneficiary—Person or persons receiving a benefit or other recurring payment under Federal law, other than a payment of salary or wages.
- j. Bonus—A FSN benefit payment that occurs on a specified date or dates.
- k. Compensation—Wages and remuneration due an employee.
- l. Compensation to persons under FSN local compensation plan—Established under section 408 of the Foreign Service Act consists of a basic salary rate and, in some instances, an adjusted basic rate. The adjusted basic rate is the basic rate adjusted for certain monetized benefits. If there is an adjusted basic rate, it is paid for work during the basic workweek but is not used for computation of premium pay, bonuses, payment to retirement systems, severance pay, etc. The basic rate is applicable for these purposes.

m. Compensatory Time-Off - See MOA Part V-A, Section 242.6 for more details. For irregular overtime work scheduled after the beginning of the administrative workweek, eligible Foreign Service and Civil Service employees whose basic annual pay exceeds the maximum rate for GS-10 (i.e., above the locality pay adjusted salary of GS-10, step 10) shall be granted regular compensatory time off instead of overtime pay.

n. Credit Hours (maxiflex leave) - In the flexible work schedule program implemented at BBG, employees may earn and use "credit hours" under rules established by the agency and negotiated labor agreements. Subsequently, employees may use earned credit hours to shorten the length of another workday or workweek. Employees may earn up to a maximum of 24 credit or maxiflex hours to be carried over from one pay period to another.

o. Country of employment-The country where that employee was appointed, permanently assigned, or employed by the U.S. Government, whether in or outside the United States.

p. Debt - The terms debt or claim refer to an amount of money which has been determined by an appropriate Broadcasting Board of Governors official to be owed to the United States from any person, organization or entity, except another Federal Agency.

q. Deductions/Withholdings-Refer to both the mandatory deductions and voluntary deductions that are made from the gross pay of an employee, such as deductions towards retirement, Thrift Savings Plan, U.S. Social Security programs, U.S. Federal, state, and local income tax, and health and life insurance.

r. Delinquent Debt - A debt is considered delinquent if it has not been paid by the date specified in the Broadcasting Board of Governors' written notification or applicable contractual agreement, unless other satisfactory arrangements have been made by that date, or at any time thereafter the debtor fails to satisfy obligations under a payment agreement with the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

s. Department of State Standardized Regulations (DSSR) - The DSSR are the overriding regulations for allowances and benefits available to all U.S. Government civilians assigned to foreign areas. Foreign Affairs Agencies' (e.g. BBG's) implementing regulations are found in the Department of State Volume 3 Foreign Affairs Manual (FAM) 3200 and Volume 3 Foreign Affairs Handbook (FAH) 3FAH-1 H-3200.

t. Disposable Pay-As defined in 5 CFR 550.1103. Disposable is the part of basic pay of an employee inclusive of all allowances, differentials, or other additional compensation remaining after mandatory deductions (Federal, state, and local income taxes, U.S. Social Security taxes, retirement, basic life insurance, health insurance, salary offset for indebtedness, garnishments and court-ordered bankruptcy payments).

u. Employee-Refers to an individual appointed into the civilian service of a Government agency (including members of the Foreign Service of the United States).

v. FCCS - The FCCS are the Federal Claims Collection Standards issued jointly by the Department of the Treasury and the Department of Justice (31 CFR parts 900-904). These are government-wide regulations governing administrative offsets to collect monies owed the Federal government. They implement the requirements of applicable law (31 U.S.C. 3701-3719 as amended by Pub. L. 97-365, (96 Stat. 1749), aka Debt Collection Act of 1982, Pub. L. 104-134 (Title III, Chapter 10 Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996); and Public Law 104-316, 110 Stat. 3826 (Oct. 19, 1996) General Accounting Office Act of 1996).

w. Foreign Area—Any area (including the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands) situated outside the United States, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the possessions of the United States.

x. Foreign Service National Employee (FSN)—An employee appointed under section 303 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980. An FSN employee is a non-U.S. citizen directly hired by a U.S. Mission, including third-country nationals (TCNs) but excludes official residence staff as well as consular agents, or an AMCIT, unless otherwise indicated.

y. Foreign Service National Payroll System—Payroll systems operated by the Department of State Financial Service Centers (FSCs) to pay Foreign Service National employees, personal services contractors, and AMCITs on behalf of BBG.

z. Gross Pay—Total monetary remuneration due an employee for services before any mandatory or voluntary deductions are effected.

aa. Inscription Data—Information inscribed on bonds relating to the month and day of bond issuance.

ab. Locality rate—As defined in 5 CFR 531.602. A locality rate is considered to be an employee's rate of basic pay for the purpose of computing or applying Retirement deductions/contributions; Life insurance premiums/ benefits ; Premium pay (including the computation of limitations on premium pay); Severance pay; Advances in pay; Post differentials and danger pay; Recruitment, relocation, and retention incentives, supervisory differentials, and extended assignment incentives; Performance-based cash awards (when such awards are computed as a percentage of an employee's rate of basic pay); Lump-sum payments for accumulated and annual leave; Grade and pay retention; Other provisions as specified in other statute or OPM regulations; and Payments or benefits equivalent to those listed here under other legal authority, as determined by the head of the agency or other authorized official responsible for administering such payments or benefits.

ac. Net Pay—The amount of monetary remuneration paid to an employee after all mandatory and voluntary payroll deductions and any allotments of pay.

ad. Outpatient medical emergency assistance—Advance of pay assistance to employees working outside their country of employment who must pay immediately in full for the costs of outpatient treatment.

ae. Overtime—Authorized and performed work of full-time, part-time, and intermittent tours of duty performed by permanent or temporary employees in excess of 40 hours in an administrative workweek or eight hours in a day, whichever is greater (See MOA V-A Section 602). For FSNs, overtime is work performed in addition to the individual's basic workweek.

af. Pay of U.S. citizen personal services contractors—Governed by the terms of the contract. The contract may provide a stated annual rate adjusted for such monetized benefits as health insurance to create an adjusted annual rate to be used for hours worked during the basic workweek. The stated annual rate base for hours in excess of the basic workweek is the unadjusted rate. Not paid through payroll system.

ag. Pay Period—Refers to a time period which covers two administrative workweeks for all employees except those hired on an other-than-annual basis, for whom a pay period is in accordance with the terms of the appointment.

ah. Permanent Resident Alien (PRA)—A person who holds a U.S. green card. Note that an FSN employee or personal services contractor who holds a U.S. green card is subject to U.S. income and Social Security tax withholding unless a totalization agreement provides Social Security Tax exemption. A PRA working in the United States is subject to applicable Federal, state and city tax withholding.

ai. Post—The place designated as the official duty station of the employee, regardless of whether the employee is detailed elsewhere or resides at another place with the authorization or approval of the head of the agency.

aj. Premium Pay—Premium pay for U.S. citizen employees means additional pay authorized under Chapter 55 of 5 U.S.C., for, e.g., overtime, night, holiday, Sunday work, and standby duty. Premium pay for Foreign Service National employees, and AMCITs is as prescribed in the local compensation plan. Premium Pay is not creditable for calculating benefits deductions such as retirement, life insurance, or Thrift Savings Plan (TSP). Premium pay is subject to Federal, State, Local income tax and FICA.

ak. Rate of Basic Pay—As defined in 5 CFR 531.203. This means the rate of pay fixed by law or administrative action for the position held by a GS employee before any deductions, which includes a GS rate, an LEO special base rate, a special rate, a locality rate, a retained rate, but exclusive of additional pay of any other kind.

al. Salary Offset - Salary offset means an administrative offset to collect a debt under 5 U.S.C. 5514 (as amended by Pub. L. 97-365, (96 Stat. 1749), aka Debt Collection Act of 1982, and Pub. L. 104-134 (Title III, Chapter 10 Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996)).by deductions at one or more officially established pay intervals from the current pay account of an employee without his or her consent.

am. Scheduled annual rate of pay—As defined in 5 CFR 531.602. This means, as applicable:

1. The annual GS Rate (i.e. a rate of basic pay within the General Schedule, excluding any LEO special base rate and additional pay of any kind such as locality payments or special rate supplements) payable to an employee;

2. An annual LEO special base rate; or

3. For an employee in a category of positions described in 5 U.S.C. 5304(h)(1)(A)-(D) for which the President (or designee) has authorized locality payments under 5 U.S.C. 5304(h)(2), the annual rate of pay fixed by law or administrative action, exclusive of any locality-based adjustments (including adjustments equivalent to local special rate supplements under 5 CFR part 530, subpart C) or additional pay of any other kind.

an. Third-Country National (TCN)—An individual who is neither a citizen of the United States nor of the country in which employed, who is employed on a limited appointment or personal services contract, and who is eligible for return travel at U.S. Government expense to his/her home country or country from which recruited.

ao. Timekeeping—Refers to the task of recording or maintaining the hours worked by an employee or personal services contractor.

ap. Tour of duty—The hours of a day and the days of an administrative workweek that make up an employee's regularly scheduled basic workweek (5 CFR 610.102).

aq. Up to three months—Not more than six biweekly pay periods.

ar. U.S. Citizen Employee—A U.S. citizen appointed to the Foreign Service or Civil Service by BBG. The term replaces the previously used "American employee". The term as used in Section 9 of this MOA, Payroll, Time and Attendance, and Leave Accounting, excludes AMCITs unless otherwise indicated.

as. Waiver - Waiver means the cancellation, remission, forgiveness, or non-recovery of a debt allegedly owed by an employee to an agency as permitted or required by U.S.C. 5584, 10 U.S.C. 2774, or 32 U.S.C. 710, 5 U.S.C. 8346(b), or any other law.

2. Definitions of Positions and Titles

a. Administrative Officer—An officer of BBG who is responsible for the day-to-day operations in a domestic office or bureau or at a post abroad.

b. Time and Attendance (T&A) Approving Official—An officer of BBG who is responsible for reviewing, verifying and approving biweekly T&A records for employees in an office before the T&A data is transmitted to the appropriate payroll system. This should be the official most knowledgeable of the time worked and absence of the employees involved, normally the immediate supervisor.

c. Certifying Officer—An accountable officer who has been designated to certify vouchers for payment. The certifying officer shall make such examination of the facts underlying a voucher as is necessary, taking into consideration the underlying systems and controls, to provide reasonable assurance that payment is correct and proper. Since the officer certifying the payroll voucher relies on confidence in the management controls of the payroll process and the absence of any information to the contrary, any event creating an insufficiency of funds requires immediate notification to the certifying officer.

d. Payroll Manager ---An official supervising the BBG Payroll Service Center staff who is responsible for the daily payroll operations. The Payroll Manager provides oversight and direction to the payroll service provider for BBG payroll operations.

e. Timekeeper—An employee who has been assigned the responsibilities of maintaining and recording the time and attendance information for other employees.

3. Employer-Employee Relationship

a. For U.S. Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) and income tax withholding purposes the term "employee" includes any individual who, under the usual common law rules applicable in determining the employer-employee relationship, has the status of an employee. IRS rules are found in Publication 15, Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide, and Publication 15-A, Employer's Supplemental Tax Guide, which can be downloaded at www.irs.gov.

3. Legal Authorities

The principal legal authorities are:

a. United States Code (U.S.C.) Title 5—Government Organizations and Employees ;

b. U.S.C. Title 22—Foreign Relations and Intercourse;

c. U.S.C. Title 26—Internal Revenue Code;

d. The Foreign Service Act of 1980 as amended (22 U.S.C. 3900 et. seq.);

e. 48 CFR 37.101 and 37.104 (Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR));

f. The Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended (29 U.S.C. 200);

g. Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966, as amended (31 U.S.C. 3701-3719);

h. 31 U.S.C. 3512;

i. The Privacy Act of 1974;

j. 26 CFR—Internal Revenue;

k. Statements of Federal Financial Accounting Concepts and Standards;

l. GAO/AIMD-00-21.3.1—Standards for Internal Control in the Federal Government (1999);

m. Joint Financial Management Improvement Program (JFMIP), Financial Systems Requirements Documents;

- n. GAO-03-352G-Maintaining Effective Control over Employee Time and Attendance Reporting (2003);
- o. SR-99-5-Human Resources and Payroll Systems Requirements (1999), issued by the JFMIP;
- p. Treasury Financial Manual (TFM), Volume I (ITFM), including:
  - 1. Part 3-Payrolls, Deductions, and Withholdings (1 TFM 3);
  - 2. Part 4-Disbursing (1 TFM 4);
- q. OPM Directives/Handbooks;
- r. 5 CFR-Administrative Personnel;
- s. 22 CFR---Foreign Relations;
- t. 31 CFR---Money and Finance: Treasury;
- u. 31 CFR Parts 900-904 - Federal Claims Collections Standards;
- v. Pub. L. 97-365 - Debt Collection Act of 1982; and
- w. Pub. L. 104-134, Title III, Chapter 10 - Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996.

4. Payroll Systems

It is the policy of the BBG to use automated payroll processing systems operated by a payroll service provider. These systems must conform to the standards and requirements prescribed by the Joint Financial Management Improvement Program (JFMIP), a joint and cooperative undertaking of the U.S. Department of the Treasury, the General Accounting Office, the Office of Management and Budget, and the Office of Personnel Management, working in cooperation with each other and other agencies to improve financial management practices in government. The automated payroll system will be fully documented in systems manuals, which conform to and supplement the requirements prescribed in this section of the MOA.

1. Standardized Systems

A minimum number of automated payroll systems must be used. The payroll systems should interact with the personnel, accounting, general ledger, and financial management systems. Any new system proposed or major revision to a current system must be approved by the CFO before it can be implemented.

2. Types of Payroll Systems

1. Payroll Processing System

a. The payroll processing system pays U.S. citizen employees, permanent resident aliens employed in Washington and overseas.

b. It is the policy of the BBG that compensation for personal services be paid through a voucher system rather than through a payroll system.

c. Master file data on employees is derived through an interface with the personnel system except for part-time, intermittent, and temporary employees abroad who are entered by the FSCs from the post created Form SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action.

d. The period of work and leave for each employee is derived from a biweekly T&A submission. Payment will not be made absent a submission except:

1. In the event Washington telecommunications problems prevent receipt of the file, scheduled hours will be paid with any necessary adjustment in the following pay period; and

2. In the absence of a T&A record for a specific employee with a domestic organization code, scheduled hours may be paid for one pay period upon the timekeeper's submission of a manual T&A report.

e. Payments are charged to the appropriation/allotment as indicated by the personnel or contracting action.

2. Foreign Service National Payroll System (FSN Payroll System)

a. The FSN Payroll System compensates personnel in accordance with the local compensation plan authorized in section 408 of the Foreign Service Act.

b. The payment is processed by the Financial Service Centers (FSCs) from post-created Forms SF-50, Notification of Personnel Action, or JF-62, Foreign National Personal Services Contracting Action, through the FSN payroll system pursuant to time and attendance reporting. Absence of a T&A report for a specific individual prevents any biweekly payment to that individual. However, a FSC may pay scheduled hours for one pay period when a post's T&A file is not received or is not readable. Corrections should be effected in the following pay period. Any payment to FSN or AMCIT staff of an evacuated post must be authorized by the regional bureau's executive director biweekly.

3. Payroll Data to be Maintained on System

The automated payroll systems must maintain the following kinds of data:

- a. Permanent data or fixed data for each employee such as salary, allowance rates, differential rates, deduction and contribution information, etc., as detailed in Section 9.4, Pay and Allowances Computation, and Section 9.5, Payroll Deductions and Contributions;
- b. T&A data submitted on a biweekly basis for each employee that can be used to compute biweekly earnings, leave taken, and compensatory time balances. Exceptions to this rule are permitted for Time-off Awards, donated leave, Compensatory Time-off for covered time spent in official travel, and military leave where, due to current system limitations, these leave balances are maintained locally with the Timekeeper;
- c. Information on the cumulative gross earnings, deductions, allotments of pay, net pay advances, and leave balances on a pay period basis for each employee. This accumulation is maintained on either a tax year or a leave year basis; and
- d. Care should be taken to ensure that supplemental compensation payments, made outside the normal processing of payroll, be retroactively reflected in the payroll systems.

5. Management Controls

1. Scope

a. Management controls are operational checks and balances that ensure that a task will be carried out as planned in the most efficient and effective way possible. MOA Part II Section 220 provides details on management control objectives and procedures.

b. In the payroll processing area, management controls refer to those checks and balances that ensure that:

- 1. The entire process of the recording and maintenance of T&A records, the computation of pay, and the reporting of amounts paid and amounts withheld, is carried out effectively and efficiently;
- 2. All applicable laws, regulations, and policies are being complied with;
- 3. Resources are being safeguarded; and
- 4. Accurate and reliable accounting information is being generated.

2. Authority

Management controls are required to comply with existing statutes, regulatory agencies' directives and BBG Directives. The major authorities for management controls are:

a. The Accounting and Auditing Act of 1950, as amended, which requires the Comptroller General to prescribe principles, standards, and related requirements for accounting to be observed by each Federal agency. The head of each agency is responsible for establishing and maintaining systems of accounting and management controls;

b. Federal Managers' Financial Integrity Act of 1982;

c. 31 U.S.C. 3512(b);

d. OMB Circular A-123, Management's Responsibility for Internal Control;

e. OMB Circular A-127, Financial Management Systems;

f. GAO/AIMD-00-21.3.1, Standards for Internal Control in the Federal Government; and

g. MOA Part II Section 220, Management Accountability and Control

3. Requirements

The GAO Standards for Internal Control in the Federal Government discusses management control standards of reasonable assurance, supportive attitude, competent personnel, control objectives, control techniques, documentation, recording of transactions, execution of transactions, separation of duties, supervision, access to and accountability for resources, and prompt resolution of audit findings. Some aspects are discussed below as they relate specifically to payroll.

1. Documentation

There should be complete, accurate, and easily accessible documentation for the use of all persons involved in payroll processing. The documentation should include policy as well as procedures manuals, workflow descriptions, and systems manuals. The documentation must reflect current laws and regulations and must be revised and updated for changes in the regulations, tax rates, and so on.

2. Training

Personnel engaged in pay, leave, and allowance activities must be adequately trained in the documented policies and procedures applicable to the area to enable them to perform operations efficiently, effectively, and economically and to identify and resolve inconsistencies in payroll related information that is submitted, processed, and reported.

3. Audit Trail Maintenance

a. To maintain an audit trail, any corrections or adjustments to data in official records must be approved, in writing or through electronic signature, by an authorized official.

b. A record of all changes made after documents have been approved and certified must be maintained in accordance with BBG's records retention policy.

c. Changes made to data must be made in such a way that an audit trail is maintained to provide reference to documents that show the original and the new data and the authorization for the change.

4. Separation of Duties

a. In accordance with prudent management control practices, the following operations should be segregated from one another:

1. Authorization of pay and entitlements;

2. Recording of T&A data;

3. Payroll computations;

4. Certification of payments;

5. Recording of payroll data in the accounts;

6. Distribution of pay;

7. Review of payroll transactions;

8. Automated system development;

9. System testing;

10. System implementation; and

11. System maintenance.

b. At bureaus/offices and posts with limited staff, duties might overlap. In such instances, there should be a system of checks and balances and active supervision to ensure that responsibilities are being properly carried out.

c. Posts abroad with limited staff might require, in situations other than those referred to above, the same individual to perform conflicting functions. In such instances, if these practices cannot be met, an alternate system must be approved by the current next higher level of management and documentation retained in post files for audit purposes.

5. Recording and Maintaining Time and Attendance Records

There should be procedures to ensure that the timekeeping function is carried out effectively and accurately. All recorded T&A data should be promptly reported to the payroll office to enable the prompt computation and payment to the employees. The intent is to facilitate processing and to maintain updated information on attendance and leave records for computation, review and audit purposes.

6. Management Controls for Computerized Payroll Operations

Periodic preventive maintenance steps must be taken on hardware and software to ensure the efficient working of the automated payroll system. Systems requirements documents, issued by the Joint Financial Management Improvement Program, provide more detailed guidance.

7. Pay Controls

Overall control procedures should be incorporated and performed regularly to provide reassurance that payroll data is correctly processed; for example, use of master control totals for data elements by computing such totals on certain fields before payroll transactions are entered, adding totals computed from transactions entered during the cycle, and comparing to the grand total at the completion of the processing cycle.

8. Restricted Access

Access to the following must be restricted to authorized personnel:

a. Payroll data and records (contains information protected by the Privacy Act of 1974); and

b. Payroll processing equipment and operations and related software.

9. Management Compliance Audits

a. Periodic risk assessment of payroll operations will be conducted in accordance with the BBG's Management Control Program. Assessment findings may indicate the need for more in-depth review of existing controls.

b. Management will ensure on a continuing basis, through internal review of payroll operations, that the established policies and procedures are adhered to.

c. Management will ensure that reviews are timely and are staffed by individuals possessing adequate payroll knowledge and review skills.

d. At all supervisory levels diligence is required to ensure that management controls are functioning.

3. ATTENDANCE AND LEAVE

1. Description And Authorities

1. Description

Attendance and leave provides information on timekeeping functions, including the maintenance of time and attendance and leave records, and responsibilities associated with such maintenance and reporting requirements of the time and attendance and leave records.

2. Authority and Applicability

a. Chapters 61 and 63 of 5 U.S.C. provide authority for attendance and leave. GAO Policy and Procedures Manual for Guidance of Federal Agencies, Title 6, Pay Leave and Allowances, Chapter 3, Time and Attendance and JFMIP SR-99-5, Human Resources and Payroll Systems Requirements (1999), issued by the Joint Financial Management Improvement Program (JFMIP), prescribe requirements for maintaining and reporting time and attendance (T&A) and leave.

b. This subchapter applies to U.S. citizen employees. The leave benefits of FSN employees, non-U.S. citizen personal services contractors, and American citizens are determined by the local leave plan.

2. Definitions

a. Calendar year is a period of 12 consecutive calendar months beginning the first day of January and ending the last day of December

b. Fiscal year is a period of 12 consecutive calendar months beginning the first day of October and ending on the last day of September of the next calendar year.

c. Leave year is the period beginning with the first day of the first complete pay period in a calendar year and ending with the day immediately before the first day of the first complete pay period in the following calendar year.

3. Management Controls

1. Separation of Duties

In accordance with prudent management control practices, the following functions should be separated from one another:

a. Recording T&A data;

b. Approving T&A reports;

c. Payroll computations and certification of payroll vouchers; and

d. Recording of payroll data in the accounts.

2. Authorization

Premium pay, such as overtime, night, holiday, and Sunday work, must be authorized in advance by an authorizing official (first level supervisors, second level supervisors, and higher level officials) as stated in MOA Part V-A, Section 602.5. In emergencies, a supervisor who is not an authorizing official may order an employee to perform up to eight hours per pay period of premium compensation work. As soon as possible, that order must be reviewed and signed by the authorizing official. All authorizations must be in writing.

3. Proper Documentation

There should be complete, accurate, and proper documentation of time and attendance data, leave, and premium pay for all employees. Any adjustment or change in records must be documented and certified by the appropriate official.

4. Maintaining Time And Attendance (T&A) And Leave Records

1. Time and Attendance Requirements

An accurate record of the time an employee works and/or is absent must be recorded daily. T&A data may be recorded on T&A forms or entered directly into an automated system. T&A and leave records should be retained for six years after the end of the leave year or destroyed after a U.S. General Accounting Office audit, whichever occurs first. Detailed guidance for timekeepers about how to document time and leave is contained in Appendix 2 to this Chapter.

2. Basis for Recording Time and Attendance Data

Recorded T&A data must be based on one of the following methods:

a. Supervisor or timekeeper observation and recording of employee's hours worked;

b. Time clock or other automated timekeeping devices, where not prohibited by law; or

c. Serial sign-in/sign-out sheets on which employees sign their names and record their times of arrival in the order they arrive. When employees leave, they must sign their names again, in the order of departure and record their departure time. Employees will also annotate next to their names any leave taken during the day and the time period(s) involved. This serves as a cross-reference to requests/approvals for leave in separate documentation.

3. Maintaining Time and Attendance Records

T&A forms, supporting documents, or computer files of time and attendance data must document daily starting and ending times for:

a. Regular time worked;

b. Time worked for which premium pay is applicable, by type of premium pay;

c. Credit hours and compensatory time earned and used; and

d. Hours of leave used by type of leave.

4. Leave Accrual and Maintenance of Leave Records

1. Leave Accrual

a. The payroll system must contain accurate information on each employee's type of appointment and the leave hours to which the employee is entitled. The number of hours of each type of leave must be accurately computed per pay period using correct accrual rates. For accrual rates for U.S. citizen employees, see MOA Part V-A, Section 630 for annual leave and MOA Part V-A, Section 640 for sick leave. . Foreign Service Nationals and AMCITS accrue leave according to the approved local leave plan.

b. Reduction is made at the beginning of each leave year for accumulated annual leave exceeding applicable leave ceilings. Controls must be implemented to ensure that accumulated leave in excess of the applicable leave ceiling is dropped.

2. Maintaining Leave Records

Leave records shall be maintained in automated systems or appropriate manual files and must contain the following information for each employee:

a. The rate of accrual for each type of leave that may be accrued;

b. The hours or days accrued and used by leave type (i.e., annual, sick, compensatory, or home);

c. Current leave balance (negative, as well as positive):

d. Any advance leave authorized, including the date through which the leave is authorized, the type of leave advanced, and the total hours or days advanced;

e. Any leave received under the voluntary leave transfer program (5 CFR 630.900) or restored annual leave; and

f. Applicable leave ceilings by type of leave.

The Heads of all Agency Offices, Divisions, and Services are responsible for managing attendance and leave matters, including leave requests, approvals, and documentation, in their organizations. This responsibility includes effective oversight, through subordinate managers and supervisors as appropriate, to ensure that all leave is properly requested; leave requests are acted upon (approved or disapproved); leave requests and approvals are appropriately documented; and leave taken is accurately recorded and accounted for. The guidance in the following subsections generally applies to documentation of requests for and approvals of accrued annual and sick leave. These same documentation requirements also apply to absences charged to earned compensatory time. Additional requirements may apply to other categories of leave such as advanced sick or annual leave, leave without pay (LWOP) of more than 80 hours, and leave under the Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA). Specific requirements for these and other types of leave are contained in MOA V-A 601 et seq.

Negotiated Labor-Management Agreements also may contain leave provisions, such as those for scheduling employee vacation periods. Such provisions may supplement or supersede regular leave request and approval processes. For more details, please refer to the Negotiated Labor Management Agreement appropriate to the union membership involved.

Section 9.3.4.4.2.1 Leave Records for Accrued Annual Leave

Annual leave must be requested from the appropriate official, usually the immediate supervisor. It is recommended in all cases that annual leave be requested in writing using the SF-71, Request for Leave or Approved Absence. The SF-71 is available electronically on FormFlow. Paper copies of the SF-71 can be obtained from your administrative officer or timekeeper. Supervisors are expected to act expeditiously after receiving an SF-71, normally approving or disapproving the requested leave within seven calendar days. When annual leave is requested and approved in writing, whether on the SF-71 or other format, the approving official must provide a copy of the written approval to the timekeeper to ensure leave is properly charged. Annual leave also may be requested and approved orally. However, when this is done, the approving official must provide the timekeeper with written documentation to ensure the leave is properly charged. Leave approving officials may satisfy this requirement by recording and initialing the leave on the office sign-in sheet (Form IBB-0815, or equivalent) or by email or memo given to the timekeeper.

Section 9.3.4.4.2.2 Leave Records for Accrued Sick Leave

Sick leave must be requested from the appropriate official, usually the immediate supervisor. Non-emergency requests for sick leave should be submitted to the approving official in advance. To request emergency sick leave, an employee must speak directly to his or her leave-approving official as soon as possible on the day of the absence - and on successive days of absence as appropriate. Normally, the approving official will approve or disapprove a request for emergency sick leave at the time it is made. Even when sick leave is initially requested and approved orally, as may be the case with emergency sick leave, the request and approval must later be supported by a written application. It is recommended in all cases that sick leave be requested using the SF-71, Request for Leave or Approved Absence. Supervisors may require the leave to be requested using the SF-71 if the absence is for more than three workdays. When sick leave is requested and approved on the SF-71, the approving official must provide a copy of the written approval to the timekeeper to ensure leave is properly charged.

A request for sick leave also may be made by recording the leave on the office sign-in sheet (Form IBB-0815, or equivalent) or by email or memo. Leave approving officials must document their approval by initialing the requested leave on the sign-in sheet, email, or memo; by separate email or memo; or by other appropriate written means. Written approvals must be provided to timekeepers to ensure leave is properly charged.

