And the Survey Says? ...

Thu Jun 15, 2017 at 06:05 AM

FSA OCIO recently completed their business applications end user satisfaction survey

(<https://sharepoint.fsa.usda.net/mgr/itsd/architecture/EndUserSatisfactionSurvey2017/SurveyResults.aspx>) and the results are in! Over 5,300 FSA employees completed the survey – now that's impressive.

The results, which have been provided to FSA leadership, will spur healthy discussions and decisions about software-related tools and resources you may need to do your job more efficiently. Most importantly, these results will serve as a comprehensive systems baseline to measure improvements over time.

Note: View the "2017 survey results

(<https://sharepoint.fsa.usda.net/mgr/itsd/architecture/EndUserSatisfactionSurvey2017/SurveyResults.aspx>)" and be sure to check out the links for "end user survey results – final without comments" and "end user survey results – summary".

Please keep these things in mind as you view the results:

It is data, not a decision – The results are considered input data, not a decision. Some systems are not rated as highly as others. The data and the categories are simply flags for additional discussion. Before we make any decisions about system changes, enhancements, retirements, etc., we must factor in program and policy considerations, available resources, competing priorities, and program risks.

Colors – You'll see red, yellow and green indicators. These colors were pre-determined by the survey company, and are used to mark relative strength (green = good, very good, yellow = average, etc.), as well as to compare against FSA averages.

Employee categories – This was flagged early on in the survey cycle as an issue. We were limited in the number of categories, and had to choose which ones to use. You spoke, we listened and will make adjustments for next year. You also gave us feedback on displaying state versus county employee data and we will consider making those adjustments next year. However, we need to take into account the relatively small number of state employees. Overall, due to survey instrument limitations, we can't refine or re-display the results to better align with true employee groups. As a result, you are encouraged to view the results in aggregate.

"Do Not Need" – This likely caused some confusion and possibly impacted results. We will see if we can adjust this to "Do Not Use" in the future.

Written Comments – There is a large number of comments about each system. The comments are not attributed to individuals, and are presented in the aggregate. As you read through the comments, expect to find conflicting feedback. You may find comments stating that the system is working well, and others stating just the opposite. Personal experiences and perspectives (past and present) do matter. I prefer to view comments in buckets or themes, whenever possible (for example, is there a common theme concerning a particular feature?). Unfortunately, we're not able to bucket the comments by states or offices because we don't have that identifying information.

Finally, to illustrate system-specific pages, let's use CARS

(<https://sharepoint.fsa.usda.net/mgr/itsd/architecture/EndUserSatisfactionSurveyDocuments/CARS%20Results.pdf>) as an example).

1. The top left portion of the page can be interpreted to mean that CARS is a very important system. With respect to features and usability, you are somewhat satisfied, and with respect to data quality, you are satisfied.
2. Compared to other FSA systems, CARS scores higher than the FSA average.
3. On the right side of the page, the results are broken down by job category. We realize these are not all the employee categories. This section also emphasizes importance, features, usability and data quality. You'll note that responses differ based on job position.
4. In the bottom left, you'll see a "quad" chart. In this case, the results placed it in the "Maintain" box, as the scores across respondents are effectively saying that the system works ok, and there aren't significant changes or actions needed at this time. If there were issues, the system would have been placed in one of the other boxes, necessitating further discussion. As with other FSA systems, rest assured that we will continue to look for ways to fix CARS bugs, and prioritize improvements.

Business Improvement – It's a Process

Thu May 4, 2017 at 07:00 AM

We share Secretary Perdue's vision of USDA as being the Best Run, Best Managed, and Best Regarded Agency in this Country.

OBPI is the nexus between agency programs and business operations, and has three main areas: Appeals and Litigation, Operations Review and Analysis, and Strategic Performance and Evaluation. Did you know many OBPI staffers were once farmers, county executive directors, program technicians, district directors, and county operations reviewers? We value our "grass-roots" background and close connection to agriculture.

A new role for us is developing an Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) program that identifies and manage risks to improve accountability and efficiency. FSA is addressing the following risks: financial reporting, communication, cybersecurity, internal controls, IT systems, succession planning, and workforce development.

Recently, OBPI conducted a pilot survey of the employees who work the Livestock Forage Disaster Program (LFP). We were able to provide immediate feedback on identified problem areas to those implementing the program. In the future, we plan to expand risk surveys to all offices and programs by building on that pilot work.

