In conducting background investigations, the investigators conduct interviews of individuals who have information about the person who is the subject of the review. In addition, the investigators seek out, obtain, and review documentary evidence, such as employment records, to verify and corroborate information provided by either the subject of the background investigation or by persons interviewed during the investigation. After conducting interviews and obtaining documentary evidence, the investigators prepare a ROI containing the results of the interviews and document reviews, and electronically submit the material to OPM in Washington, DC. OPM then provides a copy of the investigative file to the requesting agency, which uses the information to determine an individual’s eligibility/suitability for employment or a security clearance.