Section 9.3.4.4.2.3 Timekeepers - Receipt of Leave Documentation and Follow-up

All documentation of leave used necessary for the completion of bi-weekly time cards must be provided to timekeepers sufficiently in advance of payroll submission deadlines. Timekeepers must follow up with supervisors, as necessary, to ensure that all scheduled hours are documented and accounted for by hours worked, leave, or other absence, before submitting final time card data.

5. Attendance And Leave Function Responsibility

1. Head of Each Office

1. Maintaining Attendance and Leave Records

The head of each office in the BBG or administrative officer at post must ensure that leave and attendance records of all employees of the office are maintained in accordance with provisions of this subchapter and Appendix 2 of this Chapter.

2. Establish Controls

The head of each office or the administrative officer at post must also establish controls for accurate and timely recording and reporting of time and attendance.

3. Training

In order to ensure efficient and accurate procedures for the T&A function, the head of each office should ensure that timekeeping refresher training, which may include seminars and lectures, is conducted periodically for the responsible personnel of the office. This training may be conducted in coordination with other offices in BBG and the Payroll Service Center.

2. Supervisors' Responsibilities

1. Designating Timekeepers

Supervisors are responsible for designating timekeepers (including alternates and backups). Supervisors are also responsible for assuring that timekeepers are adequately trained and are observing the prescribed procedures for recording and reporting attendance, leave, overtime, and duty for which premium or differential rates are applicable.

2. Ensuring Accuracy of Time and Attendance Reports

Supervisors are accountable for the accuracy of T&A reports. Since approval of T&A reports is based on the reliance of management controls, the supervisors must have a reasonable basis for verifying accuracy and compliance with those controls.

3. Reviewing and Approving Time and Attendance Reports

Supervisors must review and approve T&A reports of employees for whom they are responsible. Supervisors must also ensure that the approved T&A reports are submitted to the servicing payroll office by the due date and time. In case of any adjustment to leave records of an employee, the supervisor must review and certify such changes on the leave statement.

4. Approving Leave

Leave should be approved by the supervisor prior to being taken. The approved Form SF-71, Request for Leave or Approved Absence, or other accepted form of documentation is then submitted to the timekeeper to make an entry on the T&A report.

3. Timekeeper's Responsibilities

1. Observing Actual Daily Attendance

The normal basis for recording T&A is the observation by the supervisor or timekeeper of employees' hours worked. Instances where this is not possible require reasonable assurance of correctness of T&A reporting.

2. Recording attendance, Leave, and Premium Time

Timekeepers are responsible for making attendance entries on T&A records daily unless sign-in and sign-out sheets are maintained in the office. Leave entries must be made based on the approved leave application form or an accepted substitute. Before recording premium time worked, timekeepers must determine that the premium time is authorized. Copies of such authorizations should be maintained with employee T&A records for audit trail purposes. Recordation guidelines are included in Appendix 2 of this Chapter.

3. Completing Time and Attendance Reports

Designated timekeepers are responsible for completing the T&A reports and for ensuring correctness of all recorded information therein before submitting these reports to the supervisor.

4. Restrictions on Duties Performed by Timekeepers

a. Timekeepers shall not post their own T&A data. Arrangements should be made for a backup or alternate timekeeper within the office to maintain the timekeepers T&A data on the T&A system.

b. T&A reports shall not be approved by employees performing timekeeping functions.

5. Employee Under Suspension, AWOL, or LWOP Status

When a timekeeper has been notified that an employee has been placed on AWOL, LWOP, or suspended, the timekeeper must indicate on the T&A reports the number of hours that the employee has been in that status.

4. Employees' Responsibilities

1. Affirming Accuracy and Completeness

a. Employees share responsibility with the timekeeper and the supervisor in affirming the accuracy and completeness of leave taken and that overtime, holiday, and compensatory time reported was authorized and worked.

b. Employees must submit a leave application form (Form SF-71, Request for Leave or Approved Absence, or other accepted form of documentation or method) to the supervisor for approval before taking leave. For other than regularly scheduled work, employees must sign or initial against their name in the T&A report to verify the accuracy of the entries on the report. This verification does not constitute supervisory approval of the reports that must still be made. Each employee must review his or her Earnings and Leave Statement and disclose any discrepancies to supervisors promptly.

2. Employees in Travel Status

Employees in travel status are responsible, once they have completed travel, for advising the appropriate office at post or in Washington, D.C., of any leave taken. Such leave usage must be consistent with the filed travel voucher.

6. Time And Attendance And Leave Reporting

1. Requirements

1. Reporting Mode

T&A data can be reported either by transmittal via approved electronic media or on an approved hard copy document as a backup document. In the event of an electronic transmittal, the timekeeper must retain the hard copy supporting documents.

2. Reporting Requirements

T&A reports may cover no more than one pay period. At a minimum, the following data must be included on the T&A report for each employee for each pay period:

- a. Employee name and identifying number (social security number or employee number);
- b. Pay period number or dates;
- c. Number of hours worked by day and in total;
- d. Number of hours of premium pay, by type of premium pay, to which the employee is entitled;
- e. Number of credit hours and compensatory time earned;

f. Number of hours of leave (by type), credit hours, and compensatory time used;

g. Dates and times leave was taken; and

h. Handwritten signature or initials for any leave, premium, or any other special hours.

3. Adjustments

Any adjustments required within the three most recent pay periods because of changes after the T&A report was approved must be made online and reflected in the pay period to which the changes apply. Changes should be made as soon as possible after discovery and must be approved by an authorizing supervisor prior to being transmitted to the servicing payroll office. Where changes are required to correct records for pay periods earlier than the most recent three pay periods or in a prior tax year, a hard copy of those corrected records, and a system printout of the original data entry, are to be transmitted to the Payroll Service Center and not entered into the payroll system.

4. Approval of Time and Attendance Reports

All T&A reports and other supporting documents must be reviewed and approved by an authorized supervisor in accordance with the requirements listed below:

a. Approval of T&A documents must be based on knowledge from personal observation, from timekeeper attestation, from reliance on other management controls, or a combination of these;

b. T&A documents must be approved as close to the end of the pay period as possible to allow for processing of the payroll by pay day; and

c. Approval must be indicated either by a handwritten signature or an approved system that provides for an automated signature. Automated approval must be made by entering designated codes into an automated system with appropriate safeguards to prevent unauthorized entry.

2. Submission of Time and Attendance Reports

a. The timekeeper must prepare and submit final T&A reports electronically for all serviced employees after being approved in accordance with Section 9.3.6.1.4 , Approval of Time and Attendance Reports.

b. Employees engaged in transmitting approved T&A reports shall not change T&A information during transmission without a record of the change being generated and approved by the supervisor.

c. The deadline for the submission of final T&A reports electronically is 12:00PM noon on the Monday following the end of the pay period.

7. Certain Officers Exempt From Leave Laws

Presidential appointees to executive schedule positions compensated under Section 401 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, are exempted from the leave laws by 5 U.S.C. 6301 and do not accrue or use leave.

However, members of the Senior Foreign Service (SFS) who elect to continue to receive their SFS pay in lieu of presidential pay remain covered by the leave laws pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 3942(b).

8. Restoration Of Forfeited Annual Leave

1. Authority

5 U.S.C. 6304 (d) and (e) authorizes restoration of annual leave. Rules for restoring annual leave are provided in MOA Part V-A, Section 635 Restoration of Forfeited Annual Leave. The provisions described in this section apply only to U.S. citizen employees. See 3 FAM 7400, FSN Employee Attendance and Leave, for discussion of restoration of forfeited annual leave for Foreign Service Nationals.

2. Authorization of Restoration

The designated decision officer (See MOA Part V-A, Section 635, Restoration of Forfeited Annual Leave) must forward the memorandum of approval to the claimant and a signed copy with documentation to the Payroll Service Center. The memorandum of approval should provide the following information:

- a. Total hours of annual leave restored and authority for approval;
- b. Date by which the restored annual leave must be used;
- c. A statement that the payroll office has been informed that the annual leave has been restored and that a separate account will be established to record the balance of the restored annual leave; and
- d. A notification that the claimant must inform the timekeeper whether the annual leave approved for use is to be charged against the restored annual leave balance.

3. Establishment of Record of Restored Annual Leave

When the memorandum of approval, along with supporting documentation from the decision officer, has been received the payroll office will take the following actions:

- a. Establish for the claimant a record of the amount of restored annual leave and the date of forfeiture; and
- b. Reflect the restored annual leave on the claimant's Earnings and Leave Statement in the pay period following restoration.

9. Voluntary Leave

The provisions described in this section apply only to employees under 5 U.S.C. 6301(2).

1. Authority

Public Law 103-103 and 5 CFR 630.900 authorizes voluntary transfer of unused accrued annual leave between a leave donor and an approved leave recipient.

2. Leave Recipient Requirements

1. Leave Recipient application

An employee who has been affected by a medical emergency may apply in writing to the executive director or the administrative officer, or an officer authorized by the executive director or the administrative officer, requesting approval to become a leave recipient. The application must be on Form OPM-630, Application to Become a Leave Recipient Under the Voluntary Leave Transfer Program.

2. Application Approval

The approving officer must notify the applicant of approval or disapproval of the application within 30 calendar days after the date the application was received. The approving officer must also send a copy of the approved application to the servicing payroll office.

3. Transferred Annual Leave Use

Any available accrued annual leave (and sick leave, if applicable) shall be used before using transferred annual leave. Transferred annual leave may be substituted retroactively for periods of leave without pay or used to liquidate an indebtedness for advanced annual or sick leave granted on or after the beginning of the period of the medical emergency. The leave earned by a full-time employee while in a transferred leave status shall not exceed 40 hours of annual or 40 hours of sick leave.

4. Leave Transfer Between Agencies

When a current leave recipient transfers to another employing agency without a break in service, any unused donated annual leave transfers with the employee to the new agency via Form OPM-630-C, Transfer of Leave Records for Leave Recipient Covered by the Voluntary Leave Transfer Program.

5. Limitations

Transferred annual leave may not be:

- a. Transferred to another leave recipient; or
- b. Included in a lump-sum payment under Section 9.4.7, Lump Sum Leave Payment.

3. Annual Leave Donation

1. Request to Donate Annual Leave

The employee submits a voluntary written request to the administrative officer requesting that a specified number of hours of accrued annual leave be transferred from the employee's annual leave account to the annual leave account of a specified leave recipient. To donate leave within the same employing agency, the employee should submit Form OPM-630-A, Request to Donate Annual Leave to a Leave Recipient Under the Voluntary Leave Transfer Program. To donate leave outside of the agency of the leave donor, the employee should submit Form OPM-630-B, Request to Donate Annual Leave to Leave Recipient Under the Voluntary Leave Transfer Program (Outside Agency), or other appropriate form of the agency to which leave is to be transferred. The administrative officer forwards the transfer form to the servicing payroll office.

2. Recording Annual Leave Donation

The servicing payroll office records the donation of annual leave in the donor employee's leave records based on Form OPM-630-A, or Form OPM-630-B. The number of leave hours donated by the employee is deducted from the employee's annual leave account and credited to the recipient's leave account.

3. Limitations on Annual Leave Donation

- a. In any one leave year, a leave donor normally may donate no more than a total of one-half of the amount of annual leave he or she would be entitled to accrue during the leave year in which the donation is made.
- b. A leave donor who is projected to have annual leave that otherwise would be subject to forfeiture at the end of the leave year may normally donate no more than the number of hours remaining in the leave year (as of the day of the transfer) for which the leave donor is scheduled to work and receive pay.
- c. A leave donor shall not donate his or her annual leave to his or her immediate supervisor.

4. Unused Transferred Leave

If the hours of transferred annual leave remaining when the medical emergency terminates is equal to or exceeds the number of donors, restore the hours to the donors using the following formula: Unused hours divided by total hours transferred times hours each donor contributed. If the unused hours are less than the number of donors, the authorizing or approving officer should just cancel them.

4. PAY AND ALLOWANCES COMPUTATION

1. Description And Definitions

1. Description

Computation of Pay and Allowances provides information on the different types of compensation, rules related to the computation of gross pay and allowances, and accounting and reporting of the computed compensations.

2. Definitions

See Section 9.2.2.1 Definitions of Documents, Processes, and Actions for definitions of base pay, administrative workweek, basic workweek, overtime, premium pay, and tour of duty.

2. Basic Pay Computation

1. U.S. Citizen Employees Base Pay

For the computation of pay, U.S. citizen employees are considered to be employed on an annual basis consisting of a 52-week work year of 40 hours each. Whenever it is necessary to convert a base annual salary rate to a basic hourly, daily, weekly, or biweekly rate, the following rules apply:

a. The hourly rate is derived by dividing the annual rate of base pay by 2087. Compute to the nearest cent, counting one-half cent and over as the next higher cent;

b. The daily rate is the hourly rate (computed as above) multiplied by the number of daily hours of work;

c. The weekly or biweekly rate is the hourly rate (computed as above) multiplied by 40 or 80, as the case may be.

2. Foreign Service National Employees Base Pay

For the computation of pay, Foreign Service National (FSN) employees, and AMCITs, whose compensation is fixed pursuant to the provisions of section 408 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, are considered to be employed on an annual basis consisting of a 52-week basic work year. The number of hours in the basic workweek and the base annual salary rates are set forth in the individual post's Foreign Service National compensation plan. Whenever it is necessary to convert a base annual salary rate to a basic hourly, daily, weekly, or biweekly rate, the following rules apply:

a. The hourly rate is the basic annual rate divided by the number of annual hours of work for which the position is scheduled. Where the work schedule coincides with the 40-hour workweek of U.S. citizens, the hourly rate is derived by dividing annual pay by 2087;

b. The daily rate is the hourly rate (computed as above) multiplied by the number of daily hours of work; and

c. The weekly or biweekly rate is the hourly rate (computed as above) multiplied by the number of weekly or biweekly hours of work.

3. Premium And Other Compensation For U.S. Citizen Employees

1. Scope and Applicability of Premium Pay

Premium pay is authorized by:

a. Subchapter V, Chapter 55, 5 U.S.C.;

b. Fair Labor Standards Act;

c. Prevailing Rate Systems;

d. The Foreign Service Act; and

e. 5 CFR, Part 551, Subpart E

2. Pay Limitations

There are a number of limitations or caps on compensation. Some are on a specific kind of compensation such as post differential or premium pay or SES/SFS awards. To access the current OPM pay administration salary tables on the Internet, go to <http://www.opm.gov/oca/pay/index.asp>. The primary limitation is the Aggregate Limitation on Pay (see 5 CFR 530.203 for more details).

Section 9.4.3.2.1 Aggregate Limitation on Pay

a. For employees who are not members of the Senior Executive Service (SES) or in senior-level (SL) or scientific or professional (ST) positions, the Aggregate Limitation on Pay (5 U.S.C. 5307) provides that the compensation paid in a calendar year may not exceed the rate payable for Level I of the Executive Schedule. For this purpose, compensation includes the total basic pay (including locality-based comparability or interim geographic adjustment, or special pay adjustment for law enforcement officers or the physicians comparability allowance), premium pay paid under 5 U.S.C. Chapter 55, post differential, danger pay, SES performance and presidential awards (5 U.S.C. 5374 and 4507), incentive awards (5 U.S.C. Chapter 45), equalization pay of transferees to international organizations, retention allowance, supervisory differential, recruitment bonus, and relocation bonus. Compensatory Time Off for Travel is not considered in applying the Aggregate Limitation on Pay.

b. For employees who are members of the Senior Executive Service (SES) or in senior-level (SL) or scientific or professional (ST) positions, the Aggregate Limitation on Pay (5 U.S.C. 5307) provides that the compensation paid in a calendar year may not exceed the rate payable for the Vice President under 3 U.S.C. 104 on the last day of that calendar year (i.e., the aggregate limitation). For this purpose, compensation includes the total basic pay (including locality-based comparability or interim geographic adjustment, or special pay adjustment for law enforcement officers or the physicians comparability allowance), premium pay paid under 5 U.S.C. Chapter 55, post differential, danger pay, SES performance and presidential awards (5 U.S.C. 5374 and 4507), incentive awards (5 U.S.C. Chapter 45), equalization pay of transferees to international organizations, retention allowance, supervisory differential, recruitment bonus, and relocation bonus. Compensatory Time Off for Travel is not considered in applying the aggregate limitation on pay.

c. The aggregate limitation on pay does not include the annuity of a re-employed annuitant.

Section 9.4.3.2.2 Biweekly Premium Pay Limitation

There is a biweekly limitation on premium pay as defined in 5 CFR 550.105. An employee may be paid premium pay only to the extent that the payment does not cause the total basic pay and premium pay for the pay period to exceed the greater of the biweekly rate for GS-15, step 10 (including any applicable special salary rate or locality rate of pay); or Level V of the Executive Schedule. This limitation does not apply to nonexempt FLSA employees, employees in the Federal Wage System, 5 CFR 550.106 emergency work, or to the special compensatory time-off for Foreign Service Officers (FSOs). Compensatory Time Off for Travel is not considered in applying the biweekly premium pay limitation.

Section 9.4.3.2.3 Annual Premium Pay Limitation

There is an annual limitation on premium pay as defined in 5 CFR 550.106 and 550.107. An employee may be paid premium pay only to the extent that the payment does not cause the total basic pay and premium pay for the calendar year to exceed the greater of the biweekly rate for GS-15, step 10 (including any applicable special salary rate or locality rate of pay); or Level V of the Executive Schedule. This limitation does not apply to nonexempt FLSA employees, employees in the Federal Wage System, 5 CFR 550.106 emergency work, nor to the special compensatory time-off for Foreign Service Officers (FSOs). Compensatory Time Off for Travel is not considered in applying the annual premium pay limitation.

Section 9.4.3.2.4 Basic Pay Limitation

There is a pay limitation on Basic pay as defined in 5 U.S.C. 5304(g)(1) and CFR 550.606(a). Basic pay, as described in Section 9.2.2.1, cannot exceed the salary for Level IV of the Executive Schedule.

Section 9.4.3.2.5 Pay Limitation on Scheduled Annual Rate of Pay

There is a pay limitation on the scheduled annual rate of pay as defined in 5 U.S.C. 5303(f). The scheduled annual rate of pay, as described in Section 9.2.2.1, cannot exceed the salary for Level V of the Executive Schedule.

Section 9.4.3.2.6 Pay Limitation on Special Rate Supplements

There is a pay limitation on special salary rate supplements as defined in 5 U.S.C. 5305(a) and 5 CFR 530.304(a). When OPM establishes a minimum special rate under this authority, corresponding increases also may be made in one or more of the remaining rates of the affected grade or level. For any given grade, a minimum special rate may not exceed the maximum rate of basic pay for the rate range (excluding any locality rate, other special rate, or similar payment under other legal authority) by more than 30 percent. A special rate is not payable if it exceeds the rate for Level IV of the Executive Schedule.

Section 9.4.3.2.7 Overtime Pay Limitation

There is a pay limitation on overtime pay paid to employees assigned to FLSA exempt status positions as defined in 5 U.S.C 5542(a) (2) and 5 CFR 550.113.

Overtime, as described in Section 9.2.2.1, for employees with rates of basic pay equal to or less than the rate of basic pay for GS-10, step 1 will be paid at the overtime hourly rate that is the employee's hourly rate of basic pay multiplied by 1.5. For employees with rates of basic pay greater than the basic pay for GS-10, step 1, the overtime hourly rate is the greater of (1) the hourly rate of basic pay for GS-10, step 1, multiplied by 1.5, or (2) the employee's hourly rate of basic pay. These hourly overtime pay limitations do not apply to prevailing rate (wage) employees or to FLSA overtime pay.

3. Compensatory Time Off for Irregularly Scheduled Overtime Work

1. Authority

a. 5 CFR 550.114

b. MOA Part V-A, Section 242, Compensatory Time Off.

c. MOA Part V-A, Section 246.3 Overtime Pay or Compensatory Time Off

2. Time Limit

When compensatory time off earned by an employee is not used within the established 16-week (eight pay periods) time limit, it is forfeited unless:

a. The employee is not exempt from FLSA;

b. The employee requested leave but it was denied; or

c. The failure to use the time is due to an exigency of the service beyond the employee's control. In these three instances, it is BBG policy to payout the hours as overtime. In the first instance mentioned, the payout from the payroll system is automatic. In the second and third instances mentioned, the payout occurs when requested by the employee's supervisor.

3. Recording and Payment of Compensatory Time Off

a. Compensatory time off must be recorded on the biweekly T&A report when it is earned or used.

b. Compensatory time off cannot be earned for any overtime worked which, if compensated, would cause the aggregate rate of pay for the pay period to exceed the premium pay limitations in Section 9.4.3.2 .2 and 9.4.3.2.3.

c. As per guidance in MOA Part V-A Section 246.3, there is no authority to give wage system employees compensatory time off in lieu of over-time payments. A wage system employee must be paid at the prescribed rate for overtime work performed. However, a wage system employee participating in Maxiflex (see MOA Part V-A Section 603) may elect to earn compensatory time off in lieu of overtime pay.

4. Special Compensatory Time Off for Foreign Service Officers (FSOs)
Section 412c of the Foreign Service Act (22 U.S.C. 3972c) and 3 FAM 3133.5, Special Compensatory Time Off for Foreign Service Officers authorize compensatory time-off during the basic workweek in exchange for performing an equal amount of overtime work or holiday work that is officially ordered or approved in writing by an authorizing official.

4. Sunday Pay

1. Authority

Sunday pay is authorized by 5 U.S.C. 5546.

2. Sunday Pay Computation

Full-time U.S. citizen employees, except Senior Foreign Service members, senior executive service members, and tenured Foreign Service officers, serving at a post where Sunday is a workday in the post's administrative workweek, are eligible for Sunday pay. Part-time employees are not eligible for Sunday pay. Sunday pay is 25 percent of the employee's basic pay not to exceed eight hours of the employee's workday. Basic pay is described in Section 9.2.2.1. (See MOA Part V-A Section 244.2). Work in excess of eight hours on Sunday is compensated at the applicable overtime rate and should be approved in advance on the Request for Overtime Form IA 101. Sunday pay is subject to the premium pay limitations in Section 9.4.3.2.2 and 9.4.3.2.3.

5. Holiday Premium Pay

1. Authority

Holiday pay is authorized by 5 U.S.C. 5546, 5 CFR 550.131 - 550.132, 5 CFR Part 610, Subpart B, 50 CG 519, and Comp. Gen. B-194035, June 18, 1979.

U.S. holidays are authorized in 5 U.S.C. 6103.

2. Holiday Premium Pay Computation

See MOA V-A Section 245.5 for details on eligibility rules and computation.

In general, employees who work on a holiday during hours that correspond to their normal tour of duty are entitled to receive holiday premium pay equal to their rate of basic pay. If employees work in excess of eight hours on the holiday or if full-time employees work during hours not corresponding with their normal tour, they are entitled to receive their regular overtime rate of pay for hours worked in excess of eight in a day or 40 in a week. This means that employees who work on a holiday that falls on one of their regularly scheduled workdays must be paid twice their rate of basic pay for not more than eight hours of such work. Any hours worked outside an employee's scheduled tour of duty on a holiday would be paid at the employee's overtime rate. An employee who is assigned to duty during holiday hours is entitled to pay for a minimum of two hours of holiday work. An employee on a fixed compressed work schedule who is required to work on a holiday is entitled to holiday premium pay for all non-overtime hours of work. Premium pay for holiday work also will be paid in addition to night pay differential for regularly scheduled non-overtime work at night, as well as for regularly scheduled non-overtime Sunday work when an employee performs work on a holiday that occurs on a Sunday. Presidents occasionally issue executive orders closing federal agencies for part or all of a workday. Employees are excused from duty during such periods unless they are "emergency employees", as determined by their agencies. Such orders often provide that the time off will be treated as a holiday for pay and leave purposes. Employees who are required to work during their basic tour of duty on such days are entitled to holiday premium pay.

6. Night Pay Differential

1. Authority

Night pay differential is authorized by 5 U.S.C. 5545 and 5 CFR 550.121-122; see MOA Part V-A Section 243 for more detail.

2. Night Pay Computation

In order to qualify for night pay differential, such night work must be authorized in advance of the administrative workweek as part of the employee's regularly scheduled administrative workweek. Night pay differential is computed at the rate of 10 percent of employee's basic pay.

7. Standby Duty Pay

1. Authority

Premium pay for standby duty is authorized by 5 U.S.C. 5545, 5 CFR 550.112(k) and 5 CFR 551.431. Eligibility rules for standby pay are provided in MOA Part V-A Section 606.

2. Definition

Standby status means a state of readiness to immediately answer a call to work, during which the member is free to eat, sleep, listen to the radio, or engage in similar pursuits. The member's whereabouts are narrowly limited and activities are substantially restricted.

3. Payment

An administrative or other designated authorizing officer certifies needs, obtains approval, and notifies the servicing payroll office of the approved percentage. The percentage of premium pay paid for standby duty ranges from 5 up to 25 percent of the employee's base pay and may not be calculated on that part of the employee's base pay that exceeds the basic pay for GS-10, Step 1 cap.

8. Post Differential

1. Authority

Post differential is authorized by 5 U.S.C. 5925 and Chapter 500 of the Standardized Regulations. Provisions for post differential are described in 3 FAM 3260, Post Differential.

2. Applicability

Post differential is granted to provide additional pay to employees for service at places in foreign areas where conditions of environment differ substantially from conditions of environment in the continental United States and warrant additional compensation as a recruitment and retention incentive to an employee.

3. Post Differential Rules

a. Posts approved for a differential and the differential percentages are listed in Section 920 of the Standardized Regulations. An employee transferred to such a designated post is entitled to post differential as of the date of arrival. Section 532 of the Standardized Regulations describes the conditions that terminate the differential. Post uses Form SF-1190, Foreign Allowance Application, Grant, and Report, to establish or terminate the differential.

b. Post differential will be computed per the authorized rate for the post. The differential may not exceed 25 percent of base pay for the employee for the period served. The differential is paid along with the regular biweekly payroll through the payroll system. Post differential is subject to U.S. FICA, and Federal, state, and local income tax withholding. It is not creditable for retirement, TSP, or life insurance purposes.

c. An employee's responsibility for verifying correctness of his or her Earnings and Leave Statement extends to reporting periods of ineligibility for post differential and any resulting overpayment.

d. An employee who is detailed to a differential pay post on temporary duty (TDY) becomes eligible for post differential only after he/she has served, during one continuous period of absence away from the employee's post of assignment, 42 days on detail to one or more differential posts. Post differential is not paid for this qualifying period except for select posts as provided in Section 910 of the Standardized Regulations. Upon completion of the detail, a Form SF-1190 signed by the post administrative officer is submitted to the payroll servicing office through the employee's administrative officer.

e. Post differential is paid subject to the Aggregate Limitation on Pay ceiling. Post differential may only be paid to the extent that the sum of base compensation and post differential do not exceed the Aggregate Limitation on Pay described in Section 9.4.3.2.1

9. Danger Pay

1. Authority

Chapter 650 of the Standardized Regulations and 5 U.S.C. 5928 provide for granting a danger pay allowance to certain employees serving in a foreign area under specified conditions. Provisions relating to danger pay are described in 3 FAM 3270, Danger Pay Allowance , and the pertinent posts are listed in the footnotes to section 920 of the Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas (GC, FA)). OPM Regulations (5 CFR 531) also impact the computation of this premium pay.

2. Danger Pay computation

a. Danger pay is additional pay of up to 25 percent over basic pay for service at a designated danger pay post, commencing at time of arrival, until departure, including days of leave and holidays while remaining at post. To calculate TDY danger pay manually, determine basic pay earned during TDY in danger area and multiply by the applicable danger pay percentage. Under 5 CFR 531, a locality rate of pay is considered basic pay for the purpose of computing danger pay allowances. Note : Danger pay is not received for hours or days for which no base pay is paid.

b. Danger pay is subject to the aggregate pay limitation in Section 9.4.3.2.1, Aggregate Pay Limitation.

c. If an employee has been granted a Service Need Differential (SND) as stated in 5 U.S.C. 5925(b), the sum of SND and any danger pay allowance may not exceed 25 percent of the base pay of the employee. For payroll purposes, danger pay is paid at the full percentage authorized and service need differential is eliminated or reduced to maintain a ceiling rate of 25 percent for the two combined ( Section 652 (c) of the Standardized Regulations).

3. Accounting for Danger Pay

Danger pay is charged to the allotment used to pay normal expenses of the location the employee works and Object Class 1151.