Secretary Perdue stressed how important it is to make the right decisions based on facts and science. To that end, OBPI oversees the FSA informal appeals process which participants can use to challenge adverse program determinations. Options include reconsideration, mediation, and further appeal within FSA or to the Department's National Appeals Division. These serve as a safeguard against erroneous program decisions.

OBPI also serves as the FSA contact to settle program litigation. We analyze litigation risks involved with each case and recommend terms for settlement. This requires us to explain practical program matters to our lawyers and, in turn, translate some of the "legalese" from our lawyers into language that program folks can understand. Further, we handle all FOIA, Privacy Act, and Agriculture Foreign Investment Disclosure Act appeals for FSA and process non-procurement debarments and other exclusions.

OBPI also leads the Agency's strategic and annual planning consistent with the goals of the Administration, USDA Secretary, and FSA Administrator, and we report agency-wide performance up to USDA, Office of Management and Budget, and other stakeholders. We have worked to expand Agency stakeholders through cooperative agreements and support agency employees who have served as FSA's technical representatives in over 150 awards since the 2014 Farm Bill.

Yet another way OBPI supports the Secretary's vision for USDA is through our county operations reviewers who ensure the integrity of FSA's programs. Through these reviews and corrective actions, we can ensure FSA's continues as one of the best regarded agencies.

OBPI is the lead office for audits, investigations, hotline complaints, appeals, and litigation, which although challenging, provide a vital service to the Agency and our customers. Through reviews and corrective actions, we improve program efficiency and effectiveness. OBPI also serves as the Agency audit liaison with the USDA's Offices of Inspector General (OIG) and Chief Financial Officer and the Government Accountability Office (GAO).

OBPI provides critical support to Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), which provides funding for many CCC programs. In OBPI, the Secretary and Assistant Secretary participate on the Board of Directors (chaired by Secretary Perdue) - members include key sub-cabinet leaders across USDA. OBPI maintains board-level documents, certifies claims officers, certifies CCC officers in special situations, and has custody of CCC's official seal.

Checks and Balances

Thu Jun 29, 2017 at 06:00 AM

By Larry Durant, Chief, Receivable Management Office, Financial Services Center, Financial Management Division, FSA Office of Budget and Finance

When Bill, one of thousands of hard working American farmers, signs up for an FSA program, he may be entitled to receive certain program benefits. For example, let's say Bill has a 1,000 acre farm and he agrees to set aside 100 acres for conservation efforts. While Bill cannot use those 100 acres in his normal farm production, he may be entitled to receive other program benefits during that time. Program payment benefits are calculated in part, based on acreage and what crops farmers are growing.

FSA issues billions of dollars in program payment benefits annually to customers like Bill.

In some cases, customers may not be entitled to program benefits. For example, Bill the farmer, may have an outstanding debt that he still needs to pay. In this case, a receivable or overage (meaning FSA has paid out more than Farmer Bill is entitled to) is established in Bill's name in the National Receipts and Receivable System (NRRS), either automatically via program software, or manually by a County Office program specialist. Farm programs, like Agriculture Risk Coverage and the Conservation Reserve Program, have automated software programs that act as self-check mechanisms to identify overpayments, which are then transferred to NRRS as receivables. For more information on NRRS, check out Notice FI-3226 - National Receipt and Receivables System (NRRS) (https://www.fsa.usda.gov/Internet/FSA_Notice/fi_3226.pdf).

Did you know that nearly 90,000 FSA receivables are created annually? Currently, there are 20,000 open receivables (amount owned to FSA by customers) valued at over $350 million dollars.

Due Process

When a determination is made that a debt is owed to FSA or the Commodity Credit Corporation, an initial notification letter and subsequent demand letters must be sent to all debtors liable for the debt. These letters provide the customer with the appropriate notification, identify their rights, and outline the agency's rights. Late interest begins accruing if the debt is not paid within 30 days of initial notification. If the debt remains open and unpaid after the final demand letter, annual reminder letters will be generated each year on the anniversary of the last letter.

Certification of Debt

Each debt over 60 days old requires FSA's field office to submit documentation to the Receivable Imaging System, in support of the receivable. Members of the Receivable Management Office – Receivable Servicing Group (RMO-RSG) review the documentation to determine if the documentation supports pursuing collection.

Collection of Debt

In most cases, receivable collections are handled by the customer bringing a check into the nearest field office, or subsequent payments to the customer are offset and applied directly to the open receivable.