4. Reporting of Eligibility for Danger Pay

An employee assigned to a danger pay post submits a Form SF-1190, Foreign Allowances, Application, Grant, and Report, to initiate or terminate payment of danger pay to M/HR. An employee on detail to a danger pay post may use Form SF-1190 to establish dates of presence there for submission to M/HR ( 3 FAM 3276.4 ).

10. Language Incentive Pay

1. Authority

Special monetary or other incentives are authorized by Section 704 (b)(3) of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 to encourage Foreign Service employees to acquire or retain proficiency in foreign language. See also MOA Part V-B Section 433.

2. Payment

a. The post administrative officer notifies (via cable, memo, and electronic message) the Office of Human Resources so that personnel records may be updated ; the Payroll Service Center is notified to begin payment processing. The notification should contain:

1. Employee's name;
2. Employee's Social Security number;
3. Statement that the employee meets eligibility criteria for a language incentive payment;
4. Percentage of incentive; and
5. Beginning date.

b. The termination notification (via cable, memo, and electronic message) to the Office of Human Resources must contain a statement to stop incentive language payment as of the end of the pay period in which the actual time of departure occurs. At that time, the employee's personnel records are updated and the Payroll Service Center is notified to terminate processing of the payment.

c. Object class 1153 payment for BBG employees is charged against operating allotment for the employee's location.

11. Incentive Awards

1. Authority

Incentive awards for government employees are authorized by 5 U.S.C. 4501-4506. Section 613 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, provides for establishment of an award system for members of the Foreign Service. Provisions for incentive awards are provided in MOA Part V-A Section 570.

2. Payment

Awards to U.S. citizen employees are paid through the payroll processing system by sending a copy of the processed SF-50 documenting the award to the Payroll Service Center requesting inclusion in the next pay. The payment is subject to U.S. FICA, Federal, state, and local income tax withholding. Awards are usually paid from a central allotment (M005) for BBG.

12. Senior Foreign Service (SFS) and Senior Executive Service (SES) Performance Pay Awards

1. Authority

See MOA Part V-A Section 1137, MOA Part V-B Section 464, Section 405 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980 and 5 U.S.C. 4507.

2. Payment

a. The SES and SFS awards are subject to the calendar year limitation on aggregate pay described in Section 9.4.3.2.1.

b. Any SES or SFS performance pay awards that cannot be paid due to the ceiling will be forfeit.

c. The payment of SFS or SES performance pay can be made once the Payroll Service Center receives the SF-50 Notice of Personnel Action documenting the award. Payment is made through the payroll system and is subject to applicable U.S. FICA, Federal, state, and local income tax withholding.

13. Service Need Differential (SND)

1. Authority

Service Need Differential (aka Difficult to Staff Incentive Differential) is authorized by 5 U.S.C. 5925(b). See Chapter 1000 of the Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas (GC, FA)).

2. Payment

a. Service Need Differential will be computed at 15 percent of basic pay for the employee for the period served under that assignment. The service need differential is accrued and calculated in the same manner as post differential, but not paid along with the regular biweekly payroll. Instead, it is paid in three lump sum payments, annually at the completion of each employee's service year. Service need differential is subject to U.S. FICA, Federal, state, and local income tax withholding. Like post differential, it is not creditable for retirement, TSP, or life insurance purposes.

b. Upon completion of each service year, post uses Form SF-1190, Foreign Allowance Application, Grant and Report, for certification and payment of the differential for the previous year. The remarks box of the SF-1190 must state the terms of the agreement, including agreement either complete 36 months of the assignment, or repay the entire amount received while assigned to a post. The form is submitted from the post to the Office of Human Resources for approval. Upon approval, the form is submitted to the Payroll Service Center for payment processing.

c. SND is charged against allotment of the employing organization. In addition, SND is identified separately from post differential, using object code 1152 in the accounting classification box on Form SF-1190.

d. The combination of the SND plus danger pay for the post of assignment may not exceed 25 percent of basic pay. SND may be reduced or eliminated while danger pay is in effect.

3. Service Need Differential Ceiling

Service Need Differential is subject to the aggregate pay limitation described in Section 9.4.3.2.1.

4. Premium And Other Pay---Foreign Service National Employees

1. Authority

See Section 408 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, 3 FAM 7300 Foreign Service Nationals (FSN) Compensation, 3 FAM 7400 FSN Employee Attendance and Leave , and MOA Part V-B Section 810, FSN Employee Personnel Administration. Premium and other pay of Foreign Service National Employees and AMCITS is set forth in the approved local pay plan. Terms of FSN personal services contracts conform to the conditions of employment for direct-hire FSN employees insofar as possible.

2. Awards

Awards to Foreign Service National and AMCIT employees are paid through the payroll system by inclusion in the regular paycheck based receipt of a copy of the authorizing document or post-generated SF-50.

5. Allowances

1. Authority

a. Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas (GC, FA))

b. 3 FAM 3200, Allowances, and

c. MOA Part V-B Section 260, Allowances and Differentials.

d. MOA Part VII Section 820, Allowance Advances

2. Application

a. An employee eligible for an allowance makes application on Form SF-1190, Foreign Allowance Application, Grant and Report, to the principal or administrative officer. To facilitate timely initiation and termination of allowance payments posts may alert the Payroll Service Center in the post arrival and departure messages, followed by Form SF-1190. A summary of the allowances and benefits applied for with the SF-1190 is found at <http://www.state.gov/m/a/als/4311.htm> . To access the Table of Allowances (Rates), go to <http://www.state.gov/m/a/als/920/>.

b. Revisions to post allowance (cost-of-living) grants resulting from Federal Salary Act pay adjustments and from across the board rate increases do not require a newly executed Form SF-1190 but may be made on a group basis, using white bond paper. The mass action document must show:

1. Employees' names;
2. Posts of assignment;
3. Salaries;
4. Family status as defined in section 040 of Standardized Regulations using code "1" for one adult exclusive of the employee, "1c" for one child and so on; and
5. The name, signature, and title of the authorizing officer.

c. Revisions resulting from individual employee's promotions or periodic pay step increases may be made and supported by using a copy of the agency's payroll change record.

d. MOA Part V-B Section 261(d) specifies authorizing officers within the BBG for these allowances.

3. Payment

a. Living quarters, post, and separate maintenance allowances are paid on the biweekly payroll.

b. Quarters advance is made outside of the payroll system but a copy of the voucher must be sent to the payroll system which monitors the earning or repayment of the advance.

c. Education, foreign transfer, and temporary quarters subsistence allowances are normally paid directly to the employee. Education payments may be made directly to a school so long as employee's account does not exceed that authorized by section 920 of the Standardized Regulations.

6. Advance Of Pay

1. Scope

The U.S. Code, 5 U.S.C. 5927, provides that up to three months' pay may be paid in advance to:

a. An employee upon the assignment of the employee to a post in a foreign area (see Chapter 850 of the Standardized Regulations (Government Civilians, Foreign Areas (GC, FA)) or 4 FAH-3 H-530 Pay and Allowances Computation; or

b. Employees working outside their country of employment, while on temporary travel or permanent change of assignment, who must undergo certain types of outpatient medical treatment.

2. Definitions

See Section 9.2.2.1 , Definitions of Documents, Processes, and Actions, for the definitions of employee, foreign area, pay, post, up to three months, country of employment, and outpatient medical emergency assistance.

Note: Home leave and return to post do not qualify for an advance.

3. Issuing Advance of Pay

1. Requesting and Advance of Pay

a. To request an advance of pay in association with an assignment to a post in a foreign area, an employee must submit Form JF-55, Request and Voucher for Advance of Pay, accompanied by a copy of the travel orders assigning the employee to a post in a foreign country to the servicing payroll office. The employee supplies the social security number and travel order number on Form JF-55. The advance may not be paid prior to the issuance of travel orders and not more than 45 days prior to the employee's scheduled departure to, or not more than 60 days after arrival at the assignment abroad.

b. To request an advance of pay for outpatient medical emergency assistance:

1. If in Washington, DC, U.S. employees who are assigned or located abroad must submit Form JF-55, Request and Voucher for Advance of Pay, and a letter from the treating facility/physician documenting the need for emergency outpatient medical care, including anticipated date and estimated cost of care, to the Administrative Officer of the office they are assigned to in Washington. The Administrative Officer, after consultation with the Office of Medical Services, Department of State will grant initial approval for the medical emergency assistance. This initial approval will be quickly forwarded (by phone, email, or fax, as appropriate) to the employee's servicing payroll office to determine the maximum amount of advance that can be authorized and to advise the Administrative Officer. The Administrative Officer will, upon receipt of this information, authorize the outpatient medical emergency assistance in an amount not to exceed the maximum determined by the payroll office.

2. If abroad, U.S. employees must submit Form JF-55, Request and Voucher for Advance of Pay, and a letter from the treating facility/physician documenting the need for emergency outpatient medical care, including anticipated date and estimated cost of care, to the principal, administrative officer, or financial management officer at post. The principal, administrative officer, or financial management officer, after consultation with the regional medical office or post medical officer, will grant initial approval for the medical emergency assistance. This approval will be quickly forwarded (by phone, email, or fax, as appropriate) to the employee's servicing payroll office for determination of the maximum amount of advance that can be authorized. The principal, administrative officer, or financial management officer will, upon receipt of this information, authorize payment of the outpatient medical emergency assistance in an amount not to exceed the maximum determined by the payroll office.

c. All salary advance requests must contain the following statement: "Repayment of this advance is to be made by payroll deductions. The full advance will be repaid in not more than 18 pay periods. I will maintain other voluntary deductions such as allotments in amounts so as not to delay repayment of this advance."

d. The employee must sign the request (original and three copies).

e. An employee may elect a repayment schedule of less than 18 pay periods

2. Advance of Pay Calculation

Care should be exercised to make sure that an advance is not greater than the maximum amount of basic compensation for six biweekly pay periods and that the net pay is adequate to cover the repayment schedule. Basic compensation and mandatory deductions may be determined from the Earnings and Leave Statement. Calculation of the maximum amount of advance that can be authorized remains the responsibility of the servicing payroll office unless the immediacy of the treatment required prohibits timely provision of such calculation. In this instance the post financial management/administrative officer will make an estimate based on information provided by the employee.

3. Processing Request for Advance of Pay

a. The authorizing officer must examine the documents to verify the completeness and correctness of the request, the computation of the advance amount, the pay back rate, and accounting data. A search by the payroll office must be made for any currently outstanding advance. At post, the certifying officer signs Form JF-55. Employees requesting the advance in Washington, for assignment to a post abroad, must provide required documentation to the servicing payroll office.

b. Advances for assignments to a post abroad and outpatient medical emergency assistance are charged to the appropriation from which the employee's regular salary is paid.

c. An advance, for assignment to a post abroad, is paid in the payroll system and sent to the same address as the employee's net pay.

d. Where the cashier provides cash directly to the employee to facilitate payment to a medical provider for outpatient medical emergency assistance, the officer who approved the assistance will forward the approved request and the documents supporting the payment to the Payroll Service Center to initiate collection. If the employee makes the payment directly to the medical care provider, the financial management/administrative officer will forward the approved request to the Payroll Service Center to allow payment of the advance and initiation of collection.

e. The allotment is to be charged to the allotment normally used to pay the employee's regular salary.

4. Requesting Advance Prior to Liquidating a Current Advance of Pay An employee who has an outstanding balance from a prior advance of pay resulting from a transfer to a post abroad may be issued a new advance when, after arrival at the new post in a foreign area, the employee is reassigned to another post in a foreign area before full repayment of a previous advance of pay. The total unpaid balance, including the new advance, may not exceed the previously stated 6-pay-period limit. An employee who has an outstanding balance resulting from an outpatient medical emergency, may be issued a new outpatient medical emergency advance. The total unpaid outpatient medical emergency balance, including the new advance, may not exceed the 6-pay-period limit. The two types of advances are accounted for independently. Each has a 6-pay-period limit.

4. Collecting Advance of Pay

1. Deduction From Salary

a. Advance of pay is collected by biweekly deductions from an employee's salary. The deduction will begin on the pay day that falls during the second full pay period following the pay period in which the advance was paid.

b. When an employee transfers to another Federal agency prior to repaying the advance of pay, the BBG will make the normal deduction from salary for the pay period of the transfer, as well as offset any existing non-payroll-related monies owed the employee to apply against the outstanding balance. The BBG Office of Financial Operations CFO/A will contact the gaining agency to establish the salary offset to continue collection of the outstanding balance pursuant to procedures/regulations implementing the Debt Collection Act of 1982/Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996.

2. Precedence Over Other Deductions

In accordance with the order of precedence for payroll deductions prescribed by law and U.S. Government regulations, advance of pay is considered to be an indebtedness due the U.S. Government and the deduction has precedence over other voluntary deductions, including allotments and assignments of pay (see Section 9.5.1.5, Order of Withholding Precedence for Payroll Deductions).

3. Accounting

a. Deductions from an employee's salary for advance of pay are credited to the advance of pay account (appropriation, allotment, travel authorization number, and social security number). See Section 9.4.6.3.3 , Processing Request for Advance Pay, for specific allotment information required for the different types of salary advances.

b. Such collection data is reflected biweekly on the employee's Earnings and Leave Statement and to the serviced agency on the Payroll Recurring Deductions Report, Net Disbursements and Collected Reimbursements Report, and Form SF-1081, Voucher and Schedule of Withdrawals and Credits.

4. Cancellation of Assignment/Medical Emergency

a. If an assignment to a post in a foreign area is canceled at the convenience of the agency or outpatient medical emergency treatment is canceled and rescheduled at the convenience of the treatment facility/physician, the employee may repay the advance as previously scheduled.

b. If an assignment to a post in a foreign area or the outpatient medical emergency treatment is canceled at the convenience of the employee, the outstanding balance must be repaid in full immediately to the agency

5. Non-issuance of Paycheck

In the instance where non-issuance of a paycheck necessitates a retroactive salary payment, the deduction made for each pay period included in the retroactive salary payment shall not exceed the normal pay back amount. In the event that the advance is not deducted, the non-deducted amount will be treated as an overpayment and repayment will be made in accordance with agency regulations (see Section 9.5.7, Other Deductions)

5. Establishing Accounts Receivable

a. BBG must establish an accounts receivable for each advance of pay on the basis of disbursements charged to its appropriation supported by a signed copy of the Advance of Pay Request.

b. The accounting transactions for maintaining the account receivable must be reported by the payroll system to the BBG biweekly on Payroll Advice of Charge and Payroll Recurring Deductions reports.

6. Collecting Advance of Pay Under Default

When an employee is in default of repayment of the amount advanced, collection actions must be taken as stated in Section 7.9, Debt Collection.

7. Lump-Sum Leave Payment

1. Scope

This section sets forth procedures for calculating and making a lump-sum payment for accumulated and current accrued annual leave, maxiflex leave, and unforfeited compensatory time off (FLSA nonexempt employees only) balances for an employee who has separated from the BBG.

2. U.S. Citizen Employees

1. Period of Leave Computation

Section 9.4.7.2.1.1 Annual Leave and Maxiflex Leave

a. A lump-sum leave payment for annual leave is calculated by multiplying the total number of hours of the annual and restored annual leave balances at the time of separation, times the rate or rates (including any premium pay) at which the employee would have been paid had the employee remained employed until the expiration of the leave balance. In computing the period of leave coverage, the first workday immediately following the date on which service was terminated counts as the first day of leave and each successive workday is counted as a day of leave until all leave is exhausted. The period of leave shall not be extended due to any holiday occurring after separation. A similar process is performed for computing the payout of the maxiflex leave.

b. If a pay schedule change is enacted or otherwise established by law for a period that is included in the employee's lump sum leave payment, the lump-sum payment for annual leave should be recomputed to reflect the changed rate for the period it covers. This is also true for the processing of the maxiflex leave.

c. The leave payment includes any pertinent locality-based comparability adjustment of pay that was in effect for the employee at the time of separation under 5 U.S.C. 5304.

d. The hourly lump-sum rate for a Foreign Service officer separating at a chief of mission salary rate is the rate that the officer was receiving on the date on which the officer was last subject to the leave law. Section 9.4.7.2.1.2 Compensatory Time Off (FLSA Nonexempt employees only)

a. A lump-sum leave payment for unforfeited compensatory time off hours balances is calculated by using the earned hourly rate at the time the unforfeited compensatory time off hours were worked, multiplying that rate by 1.5, and then multiplying that resultant outcome by the number of hours worked at that rate.

b. The earned rate includes any pertinent locality-based comparability adjustment of pay that were in effect for the employee at the time the hours were originally worked.

2. Applicable Deductions

A lump-sum payment is considered pay for taxation purposes. Flat income tax withholding rates of 6 percent state and 2 percent city are applied where applicable. The Federal supplemental tax withholding rate is found in Publication 15, Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide, which can be found at the IRS website (<http://www.irs.gov/>). A lump-sum annual leave payment is subject to either Social Security and Medicare tax withholding or only Medicare tax withholding, whichever was applicable to the last wages paid the individual. The lump-sum leave payment is not creditable for retirement or TSP purposes and no deduction is made for life or health insurance.

3. Employee Indebtedness Check

IBB Form IBB-0134, Clearance for Final Salary Payment, must be completed prior to payment of lump-sum leave to assure that there is no employee indebtedness.

4. Accounting

The lump-sum leave payment must be charged to appropriated funds available for the payment of salaries on the date of separation.

5. Short Term Employment

Employees who do not complete 90 calendar days of continuous employment under one or more appointments are not entitled to a lump-sum leave payment.

6. Reemployed Annuitants

A lump-sum annual leave payment may not be made to an employee who retires and is reemployed without a break in service in a position to which annual leave is transferable. Such an employee will be entitled to a lump-sum payment for annual leave accrued under both the pre-retirement and post-retirement appointments upon final separation. The hourly rate for the payment calculation will be the full salary rate of the reemployed position without any reduction for the amount of the employee's retirement annuity. A lump-sum annual leave payment does not have an affect on a retired employee's annuity payment.

8. Advance Payment Of Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC)

a. If eligibility requirements are met, an individual may be entitled to an Earned Income Tax Credit against the individual's U.S. income tax liability. If the amount of the credit is greater than the amount of the tax liability, the excess is treated as an overpayment of taxes and generally will be refunded to the individual at the time a tax return is filed.

b. A U.S. citizen employee, however, may be granted advance payment of Earned Income Tax Credit if eligibility requirements are met. See the following IRS publications for further details: Publication 15, Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide; Publication 596, Earned Income Tax Credit; and Publication 962, Earned Income Tax Credit. The advance is not applicable to FSNs or other overseas employees.

c. An eligible employee must file Form W-5, Earned Income Tax Credit Advance Payment Certificate, with the Payroll Service Center to initiate an advance payment.

d. An advance EITC payment is not compensation for services and is not subject to payroll taxes. Therefore, an advance EITC payment does not change the amount of income tax or social security tax withholding.

5. PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS AND CONTRIBUTIONS

1. General

Procedures related to mandatory and voluntary deductions from employee salaries, contributions from employers, as well as other payroll deductions are found in Section 9.4.

1. Scope and Applicability

a. This subchapter is applicable to U.S. citizen employees, Foreign Service National (FSN) employees, and AMCIT employees unless otherwise stated. AMCIT employees are defined in Section 9.2.2.1.

b. Payroll deductions are those mandatory and voluntary items that are reductions from the gross pay of an employee. Payroll contributions are those payroll-related costs that are borne by the employer, such as the Social Security and Medicare employer tax, the employer's funding for TSP, and the employer contributions to the retirement systems. Employees may also make allotments of pay for authorized purposes.

1. Mandatory Deductions

a. Mandatory deductions for U. S. citizen employees include withholding of U.S. Federal, State and local income taxes, deduction for U.S. Social Security taxes, Foreign Service retirement, Civil Service retirement, Federal Employees' Group Basic Life Insurance, and Federal Employees' Health Benefits (FEHB). The payroll system also makes deductions for indebtedness to the United States that qualifies for salary offset, and for court ordered garnishments and bankruptcy payments.

b. Mandatory deductions are made from the salary of eligible Foreign Service National employees continuing in the Civil Service Retirement System. U.S. Federal income tax and U.S. Social Security taxes are withheld on Foreign Service National employees who are U.S. permanent resident aliens (i.e., holders of green cards). Deductions are mandatory for local retirement, life, health, or other benefits when local law requires coverage.

c. Payments to AMCIT employees are subject to U.S. Federal income tax and U.S. Social Security taxes. Deductions are also mandatory for host-country retirement, life, health, or other benefits when local law requires coverage.

2. Voluntary Deductions

a. Voluntary deductions from the pay of eligible U.S. citizen employees are made for the Thrift Savings Plan (TSP), repayment of TSP loans, Flexible Spending Accounts, Long Term Care Insurance, and FEGLI optional life insurance.

b. Voluntary deductions are made from the salaries of Foreign Service National employees and AMCIT employees who participate in optional programs.

3. Other Deductions

Other deductions are made from the salaries and wages of employees when determined to be legal and required or authorized by law or regulations for:

a. Overpayment of salary or other erroneous payments;

b. Outstanding travel advances;

c. Repayment of travel card indebtedness;

d. Refunds of lump-sum payments;

e. Voluntary repayment of indebtedness to the United States;

f. Satisfaction of Federal income tax levies; and

g. Any purpose approved jointly by the heads of agencies in a country, authorized jointly by headquarters agencies participating in the interagency compensation agreement, and within the current capability of the payroll system.

4. Prohibited Deductions

Foreign taxes or other assessments are not withheld from the FSN and AMCIT salaries. FSN and AMCIT employees are individually responsible for the payment of taxes imposed by the government of the host country. A post should not assume any obligation or responsibility to withhold taxes levied by the host government, except where, and in a manner, specifically approved by the Department of State. One basic consideration involved in handling requests to withhold taxes is that neither the host government nor the employee should be given the mistaken impression that the U.S. Government wishes to preclude or discourage the employees of its establishments from complying with the laws of their countries.

5. Allotment of Pay

For U.S. Savings Bonds, Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) contribution and union dues, see Section 9.5.8, Allotments of Pay.

2. Authority

Guidance for payroll deductions and contributions is based on the following:

a. Chapter 8 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended, and Section 408 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended;

b. 5 U.S.C. Sections 5516, 5517, 5520, 5525, 8431-8440, 8701-8716, 8901-8913, 22 U.S.C. Section 4040, 26 U.S.C. Chapters 24, 31, Section 6331, and 42 U.S.C. Section 405;

c. Human Resources & Payroll Systems Requirements, JFMIP SR-99-5, April 1999; and

d. 5 CFR FPM 890, Sections 1600-1699, 22 CFR, 26 CFR, and 31 CFR Sections 215, 351, 353.

3. Deductions Through Automated Payroll system

a. Payroll systems must meet U.S. tax withholding and reporting requirements.

b. Management controls must be established and maintained at a satisfactory level to ensure the accuracy of the employee deductions and the employer contributions. Detailed policy on management controls is contained in Section 9.2.5.

4. Order of Withholding Precedence for Payroll Deductions

If the gross pay (earnings) of an employee is not sufficient to permit all mandatory and voluntary deductions to be made, the following order of precedence will apply unless specified otherwise by a bankruptcy court under the bankruptcy laws of 11 U.S.C., OPM, or other laws or regulations:

- a. Retirement (CSRS, FERS, FSRDS, or FSPS);
- b. Thrift Savings Plan (pretax);
- c. Health Benefits Deductions /Health Benefits Deductions receivable repayment (pretax);
- d. Flexible Spending Account deduction (pretax);
- e. Social Security tax and/or Medicare tax;
- f. Federal income taxes;
- g. Health Benefits Deduction/Health Benefits Deductions receivable repayment (post-tax);
- h. FEGLI Basic (excluding optional) life insurance deductions;
- i. State income taxes;
- j. County or city income taxes;
- k. Indebtedness due the United States under provisions of the Debt Collection Act;
- l. Occupational Privilege Tax
- m. Garnishment for alimony and child support payments;
- n. Commercial garnishment orders;
- o. Court-ordered bankruptcy payments under 11 U.S.C.;
- p. FEGLI optional life insurance deductions;
- q. Voluntary repayments of indebtedness to the United States in the order specified by the employee
- r. Other voluntary deductions (long-term care insurance; U.S. Savings Bonds; Combined Federal Campaign (CFC); union dues; savings allotments); and
- s. Levies by the Internal Revenue Service for delinquent prior tax year Federal income taxes/penalties.

2. Retirement

1. Foreign Service Retirement

- a. There are two Foreign Service retirement systems applicable to U.S. citizens in the Foreign Service for which contributions from the employer and deductions from the employee are made: The Foreign Service Retirement and Disability System (FSRDS) and the Foreign Service Pension System (FSPS).
- b. An eligible employee hired prior to or on December 31, 1983, who did not elect to transfer to FSPS remains in the FSRDS. The FSRDS is the Foreign Service equivalent of the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) as described in chapter 83 of Title 5, U.S.C. and 5 CFR 831. Participation in this plan is not available to newly hired BBG employees. The employee is subject to only the Medicare taxes.
- c. The FSRDS Offset is the Foreign Service equivalent of the CSRS Offset. It is essentially the same as FSRDS, except that employees must participate in social security coverage as a condition of employment. Employee deductions are reduced by the amount of the social security contribution (Old Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance (OASDI) tax) in effect for the tax year involved for income below the Social Security contribution and benefit ceiling. Once the Social Security contribution and benefit ceiling has been reached in a given tax year, deductions for this retirement plan will no longer be reduced by the social security tax through the end of that tax year and will be fully credited to the retirement plan for that year.

d. The FSPS is the Foreign Service equivalent of the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS), as described in chapter 84 of Title 5, U.S.C. and 5 CFR 841. In general, an eligible employee (1) hired prior to or on December 31, 1983, or (2) rehired on or after that date after a break in service of more than 365 days, or (3) who elected to transfer from FSRDS, is in the FSPS. The employee is subject to both the OASDI and Medicare taxes.

1. Authority

The authority governing the Foreign Service retirement systems is contained in Chapter 8 of the Foreign Service Act of 1980, as amended (22 U.S.C. 4040). For further discussion see 3 FAM 6100 .

2. Rates

Please refer to Appendix 1 at the end of this Chapter for guidance on employee deductions and agency contributions for FSRDS and FSPS retirement plans. Also included is guidance on TSP deductions.

3. Compensation Base for Foreign Service Retire Computation

a. The compensation upon which the FSRDS is computed is base pay inclusive of any locality-based comparability under 5 U.S.C. 5304 or interim geographic adjustment or special law enforcement adjustment under section 302 or 404 respectively of the Federal Employees Pay Comparability Act of 1990.

b. The compensation upon which the FSPS is computed is that in paragraph a of this section plus standby duty pay, administrative uncontrollable overtime (AUO), and tropical differential on the Isthmus of Panama. All other payments such as awards, bonuses, regular overtime, holiday pay, night differential, post differential, danger pay, and lump-sum leave are excluded.

4. Accounting for Foreign Service Retirement Deductions and Contributions

The employer contribution is charged to the same appropriation and allotment which funds the individual's basic pay. All employer contributions and employee deductions are transferred directly to the appropriate Foreign Service retirement receipt accounts.

5. Coverage While Serving With an International Organization

An employee transferred to an international organization under 5 U.S.C. 3581 through 3584 may elect to continue earning retirement credit under FSRDS by paying to the Federal agency the usual employee's retirement payment at least quarterly.

6. Reemployed Foreign Service Annuitant (FSRDS or FSPS)

When a Foreign Service annuitant is reemployed in the Federal Government, the employer shall notify the Retirement Division (PER/RCT/RET), Room 1251, Washington, D.C., 20520 in accordance with 22 U.S.C. 4064(e). It is recommended that the annuitant also advise the Department of State of their reemployment. If the annuitant is reemployed in a Government appointive or elective position on a full-time basis, the annuity is suspended. An annuitant reemployed on a part-time, intermittent, or temporary basis may elect to continue to receive the annuity. However, the sum of the annuity and the salary of the position in which reemployed may not in any calendar year exceed the greater of:

- a. The highest annual rate of basic pay payable during the year for full time employment in the position in which the annuitant is employed; or
- b. The annual rate of basic pay the annuitant was entitled to receive on the date of retirement from the Service.