Delinquent Debt

Once a debt has reached 100 days from issuance of the first demand letter, and if it is deemed an eligible receivable (in good standing – no bankruptcies or ongoing lawsuits against the agency), it is referred to the Treasury Offset Program (TOP). In compliance with the Debt Collection Improvement Act, agencies are required to send delinquent debt to Treasury. Any federal payment can be subject to offset once a debt has been referred to Treasury. Federal payments include, tax refunds, Social Security, wages, travel reimbursements, and retirement benefits. In other words, if Farmer Bill receives federal payments, such as tax refunds, Social Security or travel reimbursements, TOP will reimburse his debt to FSA before he receives these other payments. This is commonly referred to as an offset.

Delinquent debt can also be referred to Treasury's Cross Servicing Program. Under this program, Treasury will send the debt to collection agencies. These collection agencies charge additional fees (up to 35%) on top of the open debt amount. Once debt has been referred to Cross Servicing, the agency can no longer accept payment directly from the customer.

In extreme cases, the Department of Justice may assist with filing suit or seeking judgments against the customer.

Customer Service

Legal Administrative Specialists (claims examiners) in FSA's RMO-RSG group have designated states assigned to them. Claims examiners answer questions about receivables from customers, field office employees, attorneys, and Treasury. They work with customers to arrange repayment agreements (promissory notes) to prevent adverse action (referrals or litigation) from occurring, or come up with a compromise if it is determined to be in FSA's best interests. In cases where the customer is unable to pay the debt due to financial hardship, the claims examiner can work with the customer to reduce or eliminate the debt, provided the customer can offer proof.

Crop Acreage Reporting Update

Thu Jun 29, 2017 at 06:01 AM

By Kurt Benedict, Acting Director, Operations and Testing Center/OCIO

As many of you are aware, we are currently in the middle of our peak crop acreage reporting period. Acreage reporting is a critical component in many FSA programs.

Ensuring seamless application performance during peak season is our top priority. The IT operations team has worked closely over the last year with our hosting partner National Information Technology Center to implement a new network and application monitoring tool (TrueSight). This tool provides a full end-to-end view of application performance and visibility into the end-user experience across the country. This new capability allows the operations team to quickly respond to any spikes or anomalies within the network, server(s) or application.

As an additional baseline measure, acreage data is compiled and reported daily to IT management to demonstrate progress from year to year. This daily view serves as a quick snapshot to identify new and important trends.

Currently we have surpassed both 2016 and 2015 for fully reported acreage.

Description	Program Year 2017 as of 20- JUN-17 Monday	Program Year 2016 as of 20- JUN-16 Sunday	Program Year 2015 as of 20- JUN-15 Friday
Total Number of crop/fields for Program Year	12,293,917	11,127,447	10,423,981
Total Number of Acreage Reports that are Fully Reported for Program Year	1,164,184	1,001,175	989,075
Total Number of Acreage Reports that are ACTIVE	1,774,056	1,607,962	1,551,678
Percentage of crop/fields based on Previous Year totals	65.33%	100.17%	100.78%
Percentage of Acreage Reports that are Fully Reported based on Previous Year totals	50.45%	99.5%	102.87%

The IT organization understands the importance of Crop Acreage Reporting and having a system that fully performs during this peak period. We are committed to providing the best support for our end-users and customers.

Drought Continues to Plague Northern Plains

Thu Aug 10, 2017 at 06:00 AM

The severe drought in the Northern Plains continues to put a strain on livestock and crop producers, forcing farmers and ranchers to find ways to utilize what little crops they can produce, find creative ways to feed their livestock, or make critical decision to downsize or liquidate their herds. And, based on the most recent U.S. Drought Monitor (<http://droughtmonitor.unl.edu/>), there is no end in sight.

According to Jim Honeyman, FSA District Director, who also happens to be a livestock producer in the southwestern part of North Dakota, it has been an abnormal year for weather and precipitation. While snowfall was normal, there was little snowpack which didn't help subsoil moisture, and pastures suffered. His area has seen above normal temperatures, with several days topping 100 degrees, combined with heavy wind.

In South Dakota, FSA Conservation Program Manager, Owen Fagerhaug, echoes the conditions his northern neighbors are facing. The drought area continues to increase. Small rain events have provided some relief, but not enough.

"The grass is very short and dried up. Folks are really struggling," said Fagerhaug.

FSA has taken steps to help.