2. Civil Service Retirement

- a. For U.S. citizens, Civil Service retirement consists of two retirement systems: the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) or the Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS).
- b. Eligible employees hired prior to or on December 31, 1983, who did not elect to transfer to FERS remain in the CSRS. The employee is subject to only the Medicare portion of FICA taxes and may invest up to the IRS annual limit in the Thrift Savings Plan (TSP).
- c. An eligible employee rehired in a CSRS position after 1983 following a more-than-one-year break in service who had more than five years of service on December 31, 1986, or when rehired, if later, is classified as a CSRS-Offset employee. CSRS coverage is partially offset by Social Security, thus the employee pays a reduced CSRS rate, full Social Security and Medicare taxes and may invest up to the IRS annual limit in the TSP.
- d. An eligible employee (1) hired prior to or on December 31, 1983, or (2) rehired on or after that date after a break in service of more than 365 days, or (3) who elected to transfer from CSRS is in FERS. The employee is subject to both the OASDI and Medicare parts of the FICA taxes and may invest up to the IRS annual limit in the TSP to which the employer will also contribute up to 5 percent.
- e. Foreign Service National employees hired after December 31, 1983, cannot be newly enrolled in CSRS. However, those enrolled in CSRS prior to or on that date may continue to participate. If the enrolled employee is also a U.S. permanent resident alien (PRA), the employee is subject to OASDI and Medicare taxes. Foreign Service National employees are not eligible to participate in FERS or in the TSP.
- f. U.S. retirement plans are not applicable to AMCITs.

1. Authority

The authority governing Civil Service retirement is 5 U.S.C. Chapters 83 and 84 and OPM regulations 5 CFR 831 and 841.

2. Rates

Please refer to Appendix 1 at the end of this Chapter for guidance on employee deductions and agency contributions for CSRS and FERS retirement plans. Also included is guidance on TSP deductions.

3. Compensation Base for Civil Service Retirement Computation

- a. The compensation upon which the rates in Section 9.5.2.2.2 are applied for General Schedule employees is the sum of base pay, standby duty pay, and administrative uncontrollable overtime (AUO). For Federal Wage Schedule employees it also includes night differential, environmental differential and Guam recruitment differential. Payments such as awards, bonuses, regular overtime and holiday pay, night differential for General Schedule employees, post differential, danger pay, and lump-sum leave are excluded.

- b. The compensation upon which the CSRS rates are applied for FSN employees is normally the basic rate unless otherwise specified in the local compensation plan.

4. Accounting for Civil Service Retirement deductions and Contributions

- a. Employer contributions and employee deductions for Civil Service retirement plans are paid to OPM receipt account 24X8135.8 on the biweekly payroll voucher. A Journal Voucher and Form SF-2812, Report of Withholdings and Contributions for Health Benefits, Life Insurance and Retirement (RITS Interface) transmitted to the Office of Personnel Management.

b. The FSN payroll offices pay in a like manner the U.S. dollar equivalent of contributions and deductions for FSN employees who are in the CSRS.

5. Reemployed Civil Service annuitant (CSRS or FERS)

According to 5 U.S.C. 8344(a) and 8468 an amount equal to the annuity allocable to the period of reemployment must be deducted from the pay of a reemployed CSRS or FERS annuitant whose annuity continues during reemployment. This applies to an annuitant serving in an appointive or elective position unless excepted by OPM for exceptional needs or emergency. The amounts deducted are deposited into the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the Civil Service Retirement Fund/Federal Employee Retirement System Fund, 24X8135.8, and reported on Form SF-2812 (RITS Interface).

3. Taxes

1. Employment Tax

1. Authority

a. As a part of the U.S. Social Security and Medicare programs there are income and health insurance benefits for the aged for which the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) levies an employee tax and an employer tax on wages paid (26 U.S.C. 3100 and 26 CFR 31.3100). Thus the tax may be called an employment tax or FICA tax.

b. The FICA tax consists of two parts:

1. Old Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance (OASDI) and

2. Medicare.

c. Any request by the host government for levy of an employment tax should immediately be brought to the attention of Personnel and the Office of General Counsel.

2. Payments Subject to Social Security and Medicare Taxes

Base pay and the following kinds of remuneration actually paid in a tax year to persons eligible under Section 9.5.3.1.3 and Section 9.5.3.1.4 are subject to FICA tax. OASDI is applicable on remuneration only up to the Social Security annual wage ceiling; there is no annual wage ceiling for Medicare tax.

a. Other types of compensation:

1. -Overtime;

2. -Holiday, Night, and Sunday Pay;

3. -Standby Duty;

4. -Administratively Uncontrollable Overtime Work;

5. -Special Differential for Substantial Amounts of Extra Work;

6. -Post Differential;

7. -Physicians Comparability Allowance;

8. -Danger Pay; and

9. -Language Incentive Differential.

b. All cash awards and lump-sum leave payments;

c. Certain fringe benefits;

d. The unpaid salary, unused annual leave and other compensation of a deceased employee within the ceiling specified, if paid in the same calendar year in which death occurred. If paid after the year of death, FICA taxes are not applicable. (26 CFR 31.3121 (a) (14)-1);

e. All payments made to Foreign Service National employees who hold green cards. The exemption of various allowances provided by 26 U.S.C. 912 is not applicable to FSN/PRAs;

f. All payments made to AMCIT employees. The exemption for various allowances provided by 26 U.S.C. 912 is not applicable.

3. Personnel subject to Full FICA Tax

Remuneration paid to the following personnel is subject to full FICA tax (i.e., both the OASDI and the Medicare components):

- a. U.S. citizen employees not covered by the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) or the Foreign Service Retirement and Disability System (FSRDS);
- b. U.S. citizen employees termed CSRS-offset employees described Section 9.5.2.2.2, paragraph c and FSRDS-offset employees described in Section 9.4.5.2.1, paragraph c;
- c. Foreign Service National employees who are U.S. permanent resident aliens (PRAs) and who do not participate in the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS). The post personnel officer should check bilateral social security totalization agreement for any possible exception.
- d. Foreign Service National personal services contractors who are U.S. permanent resident aliens (PRAs). The post personnel officer should check bilateral social security totalization agreements for any possible exception.
- e. AMCIT employees. Post personnel offices should check bilateral social security totalization agreement for possible exception.

4. Personnel Subject To Medicare Tax

Remuneration paid to the following persons is subject to only the Medicare portion of FICA:

- a. U. S. citizen employees who have continuously performed service since December 31, 1983, covered by the CSRS or the FSRDS. Service is considered continuous if any break in service did not exceed 365 consecutive days;
- b. Foreign Service National employees who are U.S. permanent resident aliens (PRAs) who have continuously performed service since December 31, 1983 covered by the CSRS. Check bilateral Social Security totalization agreements for possible exception.

5. FICA Tax Withholding Rates

It is the responsibility of the employer to withhold the proper employment tax from employees' pay and to make the prescribed employer's contribution. Rates are as stated in 26 U.S.C. 3101 (a) and (b). The maximum annual amount of earnings on which FICA taxes are paid is announced by the Social Security Administration by November 1 for the upcoming calendar year. Both the rates and the wage ceiling are published in IRS Circular E: Employer's Tax Guide which is reissued annually.

6. Accounting for FICA Deductions and Contributions

The FICA taxes and any withheld income tax must usually be paid to the appropriate Federal Reserve Bank biweekly by the payroll service provider. A completed Federal Tax Deposit Coupon should accompany the payment to assure proper identification and posting. FSN payroll offices pay to the appropriate Federal Reserve Bank the U.S. dollar equivalent of contributions and deductions of FSN/PRAs and AMCIT employees. Withholdings are also reported on Form W-2, issued annually.

2. U.S. Federal Income Tax Withholding

1. Authority

The authority for withholding U.S. Federal Income Tax is contained in 26 U.S.C. Chapter 24 (Sections 3401-3405).

2. Personnel Subject to Withholding

Every employee or any other individual providing services who meets IRS's common-law rules on employer-employee relationship and falls into one of the following categories is subject to tax withholding rules:

- a. U.S. citizens, including dual nationals;
- b. Resident alien performing service in or outside the United States;

- c. Nonresident alien working in the United States; or
- d. Foreign Service National employee who has U.S. permanent resident alien status (PRA), i.e., holds a green card.

3. Payments Subject to Withholding

Payments subject to FICA taxes are generally also subject to U.S. Federal income tax withholding. The exception to this arises when an employee makes pre-tax deductions for health insurance premiums, and flexible savings plans. These pre-tax deductions from pay, authorized under Section 125 of the Internal Revenue Code, reduce the amount of compensation on which Federal income tax is withheld is computed. TSP, also a pre-tax deduction and authorized under Section 401(k) of the Internal Revenue Service, also reduces the amount of compensation on which Federal income tax is withheld is computed.

4. Payments Exempt From Withholding

a. The payroll office will not deduct and withhold U.S. Federal Income tax from employee salaries and wages when the employee certifies exempt status, i.e., that no income tax liability was incurred the preceding year nor is anticipated for the current year. Such employee must file a new Form W-4 each year by February 15.

b. Allowances paid to U.S. citizens through the payroll system that are exempt from FICA are generally also exempt from income tax withholding, including the following:

1. Temporary quarters subsistence allowance and overseas quarters allowance;
2. Post allowance; and
3. Separate maintenance allowance.

c. Other payments such as unpaid salary and unused annual leave of deceased employees are not subject to income tax withholding.

5. U.S. Federal Income Tax Withholding Certificate

a. Each individual who is subject to U. S. Federal income tax is required to complete and submit a Form W-4, Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate, to the employer.

b. Until such time as Form W-4 is received, tax will be withheld on the basis of zero allowances at the rate applicable to a single person. A withholding deduction based on a new or revised W-4 becomes effective at the beginning of the pay period following receipt of the form. Changes in withholding deductions are not made effective retroactively.

c. If an employee expects to owe more income tax for the year than will be withheld by claiming every withholding allowance as indicated by the W-4 work sheet, the employee may increase the withholding by claiming a smaller number of withholding allowances on Form W-4.

d. Additional withholding may be requested on line 6 of the Form W-4.

e. Copies of Form W-4 are subject to review by the IRS and BBG may be required to send a copy to the IRS.

6. Tax Withholding Computation

a. The Internal Revenue Code allows a number of different methods for figuring tax withholding. The payroll systems calculate withholding by the percentage method.

b. When a payment of regular salary is being made for two or more pay periods, tax withholding deductions are computed individually for each pay period.

c. Tax withholding deductions from large one-time payments such as awards are at a flat 28 percent rate unless the employee is exempt.

Section 9.5.3.2.7 Earned Income Credit Advance Payment

a. The advance Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) allows those taxpayers who expect to qualify for the EITC and have at least one qualifying child to receive part of the credit in each paycheck during the year the taxpayer qualifies for the credit.

b. If you are working and

1. you expect that your 2006 adjusted gross income (AGI) and earned income will each be less than $32,001 ($34,001 if you expect to file a joint return for 2006),

2. you expect to have at least one qualifying child, and

3. you expect to qualify for the EITC, you can choose to get part of the credit with your paycheck. The advance Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) for TY 2006 maximum credit the employer is allowed to provide throughout the year with the employees pay is $1,648.

c. To see if you qualify for Advance EITC payments by completing the five questions on the back of Form W-5, Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate, available here online, or by clicking here to use the Advance EITC Wizard, or through the BBG Payroll Service Center.

1. If you qualify, complete the bottom part of the Form W-5 and give it to your employer. Then, based on your income, your employer adds additional money to your take-home pay in each paycheck.

2. If your only income is from self-employment, you cannot qualify for advance EITC payments.

3. The Form W-5 is unlike the Form W-4 in that it must be completed and given to the employer (i.e. the BBG Payroll Service Center) every year by no later than February 15 deadline date for it to remain in effect. If no new Form W-5 is received by the deadline date to renew the EITC and no new W-4 is received, the employee will default to 'Single' withholding status and '0' exemptions.

d. Your advance EITC payments could change if, during the year, your income rises above the dollar limit, or you no longer qualify for the EITC, you need to fill out a new Form W-5 and give it to your employer to stop the advance payments.

e. If you no longer qualify for the Advance EITC, you will have to repay all advance EITC money when you file your tax return.

3. State Income Tax Withholding

1. Authority

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 5516-5517, the Secretary of the Treasury executes agreements with States for Federal agencies to withhold State income tax from applicable compensation (1 TFM 3-5000).

2. Employee's Declaration of State Tax Withholding

a. Each employee hired in the United States, regardless of where stationed, shall have on file with BBG a certification that currently identifies their obligation, or absence thereof, for state income tax withholding.

b. As withholding rules may vary from state to state and with the individual's particular circumstances, the employee must ascertain his or her proper filing status. In the Washington area with the three taxing entities Virginia, Maryland, and D.C., the taxing entity is that in which the employee resides. Note that Foreign Service officers resident in the District of Columbia can no longer claim the non-domiciliary exemption as they could prior to 1988.

c. Employees are alerted that change in residence or assignment may require re-filing.

d. State income taxes will be withheld from compensation in accordance with each individual's certification. If a certification is not filed in accordance with paragraph a above, tax shall be withheld at the maximum rate applicable to the individual's last known U.S. address. Exceptions to this rule are where the employee's last known U.S. address was in a non-taxing state (e.g. Texas or Florida).

3. Payments Subject to Withholding

Generally the same elements of compensation subject to Federal income tax withholding (see Section 9.5.3.2.3) are subject to state income tax withholding. However, the States of Pennsylvania and New Jersey do not exclude employee's investment deductions for the TSP as the Federal Government and other States do.

4. Tax Withholding Computation

Withholding is calculated at the state's prescribed rates. State tax withholding on large one-time payments such as awards is at a flat 6 percent rate unless the employee is exempt or there is no state tax.

5. Local Income Tax Withholding

City or county withholding is made for any employee who is subject to a local tax and (1) whose regular place of employment is within the boundaries of the county or city or (2) is a resident of the city or county. If the residence and place of employment are not both within the State in which the city or county is located, withholding is at the option of the employee. The employee should complete a withholding certificate accordingly. Tax withholding on large one-time payments such as awards is at a flat 2 percent rate if there is a local tax.

4. Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance (FEGLI)

1. Authority

The Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Act of 1954 (5 U.S.C. 8701-8716) provides low-cost group insurance for employees of the Federal Government. See MOA Part V-A Section 504.

2. Eligibility

In general, all U.S. citizen full-time or part-time permanent employees are eligible to participate in the group life insurance plan unless excluded by law or regulation. The "Federal Employees Group Life Insurance (FEGLI) FEGLI Program Booklet for Employees" contains general information on the program. This material is available in the personnel office. Detailed instructions, procedures and regulations concerning FEGLI are available online. Foreign Service National and AMCIT employees are not eligible.

3. Coverage of Employees

a. Eligible employees automatically acquire Basic Insurance coverage as of the first day that they are in a pay status unless they waive it on Form SF-2817, Life Insurance Election-Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Program.

b. Eligible employees may also elect optional life insurance coverage (Option A-Standard, Option B-Additional, and Option-C Family) on Form SF-2817.

c. Employees in nonpay status:

1. An employee in a nonpay status retains insurance coverage without cost to the employee or the agency for up to twelve months, after which the insurance terminates. See FEGLI pamphlet SF-2817-A for guidance on the conversion right to a private non-group contract;

2. Insurance coverage that is terminated after twelve months of Leave Without Pay (LWOP) is restored automatically when the employee returns to non-excluded employment or if the employee is granted an annuity effective no later than one month after the employee's insurance is terminated; and

3. An employee serving in an international organization under 5 U.S.C. 3582 may elect to continue insurance coverage by paying the employee's share of the premium to the Federal agency at least quarterly. In these cases, the employee is to send the personal check/money order to the Broadcasting Board of Governors, Director, Financial Operations, Suite 3250, 330 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, DC 20237, make check/money order payable to the Broadcasting Board of Governors and include his/her social security number with the text "FEGLI Quarterly payment" in the remarks.

4. Waiver of Life Insurance Coverage

Execution of the waiver section of Form SF-2817 by an employee with insurance coverage authorizes the discontinuance of life insurance deductions. Deductions cease as of the last day of the pay period in which the waiver is properly filed. A properly executed waiver, once submitted to the employing agency, remains in effect until canceled, even if the employee transfers to another agency or is reappointed after a break in service of less than 180 days.

5. Request for Cancellation of Waiver of Life Insurance Coverage

An employee who desires to be insured, and has previously waived coverage, may request insurance by submitting Form SF-2822, Request For Insurance-Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Program, if:

- a. At least one year has elapsed between the effective date of the last waiver and the date of request for insurance;

- b. The employee provides adequate medical evidence of insurability .

6. Basic Life Insurance

1. Amount of Insurance

- a. The annual pay upon which the amount of an employee's insurance is based is the employee's annual pay rate as fixed by law or regulation. This includes any interim geographic adjustment or locality based comparability or special law enforcement adjustment. It also includes any:

1. Standby duty pay;

2. Administratively uncontrollable overtime (AUO); and

3. Night, environmental and Guam recruitment differential for Federal Wage Schedule employees.

- b. The amount of Basic Insurance on which the premium is computed is the annual pay rate rounded to the next higher thousand, plus $2,000. The minimum possible is $10,000 and the maximum is the above computation for Federal Executive Level II.

2. Employee Deduction

The deduction for Basic Life Insurance is made from the employee's pay biweekly. The current (July 2005) biweekly rate is 15 cents per $1,000.

3. Agency Contribution

The employer contributes an amount equal to 50 percent of the employee's deduction for Basic Life.

7. Optional Insurance

The total premium cost for the optional insurance coverage is deducted from the employee's pay.

8. Life Insurance After Retirement

If the eligible retiree retains life insurance, the retiree's portion of the premium is deducted from the monthly annuity and OPM pays the Government's contribution.

5. Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB)

1. Authority

The Federal Employees Health Benefits Act of 1959 as contained in 5 U.S.C. 8901-8913 and FPM Chapter 890 and Supplement 890-1 is the basis for health benefits available to U.S. citizen employees. Also see MOA Part V-A Section 505.

2. Eligibility

Most U.S. citizen, career or career-conditional employees (except those serving under appointments limited to one year or less and AMCIT employees) are eligible to participate in the health benefit plans. Refer to 5 CFR 890 for specific criteria.

3. Employee Deductions and Employer Contributions

FEHB deductions are made from the employee's salary at the biweekly rate applicable to the employee's elected health plan. These rates are set annual by the OPM and are available on their website (<http://www.opm.gov/insure/health/index.asp> ; under the section 'How to Choose a Plan', select 'Premiums'). The employing agency contributes the appropriate amount as determined by OPM. This is a pre-tax deduction (a.k.a premium conversion) unless otherwise authorized by the employee to be deducted after-tax by waiving the premium conversion.

4. Coverage While on Leave Without Pay (LWOP)

a. FEHB coverage continues for an employee on LWOP for up to 365 days unless it is canceled by submitting Form SF-2809, Health Benefits Registration Form-Federal Employees Health Benefits Program. An employee entering on LWOP should execute a statement for the employing agency on how the employee premium will be paid. The agency continues to pay the employer's contribution.

b. If the employee does not sign a statement canceling the benefits, it is deemed that the employee has consented to continue the FEHB coverage, subject to the 365 day limit and any outstanding indebtedness for health benefit premiums will be deducted from salary upon return to pay status or recovered from any lump sum payable or other sources available for recovery of an indebtedness due the United States.

c. Before expiration of the 365 days, an employee may complete the reverse side of Form SF-2810, Federal Employees Health Form Benefits Program-Notice of Change in Health Benefits Enrollment, for conversion to a private non-group insurance contract.

d. The employee may request cancellation of coverage at anytime by completion of Form SF-2809.

5. Coverage While Serving With an International Organization

An employee serving with an international organization under 5 U.S.C. 3343 or 3581 through 3584 may elect to continue FEHB coverage by paying to the Federal agency the employee's premium at least quarterly. In these cases, the employee is to send the personal check/money order to the Broadcasting Board of Governors, Director, Financial Operations, Suite 3250, 330 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, DC 20237, make check/money order payable to the Broadcasting Board of Governors and include his/her social security number with the text "FEHB Quarterly payment" in the remarks.

6. Others Eligible For FEHB Coverage

Other groups qualifying for FEHB coverage include:

a. An annuitant's FEHB premium is deducted from the monthly annuity. OPM funds the Government's contribution;

b. Former spouses of employees or former employees eligible for continued FEHB coverage under Section 932 or 833 of the Foreign Service Act, as amended, must arrange to pay both the employee and agency share of the premium. If the insured is not entitled to annuity or apportionment payments, he or she must remit premiums monthly to the Foreign Service Retirement Accounts Division (FMP/F/DFS/OCF/RAD); and

c. Temporary continuation of FEHB coverage for 18 months or 36 months is provided beginning January 1, 1990, under Pub. L. 100-654 to certain separated employees, children, and former spouses. The program is called "FEHB TCC" and participants must pay the full premium (the employee and Government portions) plus a two percent surcharge.

6. Thrift Savings Plan (TSP)

TSP consists of several investment funds. Eligible employees may direct their TSP deductions and any employer contributions into the:

- a. The G Fund, Government Securities Investment Fund;
- b. The C Fund, Common Stock Index Investment Fund;
- c. The F Fund, Fixed Income Index Investment Fund;
- d. The S Fund, Small Capitalization Stock Index Investment Fund;
- e. The I Fund, International Stock Index Investment Fund; and
- f. The L Fund, (Lifecycle Funds) diversify participant accounts among the G, F, C, S, and I funds, using professionally determined investment mixes (allocations) that are tailored to different time horizons. Detailed information on the Thrift Savings Plan Funds, Policies and Procedures can be found at <http://www.tsp.gov>. Participants can use this website to access balances and other account information. Additional guidance can be found in MOA Part V-A Section 502.

1. Authority

Title 5 U.S.C. sections 8351, 8431-8440 and 5 CFR 1600-1690 contain the authority and regulations for the tax-deferred Thrift Savings Plan (TSP). Also see section 401 (k) of the Internal Revenue Code.

2. Eligibility

a. Employees in the Civil Service Retirement Systems (CSRS and FERS), and in the Foreign Service Retirement Systems (FSRDS and FSPS) are usually eligible to participate in the TSP. TSP is not available to any FSN or AMCIT employees nor to U.S. citizen employees on temporary or intermittent appointments.

b. Employees must be in pay status for TSP deductions to be withheld from pay or to be eligible for employer contributions to the plan.

3. Enrolling, Changing or Stopping Investment

Employees may make an election to start, stop or change the amount of their contribution at any time.

4. Employee Deductions

a. The employee may elect to invest either a whole percentage of basic pay or a specified whole dollar amount per pay period. If an employee elects a whole dollar amount and the amount exceeds the equivalent of the maximum allowable rate, then the maximum allowable rate will be invested for that pay period.

b. Total employee investment in a tax year may not exceed the ceiling limitation set in the U.S. Tax Code (26 U.S.C. 402(g)(1)). This limitation, published on the TSP website and in the Thrift Savings Plan for Federal Employees booklet, changes annually. This annual ceiling on tax-deferred investment is inclusive of any retroactive payments made during the year.

c. FERS and FSPS employees—The maximum deduction for the TSP may not exceed the IRS annual limit. When the annual ceiling for employee investment is reached, employee deductions and employer matching contributions are suspended for the remainder of the tax year. Therefore, it is to a higher-salaried employee's advantage to elect a rate of investment that spreads employee TSP deductions evenly throughout the tax year so that agency matching contributions will be made throughout the tax year.

d. CSRS and FSRDS employees—CSRS and FSRDS employees may invest up to the IRS annual limit.

5. Partial Deductions

When the net pay available for the TSP deduction in a pay period is less than either the amount computed based on the elected percentage of basic pay or the elected whole dollar amount, no TSP employee deduction will be made for the pay period.

6. Employer Contributions

a. FERS and FSPS Employees—The employer contributes 1 percent of basic pay to the TSP account of a FERS or FSPS employee, regardless of whether the employee elects to invest in TSP. If the employee does not submit Form TSP-1 to indicate their investment choice, the 1 percent will be invested in the G fund. The employer also matches dollar for dollar the first 3 percent the employee invests. For next 2 percent the employee invests, the employer matches 50 cents of each dollar invested.

For an illustration, please see Appendix 1 to this Chapter. The agency 1 percent automatic contribution continues throughout the tax year, even after a high-salaried employee's investment deductions reach the tax code annual limitation discussed in Section 9.5.6.4.

b. CSRS and FSRDS Employees—Employees in the CSRS and the FSRDS are not eligible for the agency automatic 1 percent contribution or the agency matching contributions.

7. Taxability of Employee's Deductions for TSP

Employee investments in the TSP are tax-deferred for U.S. federal income tax, i.e., they are deducted from pay before U.S. federal income tax is computed. These payments are also tax-deferred for State income tax except in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. However, TSP deductions are subject to FICA taxes.

8. Loans

If the employee obtains a loan from their TSP account from the Thrift Board, the payroll system will facilitate repayment through recurring deductions from biweekly pay to the TSP in accordance with a properly executed Form TSP-22, TSP Loan Payment Allotment Form. When repayment of such a loan has been completed, the Thrift Board will issue a letter stating such to the employee. When the employee provides a copy of the letter to the BBG Payroll Service Center, further deductions for the loan repayment will be stopped.

9. TSP Account Statements

The employee will receive a TSP Participant Statement twice a year directly from the TSP Office at the National Finance Center (NFC). An employee can also access their account information at <http://www.tsp.gov>. The employee should review his or her biweekly earnings and leave statement and TSP statements to make certain that proper deductions and any agency contributions are reflected. Employees can also direct the distribution of their withholdings/contributions among the available Funds from this website.

10. Correction of Agency Administrative Error

1. Administrative Error

a. An employee may present a claim for retroactive correction of an act or omission by the employing agency that was not in accordance with applicable statutes, regulations or administrative procedures, such as:

1. Failure to participate;
2. Delay in participation;
3. Insufficient deduction or contribution;
4. Excess deduction or contribution;
5. Incorrect investment fund; or
6. Ineligible participation.

b. BBG may correct an administrative error that is brought to or comes to its attention, regardless of whether an employee submits a claim. Administrative errors under this section shall be addressed consistent with 5 CFR Part 1605.

c. If any BBG employee believes that an error has occurred, the employee must make a formal claim to OFO. The employee must make the claim in writing and include the employee's social security number, a complete description of the claim, and include all supporting documentation.

d. BBG must promptly correct any error for which the participant files a claim within six months of its occurrence; the correction of any such error for which the participant files a claim after that time is in the BBG's sound discretion. Errors arising from retirement system misclassification must be corrected no matter when they are discovered, whether by the agency or a participant.

e. The Director, Office of Financial Operations shall issue the employee a written decision regarding the claim within 30 days of receipt of the employee's written claim. The Director, Office of Financial Operations shall review each claim as to validity in order to seek appropriate resolution.

f. If the claim is denied in whole or in part, the written decision of the Director, Office of Financial Operations, must contain the determination of the claim (approval or denial). In the case of a denial, the notification must contain:

1. a determination on the claim;
2. the reasons for denial;
3. all appropriate references to applicable statutes or regulations;
4. any additional material or information that would enable the Director Office of Financial Operations to grant the employee's claim (if applicable);
5. an opportunity for employee to perfect the case;
6. a description of the employee's appeal rights;
7. the name and address of the appeal officer; and
8. the appeal time limits (30 days from date of receipt).

g. Within 30 days of receipt of the decision denying the claim, the employee may appeal the decision. The appeal must be in writing and submitted to the Executive Director, BBG. The employee must submit any additional material that would enable the Executive Director, BBG to perfect the appeal.

h. Executive Director, BBG shall issue the employee a written decision within 30 days of receipt of the appeal. Executive Director, BBG is the final resolution authority and must provide a written decision to the employee (including citations to any applicable statutes, regulations or procedures). In the event of a denied appeal, the employee will be deemed to have exhausted his or her administrative remedy and will be eligible to file suit against the employing agency in the appropriate Federal district court pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 8477. There is no administrative appeal to the Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board of a final agency decision.

i. Consult 5 CFR 1606 for additional details of employee claims for lost earnings.

2. Lost Earnings

a. The employing agency shall pay into the employee's TSP account earnings lost by a TSP participant which are attributable to certain administrative errors made by the employer (5 CFR 1606).

b. Only errors exceeding the de minimis rules are eligible for calculation of lost earnings. Lost earnings will not be calculated where the amount of money for a source of contributions (Agency Automatic 1 percent, Employee Deduction, or Agency Matching Contribution) to a participant's account is less than $1.00 (applied separately to each pay period involved). Also, where the error involves delay in submitting deduction or contribution or loan allotment to the TSP, lost earnings are not payable unless the belated payment was received by the TSP record keeper more than thirty days after the pay date associated with the pay period for which the payment would have been submitted had the employing agency error not occurred. The 30-day rule does not apply to investment in an incorrect investment fund.

c. Lost earnings are not payable with respect to employee deductions that should have been deducted but were not (regardless of whether participant makes up those payments in later pay periods). Since the employee had the use of the money, requiring the agency to pay lost earnings would result in a windfall to the employee. Lost earnings are payable on Agency Matching Contributions if the participant does make up previously missed TSP deductions. Lost earnings are paid on Agency 1 percent Contributions delayed more than thirty days after the date they should have been paid.

d. BBG may pay lost earnings when authorized regardless of whether an employee submits a claim. Lost earnings under this section shall be addressed consistent with 5 CFR part 1606.

e. If any BBG employee believes that an agency error has occurred that has resulted in lost earnings, the employee may file a claim. Claims for lost earnings must be filed within one year of the employee's receipt of the earliest of the TSP Participant Statement, TSP Loan Statement, agency earnings and leave statement or other document that indicates that the agency error has affected the employee's TSP account.

f. Claims for lost earnings must be made and will be decided consistent with the procedures outlined in Section 9.4.6.10.1 (b) through (k).

3. Accounting

The TSP record keeper charges lost earnings or investment loss to the submitting payrolling office. The submitting payrolling office will charge the appropriation/allotment which funds the employee's basic pay and the allottee will receive a manually prepared Form SF-1081, Consolidated American Payroll Voucher and Schedule of Withdrawals and Credits, with detailed information. Just as with other payroll processing payments, the recipient agency should not enter Form SF-1081 on its Statement of Transactions as the payroll provider will complete the transfer on its own Form SF-224, Statement of Transactions.

7. Other Deductions

1. Pay Adjustments

a. Upon determination of overpayment, adjustment is usually made in the next pay period, or a check is requested, or a recurring deduction is initiated, depending on the particular circumstances and the amount involved. Procedures in Section 9.8 are to be followed prior to adjustment of salary.

b. Immediate deduction from pay may be made for adjustments to pay arising out of an employee's election of coverage or a change in coverage under a federal benefits program or adjustments in pay if the amount to be recovered was accumulated over four pay periods or less (See 5 CFR 550.1104 (c)(2)).

c. Employee indebtedness incurred while in a nonpay status for the employee share of health insurance premiums should be recovered promptly upon employee's return to duty. The employee should be advised of the amount due and given an opportunity to establish a reasonable payment plan.

d. In accordance with 5 U.S.C. 5514 collection of a debt an employee owes the U.S. Government may be made by offset from salary without the employee's consent provided proper notification and opportunity to exercise administrative rights have been made. The amount of the offset may not exceed 15 percent of the employee's disposable pay. If employment ends before salary offset is completed, the remaining debt will be liquidated by an offset from payment of any nature due the employee (22 CFR 34.16-25).

e. Who may waive claim against the employee is determined by the aggregate gross amount of overpayment without regard to any repayments. Where conditions warrant, collection of overpayments made by the payroll system may be waived by the Director Office of Financial Operations for claims of $500 or less and by the Chief Financial Officer for claims of $1,500 or less. A claim in excess of $1,500 may only be waived by the Chief Financial Officer. When denying waiver of a claim in any amount, the employee should be advised of the right to appeal the denial to the Executive Director, BBG. See Section 9.7 of this Chapter for further details. Note: At post, the principal officer has authority to waive collection of post overpayments aggregating $1,500 or less and this authority may be redelegated in writing to the post administrative officer.

2. Delinquent Travel Advances

A delinquent travel advance may be collected through offset against accrued pay (5 U.S.C. 5705). The amount deducted for any pay period may not exceed 15 percent of disposable pay, unless it is the employee's final check.

3. Garnishment

a. Child Support or Alimony—The maximum part of aggregate disposable earnings subject to garnishment for child support or alimony shall not exceed 50 percent to 65 percent as detailed in 5 CFR 581.402. An order by a court of competent jurisdiction within any State, territory, or possession of the United States or the District of Columbia or a court of competent jurisdiction in any foreign country with which the U.S. has entered into an agreement that requires the U.S. to honor such process will be recognized.

b. Commercial—Commercial garnishment is allowed by Pub. L. 103-94 beginning February 3, 1994. Garnishment by order of a court of competent jurisdiction within any State, territory, or possession of the United States or the District of Columbia is limited to not more than 25 percent of disposable earnings. See 5 CFR 582.

c. State or local tax—Garnishment of disposable earnings for a state or local tax obligation has no percentage or earnings limit.

d. A request for payments pursuant to court-ordered garnishments for BBG employees and personal services contractors shall be submitted to the BBG Payroll Service Center, Office of Financial Operations.

e. Once received by the BBG Payroll Service Center, the documents are transmitted to the Office of the General Counsel for legal review. Once the review is completed, the documents are transmitted to the payroll service provider for implementation.

f. An agency's administrative costs in executing commercial garnishment action may be added to the garnishment and the agency may retain costs recovered as offsetting collections.

4. Levy for U.S. Taxes

Levy may be made upon salary or wages of any employee or elected or appointed official of the United States by serving a notice of levy on the employer of the delinquent taxpayer. Biweekly wages exempt from levy are equal to the sum of the taxpayer's standard deductions, any additional standard deductions due to blindness or age, and personal exemptions divided by 26. Also exempt from levy are amounts necessary to comply with judgments for support of minor children (26 CFR 301.6331 - 301.6334). The IRS serves these levies directly to the payroll service provider for implementation. There is no agency review of the levy document.

5. Judgment Offsets

Where a court determines an employee is indebted to the United States, collection of debt by deduction is made in reasonable amounts from the current pay account of the employee. The maximum amount deducted for any period ordinarily may not exceed 25 percent of the net disposable pay from which the deduction is made unless deduction of a greater amount is necessary to make collection within the expected period of employment. At a minimum, the amount deducted must equal at least 15 percent of the net disposable pay from which the deduction is made (Federal Personnel Manual 552).

8. Allotments Of Pay

1. Authority

a. The basic authority for allotments is 5 U.S.C. 5527, E.O. 10982, and 5 CFR 550.300. See also Federal Personnel Manual Supplement 990-2, Subchapter S3 and Treasury Financial Manual 1-TFM 3-6000 and 7000. Making an allotment of pay is a voluntary act by an employee that carries no corresponding obligations on the part of the U.S. Government and requires no administrative adjudication to become effective.

b. Allotments are revocable at the will of the allotter (employee) and invest no property rights in the allottee (payment recipient) unless and until they have been paid to the allottee. Allotment records are for official use only and their disclosure is protected by 22 CFR 505.

2. Certain Specified Purposes

1. Combined Federal Campaign allotments

Under 5 CFR 550.341 an employee may make an allotment for contribution to the Combined Federal Campaign if the employee is employed in an area in which a Combined Federal Campaign authorized by OPM is established. The allotment will be an equal amount deducted each pay period for a term of one year beginning with the first pay period which begins in January and ending the last pay period which begins in December. The minimum biweekly amount is $1 and the amount of the allotment may not be changed. The employee may discontinue the allotment at any time.

2. U.S. Savings Bonds

Section 9.5.8.2.2.1 Authority

The purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds, Series EE, is governed by 31 CFR 351 and 353. The purchase of the Series I U.S. Savings Bond is governed by 31 CFR 359 and 360.

Section 9.5.8.2.2.2 Employees Who are Eligible

The Voluntary Payroll Savings Plan is provided to U.S. citizen employees payrolled by the payroll service provider. The FSN payroll system does not handle bond deductions.

Section 9.5.8.2.2.3 Initiation or request for change of bonds

Requests by an employee to participate in the Voluntary Payroll Savings Plan for the initiation or change of a bond deduction must be submitted to the servicing payroll office through Employee Express or on Form SB 2362, New Combined EE/I Payroll Enrollment Form. Form SB 2362 must show the Social Security number of the owner and should contain the Social Security number of any co-owner or beneficiary.

Section 9.5.8.2.2.4 Available Bond Denominations

The available denominations and purchase prices are:

Denomination	Purchase Price
--------------	----------------

$100	$50
-------	------

200	100
-----	-----

500	250
-----	-----

1,000	500

Section 9.5.8.2.2.5 Amount of payroll deduction

The minimum allowable deduction for a U.S. Series EE bond purchase is $3.75 per biweekly period. Payroll deductions in amounts greater than the minimum allowable deduction may be made in any amount.

Section 9.5.8.2.2.6 Time and date of issuance

a. The "issue date" shown on the bond is the month and year in which interest will begin to accrue. This issue date is determined under average-dating rules, i. e., the month in which the end of a pay period falls when at least one-half of the purchase price is accumulated, regardless of the number of consecutive payroll deductions required to complete the full purchase price.

b. The bond is not printed by the U.S. Treasury until the accumulated deductions equal the purchase price of the bond. Depending on delivery time variations, the bond should be received by the owner about two weeks after the close of the pay period in which the accumulated deductions equal the purchase price of the bond.

Section 9.5.8.2.2.7 Cashing bonds

USDOs and cashiers are not permitted to cash U.S. Savings Bonds. Overseas, an owner may cash a bond at a local branch of a U.S. bank. Or, after certification by a consular officer, mail the bond to one's bank in the United States, or as a last recourse, mail the bond to the Federal Reserve Bank, Federal Reserve Post Office Station, New York, New York, 10045.

Section 9.5.8.2.2.8 Maintenance of individual bond accounts

a. The payroll system maintains in the automated files the Individual Bond Account Record for each employee participating in the payroll deduction plan for the purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds. Bond deductions are held in deposit fund 95X6050, Employees' Payroll Allotment Account, U.S. Savings Bonds, until the accumulated deductions for the employee equal the bond purchase price.

b. When an employee transfers from BBG to another payroll system within the Federal Service, the allotment authorization will be part of the employee's official records sent to the transferee agency which will continue deductions on the basis of the transferred authorization. However, any unapplied balance remaining in the employee's bond account at the time of the transfer is refunded to the employee on a current payroll voucher.

Section 9.5.8.2.2.9 Cancellation of payroll deduction

Once initiated, payroll deductions will continue, providing gross pay is adequate, until the employee cancels the deduction by submitting a memo authorizing the cancellation. Any unapplied balance remaining in the employee's bond account upon cancellation of the payroll deduction or separation from employment will be refunded to the employee.

Section 9.5.8.2.2.10 Undeliverable, lost or erroneously issued bonds

a. When an undeliverable bond is returned to Treasury, Treasury seeks a more current address from the agency payrolling office and remails it. In the event of an employee's death, the bond should be delivered to the co-owner or beneficiary and a receipt obtained. If the bond cannot be delivered, it should be returned to the Treasury Regional Finance Center which issued it;

b. If the owner has not received a bond but adequate time has elapsed, notify the agency payrolling office. The payroll service provider will send the owner Form PD F 3062-4 to complete and mail to Department of the Treasury, Bureau of the Public Debt, PO Box 7012, Parkersburg, WV 26106-7012. for issuance of a replacement bond. The employee can anticipate receipt of the replacement bond within three months. The form is available online at <http://www.publicdebt.treas.gov/forms/sav3062-4.pdf>.

c. If a U.S. Savings Bond is lost or stolen after delivery, the owner should notify in writing the agency payrolling office. To obtain a replacement bond, complete Form PD F 1048 and mail it to the Bureau of the Public Debt, PO Box 1328, Parkersburg, WV 26106-1328. The form is available online at <http://www.publicdebt.treas.gov/forms/sav1048.pdf>.

d. To reissue an erroneously issued or damaged bond, the payroll service provider prepares a PD F 4000, Request To Reissue United States Savings Bonds (Add Beneficiary Or Co-owner, Remove Beneficiary Or Decedent, Show Change Of Name, And/Or Correct Error In Registration) stating the reason for reissue and submit it with the bond to either of the Treasury Retail Sites addresses listed below.

Treasury Retail Securities Site PO Box 299

Pittsburgh, PA 15230-0299 Treasury Retail Securities Site

PO Box 214

Minneapolis, MN 55480-0214

The form is available online at <http://www.publicdebt.treas.gov/forms/sav4000.pdf>.

3. Labor/Management Organization Dues

Section 9.5.8.2.3.1 Authority for labor/management organization membership dues deductions

Under provisions of agreements negotiated with U.S. citizen employee organizations under Executive Order 11636, members of such organizations may have membership dues withheld from their pay.

Section 9.5.8.2.3.2 Request for dues withholding

Form SF-1187, Request for Payroll Deductions for Labor Organization Dues, is used for requesting and authorizing the withholding of membership dues and payment to the appropriate organization. The employee completes the form except for Section A and sends it to the labor/management organization which completes Section A and forwards it in accordance with the agreement. The labor/management organization will provide the BBG Payroll Service Center with a list of officials authorized to certify Form SF-1187.

Section 9.5.8.2.3.3 Deduction of dues

Withholding will commence with the first full pay period after the BBG Payroll Service Center processes Form SF-1187. There will be no retroactive withholding by the payroll service provider except to correct errors made by the payroll service provider. There will be no refunds processed by the payroll service provider for over-withholding of dues resulting from errors made by the payroll service provider or the non-timely processing of Form SF-1188; employees will request such refunds directly from the labor organization.

Section 9.5.8.2.3.4 Discontinuance of membership dues withholding

a. An employee who has authorized the withholding of organization dues may request revocation of such authorization by submitting a completed Form SF-1188, Cancellation of Payroll Deductions For Labor Organization Dues, or a memorandum in accordance with the agreement. Cancellation will not be effective until the pay period beginning on or after the next established cancellation date.

b. Should an organization lose its right to exclusive representation of the employees of an agency under Executive Order 11636, it is the responsibility of the agency union representative to notify the payrolling office. The payrolling office will cease withholding membership dues upon receipt of such notification.

c. Removal from an agency's payroll, such as in the case of termination of employment by that agency, will automatically terminate employee organization dues withholding.

3. Other Allotments

In addition to the allotments specified in Section 9.4.8.2, employees may make general purpose allotments.

1. Purposes for Which Allotments May Be Made

a. Employees in the United States may make allotments for the following purposes:

1. For the support of relatives or dependents of the allottees including voluntary child support and/or alimony;
2. For fixed amounts to checking and savings accounts (other than net pay to banks);
3. For payment of insurance premiums;
4. For installment payments on the purchase of an automobile;
5. For payment to a Federal Credit Union;
6. For payment to lawfully appointed attorneys;
7. For other similar purposes, not specifically prohibited and when approved by the authorized certifying officer.

b. U.S. citizen employees overseas may make allotments for the following purposes:

1. For the support of relatives or dependents of the allottees including voluntary child support and/or alimony;
2. For fixed amounts to checking and savings accounts (other than net pay to banks);
3. For payment of insurance premiums;
4. For installment payments on the purchase of an automobile;
5. For payment to a Federal Credit Union;
6. For payment to lawfully appointed attorneys;
7. For other similar purposes, not specifically prohibited and when approved by the authorized certifying officer.

c. Foreign Service Nationals and AMCITs may make allotments for the following purposes:

1. For checking and savings accounts;
2. For the support of relatives or dependents of the allotter;

3. For group insurance in a private company underwritten by a U.S. insurance company;
4. For group insurance in a private company not underwritten by a U.S. insurance company, when approved by the post administrative officer;
5. For any purpose approved jointly by the heads of agencies in a country and authorized jointly by the agencies headquarters participating in the interagency compensation agreement. NOTE: BBG policy is to pay FSNs and AMCITs in the currency of the country where employed. Accordingly, allotments are paid in the currency in which the local compensation plan is stated except as provided in Section 9.5.

2. Purposes for Which allotments May Not Be Made

- a. U.S. citizen employees may not make allotments for the purchase of retirement service credit for prior years (military service deposit or civilian service deposit) or for any other purpose for which a payroll deduction is prohibited.
- b. Foreign Service National and AMCITs may not make allotments for the purchase of retirement service credit for prior years (military service deposit or civilian service deposit); Taxes or other assessments levied by foreign governments against employees except where authorized by U.S. statute, treaty, or Executive Agreement; and

1. Any purpose for which a payroll deduction is prohibited.

3. Limitations on Allotments

- a. Employees within the United States may have up to two allotments. The number of allotments for U.S. citizen employees stationed overseas may not exceed three.
- b. The number of allotments for Foreign Service Nationals and AMCITs may not exceed three.
- c. Allotments must be made on a pay period basis only.
- d. An allotment must be stated in a fixed dollar (or other unit of currency) amount unless it is an allotment of net pay.
- e. An employee may not have more than one allotment of pay payable to the same allottee at the same time.

4. Initiation, Change or Discontinuance of an Allotment of Pay

- a. An allotment of pay may be initiated by submitting Form SF-1199A, Direct Deposit Sign-Up Form or through Employee Express. Employees are responsible for making the necessary arrangements with their banks or other financial institutions for the disposition of allotment payments prior to the submission of Form SF-1199A or request through Employee Express.

- b. An allotment is discontinued on:

1. The written request of the allotter;
  - b. The retirement, death, or separation from the service of the allotter;
  - c. In instructions from BBG when conditions under which allotment was permitted no longer exist; or
4. Request through Employee Express.

Section 9.6 VOUCHERING AND PAYMENT OF SALARY ALLOWANCES

1. Authority

- a. Regulations relating to the preparation of payroll vouchers are issued by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM), the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), the Financial Systems Integration Office (formally JFMIP) and the Department of Treasury.
- b. The Treasury Financial Manual, Vol. 1, Ch. 3-2000 and JFMIP Human Resources & Payroll Systems Requirements (JFMIP-SR-99-5, April 1999), provide requirements for vouchering and payment of salaries and allowances to employees.

2. Method Of Vouchering

1. Basis for Vouchering

a. Individual pay record data derived from official sources including:

1. Notification of Personnel Action, For, SF-50, data from the personnel system ; or

2. Authority to pay telegram request from employee's current payroll office.

b. Form SF-1190, Foreign Allowances Application, Grant and Report, authorizes or cancels payment of such post-specific allowances as post differential, danger pay, post allowance, temporary quarters subsistence allowance, living quarters allowance, and separate maintenance allowance.

c. Documents supporting deductions and allotments from gross pay include:

1. W-4, Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate for income tax withholding;

2. State Income Tax Withholding Certificates;

3. City Income Tax Withholding Certificates;

4. TSP-1, Thrift Savings Plan Election form;

5. TSP-1-C, Catch-Up Contribution Election form;

6. SF-1199A, Direct Deposit Sign-Up Form;

7. SF-2809, Health Benefits Registration Form;

8. SF-2817, Life Insurance Election;

9. SF-1192, Authorization for Purchase and Request for Change;

10. TSP-22, Thrift Savings Plan Loan Payment Allotment Form;

11. SF-1187, Request for Payroll Deductions for Labor Organization Dues;

12. SF-1188, Cancellation of Payroll Deductions for Labor Organization Dues;

13. SB 2362, New Combined EE/I Payroll Enrollment Form; and

14. CFC 804, Combined Federal Campaign.

2. Regular Payroll

A regular biweekly payroll voucher is prepared to include all employees being paid. An Earnings and Leave statement showing pay, allowances, deductions, allotments, and net pay for a pay period and cumulative totals for the calendar year to date, along with leave balances at the end of the pay period, is provided to employees each pay period.

3. Supplemental Payrolls

When a payroll payment cannot be included on a regular payroll, a supplemental payroll voucher may be prepared. All payroll data from the supplemental voucher must be entered into the payroll system. Every effort should be made to keep the number of supplemental payroll vouchers to a minimum.

4. Pay Periods

The pay period for all employees except the head of the agency shall cover two administrative workweeks. Pay periods are numbered beginning with the first full pay period in a calendar year and ending with the last pay period that began in the same calendar year.

5. Payroll Vouchers

The following standard forms are prescribed by Treasury for the purpose of making payments (I TFM 3-2020):

a. SF-1166, Voucher and Schedule of Payments;

b. SF-1166 OCR, Voucher and Schedule of Payments (OCR Readable);

c. ECS, Treasury's Electronic Certification System through a modem.

3. Certification

1. Authority

The responsibilities and accountability of a certifying officer are provided in 31 U.S.C. 3528.

2. Responsibilities

a. Suitable control procedures shall be incorporated into the payroll process to provide effective checks to assure that payroll data is correctly processed. Such procedures are necessary to assure that all data are considered in the processing, the results of the processing are accurate, and that no unauthorized alterations are made to transactions and records. As there are limitations to the scope of any one check, independent total, or other predetermined total, a body of checks and balances are required to provide an acceptable level of independent verification of the accuracy of payments.

b. The payroll voucher must be certified by a duly authorized certifying officer. The certifying officer will make such examination of the facts underlying the payroll voucher as is necessary to ensure the correctness and validity of the payment. No employee may certify his or her own individual disbursements, but may certify a voucher for the BBG payroll which includes his or her own pay. The certified voucher schedule is transmitted to the Treasury or the USDO for payment.

4. Payroll Payments

1. Time of Payment

a. Payments to employees of the BBG and other agencies serviced by the payroll service provider shall be made by no later than the second Thursday after the close of the pay period. The time schedule must take into account the time required for processing, review, and adjustments as well as transmittal or delivery time.

b. As per 5 U.S.C. Chapter 55, the pay lag shall not, in any case, exceed 12 calendar days and pay periods shall not be less than 2 weeks long.

2. Payday for FSN Payroll Systems

Payroll payments are made on the second Thursday after the close of the pay period unless local practices compel the designation of some other day for FSNs. Only requests that can be accommodated by the normal processing schedule may be considered. In such instances, some other payday may be determined by the Director of the Regional Administrative Management Center (RAMC) with the concurrence of the DOS.

3. Source of Funds

Payment is vouchered against the BBG appropriations by the payroll service provider. The payroll service provider reports the disbursements on the monthly SF 224 it submits to Treasury.

4. Source of Funds---FSN Payroll System

Payroll costs are to the BBG appropriations and are reported to the U.S. Treasury on the monthly Form SF-1221, Statement of Transactions.

5. Method Of Payment---U.S. Citizens

1. Salaries

a. Net pay of employees is transmitted by means of electronic funds transfer (EFT) using the Treasury Financial Communications System, where feasible. Direct Deposit Sign-Up Form 1199A or a computer-generated facsimile must be completed and signed by the employee. When payments are not possible by means of EFT, salaries must be paid in U.S. Treasury dollar checks. Payment in foreign currency is not permitted.

b. Consistent with the Debt Collection Improvement Act (DCIA) of 1996, the Department will use EFT to disburse payments to all employees both American and foreign nationals, including personal service contractors, individuals hired through personal service agreements, foreign service nationals (FSNs), and annuity benefit recipients. Disbursements in this paragraph are defined as salary, allowances, and benefit payments, and the law will apply to all of these disbursements. All employees hired or retired after July 26, 1996, are subject to mandatory EFT requirements consistent with DCIA. The law mandates EFT for all Federal payments after January 1, 1999. Recipients must designate one or more financial institutions or authorized payment agents to which such payments shall be made. Recipients must provide agencies with the necessary information to make these EFT payments at the time the employee is hired or retired. The DCIA and this policy apply to all employees of the BBG.

c. Overseas, for non-American employees, including foreign service nationals, personal service contractors, individuals hired through personal service agreements, and all benefit recipients, BBG will implement use of EFT to disburse all payments whenever it is consistent with host country law and regulations, and practical when considering host country banking infrastructure capabilities. The servicing Financial Service Center (FSC) director in conjunction with post management will determine on a country specific basis whether the capability exists to implement EFT payments for non-Americans. In some cases, where host country law prohibits mandatory EFT non-American employees may be given the option to use EFT. This determination will also be made jointly with post management.

2. Allowances

In addition to the benefits that may only be paid via the payroll system, living quarters and temporary quarters subsistence allowance may also be paid through the payroll system.

3. Advances

a. Advances, other than advance of pay, are not paid through the payroll system. However, repayment of an advance may be collected through the payroll system via its recurring deduction process. When an advance of living quarters allowance is made, it is recorded from the signed request and approval form into the payroll system and its conversion from advance to earned expense is recognized biweekly, or when appropriate, collected back from the employee.

b. If the servicing payroll office is unable to collect the total amount of the advance from a BBG employee, the collection responsibility is passed to the Office of Financial Operations.

4. Purchase of Retirement Credits

a. The Payroll Service Center receives checks from employees for retirement credit for military service. The Payroll Service Center sends the checks to the lockbox located in St. Louis, MO for deposit and forwards the appropriate documentation to the Department of State to add to history record. The payroll service provider then sends the record to OPM to credit the employee.

b. Voluntary contributions may be made by the employee to the Civil Service Retirement Fund to purchase additional annuity. Employees with unfunded years of prior civilian service (e.g. Peace Corps) may also make voluntary contributions to either the CSRS or FERS Funds. Making such contributions is a matter between the individual employee and OPM, for which the BBG has no responsibility. Neither payroll deductions nor payments in dollar checks are authorized to facilitate purchase of additional retirement credit through voluntary contributions.

6. Method Of Payment---Foreign Service National And AMCIT Employees

1. Salaries and Allowances

Salaries and allowances of FSN employees and AMCITs are paid in the currency of the country where employed, except as otherwise authorized per Section 9.6.6.2. AMCIT is a U.S. citizen resident employee of the U.S. Government in the host country who is not a spouse or dependent of a U.S. Government employee or a uniformed service member abroad.

2. Exceptions

1. Immigration and/or approved Visits to the United States The principal officer at a post is authorized to approve U.S. dollar payments by Treasury check to an FSN employee when the employee is immigrating to or visiting the United States and the employee will be in the United States on the payday. The check is forwarded to the employee in the United States.

2. Prevailing Local Compensation Practice

a. If the prevailing local compensation practice allows payment in other than the local currency, the post may request permission for salary payment in such currency. Such requests may be made, provided the principal officer determines that:

1. Such payment is permitted by local law;
2. Payment will not encourage prohibited or illegal currency conversion by employees;

3. Payment does not conflict with U.S. goals.

b. If so determined, a request to pay in other than local currency should be made to the bureau's executive director, explaining:

1. Pertinent host country exchange controls;
2. Pertinent local laws;
3. Rates of exchange, official and unofficial;
4. Details of determination of prevailing practice; and
5. Department of Defense (DOD) payment practices, if any, in such country.

c. The request shall be reviewed by Office of Human Resources, Office of the Chief Financial Officer, and program office. Office of Financial Operations shall determine if processing such payments is administratively feasible. The program office's administrative officer is responsible for coordinating the review. If payment in other than local currency is approved, each subsequent salary change survey should review continuing conditions and need. The post shall promptly inform the bureau executive director whenever conditions justifying such exception cease to exist.

3. Other Exceptions

If a unique temporary personal situation creates such hardship as to justify payment in other than local currency for a specific individual on a humanitarian basis, a request for an exception may be made to the administrative officer of the program office. Exception may not be granted for more than 6 months.

4. Payroll Deduction for Civil Service Retirement

When an FSN employee participates in the Civil Service Retirement System, a deduction is made from salary as described in Section 9.4.2.2. The U.S. dollar equivalent of the employee deduction and the Government contribution are computed and reported to OPM biweekly and credited to OPM's trust account, Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund, symbol 24X8135.8 on the monthly Form SF-1221.

3. Payroll Deduction for U.S. Social Security Tax and U.S. Income Tax Any FSN employee who is a U.S. permanent resident alien (Green Card holder) is subject to U.S. Social Security tax and U.S. Income tax unless excluded by a bilateral treaty between the United States and the host country (42 U.S.C. 410 and 26 U.S.C. Sections 3102 and 3122). An AMCIT is also subject to U.S. Social Security tax and U.S. Income tax unless excluded by treaty. U.S. Income tax is withheld in accordance with the filed Form W-4, Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate. The equivalent in U.S. dollars at the exchange rate current at the time of payroll calculation of such withholding and Government contribution is reported and paid to the Federal Reserve Bank.

4. Purchase of Retirement Credits

- a. The post may authorize acceptance of a lump sum amount by personal check from the FSN (payable to OPM) when OPM has authorized the FSN employee to make a deposit or redeposit for past creditable service. The employee authorization is accomplished through Form OF-212.
- b. The post personnel office must insure that an OPM Form BRI 49-112A for each employee making a deposit has been prepared to accompany the check to OPM. Blank BRI 49-112A forms may be obtained from OPM. Reproductions or facsimiles are not permitted.
- c. Voluntary contributions may be made by the employee to the Civil Service Retirement Fund to purchase additional annuity. Making such contributions is a matter between the individual employee and OPM, for which the BBG has no responsibility. Necessary conversions of foreign currencies to dollars required for such contributions must be accomplished by the individual employee. Neither payroll deductions nor payments in dollar checks are authorized to facilitate purchase of additional retirement credit through voluntary contributions.