This summer, USDA authorized emergency grazing on Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) land (<https://www.usda.gov/media/press-releases/2017/06/23/usda-authorizes-emergency-grazing-drought-stricken-montana-north>) in Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota. This includes emergency grazing of CRP land for any county whose border lies with 150 miles of a county approved for emergency CRP grazing. Contract holders who harvested their CRP land for hay as part of their mid-contract management plans, can also donate hay to livestock producers.

USDA also began allowing producers in North Dakota and South Dakota to institute emergency haying and grazing, and released additional land (<https://www.usda.gov/media/press-releases/2017/07/20/usda-opens-more-land-emergency-haying-and-grazing>), including wetland and buffer practices, to be emergency hayed or grazed.

"These emergency actions came at just the right time for livestock producers," said Honeyman.

"It will add the forage into the supply chain and allow it to be more affordable in areas that are short on feed and make the product available to those who need it," Fagerhaug said. "It creates more product out there and alleviates the stress on the market."

Fagerhaug said many farmers are chopping corn already for silage, but what in a normal year would produce 15 to 18 tons of silage per acre will be closer to three tons to the acre this year.

Grain farmers are feeling the heat as well. Honeyman said canola yields are down and the corn and sunflower crops are not faring well. And in North Dakota, they are baling the spring wheat for hay

"It's pretty dismal as far as the crops go," Honeyman said. "Our yields are going to be way down."

In addition to the livestock feed concerns, both Honeyman and Fagerhaug said the water quality for some livestock producers has become problematic due to high sulfates in the water. The high sulfate concentration can lead to cattle blindness and even death. Some producers have been hauling water to their animals as a result, which Honeyman said, can be a full-time job.

The dry conditions also make it prime for wildfires, adding to the concern of producers who are wary of sparking a fire while out harvesting hay.

Parts of North Dakota and Montana have experienced fires, including one in eastern Montana that destroyed over 270,000 acres, according to the National Interagency Fire Center (<https://inciweb.nwcg.gov/>).

Farmers are waiting for the rains to come, but it will probably be too late as pastures won't be able to bounce back.

"It's not going to be a quick fix," Honeyman said. "Even if it does rain, our hay and pastures aren't going to do much. But our farmers are resilient. They don't give up easy. They're going to fight it until they can't anymore."

USDA and FSA staff have a history of helping producers fight to stay in business and that hasn't changed. Both Honeyman and Fagerhaug said offices are very busy working with producers wanting to release CRP ground for haying and grazing. Other disaster programs, including Livestock Forage Disaster Program (LFP), Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honeybees and Farm-Raised Fish (ELAP), will add to the workload.

"We are a service agency, and always there to help" Fagerhaug said. "We are in those communities, and our employees take pride in what we do."

FSA to the Rescue - Customers Hit Hard by Wildfires

Thu May 4, 2017 at 07:00 AM

In early March, wildfires scorched parts of northwest Oklahoma, southwest Kansas, the Texas Panhandle and parts of Colorado. In total, the fires destroyed over 1.5 million acres and an estimated 20,000 head of livestock perished.

FSA employees in those states were on-hand to provide assistance to producers during this devastating time. They implemented critical programs such as the Emergency Conservation Program (ECP), Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP), Emergency Assistance for Livestock Honeybees and Farm-Raised Fish Program (ELAP), and the Emergency Grazing on Conservation Reserve Program (CRP).

After the fires settled, Morgan Bourquin, program technician from Hemphill County, Texas, assessed the fire damage and made personal contact with affected producers.

"It's as bad as you can imagine and maybe even a little worse," Bourquin said. "It's hard for people who haven't seen it to imagine. It's people's livelihood and their passion, and it was gone within seconds."

In Clark County, Kansas where it is estimated that 350,000 acres, or 85 percent of the county, burned, FSA held an informational meeting for producers and nearly 500 showed up. FSA has already processed $1.5M in LIP payments and continues to utilize the ECP to provide cost-share assistance to rebuild fences. T.C. Dawson, county executive director for Kiowa and Clark/Comanche Counties in Kansas, reported that he has one operation that has lost up to 300 miles of fence.

In addition to the assistance FSA provides, farmers, ranchers and others from across the country have stepped up to provide much needed hay, milk replacer and fencing supplies to these states. A feed store in Ashland, Kansas, serves as a drop off point for many of these donations. Dawson said the feed store tracked the donations and they reported receiving donations from every state in the lower 48.