5. Currency Exchange Rates

1. Salaries and Allowances Fixed in U.S. Dollars

Salaries and allowances fixed in U.S. dollars, which are paid in equivalent local currency, are paid at the current rate of exchange at the time of payroll calculations. Exception to this may occur under unusual circumstances and after consultation with the payrolling center.

2. Salaries Fixed in foreign currency

Where salaries and allowances are fixed in local currency and paid in local currency, U.S. dollar equivalent entries are computed for salaries and allowances as well as any civil service retirement, U.S. Social Security and Federal income tax withholdings and contributions by using the current rate of exchange at the time of payroll calculations.

7. External Reporting

The servicing payroll office submits various reports related to payroll payments to the BBG.

1. Payroll Processing System

The payroll system prepares the following external reports:

- a. Payments and Collections Transfer Register Form FS-477, Report of Disbursements by Allotment Form FS-478, and Voucher and Schedule of Withdrawals and Credits Form SF-1081;
- b. Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return Form 941 showing compensation, Federal income tax withheld, and Social Security taxes (to Internal Revenue Service quarterly);
- c. Wage and Tax Statement Form W-2 on taxable compensation and U.S. income taxes and Social Security taxes withheld (to Social Security Administration and pertinent States annually);
- d. Statement for Recipients of Interest Income Form 1099-INT on interest paid of $600 or more in the calendar year (to the Internal Revenue Service annually);

- e. Journal Voucher and Report of Withholdings and Contributions for Health Benefits, Group Life Insurance and Civil Service Retirement Forms SF-2812 and SF-2812A (by agency to OPM biweekly);
- f. FEHB Transmittal and Summary Report to Carrier Form SF-2811 (by agency to health insurance carriers biweekly);
- g. Journal Voucher and Report of Withholdings and Contributions for Foreign Service Retirement Systems Form DS-1834 (to the Foreign Affairs Retirement and Disability System biweekly);
- h. Annual Reconciliation of Payroll Deductions Form SF-415 transmits retirement withholdings and contributions summary (to parent agencies annually);
- i. Statement of Transactions Form SF-224 on disbursements and collections to the General Ledger and Treasury monthly.

2. FSN Payroll System

The State Department Charleston Financial Service Center (FSC) prepares the following external reports:

- a. The payroll system is integrated with the FSC accounting system. Agencies receiving allotment accounting services are provided FSC-60 and FSC-62 reports on obligations and liquidations. Other agencies receive a biweekly Payroll Expenditure report and a Payments and Collections Transfer Register Form FS-477M monthly.
- b. Payments and collections reflected on Form SF-1221, Statement of Transactions, by the USDO (to Treasury monthly);
- c. Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return, Form 941, showing compensation, Federal income tax withheld and U.S. Social Security taxes paid (to the Internal Revenue Service quarterly on FSN/PRAs and AMCITs);
- d. Wage and Tax Statement Form W-2 on taxable compensation and Federal income taxes and U.S. Social Security taxes withheld (to Social Security Administration on FSN/PRAs and AMCITs annually);
- e. Journal Voucher and Report of Withholdings and Contributions for Health Benefits, Group Life Insurance and Civil Service Retirement Forms SF-2812 and SF-2812A (for CSR to OPM biweekly);
- f. Local Employee's Pay card for FSNs participating in the Civil Service Retirement System (to BBG headquarters at least annually);
- g. Annual Reconciliation of Payroll Deductions Form FS-415 transmits retirement withholdings and contributions summary for FSNs in the CSRS (to parent agencies);
- h. Biweekly list on employee deductions and employer contributions for host country social insurance or private insurance plans (to post). Post is responsible for external reporting and payment on local social security program when it functions on other than a biweekly schedule; and
- i. Host government income taxes normally are not computed or withheld, however a report of payments made to an employee for the year may be applicable at particular posts.

7. PAYROLL SERVICE CENTER

The Payroll Service Center, Office of Financial Operations (OFO) serves as liaison between BBG and the payroll service provider in regards to all payroll functions and issues. The Payroll Service Center's key duties in regards to the payroll liaison function include:

- a. Resolving payroll issues, such as salary overpayments, underpayments, and leave adjustments. The Payroll Service Center has on-line access to the payroll systems to query employee detailed pay records to assist in resolving issues. The Payroll Service Center coordinates with BBG employees, timekeepers, the personnel office, OPM and DOS research pay individual pay issues and make appropriate adjustments.

b. Distribution of earnings and leave statements. Currently, the Payroll Service Center receives hardcopy statements from the payroll service provider for all domestic and overseas employees and then distributes them to the employees. This process is being automated and eventually all employees will receive their statements electronically via Employee Express.

c. Processing personnel actions. BBG's Office of Human Resources sends all personnel actions to the Payroll Service Center which then forwards them to the payroll service provider.

d. Distributes payroll reports. The Payroll Service Center receives reports from the payroll service provider and distributes them to BBG Administrative offices (leave, OT, etc.) and Budget office (Advice of Charge). The Payroll Service Center is currently implementing Report.web to make these reports available via the internet.

e. Monitor changes to payroll systems. The Payroll Service Center routinely meets with the payroll service provider systems staff to coordinate and review the status of changes to the payroll system, including the automated time and attendance system-TATEL

f. Collections. When notified that an employee owes BBG funds for things such as salary overpayment, delinquent travel advances, or over-advanced leave, the Payroll Service Center sends a collection letter to the employee. If the employee fails to pay within the appropriate amount of time, the Payroll Service Center contacts the payroll service provider to initiate collection by offset.

g. Garnishments. The Payroll Service Center receives notices from the courts. The Payroll Service Center first sends the notice to BBG's General Counsel who reviews it for legality and returns it to Josephine with their finding. If approved by BBG's GC, the Payroll Service Center forwards the notice to the payroll service provider's legal counsel who also reviews it. If they approve it, they forward it to the payroll service provider to initiate collection

h. .

i. Tracks advanced leave. The Payroll Service Center reviews reports of advanced sick leave used against advanced sick leave approved. If unapproved advanced sick leave is found, the Payroll Service Center notifies the employee's timekeeper to revise the leave to annual or LWOP. The DOS payroll system tracks advanced annual leave. If they identify an excess advance (i.e. more than can be earned in the current year.) they notify the Payroll Service Center which in turn notifies the employee's timekeeper to make an adjustment.

j. Collections for credit for military service. The Payroll Service Center receives checks from employees for retirement credit for military service. The Payroll Service Center sends the checks to the lockbox located in St. Louis, MO for deposit and forwards the appropriate documentation to the Department of State to add to history record. The payroll service provider then sends the record to OPM to credit the employee.

k. Process exit clearances. When an employee is leaving BBG they must obtain appropriate signatures on a clearance document. When the form is completed it is provide to the Payroll Service Center, which then forwards it to DOS.

1. Personnel Reports. The Payroll Service Center provides payroll information and reports to the Office of Human Resources to complete the SF-113A and 113G reports.

m. Accounting code adjustments. The Payroll Service Center assists and provides the necessary information to make changes to the payroll system to adjust accounting codes (e.g., organization and allotment codes).

n. Internal BBG coordination:

1. The Payroll Service Center meets quarterly with the timekeepers to discuss changes or updates to the TATEL system and to clarify issues that the timekeepers might have.

2. The Payroll Service Center meetings monthly with Office of Human Resources staff to discuss Payroll/Personnel issues.

Section 9.8 SALARY OFFSETS

Section 9.8.1 Authority

31 U.S.C. 3701; 31 U.S.C. 3711 et seq.; 5 U.S.C. 5514; 31 CFR Parts 900-904; 5 CFR Part 550; and 22 CFR Part 512.

Section 9.8.2 Responsibilities

Section 9.8.2.1 Administering Regulations

The Director of Financial Operations, has been designated the official responsible for administering these regulations in the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

Section 9.8.2.2 Determining Amounts of Overpayments

The Office of Financial Operations determines the amounts of erroneous payments made to or on behalf of employees.

Section 9.8.3 Collection of Debts by Salary Offset

a. Salary offsets are the required method to collect a debt under 5 U.S.C. 5514, as implemented by the Broadcasting Board of Governors in 22 CFR Part 512 and this MOA, by deductions at one or more officially established pay intervals from the current pay account of an employee without his or her consent.

b. Salary offset procedures in this MOA will be used to collect from current employees debts originating from personnel/payroll processing, delinquent debts owed to the agency not originating from personnel/payroll processing, and delinquent debts owed to other Federal agencies.

c. Exceptions to the applicability of the salary offset provisions in this MOA are as follows:

1. Salary offset provisions do not apply to debts or claims arising under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 as amended (26 U.S.C. 1 et seq.), the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 301 et seq.), or the tariff laws of the United States or to any case where collection of a debt is explicitly provided for (e.g. FEHB health insurance debts accrued while the employee was in LWOP status or had insufficient pay to cover the biweekly premium in 5 CFR Part 890.502) or prohibited by another statute (e.g., travel advances in 5 U.S.C. 5705).

2. The salary offset provisions in this MOA do not preclude an employee from requesting a waiver of a salary overpayment under 5 U.S.C. 5584, 10 U.S.C. 2774, or 32 U.S.C. 716, or in any way questioning the amount or validity of a debt by submitting a subsequent claim to the General Accounting Office in accordance with procedures prescribed by the General Accounting Officer, nor does it preclude an employee from requesting waiver when waiver is available under any statutory provision.

Section 9.8.3.1 Debts Originating from Personnel/Payroll Processing

Section 9.8.3.1.1 Action by the Office of Financial Operations

a. Prior to offsetting an employee's salary, notifies the employee in writing of the amount and reasons for indebtedness and requests repayment of the amount within 30 calendar days from the date of the notification letter.

1. The notification letter will contain at a minimum the following information:

a. The Financial Operations Division determination that a debt is owed including the nature, origin, and amount of the debt;

b. The Financial Operations Division's intent to collect the debt by means of deduction from the employee's current disposable pay account;

c. The amount, frequency and proposed beginning date and duration of the intended deductions;

d. An explanation of the Financial Operations Division's policy concerning interest, penalties, and administrative costs;

e. The employee's right to inspect and copy Government records pertaining to the debt;

f. The opportunity to establish a schedule for the voluntary repayment of the debt or to enter into a written agreement to establish a schedule for repayment in lieu of offset per the requirements of 31 CFR 902.2(e).

g. The employee's right to a hearing arranged by the Financial Operations Division and conducted by an administrative law judge or, alternatively, an official not under the control of the head of the Broadcasting Board of Governors;

h. The method and time period for filing a petition for a hearing;

i. That timely filing of the petition will stay the commencement of collection proceedings;

j. That final decision on the hearing will be issued not later than 60 days after the filing of the petition for hearing unless the employee requests and the hearing officer grants a delay in the proceedings.

k. That knowingly false, misleading, or frivolous statements, representations or evidence may subject the employee to:

i. Disciplinary procedures under chapter 75 of title 5, United States Code or any other applicable statutes;

ii. Penalties under the False Claims Act, sections 3729-3731 of title 31 U.S.C. or any other applicable statutes.

iii. Criminal penalties under sections 286, 287, 1001, 1002 of title 18 United States Code or any other applicable statutes.

l. Any other rights or remedies available to the employee, including representation by counsel or his respective bargaining unit, under the statutes or regulations governing the program for which collection is being made.

m. That amounts paid on or deducted for the debts that are later waived or found not owed to the United States will be promptly refunded to the employee.

2. Notifications under this section will be hand delivered with a record made of the delivery, or will be mailed certified mail with return receipt requested.

3. No notification, hearing, written responses or final decisions under this regulation (22 CFR 512) and MOA section are required of Broadcasting Board of Governors for any adjustment to pay arising from an employee's election of coverage under a Federal benefit program requiring periodic deductions from pay, if the amount to be recovered was accumulated over four pay periods or less.

b. Deduction from pay

Unless the amount owed is repaid in full prior to the end of the 30-day period, the Financial Operations Division will request the payroll service provider to implement a salary offset to recover the monies owed.

1. Deduction by salary offset, from an employee's disposable current pay, will be subject to the following circumstances:

a. When funds are available, the Financial Operations Division will collect debts owed the United States in full in one lump sum. If funds are not available or the debt exceeds 15% of disposable pay for an officially established pay interval, collection will normally be made in installments.

b. The installments shall not exceed 15% of the disposable pay from which the deduction is made, unless the employee has agreed in writing to a larger amount.

c. Deduction will commence with the next full pay interval following notice that deductions will commence.

2. Where the employee offers in writing an alternative repayment plan for salary offset and the installments are less than 15% of his or her disposable pay due to economic hardship, the employee must provide sufficient documentation regarding the economic hardship and details of his or her monthly income and expenses for Financial Operations Division to evaluate whether the alternative repayment plan is reasonable given the circumstances.

3. Installment deductions will not be made over a period greater than the anticipated period of employment.

c. Hearings

1. Petitions - General

a. An employee may request a hearing by filing a written petition with the Director, Financial Operations Division stating why he or she believes the Financial Operations Division's determination of the existence or amount of the debt is in error.

b. The employee must sign the petition and fully identify and explain with reasonable specificity all facts, evidence and witnesses that the employee believes support his or her position.

c. The petition must be filed no later than fifteen (15) calendar days from the date the notification under 22 CFR Sec. 512.20(b) was hand delivered or the date of delivery by certified mail.

d. Where petition is received after the 15 calendar day limit, Financial Operations Division will accept the petition if the employee can show that the delay was beyond his or her control or because of failure to receive notice.

e. If the petition is not filed within the time limit, and is not accepted pursuant to paragraph (a)(4) of this section, the employee's right to hearing will be considered waived, and salary offset will be implemented.

2. Types of Hearings - General

a. The form and content of the hearing will be determined by the hearing official who shall be a person outside the control or authority of Broadcasting Board of Governors.

b. The employee may represent him or herself, or may be represented by counsel.

c. The hearing official will maintain a summary record of the hearing.

d. The hearing official will prepare a written decision which will state:

i. The facts purported to evidence nature and origin of the alleged debt;

ii. The hearing official's analysis, findings, and conclusions relative to:

a. The employee's and/or the Financial Operation Division's grounds;

b. The amount and the validity of the alleged debt;

c. The repayment schedule, if applicable.

e. The decision of the hearing official shall constitute the final administrative decision of the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

3. Upon receipt of the petition for a hearing, the Financial Operations Division will arrange for a hearing official to oversee the hearing.

4. Upon completion of the hearing and receipt of the hearing official's analysis, findings, and conclusions, Financial Operations Division will implement these findings.

Section 9.8.3.2 Debts Owed to the Agency Not Originating from Personnel/Payroll Processing

Financial Operations Division will transmit to the servicing payroll provider for salary offset current employee delinquent debts subject to administrative offset procedures under Section 512.10 of 22 CFR Part 512 and procedures found in MOA Part VII Section XX. Financial Operations Division will provide supporting documentation for the indebtedness and its compliance with debtor notification under Section 512.9 of 22 CFR Part 512 and procedures found in MOA Part VII Section XX. These salary offsets will be no greater than 15% of the employee's net disposable pay.

Section 9.8.3.3 Debts Owed to Other Federal Agencies

Where the Financial Operations Division has received a salary offset request letter from another agency to recover monies owed to that agency (the creditor agency) by an employee, Financial Operations Division will review the request to ensure that the creditor agency has certified the indebtedness in writing in compliance with that agency's regulations and those of OPM.

a. The creditor agency's request must certify in writing to the Broadcasting Board of Governors that the employee owes the debt, the amount and basis of the debt; the date on which payment is due, the date the Government's right to collect first accrued, and that the creditor agency's regulations implementing 5 U.S.C. Section 5514 have been approved by OPM.

b. If collection must be made in installments, the creditor agency must advise Financial Operations Division of the number of installments to be collected, the amount of each installment, and the commencing date of the first installment.

Section 9.8.3.4 Interest, Penalties, and Administrative Costs

Section 9.8.3.4 1 Assessment

a. Except as provided in paragraph (h) of this section, or Sec. 9.8.3.4.2 below, Financial Operations Division will assess interest, penalties, and administrative costs on debts owed to the United States pursuant to 31 U.S.C. 3717. Before assessing these charges, Financial Operations Division will mail or hand deliver a written notice to the debtor (see MOA Part VII Section 9.8.3.1.1). This notice will include a statement of the Broadcasting Board of Governors' requirements concerning 22 CFR. Sec. 512.9 and 512.21.

b. Interest shall accrue from the date on which notice of the debt is first mailed or hand-delivered to the debtor, using the most current address available to the Board.

c. The rate of interest assessed shall be the rate of the current value of funds to the United States Treasury (i.e., the Treasury Tax and Loan account rate), as prescribed and published by the Secretary of the Treasury in the Federal Register and the Treasury Fiscal Requirements Manual Bulletins annually or quarterly, in accordance with 31 U.S.C. 3717. The rate of interest as initially assessed shall remain fixed for the duration of the indebtedness. However, in cases where the debtor has defaulted on a repayment agreement and seeks a new agreement, Broadcasting Board of Governors may set a new rate that reflects the current value of funds to the Treasury at the time the agreement is executed. Interest will not be assessed on interest, penalties, or administrative costs required by this section.

d. Financial Operations Division will assess charges to cover administrative costs incurred as a result of a delinquent debt. Calculation of administrative costs shall be based upon actual costs incurred. Administrative costs include costs incurred to obtain credit reports in the case of employee debt or in using a private debt collector in the case of non-employee debt.

e. Financial Operations Division will assess a penalty charge not to exceed 6% per year on any portion of a debt that is delinquent for more than 90 days. This charge need not be calculated until the 91st day of delinquency, but shall accrue from the date that the debt became delinquent.

f. When a debt is paid in partial or installment payments, amounts received shall be applied first to the outstanding penalty and administrative cost charges, second to accrued interest and third to outstanding principal.

g. Financial Operations Division will waive the collection of interest on the debt or any portion of the debt that is paid within 30 days after the date on which interest began to accrue. Financial Operations Division may extend this 30-day period, on a case-by-case basis, if it reasonably determines such action is appropriate. Financial Operations Division may also waive in whole or in part the collection of interest, penalties, and administrative costs assessed under this section per the criteria specified in part 902 of the Federal Claims Collection Standards (31 CFR Part 902) relating to the compromise of claims or if the Financial Operations Division determines that collection of these charges is not in the best interest of the United States. Waiver under the first sentence of this paragraph is mandatory. Under the second and third sentences, it may be exercised under the following circumstances:

1. Waiver of interest pending consideration of a request for reconsideration, administrative review, or waiver of the underlying debt under a permissive statute, and

2. Waiver of interest where Financial Operations Division has accepted an installment plan under MOA Part VII Section 9.8.3.1.1, there is no indication of fault or lack of good faith on the part of the debtor and the amount of the interest is large enough, in relation to the size of the installments that the debtor can reasonably afford to pay, that the debt will never be repaid.

h. Where a mandatory waiver or review statute applies, interest and related charges may not be assessed for those periods during which collection must be suspended under Sec. 903.2(c)(1) of the Federal Claims Collection Standards (31 CFR Part 903).

Section 9.8.3.4 2 Exemptions to Assessment

a. Financial Operations Division will not assess interest, penalties, and administrative charges on the following, as the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 3717 do not apply:

1. To debts owned by any State or local government;
2. To debt arising under contracts which were executed prior to, and were in effect on October 25, 1982;

3. To debts where an applicable statute, loan agreement, or contract either prohibits such charges or explicitly fixes the charges that apply to the debts arising under the Social Security Act, the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or the tariff laws of the United States.

b. However Financial Operations Division is authorized to assess interest and related charges on debts which are not subject to 31 U.S.C. 3717 to the extent authorized under the common law or other applicable statutory authority.

Section 9.8.3.5 Liquidation from final check or recovery from other payment

a. If an employee retires or resigns before collection of the debt is completed, Financial Operations Division will direct the payroll service provider to offset the entire remaining balance from the final payment(s) of any nature to such extent as is necessary to liquidate the debt.

b. Where debt cannot be liquidated by offset from final payment, Financial Operations Division will direct the payroll service provider to offset later payments of any kind due from the United States inclusive of Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 8347 and 5 CFR 831.1801 et seq of this regulation.

c. Where actions under sections a. and b. above have not liquidated the debt, Financial Operations Division will follow the administrative offset procedures under 22 CFR 512.9 - 512.16, as described in MOA Part VII Section XX.

Section 9.8.3.6 Continuation of Debt Collection Upon Transfer of Debtor to Another Federal Agency

c. Where the Financial Operations Division has completed procedures in MOA Part VII Section 9.8.3.1.1 and the employee transfers to another Federal agency prior to liquidation of the debt, the Financial Operations Division will request recovery of the outstanding balance from the employee's paying agency.

d. The Financial Operations Division will certify in writing to the paying agency that the employee owes the debt, the amount and basis of the debt; the date on which payment is due, the date the Government's right to collect first accrued, and that the Broadcasting Board of Governors' regulations implementing 5 U.S.C. Section 5514 have been approved by OPM.

e. If collection must be made in installments, the Financial Operations Division must advise the paying agency of the number of installments to be collected, the amount of each installment, and the commencing date of the first installment.

f. In cases where there has been a break in service (i.e., the employee separates from the Broadcasting Board of Governors with an outstanding debt balance and administrative offset procedures described in MOA Part VII Section XX have been followed) and the individual becomes re-employed with another Federal agency, Financial Operations Division will follow the procedures described above in sections a. - c. In similar fashion, where such an individual becomes re-employed with the Broadcasting Board of Governors with an outstanding balance on a debt owed to the Broadcasting Board of Governors, Financial Operations Division will direct the payroll service provider to initiate a salary offset at 15% of the employee's net disposable pay.

Section 9.8.3.7 Non-waiver of rights by payments

An employee's voluntary payment of all or part of a debt being collected under 5 U.S.C. 5514 will not be construed as a waiver of any rights which the employee may have under 5 U.S.C., or any other provision of contract or law, unless statutory or contractual provisions provide to the contrary.

Section 9.8.3.8 Refunds

- a. The Financial Operations Division will instruct the payroll service provider to promptly pay a refund of monies previously collected when:
1. A debt is waived or otherwise found not to be owed to the United States; or
  2. The Broadcasting Board of Governors is directed by an administrative (e.g., hearing official) or judicial order to refund amounts deducted from his or her current pay.
- b. Refunds do not bear interest unless required or permitted by law or contract.

Section 9.9 WAIVERS OF OVERPAYMENT

Section 9.9.1 General Policy

Generally, consideration for waiving an erroneous payment of pay or allowances is not given without a justifiable reason submitted in writing by the employee or other person having an interest in waiver of the claim. However, in the absence of such request, the Director or a delegated official (see Section 9.9.4 below) may initiate waiver procedures. The Broadcasting Board of Governors suspends collection action on an erroneous payment of pay or allowances during the period a request for a waiver is under consideration. The amount considered for a waiver is in all cases based on the gross amount of the erroneous payment. If a waiver request is disapproved, consideration will then be given to the salary offset procedures authorized by 5 U.S.C. Sec. 5514 and 22 CFR Part 512 (see Section 9.8.3 above), except for when (1) an application for waiver has not been received or (2) the erroneous payment has not been refunded and Financial Operations determines that the amount of the payment does not justify the cost of the waiver action. The erroneous payment will be considered under the salary offset provisions of 5 U.S.C. Sec. 5514 and 22 CFR Part 512.

Section 9.9.2 Authority To Waive A Claim

Section 9.9.2.1 Law and Regulations

Title 5, Part III, Subpart D, Chapter 55, Subchapter VIII, Section 5584.

Section 9.9.2.2 Director's Authority

The Director of the Broadcasting Board of Governors is authorized to waive in whole or in part a claim of the United States Government, when the claim meets the standards for waiver contained in Title 5, Part III, Subpart D, Chapter 55, Subchapter VIII, Section 5584. In the absence of other request, the Director may also initiate waiver procedures for a claim in any amount. Section 9.9.3 Delegation Of Director's Authority

Authority to waive claims for erroneous payments of pay, overseas allowances, or travel and transportation allowances to or on behalf of an employee and, in the absence of other request, to initiate waiver procedures is delegated as follows:

- a. To the Chief Financial Officer
1. To waive in whole or in part a claim; and
  2. In the absence of other request for waiver of a claim in any amount, to initiate waiver procedures, with review and settlement action being subject to prescribed authorities and procedures.
- b. To the Director of Financial Operations
1. To waive in whole or in part a claim not more than $50; and

2. In the absence of other request for waiver of a claim in any amount, to initiate waiver procedures, with review and settlement action being subject to prescribed authorities and procedures.

Section 9.9.4 Action By The Chief Financial Officer

The Chief Financial Officer reviews each claim, and:

- a. Subject to the review and recommended action of the Office of the General Counsel (GC); waives the claim in whole or in part without regard to any repayments when the Chief Financial Officer has no doubt that waiver action is proper.
- b. Subject to GC's review and recommended action, disapproves waiver when the Chief Financial Officer determines that waive is not justified.
- c. Forwards case files of claims to the Office of Financial Operations for recording waivers granted or denied, and any other actions determined necessary, and filing.

Section 9.9.5 Submitting Application For Waiver

Section 9.9.5.1 Originating Domestically

Submit applications for waiver of claims in writing to the Director, Office of Financial Operations. Applications include those for waiver of erroneous overseas payments to Foreign Service personnel who are assigned to domestic duty at the time application is made, or who have separated from the service and no longer reside overseas. No special form is prescribed.

Section 9.9.5.2 Documentation Required

a. General - Except as provided in paragraph b below, each application for waiver must be supported by a report that includes the following:

1. A statement of the aggregate amount of the erroneous payment supported by the pay record(s), voucher(s), or any other correspondence pertaining to the erroneous payment.

2. A statement explaining the circumstances under which the erroneous payment was made, the date it was discovered, and whether it was subject to an exception made by the Comptroller General of the United States.

3. A statement by a person having personal knowledge, other than the employee, as to whether or not there is any indication of fraud, misrepresentation, fault, or lack of good faith on the part of the employee or other person having an interest in obtaining a waiver of the claim.

4. A statement by the employee as to his or her knowledge of the overpayment.

5. Copies of correspondence, personnel actions, earnings and leave statements, indoctrination or other instructions, etc., and any other information that may be of help in determining whether collection action on the claim would be against equity and good conscience and not in the best interests of the United States. It is essential that each application submitted to the Office of Financial Operations include as much of the above data and other pertinent information as may be reasonably accessible to avoid unnecessary processing delays.

b. Overpayments of $50 or Less - The detailed report and documentation specified in paragraph a above are not required in those cases of erroneous payments involving amounts of $50 or less where there is no indication in the record of fraud, misrepresentation, fault, or lack of good faith on the part of the employee or any other person having interest in obtaining a waiver of the claim. However, appropriate details developed in the normal course of establishing the existence of the erroneous payment should be provided.

Section 9.9.6 Responsibilities In Handling Applications For Waiver

Section 9.9.6.1 Applications for Waivers for Review

a. Initial Recording of Applications - Upon receipt of an application for waiver, Financial Operations enters in a Pay and Allowance Waiver Register, the date of the application, date received, name of the employee paid or on whose behalf payment was made, amount of the erroneous payment, and the date and person or office to which the request is forwarded for consideration when the file is complete (4 CFR 1, Sub-chapter G, Part 92.8).

b. Forwarding Applications - Financial Operations takes action as follows:

1. Claims of $50 or Less - Reviews the file to assure required information is included, obtains additional data if required, and forwards the file to the Director, Office of Financial Operations who determines the action and records his or her determination in the file.

2. Claims of More than $50 - Reviews the file to assure required information is included, obtains additional data if required, and forwards the file to GC for review, recommendation, and submission to the Chief Financial Officer for action.

3. Claims of $50 or Less in Which Waiver Action is Doubtful - Where the Director, Office of Financial Operations has indicated doubt as to whether the waiver action is proper, the Director forwards the file to GC for review and recommended action.

4. All Claims - In connection with the review prescribed in (1) and (2) above, Financial Operations obtains or prepares (if not already included in the case file) an explanation as to corrective action taken to prevent similar erroneous payments.

c. GC Action

1. Reviewing Case Files and Documenting Recommendations - GC reviews each file submitted to it for completeness and relationship to the standards and all conditions and limitations prescribed in Title 5, Part III, Subpart D, Chapter 55, Subchapter VIII, Section 5584. GC obtains any additional information that it requires to make its recommendation. GC forwards cases needing development through investigation to the Office of Security. Security returns the files to GC with its reports.