"You can't drive down the highway without seeing a load of hay with an American flag on it," Dawson said.

In Oklahoma, Joy Alspach, chief of the conservation section for Oklahoma FSA, said they hosted two public meetings, reaching a total of 289 producers. "To walk in and to see the defeated look on producers' faces was not easy. Some of those people lost everything - their home, their cattle, all the grass for their livestock," Alspach said. "That forage was crucial to their cattle operation and it's all gone. The burned pastures will need a rest period to recover and prevent damage to the grass stand."

Dawson said there will be a negative financial impact for the affected producers for several years to come due of the severity of loss.

"ECP and LIP help, but the financial burden is still going to be there. Guys are going to end up feeding cattle through the summer, where typically that wouldn't be a cost," Dawson said. "Also time and labor of feeding cattle all summer that typically you wouldn't have the labor expense of feeding them every day. Financially, this is going to be a multi-year situation to recover."

Through this tragedy, the FSA community has pulled together in an effort to serve producers as swiftly as possible. Dawson said the Clark/Comanche office, a shared management office, only has two program technicians, but Kansas FSA has rallied around them and volunteers have signed up through June to come and lend a hand.

“I’ve never worked for other government agencies, but that’s something that I find remarkable about FSA,” Dawson said. “We have had two to three extra people in the office every week since this process started helping out, so the producers can get the services as quickly as possible.”

Alspach echoed that the county office staff in Oklahoma have worked very hard and have endured the emotional impact of seeing how this disaster has impacted their friends and neighbors.

“They are the backbone and they are the ones that have been there working hard to assist the producers,” Alspach said.

Our New Secretary is Here and Hitting the Ground Running!

Thu May 4, 2017 at 07:00 AM

Sonny Perdue, became our 31st Secretary last week and he has hit the ground running. Secretary Perdue brings a lifetime of experience and dedication to Agriculture and to improving the lives of farmers, ranchers and producers, FSA's lifeblood. His will be a powerful voice as he tirelessly advocates for rural America.

Secretary Perdue is solutions-minded and a man of action, with a customer-first mentality. Under his leadership, we will work together to remove roadblocks and strengthen Rural America.

A former farmer, agribusinessman, veterinarian, state legislator and Governor of Georgia, Secretary Perdue's strong agricultural background has helped to prepare him to lead USDA.

At his Senate hearing, Secretary Perdue outlined four guiding principles that will inform his policies as USDA Secretary:

1. Maximize the ability of the men and women of America's agriculture and agribusiness sector to create jobs, to produce and sell the foods and fiber that feed and clothe the world, and to reap the earned reward of their labor;

2. Prioritize customer service every day for American taxpayers and consumers;
3. As Americans, we should expect a safe and secure food supply; and
4. Always remember that America's agricultural bounty comes directly from the land. And today, those land resources sustain more than 320 million Americans and countless millions more around the globe.

More than anything in his life, it was the family farm which shaped Secretary Perdue. He has lived and breathed the exhilaration of a great crop and the despair and devastation of a drought. He learned by experience what his father told him as a child, "If you take care of the land, the land will take care of you."

"The only legacy that I seek is the one that any grandparent or parent seeks – to be good stewards, and to hand off our nation, our home, our fields, our forests, and our farms to the next generation in better shape than we found it," Secretary Perdue said. "Making sure that Americans who make their livelihoods in the agriculture industry have the ability to thrive will be one of my top priorities. I am committed to serving the customers of USDA, and I will be an unapologetic advocate for American agriculture."

Secretary Perdue's first day on the job was definitely a busy one. He and his wife Mary attended his swearing-in ceremony at the White House, followed by a warm welcome and opening remarks to his new USDA team (over 100,000 strong). Secretary Perdue then joined President Trump for a "Farmers Roundtable (<https://www.usda.gov/media/press-releases/2017/04/25/perdue-joins-white-house-farmers-roundtable-president-trump-issues>)" at the White House to address issues facing the American agriculture community, as the president signed an Executive Order establishing an Interagency Task Force on Agriculture and Rural Prosperity (<https://www.whitehouse.gov/the-press-office/2017/04/25/presidential-executive-order-promoting-agriculture-and-rural-prosperity>), which Secretary Perdue will chair.

'The Farmer's Roundtable' at the White House featured more than a dozen farmers and representatives from all corners of American agriculture, who gathered to discuss topics such as agricultural trade, regulatory reform, rural investment and infrastructure, labor issues and the farm bill. This, just as the task force begins its mission "to promote economic development and revitalization, job growth, infrastructure, innovation, and quality of life issues for rural America."