2. Disposing of Case Files - When review of a case is complete, GC forwards the file with its recommendation to the Director, Financial Operations for final determination.

d. Recording Final Action Taken on Application for Waiver - The Office of Financial Operations records in the Pay and Allowance Waiver Register the final action taken by The Broadcasting Board of Governors on the application for waiver. Data includes the date final action is taken, amount waived (if any), and amount refunded (if any). If a claim is submitted to the Office of Personnel Management, Financial Operations records the date it is forwarded and subsequently records the action taken by the Office of Personnel Management and the date of the action.

e. Informing Interested Persons of Final Determination - Financial Operations advises the employee and/or other persons interested in the claim of the final determinations in the case. Where a waiver in whole or in part is granted and the claim was previously paid by the employee or other person, the payor is informed of his or her right to a refund of the amount waived, if applied for within two years after the waiver is granted. A request for refund of any repayments may be included in the application for waiver. If so, and waiver is granted, refund action is automatically initiated. If waiver is denied and the amount was not previously repaid, collection action for the indebtedness is immediately reinstituted. Section 9.9.6.2 Filing Waiver Applications After Final Determination Made Financial Operations maintains an individual folder for each case containing all documents relating to it, including any separate refund requests. This file is the written record in each case and is required to be available for six years and three months for review by the Office of Personnel Management.

Section 9.9.7 Limitations On Waiving Claims

- a. Time Limitations - Conditions for waiver: An application for waiver must be received by the Office of Financial Operations within 3 years immediately following the date on which the erroneous payment was made.
- b. Other - Any erroneous payment that is the subject of an exception made by the Comptroller General may not be waived by the Broadcasting Board of Governors.

Section 9.9.8 Other Provisions

- a. Amount Waived Deemed a Valid Payment - An erroneous payment of pay or allowance that is waived is deemed a valid payment for all purposes.
- b. Refunds - Taxable claim amounts waived and refunded are included as a part of wages reported on the employee's Form W-2, Withholding Statement, for the current taxable year. All waiver refunds are charged to the appropriation and allotment from which the erroneous payments were made.
- c. Employee Separating From The Broadcasting Board of Governors - When an employee is separating from the Broadcasting Board of Governors and has filed application for waiver of an erroneous payment which has not yet been finally adjudicated, the amount of the erroneous payment will be withheld from his or her final salary payment. If waiver is subsequently granted, the amount will be refunded.

Section 9.9.9 Appeal to Denied Claim

- a. Upon notification of claim denial or disapproval, the requestor make a request for an appeal.
- b. Appeals are made in writing to the Executive Director of the BBG within 30 days of notification. Requests for appeal must include written justification for waiver.
- c. Upon receipt, the Executive Director will request case files from the Office of Financial Operations for review.
- d. The Executive Director shall review appeal request case files and make a final determination. This decision is final and may not be appealed.

101 Scope

The Agency's financial management system shall incorporate generally accepted accounting principles and standards for Federal agencies in accordance with instructions identified in OMB Circular A-134 Financial Accounting Principles and Standards .

102 Authorities

- 102.1 Chief Financial Officers Act of 1990 (Pub. L. No. 101 – 576)
- 102.2 Accountability of Tax Dollars Act of 2002 (Pub. L. No. 107 – 289)

- 102.6 OMB Circular A-136 Financial Reporting Requirements

103 Hierarchy for Accounting Principles and Standards

The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) designated the Federal Accounting Standards Advisory Board (FASAB) as the body that establishes accounting principles for federal entities. The AICPA's hierarchy of generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) in Statement of Auditing Standards (SAS) No. 91, The Federal GAAP Hierarchy, governs what constitutes GAAP for U.S. government reporting entities. The hierarchy lists the priority sequence of sources that BBG will look to for accounting and reporting guidance.

For financial statements of federal governmental entities, the GAAP hierarchy is:

- 103.1 Category (a) - officially established accounting principles, consists of FASAB Statements and Interpretations, as well as AICPA and Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) pronouncements specifically made applicable to federal governmental entities by FASAB Statements or Interpretations. FASAB Statements and Interpretations will be periodically incorporated in a publication by the FASAB.

103.2 Category (b) - consists of FASAB Technical Bulletins and, if specifically made applicable to federal governmental entities by the AICPA and cleared by the FASAB, AICPA Industry Audit and Accounting Guides and AICPA Statements of Position.

103.3 Category (c) - consists of AICPA Accounting Standards Executive Committee (AcSEC) Practice Bulletins if specifically made applicable to federal governmental entities and cleared by the FASAB, as well as Technical Releases of the Accounting and Auditing Policy Committee of the FASAB.

103.4 Category (d) - includes implementation guides published by the FASAB staff, as well as practices that are widely recognized and prevalent in the federal government.

"In the absence of a pronouncement covered by rule 203 or another source of established accounting principles, the auditor of financial statements of a federal governmental entity may consider other accounting literature, depending on its relevance in the circumstances. Other accounting literature includes, for example, FASAB Concepts Statements; the pronouncements referred to in categories (a) through (d) described above when not specifically made applicable to federal governmental entities by the FASAB; FASB Concepts Statements; Governmental Accounting Standards Board (GASB) Statements, Interpretations, Technical Bulletins, and Concepts Statements; AICPA Issues Papers; International Accounting Standards of the International Accounting Standards Committee; pronouncements of other professional associations or regulatory agencies; Technical Information Service Inquiries and Replies included in AICPA Technical Practice Aids; and accounting textbooks, handbooks, and articles. The appropriateness of other accounting literature depends on its relevance to particular circumstances, the specificity of the guidance, and the general recognition of the issuer or author as an authority.

104 Fund Control

104.1 Definition - The term "fund control" refers to management control over the use of funds to ensure:

- a. Funds are used only for authorized purposes;
- b. They are economically and efficiently used;
- c. Obligations and expenditures do not exceed the amounts authorized; and
- d. The obligation or expenditure of amounts authorized is not reserved or otherwise deferred without Congressional knowledge and approval.

104.2 Fund Control System - In accordance with the Fund Control Policy and Regulations, the BBG has established the following fund control system.

- a. Apportionment and Reapportionment of Appropriations - The Chief Financial Officer (CFO) has delegated to the Director, Office of Budget, the responsibility for requesting apportionments and reapportionments in accordance with operating plans approved by the Office of Budget, and the responsibility for reporting on the use of apportionments and reapportionments to the Office of Management and Budget.

b. Fund Controls - The control of appropriations and/or funds within consolidated financial plans and apportionments and reappropriations is exercised by allotment authorities, which are delegations of authority to issue allotments; allotments; operating allowances; and systems for the control of obligations and disbursement documents. It is the Agency's policy to establish fund authorizations for budgetary control at the highest practical levels. The following principles apply:

(1) Allotment authorities are issued to officers of major organizations that have autonomous or semiautonomous organizations reporting to them.

(2) Allotments are made to officers at the major organization level. In addition, allotments shall be issued to officers of autonomous or semiautonomous organizations by officers of major organizations receiving allotment authorities.

(3) Operating allowances are issued within allotments where necessary to facilitate control against allotments.

(4) It is also policy to limit the number of allotments to those essential to assure that obligations are not incurred in excess of apportionments and reappropriations. The number of allottees assigned to each allotment for each appropriation or fund for which the allottee has operational responsibility is also limited. Reliance on systems of multiple allotments to provide analysis of obligation activity shall be avoided.

(5) Advices of Allotment are issued by the Director, Office of Budget, in conformance with approved financial plans, and within the amounts and limitations of apportionments or reappropriations made by the Office of Management and Budget.

(6) The Director, Office of Budget is responsible for assuring, with respect to all funds, including trust funds, that:

- appropriate accounting is performed to provide for accurate disclosure of the status of all appropriations and other forms of obligational authority in terms of apportionments, allotment authority, allotments, operating allowances, obligations, and disbursements;
- allotments do not exceed apportionments and reappropriations; and
- amounts recorded and reported as obligations are valid obligations as defined by law in accordance with Section 1311 of the Supplemental Appropriations Act of 1955.

(7) Each official who receives an allotment of funds is responsible for:

- restricting obligations to the amounts available in such allotments;
- identifying an obligation with the applicable appropriation or fund and allotment at the time it is incurred;
- certifying funds are available before the applicable obligation documents are released and recorded;
- authorizing payments when goods are received or constructive receipt occurs (e.g., issuance of a receiving report or notice that services had been received); and
- reviewing unliquidated obligations and deobligating them when appropriate.

(8) Obligations incurred or disbursements made in excess of the amount permitted by an allotment constitutes a violation of the Anti-Deficiency Act as amended.

(9) The allotment accounts shall be the official allotment accounting records and the amounts there shall be under General Ledger control. Allottees shall also be responsible for controlling the rate of obligations in accordance with the approved financial plan, specifically to prevent the exhaustion of funds prior to expiration of an allotment.

(10) For purposes of effective financial planning, including fund control, data on commitments shall be accumulated in accounting records in advance of their becoming valid obligations. When the records are used to prepare official reports on incurred obligations, the reports shall include only valid obligations as defined by law.

c. Limitations Within Appropriations - Dollar limitations imposed by law within the scope of appropriations shall be provided by:

(1) Identifying statutory limitations in the allotment and General Ledger accounts.

(2) Verifying the availability of funds within the statutory limitations when obligating documents are certified for availability of funds within allotments and operating allowances.

d. Deferrals and Rescissions - The BBG will conform to prescribed guidelines and procedures within its accounting system in accordance with the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974. Budgetary authority may be temporarily withheld from obligation through the apportionment process for anticipated rescissions, fiscal policy considerations, or for other reasons. However, all funds deferred through the apportionment process, as well as apportioned funds provided for a specific purpose or project that are being obligated at a pace slower than intended by the Congress, must be reported to the Congress in a special message from the President.

105 Assets - Assets are recorded in the accounting records when acquired. They may not be written off, written down, disposed of, or allowed to leave the possession of the BBG without proper authorization.

105.1 Cash Resources - General Ledger accounts are maintained by appropriation or fund account and shall include foreign currency in order to disclose complete and current information on cash resources. Cash must also be distinguished by entity, non-entity and restricted cash balances.

a. Collections

(1) All collections shall be recorded on the day received and shall be deposited, to the maximum extent possible, on the same business day. Collections received after the cut-off time for a same day deposit shall be recorded on the day received even when the deposit cannot be made on the same day.

(2) Cash or negotiable instruments received from contractors or others as bid deposits, performance collateral, or in trust for other reasons shall be promptly deposited. Checks, bonds, or other negotiable instruments are recorded when received and deposited in either a Treasury authorized account or in accordance with the arrangements made with the appropriate U.S. Disbursing Officer if collected overseas. At posts other than service centers, negotiable instruments will be held in a secure facility under the control of the Management officer. Proper subsidiary records shall be maintained to identify the deposits, and in locations where General Ledgers are maintained, reconciliation with the General Ledger shall be made at least monthly.

b. Disbursements

(1) Responsibility for certification of vouchers for payment as well as scheduling of vouchers for payment shall be identified clearly, and no payment shall be made unless the applicable voucher has been certified for payment. Disbursements are recorded as of the date of certification of the applicable payment schedule Form SF-1166, Voucher and Schedule of Payments. Controls shall be implemented to prevent duplicate payments.

(2) Late payment penalties and lost discounts shall be a cost of operations, which is consistent with the Prompt Payment Act as amended (P.L. 97-177 and P.L. 100-496), OMB Circular A-125, and Treasury regulations.

c. Imprest Funds

(1) The officer having supervisory responsibility over an overseas cashier is responsible for supervision of cashier activities within prescribed policies and procedures. This supervision includes periodic unannounced verifications of cashier funds. Verification shall be made at least quarterly, and at irregular intervals, to avoid long undisclosed shortages. Balances will also be verified any time imprest fund accountability is transferred. Director, Office of Financial Operations (OFO) has these same responsibilities for domestic cashiers.

(2) In accordance with Treasury Financial Manual requirements, imprest funds that support domestic activities shall be charged to apportioned funds and identified as entity cash.

105.2 Accounts Receivable - Accounts receivable arise from claims to cash or other assets. The BBG has several different types of accounts receivable that must be tracked. Specific types of receivables include:

a. Reimbursements from other U.S. Government agencies. The agency shall establish receivables for reimbursements from other U.S. Government agencies for services rendered under interagency agreements.

b. Employee Receivables. Receivables, as opposed to advances, are established for employees for various debts including overpayment of salary, overpayment for moving and storage of household effects, medical costs and outstanding travel advances beyond the time period for timely repayment.

c. Vendors, Contractors and Others. Receivables arising from overpayments, adjustments to billings, and for checks with insufficient funds are established when they occur.

d. Foreign Governments Receivables. Receivables arising from international agreements are established when an agreement determines an amount must be paid to the U.S. Government.

e. Value Added Tax (VAT) From Foreign Governments. All amounts arising from value added tax payments to foreign governments should be booked as receivables even though they are not considered budgetary resources until received. Once received the VAT refunds are to be recorded as expenditure refunds credited against the original obligation from which they were expended.

f. Recording Procedures – Receivables are recorded in the General Ledger and details reported in the Open Billing Report.

g. Allowance for Uncollectible Accounts Receivable - Losses on receivables should be recognized in the accounting period when it is more likely than not that the receivables will not be totally collected. For the BBG, “more likely than not” means that there is more than a 50 percent chance that a receivable will not be collected. Essentially, the amount in the allowance for uncollectible accounts receivables should be estimated on the annual reporting date or when sufficient evidence suggests that the latest estimate does not realistically present the gross amount of receivables at their net realizable value.

h. Responsible Organization for Determining Write-Off Requirements for Uncollectible Accounts Receivable

(1) At least annually and more frequently if necessary, losses due to uncollectible amounts must be measured in a systematic manner based on an analysis of individual accounts. OFO must analyze anticipated losses from uncollectible domestic receivables and will assist overseas offices in their review of overseas receivables. Estimates of uncollectible amounts should be based on (1) debtor's ability to pay, (2) debtor's payment record and willingness to pay, and (3) potential to recover amounts from secondary sources, including liens, garnishments, cross-collections and other applicable tools.

(2) OFO will consolidate estimates from overseas and domestic organizations to determine the total amount of uncollectible accounts receivable to be recorded in the Agency's General Ledger. Since the allowance for losses generally cannot be based solely on the results of individual account analysis, additional factors, such as the nature of accounts receivables, may be considered. If circumstances warrant, OFO may assess the potential loss by grouping individual losses into the following groups:

- debtor categories (business firms, state and local governments and individuals);
- geographic regions (foreign countries and domestic regions).

105.3 Accounting for Interest Receivable - Interest receivable should be recognized for the amount of interest income earned but not received for an accounting period. Interest receivable should be recognized as it is earned on investments in interest-bearing securities. Interest should also be recognized on outstanding accounts receivable and other U.S. government claims against persons and entities in accordance with provisions in 31 U.S.C. 3717, Interest and Penalty Claims.

a. Recording Interest Receivable and/or Received - No interest should be recognized for accounts receivable or investments that are considered uncollectible unless the interest is actually collected. However, until the interest requirement is officially waived by the BBG or the related debt is actually written off, interest accrued on uncollectible amounts should be disclosed. Also, actual payments received from the debtor are required to be applied first to penalty and administrative cost charged, second to interest receivable, and third to outstanding debt principal.

b. Recording Interest Receivable From Federal Entities - Interest receivable from Federal entities should be accounted for and reported separately from interest receivable from the public.

105.4 Advances and Prepayments

a. Advances are cash outlays made by a Federal entity to its employees, contractors, grantees, or others to cover a part or all of the recipients' anticipated expenses or as advance payments for the cost of goods and services the entity acquires (e.g., travel advances, cash or other assets distributed under a contract, grant, or cooperative agreement). Prepayments are payments made by a Federal entity to cover certain periodic expenses before those expenses are incurred. Typical prepaid expenses are rents paid to a lessor at the beginning of a rental period. However, progress payments made to a contractor based on the percentage of completion of the contract are not advances or prepayments.

b. Prepayments of expenses applicable to future periods such as prepaid rent, shall be recognized in the accounts as assets which, like other payments made in advance of the receipt of services or benefits, constitute neither costs nor accrued expenditures. They develop into and shall be recognized in future accounting periods as costs and accrued expenditures as the value of the allocated portion is earned by the payee through performance. In the event that advance payments, including such prepayments, are neither earned by the payee nor returned or otherwise recovered, they shall be recognized as costs (losses) and accrued expenditures in the accounting period in which uncollectibility is determined.

c. Advances and Prepayments that Need to be Recorded - The BBG extends a number of advances and prepayments to employees and others for a variety of different reasons. Each type must be recorded in a separate subsidiary ledger, reconciled and posted to the General Ledger at the close of each accounting period to the extent the existing financial management system will allow. Also, separate accounts for each type of advance or prepayment shall be maintained to distinguish between public, other government agency, and intra-agency transactions. The most common type of advances and prepayments include the following:

(1) Travel Advances issued overseas -funded travel advances issued by overseas offices and funded by overseas allotments for temporary duty travel (TDY). These advances are tracked by an individual's name and must be repaid within 30 days of completion of travel.

(2) Washington-funded travel advances for worldwide international assignment travel and for authorized TDY under stateside allotments or operating allowances. Each advance is tracked by an employee's name in a specific allotment or allowance account.

(3) Salary advances for permanent change of station costs are tracked and repaid by salary deductions. Repayment must be tracked by an employee's name and completely repaid in 18 pay periods or less. The amount of each advance is recorded and reported by individual employee and managed through the payroll system.

(4) Advances for contracts are made in advance of performance under the terms of a contract. Such a payment is a contract advance if the performance has not occurred before the end of the accounting period. For example, guarantee deposits are classified as contract advances. Other examples are deposits for meters and communications equipment where the recovery of the payment for goods or services is to be effected at some future date. Advances of this nature are tracked by the vendor in a subsidiary ledger and either repaid by the vendor or offset against the cost of goods delivered or services performed.

(5) Other advances are made for certain expenses funded by overseas allotments and paid by overseas offices, for example, cash deposits to the Government Printing Office (GPO) for procurement of GPO publications. These advances are always short-term in nature and usually fully expensed by the close of an accounting period. However, residual balances need to be tracked in a subsidiary ledger, reconciled and posted to the General Ledger in accordance with the accounting period.

(6) Prepaid rents are advance payments on rental of equipment. Each advance is recorded in a subsidiary ledger by the name of the company or individual receiving the advance. If the advance payment is for a period greater than a month, the full amount is recorded in the subsidiary ledger and a pro rata share (based on the amount of the prepayment divided by the number of months in the period of agreement) will be deducted from the amount of the prepayment for each month. At the end of each reporting period, the remaining balance of the prepayments is reconciled and reported in the General Ledger as rental advances.

d. Accounting for Advances and Prepayments - The following will apply to all advances and prepayments recorded in the Agency's financial management system and shall be followed to the maximum extent possible:

(1) Advances and prepayments supported by subsidiary ledgers are to be posted to the General Ledger accounts by fund symbol. Records shall be maintained so that all transactions affecting advances/prepayments are included during the accounting period. Records of individual accounts shall be reconciled monthly with the balance shown in the General Ledger control accounts.

(2) Travel advances are recorded at the time the disbursement is made. When performance of the travel is documented (voucher submitted, etc.) and/or the advance is repaid, the expenditure is recorded and the advance amount is reduced, if appropriate.

(3) Amounts established for travel advances and other advances to employees, contractors, grantees, and others shall be classified separately in the General Ledger with corresponding subsidiary accounts to identify each debtor.

(4) All advances and prepayments will be recorded in U.S. dollars.

(5) The BBG shall pursue an aggressive collection policy and follow the standards promulgated by credit and debt collection legislation (e.g. Debt Collection Act, Federal Claims Collection Act, Credit Reform, etc.).

(6) Advances to employees are outlays for anticipated expenses or payments for goods and services even if the advance has not been charged to a funded allotment. Specific examples of advance transactions include advances for travel and quarters allowances. When advances are not repaid in accordance with BBG policies and procedures, they should be converted to an accounts receivable. In addition, advances and prepayments paid out by the BBG are assets to the BBG. Similarly, advances and prepayments received by the BBG are liabilities that may require repayment, delivery of goods or performance of services. Therefore, the advances and prepayments that the BBG paid out (assets) should not be netted against the advances and prepayments the BBG received (liabilities) when tracking and reporting advances and prepayments.

105.5 Accounting for Inventory and Property

a. Statutory Requirements - Public Law 84-863 (31 U.S.C. 3512) provides that each Executive Agency shall account for its property transactions and holdings in terms of monetary value as an integral part of its accounting system.

b. Periodic Physical Inventories are Required - Physical inventories of FASAB-defined inventory items (e.g. items held for sale, operating materials, etc.) and non-expendable property shall be taken at regular intervals; i.e., at least once a year or at an equivalent cycle. Similarly, physical inventories of real property and leasehold improvements will be taken at least once a year.

c. Reconciliation of Inventory to Accounting Records - Quantities determined by physical inventories will be reconciled to the accounting records. Adjustments will be made on the accounting records.

d. Definition of Inventory and Operating Materials – Inventory is defined as tangible personal property that is (1) held for sale, (2) in the process of production for sale, or (3) to be consumed in the production of goods for sale or in the provision of services for a fee. Similarly, operating materials and supplies consist of tangible personal property to be consumed in normal operations. Specific items excluded from operating materials are: (1) goods that have been acquired for use in the construction of real property or in assembling equipment to be used by the entity; (2) stockpiled materials; (3) goods held under price stabilization programs; (4) foreclosed property; (5) seized and forfeited property and (6) inventory.

e. Computing the Inventory Value to be Recorded in the General Ledger - The inventory value to be recorded in the Agency's General Ledger at the end of an accounting cycle (at least annually) is either an aggregate amount recorded on an inventory record or the results of a physical count on the accounting period closing date. Items that could qualify include substantive products in support of commercial activities, and/or other products and services for which the BBG will ultimately assess a user fee or charge upon delivery.

f. Operating Materials Balances to be Recorded in the General Ledger - Operating materials and supplies shall be recognized and reported as assets when produced or purchased. The consumption method of accounting for the recognition of expenses shall be applied for operating materials and supplies. A dollar value for operating materials and supplies that does not exceed $25,000 does not need to be recorded in the General Ledger.

g. Accounting for Other Asset Property - Other property not classified as fixed assets (e.g., books for permanent collections), whether acquired through purchase, voluntary conveyance, or other means, shall not be valued unless the asset or collection is capitalized. When an asset is valued and capitalized, its value will be recorded in a separate descriptive class of General Ledger and applicable subsidiary accounts. Gift fund items (e.g., furniture, rare documents, etc.) are not capitalized in the financial management system or reflected in the financial statements. While property accountability records will be maintained and the items will be valued for insurance purposes, the information will not be maintained in any official financial accounting system or the General Ledger. Borrowed property will be recorded in the General Ledger accounts for items loaned under a written acknowledgment of responsibility and offset by a liability account.

h. Property Management Records, Data and Systems - The Agency's financial management system utilizes information in the property management system managed by the Office of Engineering.

i. Real and Nonexpendable Personal Property Categories - The financial management system in conjunction with the property management system must accurately reflect real property values in the following categories:

- (1) Land;
- (2) Buildings; and
- (3) Communications Equipment;
- (4) Vehicles;
- (5) Medical Equipment;
- (6) Security Equipment;
- (7) Automated Data Processing Equipment;
- (8) Automated Data Processing Software;
- (9) Other Depreciable Personal Property; and
- (10) Non-depreciable Capitalized Property.

j. Capitalization Criteria

(1) Real Property. All real property that exceeds $25,000 in cost, including items constructed on leased land to which the BBG retains title, shall be capitalized at the date of acquisition.

(2) Personal Property. Personal property should be classified as fixed assets and capitalized at the date of acquisition if:

- it is complete within itself;
- it does not lose its identity or become a component part of other property when put into use;
- its value equals $25,000 on the date of acquisition; and
- it is of a durable nature with an expected service life exceeding two years.

k. Capitalized personal property that becomes permanently attached to real property will be removed from personal property records and added to the capitalized value of the real property. In the event capitalized personal property is subsequently removed from real property and either inventoried or sold, it will be reclassified as personal property in the appropriate asset account

(e.g., air conditioning chillers replaced on a building and subsequently sold as a separate item of property).

l. Valuation – Property, Plant and Equipment will be valued in accordance with applicable standards published by the FASAB. Management control over the cost of assets acquired by construction must assure that the cost of the work is kept within the authorized amounts and that accurate costs are recorded and transferred to the proper fixed property accounts when the work is finished. Accounts for the cost of facilities constructed by or for the BBG will include all material elements of costs, including those for:

- (1) Engineering, architectural, and other outside services for designs, plans, specifications, and surveys.
- (2) Acquisition of land (including easement and right-of-way costs), buildings, and other facilities.
- (3) Labor (including BBG employees), materials and supplies, and other direct charges.
- (4) An appropriate share of the equipment and facilities used in construction work.
- (5) Applicable indirect costs.
- (6) Fixed and severable collateral equipment and its installation to complete the facility for its intended use.
- (7) Inspection, supervision, and administration of construction contracts and construction work.
- (8) Legal fees and damage claims.
- (9) Fair value of contributed or donated land, facilities, utilities, labor, materials, supplies, services, and equipment.

m. Depreciation for Property, Plant and Equipment – The acquisition cost for Property, Plant and Equipment will be charged to depreciation expense in accordance with FASAB standards and standard General Ledger entries complying with the United States General Ledger.

(1) Depreciation rates will be established only on the basis of a reasonable estimate of the useful life of respective depreciable fixed assets and will consider estimated salvage value. Full recognition will be given to obsolescence in establishing useful lives for depreciation purposes. When appropriate, recognition will be given to cognizant Government agencies' determinations concerning the useful life or anticipated obsolescence of property.

(2) Depreciation rates will be reviewed at least every three years to determine the reasonableness of the rates.

n. Leasehold Improvements

(1) Major Improvements (Capitalized) - Major improvements include, but are not limited to, the cost of acquiring and installing new ceilings, permanent walls, lighting, carpeting, air conditioning, and safety and protective devices with a useful life longer than one year, and additions and improvements to buildings and other facilities. Major improvements shall be classified according to two lease categories—short term and long term. Improvements to leased properties shall be capitalized and depreciated over the estimated life of the lease, or the life of the improvement, whichever is less.

(2) Minor Improvements (Expensed) - Minor improvements are the costs for constructing or upgrading existing permanent walls, ceilings, lighting, and carpeting which are less than the capitalization criteria stated.

106 Liabilities

106.1 Accounting For Liabilities - Under accrual basis accounting, amounts owed to an individual, company, organization, or U.S. Government agency for the unpaid value of goods and services received and accepted are liabilities. Liabilities need to be accrued for goods received or services rendered, whether billed or unbilled, when they are identified.

106.2 Categories of Liabilities - Separate accounts shall be maintained for major categories of liabilities, especially intergovernmental liabilities.

106.3 Subsidiary Accounts - Subsidiary accounts shall be maintained as needed to identify the person or agency owed, and, when feasible or required, the form of payment to be made.

106.4 Liability Valuation - All liabilities shall be recorded and supported by reports of services rendered or goods received. Payroll liabilities shall include all actual time in pay status to the end of the reporting period. In instances where the amount of the liability is not definitely established, the best estimate shall be recorded and then adjusted when definite information becomes available.

106.5 Accounts Payable - Accounts payable represents a specific class of liabilities defined by Federal Financial Accounting Standard Number 1. This standard covers accounts payable for amounts owed by a Federal entity for goods and services received in contract performance and rents due to other entities. Liabilities related to on-going continuous expenses such as employees' salary and benefits are not considered accounts payable under this standard. These items are classed as other current liabilities. Also, amounts owed for goods or services received from Federal entities represent intra-governmental transactions, and should be reported separately from accounts owed to the public.

a. Contractual Services - The amount of a payable under a contract depends upon when the Government becomes liable for payment of the services being produced or performed by the contractor. When a contractor manufactures or constructs according to agreed upon specifications, the accrued expenditure and liability shall be recorded on the basis of documented transactions. The categories of contracts for consideration in determining accruals are:

(1) Contracts in which the Government has a legal monetary liability as the work is performed by the contractor during the period of the contract. This is often best determined by estimating the percentage of the total contract that has been completed.

(2) Contracts in which no legal liability for payment exists unless all services covered by the contract are received by the Government. Under this type of contract, no payable occurs until all services are received.

(3) Contracts in excess of $50,000 requiring performance according to Government specification. The payable will be based upon data obtained from the monthly contract financial report submitted by the contractor for each contract, provided the period of the contract exceeds 6 months. For contracts for periods of 6 months or less the amount is determined from the specific provisions in the contract governing completion dates and any holdbacks pending inspection.

(4) Contracts of $50,000 or less, or for periods of 6 months or less, requiring performance according to Government specifications. Payables are determined through analysis of documentary evidence indicating receipt of goods and services and/or the degree of completion of each contract.

(5) Contracts for off-the-shelf items mass-produced and/or sold in the commercial market. Payable figures are figures based on receiving reports.

b. Rents and Leaseholds - When a rental or leasehold period is on a monthly basis and the period is from the first of one month to first of the following month, and the amount due has not been paid, the amount recorded as a payable is one month's rent.

c. Communications and Utilities - Where a service is billed on a first-to-the-end-of-the-month basis, and such service has been received (telephone, telegraph, light, water, heat, etc.) but not paid, the estimated undelivered order (obligation) established for the month(s) is the payable amount.

d. Petty Cash Purchases - The amount of the payable at the end of the reporting period is the balance of the undelivered orders (unliquidated obligations) which were established for petty cash purchases.

e. Semi-annual Orders (Requisitions) - When billings (inter-office transfers) are received prior to receipt of goods, the billing is not recorded as a payable. If neither goods nor billing has been received before the end of the reporting period, none of the undelivered orders (unliquidated obligations) for semi-annual orders is a payable.

f. Official Residence Expenses - The amount recorded as a payable at the end of the reporting period is the balance of the undelivered orders (unliquidated obligations).

g. Representation Expenses - The amount recorded as a payable at the end of the reporting period is the balance of the undelivered orders (unliquidated obligations).

h. Travel and Transportation (Under Travel Authorizations) - A payable as of the end of the reporting period is determined by analyzing undelivered orders (unliquidated obligations) in the document file as follows:

(1) If the travel authorization indicates that travel was to start but would not be completed before the end of the reporting period, the unpaid transportation costs plus the estimated per diem from the starting date of travel to the end of the reporting period is included as a payable.

(2) If the travel authorization indicates travel was to be performed and completed before the end of the reporting period, the entire unliquidated obligation for that travel authorization is recorded as a payable.

(3) If the travel authorization indicates TDY travel will begin and end overseas but no travel was to be performed before the end of the reporting period, the payable is recorded for that travel authorization when an expense is incurred (e.g., purchase of airline tickets).

(4) The above accounting treatment does not apply to international assignment travel; a special requirement is used in the BBG to determine payables under this account.

i. Transportation of Things (not under Travel Authorizations) - A payable exists for the amount of any bill of lading or an airway bill for shipment of pouches or freight charges on goods or material which is unpaid at the end of the reporting period.

j. Posting Accounts Payable to the General Ledger and Reconciling Subsidiary Ledgers - Whether automated or manual, subsidiary ledgers on current accounts payable will be maintained at the point where the payable was generated and/or the point where the payable is most likely to be certified for payment. Payables will be recorded in U.S. dollars.

k. Record Date - Each account payable shall be established (dated) when the payable is recognized as an amount owed. The subsidiary ledgers, whether manual or automated, shall be designed to group payables by age with the most current increment covering payables less than 30 days old. Other age groupings will be in increments of 30 days (31-60, 61-90, 91-120) and records will be maintained on the age of each payable. To comply with Prompt Pay legislation and OMB Circular A-125, all payables should be processed within 30 days or in accordance with the terms of the agreement establishing the payable. Further, the payables subsidiary ledger should provide sufficient information to isolate and accelerate past due payments.

106.6 Salary, Wages And Benefits - Liability accounts for accrued payroll, including employee benefits earned and not paid at the end of the accounting period, shall be separately identified from other accounts payable. The amount to be recorded as a payable at the end of the accounting period will be the balance of the amount committed. Similarly, a payable at the end of the reporting period for the following benefits will be determined in the same manner as salary and wages:

- a. post allowances;
- b. Foreign Service transfer allowances;
- c. home service transfer allowances;
- d. separate maintenance allowances;
- e. supplementary post allowances;
- f. living quarters allowances;
- g. temporary lodging allowances;
- h. miscellaneous allowances; and
- i. employer's contributions.

106.7 Annual Leave - The amount of annual leave earned and not taken shall be compiled quarterly for recording in the General Ledger and for use in preparing financial reports. At the end of the fiscal year the leave liability accounts in the General Ledger will be reconciled to employee leave records maintained in the payroll system and adjusted for any differences, leave lost, etc.

106.8 Accrued Pension Liability - The accrued pension liability and related costs shall be calculated annually according to approved actuarial assumptions and recognized in the accounts and financial reports. Severance pay is not an accrued pension liability even though it is a payable for benefits to former personnel. Except for FSN severance payments from the Foreign Service National Separation Liability Trust Fund (FSNSLTF), severance pay will be posted as a liability. The liability amount will be the balance of any undelivered orders (unliquidated obligations) at the end of the reporting period. Severance payments from the FSNSLTF are considered payables and should not be classed as an accrued pension liability.

106.9 Contingent Liabilities - Contingent liabilities shall be shown in the General Ledger when there is a high probability the government will be held liable and the amount owed can be reasonably estimated. Other contingent liabilities shall be explained by a footnote on the financial statements. Contingent liabilities include but are not limited to claims for recovery of price adjustments, personal property claims and claims of losses. Subsidiary records shall be maintained to support the contingent liabilities and shall be liquidated when a liability is established or the liability does not materialize.

106.10 Tort Claim - A tort claim is a liability against the U.S. Government that should only be identified as a payable when it has been legally adjudicated but not paid at the end of the reporting period. There will be no payable established while the claim is in litigation or still in the administrative resolution process. Only after a determination is made that an item is a payable, and whether it is a payable to (1) a Government agency or (2) other than a Government agency, should such item be recorded in the ledger.

106.11 Advances and Deferred Credits - Amounts received as advances prior to delivery of goods or services by the BBG shall be considered as deferred credits if they extend over multiple accounting periods. Deferred credits to revenue represent collections or other value received in consideration for services yet to be performed but which in the normal course of operations will be performed and the related revenue earned in a future accounting period. Deferred credits shall be recognized in the liability category of accounts and amortized as revenues during the period in which earned.

106.12 Installment Purchasing - Any property acquired under lease/purchase contracts, or similar arrangements, which in substance represent installment purchasing, shall be recorded as a liability and an asset at the lower of fair market value or present value of minimum lease payments. For lease/purchase contracts where no decision to buy has yet been made, the purchase price shall be recorded as a liability when the option to purchase is exercised.

106.13 Other Current Liabilities - The term "other current liabilities" is used to classify current liabilities that are not recognized in specific categories. Specific examples include accounts payable; interest payable; debt owed to the public, Treasury or other entities; and liabilities for loan guarantee losses. Other current liabilities may include accrued employees' wages, bonuses and salaries; accrued entitlement benefits payable; and/or annuities for the current fiscal year administered by trust, pension, or insurance program. In addition, when federal agencies receive advances and prepayments from other entities for goods to be delivered or services to be performed in the current year, the advances and prepayments are other current liabilities. Examples would include liabilities for deposit and trust funds entrusted to the BBG, and the amounts of unidentified collections held in suspense.

107 Financial Position

As defined by OMB Circular A-136, the net financial position of the BBG (i.e., unexpired appropriations, invested capital, cumulative results of operations) consists of the residual equity of the BBG after accounting for all known liabilities and equity of others. The BBG shall maintain sufficient financial data to determine a net financial position.

107.1 Unexpended Appropriations - Unexpended appropriations includes the portion of the Agency's appropriations represented by undelivered orders (unliquidated obligations) and any unobligated balances. Unobligated balances may include both available and unavailable amounts.

107.2 Invested Capital - The net investment of the BBG is based on the following components specified by OMB:

- a. the acquisition cost of capitalized fixed assets financed by appropriations;

- b. pre-credit reform loans financed by appropriations;
- c. the additional investment in a revolving fund to commence operations or begin a new activity;
- d. less the reduction in investment due to depreciation, amortization, bad debts related to pre-credit reform loans, sales or exchanges, donations, other disposals; and
- e. the return of initial investment to an investor; or the transfer to another entity of revolving fund.

107.3 Cumulative Results of Operations - The net difference between (1) expenses and losses and (2) financing sources, including appropriated capital used, revenues and gains, since inception of the BBG or fund.

107.4 Other Components - Other components of financial position include the fair market value of:

- a. donated assets accepted from governments (state, local, foreign, individuals or others) that have been capitalized in accordance with BBG capitalization criteria, plus
- b. costs incurred to place donated items in use, including assets acquired by discovery, adverse possession, and means other than purchase or transfer, less
- c. reductions for assets sold, transferred out, donated, used or consumed in operations (include the net assets and liabilities) transferred to or from other federal entities without reimbursement.

107.5 Future Funding Requirements - The BBG must disclose future funding requirements that represent liabilities, which are not covered by available budgetary resources.

107.6 Prior Period Adjustments - The opening balance associated with the Agency's net financial position should equal the closing balance of the previous accounting period. However, the opening balance of net position is to be adjusted for material accounting changes or error corrections.

108 Revenues

108.1 Types Of Revenues - The BBG realizes revenues from various sources, such as:

- a. Proceeds from sale of property and equipment.
- b. Deposit and transfer of trust accounts.
- c. Late payment penalties on amounts owed to the U.S. Government.

108.2 Accounting for Revenues - All revenues shall be recorded and reported in accordance with Federal accounting standards, which for the BBG will be in the month earned. The revenue, which shall be recorded and reported monthly includes:

- a. those established through billings;
- b. those earned through performance pursuant to advances received; and
- c. unbilled revenues established through accruals.

109 Expenses/Costs

109.1 Organizational Structure - One of the principal purposes of the accounting system shall be accounting for costs according to management responsibility in an organization. Under this concept, specific costs incurred by the BBG may be considered to be the primary responsibility and accountability of a designated official. Accordingly, cost data shall be identified and reported by organizational structure for major organizations and sub-organizations.

109.2 Function Structure - Cost information shall be accumulated and reported by function. Where necessary to meet specific management requirements, cost information may be collected by projects, programs, activities and sub-activities within functional elements.

a. Budget Activity - Cost information shall be accumulated and reported by budget activity.

b. Common Classification - Planned and actual costs shall be accumulated and reported in accordance with the common classification adopted for planning, programming, budgeting, accounting and reporting to function and major organization managers. The common classification adopted shall be according to management responsibility, and shall provide information for budget projections as well as deviations of actual costs deviate from planned or budgeted cost estimates. In addition to classifying costs by function structure, organization structure, and budget activity, costs shall be classified by major type of cost incurred (such as labor, materials, lump-sum contractual services, etc.). Costs shall also be classified by the major object classes prescribed by OMB.

109.3 Basic Principles and Elements of Costs - Costs shall be recorded on an accrual basis in the accounting period to which they apply. Examples of costs that must be accrued include:

- a. payroll and related benefits;
- b. materials and supplies;
- c. unfunded costs such as leave costs;
- d. travel, transportation and storage; and
- e. rents, communications, and utilities.

109.4 Personal Services - The accounting system shall record personal services costs at the time work is performed. Salaries and benefits earned but unpaid while in "duty status" shall be an element of cost that must be included in determining the actual cost of a program.

109.5 Accounting for Leave - As employees earn the right to be compensated for leave or other absences, a current cost shall be recognized for the amount of leave earned, regardless of when taken or paid. Leave costs constitute an element of personal compensation earned by employees while in pay status, regardless of when the leave earned is actually credited to the employee. The recognition of leave costs as they accrue has the effect of stating in accounts and reports personnel compensation costs on an effective (duty status) time cost basis. The difference between leave costs accrued and leave paid or pay-rolled reflects the difference between personnel compensation costs that are recognized for general and cost accounting purposes, and obligations incurred and accrued expenditures related to personnel compensation needed for fund control purposes. The leave liability and related costs shall be accrued monthly and reported quarterly at the major organization, function and budget activity levels. At the end of the fiscal year, the leave liability accounts in the General Ledger will be reconciled to employee leave records and adjusted for any differences, leave lost, etc.

109.6 Grants - Federal grants are cash assistance payments for specified purposes. In general, the BBG will maintain subsidiary records at the recipient level and report the cost of its grant activities on the basis of actual or accrued earning of grant funds on the part of the grantee. In addition, the accounting records will track grant costs by organization and functional element.

- a. Grants Made on a Reimbursable Basis - Accrued expenditures shall be recorded for unreimbursed work that constitutes a BBG liability to grantees. However, the accrued amounts must be based on quarterly reports received from grantees and/or grantee estimates in lieu of reports, when necessary for periodic reporting purposes.
- b. Grants with No Reporting Requirements - Payments to grantees under grants where no performance or reporting by grantees is required or where the payments are scheduled to correspond approximately with performance shall be accounted for as an accrued expenditure and as a cost incurred.
- c. Frequency and Level of Recording Costs - Grant costs shall be recorded against major organization and functional element levels. In general, these costs will be accrued monthly, (not less than quarterly) by the BBG.

109.7 Overhead Costs

- a. Allocations - Indirect and overhead costing techniques shall be used to allocate the cost of the Agency's administrative support functions to the benefiting functions within the BBG, in order to determine the full (or loaded) cost.
- b. Consistent Methods - Allocations of overhead in accumulating costs for similar purposes shall follow consistent practices and procedures unless different circumstances justify a deviation. For instance, if the salary of a management officer is considered as overhead in accumulating costs for one function, the salary of similar management officers shall likewise be considered in accumulating costs of other functions for the same general purpose.
- c. Simplicity - The system for distributing overhead shall be such that cost data can be extracted from the expense accounts to disclose overhead costs. In making allocations of indirect costs, the basis that shall be used must be simple, reliable and in keeping with the purposes to be served.

110 Accounting for Pay, Leave and Allowances

110.1 General - The systems for processing pay, leave and allowances shall be designed to ensure:

- a. Prompt payment in the proper amount to employees entitled to be paid;
- b. Payments are in compliance with applicable law and related regulations;
- c. Proper disposition of all authorized deductions from pay;
- d. Adequate and reliable payroll records and reports are maintained;
- e. Adequate control over all phases and segments of the system; and
- f. Coordination of pay, leave and allowance operations with personnel functions and other related activities.

110.2 Principles and Standards - The following principles and standards shall apply to the accounting of pay, leave and allowances.

- a. Uniformity of Procedures - The procedures for processing pay, leave and allowances shall be uniform within the BBG. The granting and paying of allowances to individuals at foreign posts of duty will be in accordance with regulations issued by the BBG.

b. Controls - Suitable control records and other control features over detailed payroll operations shall be maintained in order to provide evidence of the accuracy of such operations and to serve as a deterrent to payroll irregularities. The controls will include the following:

(1) Systematic control procedures will be applied to all pertinent documents affecting the payroll process to assure that the documents are properly taken into account in determining payroll amounts payable. No employee shall perform all phases of a transaction without the intervention of another person or persons. Employees engaged in the preparation and maintenance of documents authorizing or evidencing payments shall not service their own individual pay accounts.

(2) Control procedures will be incorporated in the payroll process to ensure that the processing of payroll data is accurately performed.

110.3 Collection of Indebtedness - Prompt action shall be taken for the collection of employee debts due to erroneous payments. The regulations established covering collection of erroneous payments to employees will comply with the requirements of the Office of Personnel Management.

203 Definitions

203.1 Accountable officer is any Government official who, on behalf of the United States, receives and maintains public funds, certifies vouchers, or maintains and draws checks upon accounts of the United States. This applies to any employee appointed as a cashier, sub-cashier, certifying officer, or collections officer. Employees of other agencies cannot be designated as an accountable officer of the BBG without special prior approval of the BBG and the other agency concerned.

203.2 Accountable officer's forms and reports are documents which are signed by an accountable officer in an official capacity which account for all funds entrusted to their care.

203.3 Cash-flow process and reporting include each process related to the collection or disbursement of BBG funds held outside the Treasury documented in a report summarizing the opportunities for cash management improvements.

203.4 Cash Held at Personal Risk – Cash that the cashier keeps on hand for the purpose of making miscellaneous cash payments that he/she is personally responsible for and may have to replace if it is lost, stolen, or misappropriated.

203.5 Cashier – An employee who has been designated as a cashier by the Director, Office of Financial Operations (OFO), and is thereby authorized to perform limited cash disbursing functions. Cashiers are divided into two categories:

Class A Cashier – One who receives an advance from a disbursing officer for an Imprest Fund, is accountable in his/her own name to the disbursing officer and has not been authorized to advance an Imprest Fund to another cashier, except his/her alternate.

Class B Cashier – One who receives an advance from a disbursing officer for an Imprest Fund and is authorized to advance an Imprest Fund to his/her own alternate and to a sub-cashier. The Class B cashier is accountable in his/her own name to the disbursing officer for the entire amount of the advance received.

Sub-cashier – An employee of the BBG who has been designated to receive an Imprest fund from a Class B cashier, is under the supervision of the head of the same local office as the cashier from which he/she receives his/her advance, is accountable to such cashier for the funds received and is stationed within a reasonable distance to the advancing cashier. The provisions with respect to payment limitations and safekeeping which apply to cashiers also apply to sub-cashiers.

203.6 Cash management is the practices and techniques designed to accelerate and control collections, ensure prompt deposit of receipts, improve control over disbursement methods, and eliminate idle cash balances.

203.7 Cash management review is the ongoing review of the BBG's cash flow, which includes monitoring the efficiency, effectiveness, profitability, and corresponding cash management processes or mechanisms to identify areas of improvement.

203.8 Deposit cutoff time is a time designated by a financial institution beyond which transactions presented or actions requested will be deferred to the next business banking day.

203.9 Designated depository is the financial institution designated by Treasury to maintain U.S. Government accounts.

203.10 Funds or moneys are all currency and negotiable instruments (including blank stock and travelers checks) which are:

- a. Held (Imprest Funds);
- b. Paid out (disbursed);
- c. Owed to (payables); or
- d. Collected (receipts) by the BBG.

203.11 Imprest Fund is a fixed cash fund in the form of currency and coin charged against BBG's appropriation which has been advanced by an official government disbursing officer to a duly authorized cashier for cash payment purposes, as specified in his/her designation or authorization.

203.12 Reconciliation is the process of balancing available funds and records (cash, negotiable instruments, etc.) to report the accountability of a fund or account. Typically, reconciliation is performed by the accountable officer or employee on a daily, weekly, or monthly basis, depending on the volume of transactions, to test the accuracy of debit and credit transactions along with other records which affect the balance of an account.

203.13 Verification is the process of testing the accuracy of a statement, fund, or report (e.g., reconciled reports) including the physical count of money and visual inspection of documents in sufficient detail to attest to their truth. Verification is always performed by a person other than the person who issued the statement, maintained the fund, or prepared the report.

204 UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT DEPOSITARIES

204.1 Management Controls - This section is designed to comply with the Federal Managers' Financial Integrity Act of 1982 (31 U.S.C. 3512(b)) to establish a system of internal controls. Internal control systems are to reasonably ensure that the following objectives are achieved:

- a. Obligations and costs comply with applicable law; all assets are safeguarded against waste, loss, unauthorized use, or misappropriation; and
- b. Revenues and expenditures applicable to agency operations are recorded and accounted for properly so that accounts and reliable financial and statistical reports may be prepared and accountability of the assets may be maintained.
- c. Internal controls are essential to achieve the proper conduct of Government business with full accountability for the available resources. Internal controls also facilitate the achievement of checks and balances against undesired actions.

204.2 Cash Management - The BBG, through the Director, OFO, will develop and maintain a distinct set of written internal procedures covering the subject of cash management initiatives for timely collection and prompt deposit of receipts, appropriate disbursement methods, and elimination of idle cash balances.

- a. Each initiative will be based upon a cash management review to determine whether the BBG is billing, collecting, and depositing in compliance with regulations, and making disbursements according to the Prompt Pay Act of 1982. Each review will document the cash-flow and determine if any opportunity exists to implement or upgrade a process.
- b. Cash management reviews will be conducted according to guidelines in Treasury Financial Manual (TFM), Vol I, Part 6, Section 8075.30. Treasury reserves the right to periodically review the BBG's cash management program to assure that adequate progress is being made to improve cash management.
- c. Treasury reviews the cash-flow report and may issue a warning letter identifying initiatives that are not being implemented on schedule and an amount that may be charged for non-compliance. A Notice of Deficiency may be issued if the initiative is not brought into compliance, with the BBG being charged a penalty. The appeal process available to the BBG is provided in TFM, Vol I, Part 6, Section 8080.40.

204.3 Prompt Payment - The Prompt Payment Act, as amended (Pub. L. 97-177) requires Federal agencies to pay their bills within specified timeframes, to pay interest penalties when payments are late, and to take discounts only when payments are made within the discount period.

- a. Certifying officers and United States Disbursement Officers (USDOs) will make payments as close as possible to, but no later than, the due date, or, if appropriate, the discount date. Payments will be based on receipt of proper invoices (bill or other written request for payment) and satisfactory performance of contract terms. Certifying officers and USDOs will pay interest penalties and charge interest penalty payments, within funds available, to the account of the administration or operation of the program for which the penalty was incurred.

b. Payments to all vendors are subject to the Prompt Payment Act, including foreign vendors in foreign countries. However, if local conditions make it difficult or would prohibit meeting the 30-day prompt pay requirements, offices should revise the contracts or agreements to provide a realistic due date for payment. The contract terms, not the Prompt Payment Act provisions, govern the specific circumstances. Offices should consult with their servicing USDO to determine the appropriate time frame to include in their contractual agreements for payment processing.

204.4 Forms and Related Procedures

a. The Department of the Treasury shall have responsibility for establishing all general and specific types of disbursement, collection, and reporting forms, except that the BBG, in coordination with the Department of State, shall have responsibility for establishing forms falling clearly within its functional area abroad. The BBG also has responsibility for all forms related to transportation and the reimbursement of travel expenses.

b. Procedures for the use of a particular form shall be prescribed by the respective agency responsible for the form.

204.5 Documentation of Financial Transactions - All financial transactions, whether they involve cash, check, or electronic transfer, for the payment (disbursement) and/or receipt (collection) of amounts owed by or due to the BBG shall be documented on prescribed forms. Forms used abroad are to be approved by the Director, OFO.

a. Each collection shall be identified sufficiently to enable it to be deposited by the collection officer as required by law and for audit of the transaction. (See Section 205.)

b. Each disbursement shall be supported by basic payment documents, including applicable purchase orders, contracts, receiving reports, bills, invoices, statements of accounts, etc., showing sufficient information to account adequately for the disbursements and to enable an audit of the transactions and make settlement with the certifying or disbursing officers as required by law.

204.6 Separation of Duties

a. BBG employees shall be assigned duties that are not in conflict with other duties the individual performs. When assigning the following duties, a supervisor should scrutinize the functions the employee already performs and assign accordingly, avoiding any conflict of interest and the appearance of impropriety:

- (1) Purchasing goods and services;
- (2) Recording the receipts of goods and services;
- (3) Examining invoices;
- (4) Preparing vouchers;
- (5) Certifying vouchers;
- (6) Authorizing the hiring of employees;
- (7) Keeping time records;
- (8) Preparing payrolls;
- (9) Billing receivables; and
- (10) Managing computer system operations.

b. If such separation of duties is not practicable, preventive checks and controls must be scrupulously carried out and supplemented with internal reviews.

204.7 Right to Advance Decision

a. An accountable officer has the right to apply for and obtain a decision by the Comptroller General on any question of law involved in payment of any voucher presented for payment (31 U.S.C. 3529). A request for such a decision must be accompanied by a copy of the voucher and each supporting document involved with a duplicate copy of the request being sent to OFO. Requests are to be sent to:

U.S. Government Accountability Office
441 G Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20548

b. In lieu of requesting a decision by the Comptroller General for items of $1,000 or less, an accountable officer may rely upon written advice from an agency official designated by the Chairman of the BBG. The Chairman has designated the Chief Financial Officer (CFO). If payment is advised, a copy of the document containing such advice should be attached to the voucher and will be considered conclusive settlement of the accounts involved.

205 Collections

205.1 Refunds - All refunds and repayments received by BBG domestic bureau offices are to be sent to the OFO immediately upon receipt. At that time, supporting documentation must be provided by the bureau, indicating the reason for the refund or repayment and the fiscal data pertaining to the obligation to which the original payment was made, in order to return the monies to the appropriate obligation or allotment. The monies are deposited immediately into BBG's account with a designated financial institution, and the refund is recorded in the financial system according to the information provided by the bureau.

205.2 Proceeds of Sale - Proceeds from the sale of worn or outdated equipment is to be deposited into BBG funds upon receipt. The monies are to be recorded in fund X0206, allotment E008, Proceeds of Sale – ENG, or allotment V021, Proceeds of Sale – VOA, and are available for reapportionment through OMB. If the bureau which owned and sold the equipment desires to apply the proceeds of the sale toward the purchase of equipment to replace that which was sold, a written request must be submitted to the Director, Budget Office justifying the purchase. If approved, the Budget Office will then reallocate, apportion, and allot the funds to that bureau.

205.3 Travel Advance Repayments - Advance payments are made to BBG employees for the purpose of traveling on a Temporary Duty assignment (TDY) or for a Permanent Change of Station (PCS) move. Upon return from travel or, in the case of an employee relocating, the employee reaching their final destination, proper travel vouchers and receipts must be submitted to the OFO or post (for overseas), and a reconciliation of the traveler's expenses is performed. If the advance paid exceeds travel-related expenses, the traveler must reimburse the BBG for the difference immediately. Conversely, if the traveler's expenses exceed their advance, they will be reimbursed for the difference at that time.

205.4 Salary Advance Repayments

a. Permanent Change of Station to Domestic Locations - When a newly appointed employee of the BBG requests a salary advance to assist with the transition into their new position/location, and it is approved, the maximum advance allowed may not exceed the amount of the basic pay to be earned by the employee for two full pay periods, minus mandatory deductions. Repayment of the advanced salary is outlined in a signed agreement between the new employee and the BBG. Recovery of the advanced pay will be accomplished through salary offsets and will be completed within 13 pay periods beginning on the date of appointment of the employee. If the employee transfers to another agency or employment with BBG is terminated for any reason, any remaining balance on the advance is due and must be paid immediately.

b. Permanent Change of Station to Overseas Locations - When an employee is starting employment with the BBG at an overseas location, a salary advance of up to six pay periods of basic pay, minus mandatory deductions, may be approved to assist with their transition to their new position/location. Repayment of the advanced salary is outlined in a signed agreement between the new employee and the BBG. Recovery of the advanced pay will be accomplished through salary offsets and must be completed within 18 pay periods beginning on the date of appointment of the employee. If the employee transfers to another agency or employment with BBG is terminated for any reason, any remaining balance on the advance is due and must be paid immediately.

205.5 Rebates - The BBG receives quarterly rebate checks from credit card companies for the purchase and travel card programs, based on the credit card activity during the quarter. Both the travel and purchase card programs have a distinct allotment in the accounting system, to which the respective rebate is recorded. The rebate is received within the first month following the quarter, is deposited upon receipt, and is posted to the appropriate allotment in the financial system. Funds deposited into these allotments are used to support the respective credit card program.

205.6 Interest Checks from Grantees - In accordance with agreements the BBG has with their grantees, all interest earned on funds provided to the grantee by the BBG, which have been deposited into interest bearing commercial accounts, is to be returned to the BBG. The grantee receives the interest from the financial institution and returns it to the BBG on a quarterly basis. BBG, in turn, deposits the check and records the receipt against fund 3220, a Miscellaneous Receipt Fund, to return the funds to the Treasury.

205.7 Collections on Reimbursable Agreements - The BBG enters into reimbursable agreements with, and is reimbursed for services provided to, other government agencies. The BBG collects funds due from these other agencies through the Treasury's Intragovernmental Payment and Collection (IPAC) system. After processing a collection in the IPAC system, the transaction is recorded in the BBG's accounting system, applying the collection against the open billing document set up for that particular reimbursable agreement.

205.8 Overseas Collections

a. Checks for payment of refunds or debt collected at overseas locations, whether from a vendor or an employee can be handled in a number of ways.

(1) The check can be sent to the Administrative Program Manager for VOA or Engineering in Washington, D.C. The Administrative Program Manager will then forward the check and the applicable fiscal data to the OFO, where it will be deposited and recorded against the allotment/obligation provided by the Administrative Program Manager.