"The people who are on the front lines of American agriculture don't have the luxury of waiting to tend to their crops and livestock, so there was no better time to convene this meeting of the minds than on my first day," Secretary Perdue said. "President Trump has made it clear that addressing the needs of rural America will be a top priority, and the message that we want to send to the agriculture community is that we are here, we are working hard, and we are on their side. The Farmers Roundtable provided the chance for the President to hear directly from the people on the front lines of American agriculture about what they are dealing with every day. By hosting this discussion, the president has demonstrated his awareness of the plight of American farmers, ranchers, foresters, and producers, his intention to seek input, and his determination to help."

Take care,

Chris Beyerhelm

Ready! Set! Go!

Thu Apr 6, 2017 at 04:30 PM

It's a new day FSA – do you feel the excitement in the air? Change always brings opportunities and I know you are all more than up to the challenge. Our customers are counting on us and we won't let them down. We have capable managers in acting roles and the day-to-day important work of the agency will continue with the same timeliness and attention to customer service.

Already our new President has taken some actions that we are currently reviewing to determine exactly how they will impact current operations. But rest assured, as new leadership positions are established, our team will only get stronger. Thanks to those who are serving in acting roles as well as those who've filled in behind them.

As I receive information about incoming leadership positions and we learn how new policy decisions impact customers and our workforce, I'll share that with you as soon as I can.

I hope you love this new FSA newsletter, which is filled with informative and timely information and events. It's your newsletter, so be sure to tell us what you think.

Always in your corner,

FSA Acting Administrator

Traveling Doesn't Have to be a Headache

Thu Jun 1, 2017 at 07:06 AM

By William Willer, Chief, Debt Management and Travel Policy Office, Financial Management Division, Office of Budget and Finance

Traveling isn't as much fun as it used to be. Processes and systems can feel confusing and overwhelming, especially if you're not a frequent traveler. Travel policy handbook 118-FI (<https://emso-sa.fsa.usda.gov/dps/services/downloadhandler.ashx?fileid=6512>) (currently being updated to reflect new changes) can help navigate federal government travel regulations. For additional information, be sure to check out FSA's travel webpage (<https://inside.fsa.usda.gov/operations/obf/fmd/travel-information/index>).

Did you know that throughout FSA, we have federal agency travel administrators (FATAs) who can help with almost any problem you might encounter? Contact the travel policy team (<mailto:FSATravelHelp@wdc.usda.gov>) to learn more about the FATAs or for general travel questions.

Local Travel

The process and reimbursement system for local travel has recently changed. FSA is currently in the process of developing a new notice (to be released shortly), which will define local travel and demonstrate how to request reimbursement for expenses.

Non-Local Travel

Non-local travel is supported by a common government travel system called Concur (formerly GovTrip). Changing from GovTrip to Concur has resulted in some growing pains. You'll be happy to know that ongoing efforts are underway to improve Concur's inner workings, as well as its user interface.

Federal Government Travel Card

If you travel frequently in your job with FSA, you may be issued a federal government travel card. However, remember that these cards can only be used for charges associated with official travel, never for personal expenses, including but not limited to office supplies. Travel card holders are liable for all charges on their account, and it is their responsibility to pay the account in full by the due date. This means that card holders need to voucher travel expenses within five (5) days of completion of travel, to ensure reimbursement monies are received in time to make payment and avoid delinquency. If delinquent for 60 days, the travel card will be suspended.

Conference Travel

Did you know that there is a federal reporting requirement for conference travel? Congress now requires detailed tracking of all conference activity and travel through the Conference Transparency and Tracking Tool (CTAT). Conference planners will input conference data into CTAT, and the system will route the data through an approval process. This centralized system will improve reporting, to ensure accuracy and efficiency. FSA will identify designated CTAT points of contact in field offices and headquarters (this information will be available via the new notice).

Published 07/28/2017 10:11 AM | Updated 07/31/2017 01:32 PM

What is the description on the payee's bank statement for FSA/CCC payments?

The description will be "FSA TREAS 310" for disbursements not offset by Treasury. For disbursements that have been offset the description will be "TCS TREAS 449".

If the payee has a different description from above and they want to find out which government agency submitted the payment, have them call Dept. of Treasury at 1-855-868-0151, select option 1 and option 1.
